Red Cross official reports chapters have been merged

The Springfield Chapter of the American Red Cross has merged with the Summit Area Chapter, it was announced this week by Mrs. Anne D. Duca, who has been chairman of the Springfield Chapter for the past year.

The local group will now be known as the Springfield Branch of The Summit Area Chapter with headquarters at 695 Springfield Ave., Summit. The new telephone number is 273-2076.

The merger was carried out, Mrs. Duca stated, "in accordance with the belief of the national Red Cross headquarters that one large chapter can function more efficiently than several small ones."

The Summit Area Chapter provides a professional staff which can assist in meeting Red Cross needs in Springfield.

Mrs. Duca went on to say, "We feel sure there will be no loss of service to the residents of Springfield. Our motor corps, blood bank, first-aid and water safety courses, our East Orange Veterans Hospital assignments and our loan closet will continue as before."

"Service to families of men and women in the armed forces will, however, be handled directly through the Summit Area Chapter."

Walton School students getting a Helping Hand

"The Helping Hand Project covering the Edward J. Walton School district has been progressing very well," according to Mrs. Robert D. Hardgrove, juvenile protection chairman of that school's PTA.

The project "went into effect about two months ago and is a system whereby one or more parents on each block which students travel to school would be available to care for school children in distress. The idea is that if a child should be injured, chased by a dog, or annoyed by a stranger, the student may go to the house displaying the "Helping Hand" special sign.

"The sign is approximately 11 by 14 inches and has a white hand with outstretched fingers on a red background, with the words "Helping Hand" written in blue.

Mrs. Hardgrove continued, "Almost every day another person telephones and asks to be a block parent. Each block parent is given a sign and a special key to the house to what actions to take and not to take in the case of an emergency."

"A few citizens have asked whether some unfortunate incident prompted this project. The answer is that the executive board of the Edward Walton PTA just thought it would be a good idea. Also, it had been successfully used in other nearby communities.

"Although the response has been excellent, we would like to have as many parents participate as possible." Those who would like to volunteer as block parents may call Mrs. Hardgrove at 376-3348.

Thefts reported by four residents, four businesses

Burglars had a busy week in Springfield, police reported, with thefts discovered in four business establishments and four private homes.

The first incident was at Morris Avenue Motors, Morris and Mabel avenues, last Wednesday. There was a "raid" of the store, the report stated, and the safe had apparently been opened by someone who knew the combination. The loot included $130 in cash, a check for $1,200 and personal papers belonging to the owner.

Police discovered that glass had been broken last Thursday in the rear door at Newberry's, Gen. Green Shopping Center. The initial investigation showed, however, that nothing had been stolen.

Saturday someone forced the lock on the rear door of the Fashion Plaks store, 276 Morris Ave., according to police records, and made off with $150 from the cash register.

On Monday, a thief threw a garbage can through the front window of the Brasserie Echo Plaza Shopping Center. He escaped with

Springfield Historical Society installs 17 new windows at Cannon Ball House

A "new look" which is really an old look is now on view at the historic Cannon Ball House at 126 Morris Ave., Springfield. Passersby will notice that each of the 17 windows has now been changed from "two-over-two" window panes to "six-over-six" Colonial-type windows in order to restore the building to its original appearance.

This house, which is owned and maintained by the Springfield Historical Society, was built around 1740. It predates the Revolutionary War, and is one of four houses in Springfield which was not burned by the retreating British and Hessian soldiers during the Battle of Springfield in 1780.

After many years of discussion about the restoration of the windows, Mrs. Milton P. Brown, junior past president of the society, started a drive to purchase and install them. With the aid of Phoebe Briggs and Mrs. George W. Lancaster, members and their friends were asked to subscribe to memorial replacement windows.

Mrs. Robert D. Hardgrove, president of the Historical Society, stated, "We are very pleased that this project has finally been accomplished and the new windows certainly enhance the historic Cannon Ball House. Our appreciation is extended to the committee and to the subscribers."

The subscribers are: Phoebe Briggs, in memory of the Mulford family; Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Bunnell, in memory of Phyllis Bunnell; Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Casselman, in memory of the Cannon Ball House; Mr. and Mrs. Max Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus W. Smith Sr. and Howard W. Wiseman, in memory of Frederick A. Wiseman.

Lecture scheduled by David Brinkley

David Brinkley, one of the nation's leading television newscasters, will present the second in the "Brinkley Forum Lectures" series Sunday, March 16, at 8:45 p.m. The lectures are held in the Kennedy Club Auditorium, 60 Temple St., Springfield.

A highlight of the program, according to Bernard Mollen, series chairman, will be a question and answer period. This, according to Mollen, helps develop the purpose of the series, to enable the audience and speakers to freely exchange ideas.

Tickets are available at the temple office and at the door.

Mrs. Hardgrove sees program on 'Fighting Parson'

Mrs. Robert D. Hardgrove, president of the Springfield Historical Society, was a guest of Mrs. Hellingger's fifth grade class at the Brookside Place School in Cranford last Friday.

The class had been studying the historic Battle of Springfield in 1780 and presented a play as an assembly program for their school mates, entitled, "The Fighting Parson" by Arlene R. Sayce.

The young actors and actresses in colonial costume enacted the famous episodes against background scenery of large replicas of the First Presbyterian Church and a log cabin farmhouse. With the aid of suitable props including guns, powder horns, tricorn hats, etc., the students portrayed the valiant flight of the American militia and the suffering of their womenfolk against the highly trained British soldiers. Parson Caldwell was shown distributing the Watt Hymnals and yelling the famous phrase, "Give 'em Waits, Boys."

The Poem, "Caldwell at Springfield," by Bret Harte, was recited. Mrs. Hardgrove praised the performers and spoke briefly about the history of Springfield.

All are topics for fifth graders at Sandmeier

Fifth graders at Springfield's Thelma Sandmeier School have been busy in recent weeks learning by doing, in such areas as creative writing, science and use of the school library. The following reports on their activities were prepared by boys and girls in the class.

The following article was written by Debra Cardinal, Ronni Fink, Donn Fishbein, Jeanne Glanas, Debra Harmon, Jodi Lesser, Jdith Millman, Lisa Modell, Caran Oglintz, Cheryl Resnick, Leoni Schlein, Wendy Stark and Debra

In the snowy winter scenes, they can actually feel the snow tingle their spines—There are also scary thunderstorms where everyone can feel his heart thumping wildly inside him. In many cases, as pupils read these stories, they can imagine themselves in the character's place.

The children also gave speeches using thoughtful phrases to tell what they did on and light bulbs. Lisa Blumenthal, Holly Herzman, Stacey Krop and Shelley Silverman were together in a group. They connected bells and buzzers. Once they made a light bulb using a jar, battery wire and a filament. Another day they made an electromagnet by wrapping wires around a nail. Barry Landow and Steven Weinman have made an electromagnet, also, by using two six-volt batteries. The electromagnet can pick up scissors, screw drivers, and can magnetize many things.

Experiments taught them the difference between conductors and non-conductors. The girls and boys used all kinds of materials to see if electricity would flow through the material.

Gary Grant, Donn Fishbein and Andrew

school, is now teaching them about the Dewey decimal system.

The fifth graders separated all the classroom paperback books into groups. In Mrs. Samer's class they separated animal books into three categories: tame animals, wild animals and animal stories. Also, they learned classification of books, how to put non-fiction numbers in order, and found books on the shelves when given a number. A filmstrip on the Dewey decimal system was shown as a final review. From these activities, the girls and boys learned that the Dewey decimal system is very useful for finding non-fiction books. They also realized that it would be very hard to find books without this system.

Minister outlines details of program for Bible meeting

Felice Episcopo, presiding minister of the Springfield congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, discussed this week with the congregation more details concerning the three-day Bible convention scheduled for March 14-16 at the Summit Junior High School.

He spoke principally about the Saturday evening program, which will feature demonstrations enacted to illustrate points of Bible teachings. The theme of the Saturday evening program will be "Sharing in a Most Urgent Work," based on the Scripture at 2 Timothy 4:2, and the program will show how two of the ministers of Jehovah's Witnesses can be helped to share in the privilege of conducting home Bible studies with persons interested in gaining knowledge of the Bible," he said.

Mr. Episcopo then reminded those in attendance of the importance of personally inviting as many as possible to be in attendance at the public talk entitled "Law and Order—How and When" which will be delivered at 3 p.m. Sunday by Christian H. Welning, district supervisor for the Watchtower Bible Society of Brooklyn.

"Do not be concerned by the limited seating of the school auditorium," concluded Mr. Episcopo, "because by means of closed circuit television, we hope to afford each person in attendance the opportunity of seeing the talk as he delivers the talk."

$50 in cash and a number of dresses valued at $1,500.

The week's first incident of breaking and entry at a private home took place last Thursday at a house on Evergreen avenue. The burglar broke a glass panel in a rear door, ransacked a bedroom and took four cans containing $60 in change.

Two homes on Craig road were also burglarized during the weekend. Entry was gained by breaking the knob on one rear door and by forcing open the lock on the other. There was no immediate estimate as to what was taken.

A home on Avon road was entered Saturday, reportedly while a telephone serviceman was at work there. The loot included a camera, flash unit and woman's clothing, with a total value of $159.

OUT OF THE PAINT BUCKET

A question we've been asked time and time again is what can be used to change the color of bathroom tile without it costing too much? Up until this time I knew of nothing but epoxy which would do the job, but recently I was brought to my attention by the McCloskey Co. of a product on the market named Be-Even-Kote.

This is an adhesive bond designed to glue the top coat to the foundation coat, mainly a sandwich coat. By wiping the tile with this product, any color enamel paint may then be applied.

In addition to the enamel paint, the Antiquing process in a wood tone may be used if a paneling effect is desired.

Incidentally, if you have a problem or are concerned about any of the above, stop, call or write and we'll be happy to help you.

Regional goal must be equality of excellence

Regional Board of Education getting ready to present its plan for expansion of the Regional system, there are a few ground rules which could help to keep discussion of the matter moving forward.

First, and most important, everyone concerned in the lengthy debate which lies ahead should remember that everyone else is motivated by a desire to provide the best possible education for the young people of the entire district.

The Regional board and staff must try to look at the whole picture, to meet the anticipated needs of all six communities making up the district.

People of Springfield, quite naturally and quite properly, will be primarily concerned with the needs of Springfield. But the needs of one community cannot be met by ignoring the needs of another.

This applies to the people of Berkeley Heights and Mountaintop, of Clark, Kenilworth and Garwood, just as it does in Springfield.

No one really wants to make one town of six preeminent, or to relegate another to second-class status. While there will always be sibling rivalry within such a district, there need not be any Cinderellas.

At the same time, those who might advocate one method of meeting the district's needs need not attribute all sorts of sinister motives to those who prefer another solution.

Both sides, or all three or four, must remember that dissent is not necessarily treason, and that the righteous of heart need not have a monopoly of the truth.

Several years ago, one of the civil rights organizations discussing an "Equal" sign, to indicate the goal of equality for everyone.

The Regional board, or any of the concerned citizens who will quite properly want to examine every aspect of the proposal, would do well to obtain a stock of the same buttons. Equality, for all students and for all communities, is the proper goal for the district.

We might add that it should be equality of excellence. Our children deserve no less.

Taxpayers of the Regional district have shown little reluctance to pay for what has been needed. We do not believe that the price tag was a major reason for the rejection of last year's proposal, whatever the reason was.

Voters of this community should certainly be willing to pay the price, in cash and in willingness to work with the other five communities, for true equality of excellence in education.

The final result of either resentment on the one hand or preferential treatment on the other, would still be equality -- but it would soon develop into equality of mediocrity.

The goal for the Regional district, as for any school system, must be equal opportunity for every student to achieve his maximum potential.

Anything less is a betrayal, and all those who might be responsible, as members of a Board of Education or of the voting public, should be made aware of their guilt.

As the time for decision approaches, however, we are confident that the members of the board and of the public would much prefer to share the credit, not the blame.

Girl Scout Week

Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. will celebrate their 57th birthday on March 12, during National Girl Scout Week, March 9-15. Founded in 1912 in Savannah, Georgia, American Girl Scouting has grown up with the nation. The theme of the organization for the years 1966-69, "Values for Today, Worlds to Explore," represents values held constant for almost 60 years -- but expressed each day, month, and year in a modern and timely way.

Today's Girl Scouts work against poverty and inequality; last year the organization's National Board of Directors voted to support the major goal objectives of the Report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders. The 3.5-million members express their beliefs--their values--through service in their own and neighboring communities, in schools, libraries, centers, hospitals, parks, or wherever goodwill and dedication can be useful. "Let's wish them a heartfelt "Happy Birthday" during their week.

HUMAN RACE MAY BECOME EXTINCT -- While MAN is busy lamenting the tragic extinction of many of the world's animal species, he would do well to consider his own prospects of survival. "The human race, at the present time, is in grave danger of becoming extinct. It will be the end of this century to stem the inevitable tide," says evolutionary John T. Robinson of the University of Wisconsin. Unlike other animals, which are dependent on genetic change to adapt to their surroundings, man can to a considerable extent manipulate his environment and adapt directly to it.

MOST AMERICANS pay little or no attention to most international issues, according to a survey published by the University of Michigan. It reports that in the area of foreign affairs, Americans have had little awareness of the nature and purpose of the reciprocal trade program, the Marshall Plan, or various later foreign aid programs. Majorities, often large majorities, of American citizens have been unable to identify such leading international figures as Marshal Tito and the U.S. secretary of state. Likewise, citizens were found to lack information on such domestic issues as tax programs, farm policy, and even race relations. Social researchers have found that people who are knowledgeable about any one major issue or policy, whether foreign or domestic, usually are reasonably informed about most others.

Report from Trenton

By State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldo

Last year, the Legislature saw fit to enact into law a bill to prevent the New Jersey Highway Authority from engaging in activities not directly related to the construction and operation of roads without the express consent of the Legislature and the Governor. My concern in this area was spurred by the dramatic escalation of the costs of constructing the cultural center along the Garden State Parkway at Holmdel. The cost of this project, which was built under the aegis of the New Jersey Highway Authority, was originally estimated at a million dollars. By the time it was in operation last year, the cost had multiplied many times.

It was neither my intent nor purpose to stifle public sponsorship of worthwhile cultural activities. But it seemed to me and a great many other thinking New Jerseyans that the Highway Authority had gone somewhat amiss in estimating costs. The basic problem, as I saw it, was the absence of any legislative review of projects not connected with the operation of a road. In the case of the Highway Authority, the legislation adopted last year corrected the situation.

HOWEVER, THE LOOPHOLE through which the extravagantly expensive cultural center slipped remains open to the authorities responsible for the New Jersey Turnpike and the Atlantic City Expressway. To eliminate the possibility of another such extravaganza, I introduced legislation to prevent the Turnpike and Expressway Authorities from engaging in activities unrelated to road building without the express consent of the Legislature and the Governor.

Both bills, S-311, which affects the Expressway Authority, and S-312, which concerns the Turnpike Authority, have been passed in the Senate and sent to the Assembly. They are similar in purpose and language to the bill adopted last year.

This week, I wrote all members of the New Jersey Assembly urging them to give swift consideration to S-311 and S-312. My concern for fast action was prompted by a statement made by William Flanagan, Director of the New Jersey Turnpike Authority, who indicated a willingness to involve his organization in the construction of a jetport.

WHILE I RECOGNIZE the obvious need for the construction of a jetport in the metropolitan area, I also am concerned about the possibility of an authority building such a facility without legislative and gubernatorial approval. The present law governing the New Jersey Turnpike Authority could conceivably permit such a project to be undertaken.

I have an open mind on this subject, but I certainly believe any such undertaking should not be launched without a thorough review by the Legislature. For this reason, I am asking my colleagues in the Assembly to postpone the possibility of the Turnpike Authority committing us to the jetport project without legislative permission.

The motorists who pay tolls on the turnpikes, parkways and expressways of this state are entitled to entertain the hope, however remote, of one day riding free; it is permitted the authorities to continue enlarging their domain through the vehicle of non-highway functions, that day will never come.

Federal Tax Facts

New Jersey taxpayers may use the state sales tax table included in their tax instructions as a guide in preparing their itemized 1968 Federal income tax returns, according to Roland H. Nash, Jr., District Director of Internal Revenue.

The table is based on consumer spending patterns and shows the average amount of state sales tax paid by New Jersey residents. The New Jersey sales tax on automobiles is not included in the table. Taxpayers who purchase an automobile may add the actual sales tax paid onto the amount shown in the table.

Taxpayers are not required to use the table, Nash pointed out. It is furnished as a guide for the convenience of taxpayers who want to deduct a "standard" amount for state sales tax, which will not require detailed substantiation.

Taxpayers who prefer to deduct the actual amount of New Jersey sales taxes paid during the year must have records as proof of payment.

OVERNIGHT PARKING
I was appalled when I read the last issue of the Springfield Leader in which was reported that "the Township Committee moves to prohibit overnight parking."
Mr. Forbes still does not recognize that he has failed to demonstrate one "plus" for this ordinance. Doesn't he read the one voice of the town he represents?
Why have the other committeemen, who found this proposal invalid the last time it was presented, allowed it to proceed this time? Why the rush to "shuffle" this issue through?

As a resident of Springfield, I request that the ordinance be placed on the next ballot and let the people decide the democratic way.
I also urge those who have contacted me, as well as those affected by this ordinance, to join me at the next township meeting on March 25.

TENNIS ON TOP
The present recreational facilities in the area known as Balmisroil Top consist of a few swings, but no tennis courts. The two closest town tennis courts are located at Irwin Playground and Henshaw Playground.
The most direct way of reaching Irwin is to follow the treacherous, county-run Summit road down the mountain. To get to the more distant Henshaw court, you would use 60th Mountain road and Shunpike road. Each road mentioned has no sidewalks. To those of us young tennis players who must use our bikes, this could be a dangerous trip.
At present, the Balmisroil Top area is lacking in recreational facilities. Since the town already owns land on Balmisroil Top (where the swings are located) I feel that these facilities should be expanded by the construction of a tennis court.

Your Editorial of Feb. 13 concerning "Brotherhood Week, Without Big Brothers," seems to have accomplished just the opposite of what I believe you intended from my acquaintance with you.
Brotherhood or ecumenism cannot be furthered by an editorial that was so blatantly and offensively anti-Protestant as the one in which I am referring. Nor can it be advanced by the letter from Lawrence Lerner, whom I count among my friends in Springfield. It is in poor taste to publicly disclose affairs between congregations, just as it is to intermarital difficulties before one's friends.

Acknowledgably there are many areas where we have not progressed rapidly enough, but we might better accentuate the achievements we want to move our society toward the highest aims of "liberty and justice for all."

I recall many inter-faith and inter-racial adventures during the past 12 months; a dialogue on church unity at the Presbyterian Church; an inter-faith consultation on drug addiction; the memorial services for Dr. King and Sen. Kennedy at St. James; the Benedict College-Choir concert; Springfield youth assisting in a tutorial program in Elizabeth; a dialogue sermon in which Rabbi Levine and I shared at Temple Beth Ahm; the inter-faith Thanksgiving service at Antioch Baptist Church; a Christian unity prayer service at St. James; and a Roman Catholic nun at the Methodist Church.

If the Springfield Leader, and others are really interested in "Brotherhood," let's have some positive suggestions for further action rather than the kind of castigation that sows the seeds of distrust and animosity.

A MUSING from the desk

NO MORE SHOW AND TELL
Television cameras and cables encircled the Andrew Johnson Memorial elementary school. Newspaper reporters and photographers stood outside in the below-zero weather--waiting for the facts on the big story of the day. Kindergartners, in a show-of-protest had taken over the school nurse's office and were holding kindly Miss Alma Mayweather as hostage until their demands are met.

The youngsters had carefully printed their demands on a roll of medical gauze and threw it out the window to the waiting newsmen. They said in the note:
"We want no crayons, blocks, playsets. We want a say in running the class. We want longer rests. We don't want more show and tell."

THE YOUNGSTERS, GUARANTEED the right to protest by the Supreme Court as long as they don't disrupt the educational process, could be seen protesting their little noses against the glass and waving to the mothers who had brought them peanut butter and jelly sandwiches and frozen pizza.

to sustain them during the demonstration. In a statement to the press, Elroy Peabottom, the principal, said:
"We are attempting to make contact with the school rebels but they've built a barricade of building blocks in the hallway."

"We have taken no action to remove the students forcibly and I am hopeful that talks with representatives of the students in the building would solve not only the immediate crisis but also the long-range problems."

PEABOTTOM ALSO SAID he would make every effort to avoid police or other physical action. Later, signs of a break in the rebels' ranks began to appear when several of the students asked to go to the boys' and girls' rooms.

One youngster fled from the barricade office when she realized that "Batman" was on TV. Still another realized she had a piano lesson. The protest finally broke up when, after all, it was time for dinner--demands of PEABOTTOM.

Wall Street Notebook

By ARTHUR POLLACK

Every year more aircraft are produced for the commercial market and more hours are flown -- both by airlines and private users. Such continued growth does not generate automatic profits, witness the airlines, but one small service appears to be able to participate profitably in the continuing growth of air traffic, the independent engine overhaul.

Due to FAA regulations, as well as to common sense safety requirements, aircraft engines' reliability must be assured. Periodically (every 1,500-2,000 flying hours or about every eight months in normal airline use) a jet engine is removed from the aircraft, completely disassembled, each part cleaned, tested and repaired (or replaced) and then reassembled and tested at various power settings. This process requires a certain force of skilled labor, a certain quantity of machinery, and licenses from the various engine manufacturers to make repairs. This must be done either by the engine user or by an independent agent -- as manufacturers do not want to tie up plant and personnel servicing finished engines.

In the pre-war era, when most major airlines serviced their own engines, hundreds of independent overhaulers did business on a part-time basis. Today, however, the relatively large amount of work required in engine repairs and from the normal hazards of dealing with a monopolist able to change the rules of the game at will, Corporate and small airlines business was in its infancy. The advent of the jets changed things. The cost of equipment needed to overhaul commercial turbines was too high for many overhaulers -- and for a number of years, airlines, such as National, Braniff and Continental, who ceased overhauling entirely.

DURING THE SAME period, changes were also taking place in general aviation and lower level airlines. In the early 1960's, sales of corporate and personal aircraft began to expand rapidly. Few of the purchasers possessed the facilities for overhaul and inspection. Local airlines were beginning an equipment cycle paralleling an aggressive campaign for new and expanded routes. Few of these lines had overhaul capacity.

By now the jets had penetrated to the level of local service and supplemental carriers -- and it has become a growing factor in business aircraft, expanding the amount of available jet work and providing range for profit margin improvements. Currently, there are some 42,000 corporate aircraft applicable to overhaul work. Business jets numbered 886 in September 1968. The growth of air-taxi operators will swell the amount of business available, as will the eventual sale of used jets by major trunk carriers replaced by "jumbos" and strabuses.

The dominant factors in the industry are, of course, the airlines -- a large volume of contract overhaul work is done by them actively. The ability of the airlines to overhaul engines is limited by the problems of physics -- such as "always" services the way engines, first, and if capacity is scarce, its engines will go out sooner. The independents, aside from having virtually a clear field in general aviation, can offer their turbine customers quick and reliable service -- at prices competitive with the airlines. For a list of three companies that derive the bulk of their revenue from overhauling, drop a note to Arthur S. Pollack in care of this newspaper, Arthur S. ## KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

From N.J. Taxpayers Association

With Federal aid to state and local governments multiplying during the period of a decade, the problem of how to get more of it into New Jersey occupies increasing attention at the State House.

Grants-in-aid to all state and local governments are projected at $25 billion in the Federal budget proposed to Congress for the fiscal year 1970. This is more than three times the $7 billion provided nationally in 1960. Grants have multiplied several times for health and welfare, education and manpower and community development and housing activities -- all areas of need in New Jersey. During most of the period, however, New Jersey has remained at the bottom of the Federal aid ladder, with its taxpayers paying the highest rate of Federal taxes for the amount of aid received. The latest annual tabulation of the New Jersey Taxpayers Association shows New Jersey and its subdivisions received $350.6 million in Federal aid in the fiscal year 1967. The tax burden falling within this State to pay for the $14.6 billion of Federal grants distributed nationally that year was estimated at $595.3 million. This produced a cost vs. grants ratio of $1.70 for each dollar of aid received -- highest for any of the 50 states.

Efforts to place New Jersey in a better position among states on the Federal aid ladder have been numerous. Currently one measure is before the State Legislature to appoint a Federal "grantman". Another creates a commission to study causes of the national distribution disparity. Meantime the State Department of Community Affairs has made every effort to qualify New Jersey's successes or failures in qualifying for funds. Basically, the NJTA has pointed out, correction of the Federal aid inequalities lies in revision of the distribution formulas by Congress and through administrative action in Washington.

Deductible 'carry-over' on Medicare

There is one provision of the Medicare law that is not generally known, Ralph W. Jones, district manager of the Elizabeth office pointed out this week. He said that it could mean savings in medical bills for many individuals who come under Medicare.

Jones said that under Part B of the Medicare program, bills must be paid for by the beneficiary. He may then be reimbursed for 80 percent of all reasonable covered medical charges over $50 during the calendar year.

To help the beneficiary who might have to meet this $50 deductible twice in a short period, a special "carry-over" rule was included in the law. This rule is that covered medical expenses incurred in October, November or December of any year can count as credit toward the $50 deductible not only for that year, but also for the following year.

Jones gave the following two examples of how this rule works. He said that if covered medical expenses for a year are $50 or less, any such expense that is incurred in October, November or December can be used for the following year.

In the second example, he said that if covered medical expenses do not go over $50 until the last three months of the year, any expense in those three months which counted toward the $50 deductible for the next year.

Jones said that the staff at the Elizabeth district office would be glad to explain further this rule or to help any person in making out an application form for Medicare payment. The local office, located at 268 North Broad st., is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Thursday evenings to 8 p.m. The phone number is 351-3200.

Hike club will ramble

An afternoon ramble and an eight-mile hike are scheduled for the members and guests of the Union County Hiking Club this weekend.

On Saturday, Miss Irma H. Heyer of Elizabeth, will lead a six-mile afternoon ramble in the Watchung Reservation. The group will meet at the Trillium Nature and Science Center parking area at 1:30 p.m.

On Sunday, Leonard Gohs of Essex will lead an eight-mile hike in the area of Lake Sebago in Harriman State Park, New York. The hikers will meet at the administration building of the Union County Park Commission, Wainwance Park, Elizabeth, at 8:30 a.m.

Further information concerning the above hikes may be obtained by contacting the recreation department of the Union County Park Commission.

Readiness session set

Union College, Cranford, will sponsor its eighth annual College Readiness Program this summer for high school graduates planning to attend college next fall. It was announced by Prof. Elmer Wolf, acting dean.

The College Readiness Program will open Thursday, June 25, and will continue daily Monday through Friday, until Wednesday, July 23.

The major aim of the College Readiness Program is to reduce the high attrition rate among college freshmen. Prof. Wolf said he pointed out that nearly half of all the young men and women who enter the program each year do not complete the four-year program. "A significant number of freshmen do not make it," he said, "because they cannot adapt to a college situation — even though they have the intellectual ability to do college work."

The College Readiness Program is designed for this group. The program's emphasis is on basic study skills, an orientation to college life and a quick review of the basic skills of reading, English composition and science.

Students attending the annual winter reunion of the College Readiness Program indicated they found the program of significant value in their adjustment to college.

The College Readiness Program carries no college credit and is limited to 100 high school graduates who plan to attend college for the first time in the fall.

FAMILY POT-LUCK

A good fruit salad combines mandarin orange sections with coconut, pineapple bits, Marshmallow cherries and sour cream. Allow to stand 3 hours in refrigerator before serving.

Add a bit of mincemeat to cranberry-orange relish for a novel taste treat.

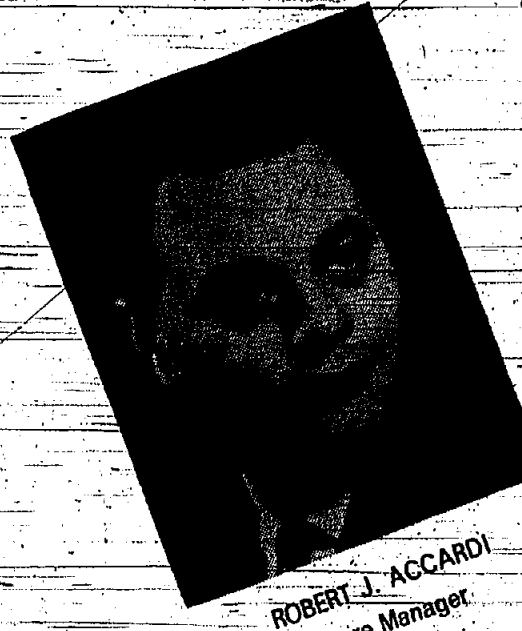

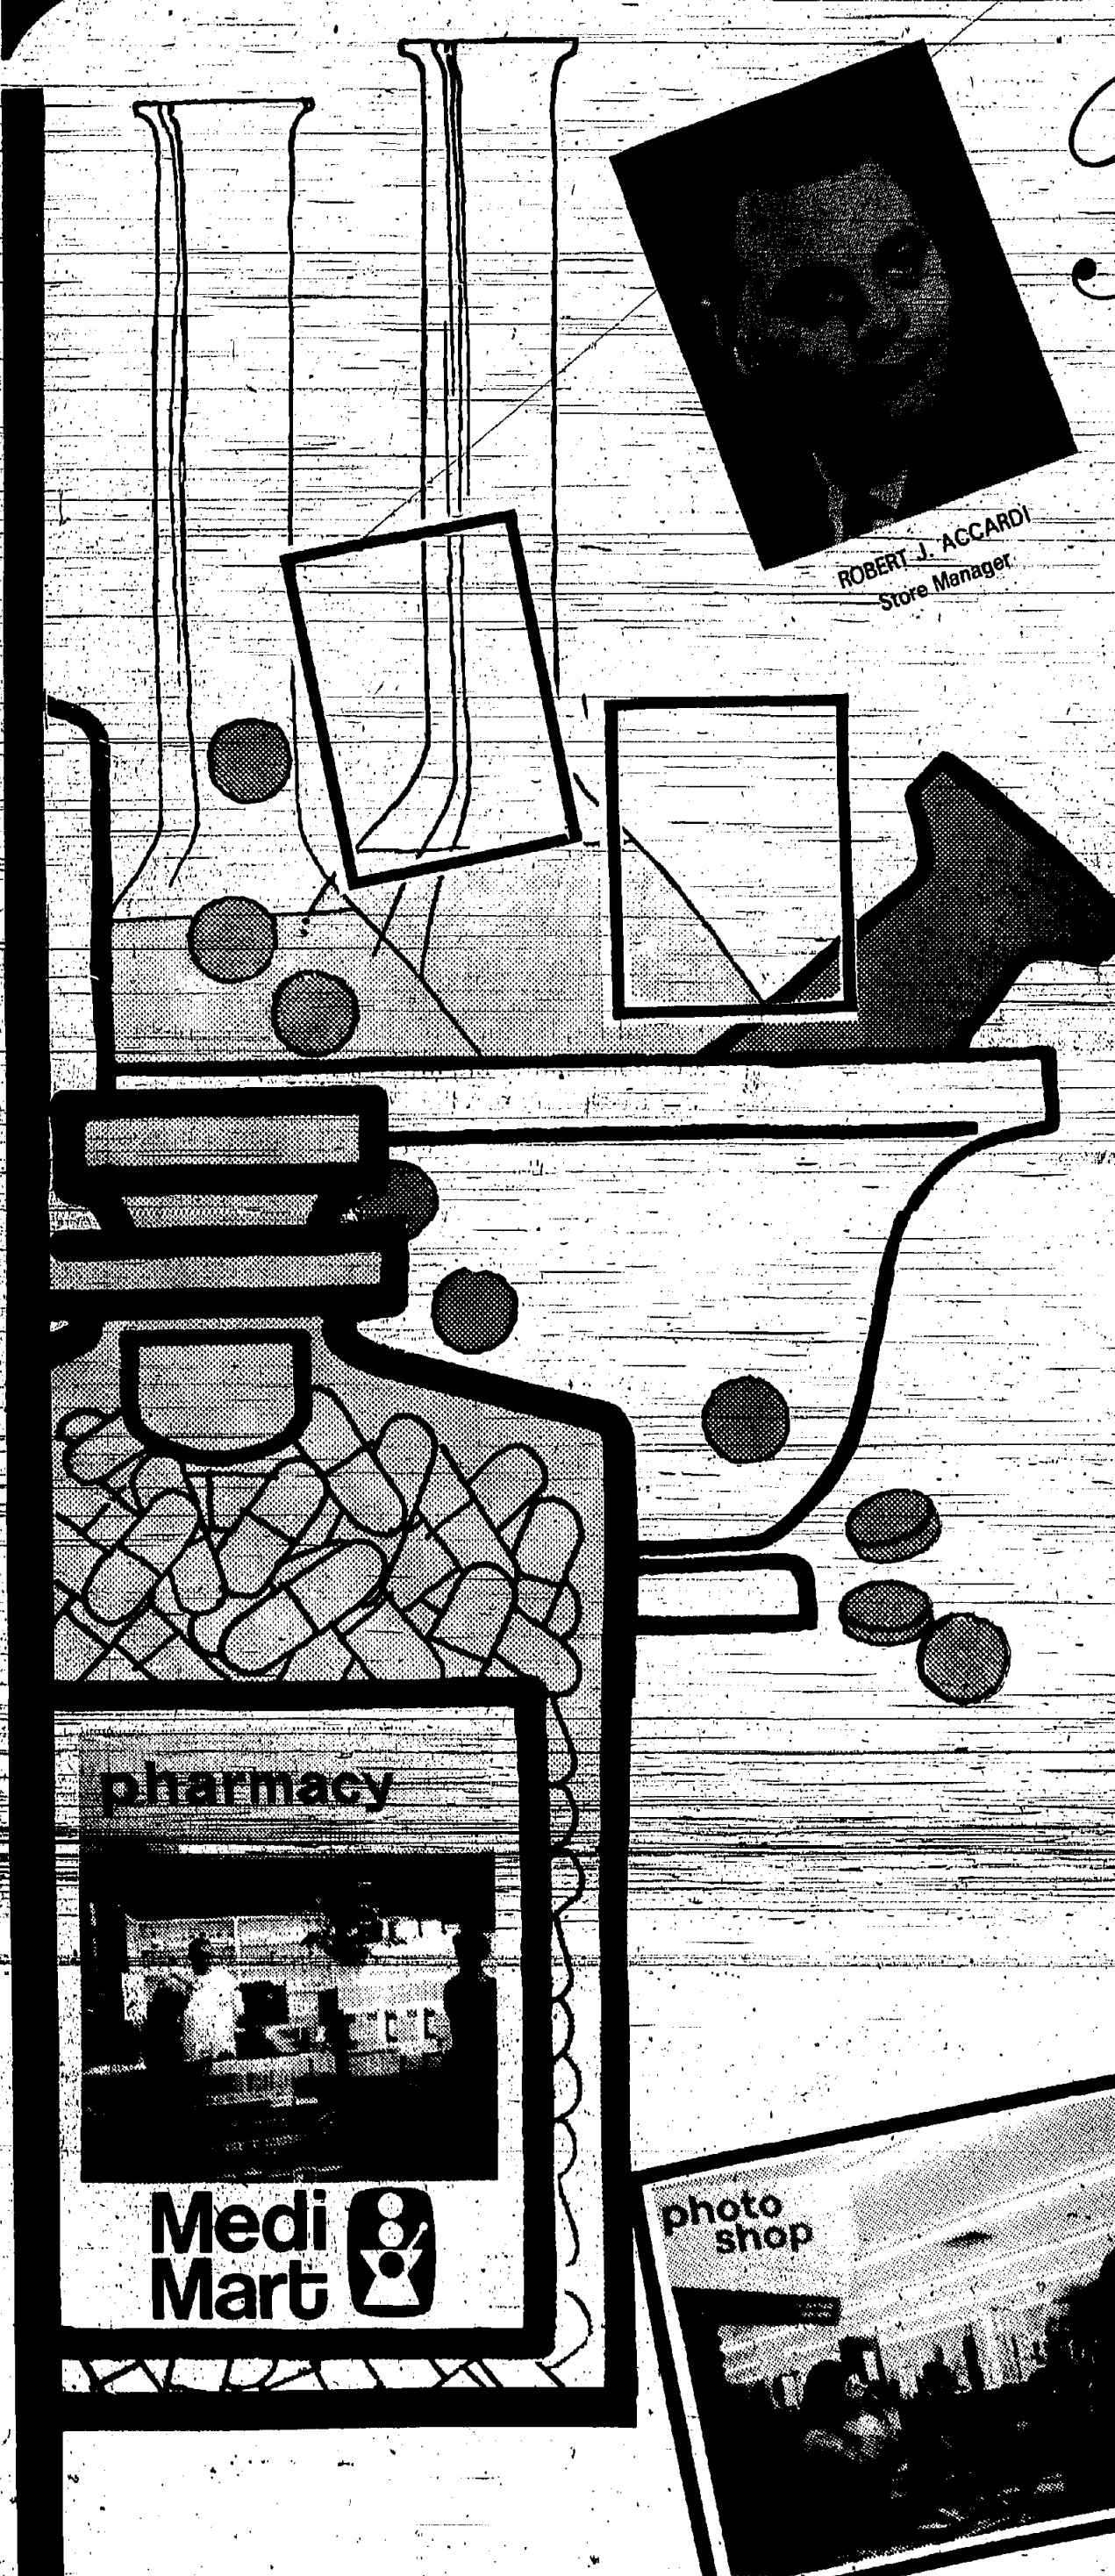

If you change in using pre-sifted flour, do not pack it down in the cup when measuring. Never shake the cup to level the flour as this packs the sifted flour.

On melba toast rounds or square crackers, place a thin slice of tomato, a teaspoon of flaked Norway sardines, and top with a thin slice of cheddar cheese. Season to taste. Broil until cheese is melted. Serve hot.

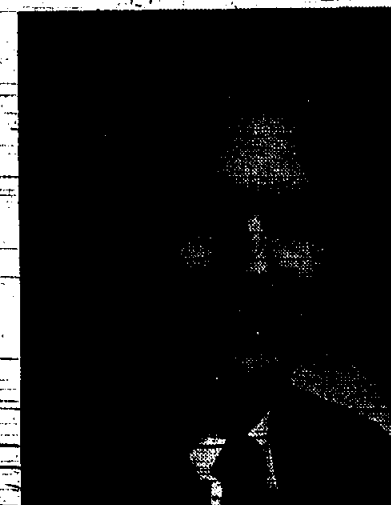

Try frozen Louisiana yams for a taste treat. They are available as slices in 1-1/4 and 1-1/2 pound packages, with thawing and cooking directions on each label. Frozen candied yams are also available.

Cucumber-Sardine Salad
(4 servings)
Ingredients:
1 (3-3/4 oz.) can Norway sardines (18 to 20 Sardines, average per can)
1 large cucumber (with rind), sliced
1 head of Iceberg lettuce, pimento, cut into strips watercress (garnish)
dressing
salt, pepper to taste

On a salad or luncheon plate, arrange a ring of sliced cucumbers (leave the rind on for additional color). In the center of the cucumber ring, arrange a bed of finely chopped lettuce leaves. Cover lettuce with 5 or 6 whole drained Norway sardines. Garnish with watercress strips of red pimento and a sprig of fresh watercress. Chill and serve with choice of dressing.

Cub Scouts honored at buffet dinner

Springfield Cub Pack 70 held its annual Blue and Gold dinner on Feb. 25 in the Parish House of the First Presbyterian Church. Alfred Stadler acted as banquet chairman. The program was opened by Dr. R. A. Constantian, cubmaster.

The Rev. Joseph T. Hourani, pastor, presided over the occasion.

After a buffet dinner and a song period, Dr. Constantian introduced the den mothers, assistant den mothers, members of the pack committee and all of the cubs.

Awards were then presented to the winners of the light bulb sale contest. First prize was won by Mark McCourt; second prize, by Wade Hagerty, and third prize, by John Powell. Individual smaller trophies were awarded to the other Cub Scouts who participated in the contest. Achievement awards and one year pins also were presented.

Handwriting book review

"Handwriting Analysis," a book by M. N. Bunker, will be discussed by professional reviewer Dorothy Landvater at the Summit YWCA's Wednesday morning Kaffeeklatsch next week.

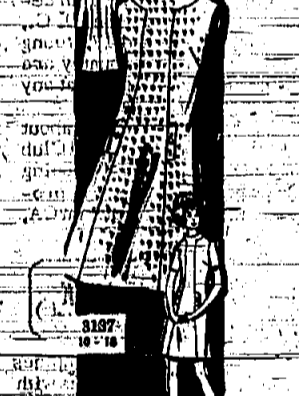

Mrs. Landvater, who returns to Kaffeeklatsch for the fifth consecutive year, will demonstrate how handwriting analysis, which is called the science of grapho-analysis, helps to determine character traits. "Do your faults outweigh your good points?" "Do you anger quickly?" "Are you dependable?" are a few of the questions that women in her audience will be able to reveal to themselves through analysis of their own handwriting.

Mrs. Landvater has been traveling and reviewing books in many cities and states. This year she was listed on the same circuit as Earl Wilson, Roland Holgate, and Bennett Cerr in Richmond, Va.

Kaffeeklatsch will begin at 9:45 a.m. with a half-hour coffee time. The hour-long program will follow. Concurrent activities for preschoolers include dance and rhythm classes, while baby-sitting is available for children 13 months and over.

Further information about the current program or future ones may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Allan G. Ballard, program director, at the YWCA, 278-4242.

Deaf and blind children learn not to shut out world

A four-year-old girl sat at a table in her classroom at the Institute of Child Study at Newark State College, Union, and slid a small round object over a box with variously-shaped openings on top until the object dropped into a round hole.

"Eileen!" She lifted the laughing youngster high in the air, swinging her in wide circles.

"Eileen is one of four children in a preschool class for children who are close to being totally deaf and blind. She wears tiny glasses with thick lenses and a hearing aid in each of her ears, but these devices do not help much. Little Theresa Cornacchia, the special teacher for the New Jersey Commission for the blind, who teaches the class three mornings a week, assisted by students from the Department of Special Education at the college. This is the first year of operation for the class, the first of its kind in the state.

Miss Cornacchia holds Eileen's hand to her mouth when she speaks so that the child will feel sound vibrations. Used repeatedly, this device and endless patience may some day mean by which Eileen learns to speak.

"Swinging the child in the air she rewards her for manipulating her toy correctly. The children are rewarded immediately for successful attempts to cope with the physical world, and a brick, swinging in the air seems to be the reward they like best.

"The task of the dark-haired young teacher is to awaken the youngsters to the existence of the world around them. Deprived of stimuli that affect most children, their minds turn inward so that, left to their own devices, they will amuse themselves with rhythmic gestures or by staring fixedly at a light. Their heads turn up toward the ceiling lights, and Miss Cornacchia patiently redirects their heads down again, redirecting their attention to some form of activity. She touches them gently, and reaches out to other children to touch them.

When the class began, John could not walk without groping for pieces of furniture; so Miss Cornacchia wrapped a soft scarf around his chest and under his arms and held him firmly on his feet until he acquired the self-confidence to stand alone. John's mother says he has begun to take an interest in life since he started school.

Peter, one of the newer children, has lived for two years with foster parents who have four school-age children of their own. The first two years of his life had been spent in a hospital, where he learned to walk and talk; he never learned to know anyone.

"We took him into our lives because he needed us, but he has done as much for us as we have for him," his foster mother says. "He taught the older children how to share and how to love. When he learns to do something new, they get so excited that they have to tell their friends and teachers all about it."

Dennis is the fourth child in the class. His mother says that, although he hasn't been with the group for very long, he is happier on days he comes than on days he doesn't. "Children like this tend to be passive, so that's a good sign," she says.

The severe handicaps of these children are partially offset by the fact that they are affectionate, well-behaved and easily liked by adults and other children. Their mothers agree that they do not present a disruptive problem, just the problem of keeping them busy.

Miss Cornacchia is determined to help them do just that.

Panther Valley project: scenic, huge, imaginative

Panther Valley, an $85-million project on almost 2,000 acres in Allamuchy, will be the site for approximately 1,000 homes and 1,000 apartments, according to its sponsor, Frank H. Taylor and Son, Inc., a real estate and residential development organization from East Orange.

Individually styled houses starting at $52,000 and apartments ranging from $160 to $400 were planned by three well-known architects: Delnoce Whitney Gouber, Royal Harry Willis and Walter C. Pfeiffer, each a specialist in his own field of Colonial, traditional and modern design.

Built in the scenic countryside surrounded by the Allamuchy Mountain range, on the former Thomas Fortune Ryan estate, the project will include an 18-hole golf course designed by Robert Trent Jones, a $1,000,000 Colonial clubhouse, a community meeting house and a tennis recreation hall. There will be three swimming pools, tennis courts, riding stables and scenic walks through a newly created wooded state park.

A total energy plant will provide electricity independent of utilities. There will be a multi-denominational church. The developers are adding a wing to the local school building for the community children even before a single family has moved into the area.

Jerry Goldman of the Columbia Lumber and Millwork Co. of Springfield and Branchburg is supervising the supply and detail work connected with providing a huge number of Cascardio windows and doors. He and an associate work closely with the architects and builders on installation schedules. "Such service and availability in today's building business is a rarity," says Bob Kampf, one of the project building supervisors.

'Car cannibals' eat unlocked cars

High profits and low risks have made stealing cars an exceedingly enjoyable occupation for the "car cannibals."
If the present rate of auto thefts continues, it's likely that one million American automobiles will be stolen by 1973! This warning was issued this week by Joseph A. Ayres, New Jersey's representative for the Allstate Motor Club.

An "inside the car" job is getting to be quite the thing among the thieves. About 90 percent of the cars that were reported stolen in 1967 and when finally located were stripped of valuable parts.

To make it tough for the "car cannibals," the Allstate Motor Club advises motorists to:

1. Never leave keys in the ignition. Always lock the car doors and pocket the key.
2. Never leave bulky packages or clothing in plain sight when the car is parked.

3. When leaving the car parked for long periods of time, such as several days, have someone check on it periodically. Leave the parking brake set when parking and remember to put the car in gear or park position. (This helps prevent the car from being towed away.)

Irvington Class of '59 plans April 26 reunion

A 10th reunion dinner-dance will be held by the 1959 graduating class of Irvington High School on April 26 at the Manor House, 1000 N. 10th St. The dinner-dance will include a concert hour, dinner and dancing.
All members of the class of '59 have been invited to attend. Further information may be obtained from Jean Passafiume Santoro at 687-0885 or Rose Gillette Tomaro at 762-0083.

4. Never leave your driver's license, car registration, or certificate of title in the glove compartment. (With these credentials thieves can easily transfer the title to a bona fide purchaser.)
5. When taking possession of a new car, note the car key's serial number and then deface the number on the key itself. Also scratch identifying marks on the inside of hub caps to aid in identifying them later if stolen and recovered.

6. It helps to hide identification somewhere in the car, as it will be a great aid in your efforts to identify the car if observed.

7. Check the vehicle identification number plate frequently to see if it has been stolen. If so, report it to the police.

8. Never leave the engine running, even for a "quick stop" at the cleaners.

Prices up again in January, Labor Department reports

WASHINGTON — Prices rose in January at both wholesale and retail levels, the United States Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has announced. Preliminary data for February foreshadow a further advance in wholesale prices, but at a rate considerably under that of January.

The Consumer Price Index went up 0.3 percent to 124.1 (1957-59 equal 100) in January. This increase was smaller than the average monthly advance last year, but it left the index 4.6 percent above its January 1968 level.

associated with automobile operation, home-ownership and medical care were chiefly responsible for the increase. Food prices also went up considerably more than usual for January. These increases were partially offset by lower prices for apparel and for new and used cars.

The Wholesale Price Index rose 0.8 percent in January — its largest monthly increase in almost three years. Industrial commodities advanced at the fastest rate since August 1956 (0.6 percent) influenced chiefly by price increases for metals and lumber. Basic products rose 1.5 percent and processed foods and feeds went up 1.1 percent — well above the seasonal rate. At 110.7 (1957-59 equal 100), the All Commodities Wholesale Price Index was 3.3 percent above a year earlier.

Preliminary data point to a 0.3-percent increase in the February Wholesale Price Index. Industrial commodities continued to advance, but at a more moderate rate than in January.

The January rise in consumer prices equaled that of a year ago, and was considerably larger than the average for the month during the preceding 10 years. Costs of consumer services averaged 0.7 percent higher in January, led by a sharp increase in automobile insurance premiums (particularly in New York) and boosts in conventional mortgage interest charges as well as in taxes, insurances, and repair costs on owned homes.

Larger-than-seasonal increases for meats and eggs boosted food prices an average of 0.7 percent in January. Prices of fresh fruits and vegetables also averaged higher, but their 0.9 percent increase was less than usual for the month.

Apparel prices declined as a result of seasonal clearance sales on winter clothing, but the drop was somewhat less than usual.

The steep rise for industrial commodities in January brought the index to 110.9 (1957-59 equal 100), 2.9 percent above a year earlier, causing well over half of the total advance in the wholesale price index. Although two commodity groups (metals and lumber and wood products) accounted for about two thirds of the overall industrial increase, price advances were more widespread than in recent months. Increases for steel mill products and steel scrap, nonferrous metals and a wide range of metal products accounted for more than 40 percent of the total advance for industrial goods. The metals index registered the largest monthly increase in more than 10 years.

The advance for farm products principally reflected higher prices for livestock, live poultry, fresh and dried fruits and vegetables, grains and eggs. Meats, poultry and fish increased more than seasonally, accounting for close to 90 percent of the rise for processed foods and feeds.

More than 630,000 workers will receive cost-of-living wage increases based on the January Consumer Price Index.

College to mark its fortieth year

Jersey City State College is making preparations to celebrate its 40th year of existence. Although founded in 1927, J.C. State as the New Jersey State Normal School — opened its doors for the first time on Sept. 12, 1929. The date was just a month before the famous "Black Friday" disaster on Wall Street. The first student body consisted of 386 students — 382 of them women.

Since those early beginnings, the college has grown by leaps and bounds, and now has more than 8,200 day and over 3,000 evening students. Dr. James Mullen, president, said a series of events during the 1969-70 school year will be presented to mark the anniversary. The college will print a brochure in connection with the 40th anniversary.

1968 property damage loss can be deducted at tax time

By MABEL G. STOLTE, County Home Economist
If this winter's snow or other natural troubles are' raining havoc with your house or grounds, don't forget that part of your loss can be regained through income tax casualty deductions.

First thing to remember, of course, is that you will soon be determining the extent of the tax you must pay by April 15 on your 1968 income. This means you are concerned now only with those losses you have incurred up to December 31, 1968. Losses incurred since New Year's Day will be figured next year. In time for you to file your 1969 return by April 15, 1970.

There's a chance, too, that the damage incurred before the end of December won't make itself known or won't be repaired until 1969. No matter. The determining factor is when the damage occurred.

The deduction will be allowed for the year 1968 provided you can show it happened before the end of last year. This can be proved by a receipt from the contractor or by a check book showing the date the damage was incurred.

If you don't discover damage incurred during 1968 until after April 15, 1969, in a summer house, for example, when you have filed your 1968 return, never mind. For the tax authorities will allow you to file an amended 1968 return, and grant you a tax refund if you are entitled to it because of this newly discovered damage.

The losses on which you may take deductions this April, remember, are those incurred any time during 1968. So make sure you go all the way back to January 1, 1968.

Purchasing power drops in January for rank-and-file

WASHINGTON — The purchasing power of the nation's rank-and-file workers declined in January, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported.

The decrease resulted from a rise in consumer prices, higher Social Security taxes effective in January, and the usual January decline in the work week.

Gross weekly earnings edged down to $110.63 in January, 12 cents lower than in December. The decline was due to a three-tenths-of-an-hour decrease in average weekly hours, which more than offset the 2-cent gain in hourly earnings. After adjustment for prices increases, gross weekly earnings were 0.4 percent below the December level but up 2.7 percent from a year ago. While gross real earnings rose in trade and finance, insurance, and real estate, they declined in mining, contract construction, and manufacturing.

Spendable earnings, or after tax pay, averaged $96.97 in January for the worker with three dependents, an over-the-month drop of $5.30 or 0.5 percent. Most of this drop was the result of higher Social Security taxes.

Real spendable earnings — take-home pay expressed in 1957-59 dollars to eliminate the effect of price changes — fell by 0.9 percent in January for the worker with three dependents. At $78.14, real spendable earnings were 2.2 percent lower than the all-time high established in September of 1968. All major industry divisions reported over-the-month declines in real spendable earnings. Compared to a year ago, real spendable earnings in January 1969 were up 1.0 percent.

Nonfarm jobs drop 54,200; decline is called seasonal

Estimates prepared by the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry put non farm payroll employment at 2,422,400 in mid-January, about 54,200 under the December level. This decline was due largely to a seasonal decrease in the number of workers employed in wholesale and retail trade. Compared with January 1968 nonagricultural jobholding was up 47,300, or 1.8 percent. The department's estimates are based on a survey of 1,000 establishments.

Manufacturing employment dropped by 7,700 to 855,700 in January, with losses occurring in both durable and nondurable goods. The decline in durables was mostly the result of a 3,800 drop in miscellaneous manufacturing (toys). The balance of the decline was attributable to layoffs and strikes in autos, clay and glass, and non-electrical machinery.

Nonmanufacturing employment was estimated to be 1,566,700, down seasonally by about 46,500 from mid-December. Seasonal layoffs in retail trade dropped employment in that industry by about 25,600 to an estimated 367,000. General merchandise, which dropped 15,300, accounted for the major portion of the retail loss. Compared with January 1968 retail trade was up 17,300 and wholesaling and trade combined increased 10,000.

Construction dropped sharply in January by 10,700 to 109,200, this was still 4,100 above the same time last year. Also contributing to the over-the-month nonmanufacturing job decrease were drops of 3,700 in service and miscellaneous, 800 in finance, insurance, and real estate, and 700 in government. A dock strike offset the effect of a slight gain in electric, gas and sanitary services, to drop transportation and public utilities 4,600 to 162,400. All in all for nonmanufacturing industry groups showed increases compared with January 1968, except for transportation and public utilities which showed an over-the-year decrease attributable to the strike.

Average weekly earnings of factory production workers dropped 87 cents to an estimated $129.51 in mid-January, reflecting a shorter average workweek. Weekly hours averaged 40.6 in January, down seasonally by almost a half hour from December. Average hourly earnings increased one cent to $3.19. Most major industry groups experienced relatively small changes over the month. The largest changes in weekly earnings were a $9.00 increase in furniture and fixtures due primarily to a longer workweek and a $7.00 decrease in primary metals due to a cutback in overtime hours in rolling mills. Compared with a year ago, weekly earnings were up almost seven dollars, or about 5.5 percent. The workweek was slightly longer this year and average hourly earnings were $0.16 higher.

Seton raises rates to $40 per credit

Seton Hall University, South Orange, will raise basic undergraduate tuition rates from $35 to $40 per credit for an overall increase of $160 per year effective May 15. The details of the increase were outlined in a memorandum released by Bishop John J. Dougherty, president.

The average fulltime undergraduate student takes a credit load of 16 per semester of 32 per year. Including current fees the average undergraduate cost will rise from a current $1,240 to $1,400 per year. The last previous increase was made in May of 1967. Other increases approved by the University Board of Trustees will see undergraduate nursing credits go from $37 to $42; School of Law from $40 to $48; graduate science and mathematics credits from $45 to $50; and graduate credits in all other areas from $37 to $45.

In making the announcement Bishop Dougherty stated, "The trustees decided to raise tuition only after a careful and pro-

Second chance for dropout mothers Rutgers grad students offer tutoring program

A young married Newark woman is getting a second chance to earn a high school diploma because four graduate students at Rutgers University in Newark "give a damn."

Mrs. Louise Boyd, 21, is hard at work studying for the second part of a high school equivalency examination that she will take Saturday. The first part was given last Saturday and she and nine other high school drop-outs all black women with children and family obligations--are being tutored individually by four white graduate students at Rutgers Newark's Zoology and Physiology Department in Boyden Hall each week from Monday to Friday.

Speaking for herself--but expressing the sentiments of the other women--Mrs. Boyd said:

"I'm doing this to get my high school diploma. Then I want to go on to Rutgers for a B.A. and a master's degree." Mrs. Boyd, who quit Central Evening High School in the 10th grade when she was married, said she hopes to become a social worker. "I don't think I could have done it without them (the graduate students)," Mrs. Boyd said. "If I had returned to regular high school, it would have taken me two years to finish, and I probably would have lost interest. Here, they crammed two years of high school into six or seven months."

THE TUTORING PROGRAM, according to Edward Saiff of Newark, one of the graduate student tutors, was launched in wake of the death of Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King last spring.

On the night Dr. King was slain in Memphis, Saiff and several graduate students--by coincidence--had attended a meeting at Bedford House, a neighborhood youth house off Springfield Avenue in the midst of Newark's black ghetto, to arrange with an aide of Dr. King to have the civil rights leader address the Rutgers Newark student body.

During the meeting, Saiff said, the graduate students were asked what school they represented and when they said Rutgers in Newark, "the people at Bedford House didn't even know the name of Rutgers."

Moreover, Saiff said, they were told there was nothing that the university could do for them to improve their lives.

"We, on the other hand, felt that as university students, we could show them that the university was interested in them and could help them. In effect," Saiff said, "that we give a damn."

The graduate students suggested they would be willing to tutor those persons who had been forced to cut short their high school education, but who were willing to resume their studies in order that they could obtain a high school diploma and possibly go on to higher education.

THROUGH THE AID of a member of the Volunteer in Service To America (VISTA), who works in the Bedford Street area, five women were "enrolled" in the initial tutorial program that began last spring.

Classes are held during the day, with one instructor working with two and three students at a time. Courses include remedial reading, algebra, English grammar, physics, chemistry, biology and American and European history.

Instructions are entirely free, with books, paper and other supplies furnished by the instructors. Transportation also is provided by the instructors without cost.

In addition to Saiff, the instructors include Richard Graham of Fort Lee; Tony Miller of Newark, and Leslie P. Garner of New Brunswick.

Half of the women currently receiving instructions were referred to the program by Mrs. Inge Gambe of Verona, an assistant to the dean of students at Rutgers Newark, who is keeping an eye peeled for other candidates who might be interested in joining the class.

Prediction for NCE grads of 1972: starting salaries of $11,500 a year

Freshmen who entered Newark College of Engineering in September of 1968 can look forward to starting salaries of about $11,500 when they graduate three and a half years from now.

The brow-raising annual starting salary for the young engineering graduate just joining industry is not phenomenal but just a sign of the times, according to Prof. James A. Lubin, director of placement at NCE. He qualified his projection of salaries only with the expectation of no substantial shift in economic trends.

"Our records for the past 15 years, covering 1953 through 1968, disclose a 100 percent increase for NCE graduates," Lubin said. "While the rate of increase has varied from year to year, the average jump has been about eight percent."

County-wide group for United Fund organized for large industrial drive

Formation of a county-wide United Fund organization, designed to improve fund-raising efforts for all agencies serving Union County communities, was announced this week by Christian A. Hansen Jr., manager of the Bayway Plant of Enjay Chemical Co. in Linden and chairman of the activation committee of the new Commerce and Industry United Fund of Union County Area, Inc.

The new organization will solicit businesses in the county with 200 or more employees, and will coordinate contributions from industry to local funds for local agencies. The 11 existing funds, all of which have approved the plan, will continue local operations. They will solicit smaller businesses, professional people and individual residents of the areas they serve and budget for local agencies, Hansen said.

Immediate goal of the Union County Area fund is organization of a campaign next fall to solicit contributions from large businesses and their employees on an in-plant basis, he said.

"The prospect for acceptance of our program is bright," Hansen said. "Our activation committee includes representatives from major employer's, organized labor, participating agencies and the existing United Funds. This indicates we can count on support from leaders in United Fund activities, and we firmly believe the public will welcome the benefits we anticipate."

Hansen listed the benefits resulting from a county-wide program as follows:

- Greater incentive for large businesses to make substantial company contributions, because part of their contributions will now go beyond local fund areas into other communities where their employees reside;
- Increased giving by individual employees to company in-plant solicitations because the communities where they live will benefit as well as those where they work;

- Growth of payroll deduction plans among companies, so that employees may budget their contributions;
- Greater convenience for county-wide or multi-community agencies because they will deal with one budget committee instead of several;
- Broader service and solicitation in communities which now lack a local United Fund.

Hansen said that the new organization will be protected against a loss in financial support through allocations made to the local funds which support them. "The local agencies stand to benefit as much as everyone else from the expected increase in contributions," Hansen declared.

A two-year study, involving United Fund and agency personnel as well as a broad cross section of contributors, provided the guidelines for establishment of the Commerce and Industry United Fund of Union County Area. According to Hansen, the new organization is a "logical outgrowth of the entire United Fund raising movement, which arose originally from a need for coordinating the efforts of many agencies into one public appeal, rather than duplicating volunteer and staff effort." He added that county-wide United Fund activities in both Monmouth and Morris Counties had met with great success.

Local United Funds which have voted to support the county-wide program include those serving Berkeley Heights, Cranford, Eastern Union County, Mountainside, Plainfield, Rahway, Scotch Plains, Springfield, Summit, New Providence, Union, and Westfield.

Vice chairmen of the activation committee are Jerome H. Bentley, Jr., contributions manager, Merck & Co., Inc., Rahway; William

M. Ellis, vice president, National State Bank, Plainfield; Robert A. Meyers, assistant to president and chairman, The Thomas & Betts Co.; Elizabeth Roderic L. O'Connor, vice president, CIBA Corporation, Summit; Arba S. Taylor, staff coordinator, Humble Oil & Refining Co., Linden; Charles A. Walano, president, United Community Services of Eastern Union County, Elizabeth.

Other committee members and incorporators include: Linden - John J. Graham, manager, corporate services, Esso Research & Engineering Company; Christian A. Hansen, Jr., manager, Bayway Plant, Enjay Chemical Company, Mountainside - Gerard S. Dillemu, past president, United Fund of Mountainside; Springfield - Jack H. Stiefelman, president, United Fund of Springfield, Springfield; Union - Donald Bezyen, Summit district manager, Jersey Bell Telephone; Union - Carl A. Herold, president Breeze Corporation, Union.

Cerebral Palsy workers attend national meeting

United Cerebral Palsy Association of Union County has appointed three representatives to attend the national agency's 20th anniversary meeting today, tomorrow and Saturday in Washington, D.C.

James L. Simpson, executive director, announced that Julius R. Pollatschek, president, will be an official delegate of the local association along with Mrs. Arthur Vennert of Cranford and Mrs. Frederick A. Meyer of Westfield. They will join agency leaders from 304 UCPA affiliates from throughout the United States for the three-day conference.

Simpson said the conference, "1949-1969

Foundations for Progress," would provide a springboard for launching the UCPA's new federal legislative program. The program will enable the organization to forcefully bring the needs of people with multiple handicaps to the attention of senators and representatives and others concerned with national programs in health, education and related fields.

A major conference highlight will be the presentation of the organization's 18th UCPA-Max Weinstein Award for significant contribution to research related to cerebral palsy prevention. The award consists of $1,000 and a silver plaque.

Nutrients are essential for growing teenagers

What kind of food habits does your teenage daughter have? Annie L. Sheelan, County Home economist? Dietary studies have shown that teenage girls have the poorest eating practices of any age group.

Since teenage bodies are in an important period of development, girls need more essential nutrients than at any other time of their lives except during the later months of pregnancy.

It is also a time when the girl becomes conscious of her personal appearance, with special attention given to correct weight and a clear complexion. Because of this, she is easily swayed by advertising in which crash diets and magic formulas are featured. It is the mother's responsibility to guide her daughter in choosing what will be best for her health. This includes a good diet.

Each day the teenage girl should have four servings of milk or its equivalent; two or more servings of a good protein source; four servings of fruits and vegetables; and four servings of a grain product. She should avoid a large quantity of candy, soft drinks, potato chips and other high calorie foods that have little nutritional value. Instead, for snacks she should choose fruit, fruit juices, cheese and other similar foods.

Motivation seems to be the difficult challenge faced in getting the teenage girl to eat a balanced diet. The following pointers may help.

Encourage girls to help with meal planning and preparation. This will help stimulate interest toward the meal.

Point out that a feeling of well-being and vigor, which leads to a pleasing personality, healthy skin and hair, and a total attractive appearance are the results of a well-balanced diet.

If the teenage girl has a professional help for her from a physician.

Encourage an inactive teenage girl to participate in sport activities rather than following a strict diet that is often unsuccessful and sometimes even dangerous.

If your teenage daughter will be a bigger than ever fashion item for spring and summer, says Carolyn F. Yukus, Senior County Home economist. The current popularity of the pants suit with a fuller cut will entice more women than ever to indulge in the pants craze.

Although the skin-tight fit of pants is passe' and the fuller cut through the crotch and legs is less revealing, a good fit is still necessary to look well in pants.

Pants are not difficult to make, but they are hard to fit. Therefore, a pants-making project should include making a trial pair first to determine what alterations are needed.

The criteria for fit are: the waist should be comfortably snug, the hips should be roomy enough for ease in sitting, the thigh area should not bind, and the crotch area must not be too tight or too loose.

In selecting a pattern for pants, determine the size by your own waist and hip measurements. If your hip measurement is larger than that shown for the hip on the pattern, then select the size according to your hip measurement rather than your waist measurement and adjust the waist line.

It may be easier for some to make a trial pair of slacks out of inexpensive material to more easily determine what, if any, alterations are needed. For others a flat measurement check will point out the alterations needed. To do this you will need measurements of the length of crotch, fullest part of the thigh, calf of leg, and overall length.

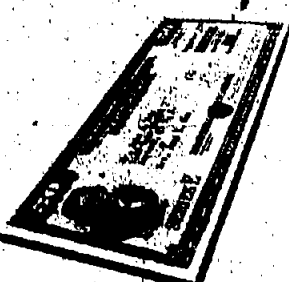

To measure the crotch, sit on a flat, hard chair and measure the distance from your waist to the chair seat. Add 1/2 inch for ease to this measurement. To determine the crotch length on the pattern, draw a horizontal line at right angles to the grain line at the widest part of the front and back pattern pieces.

Compare measurements on pattern from the waist seam line to the length of crotch line. Any discrepancy will have to be adjusted by lengthening or shortening the pattern between the crotch line and the waist line.

To check the width of thigh, measure your thigh at the fullest part. Compare this measurement with the widest part of the pattern at the crotch line.

The length of crotch and width of thigh are important adjustments that assure good fit in pants.

In looking at any piece of furniture, try to lift it. If it is heavy, you can be fairly sure that it is good solid wood. If it is rather light and easy to lift, then it is likely to be either a non-grained wood or inferior veneer.

If possible, turn the piece upside down. The rough unfinished bottom will often reveal the type of wood, the relative age, and interesting grain, if any.

Furniture sales hunt can be fun

Public sales, auctions, antique, garage, white elephant and rummage sales are a few of the many applied opportunities for home furnishings. Carolyn F. Yukus, Senior County Home economist, says these events are not only likely to produce the desired items, but can be the source of interest and enjoyment in the search.

In following the "sales" part of the real fun is the hunt. This means that it may take several months or many contacts before you find the item you are looking for. But during the hunt you meet and talk with many people, learn more about the area, and gain new knowledge about various things.

If one is concerned only with new items of furniture, or determined to have everything match within a room, then the best procedure is to go to a reputable furniture dealer.

On the other hand, if one has determined that more storage space is needed in a given room, or a cabinet is needed for the home-bull stereo set, or other accessories would add atmosphere to a room, then a whole array of alternatives open up when you follow the sales.

The following guidelines may be helpful in evaluating used home furnishing items. Is the piece of good basic design that pleases you? Is it sturdy and solid? If parts are missing or broken, can you replace them yourself or must you pay to have missing parts made and replaced? Do you have the time and patience to refinish a piece of furniture? If you must pay

Suburban Mothers present funds for room in Children's Hospital

The Suburban Mothers of Twins and Triplets Club, who volunteer their services for the benefit of young patients at Children's Specialized Hospital, Westfield-Mountainside, have provided a completely equipped sound-proof room for the treatment of children with speech difficulties through successful fund-raising efforts.

This week a check for $500 in partial payment for the room was presented to E. Milton Staub, MD, administrator and medical director of Children's Specialized Hospital. The presentation was made by Mrs. Maurice Lopinoso, president of the club, and Mrs. Frank A. Kelly of Mountainside, Mrs. Kelly served as chairman of the benefit fashion show which the club held last fall to raise funds for the hospital.

After the presentation, the members were escorted on a tour of the hospital by Mrs. Charles W. Anderson, president of the hospital's board of managers, to inspect the new speech therapy department and to view the plaque designating their presentation of the room.

The club, which was organized in 1965, now has 52 members.

Children's Specialized Hospital has complete, fully accredited medical and rehabilitation facilities which serve about 50 children suffering from Rheumatic fever, cerebral palsy, orthopedic conditions, accident disabilities and other long-term ailments. The hospital was founded in 1891 and until 1962 was known as the Children's Country Home. It had been known as a rehabilitation center for young-polio victims, and gradually broadened its services to include highly specialized treatment of any long-term ailment in a child, and occasionally in adults.

Use proper size fuse

When replacing a blown out fuse, be careful to use the right size. A fuse that is too large may allow a conductor to carry an overload which could create a fire when the wire becomes too hot.

CLOTHES CARE COMMENTS

by SAM MANN (Diamond Cleaners)

EASTER FINERY
Regardless of the weather, one trip to your neighborhood shopping center will convince you that Easter is almost here. And if you've been reading the ads, you may very well feel that this is YOUR year to introduce the miracle of permanent press into your family's wardrobe.

A word of warning, however. Alterations are all but impossible. You can't let a hem down or change a seam because the shape of the garment has been locked in. If you want to shorten pants, it will be necessary to cut off the cuff, or trim the excess fabric from the leg, then sew the cuff back on, since the old cuff mark cannot be removed.

Many lighter weight fabrics may prove to be a disappointment because they simply do not have the body to hold the permanent press finish.

Stains are often difficult to remove, and chlorine bleach should not be used at all. So, shop carefully for your family's Easter finery and do take time to read tags and labels closely. A little time spent now will pay off in years of happy wear... just as DIAMOND'S cleaning pays off in continued good looks for any garment.

St. James School students visit observatory at college

Seventh and eighth grade students at St. James School, Springfield, recently visited the Sperry Observatory at Union College, Cranford, as part of the college project, "Operational Astronomy: The Earth and Beyond." They heard a short lecture on astronomy and space sciences, including several demonstrations, and were shown how the 12-1/2-inch reflector and the six-inch refractor telescopes are used at the Sperry Observatory. The 120 students were accompanied by Thomas Lombardi, Mrs. Evelyn DeLaurentis, Sister Marie and Mrs. Marge Massina. They are among 12,000 Union County school children who will visit the Sperry Observatory during the 1968-69 school year for lectures and demonstrations in astronomy and space sciences. The project is sponsored by the Cranford public school system in cooperation with Union College and Amateur Astronomers, Inc., and is headed by Dr. James M. Fisher, III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. More than 4,500 Cranford public and parochial school children in the kindergarten through the eighth grade visited the Sperry Observatory last year as part of the project, which also includes in-service training programs for teachers and courses for other adults. Mrs. Marjorie Wooster, project director, said the objectives of the project are to broaden and enrich the opportunities for elementary and secondary school students, teachers, and adults in basic astronomical concepts at all levels; to inform and orient them to the implications of space exploration and research; to acquaint them with the instruments and equipment used by professional astronomers; to attract young people to scientific careers, including astronomy; to provide an opportunity for direct observation of the heavens through major observatory instruments; to provide special experiences in astronomy for academically-gifted students; and to assist public and private school systems in introducing or improving the teaching of astronomy and space sciences into their curriculums. The project will be expanded in the 1969-70 academic year to serve public, private and parochial schools in Essex, Middlesex, Morris and Somerset counties as well as those in Union County, Mrs. Wooster reported.

234 poisoning cases treated in '68 at Overlook Hospital

There are few more frightening moments in a mother's life than the dreadful minute she discovers that her child has taken poison. The poison control center at Overlook Hospital is equipped and staffed to help in just such a dread emergency. Last year, 234 poison cases were treated at Overlook's poison control center, a marked increase over the 196 treated the year before. Stocked with more than 100 drugs and antidotes, including those for snake venom and insecticides, the Overlook poison control center is one of 36 such recognized hospital centers in the state. The Overlook emergency room is staffed 24 hours round-the-clock, by experienced physicians and nurses specially trained to know how to deal with poison cases. "If you suspect your child has taken poison, call your doctor, or call the poison control center at Overlook, 273-8400. If you are directed to the hospital, follow instructions calmly and be sure to bring the suspected poison container with you," advises Mrs. Lillie Turley, emergency and clinic supervisor. Each year 500,000 children are poisoned, and 500 of them die. Overlook's poison control center urges parents to observe the following rules: 1. Keep all medicines clearly labeled and safely beyond reach of small children. 2. Never call medicine "candy." 3. Always take medicine in the light, never in the dark, and put away immediately. Don't keep pills (vitamins, tranquilizers, etc.) in your purse around small children. 4. Keep household cleaning agents, lighter fluid, garden insecticides and other potential poisons in high cupboards, well out of reach.

American Legion celebrates 50th anniversary this year

During this year of 1969, members of the American Legion in the United States and abroad are observing the 50th anniversary of its founding. The members of Springfield's Continental Post No. 228 and its Ladies Auxiliary are presenting a series of events, services, and a recounting of accomplishments of their organization. The Springfield American Legion Post, now in its 57th year, and many other legions, have participated in various projects, the first of which is told here. The year was 1918 and a rumor reached the office of Department Commander Herbert H. Blizard that religious services at the U. S. Naval Air Station at Lakehurst were handicapped by a lack of facilities and furnishings. His meeting with the station chaplain, Commander William W. Edel, brought out the fact that while things were not quite as bad as described, they were far from ideal. Commander Blizard decided, and the American Legion State executive committee agreed, that a memorial chapel should be erected to the men who lost their lives in the air services. With this decision, a massive program supported by every Post and Auxiliary Unit in the State of New Jersey was launched. The committee for this drive came upon more than $70,000 needed was in hand and the building, designed by architect John J. B. Jones, was completed on June 26, 1932. The building was constructed rapidly and its style was typical of the church architecture of the regions of France through which the AEF fought in 1917 and 1918. The walls are of stone, with fine timber trusses for the roof. The American Legion Memorial Chapel Association which was set up to handle the entire drive and construction, arranged for the cornerstone laying on Nov. 6, 1932. The chapel was completed shortly thereafter, but due to the depression and a curtailment of personnel at Lakehurst, further work on the interior was brought to a standstill. With the enlargement of the armed forces in 1939, greater activity began at Lakehurst and completion of the chapel became essential. The American Legion Memorial Chapel Association began an active campaign to place the pews and other necessary furnishings. On Sunday, Oct. 26, 1947, the American Legion officially turned over the Cathedral of the Air to the Navy. The stained glass windows in the chapel weave together religious symbolism together with a wealth of aviation legend and history. This makes these windows particularly appropriate in a chapel given as a memorial to men of the air services. Visitors are welcome during normal visiting hours.

Sergeant Bedford presented awards for combat actions

LAKEHURST — Marine Sgt. Walter J. Bedford Jr., son of Mrs. James Ciampa of 340 Mountain ave., Springfield, has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal with Combat V, a Gold Star in lieu of his third Purple Heart, and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry. The presentation of the awards was made during ceremonies at the Naval Air Station, Lakehurst.

Disregarding his own safety, the 21-year-old Marine maneuvered toward the enemy, continuously firing his M-79 grenade launcher, suppressing enemy fire and allowing his fellow Marines to evacuate the wounded and move to a more easily defended position. When the patrol started to return to the base, Sgt. Bedford covered their withdrawal and when the enemy started to pursue his unit, he delivered intense fire upon the enemy soldiers with devastating effectiveness, forcing them to flee in panic and confusion," according to Navy officials.

He received his third Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry for his actions while serving in the same area during the same period of time. The citation from the South Vietnamese Government cites this "outstanding soldier" for his action when his unit clashed with the enemy and "although the firing of the enemy was violent, Sgt. Bedford combined with the Vietnamese troops, killing five of the enemy on the spot and capturing three AK-47 machine guns and much ammunition."

Before entering the service in December 1964, Sgt. Bedford attended Phillipsburg High School.

Station Breaks — By MILT HAMMER

PEARL(S) OF WISDOM — "They say 'flaming eyes' and 'flawin' hands.' Honey, I think they're talking about a horse!" Speaking was Pearl Bailey, relaxing during a break in taping of the Monsanto Night Special, "Carol Channing and Pearl Bailey on Broadway," which airs over ABC-TV, Sunday, March 16 (8:30-9:30 p.m.). The hour, colorcast marks the first time the original and the current "Dolly" will be working together professionally.

Tossing off her shoes and putting her feet up on a chair, Pearl leaned back and smiled as she uttered the above reaction to the countless kind words printed about her performance in the Broadway smash hit musical, "Hello, Dolly!"

"There are two kinds of talent, man-made talent and God-given talent," continued the star. "With man-made talent, you have to work very hard. With God-given talent, you just touch it up once in a while. People ask, 'Pearl, what style do you have?' I say it's God, not style!"

"I'VE NEVER UNDERSTOOD why people don't recognize what they have," she added. "People see God every day; they just don't recognize Him."

After every performance of "Dolly," Pearl Mae comes down the ramp extending her hands to the audience which responds enthusiastically.

"Why do they run up to the stage?" mused Pearl. "What are they seeking?" Then she answered her own question: "Love," she declared. "And with outstretched hands it's given. The young smile and joke; the old look up for hope."

"My husband said to me, 'Honey, you worry too much about people.' I said, 'I don't worry, I CARE!' Many people worry but they don't do anything about it. Whatever has been given must be shared with all; not relished, but shared."

"I see their souls and I hold them gently in my hands and because I love them, they weigh nothing. God has set them there so gently I can enjoy their love."

"To which we can only answer, 'Pearl, honey, the feeling is mutual!'"

The program, which is voluntarily financed by the business organizations and private citizens of Springfield, is entering its 15th year.

big man off the boards all season. Because Margulies at 6-5 is one of the tallest men in the conference, he is able to block many shots and have an overwhelming superiority in rebounding.

Because of the depth on the bench, Coach Ray Vancluse has been able to use two units in some games. Mark Hollander, a sophomore; Bob Janowick, sophomore; Graessle; Charley Foster, junior and Woody Young, junior, specialize in defense while contributing some scoring. All of these players will definitely help the Bulldogs next year.

Program is slated to outline careers in social service

Opportunities for a career in social service work will be the topic of the day at Overlook Hospital on Tuesday, when a special program for high school students will be presented in the Wallace Medical Education Center, starting at 9:15 a.m.

A film presenting different fields of social service work will be shown, after which Overlook's professional social service staff will discuss the various opportunities available in hospital social service work.

The students will meet with a representative from Union County Psychiatric Clinic to learn about out-patient psychiatric social service work. In-patient psychiatric social service work will be presented by Mrs. Barbara Cornwall, Psychiatric Social Service Worker; Mrs. Elizabeth Schofield, full-time social worker, will discuss home health care, assisted by Mrs. Mary J. Mackenzie, case aide, who will touch on school social work and rehabilitation. Lois Carleton, director of Overlook's social service department, and Dr. Mary Strong, will present the fields of general medical social work and also community action.

Students interested may speak to their high school guidance counselors at once to make arrangements for Social Service Day at Overlook. Area schools participating in the Overlook Health Career Program include: New Providence High School, Westfield High School, Park Knoll School, Chatham High School, Millburn High School, Summit High School, Madison High School, Holy Trinity High School, Stanford High School, Jonathan Dayton Regional High School and Gov. Livingston Regional High School.

Mentalist to speak at lodge meeting

Sam Miller, program chairman of the Springfield Men's Lodge of B'nai B'rith, has announced that DeMille the mentalist will address a meeting of the lodge Monday evening at Temple Beth Ahm.

DeMille recently made front page news in Chicago when he predicted accurately on a Monday what the headlines of the Chicago Daily News would be on the following Thursday.

Known only as DeMille, the mentalist has excited the curiosity of some of the foremost names in the entertainment field. Ed Sullivan has said, "DeMille is the foremost mentalist in the field." Victor Borge added, "Fabulous... extraordinary... and good too."
