New zoning code gets 1st hearings; 2 areas spotlighted

By ABNER GOLD
The first informal hearing on the proposed new municipal zoning code, Monday evening at the Florence Gaudineer School, attracted some 50 citizens who discussed details of the plan for slightly more than an hour—with emphasis on two neighborhoods which had already been spotlighted in previous meetings on earlier proposals.

These are the area between S. Derby road and Rt. 22 and the borders of the new office zone along Morris avenue, particularly in the vicinity of Lewis drive.

Following another informal hearing Tuesday, the Township Committee plans to consider all the comments and suggestions offered on the new zoning code before taking final action. Acting Mayor Phillip Del Vecchio presided at Monday's hearing.

Mrs. Harry Elstein, president of the Springfield League of Women Voters, read a statement which termed the ordinance an "effective guide for the future growth" of the Community.

A special exception use permit for a motel on the highway property is being challenged in the courts. Under the new ordinance, a motel would be a permitted use in the highway commercial zone.

The full text of the statement by the League of Women Voters follows: "The League of Women Voters of Springfield after extensive study of the proposed new zoning ordinance, believes that this ordinance for the most part can act as an effective guide for the future growth and development of Springfield as established in the master plan."

Army indicates new thinking on Rahway River

The first indication that the Army Corps of Engineers might reconsider its 1962 decision not to undertake flood control work on the Rahway River was offered by Frank Pagano, representing the New York District of the Corps, at the emergency meeting at Town Hall last Thursday morning at Town Hall in Springfield.

The meeting was called by the Township Committee in the wake of the high waters of May 29, which swam through many parts of Springfield and neighboring communities. Taking part were officials from Millburn, Union, Cranford, Rahway, Hillside and Mountainside, as well as representatives of county and state agencies and of several legislators elected from this area.

Since the Army Engineers are the only agency associated with major flood control work, the comments of their spokesman were particularly significant.

Pagano said that when the Corps receives additional information on damage from the May 29 flood, including photographs and specific reports from property owners, it would consider reopening the report and reviewing its recommendations for flood control programs.

From what he had seen of the area, Pagano said, there was a good chance for a new study. He added, "I think the damages are enough to warrant another look."

A TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE spokesman, reviewing the meeting, stressed that action by the Corps of Engineers "is not a quick remedy, but a protracted solution. It would take five to seven years for relief."

"Now that we have the basis for action, we intend to pursue it. At least it is a step in the right direction."

Representatives of the State Highway Department, he pointed out, attended the meeting and "acknowledged that a portion of the flood here was their responsibility, either through the primary contractor here on Rt. 78 or through

Playfields open Monday for eight-week season

The Springfield Recreation Department will offer eight weeks of supervised play this summer at 11 playgrounds throughout the town. The playfields will be: Henshaw avenue, Irwin street, Sandmeter School, Regional High School, Denham road, Riverside at Washington avenue, Woodside at Laurel drive, Ruby at Rose avenue, Smithfield drive at Alvin terrace and High Point drive.

Registration will be held Monday at 1 p.m. at the playgrounds. The planned program will run from Monday to Aug. 16. Although attendance on the playground is not compulsory, registration is necessary.

All playgrounds will be open daily, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. In the event there is rain, the day's program will be cancelled.

The age requirement for use of the playgrounds is six through 15. Children under six years of age must be accompanied by parents or an older brother or sister, capable of looking after the younger child. For children over 15, the Recreation Committee has recommended the use of Regional High School, Irwin street, Sandmeter School or Riverside playfields.

Safety is always stressed on the Springfield playgrounds, a spokesman said. In case of accident the Springfield police and First Aid Squad will cooperate. Each playground is equipped with a first aid kit.

BESIDES THE USUAL athletic and game activities that take place at the playgrounds, there will be emphasis on a creative arts

City schools topic as board approves history workshop

A discussion prompted by plans for a curriculum workshop this summer provided the highlight of an otherwise routine meeting of the Regional High School District Board of Education Tuesday night at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield.

The proposal was to pay a total of $5,700 for seven teachers to take part in a workshop in American history for seven weeks this summer.

Dr. Benjamin Josephson, board member from Springfield, suggested that while the board was spending money to improve its own curriculum, he wondered "whether we could do something for our less fortunate neighbors in other communities."

While not offering a specific plan, he said he was thinking of something along the lines of an exchange program to permit some underprivileged urban teenagers to attend the regional schools.

Resignation by Southward a surprise to school board

BY ROBERT L. LIBKIND
Robert T. Southward submitted his resignation "effective immediately," as president and a member of the Springfield Board of Education Tuesday night, 15 minutes before the monthly meeting was scheduled to begin. He did not attend the meeting.

Southward presented his brief resignation note to Mrs. Audrey Ruban, board secretary, in the James Caldwell School offices of the local school board.

Members of the board and staff said Southward's resignation came as a shock and a surprise. It was not at all expected, one member remarked.

Several members of the board did not learn of the resignation until midway through the meeting when Mrs. Ruban read the letter in the communications section, following the public discussion period.

In his letter of resignation, Southward said that with deep regret, he will no longer serve on the body. There was "no necessity to go into detail" about the reasons why he is resigning, he wrote, since board members "are aware" of them.

Board member August Caprio said he believed Southward's reason for resigning was disharmony on the board. "I feel he became a little discouraged and felt he could no longer serve on this board with a lack of cooperation," Caprio said.

The school board took no action on the resignation.

Mrs. Ruth Waldman, in response to Caprio's comments, said harmony or lack of harmony was immaterial in the success of a board of education.

Southward was reached last Tuesday night but declined comment on the reasons for his resignation.

He became a member of the board six years ago and was named president last year, after serving as finance committee chairman and vice-president.

IN OTHER ACTION, Seymour Margulies, chairman of the board's advisory school planning committee, offered a report saying "no action will be taken on the Raymond Chisholm School redistricting for the 1968-69 school year. We anticipate," the committee report said, "that during this coming year, after further studies are made and after the public is fully heard, the board will make a determination which will encompass consideration of many of Dr. Rissetto's recommendations."

Dr. Henry Rissetto's report suggested the phasing out of the Chisholm School because of a declining school population projection. At the May meeting of the board, concerned citizens presented a petition to the board requesting a public hearing on the matter before a decision is reached. Margulies then wrote to each signer of the petition that "you will be given a full opportunity to be heard and to voice your opinion of the report before a determination is made by the board."

The report of the school advisory planning committee also made no recommendations for the coming school year concerning the transfer of pupils from the Edward Walton School to the Thelma Sandmeter School. The report said, "It is anticipated that in conjunction with such action as the committee may take in considering Dr. Rissetto's report and recommendations, the Walton-Sandmeter problem will be taken into account."

A motion offered by board member John Gacos to transfer some pupils from the Belmont Top area from Walton to Sandmeter, excluding fifth-grade students, was defeated.

Mrs. Sonya Dorsey said that any action of the local board should take into account a master plan.

THE BOARD APPROVED an expenditure of $1,200 for continuation of the School Television Service of Channel 13 for the coming school year. Superintendent of Schools John O. Berwick said the service has been improving and offers many opportunities to enrich and supplement the work of our local elementary school teachers.

Resignations were received and accepted from Alan Campbell, George Strein, Geoffrey Payrin, Mrs. Josephine Marchand and Mrs. Florence T. Towner. Berwick noted that Mrs. Towner has served 18 years in the school system and gave her "best wishes for a long and happy retirement."

Berwick recommended the employment of the following teachers, all of whom were approved by the board: Mrs. Carmen Barasano, a graduate of Havana (Cuba) University, $10,625 per year; Mrs. Ernestine Holm, graduate of California State Teachers College in Pennsylvania, $9,650; Mrs. Junita Robertson, Newark State College graduate with previous teaching experience, $7,700, and Elaine

Harms, copter pilot, wins DFC in Vietnam

DONG BA THIN, VIETNAM—Army Warrant Officer Fred P. Harms, 20, son of Mrs. Fred Harms of 10 Prospect pl., Springfield, N.J., received the Distinguished Flying Cross April 24 in ceremonies here.

Harms received the award for heroism involving aerial flight in action against enemy forces in Vietnam, Feb. 1, 1968.

Harms, an armed helicopter pilot in the 92d Assault Helicopter Company near Dong Ba Thin, entered the Army in May 1966 and completed basic training at Ft. Polk, La. He was stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo., before arriving overseas in November, 1967. The warrant officer also holds the Air Medal.

He is a 1965 graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield. The text of the citation:

"For heroism while participating in aerial flight, evidenced by noteworthy actions above and beyond the call of duty. Warrant Officer Harms distinguished himself while serving as pilot of an armed helicopter in support of friendly forces during an enemy attack against the city of Dalat, Republic of Vietnam. Arriving on station, he immediately directed his attack at the source of enemy fire. His attack was so devastating that the enemy fire was silenced.

"Following the target attack, the gunships were informed that the airfield had been under mortar attack. He volunteered to land in order to refuel and rearm. As he landed, a mortar round burst near the aircraft, severely damaging the major components. He was able to take off and fly his stricken ship to his home base. His actions were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army."

WINS MEDAL — In ceremonies at Dong Ba Thin, Vietnam, Army Warrant Officer Fred P. Harms (second from right) of Springfield receives the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Mrs. Helen S. Keller, children's librarian, also announced that a "tween" corner is being set up for sixth graders.

Good grade given to Dayton Regional by education team

Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, recently underwent the scrutiny of a group of professional educators during an evaluation by representatives of the State Department of Education.

In his report to Dr. Warren M. Davis, Regional superintendent of schools, the chairman of the committee said "the report that there would be continued efforts to strengthen an already good school." Dr. William West, county superintendent of schools and chairman, reportedly described the high school as a well organized and efficiently managed one and stated the extensive curriculum offerings provide a strong college preparatory program as well as varied trade and skill courses for the student whose formal education will end with high school graduation.

One of the committee's greatest concerns was "the limited land owned by the district," the report added that "it would be desirable for the district to obtain more land area at the earliest possible opportunity for proper expansion of this plant to the extent it may need to be so extended."

While the physical plant was generally rated as good, the report offered a number of recommendations which it felt would further improve the overall academic program; A larger library that would incorporate a learning materials center approach (including ANA); seminar rooms and others for large group instruction; and the updating of science facilities in the old building.

The evaluators recommended the addition of another guidance counselor. They also suggested a separate lunch facility for faculty members; separate resting facilities in the health suite for boys and girls and the correction of the heating distribution problem.

Many of the items recommended by the committee have already been incorporated in the plans for renovating the building, according to a school spokesman. Included in these renovation plans are the following: A separate lunch facility for faculty; small class rooms for seminar meetings; room facilities for large group instruction; a new health suite with separate resting facilities for boys and girls; a new library and instructional materials center; a new physical education facility to be added to the agriculture building; a new science laboratory-class room; a new fine arts area; a new graphic arts shop; and the reconditioning of the heating plant.

The report strongly commended the school for its low drop-out rate (1.3 percent for 1966-67); the lower-than-usual load for faculty-staff with a staff-pupil ratio of 14 to 1; the expenditure for library books; the above average supervisory staff; and the broad participation of students in a variety of activities.

On the basis of the evaluation, the State Board of Education renewed the charter of Dayton Regional, such approval to expire on June 30, 1973 (the approval period at no time is longer than five years and in some instances much less, depending on local conditions).

Local students visit UN Learning on a world-wide scale

The following report of a trip to the United Nations by students from the Florence Gaudin School, Springfield, was written by two seventh graders, Deldre Mehl and Rachel Gold.

As the bus pulled to a halt, the classroom of Mr. Robert Oldelhoff and Mrs. Antoinette Inguaggiato stopped off and gazed at the sight before them... the United Nations. We entered the building, and our eyes fastened upon the perpetual pendulum to our right, the statue of Zeus to our left, and the magnificent lobby, the gateway to the UN stretching out before us.

We were led to a conference room, where we received our briefing. When the briefing was completed, one of the Israeli delegates, Michael Shiloh, was introduced.

Summing up the current Middle Eastern crisis from his conception to the present day, Shiloh concluded his talk by permitting questions from the intent listeners. The questions ranged from "Why didn't the Arabs give the Jews back old Jerusalem originally?" to "What is Israel planning to do about the jets which France is now withholding?"

Since that Wednesday was the day on which Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was shot, an unscheduled visit to the UN chapel was decided upon. The chapel is a dimly lit room in which there stands only a crucifix, a rock, and behind it hangs a painting. Our thoughts were for the recovery of Robert Kennedy and peace throughout the world. To many of us, these few minutes were the most beneficial part of the day.

THE NEXT ITEMS on the agenda were luncheon in the delegates' dining room, followed by visits to U.N. shops.

The main part of the afternoon was spent on a guided tour, each guide in her native dress. On this tour, we visited not only the many branches of the UN, the Security Council, Trusteeship and Economic Council, but also the exhibits from organizations such as UNICEF (United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund), and WHO (World Health Organization).

Standing in awe at the dazzling Chagall stained glass window, we were astounded to learn such a work of art could be made by the human hand. We were then led to the last stop of our tour, the huge General Assembly room. By the end of our tour, we stood in awe, faced with the immensity of the physical size and the seemingly never-ending aims of the UN.

To prevent us from getting a one-sided view on the Middle Eastern crisis, our teachers, Miss Judith Gaines and Mrs. Norma Levine, had planned for us to have a meeting with one of the Jordanian delegates. Arriving at the conference room, we were met by an empty room and chairs. When our story was explained to the main desk, they relayed the message that the Jordanian delegate was called to an emergency meeting. We assumed that the emergency meeting was due to a clash in the Middle East. Later, we found out the trip reason was that the suspect in the Kennedy shooting was a Jordanian. We then realized we were a fragment in this tragic event in our history.

In the meantime, Miss Gaines, since she had been in Jordan, acted in lieu of the Jordanian delegate.

The last minutes were spent taking pictures so that the pleasant memory of this trip would be a lasting one.

THESE ARE SOME of the participants' reactions:

"I thought the trip was great; I have been there before and every time I go there I learn something new. A trip of enjoyment and educational value. I hope that classes after ours go the UN."—Stuart Brecher.

"The trip was absolutely wonderful. Shiloh's speech was interesting, yet I was sorry I could only hear the Israeli side of the story."—Sherril McRees.

"It was an enlightening experience. It was my first trip to the UN and I was not sure what to expect. I must say that the trip was well worth it, since we did learn how the UN works and what its purpose is. Our chaperones, as well as guides, were a great help when we toured the building. I thoroughly enjoyed the trip."—Robin Reinhardt.

"Being that I had never gone to the UN before, I thought it proved to be quite an interesting trip. I thought this trip was better than just reading a book because we were there—actually able to see the various rooms. The only complaint that I have is that the trip was too short."—Jody Ross.

"I think the trip was worthwhile because I learned a great deal. I think the highlight of the trip was the chapel. After walking in the noise, the quietness was worth a million dollars. It also gave me time to think of my inner-most thoughts and meditate."—Fran Wildman.

The purpose of the trip was to relate the mechanics of our federal government to that of international government.

As a result of the April 25 contest, Dayton had two finalists: Jill Williams placing sixth in Level III and Debbie Goldstein placing second in Level II. They were invited to be among six finalists in each level to compete in a separate oral contest on June 8 at the French Institute at 22 East 60th st. in New York City.

For the oral contest, the girls had to conduct a short informational conversation with the judges in French; describe a picture chosen by the judges and with which they were unfamiliar; read an unfamiliar passage; and recite a prepared selection, prose or poetry, of at least 10 lines.

Pending bill will return $60,000

If the State Legislature overrides the governor's veto on a bill to return $25 million a year in state sales tax to municipalities next year, Springfield is expected to receive approximately $60,000.

The estimate was made this week by State Sen. Matthew J. Rinaldo of Union, architect of the bill.

The Assembly Monday, passed and sent the bill to Governor Richard J. Hughes, who has threatened to veto it. The governor hasn't taken any action up to press time.

The revenues would come from a return of 10 percent of the sales tax proceeds; a state take-over of 75 percent of the welfare costs; and a $25 per pupil increase in aid to education.

Rinaldo, who called the bill a "novel and dramatic approach to helping solve the plight of the cities, criticized the governor for referring to his bill as "pork barrel legislation."

"I must deplore as untrue and misleading the tactics of Governor Hughes," Rinaldo said. Rinaldo said the main purpose of the bill is to fulfill one of the governor's own promises when the sales tax was enacted, namely, to help relieve the burden on the property taxpayer, who, in New Jersey, pays more than in almost all other states. In other words, this bill gives to the taxpayer rather than taking from him.

Rinaldo said the funds are distributed to the municipalities, according to population, for tax relief purposes. He also said the money is earmarked for general municipal aid and becomes part of the municipality's general revenues.

"Strangely, this feature of the bill, which distinguishes it from the pork barrel type of legislation which the governor condones, is the main point of his attack," Rinaldo said.

He also criticized the governor's "paternalistic approach."

"I believe that the local government, being closer to the people, is more aware of the needs of the people in their respective towns. The governor's lack of confidence in the ability of our local governing bodies to manage their own affairs is shocking."

Rinaldo said that by opposing the legislation, the governor is turning his back on the little man who bears the third highest property tax burden in the nation.

"I defy Governor Hughes to tell the little man straight out that he doesn't deserve such a break," Rinaldo said.

The governor's denunciation of the bill is too vague and too diffused a scheme to do an effective job for the urban areas.

Rep. Dwyer asks U.S. action to halt recurrence of Rahway River flooding

WASHINGTON — Rep. Florence P. Dwyer (R-12th Dist.) this week asked the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to begin emergency clearing and snagging operations throughout the Rahway River basin, including Springfield, as soon as possible "to help prevent a recurrence of recent disastrous flooding in the area."

Congresswoman Dwyer said the President's designation of northeast New Jersey as a major disaster area would make the necessary funds and authority available.

At the same time, Mrs. Dwyer asked the House and Senate public works committees to authorize the updating of an earlier Corps of Engineers report which showed that a full-scale flood control project on the Rahway

River was not economically feasible. "The extensive damage caused by the recent flooding of the Rahway River and its branches has substantially changed the cost-benefit ratio and has increased the likelihood that the economic benefits of a flood prevention program would exceed the costs," she told the two committees.

Congresswoman Dwyer said that the Rahway River basin covers about 50 percent of Union County and substantial portions of Essex County.

A new Corps of Engineers report, she added, which demonstrates a favorable cost-benefit ratio, would be required before Congress could authorize a flood control project and appropriate funds.

Among the communities most directly affected by flooding of the Rahway River and its tributaries, she said, are: Springfield, Cranford, Union, Millburn, Mountainside, Scotch Plains, Roselle Park and Rahway.

MRS. DWYER HAS also written to the mayors of communities in her 12th Congressional District which were affected by the flooding and informed them of the emergency assistance available as a result of the President's disaster area declaration.

Most federal departments and agencies, she explained, are authorized to provide emergency help especially in the repair and rehabilitation of public facilities. In addition, she said, the Public Health Service could provide pollution control and mosquito prevention services; the Veterans Administration could ease repayment schedules for holders of GI mortgages; and the Internal Revenue Service could provide relief in making tax payments.

In the immediate aftermath of the recent flooding, Congresswoman Dwyer urged the White House Office of Emergency Planning, the Corps of Engineers and the Small Business Administration to survey flood damage and declare the stricken region a disaster area. She was also instrumental in helping to arrange last week's meeting in Springfield between municipal and county officials and representatives of the Corps of Engineers and the State Department of Transportation.

Mrs. Dwyer informed municipal and county officials that a series of meetings will be held with state disaster officials and representatives of the Office of Emergency Planning to provide assistance to affected municipalities. Meetings are scheduled in Wayne on Mondays and Tuesdays and in New Brunswick on Mondays and Thursdays.

Freeman to direct member drive for B'nai B'rith lodge

Wallace Callen, president of the Springfield Men's Lodge of B'nai B'rith, has announced the appointment of Saul Freeman as membership chairman for the coming year. Callen said the lodge has 450 members and the goal for the new year is 150 additional members.

Freeman, newly-elected third vice-president of the lodge, resides at 14 Country Club Lane. He is president of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce, director of Civil Defense and Disaster Control and a member of the Lions Club and Elks Club. He has headed fund-raising drives for charitable causes in Springfield and has also been a participant in activities of the local Boy Scout and Girl Scout organizations.

Freeman said, "There are many prospective members who do not yet belong to B'nai B'rith" and expressed an intention "to make these people aware of the programs of the organization, programs which are designed to help others, regardless of race or creed." He has worked on the membership committee in past years and has also served as civic affairs chairman.

He indicated that he is confident that the goal of 150 new members will be met, stating, "once a prospect is educated to the aims and goals of this organization and programs such as the Hillal program at American colleges, Anti-Defamation League, social services, adult education and the whole broad spectrum of B'nai B'rith, the actual signing up of the prospect will naturally follow suit."

Editorial Comment

So many are excellent, but only one is unique

Perhaps the most disheartening news for the children of Springfield and for this newspaper, in a season which has had its share, was the report that Trudy Creede is leaving the local school system.

As remedial reading teacher, guardian angel and source of inspiration, Mrs. Thomas Creede has had tremendous impact on a great many boys and girls. More than a few received their first feeling of academic accomplishment under her direction.

All this is fine, but actually little more than can be expected from any of the outstanding teachers in a school system which is top-heavy with excellence.

What is worthy of comment is the unique way in which Mrs. Creede has been able to use the services of the local newspaper for the advancement of education--and to the enrichment of the paper's news columns.

It began several years ago, when Mrs. Creede realized that many of the youngsters who had come to her for remedial reading were going in one direction for their first efforts at reading on their own.

They went to the pages of the Leader to pore over the Small Fry basketball and Little League baseball write-ups, which were about things they and their friends had done.

The same thing, she realized, held true for the playground columns during the summer.

For the first time in their lives, these boys and girls had found out that the printed word could tell them something they wanted to know, rather than something they had to learn and couldn't quite understand.

Mrs. Creede began to clip articles from the paper, mark the names of the youngsters and put the items on the bulletin boards of the two schools she served--James Caldwell and Thelma Sandmeier.

Then she, and the children, started to look for names of students, and members of their families, in other sections of the paper.

Because there was a void to fill, and because many of her students were active through the summer on the township swimming team, Mrs. Creede took over publicity for the team. From that point, she went on to write the column about playground activities--with emphasis on making sure that no one was overlooked.

Even more important, she discovered that many of the boys and girls, with just a little help, could write articles about interesting projects and trips which were part of their classwork--and that this paper was always happy to print well-written, newsworthy articles about the youngsters.

From somewhere, Mrs. Creede turned up with the ability to take the only Polaroid snapshots which were consistently clear enough for newspaper reproduction.

The articles kept coming in, more frequently and with even greater reader appeal as teacher and children learned one of the first principles of journalism--keep it simple and keep it interesting.

A few other teachers even learned that there was a perfect way to encourage youngsters to read, and to write, as well as a fine channel of communications between classroom and parents, and the interested general public. We can only hope they continue.

The bulletin boards grew larger, and more crowded. Mrs. Creede began having the youngsters file the clippings in scrapbooks, for continued reference.

Rather than comment further, we would like to take the liberty of quoting from a note received from Mrs. Creede:

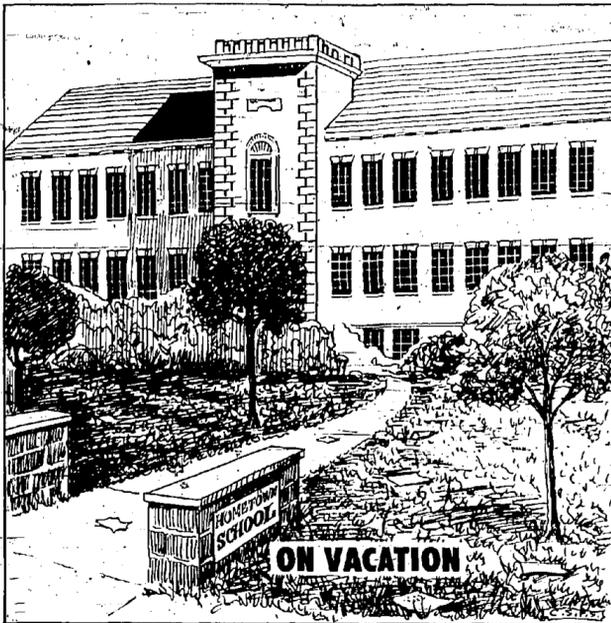

"I guess you've heard that the Creedes have to move away from Springfield because the company Tom is with is building new headquarters in Connecticut. After 19 years, it is not an easy move. I feel very much a part of the town. . .

"I hope that the scrapbook committees will be able to carry on. (I will also give a build-up on the project to the new reading teacher.)"

"We have bought loose-leaf (huge) notebooks and non-glare plastic page covers. This should make it easier to put clippings in the book--and will certainly add a measure of durability. The scrapbook has become a well worn volume!

"Thank you for all you have done for the children of Springfield. It has been a pleasure for me to see the fruits of our labors."

The pleasure, Mrs. Creede, has been ours.

Letters To Editor

Letters to the editor must be submitted no later than Monday of the week they are to appear. They should not exceed 250 words in length and should be typed with double spacing (not all in capital letters, please). All letters must be signed. Writer's name will not be withheld if the letter is of a political nature. This newspaper reserves the right to edit or reject any letter.

CITES GOOD EXAMPLE

In a New York Times article published June 13, 1968, it was reported that the Verona School Board, by a 4-to-1 vote, approved the entry of children from the Newark slums into the Verona elementary school system.

At the present time, the Springfield Board of Education is studying Dr. Rissotto's recommendation to reduce Springfield's elementary school capacity by a phase-out of the Chisholm School.

Verona's approach to its over-capacity problems appears quite relevant to our troubled times. Perhaps our board should adopt this alternative, for it may well be that the future needs of Springfield and the future needs of the underprivileged are inseparable.

FROM WITNESSES

We have greatly appreciated the coverage received in connection with our recent circuit assembly. A great deal of interest was shown in the scriptural promises that wickedness would soon end.

Publishing such comforting information in papers like yours is most encouraging to our neighbors, especially so at this time since some of the news even in our local community is disquieting.

'SENSE OF GRATITUDE'

I would like to express my personal sense of gratitude for the public meeting arranged so promptly by the Township Committee concerning the recent flood which affected so many of the residents of our community, and their maintenance crews. "They are taking immediate steps to correct some of the problems that were pointed out to them at the time. The most obvious of these is above Lyons place and Salter street, at the confluence of channels running from the highway, where a tremendous mass of debris and stones accumulated during the storm. They will remove all the rubble and will clean out channels to the Salter street brook."

"However, we intend to pursue our responsibility and to oppose the belief of the State Water Policy Commission--that the Highway Department need only carry water to the end of the Highway property."

"Our contention is that they cannot aggravate our situation, which is already overtaxed. The State Highway Department has a responsibility, and it should be a function of the Water Policy Commission to protect Springfield in this instance."

"Even if revision of the state laws is in order, we intend to pursue this matter; to charge the Water Policy Commission with full responsibility for protecting communities from flood damage caused by construction projects of state agencies."

THE SPOKESMAN ADDED that the township will begin its own efforts, with funds already in the budget "for cleaning of streams and other measures which should assist in the general improvement." He noted that an engineer has been engaged to conduct a detailed drainage survey of the entire township.

He urged all who suffered flood damage to list the details on the forms sent to all townpeople, and to return the information, with any pictures available, to Town Hall. He said that low-interest loans to restore damaged property are available from the federal government. Details can be obtained at the emergency office of the Small Business Administration at the Millburn office of the First National Bank of New Jersey.

for the impassioned plea which they have made to county, state, and national officials to alleviate the contributory conditions.

It is the responsibility of all citizens to support the commitment in these constructive efforts, and thus to evidence concern for their neighbors whose homes were inundated by the Rahway River and its tributaries. Let us flood our legislators with letters demanding action.

May I suggest that the Springfield Leader publish the names of the New Jersey Legislators and Congressional Leaders.

ness to the many suggestions and criticisms brought by the citizens of Springfield, and would hope this responsiveness will continue and increase.

"As you know, of great concern to us has been the triangular area between Mountain and S. Springfield avenues and Shumpke road. We are pleased with its redesignation to a residential, S-75 zone. League trusts the governing body will uphold this final designation.

"Although League realizes Springfield's need to attract suitable commerce to better balance the higher cost of maintaining the services of our community, we must assert that League's first concern is for the protection of the residential character of Springfield.

"The redevelopment and improvement of existing commercial areas should be stressed, rather than the encroachment into residential areas. Along with the necessity to upgrade present business areas, we urge that the existing precedent of a maximum of two stories for any and all offices, apartments and industrial buildings along Mountain avenue be maintained.

"Because a major purpose for the new zoning ordinance is to eliminate excessive numbers of variance applications before the township, League is determined to help guard against unwarranted deviations from this code.

"The strength and validity of the zoning ordinance will be proven only by the strictest adherence to its provisions and by the effective enforcement of the standards set forth within. The League of Women Voters of Springfield will vigilantly continue its efforts in this direction."

All of the town's playgrounds will have an arts and crafts program. This year the emphasis will be on creating with unusual material. Sculptures will be made of junk and objects of nature. Mosaics will be made of seeds and beans. Functional objects will be made from tin cans and empty plastic containers. There will also be some of the usual craft projects.

Regional Schools

John E. Conlin of Garwood commented that the suggestion would be difficult to follow, since the regional district was running out of space for its own students.

Dr. Minor C. K. Jones of Mountaineer declared that "our taxpayers are already paying for a good portion" of state programs to improve urban schools. As chairman of the district curriculum committee, he added that workshops of the sort proposed are "what we are in business for--to plan curricula for the teaching of our children."

The motion for the workshop funds then passed unanimously. The workshops will be the first in-service curriculum study project to be conducted by the regional district.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the board acted to seek office space it could rent for newly authorized administrators who will be added to the staff. Dr. Warren Davis, superintendent of schools, commented that there was just enough space available in the four high schools to house only one of the three new administrators. They will be in charge of curriculum, instruction and guidance.

Lewis Fredericks, board secretary, said that he had purchased desks for the new officials, but was keeping them in storage because he had no place to put them.

Board members approved a bus contract for next year to transport youngsters living in the district who attend Union Catholic High School, Scotch Plains. The contract is for nine buses at $35 per day apiece, for an average transportation cost of $140 a year for each rider.

Among the resignations accepted were those of two Dayton teachers. They were Robert Hooper, physical education, and Mrs. Barbara Klingasport, French.

New teachers hired for next year included three for Dayton, Mrs. Susan Rivkind Seltzer of Springfield is an alumna of Dayton and of Douglas College, with a year of teaching experience in Ocean City. She will teach French at an annual salary of $6,700.

William H. Horne of Elizabethtown, named to teach physical education at $6,400 per year, is a graduate of Summit High School and of Ithaca College.

Mrs. Carole Gottlieb of West Orange will teach English, at a salary of $7,900. She is a graduate of Glassboro State College with teaching experience in Kearny and Newark.

Miss Romano honored on 25 years at Dayton

Anne Romano, of Mountaineer, assistant principal of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, was the guest of the school's Teachers' Association at a dinner held at Stouffer's Restaurant, in Short Hills last night honoring her 25th year of service at the school.

Avery Ward, president of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 Board of Education, presented Miss Romano with her 25-year service pin and inducted her as the 10th member of this service group in the district. Jonathan Dayton Regional High School opened its doors as the only school of the Union County District in 1937. In 1962, the first members of the 25-year club were honored at a dinner of the Teachers' Association. They included Carl Matthews, Walter John, Miss Barbara Dimmers, Margaret Matland, who are still teaching at Dayton; Mrs. Ruth Montgomery, retired, and Stanley Werner and Edward Fry, who died recently. Two years ago, Helen Crawford and Joseph Sott, who are still teaching, were inducted as the eighth and ninth members of the 25-year club.

August Caprio, coordinator of languages in the Union County Regional District, acted as toastmaster. He introduced members of the head table who paid tribute to Miss Romano for her 25 years of service as a teacher and administrator: Dr. Warren Davis, superintendent; Dr. T. Randolph Jacobson, assistant superintendent; Robert F. LaVanture, principal; George Barclay, past president of the Regional District Teachers' Association; Avery Ward, president of the Board of Education; and Dennis Fox, president of the Teachers' Association, who presented Miss Romano with a gift from the association.

Caprio also introduced, from the 120 friends in attendance, Michael Romano, father of the guest of honor, Dr. Minor Jones, William Mellick, Thomas Nolan, Mrs. Natalie Waldt, board members, and Warren Halsey, retired superintendent of the Regional schools.

Miss Romano is a 1940 graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School. She graduated in 1943 from Montclair College with a BA in social studies which she taught in Dayton that year. She became assistant principal at Dayton in 1960. She also has an MA degree from Rutgers University in 1953 and has completed work beyond her master's degree at Rutgers. She holds permanent certificates as high school principal, high school supervisor and director of student personnel. She resides in Mountaineer with her father.

The committee in charge of the affair included Mrs. Dorothy Cassak, Mrs. Jean Cusumano, Mrs. Claire Masson, Mrs. Carol Snyder and Herbert H. Palmer.

Hundreds injured each year from careless lawn mowing

Power mower accidents this year alone will affect the future of hundreds of persons so unfortunate as to get their feet or hands in the way of the rotating mower blades, a national safety expert warned.

Most everyone has heard or heard about the power mower accidents involving well-known persons, but few people realize how many of these mishaps there are annually throughout the country, according to Dan Costa, safety director of the Allstate Insurance Companies.

"Although most power mowers appear harmless and are designed to operate safely, they are dangerous when misused," Costa warned.

Lethal injuries are comparatively infrequent. However, the so-called minor injuries can be costly and — all too often — disabling. A mower can clip most objects, including toes and fingers, that get in its way. If the blade hits a stone or piece of glass, the object can be hurled with enough force to kill. The number one danger of a power mower is direct contact with the blade. About every seventh mower injury is an amputation.

"But while nearly half of all people disabled in power mower accidents were cutting the grass when they were hurt, other injuries occurred in lifting a mower, trying to start a mower, removing foreign objects from the blades or taking off the grass catcher," Allstate's safety authority points out.

With the increasing use of power mowers, it is essential that the public be aware of the dangers involved in their operation, Costa said. Allstate offers the following tips for power mower users:

1. Disconnect the spark plug whenever you want to work on the underside of the mower, as well as when you are refueling. If you do not know how to disconnect this wire or electrical plug for safety, ask your dealer to show you.
2. Thoroughly inspect the lawn before beginning to mow and clear it of all sticks, stones, wire and other debris.
3. Never fill the tank indoors or while the engine is hot or still running.
4. Mow only when the grass is dry and never use a power mower barefoot. Wear heavy shoes, preferably safety shoes, while working. Thousands of toes are amputated or mangled every year when feet slip under the blade housing.
5. Keep children out of the area you are mowing. They are likely to run into moving parts or against the hot exhaust pipe. Never let anyone get in-line with the grass discharge side of the mower.
6. Stop the motor whenever you leave the mower. Children are quick to try to operate an unattended mower. Allstate points out: "Never give them a chance to get seriously hurt."
7. Learn to disengage the clutch or to stop the motor quickly in case of emergency.
8. Never allow youngsters or inexperienced persons to operate a power mower.
9. Cut grass sideways on hills and banks, not up and down.
10. Stand firmly behind the machine and stay in step with it. Don't run.
11. Do not use an electric power mower when grass is wet or when it is raining. Electric mowers should have the frame grounded through the cord.
12. Have your mower inspected and serviced thoroughly by an experienced serviceman, at least once a year.

Family food dollar buys more extras, group told

The food dollar of the typical American family today buys more expensive foods, more variety, more convenience, and more services than it used to. And this family spends less than 19 percent of its income for food because basic food items are costing less and disposable incomes continue to increase.

So said Leland G. Merrill, Jr., dean of the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environment. Science, last week at a Rutgers dinner marking the end of a second 14-week seminar course for supermarket managers. Another speaker was Francis A. Raymaley, director of the Division of Markets, N.J. Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Merrill awarded certificates to 60 men and women who completed the course, a repeat of the first management seminar last fall.

The seminars were a joint venture of the College of Agriculture and Environmental Science and the food retailing industry.

Isotopes 'weigh' Russian trains

Soviet industries are saving tens of thousands of rubles annually by the use of radioisotopes. New techniques using isotopes can be used for such diverse jobs as weighing loaded freight trains and measuring layers a few thousandths of an inch thick.

The industrial measuring methods are described in the latest issue of "Impact," the quarterly science magazine of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

The gamma rays emitted by radioisotopes are partially absorbed depending on the mass and thickness of the material through which they pass. To "weigh" freight trains, radiolabeled isotopes are placed beneath the train and a gamma ray counter above it. The thickness of the load is known, so the mass can be calculated after measuring the number of gamma rays passing through.

Negro history course in Rider pilot program

Rider College will include, as part of its pilot program for disadvantaged students this summer a special course in Negro history and culture. Teaching the course will be Richard Kane, a history instructor who has specialized in Negro history and is authoring a thesis on "Federal Segregation of the Negro in the Progressive Era" for his doctorate at Lehigh University. It will mark the first time that Rider has offered a course in Negro history.

Scheduled as part of the program are five films including documentaries on Watts, a study of prejudice, discrimination in housing and non-violence in civil rights.

Kane says the course also will deal with different views of slavery and with the relevance of Africa to the students as individuals.

Kane says his thesis points out that in the so-called period of progressivism between 1900 and 1928 officially sanctioned segregation in federal departments "was accepted if not desired" by the federal administration.

"Because of this hypocrisy in a progressive era, the reaction of black extremists from Marcus Garvey then to Rap Brown today becomes understandable," says Kane.

A Philadelphia native, Kane graduated from Overbrook High School — he played some basketball there with Wilt Chamberlain — and received his bachelor of science and master's degrees in history from Temple.

Kane taught at Lehigh and at Inter-American University in Puerto Rico before coming to Rider two years ago; he resides with his wife and son in Morrisville.

My Neighbors Job age law now in effect

Employers and employees in New York and New Jersey were reminded that the new Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 is now in effect. The reminder came from Frank B. Mercurio, regional director of the U.S. Department of Labor's Wage-Hour and Public Contracts Divisions.

Mercurio pointed out that the Act protects individuals 40-65 years old from age discrimination by promoting the employment of the older worker based on ability rather than age, prohibiting arbitrary age discrimination in employment, and helping employers and employees find ways to meet problems arising from the impact of age on employment.

The Act specifically states that any employer who fails to hire or promote a worker because of his age, or who fires a worker for the same reason, is in violation of the law.

Any employment agency failing to refer workers because of their age, or any union organization refusing membership or job referrals on the basis of age, are also in violation.

It is also unlawful under certain conditions to advertise a job vacancy or employment preference based on age.

Mercurio said that questions about the new Age Discrimination Act—Employment Act of 1967 will be answered at any office of the Wage-Hour and Public Contracts Division.

Secretary of Labor praises Neighborhood Youth Corps

WASHINGTON—The Neighborhood Youth Corps, now three and one-half years old, has been one of the nation's most successful anti-poverty programs, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz has declared.

The Secretary said the Corps has significantly reduced school dropouts rates; favorably affected juvenile delinquency rates; placed hundreds of thousands of hard-core jobless young people in permanent jobs; sent more thousands back to classrooms; and helped to relieve help shortages in crucial areas such as health care.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps has enrolled 1.4 million youngsters 14 years and over since it began in December, 1964. Of this number 957,000 were in-school and summer enrollees and 439,000 were out-of-schoolers. The Federal Government has invested close to $1 billion in this effort.

On April 1, 1968, approximately 200,000 youths were enrolled and at work, 137,000 participating in the in-school program and 63,000 in the out-of-school program.

The latest study of enrollees reveals these characteristics:

A third of the enrollees are from families with eight persons or more. The median family size is six persons.

About a quarter of the enrollees come from families receiving public assistance.

About one-half of the enrollees are from households headed by a father.

Although the Corps has always recruited poverty-level youngsters, it continues to dig deeper into the rural areas and urban ghettos to enroll those whose families have been hardest hit by economic and cultural deprivation.

Youngsters in the out-of-school program in 1965 were 51 percent white and the remainder nonwhite. By August 1967 the balance had shifted to 53 percent nonwhite.

The shift in the in-school and summer programs combined was even more dramatic. In 1965, 33 percent were nonwhite. By August 1967 this had increased to 48 percent.

The typical out-of-school enrollee in 1965 had completed 10.9 grades in school. By August 1967 this was down to 10 grades even.

And the Corps is now recruiting youngsters from poorer families. Out-of-school enrollees as of August 1966, came from families whose median income was $2,208. By August 1967 this figure had slipped to $2,084.

Median family income for in-school enrollees during the same periods went down from $2,593 annually to $2,586.

During the past year, the average out-of-schooler was paid $1.40 an hour, while his in-school counterpart was paid a minimum of $1.25 an hour.

Four outstanding examples: In Cleveland, the dropout rate among enrollees in 13 inner-city schools was three percent for the 1966-67 school year, compared to a dropout rate of 15 percent in those schools for non-NYC youth.

In Pittsburgh, a survey completed in May, 1967, of all 16 high schools for the 1965-66 year disclosed that the dropout rate for NYC enrollees was four percent, or half the dropout rate for non-NYC students.

In Washington, D.C., a study of NYC teenagers during 1965 and 1966 at three high schools revealed that fewer than two percent of these youngsters had dropped out of school by

UNICEF helps kids in 117 lands

This year from Afghanistan to Zambia, children and mothers in 117 countries are receiving aid from UNICEF through nearly 500 long-range programs. What does such aid mean? Is it sufficient to meet the needs?

In the words of UNICEF executive director Henry R. Labouisse, "the overall state of the world's children is far from encouraging. There are over 1.2 billion children under the age of 15. Only about a quarter of them are born with a chance to grow up with adequate health care, proper food, a decent education, and with a reasonable chance to lead a productive and satisfying life. What about the other three-quarters? They live in countries with per capita incomes less than $500 per year — half of them in countries with average per capita incomes under $100."

Most of these children will start life under severe handicaps. The odds that confront the average child today in a developing country are overwhelming. They are four to one against his receiving any medical attention, at birth or afterwards. The chances are three to one that he will suffer from malnutrition at some time during the pre-school age period, Labouisse said. If he survives until school age, the chances are over two to one that he will not complete the elementary grades. Before he has reached his teens he will probably be working full time to help maintain himself or his family.

UNICEF's work in response to these needs is aimed at building and strengthening the services governments can offer the children of today and of the future. UNICEF devotes a large share of its budget to providing aid to basic health services. It assists nutrition projects which encourage the production of protective foods. Activities in education and vocational training are steadily expanding. While most aid is in the form of supplies and equipment, a significant share is directed toward the training of local personnel.

June, 1967. The normal dropout rate for these schools is nearly 20 percent.

In Minneapolis, a study of 11 high schools for the 1965-67 school year revealed an overall dropout rate of 15 percent. Only four percent of the NYC enrollees quit school. Some 61 percent of the 1,766 enrollees in the project between September, 1966, and September, 1967, came from welfare families.

When the Neighborhood Youth Corps was launched in December, 1964, Secretary Wirtz said:

"For many thousands of boys and girls, the employment provided by Youth Corps projects will be the exact difference between having no future as a high school dropout and having a good future as a graduate. For thousands of others who have dropped out of school permanently, this program will rescue their job hopes by providing them with desperately needed work experience."

After three and one half years, the Secretary said, "While our record isn't perfect, we have in the main delivered on our promises."

NYC youths get into less trouble with the law after they enroll. In San Antonio, for example, juvenile delinquency declined nearly 13 percent in the slums last year, where NYC was operative, while it jumped 5.5 percent during the same period in the higher income areas of the city and county.

In Dayton, Ky., a letter early in 1967 from a local judge stated that juvenile delinquency decreased 30 percent and he gave the credit to NYC.

The Los Angeles Times reported in May, 1967, that only one percent of the 2,000 enrollees in a project in that city had been convicted of a crime since enrolling, though 50 percent had previous criminal records.

Youths active in juvenile crime often find themselves on the right side of the law after joining the Neighborhood

Youth Corps. Labor Department figures show that in September of 1967 more than 75,000 enrollees were working in public safety jobs.

NYC enrollees serve as aides in libraries, schools, hospitals and other public and nonprofit institutions. The in-school program allows youngsters 14 and up to work in their spare time up to 15 hours a week. In the summer and out-of-school projects, enrollees spend up to 40 hours a week working or taking advantage of supportive services such as remedial education, job-related training, counseling and health care.

The Labor Department's Manpower Administration funds up to 90 percent of the cost and lays down the guidelines. The local sponsor — a community action agency, a state agency, a municipality, a county institution or a school system — handles the administration, such as locating the work sites, recruitment, record-keeping and arranging for supportive services.

Coins to carry 'food gap' messages War on hunger minting sponsored by UN

A score of countries are planning to toss coins into a unique war-on-hunger pool sponsored by the United Nations.

The idea is to mint special coins carrying designs and inscriptions aimed at educating the public to the food-gap crisis. Italy, for example, will circulate five million silver pieces of the 1,000-lira denomination, each worth a little over $1.50. India will strike a 10-rupee coin, worth about 12 cents. Other countries participating in the education-by-coin project include Afghanistan, Brazil, Ceylon, Jordan, Syria, the Philippines and Turkey.

The designs will fall into two categories: under-developed countries will accent the necessity of producing more food nationally, and more advanced nations will stress the need to support worldwide food production through the United Nations and other international agencies.

For coin collectors, the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) headquarters in Rome will assemble and sell in complete sets the special issues of all participating countries. The sales proceeds will help support regional farm-credit projects.

TODAY'S DAILY WORLD output of 60 million gallons of fresh water distilled from the sea will more than triple by 1979, the U.N. predicts.

TO PROTECT THE flood-ravaged art treasures of Venice and Florence from further damage, the United Nations has launched a five-year drive to raise $10 million in voluntary contributions.

The action was taken by the Executive Board of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). The campaign, the resolution reads, is intended "to safeguard the awe-inspiring models and splendid monuments bequeathed by Italian genius to the human race."

The new funds would supplement private and government efforts which already have gone a long way toward repairing the damage of the 1966 floods. For example, the Italian government alone has allocated more than $7 million in emergency money in the past two years. American government and private sources account for an additional $4 million. And the Soviet Union and Canadian governments have given about a half million dollars each.

THE GROWTH OF worldwide travel has increased the threat that leprosy will spread from Afro-Asia and Latin America, where it is most prevalent, to the United States and other advanced countries. That prospect is suggested in a United Nations bulletin which estimates that there are 15 million lepers in the world today, including 2,000 registered cases in the United States. The report says that in America, the incidence is highest in California, Louisiana, Texas and Hawaii.

In pleading for greater understanding and more generous research funds, U.N. officials say that superstition surrounding leprosy often causes more suffering to the victim than the disease itself. Dr. Lonna Baumgartner, president of the American Association for World Health, emphasizes: "Leprosy isn't a killer. It isn't even highly infectious. The most dismal fact about leprosy is that it can be arrested in most victims but isn't."

ANTICIPATING THE signing of a non-proliferation treaty to halt the spread of nuclear bombs, the United Nations is preparing to hire more inspectors to police the pact.

Inspection is intended to detect any secret attempts to divert nuclear materials from peaceful uses to the manufacture of atomic weapons. IAEA (International Atomic Energy Agency) already functions as a watchdog by voluntary invitations extended by some countries, including the United States.

A score of inspectors are now on the IAEA staff, but 100 more will be needed when the international non-proliferation treaty comes into effect—possibly later this year. The urgency of applying safeguards is pointed up by estimates that by 1980, the world's nuclear power-plants will yield sufficient plutonium as a by-product to manufacture 100 nuclear bombs a day.

FLIGHT CANCELLATIONS, delays and aircraft diversion caused by bad weather cost the world's airlines up to $100-million a year in lost revenue, the United Nations International Civil Aviation Organization estimates.

PROFESSOR SETH SPAULDING, formerly of the University of Pittsburgh, has taken up duties as director of educational methods, techniques and teacher training for UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization). The uses of new resources in education such as TV, teaching machines and language laboratories will be extensively studied by Professor Spaulding's committee.

ADVOCATES OF A global war on poverty through the United Nations were deeply disturbed by the refusal of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee to authorize funds for the IDA (International Development Association). Speaking of the "poverty-gap" between industrialized and under-developed countries, Secretary General U Thant declared, "Since the second World War, the rich countries have become richer, and the poor countries, poorer. This widening gap is, in my view, the most potent source of tensions in the world today—a growing threat to peaceful co-existence."

Four injured in collision

Four local residents were injured in a three-car accident Sunday at 10:15 a.m. on Meisel avenue, near the Rahway Valley Railroad tracks, according to Springfield police records.

Phillip D. Visco of 558 S. Springfield ave. was driving north, the report stated, when he stopped his car to avoid hitting a squirrel on the roadway. Esther H. Collins of 41 Evergreen ave. stopped behind him.

Her car was then reportedly struck in the rear by one driven by Louis Mansollilo of 478 Meisel ave. The latter two vehicles both had to be towed from the scene.

Diana Visco, a passenger in the first car, and Frederick Collins, 80, who was in the second auto, were taken to Overlook Hospital by the First Aid Squad. Mansollilo and Mrs. Collins told police they would receive treatment from their own doctors.

To publicity chairman: Would you like some help in preparing newspaper releases? Write to this newspaper and ask for our "Tips on Submitting News Releases."

Help stamp out "the other side of the tracks" this summer.

The hungry babies. The hopeless teenagers. The jobless men. For a long time you've wanted to do something to help them. Only you felt hopeless. You said to yourself: "What can I do? I'm just one person." Or you just couldn't spare the time because of other responsibilities. But this summer you can do something. Right in Elizabeth. You'll have help. And you'll only give up a few hours a day.

Helping youngsters break the poverty cycle.

The best way for you to help stamp out the other side of the tracks in Elizabeth: help the youngsters there break the poverty cycle. Education is the key. But it has to begin where public education leaves off, tutoring programs to their specific needs. That's exactly what you'll do when you join "Summer Of Service"—an educational, recreational and cultural enrichment program for disadvantaged youngsters in Elizabeth.

Morning, afternoon and evening programs throughout the summer.

Your work with "Summer Of Service" will revolve around 5 centers. The program, lasting 9 weeks, consists of 3 basic parts. You can participate in one or all of them.

- (1) There's a morning program for children up to 3rd grade. You can be a tutor to a single child, helping him with math, writing or language skills (particularly if you're proficient in Spanish).
- (2) The afternoon program includes working with children up to teens. You can lead small groups of children in recreational activities. The goal is to add physical and social development.
- (3) The evening program is aimed at developing the interests, skills and talents of teenagers. You can work with children in drama, folk and rock music, dance, and creative arts.

Each week's activities are to be topped off by "coffee houses" and "street dances" held in alternate parts of the city.

No special skills needed. Just a desire to help.

Although skills are desirable, you don't need them to join "Summer Of Service". All you really need is a strong desire to help give all our citizens an opportunity to enjoy happy, productive lives. Even if you're now in high school yourself, you can help. Depending on your interests and abilities, you can be a tutor, tell stories, teach arts and crafts, teach music and dance or help through scores of other activities.

The satisfaction of spending a summer on something worthwhile.

You could probably spend your summer doing other things. Like going to the beach or mountains. Or just taking it easy. But you wouldn't get the satisfaction of helping children that desperately need help. There are lots of other side benefits, too. Like getting to know other people. Really know them. And someday, when there is no "other side of the tracks", you can tell your grandchildren that you helped stamp it out.

Help especially needed now because federal funds have been cut.

The Office of Economic Opportunity has reduced its allocations for summer-urban programs. So the "Summer Of Service" budget has been drastically cut. Now your help is needed more than ever.

If you can't spare some time, perhaps you can spare some money. The program is entirely free to the children. But money is desperately needed to bus them on field trips to cultural and recreational centers. Money for educational material, craft supplies. Won't you help?

Congressman, bigamist Hezekiah Smith led two lives

New Jersey has sent its share of "characters" to Congress but a forgotten 19th century Representative from Burlington County must surely top them all, and by a considerable margin.

Consider the case of Hezekiah B. Smith, as more or less revealed by the fascinating records of the Special Collections at the Rutgers University Library. He was, among other things, inventor, manufacturer and industrialist, maker of two fortunes, founder of Smithville, social lion, twice a Congressman, champion of moral uplift — and an apparent bigamist.

The records at the Rutgers Library on Hezekiah are not exactly complete in a number of important details, but that doubtless is the way a prudent man would have wanted it.

A glowing account written before his election to Congress from New Jersey and his subsequent fall from grace states that "as early as 13 he became a deep thinker." The evidence for this is that at that tender age he attempted to invent a perpetual motion machine for the family home in Rutland, Vt., but quickly abandoned the project when he realized it could not be done.

Young Smith turned to cabinet making on a mass production scale unusual for that age, made a comfortable fortune and was elected to Congress as a Representative from Vermont.

Then after one term in Congress he disappeared, only to turn up in Burlington, N.J., in 1865 at the age of 49 and proceeded to build himself another fortune.

The second fortune was based on the H.B. Smith Machine Company works, located near Burlington at what was subsequently named Smithville. There he manufactured machinery for mass-producing woodwork and also manufactured bicycles.

Smith's plant employed from 700 to 800 men, sold machinery all over the world and was a handsome success, according to a contemporary account.

"The entire village, which consists of some 50 houses, a post office, stores and newspaper office belongs to him," the account reads, "and he is even the publisher of the newspaper, a very neat little weekly sheet, ably edited by his wife, a lady of excellent family and many accomplishments."

Smith and the wife he had acquired after moving to New Jersey entertained lavishly at their nearby mansion, indeed, in 1879, 14 years after turning up in the Garden State, Smith's neighbors thought so well of him that they elected him to Congress from New Jersey.

However, back in Vermont some thought it curious that another man with the same unusual name as their long-lost former congressman should turn up in the House of Representatives, this time as a Representative from New Jersey.

A Mrs. Hezekiah B. Smith in particular thought it very peculiar and in due course sent her eldest son to Smithville to learn whether he was her long-missing husband. The confrontation with the congressman quickly proved to the young man's satisfaction that the New Jersey Hezekiah B. Smith was indeed her old man.

One can easily imagine the scene, as reported by a less friendly contemporary account.

"The boy knew his father in the gruff old man whom he met, but Smith brazenly denied that he had ever seen the boy before, and the woman in the stately mansion in Smithville turned him out of doors after the coarsest vilification of his mother, indeed, she indignantly refused to acknowledge his Vermont family and that, 'for the honor of her children,' Mrs. Smith abstained from pursuing him. The scandal never came to light until after Smith's death in 1887 at the age of 71. But his death then showed his several sons in Vermont as their father, because they indignantly refused to enter litigation over his estate. The old man left a cool million.

State code to regulate air pollution

Dr. Roscoe P. Kandle, State Commissioner of Health, this week said Chapter 11 of the New Jersey Air Pollution Control Code regulating air pollution from incinerators will go into effect Aug. 15.

The code is the fourth to be promulgated by the department since last November. It was brought to public hearing as a proposed regulation on March 5. Richard J. Sullivan, director of the division of Clean Air and Water in the State Department of Health, conducted the hearing.

He said the code as promulgated, contains certain modifications of the originally proposed document, in response to testimony given.

Included in the new code's provisions are all incinerators of all sizes, whether municipal, industrial, commercial, residential or other, except those in one or two-family dwellings or in multi-occupied dwellings containing six or less family units one of which is owner occupied.

The regulation, in such wide-ranging applications as supermarkets, schools and colleges, apartment dwellings, hospitals, office buildings, manufacturing plants, department stores, laboratories, salvage operations, and many others, will affect the use of all old incinerators as well as the construction, installation and use of all new incinerators.

Bill would soften impact of tax loss

State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldo of Union has introduced legislation aimed at softening the financial blows sustained by communities where taxable properties are taken for highway construction purposes.

The Union Township Republican said his home town of Union had been "particularly hard-hit by State Transportation Department purchases and condemnations for Rt. 78. What makes it even worse is the interminable delay between acquisition by the state and the actual start of construction. In the meantime, the township tax rolls are suffering."

Rinaldo explained that under present law, the state pays the township an amount equivalent to the local property tax bill for the period between the acquisition and the end of the calendar year. "However," he added, "this is insufficient to compensate the municipality or the taxpayers who must pick up the slack."

Under the law proposed by Rinaldo, the property acquired by the state prior to Oct. 1 would not be exempt from taxation until after the following Jan. 1. Property taken on or after Oct. 1 would remain on the tax rolls until the second succeeding Jan. 1.

THE BILL ALSO would require the state to reimburse a property owner for property taxes paid beyond the date of acquisition.

Senator Rinaldo said he was motivated to introduce the bill because of "my concern for the taxpayers of communities like Union who are forced to assume an unfair burden."

He noted that in 1966 and 1967 Union Township lost more than $2 million in ratables and $104,790 in tax revenues to Rt. 78 and that more remains to be taken.

Rinaldo added that the ideal solution would be to force the state to pay the taxes until road construction actually begins. However, he said questions on the constitutional considerations precluded adoption of such a law.

NIH RESEARCH FOR HEALTH

A REPORT FROM THE NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH

POISON IVY, OAK, AND SUMAC

Many people claim that they are highly susceptible to poison ivy, but are totally unaffected by poison oak or poison sumac. This is probably not true, according to the National Institutes of Health, for the substance which causes the allergy to poison ivy is closely related to that which causes the allergy to poison oak and probably that of poison sumac.

According to research studies conducted and supported by the Division of Biologics Standards, NIH, the villi in which causes the allergic rash and blisters is a sticky sap, whose active ingredient, called urushiol, is found on all parts of all three plants. Thus a person who contracts poison ivy most likely also will react to poison oak and poison sumac. The skin reactions from the urushiol, which affect seven of every 10 people, varies with the individual's sensitivity and amount of exposure.

Contact with urushiol is necessary to develop the allergic reaction, but contact with the plant itself is not necessary. Gardening tools, work clothes, camping gear, pots, and smoke from the burning plants can cause a person to come into contact with the oily sap. Even the dead roots and leaves of the plants contain urushiol and are potentially dangerous. Children sometimes eat the berries which may cause an allergic reaction in the mouth or in the rectal area as the plant is excreted.

Urushiol victims worry about scarring—which seldom occurs—and tend to overreact to the symptoms. Contrary to popular belief, scratching the rash and "weeping" blisters does not cause the rash to spread. Scratching is dangerous, however, as it opens the skin to secondary infection which can cause scarring.

The most important procedures are preventive measures: learning to recognize the plants and avoiding contact. If that fails, the exposed skin should be washed immediately with strong soap to remove the urushiol. Clothing which has made contact with urushiol is usually the cause of spreading the rash and should also be thoroughly washed.

A drying lotion helps relieve the itching. If symptoms are severe, a physician should be consulted.

A new pamphlet prepared by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID), contains information on research in these plant allergies, along with pointers from the U.S. Department of Agriculture on how to recognize, avoid, and eliminate the plants.

The NIAID—one of the eight National Institutes of Health—is the primary research arm of the NIH concerned with seeking knowledge leading to the prevention or cure of allergic disorders and infectious diseases.

Pilot course for Negro at college

Rider College will include as part of its pilot program for disadvantaged students this summer a special course in Negro history and culture. Teaching the course will be Richard Kane, a history instructor who has specialized in Negro history and is authoring a thesis on "Federal Segregation of the Negro in the Progressive Era" for his doctorate at Lehigh University. It will mark the first time that Rider has offered a course in Negro history.

The summer program will serve as preparation for the entry of the students into regular classroom work in September. Rider is paying for a full four-year scholarship plus room and board for 10 students.

Kane says he is planning a flexible course that will deal with contemporary Negro life and literature as well as history. "We want to bring to the surface hidden fears and disguised hatred," says Kane. "We want to produce a general understanding of attitudes, an understanding of people as people."

Scheduled as part of the program are five films including documentaries on Watts, a study of prejudice, discrimination in housing and non-violence in civil rights. Kane says the course also will deal with different views of slavery and with the relevance of Africa to the students as individuals.

Kane says his thesis points out that in the so-called period of progressivism between 1900 and 1928 officially sanctioned segregation in federal departments "was accepted if not desired" by the federal administration.

"Because of this hypocrisy in a progressive era, the reaction of black extremists from Marcus Garvey then to Rap Brown today becomes understandable," says Kane.

A Philadelphia native, Kane graduated from Overbrook High School—he played some basketball there—with Wilt Chamberlain—and received his bachelor of science and master's degrees in history from Temple.

Kane taught at Lehigh and at Inter-American University in Puerto Rico before coming to Rider two years ago. He resides with his wife and son in Morrisville, Pa.

Transplant state's first

Saint Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston, was the scene June 17 of the first complete human organ transplant accomplished in New Jersey, and the world's first kidney transplantation to take place under hyperbaric medicine conditions.

The hyperbaric medicine chambers at Saint Barnabas were specially designed so that both can be used simultaneously for medical or surgical treatments. The interconnection passage lock between the two chambers allowed for the use of the two chambers during the six hour transplantation.

One chamber was used for extraction and perfusion of the donor kidney, while the other was used for the implantation of the donor kidney to the recipient. Utilizing the two chambers which comprise the world's largest and most complete Hyperbaric Medicine and Research facility, the transplantation was accomplished in a much shorter time than would have been the case.

The operation took place at three atmospheres absolute (45 pounds per square inch of pressure) which saturated the recipient's body tissue with oxygen.

It is a technical evaluation that under hyperbaric medicine conditions there is less chance for rejection of the donated kidney.

Forty-year-old Robert Hartman of New Providence, who received the donor kidney, is reported by Dr. Charles Abbott, chief of surgery, to be in good condition. Dr. Abbott, who headed the transplant team consisting of eight surgeons, two anesthetists, twelve nurses and technicians is exceptionally pleased with the patient's condition.

Hartman was given the kidney of 16-year-old Shelly Smith, who died as the result of an automobile accident. The Hartman and Smith families both live in New Providence and Shelly Smith and Hartman's son were schoolmates at the New Providence High School.

Anthony Scala, president of Saint Barnabas Medical Center, stated, "this is the second time Saint Barnabas has made medical history within the past two years in the utilization of its hyperbaric medicine facility."

Hartman was given the kidney of 16-year-old Shelly Smith, who died as the result of an automobile accident. The Hartman and Smith families both live in New Providence and Shelly Smith and Hartman's son were schoolmates at the New Providence High School.

U.S. Senator HARRISON A. WILLIAMS Reports

The traditional avenue of escape from poverty and the city slums has been education. Typically, in generations past, immigrant parents have worked and saved to send their children to college. And, though the waves of immigrants have slowed, education is still "the way out" for children of poor families. Rutgers University, for instance, recently disclosed that more than half its students had parents who did not attend college. This pattern has cut across almost all ethnic and cultural lines in our society—with one major exception.

The U.S. Office of Education recently made a study which disclosed that although Negroes comprise more than 12 percent of the population, only 5.6 percent of the enrollment at our nation's colleges is Negro. Moreover, about half of these are enrolled in predominantly Negro institutions in the South.

This is both a symptom and a cause of the fact that Negroes are not moving into the middle class in the same numbers and at the same rate as other minority groups. Part of the reason for this is simply that many Negro families cannot afford the high cost of sending one or more children to college. To meet this problem, I have introduced legislation to provide tuition grants up to $500 a year for children of low income families in the first and second year of post-high school education. Obviously, this doesn't just apply to Negro families. The grants would be available to all who meet the income requirements.

But, lack of income is not the only reason for the low enrollment of Negroes in colleges and universities. There are far more subtle and complex reasons which are far more difficult to deal with.

FOR THIS REASON, I recently organized and chaired a workshop on "The Negro and Higher Education" which brought together more than 40 of the top authorities in the field. Among those taking part were the presidents of several southern Negro colleges; Dr. Thomas Billings, the head of the OEO's Upward Bound program; James Farmer, now President of the Center for Community Action Education; Ralph Dugan, New Jersey Chancellor of Higher Education; the directors of admission at several large eastern universities, including Rutgers; and representatives of philanthropic foundations.

There was general agreement that lack of money is the most easily identifiable problem and, for that reason, probably the easiest place to begin an attack.

But several other problems emerged, too. Perhaps, most fundamental, it was agreed, is that most Negro children do not apply to college. Harold Howe, U.S. Commissioner of Education, said he met for three hours with representatives of the Poor People's March in Washington and their discussion didn't even touch on higher education, except for better teacher training. He concluded that their aspirations for their children simply don't rise that high.

Another problem is poor preparation. In the South, where Negro teachers predominate in Negro schools, those teachers have attended patently inferior colleges. In the North, too often the ghetto schools are over-crowded, under-financed, and overwhelmed by the problems of educating disadvantaged children.

It also was suggested that both the curriculum of the schools and the training the teachers receive is irrelevant to the culture and experience of the students.

THE SCARCITY of successful Negroes, except in athletics and show business, upon whom Negro children can model themselves, contributes to the lack of aspiration and motivation. It was said, in this connection, the director of Upward Bound, Dr. Thomas Billings, concluded that when most of the participants in an Upward Bound project are from one minority group, whether it be Negro, Mexican-American, or some other, better results are achieved by having the project leader or leaders from that minority group. Within a year, Upward Bound leadership will reflect that finding, he said.

Many of the participants in the workshop had ideas on what needs to be done, some of them practical, some of them, perhaps, a bit visionary.

Most agreed that the Negro colleges need to be strengthened, especially in view of the fact that some of the best potential enrollees at these schools are being lured away by the big name northern schools. Senator Edward Brooke asked the presidents of some of these schools what they are doing to attract white students. There was no satisfactory answer to this question.

There also was a suggestion that college financial aid, to disadvantaged children who have college potential but aren't living up to it, be committed much earlier than is the present practice. One suggestion was that these children ought to be told in the tenth grade: "If you want to go to college and are willing to do the work required to bring your grades up to par, we'll guarantee you the financial aid needed." Another of the participants suggested this ought to be done as early as the sixth grade.

THERE WERE a number of proposals for enriching the curriculum of schools which have a predominantly minority group enrollment.

Perhaps the most surprising thing about the conference—so much was said that there was very little discussion of busing or other artificially induced methods of racially integrating elementary and secondary schools.

I hesitate to draw any conclusions from this fact. Rather, it can simply be reported that the discussion focused, primarily, on ways to improve preparation and opportunity for college for disadvantaged young people.

Without question, this was one of the most fascinating activities in my experience in the Congress.

In my judgment, it also will be one of the most productive. Some of the ideas suggested are immediately practical and will be brought before the Senate Subcommittee on Education within a few weeks. Others, more far-reaching in nature, will require research and refinement. But nothing is so irrefragable as an idea whose time has come.

Time To Spare

By GERALD ANDREWS - Retirement Advisor

Bargains Can Ruin Your Eyes A correspondent who writes from Chicago has a complaint about several of these United States. He identifies himself as William Martelson, says he travels around the country as a salesman for a manufacturing company, and puts his beef like this:

"I'm a member of the four-eyed club. Been wearing glasses since I was a kid, and I've consulted a lot of specialists in my time. I've heard I don't know how many warnings about the chance you take when you doctor your own eyes."

"That's why I'm appalled at the number of department stores that sell glasses like hardware or sausages. The typical place I mean has a counter with a sign reading 'glazed goods.' On the counter - piles of spectacles, Bargains in all sizes, shapes and magnifying power."

"The worst part is that when I pass a counter like this, I generally see at least one customer sifting the pile, trying to find a pair that suits him. The sight sets my teeth on edge."

Enough here for a cautionary column? There is, no doubt about that. Many a specialist has protested against the bargain basement selling of 'glazed goods' for the eyes. Yet the practice appears destined to continue until all our states ban it.

The reason for professional opposition is the same as for any other do-it-yourself medical treatment. The layman is no more qualified to prescribe his own diet, it takes training and skill to diagnose the condition and decide on the remedy.

The eyes are a special problem because an individual can "test" a pair of spectacles for himself. He can put them on, and see if they improve his vision. If objects across the room come into sharper focus, well, isn't that proof enough?

Of course it isn't. The basic trouble may remain, and even grow worse, when the eyesight seems improved. Cataracts or glaucoma may be developing. If so, the fact should be known as quickly as possible. And the only person you can rely on is your eye doctor.

That's why bargain basement spectacles are no bargain at any price. The money you pay hardly matters. What counts is the threat to your eyesight.

SUNDAY'S SERMON BEING RIGHT It is simple truth that the best way to avoid making mistakes is to never do anything. We are all human beings and, as such we are far from perfect. We cannot always be right. We cannot always do right. And sometimes our best-intentioned acts can result in unintended harm to someone else. The wise man is usually willing to admit that he may be wrong. Otherwise, he is not really so wise. Yet it sometimes takes courage for the average individual to admit that he has made a mistake. It seems much easier to say nothing, to let the matter be forgotten if it is possible. Admit your mistakes. It takes courage sometimes, but there is the reward of knowing that you have done the right thing. There is even greater satisfaction if you are successful in making things right.

Family Life Today By Mabel G. Stotter, County Home Economist. USING FEAR TO MAKE CHILDREN BEHAVE. Have you ever said - or heard a parent threaten his child by saying - "behave yourself, or your room and dad won't love you anymore." The need for love and approval is great for all people, but especially for small children. Misbehavior is one device often being used, especially by small children, to test their parent's love. Generally, small children fear loss of parental support and approval. Therefore, never use your child's fear of losing love or security as a method of controlling his behavior. Granted, your child will "shape up" if threatened by something he fears. You may, thus, achieve a desired temporary behavior but for the wrong reasons. To use fear to gain desired behavior is cruel. It can produce not only a serious and destroying effect upon your youngster's sense of security, but reduce his respect for you, his parent. Remember, too, love and respect for a parent, who instills fear in his child, can never be developed in later years.

Summit Area YMCA issues diversified summer schedule

The Summit Area YMCA issued its summer schedule this week, with special summer memberships available again this year. Summer membership rates, in effect from this Monday through Sept. 30, are half the annual rate and may be applied toward an annual membership in the fall. Schedules are available at the Summit Chamber-of-Commerce, Public Library, and at the Y. The summer program runs from Monday through Sunday, Aug. 25.

Swimming instruction for all ages takes place primarily at the Y during the summer, with the national YMCA progressive swim program for boys and girls grades 3-12 classes according to skill level. A Polliwog learn-to-swim class will be offered for first and second graders, as well as an adult learn-to-swim course.

For boys and girls 16 and under interested in competitive swimming on summer swim nights, high school and YMCA teams, combined instruction is offered in a 20-session competitive swim clinic.

Recreational swim periods for all ages are scheduled throughout the week with reserved time for boys, girls, junior and senior high students, women-only, family swims, and noon and evening coed swims for business people. Business men's noon fitness classes and handball and regularly scheduled gym times for men and boys will continue, also. The track and exercise room will be open daily except Sunday.

The Y will also cooperate with other community groups this year in scheduling swim periods for the YWCA day camp, Summit Board of Recreation playground, and the Kent Place-Pingry School's Project 3 R's enrichment program for disadvantaged children.

In addition, the pool may be rented by organized school, church, or club groups on Saturday and Sunday evenings for splash parties.

THE Y'S DAY CAMPS, Camp Cannundus for boys entering grades 2-7 and Triangle Club for girls entering grades 3-7 will begin on July 1 and operate in two week periods. A

The need for love and approval is great for all people, but especially for small children. Misbehavior is one device often being used, especially by small children, to test their parent's love. Generally, small children fear loss of parental support and approval. Therefore, never use your child's fear of losing love or security as a method of controlling his behavior. Granted, your child will "shape up" if threatened by something he fears. You may, thus, achieve a desired temporary behavior but for the wrong reasons. To use fear to gain desired behavior is cruel. It can produce not only a serious and destroying effect upon your youngster's sense of security, but reduce his respect for you, his parent. Remember, too, love and respect for a parent, who instills fear in his child, can never be developed in later years.

BEING RIGHT
It is simple truth that the best way to avoid making mistakes is to never do anything. We are all human beings and, as such, we are far from perfect. We cannot always be right. We cannot always do right. And sometimes our best-intentioned acts can result in unintended harm to someone else.

The wise man is usually willing to admit that he may be wrong. Otherwise, he is not really so wise. Yet it sometimes takes courage for the average individual to admit that he has made a mistake. It seems much easier to say nothing, to let the matter be forgotten if it is possible. Admit your mistakes. It takes courage sometimes, but there is the reward of knowing that you have done the right thing. There is even greater satisfaction if you are successful in making things right.

Bargains Can Run Your Eyes
A correspondent who writes from Chicago has a complaint about several of these United States. He identifies himself as William Martelsson, says he travels around the country as a salesman for a manufacturing company, and puts his beef like this: "I'm a member of the four-eyed club. Been wearing glasses since I was a kid, and I've consulted a lot of specialists in my time. I've heard I don't know how many warnings about the chance you take when you doctor your own eyes."

"That's why I'm appalled at the number of department stores that sell glasses like hardware or saucers. The typical place I mean has a counter with a sign reading 'glazed goods.' On the counter - piles of spectacles. Bargains in all sizes, shapes and magnifying power.

"The worst part is that when I pass a counter like this, I generally see at least one customer sitting the pile, trying to find a pair that suits him. The sight sets my teeth on edge.

"Enough here for a cautionary column?" There is, no doubt about that. Many a specialist has protested against the bargain basement-selling of "glazed goods" for the eyes. Yet the practice appears destined to continue until all of our states ban it.

"The reason for professional opposition is the same as for any other do-it-yourself medical treatment. The layman is no more qualified to prescribe his own glasses than his is to prescribe his own diet. It takes training and skill to diagnose the condition and decide on the remedy.

"The eyes are a special problem because an individual can "test" a pair of spectacles for himself. He can put them on, and see if they improve his vision. If objects across the room come into sharper focus, well, isn't that proof enough?

"Of course it isn't. The basic trouble may remain, and even grow worse, when the eyesight seems improved. Cataracts or glaucoma may be developing. If so, the fact should be known as quickly as possible. And the only person you can rely on is your eye doctor.

"That's why bargain basement spectacles are no bargain at any price. The money you pay hardly matters. What counts is the threat to your eyesight.

Guests included his grandmother, Mrs. Charles Altieri, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shockley and family, Mrs. Mildred Dutter and family, Commissioner and Mrs. James C. Conlon and family and Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Burke and family.

Mrs. Altieri expressed greetings to the graduate, and Commissioner Conlon presented the toast. Colleen Burke, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burke, recited "grace" before dinner.

Bordogna received an assistantship to Soton Hall College, and will continue his graduate study in the fall.

Ask Amy

By AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy:
A new tenant (a single male) moved into the apartment next to mine. He knocks on my door all the time with the silliest excuses for doing so. Such as: "Is my hi-fi bothering you?" or "Do you have a book I can borrow on how to play Bridge?" or "I ran out of stamps; can you sell me two?"

Dear Amy:
There is a girl who is always "hanging around" with us. If we go to the movies, she goes to the movies, if we go to the Center, she goes to the Center. All this uninvited. She would just "happen" to bump into us (so she says). She is really a nice girl and is really very cute but she just doesn't seem to fit in.

Dear Amy:
My husband is understanding, sweet, and a wonderful guy. But my mother lives 15 miles away from me, which is a toll call. My husband allows me to do whatever I want and buy whatever I choose. My mother insists that I call her every day. She's elderly and these calls comfort her. If I don't call, she worries about the children and me. My dear husband disagrees with this, as I can understand, because the phone bills are so high.

Dear Gladys:
His reasons for bothering you don't sound like he's trying to "make time." But if you want to make sure the knows you're married, tell him your husband has whatever he wants to borrow, and he will have to ask him.

Dear Amy:
I would say you have done a pretty good job of dumping her already.

Dear Amy:
To keep everyone happy, each time you telephone mother, deposit a dime, quarter, or what have you in a container near the phone for the sole purpose of these toll calls. Come bill time, you will have the extra cash you need for these over calls. This system works very well.

Dear Amy:
Our daughter (16) has dated a couple of nice boys recently. Now she has a boy on her mind who is a graduate of high school. She thinks she likes him, would like him to come to the house and also date him.

The trouble is he has been involved in a sex affair during the time he was in grade school. Involved in petty thefts and is of a different religion. Most of his teachers have said he was a problem boy in school.

With these things against him, how is the situation handled? Do we tell our daughter not to date him... or allow it?

Does a 16-year-old really know how she feels about certain boys?

Tips for Today's Homemaker

From Anne L. Shelton, County Home Economist

Preparing homemade ice cream is an event which can result in enjoyment for the entire family.

Many of you will remember with nostalgia the excitement and anticipation of awaiting a dish of homemade ice cream from the hand-cranked freezer. When the crank refused to budge one more inch, out would come the dasher covered with the creamiest, most delicious ice cream you ever tasted. Provide a similar experience for your children as they too will have such fond memories as adults.

A wide variety of ice cream freezers are available in the market. They range in design from the simple, old-fashioned hand-turned style to the more sophisticated motor-driven electric models. If you decide to purchase an ice cream freezer, choose the style which is most suitable to your needs. Consider how often you plan to use it and your requirements with regard to time and energy.

Specific directions for using an ice cream freezer should be available with a particular unit. A couple of specific hints, however, are in order.

When pouring the ice cream mixture into the freezer can, fill it only two-thirds to three-fourths full. Room is needed for expansion during the freezing process.

Your ice cream needs to develop flavor and should not be served immediately. When the freezing process is over, protect the ice cream with ice and rock salt as directed for your unit and let it stand for at least four hours.

HOMEMADE VANILLA ICE CREAM

1 quart milk
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon vanilla

1-1/2 quarts light cream, or dairy half and half
Scald milk. Mix sugar, flour and salt. Add enough hot milk to sugar-flour mixture to make a thin paste. Stir paste into hot milk. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly, about 15 minutes. Add hot mixture gradually to beaten eggs and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly, about two minutes. (Do not cook longer or eggs may curdle.) Cool quickly in refrigerator. Do not allow mixture to cool at room temperature.

Add vanilla and light cream to cooled mixture. Pour into freezer can; fill only two-thirds full to allow for expansion. Freeze and ripen by basic directions for freezing ice cream. Makes 1 gallon.

Strawberry Ice Cream: Omit three cups light cream. Add one quart washed and hulled strawberries which have been mashed and sweetened with 1/2 cup additional sugar. Add a few drops of red food color if you wish.

Chocolate Ice Cream: Add four squares unsweetened chocolate to milk before scalding. After scalding, beat with rotary beater until chocolate flecks disappear. Increase sugar by one-half cup and prepare according to directions for freezing Homemade Vanilla Ice Cream.

Director will debut at new Arts Center.

Henry Lewis, the New Jersey Symphony's new music director, will make his formal public debut with the orchestra in the Symphony's first appearance at the new Garden State Arts Center on Monday at Telegraph Hill on the Garden State Parkway.

The concert, to begin at 9 p.m., will be the first of a series of five to be given by the orchestra this summer at the new cultural facility. Each will be directed by Lewis.

The program will consist of two major works, with the program opener to be the Dvorak Symphony No. 4 in G Major. Following the intermission, the Symphony will be accompanied by the 150 voices of the Dessoff Choirs of New York, as well as three distinguished soloists, in a performance of "Carmina Burana". The popular choral work is a scenic cantata by the 20th century German composer, Carl Orff.

A FEMININE LOOK AT SOME MID-EUROPEAN CITIES: 1968

(Commentary on a Study Mission to Germany, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Greece)

By TRUDINA HOWARD

Third in A Series THE GREEK GOVERNMENT

In the year since the coup of April 21, 1967, the new Army-backed government of Greece seems stronger than when it began—and more popular.

It seems to have won over its own people as well as people abroad. Internally, there appears to be no sign of upheaval or discontent or distress, and externally, the rule-of-the-Colonels is recognized by most governments of the world, and the new government is a member in good standing at the United Nations.

In a time when most new governments are absorbed into entrenching themselves, the new regime in Greece seems also to have done some people-to-people work. It has made some improvements, some changes, some mistakes, but at least, it has done things. There are some who think the improvements are mistakes, and some who think the mistakes are improvements—so perhaps things will come out even. But there have been numerous church reforms; large portions of agricultural debts have been canceled; personal loan privileges have been restored (even though the interest rate reaches to 12 and 13 percent); notably, there is greater efficiency in the handling of governmental affairs. "Law 89" has been passed to allow special tax allowances for certain types of businesses, as well as other tax measures for foreign investors; Greece's association with the Common Market has been maintained; shipping is up, (although tourism is down). The other big change in Greece is agricultural land that appears normal; there is no evidence of black-marketing, and the Drachma has remained stable. These are but a few.

APPARENTLY THE ONLY DISSENTING voices come from Greek nationals abroad complaining in newspapers and on television in New York, London, Paris, etc., and the shopkeepers and innkeepers, whose sales are lower because of the lower number of tourists. The Scandinavian ban on travel to Greece, President Johnson's statements regarding foreign travel, and the publicity of the Greek coup itself have all tended to lower the tourist business. Even though the places we visited seemed crowded, in a normal year, they would have been stuffed. One must assume also, that the relatives of the reported 2,000 or so ex-officials who are now believed to be under imprisonment on one of the Greek islands, are not among the satisfied ones.

VARIATIONS: Yet an ex-prime minister of a few years back is very highly spoken of by current groups of officials and seems likely once again to be active in political life. So, presumably, not all ex-officials are doomed. An American source said there was no evidence of police cruelty to these prisoners—"no more than the usual police cruelty anyways."

Of the 22 cabinet members of the so-called "Army regime," only three are ex-Colonels. The Premier, George Papadopoulos is one, two were in the army up to 1961, three are university professors, three are lawyers, one is a high court judge, the rest are scientists or other professionals and one—is a journalist!

Since there is no Parliament, "and we found no Parliament to dissolve, one official said, these 22 men run the country and a party, party rules. There is no voting by the public. This new regime has set a date for a plebiscite on a new Parliament, however, September is set for a new constitution to be drafted and the people will vote whether to accept it or re-adopt the previous one. After that, an election day will be set to vote for a leader. One of the men mentioned as possible prime-minister quality, and who is rumored to be the power behind the throne now, is one Jacques Japhet. It was, however, reception party talk.

ONE OF THE MOST INTERESTING FACTS heard at the bridge was attended was that the populace as a whole has been invited to express opinions on the constitution through newspapers and meetings. Up to the time of mid-May, there had been 2,500 public meetings with 500 to 1,500 people attending each, and the newspapers had received two million letters! What's more, by the June 15 deadline date for all this opinion-gathering, the newspapers had expected to receive another million more.

Newsprinters in Greece can be privately owned but the government press censorship is almost complete. At first, reports had to be submitted to the government, but now the order has relaxed somewhat. However, the government still says where certain official statements or speeches of officials should be placed. "Nevertheless," said one American spokesman, "the reporting is much better now. Previously, anything could be printed and it was seldom correct. There was no censorship before but the papers were terrible. There was no objective reporting and nothing was right. If censorship had not been in force last fall, there would have been all-out war between Greece and Turkey, because anything could have been printed. (Speaking of Turkey, there seemed to be no concern over Cyprus in Athens this time, no talk, no interest.) Surprisingly also, on the censorship matter, all foreign newspapers and magazines have free access into Greece and can be had at regular prices at all news stands just as they come. No censorship!

WHILE IT IS TRUE that some may not like the new Greek government and the lack of the vote may appeal still others, particularly in a country where once it was against the law NOT to vote, it is also true that voting sometimes can be meaningless and a small group can rule a country, elections or not. Greece at any rate, states it is working toward a vote.

But whether there is approval or disapproval the important question seems to be whether or not the new government serves Greece, with Greece's own particular set of conditions and problems, better than the ones before. Perhaps it does. Perhaps it does not. Perhaps there will be another opposition government soon. Perhaps this one will succeed. It all remains to be seen.

It does seem, however, that the Greek "Colonels" have a word for it, and a way for it—at least for now.

Guards at UN appreciate minis—even if they're against the rules

By TRUDINA HOWARD

While the mini-skirt may not be entirely welcome at the United Nations, even in the summertime, it is still a thing of appreciation for the male guards, and many a mini gets through.

But it is the men and their dress that give the guards the biggest problem in summer. Shorts and sport shirts are considered inappropriate at the UN where the rule for dress is more to the "courtroom" style, and in the warm months many tourists appear in shorts and sport shirts. Sometimes they get through, but in the Delegate's dining room, never. Even little boys are required to wear jackets there.

The pretty girl guides at the UN who have long yearned to wear shorter skirts on their UN uniforms, have finally gotten them to about two inches above the knee, and that is now fairly standard except in the case of national costumes (such as the Indian sari) and then the length is no question.

In the peak of the season, which is spring, there are approximately 100 guides representing 44 countries, according to Maurice Liu, Chief of Visitor's Services. Low ebb is January and February and then the guides number only between 55 and 60, with lower national representation, naturally.

Summer hours this year for the tourists will be the same as in the winter, Liu said. The building will be open from 9 to 5 every day, including Sundays and the Fourth of July. Tours leave every time a group reaches 25 and the last tour will gather at 4:45 p.m. Group tickets are sold at the information counter in the visitor's building on the north side of the UN.

Tickets to the Delegate's dining room are also available on a first come, first serve basis. The dining room is open to the public during the complete lunch hour when the General Assembly is not in session. When the GA is in session, however, it is open only until 12 noon for the public and then again from 2 to 3 p.m. The GA is usually in session from September to the end of December.

Comparison in shopping can pay off

By MABEL G. STOLTE, County Home Economist

It takes both time and effort as well as knowledge to stretch your dollars these days. One way is to discover which items different stores sell for less. Now when you can buy children's socks; vitamin tablets and curlers where you purchase food, comparison shopping can be easy.

The best way to start comparing the cost of items is by brand name and quantity. Staple food items such as canned and frozen food, household supplies and basic wearing apparel are the easiest to explore when beginning to comparison shop. Experts from the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics use comparison shopping to compile the cost of living index for our federal government.

Supermarket prices should be compared with supermarket and grocery stores with grocery stores. Do not attempt to compare prices in a grocery store with those in a supermarket. Grocery store prices are usually higher than supermarkets but, remember, they generally offer additional services in return. Wherever you can charge or buy on credit, have home delivery or other services, you will find prices higher.

Stores which sell products for less also may be less convenient to your home. However, some homemakers, having limited transportation facilities, have found it convenient to band together and rent a taxi every few weeks to shop in one or two supermarkets located in a less accessible area. Only you can decide which factors are most important for you.

For a list to guide your first steps in wiser home management and comparison shopping, either write: Union County Home Economics Extension Service, 1106 Elizabeth Ave., Elizabeth, or the Office of Consumer Protection, Room 835, 1100 Raymond Blvd., Newark, for their complimentary copy of "The Shoppers' Guide."

CLOTHES CARE COMMENTS

by SAM MANN (Diamond Cleaners)

In the spring, a young man's fancy may turn to tender thoughts. However, for many homemakers, it's afraid spring housework, washing windows and storing winter woollens.

Unfortunately, a summer storage too often means crowded closets that flatten and wrinkle crisp summer cotton dresses and sportswear. Summer storage may also mean summer feasts for moths.

Ordinarily, normal dry cleaning will kill moth life, but during the season when a garment is not worn or cleaned regularly, it should be moth-proofed before storage.

And that's only half the job. To be sure of preventing moth damage, closets used for storage should be fumigated and all concentrations of dust (such as on shoes between the door boards) removed. Otherwise, you may find that these dusty areas are breeding places for hungry moths.

Of course, there's an easier way. DIAMOND CLEANERS service includes both mothproofing and protected storage in moth-proof vaults.

The Volkswagen for people who refuse to drive Volkswagens.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it's ugly, we can't help you.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you have eight kids and it isn't big enough, you have our sympathy.

If you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because it isn't fancy enough, that's for you to decide.

But if you refuse to drive a Volkswagen because you're used to an automatic transmission, listen carefully.

Now you can drive a Volkswagen all over town without shifting.

We call this new option the automatic stick shift.

And in true Volkswagen fashion, a bug with an automatic stick shift will deliver up to 25 miles on a gallon of gas, use very little oil, and nary a drop of water or antifreeze.

But just because we've made it easy to drive, doesn't mean we're about to make it any prettier, or any bigger, or any fancier. So we imagine some people will still refuse to drive Volkswagens.

You can't win them all.

Mama antelope had a secret Zoo gets two for price of one

A few months ago, Richard Ryan, director of the Turtle Back Zoo in West Orange, bought a female Sitatunga antelope from a zoo in Chicago.

What neither he nor the seller knew was the Essex zoo was getting an exceptionally good buy for its money—one, might even say two-for-the-price-of-one.

Ryan announced the newly-acquired Sitatunga had given birth to a fine, healthy young antelope, the first ever to be born in New Jersey.

"We never even suspected she was expecting when we bought her," Ryan grinned, "but (based on the way these things are calculated) obviously she was. What a buy that was."

SITATUNGA ANTELOPES, RYAN explained, are a breed which inhabit the swamps of West Africa. Since their only defense against predators is speed, they do not gain much weight when they become pregnant.

The zoo's new arrival was discovered by head zoo keeper Paul Meade of Caldwell and according to the Turtle Back tradition which accords the honor to the discoverer—the promptly named it "Spindle".

The infant antelope, a male, weighs about eight pounds and stands 18 inches high. At full growth, he should tip the scales at about 225 and will have horns that could be as much as three feet long.

The birth brings the Turtle Back's antelope population to three—the female, a male acquired shortly after she was, and "Spindle".

The additions make the facility, which is operated by the Essex County Park Commission, one of the few zoos in the nation with Sitatunga exhibits.

TWO-FOR-THE-PRICE-OF-ONE—When the Turtle Back Zoo in West Orange purchased this female Sitatunga antelope it got a real bargain price. The "bonus package," in the form of an infant antelope named "Spindle," arrived, announced at the zoo this week. Seems antelopes don't gain weight when they're expecting, so no one knew the female was in "that" condition. Paul Meade, zoo keeper, shows off "Spindle."

Arts Center program to feature shore chorus

A special invitational program featuring the Monmouth Symphony Orchestra and the Monmouth Civic Chorus will be held tonight at the Garden State Arts Center for its "immediate family" and friends in the home area. Miss Linda Heimlich of Union will be soloist.

Employees of the New Jersey Highway Authority, which built the Garden State Parkway roadside complex, have been invited with their families and the construction contractors' workers who labored on the Arts Center project two years.

Special guests will be members of Senior Citizen groups from the Monmouth County area near the Arts Center site at the Parkway's Telegraph Hill Park here.

Helicopter grant given State Police

New Jersey's Highway Safety Program received further impetus this week with approval of a $373,492 Federal grant to establish a helicopter Highway patrol by the State Police.

The aerial traffic safety patrol, as spokesman for the New Jersey Department of Transport said, will be the first in the nation to be set up on a regular, routine basis by a state police agency.

The grant was made by the National Highway Safety Bureau of the Federal Highway Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation. It was announced by Assistant Transportation Commissioner Russell H. Mullen, who is Governor Richard J. Hughes' representative to the National Highway Safety Bureau and chairman of the State Inter-departmental Highway Safety

Program Committee. The newest grant brings to $825,000 the total which New Jersey has received from the National Highway Safety Bureau in the present fiscal year. "This project," Mullen said, "is designed to improve the efficiency, availability and over-all capability of police patrols in highway safety. Under the program the role of the rotary wing will be developed. There are numerous applications under which aerial patrol techniques can be applied."

Egg salad pie refreshing for summer entertaining

By ANNE L. SHELEEN County Home Economist Cool and refreshing egg salad pie should provide warm hospitality for summer entertaining. The hostess who is looking for a unique but easy menu idea should find this egg salad, served in a pastry shell, an answer to her search.

The pie is simple to prepare. Chopped hard cooked eggs, celery and olives are mixed with a slightly set unflavored gelatin and salad dressing combination to which certain flavorings have been added. When placed in the pastry shell, it is stored in the refrigerator until it is set. The result is an airy, fluffy consistency with a slight texture provided by the chopped ingredients.

To add to the pie's attractiveness, a garnish of sliced hard cooked eggs and sprigs of parsley will be most appropriate.

Serve egg salad pie with a crisp garden salad. Your favorite layer cake or fruit shortcake for dessert could complete the menu for a tasty hot weather meal.

- EGG SALAD PIE 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin 1 cup cold water 1 cup milk 1 cup salad dressing 2 tablespoons prepared mustard 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce 3 tablespoons lemon juice 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon instant minced onion 1/2 cup chopped pimiento stuffed olives 1/2 cup diced celery 6 hard-cooked eggs, diced 1 9-inch baked pie shell

Sprinkle gelatin on water in a 2-1/2 quart saucepan to soften. Place over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved, about three minutes. Remove from heat; stir in milk, salad dressing, prepared mustard, Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice, salt and onion. Beat until smooth. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds when dropped from a spoon. Add chopped olives, celery and eggs. Turn into prepared shell. Chill until firm. If desired, garnish with hard-cooked egg slices and parsley. Yield: Six servings.

Five nights of Judy Garland will begin at Telegraph Hill

Its opening week now history, the Garden State Arts Center today headed for other milestones with the scheduled debut of Henry Lewis as conductor of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra next Monday night and the spotlighted appearance of Judy Garland starting Tuesday.

Judy, singing star of first magnitude, will introduce the popular side of the Arts Center's musical spectrum with her five nightly performances from Tuesday through next Saturday.

Except for a special invitational program tonight focusing on local talent, the Arts Center was dark this week as scheduled. But the high classical note struck with the opening last week will be picked up by the New Jersey Symphony and an outstanding array of solo and choral artists on Monday.

Dr. Lewis, its new music director, will be making his conducting debut with the Symphony Monday in a classical "subscription" series program featuring the Carl Orff choral work "Carmina Burana". The singers include soprano Patricia Brooks, tenor Anastasio Vrenios, baritone Frank Guarerra, and the 150-voice Dessoff Choir directed by Thomas A. Sokol.

The Arts Center, at Telegraph Hill Park on the Garden State Parkway, opened with an invitational preview for N.J. officials and the press last Wednesday in a rainstorm and two public premieres—for each classical series—the following night and Saturday.

Tickets for all performances next week and throughout the season—both in the 5,000-seat amphitheater and on the surrounding lawn under the stars—are available from the Arts Center box office, P.O. Box 116, Holmdel, N.J. 07733 (Telephone 201-264-9200).

In addition, ticket outlets have been established at such off-Parkway locations as the Berkeley-Carter Hotel in Asbury Park; the Molly Pitcher Inn in Red Bank; the Holiday Inn on Route 35 in Hazlet; and the Peoples National Bank of Monmouth County in its Hazlet, Keyport and Union Beach branches. Ticket prices range from a $6.90 top under the amphitheater roof for reserved seats to $2 on the surrounding lawn for unreserved spaces. Each Arts Center performance this season will start at 9 p.m. The sight lines and acoustics of the spacious open-sided, sweeping tiered amphitheater designed by architect Edward Durell Stone have been acclaimed already throughout the East.

AAA proposes plan to keep unsatisfied claim fund solvent

The Public Affairs Council of the AAA Automobile Clubs of New Jersey has recommended a plan to keep New Jersey's Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund from going broke and at the same time improve protection for insured motorists.

The AAA plan is contained in a seven-page analysis of the operation of the fund to date and of proposed corrective measures. The analysis and recommendations will be distributed to the 120 members of the State Legislature.

In order to stabilize the financially insolvent fund, the AAA Council recommended elimination of all property damage claims against the fund. It described such claims as a "major, unnecessary drain... since all insurance companies make collision insurance available."

Elimination of property damage claims, or serious limitation of them through high deductibles and other restrictions, would leave the fund primarily free to cope with bodily injury and death claims, according to the AAA council. To give if the necessary resources to do so, the AAA Council recommended that the fee charged uninsured motorists be increased from $25 to $35 annually.

AT THE SAME time, the Council urged that enforcement of fee provisions be improved to prevent uninsured motorists from escaping payment of the levy and thereby adding to the fund's financial difficulties.

In stated statistical experience indicating that upwards of 15 per cent of New Jersey motorists neither take out insurance nor pay the uninsured motorist fee. As for greater protection for the insured motorist, the AAA Council recommended that such motorists be given the right, if they so desire, to purchase additional coverage as protection against the uninsured motorist. Carleton H. Ritter, chairman of the AAA Public Affairs Council and executive vice president of the North Jersey Automobile Club, said AAA estimates that such additional coverage would cost the New Jersey motorist from $4 to $6 annually.

"For that sum," said Ritter, "in cases where an accident is caused by an uninsured driver, an insured motorist and all others riding in his vehicle would be entitled to recover damages from the insured motorist's own insurance company without having to sue the uninsured driver."

State's vacation events slate moves into gear this month

A vast array of activities for youngsters and adults will add sparkle to New Jersey's vacation calendar this month, the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development announced this week.

Conservation Commissioner Robert A. Roa said numerous entertainment programs, recreational opportunities, and sports attractions are planned for the month.

What's Happening in New Jersey this Spring, Summer, Fall, published by the Department's State Promotion Section.

Governor Richard J. Hughes, in his introduction to the new events booklet, commented "Visitors and residents alike will find the vacation calendar crowded with parades, pageants, festivals, contests, plays, concerts and sporting events."

The variety-applied schedule of events began with this month's openings of Atlantic City's Steel Pier and the Garden State Arts Center at Telegraph Hill Park on the Garden State Parkway and continues through the Polar Bear Surfing Championships at Ocean City the day after Christmas.

For those who enjoy Beauty Pageants, a summer-long series of contests has been inaugurated at Sea-Isle City when both the Hydrangea Queen and Miss Visit New Jersey were elected, Monday marked the start of more than two months of weekly contests to select Miss Magic Long Beach Island at Stafford Township.

The final test of feminine beauty and talent, the famous Miss America Pageant, takes place in Atlantic City beginning the day after Labor Day.

Of immediate interest and a little out of the ordinary are such New Jersey specialties as the National Marbles Tournament currently in progress at Wildwood, the Noah's Ark Petting Zoo on the Mall at Cherry Hill, which closes Saturday, and the Antique Automobile Club's Annual Shore Run and Parade at Ocean City, Saturday.

Winter sports fans will be delighted to find that a figure skating school convenes at the South Mountain Arena on Saturday and will continue through Aug. 17. Public ice skating begins on the same date and runs through Aug. 31.

New Jersey's annual salute to its Canadian cousins, with Atlantic City leading the way, begins Sunday and ends June 29. The flags of both countries will be displayed and bilingual welcome signs, menus and sightseeing information, as well as special buys and gifts for Canadian visitors, are to be featured.

Providing a nicely timed balance for the art and musical shows scheduled this month will be the National Wrestling School at the Crest Pier in Wildwood, Monday through June 28, Atlantic City's Tuna Tournament takes place next week beginning Tuesday, most of the summer-long programs of free concerts and entertainment at the shore resorts will also get under way during the final June week-end.

Rounding out June will be an Afro-American Music Festival at Ringwood State Park in northern New Jersey on June 30. This park is the setting for a surprising variety of authentic inter-national events, including folk dances and music through spring, summer and fall.

Copies of the new events booklet for 1968 may be obtained without charge from the State Promotion Section, Department of Conservation and Economic Development, Box 1889, Trenton.

Fireworks danger outlined to parents by national society

"Unsupervised fireworks displays are a menace to the right and safety of youngsters throughout the United States," says the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

In a pre July 4 safety message, Dr. John W. Ferree, executive director of the National Society advises parents to closely supervise their children's playtime activities during the national holiday period.

"After every July 4, says Dr. Ferree, the National Society receives far too many reports of young eyes damaged or blinded in fireworks accidents. These accidents can be avoided only if parents accept their responsibilities and cooperate with the authorities in enforcing fireworks laws."

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness has helped pioneer a model State Fireworks Law prohibiting the sale and uncontrolled use of fireworks in 27 states. Federal legislation bans shipment of fireworks into states with legislation against them. The National Society advocates adoption of the model law by every state.

The Society offers these hints to parents for a safe holiday celebration:

- 1) Don't allow children to buy fireworks through the mail or from illicit dealers.
- 2) Help children realize that fireworks are dangerous.
- 3) Don't buy or use fireworks yourself.
- 4) Take your family to a public fireworks display where they can enjoy the show in safety.

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness is the oldest voluntary health agency nationally engaged in the prevention of blindness through a comprehensive program of community services, public and professional education and research.

State Chamber to hear Syracuse chancellor

Dr. William Pearson Tolley, chancellor and president of Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York, will be the principal speaker at the 57th annual dinner of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce.

Earl N. Fello, president of the Chamber, said that the dinner would be held Thursday, June 27, at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark.

Governor Richard J. Hughes, members of his Cabinet and other State officials, officers and members of the State Legislature as well as several New Jersey members of Congress are expected to attend the dinner.

Rutgers to show fruit research

Rutgers fruit research specialists will show some of the results of their work next Tuesday during an open house at the Rutgers Fruit Research Center near Cream Ridge.

Expected to attend are leaders in the fruit industry, members of county boards of agriculture and others interested in the future of the Garden State's yield of peaches, apples, pears, plums and nectarines.

The event will begin with a barbecue lunch at noon sponsored by fruit industry organizations.

Charles Hess, chairman of the Department of Horticulture and Forestry at the College of Agriculture and Environmental Science, will be chairman of a brief speaking program.

45¢ dividend declared by First National State

The board of directors of First National State Bank of New Jersey, Newark, this week declared a regular quarterly dividend of 45 cents per share. It is payable July 1 to shareholders of record June 17.

This represents the 27th consecutive dividend paid by First National State Bank since its establishment in 1812.

Summing up Dayton's year in athletics -- improved

By MYRON MEISEL

It was an improved year for the athletic squads of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School. The track and cross-country teams compiled superb records, but the most memorable moments came in the long-awaited football victory over Abraham Clark High School of Roselle, the nip-and-tuck battle in the basketball State Tournament with eventual winner Orange High School and the final-week spurt by the baseball team that backed Westfield into the Watching Conference championship.

Jim Horner's gliders began the athletic year under the shadow of an 0-9 season in 1966 and faced uphill battles all season against Watching Conference foes, much larger in size and in total enrollment. Early in the season, Dayton made strong efforts that didn't quite succeed. In the Hillside contest Dayton, down two touchdowns going into the fourth quarter, scored once and narrowly missed several times in the final minutes.

Bulldog power erupted early but couldn't hold off Berkeley Heights. Despite a sound trouncing by Westfield, Dayton played its strongest all-around game of the season. At the next contest, the Bulldogs hit paydirt.

AFTER A 16-GAME DROUGHT, voryneary a record, Dayton routed Roselle, 24-6. Getting strong support from the line, the Bulldog backfield sparked. Jim Robinson carried for 159 yards, an average of eight yards a carry, scoring two touchdowns. Fullback Ralph Losano scored two TDs, too. Jon Schoch completed 10 passes of 16, and defensive men Losano, Nate Edelstein, Steve Jupa and Willie Rutz intercepted passes. Dayton completed its season with a dull 6-6 tie with Railway. Several weeks after the season's close, Watching Hills forfeited all its contests because of an ineligible player, so the final official football mark rested at 2-6-41.

Next year Dayton should do better -- it has a large number of experienced personnel -- although a winning season seems still a long way off.

Soccer difficulties were notable, too, this year, the team compiling a 2-10-2 mark. Plagued by an inability to score (losing many matches 1-0) the soccer team looks forward to a much improved season next year, added by many boys who gained valuable game experience this year, under the leadership of Lou Piccolo.

MARTY TAGLIANTI'S cross-country team finished with a mark of 11-2-1, including a stunning upset victory over conference champ Westfield. The team is facing some rebuilding problems next year, thanks to the loss of three boys to graduation. However, if there is a good response next season, the team could equal or approach its successes of the last two years.

The basketball season was disappointing, primarily because Dayton partisans had come to expect so much. The squad's 9-10 season mark, however, was only a prelude to the state tournament. Here, in two magnificent games, the Bulldog quintet really sparkled.

Facing favored Hanover Park in the first round, Ray Yanchus' boys outpaced their opponents on every count. Cliff York and Dennis Lester led the scoring with 19 and 16 points, respectively, but the entire team contributed to a fine offensive effort after a somewhat sluggish opening. Gary Kurtz played fine defensive ball, and David Margulies and Richie Campbell were strong on the boards. Hanover Park, champion of the Jersey Hills Conference with a 16-4 record, was no match for Dayton that evening.

The next opponent was first-seeded Orange, undefeated in 24 contests. Dayton came perilously close to an upset, holding All-Stater Bob Butts to only 10 points. Only an abysmally low shooting percentage (31) and 20 turnovers prevented a Dayton victory.

The Bulldogs leaped to a quick 6-0 lead and trailed only 29-23 at halftime. In the third quarter, however, Orange hit often from the outside to pull ahead, 40-30. Dayton scored eight consecutive points in the final minute against an Orange freeze, but the Bulldogs lost, 58-53.

Next year the outlook for a strong basketball team is good. Losano, Margulies, and Lester are returning, and there is a large contingent of good junior varsity players. In addition, the freshman squad, which went 16-0 in the most remarkable season in Dayton history, may provide some assistance.

The wrestling team failed to win a meet in 11 varsity matches. With a new coach next year, and what was almost entirely an underclassman team returning, better tidings may be ahead, but it is hard to be optimistic unless the student body responds better in coming out for the sport.

The bowling team did well, finishing with a 10-4 record and second place in the Watching Conference. Although several seniors will be leaving, Pete Socca should have another fine team next season.

Heavy hitting features Men's Softball League

The Beaux Arts Charcoal Co. defeated the Springfield Elks, 13-11, in the Springfield Men's Softball League last Friday evening. Beaux Arts came from behind to win, with Ian Scrubbers getting the victory. Frank Monticello swung the big bat for the Beaux team. Frank hit a home run in the top-half of the seventh inning with two men on base to put the game on ice and added a single and two doubles. Around the Beaux third basemen, got three hits and played a fine defensive game.

The Elks had the lead through the first five innings but broke down in the sixth. Bob Battelle started on the mound for the Elks and pitched a strong four innings, but he was lifted in the fifth for reliever Don Schwerdt. In the hitting department for the Elks, Frank Battelle continued swinging getting three hits four times at bat. Frank had seven hits in his last eight times at bat. Also in the three-hit category were Buddy Oldroy Jr. and George Miles.

IN THE SECOND GAME Friday evening, Somerset Bus Co. defeated Lucam's also 13-11. Sam Carr and Len Breider led the Somerset attack by contributing four hits in five times at bat. Ed Cook added three hits to clinch the victory.

Lucam's made a strong bid for their first victory of the season, but were unable to get the big hit in any inning. Lucam's left men on base in four innings. Joe Camille had a fine evening at the plate getting three hits, along with Bill Cleri. Tony Camale played an excellent defensive game in center field. The winning pitcher was John Peritt who hurled a fine game. The losing pitcher was Len Pacifico who pitched four shaky innings and was relieved by Bill Cleri.

ON MONDAY EVENING Lucam's fell to utilities services, 9-1. Both teams scored one apiece in the first inning, and the score remained tied at 1-1 for the next five innings. Both teams showed excellent defense. Len Pacifico gave his finest performance thus far this season but tired in the sixth and seventh innings and the speedy Utilities team picked up eight runs in the last two innings.

The Utilities club was led by Dennis Frances who had two triples and a double and drove in four runs. Norby Wroblecki, newly arrived shortstop for Utilities, had three hits and the surehanded third baseman, Stu Falck, also contributed three hits. Bill Savarin pitched for Utilities and had a shaky few innings in the beginning of the game but from the fourth inning on Bill became stronger with every pitch.

Lucam's had the same problem they had in their previous game, men on base and not being able to bring the run across. Steve Hartz and Joe Jupa lead the hitting for Lucam's with two hits each, and Rudy Figlio, who pinch-hit in the seventh with a double, tried to get a rally going but he was left stranded on third base.

IN THE SECOND GAME on Monday evening March was beaten by Remlinger, 15-9, and the battle of the bats began. Remlinger opened their bombardment of March pitcher Len Atkins and scored seven runs in the first inning on seven hits including five doubles. Batting leaders for Remlinger were Harry McCann who had three hits, Dennis Kosowicz, two doubles and a single, and the hard-hitting left fielder Sluggo Haase, who had a triple and a double to help the Remlinger cause. Don Castronova was the winning pitcher. Andy Langello, the big bat for March, had two hits. Roger Keuhn had a home run and two other hits. Carman Pecaro blasted out a double and a triple. Lenny Atkins settled down after the first inning and pitched well for five innings, but then in the sixth and seventh the big guns started sounding.

ON TUESDAY EVENING Anderson and Meeker met under murky skies and a slight drizzle, but the weather didn't bother the Anderson team for they smashed Meeker, 20-6. Bryan Bain had three hits and a triple along with Don Stewart, who also had three hits and a triple. Luke Anderson, starting pitcher for the Anderson team, gave a fine performance both on the mound and at the plate. Luke had three hits and drove in four runs. Third baseman Reg Ronco came in to relieve Anderson in the fifth inning and also had three hits. Byron Hero, first baseman for Anderson, had four runs-batted-in plus some fine defensive work. Meeker on several occasions threatened Anderson but left men on bases when they couldn't get the hits to bring the runs across. To put Meeker even more under pressure they played the game one man short. Leftfielder Dick Baker played his usual steady game both in the field and at bat.

IN THE SECOND HALF of the camp twin-bill on Tuesday, PBA-walloped Damascus, 16-5. The PBA put on another display of power and defense. Charlie Franchise played a sparkling game on second base and had a fine evening at bat with two doubles and a triple. Gary Faucher had three hits and a triple. Jim Crowley had his first home run of the season and also had two base hits. Ron DeSantis, who is always a longball threat, had three base hits for PBA. Sam Calabrese did another fine job to get credit for his second victory in as many starts. For Damascus the leading hitting were Joe Lauer, who had three hits, and Jim Sinclair and Art Zehnder, two hits apiece. Starting pitcher for Damascus was Howard Young, who was replaced by Jim Sinclair in the third inning.

Gary's victorious, defeats Saks Fifth to keep first place

Gary's Restaurant stretched its lead in the Youth Minor American League by defeating Saks Fifth Avenue, 10 to 1. Vince Mirabella pitched a one-hitter, and helped his own cause with two singles. Mitch Kotler also blasted a long single for Gary's. Scott Grayson came to the mound for Saks in the second inning, and held Gary's scoreless for three innings. Mike Heckel had the only hit for Saks, a triple. Tom Moen was charged with the defeat.

Drexel Cleaners triumphed over Colantone Shoes, 10 to 4. Both Joey Knowles, the victorious pitcher, and Mike Neibert, the loser, gave up four hits. For Drexel, Gary Grant hit a double with bases loaded, while Kenny Kaplan played a good defensive game at second base, turning a sure base hit into an out with a backhanded stop. Colantone came up with two double plays, John Marshall making one of them unassisted, Andy Herkalo hit a two-run double, and David Lewis got his first hit of the season.

Craig Keyworth had two for three, and Chris Stadler and Danny Halsey each had two for four. Alan Filreis, the winning pitcher, came on in relief in the third inning, and gave up no runs and only one hit. Ricky Morris and John Kronert led the Fire Department offense, going two for four. Morris, Kronert and Sid Kaufman sparked the Fire Department defense.

Researchers find cancer link with chromosome imbalance

Evidence that human cancer is associated with an excess of a specific chromosome is reported in "Chemical and Engineering News." Chromosomes are microscopic rod-shaped structures made up of genes, and found in all living cells.

The analysis of a variety of human cancers and laboratory cultures of malignant human cells shows that the amount of the specific chromosome identified as E-16 is consistently higher than in normal cells—sometimes by as much as 400 per cent—according to Dr. John W. Gofman and Jason L. Minkler of the University of California Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in Livermore. This discovery supports a 66-year-old theory, advanced by the German embryologist Theodor Boveri, that a chromosome imbalance leads to cancer.

"We have developed evidence that the Boveri hypothesis is correct," said Dr. Gofman in the American Chemical Society publication. "We believe that a specific chromosomal imbalance is strongly associated with malignant proliferation of human cells."

OF EQUAL IMPORTANCE is the observation by Dr. Gofman and Minkler that the E-16 chromosome plays a key role in normal cell reproduction in tissue growth. The researchers noted that the death of normal cell cultures in the laboratory is coincidental with a decrease in the amount of E-16 chromosome. This usually occurs after about 55 cell generations. In the cancer state, cell growth continues indefinitely until the malignant tissue kills the host. The amount of cancer is not that cells divide and grow faster, but that they go on dividing indefinitely, Dr. Gofman pointed out.

It is too early to predict just how this new knowledge can be put to practical use, but it opens the way to some intriguing experiments. One is the attempt to induce malignancy in normal human cells by the addition of excess E-16 chromosomes. Another is to track down the specific enzymes the body produces with the aid of the E-16 chromosome. With this information, there might be the possibility of regulating cancer cell reproduction through biochemistry.

THE RESEARCHERS have measured the chromosome content of cancers of the lung, stomach, breast and colon and have studied 11 different lines of laboratory cells from human cancers and normal tissue that has become malignant in the laboratory, as well as cells that have become malignant as a result of viral infection. They have compared this data with normal cells, both male and female. Altogether, they have measured some 140,000 chromosomes. The total chromosome content of cancer cells is generally higher than normal, but the E-16 chromosome is consistently higher in all the malignant samples and is consistently higher relative to the other chromosomes.

The method of differentiating between the various chromosomes, which occur in pairs shaped like capital X's, was to measure the short arms and total arm length and calculate the ratio of the two lengths. Microscopic and projection equipment were used in the measurements, and a computer was employed in making the calculations.

DR. GOFMAN HOLDS the M.D. degree as well as the Ph.D. in physical chemistry. He was associated with Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, now chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, in the discovery of uranium 233. He is associate director of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory and professor of medical physics at the university.

Biologist Jason Minkler began the chromosome study with Dr. Gofman 18 months ago as part of an AEC-sponsored project aimed at finding whether low doses of atomic radiation cause cancer.

Interns to assist communities

Students planning careers in government

The second annual summer intern program sponsored by the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs got under way yesterday with the opening of a three-day orientation and training session at the Douglass College campus, New Brunswick.

The 11-week program, known as Interns in Community Service, is administered by the Department's Office of Community Services. It is designed to prepare qualified undergraduates and graduates for careers in state and local government.

Community Affairs Commissioner Paul N. Ylvisaker said this summer's program, patterned on last year's pilot project, would employ 145 students—nearly twice as many as last year. They will hold jobs with selected local and county governments, the Community Affairs Department and other state agencies, local anti-poverty agencies and quasi-public or non-profit private organizations.

Ylvisaker said the interns, scheduled to begin work on Monday, June 24, will work a regular 40-hour, five-day week, earning salaries based on the regular Civil Service pay scale for student assistants, ranging from $2 an hour for college freshmen to $3.25 an hour for graduate students. The salaries are paid by the Community Affairs Department through state appropriations.

YLVISAKER SAID THE interns are residents of 67 New Jersey communities in 12 of the State's 21 counties. One intern is a resident of Massachusetts.

The Commission said the interns, including 100 undergraduates and 45 graduates, have been assigned to jobs according to the following breakdown: 54 in 24 municipalities, 8 in 7 county governments, 40 in state government, 14 in 6 community action (anti-poverty) agencies, 18 in 10 local legal services agencies and 11 in 9 quasi-public or private organizations.

The list of interns (with home address and job assignment) includes:

Barbara Zieper, 616 Lyons ave., Irvington, to Department of Community Affairs; Richard Mohr, 192 Ellis ave., Irvington, to Verona; Roger Abrams, 524 Olive ter., Union, to Middlesex Legal Services; Arnold Kaplan, 40 Concord pl., Union, to Newark Human Rights Commission; and Steven Szablewski, 237 Orchard ter., Linden, to Elizabeth Planning Office.

A few more intern assignments may be made before the June 24 starting date, as delayed confirmations are received from remaining candidates among the original 157 who were notified of acceptance last month.

At the opening orientation session, Dr. Maxon W. Davis, president of Rutgers University, welcomed the interns at 10 a.m. in ceremonies in the auditorium of Hickman Hall on the Douglass campus. Following this, Commissioner Ylvisaker presented an address outlining the programs and functions of the Community Affairs Department.

THE REMAINDER of the day was devoted to a review of the report presented by the Governor's and President's commissions on civil disorders, featuring an address by Robert Lilley, president of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company and chairman of the Governor's special commission. After dinner, Jay Krieger, special assistant to New Jersey Mayor John V. Lindsay, discussed the federal riot commission report.

Today, the interns will hear speakers and panels discuss the response of government, educators and business to the urban crisis. Among those scheduled to participate are Robert C. Wood, undersecretary of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Thomas Calceano, management training program manager of the Western Electric Co., and former director of job procurement and placement for the National Alliance of Business, and State Higher Education Chancellor Ralph A. Dungan.

In addition, a panel of New Jersey mayors will discuss how local governments can respond to the urban crisis. Scheduled to participate are Trenton Mayor Carmine J. Armenti, New Brunswick Mayor Patricia Q. Stephen and Hawthorne Mayor Louis Bay.

Tomorrow, the interns will participate in a series of workshops designed to acquaint them and their job supervisors with the jobs they will be holding during the summer—interns will reside during the three-day sessions in dormitories provided by Douglass College.

DONALD B. EDWARDS, director of Interns in Community Service, said the 145 interns had been selected from among nearly 800 applicants. He said the criteria for selecting them were academic achievement, interest in community and public affairs, involvement in local issues, and completion of an essay on some critical community problem.

He said interns selected were majoring in a wide variety of subjects related to public affairs at colleges in New Jersey and outside State.

The 24 municipalities receiving interns are Newark (9), Trenton (6), East Orange (5), New Brunswick (4), Jersey City, Paterson and Hoboken (3 each), Plainfield, Perth Amboy, Englewood and Elizabeth (2 each), and Denville, Mt. Laurel, Cape May City, Orange, Verona, Union City, East Brunswick, South Brunswick, Woodbridge, Middletown, Dover, Parsippany and Morris Plains (1 each).

Interns will work for the governments of Essex (2), Bergen, Mercer, Middlesex, Somerset, Sussex and Union Counties.

Interns also have been assigned to the following State Agencies: Community Affairs (20), Education (2), Higher Education (2), Law and Public Safety (5) and Governor's Office (1).

Jobless rate matches low of late 1953

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate matched its post-Korean War low of 3.5 percent in May as employment continued to show strength, the Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported.

The jobless rate, unchanged from April and May, has remained between 3.5 and 3.7 percent over the past six months, the lowest sustained unemployment rate since late 1953.

Total employment and the civilian labor force in May showed seasonally-adjusted rises of 200,000 and 250,000, respectively, largely due to employment gains for adult women.

Agricultural employment, however, showed less than the usual April-to-May pickup as bad weather delayed planting in many parts of the country.

Nevertheless, agricultural employment in the first five months of 1968 has been running about 125,000 above levels a year earlier, reversing, at least temporarily, the long-run decline in farm employment.

Seasonally-adjusted, non-farm payroll employment registered 67.8 million in May and was unchanged from April even though 100,000 more workers were on strike.

Over the year, total employment rose by 2.3 million to 75.9 million, with nonagricultural industries accounting for about 2.1 million of the increase.

Sandmeier students preserve news items of school interest

David Oppenheim, a fourth grader at the Thelma Sandmeier School, has been named chairman of the Sandmeier scrapbook committee for 1968-69, according to a school spokesman. Other members of the committee include Robert Groder, Joel Allen and Douglas De Leonard.

Every week, members of the committee will scan the Springfield Leader for articles about children who attend (or have attended) the Sandmeier School and their families. These clippings will be posted on the "Sandmeier Names in the News" bulletin board in the front hall. The following week, these articles will be transferred to the Sandmeier scrapbook, and new clippings will be posted. The scrapbook has proved to be one of the most popular books in the school library. Because of its heavy use, the committee has decided to protect the pictures and articles with clear plastic covers in the 1968-69 scrapbook.

This year's book is already two inches thick. Many of the articles which appeared in the Leader were written by children in the Sandmeier School.

Jayne's edged by Lion single in sixth inning

The Lions squeezed out a hard-fought victory in the Youth Major League over Jayne's Trucking, 5-4. Larry Klarfeld struck out six and walked two for the victory. Howie Forman had a homer, and then singled in the deciding run in the top of the sixth. Steve DiBenedetto smashed out two hits for the Lions. Greg Prussing had a double for Jayne's. Bruce Rosow was charged with the defeat.

Timely hitting and heads-up base running won a 14-5 victory for PBA over the Lions. Howie Tenenbaum had two hits for PBA, one of them a homer, Bob Wallick, the victorious pitcher, Kevin Mercer and Mark Tasher each had two hits for PBA. Steve DiBenedetto was charged with the defeat. Mike Levine had a double and a single. Mike Klarfeld had two hits, and Brian Krumholz had a double.

Billy defeated the Lions, 7-1, in a low-hitting contest in which walks and errors led to a big third-inning rally for Billy. Lions' pitchers Mike Klarfeld, Steve DiBenedetto and Bill Palazzi among them gave up one hit, a single to Barry Gerst in the sixth inning. Mark Cooper had a shut-out going for Billy until two out in the sixth. Mike Levine had a double, and Brian Krumholz, Steve DiBenedetto and Barry Baldwin had the other hits for the Lions.

Barry Fink gave up three hits for a Rotary victory over Billy, 11-8. Tim Pimpinelli smashed out a two-run double that spearheaded a well-balanced Rotary batting attack. Jeff Schneider blasted a grand slam home run for Billy. David Mollen was the losing pitcher.

Crestmont Savings won a well-pitched game over the Lions, 4-2. Larry Klarfeld, while charged with the defeat, gave up only two hits, both of them to Mike Scopellito. Fielding errors by the Lions gave the victory to Crestmont. Mike Klarfeld had a double and a single for the Lions. Howie Forman and Jeff Greenberg each had singles. Jesse Colandrea, the victorious pitcher, had help from John Siegel for the last two outs.

Gaylin and Unico victors in league

St. James Little League has finished its season with Gaylin and Unico the champion of the Major League and Unico on top of the Minor League. The outcome of the first and second halves of the season was not decided until the end when weather permitted the play of rained out games. Gaylin won both halves of the season, as did Unico.

Last Thursday, Unico faced the Knights of Columbus for a showdown. Both starting pitchers, Joe Natiello for Unico and Karl Melor for K of C, allowed only two hits. Melor was removed in the third inning when a ground ball bruised his hand. Unico was able to hit with men on base and won, 5-0. Natiello struck out 11 and gave up two walks.

John's Catering beat Holy Name in a close game. John Schwert drove in two runs to tie the score for Holy Name in the bottominning. In extra innings, Eddie Bladie drove in the deciding run. Jack Flood scored the tying run, and Jim Murphy scored on Bladie's hit for the victory. Pat Cantarella was the winning pitcher.

The Knights of Columbus beat Holy Name, 5-3. Pitcher Greg Lies got two hits. Carl Melor also got two hits, and Jerry Ragonese scored three runs. Greg Johnson hit a three-run home run for Holy Name.

PBA CLINCHED the championship of its division by beating the American Legion, 9-4, behind the six-hit pitching of Bob Wallick. PBA was behind, 2-0, when Larry Silverstein hit a bases-loaded triple. John Zurkoff doubled for PBA's only other extra-base hit. Tom Lowy and Sam Kaplan each tripled and singled for the Legion, and Bill Nevis tripled. Dick Fluhlein was charged with the loss.

Jayne's Trucking took advantage of National State Bank defense to win 7-3, as Jess Greenstein picked up the victory, with Steve Brumer coming in to get the final two outs. Leon Rawitz went the route for Bank, and pitched exceptionally well, fanning six, walking two and allowing seven singles, three of them infield hits. Greenstein and Bill Dacler each had two hits for Jayne, while Bank was led by Richie Goldhammer's two singles and Steve Cohen's triple. The defensive fireworks were provided by Jayne catcher Bill Dacler with a diving catch of a pop fly, an unassisted double play at the plate and pegging out a runner attempting to steal.

Rotary defeated PBA in a see-saw, extra-inning contest, 11-9. Rotary came from behind to tie the game in the sixth, and went on to score five more in the seventh. A PBA rally in the last of the seventh fell two runs short. PBA outpitched Rotary, 14-8, but a series of walks by PBA pitchers—John Zurkoff, Mark Tasher and Howie Tenenbaum, the loser, made the difference. Mark Weber led the Rotary attack with a double and a triple, while John Zurkoff at four for five was PBA's leading hitter. Ed Hochstein, who relieved starter Tim Pimpinelli in the bottom of the sixth, was the victorious moundman.

PBA defeated Jayne's Trucking, 11-8, after trailing by a score of 7-3, with an eight-run rally in the bottom of the fifth. During the rally, PBA had 10 hits, and six consecutive pinch-hitters came off the bench to hit safely. Jerry Jones was the triumphant pitcher. Jayne hitting stars were Bob Berry, three for four, and Stu Garawitz, two for three. John Bah led the PBA attack with a triple and two singles, and Jerry Jones had two doubles. Bruce Cohen was the defeated pitcher.

The Lions defeated National State Bank, 20-2, behind the pitching of Larry Klarfeld, the victor, and Bill Palazzi. Mike Levine led the Lions with a triple and two singles, and was outstanding in the field. Howie Forman had three singles. Steve DiBenedetto a double, and Larry Klarfeld, Steve Ehlers and Jeff Greenberg singles. The leading hitters for Bank were Rich Goldhammer with a triple, losing pitcher John Nabor, Keith Widom and Phil Schultman.
