SPRINGFIELD, NEW JERSEY - THURSDAY, JULY 31, 1969

Regional schools list student totals

The Regional High School District Board of Education this week released projected enrollment figures for students from Springfield, Mountainside and Berkeley Heights in order to help local citizens further understand the expansion plan endorsed by the board last week at its monthly meeting.

The plan, which is expected to be submitted to the voters in a referendum this winter, would send all students from Springfield and Mountainside to Jonathan Dayton Regional in Springfield, all from Berkeley Heights to Gov.

Livingston Regional in Berkeley Heights, all from Kentwood and Garwood to David Berkeley Regional, Kentwood.

The purpose of the distribution, board members stated last week, is to come as close as possible to the principle of equality of size for the four high schools, as stressed this spring by Dr. Henry Kissinger, board consultant, and still send all youngsters from any one community to the same school.

Projected enrollment for Springfield is 1,065 in 1972, 963 in 1975 and 901 in 1980. Anticipated for Mountainside are 761 in 1972, 706 in 1975 and 704 in 1980.

The figures for Berkeley Heights: 1,392 in 1972, 1,530 in 1975 and 1,793 in 1980. All those from Berkeley Heights and Mountainside attend Gov. Livingston, except for Mountainside freshmen, who study at Dayton for a year before completing their high school years at Gov. Livingston.

'Finny' thing happened in all that rain

BY DAVID M. LIEBERFARB

An unscheduled splash party at the Springfield Municipal Building became a fish-eat-Tuesday morning when custodian John Luciano caught a baby trout in the basement.

Workers were mopping, sweeping and squeezing the area — where waters had reached a height of three feet on Monday — when Luciano made his catch.

The three-inch specimen found a new home in a jar of water, and is now alive and well in the possession of Mrs. Malillo, a former contractor. Mrs. Malillo hopes to keep the fish alive for two weeks until her vacation, at which time she will deposit her pet in Lake George, New York.

Rumor has it that action is being taken to make Luciano acquire a fishing license, while the detective bureau is currently investigating reports of an illegal gambling pool on future catches.

ADDING UP the enrollment projections, Gov. Livingston, with all Berkeley Heights and Mountainside students, would have 2,158 pupils in 1972, 2,236 in 1975 and 2,497 in 1980. Without Mountainside, the figures are those listed previously for Berkeley Heights: 1,392 in 1972, 1,530 in 1975 and 1,793 in 1980. Dayton, including all students from both Springfield and Mountainside, would have 1,925 in 1972, 1,669 in 1975 and 1,605 in 1980. Without Mountainside, the Dayton figures would be those already listed for Springfield: 1,065 in 1972, 963 in 1975 and 901 in 1980.

AT ITS MEETING last week at Dayton, the Regional board also adopted a new grievance policy to be followed by students or parents concerned about specific actions of faculty members or representatives of the policy. The board made its decision over strong

Teenagers discuss non-drug problems with former addicts

Problems that concern teenagers, other than drugs, are being discussed between teenagers and rehabilitated addicts at the "Teen Talks" being sponsored by ALERT, a newly-formed citizens' group in Springfield.

Edward Demer, president of ALERT, said the apparent success of the private discussions between the youngsters and the ex-addicts, is that teenagers have found it possible to talk about many problems that they find difficult to discuss with their parents.

The teenagers are being allowed up at the informal discussions are able to talk with someone who can relate to them, Demer said. "The rehabilitated addicts are about the same age and they have many of the same problems."

The "Teen Talks" are being held every Monday and Wednesday evenings at the old recreation center on Caldwell Place. They begin at 8:30.

Demer emphasized that there is no adult supervision during the discussions. "Everything is held on a private, informal basis. In fact, our group never knows who shows up," but what is discussed is evaluated by our professional advisory committee, and the results are incorporated into our continuing program of educating teenagers and adults to the dangers of drug abuse.

Del Vecchio gets Lions district post

Gov. Bernard Sobel of New Jersey District 16-B of the International Association of Lions Clubs has announced the appointment of Springfield Postmaster A.V. Del Vecchio to the district cabinet to serve as deputy governor of Region 3 of District 16-B.

Lions District 16-B, consisting of 65 Lions clubs in Warren, Morris, Essex and Union counties, is divided administratively into eight regions, each administered by a deputy governor. Region 3 includes Lions clubs in Springfield, Kentwood, Union, Hillside, the Twin Boros Club of Roselle-Rosella Park and three clubs in Elizabeth.

Postmaster Del Vecchio has been a member of the Springfield Lions Club for 15 years. He is currently secretary of the club after having served as its president in 1967-1968.

Methodist Church to be host Sunday

Springfield Emanuel Methodist Church will be host for the union service held in cooperation with the First Presbyterian Church of Springfield, beginning this Sunday at 10 a.m. The Methodist Church is located at the corner of Church and Academy Green, one block from Morris Avenue.

The Rev. James Dewart, pastor of the host church, will officiate in his sermon, "The Mirror on the Wall," dealing with the individual's self-image and its effect on interpersonal relations. David Foushees, guitarist who recently graduated from Westfield High School, will be the guest musician for the service, according to Norman Simons, director of music and organist.

Immediately following the service there will be a fellowship period with coffee and buns in the Mundy Room of the Methodist Church. Pastor Dewart will be available to discuss the morning sermon with interested persons.

The ecumenical emphasis of the union services will continue during August with the Rev. Phillip Waters, rector of the Episcopal Church in Mendham, as the guest on Aug. 10, and the Rev. Ronald Miller, associate pastor of Wilson Memorial Church, watching a United Church of Christ minister, on Aug. 24.

Teens to make motion pictures

A new program for the teenagers that the Springfield Recreation Department will inaugurate this year will be the Teen Film Club. The department has purchased a movie camera and is going to add sound equipment.

The plan is to organize a group of teenagers who will form a movie production company to produce original, creative films. This means it will be necessary to have idea men, script writers, actors, musicians, artists, make-up men, a production crew, editors and whatever else is called for to produce a film.

William Wagner, who teaches the photography classes at the Regional Adult School and who has worked in Hollywood and filmed documentaries, will instruct the photographers in the proper use of the equipment.

Any teenagers who live in Springfield and are interested in participating in this activity were urged to leave their names at the recreation office, Sarah Bailey Civic Center, with Mrs. Lillian Johnson or Vincent Plais, recreation director.

International camping 35 Y counselors foreign-born

Of a total of 820 staff members assigned to the five installations of the New Jersey YMHA-VYHA camps at Milford, Pa., and Lake Como, Pa., 35 come from 12 different foreign countries — Israel, England, Ireland, Wales, Switzerland, France, Greece, Belgium, Netherlands, Sweden, Malaysia and Korea, a survey by Matthew Elson, executive director, revealed this week.

"The presence of this sizable contingent from across the seas," Elson said, "imparts something of an international accent to each of the camps and broadens the horizons of each of the campers, giving them some concept through contact with the international counselors of the ways of other people in other lands."

He added that "the infusion of other nations into the Y camp structure has been going on for many years and... proven success as a source of cultural and educational enrichment not only for the children but also for the counselors who become goodwill ambassadors about America and their own people."

"The impact of the counselors from Israel is particularly noticeable," Elson said. Their presence, he said, "reinforces subtly and naturally the camp's program of Jewish content because, as one would expect, the young people are as interested and concerned as their parents in the Jewish state."

He described the international counselors as "a very selective leadership group, not to use the term elite," and said that they were chosen for their camp position only after a very careful sifting process in their respective countries.

"They compare very well with their American counterparts," he noted, "and like them must meet certain educational requirements to be hired — a degree in either social work, education, or psychology, to be a division head, or have completed at least one year of college to be a bunk leader or specialist."

"As a result, the roster of alumni makers includes, alongside the well-known American colleges and universities as the Sorbonne, the Royal College of Surgeons in Paris, Stockholm University, the Biological Institute of Israel, Leed College of Commerce, West Midlands College, Liverpool College of Crafts and Engineering, Brighton College of Education, the London School of Foreign Trade and other equally distinguished."

While many of the international counselors are Jewish, all religions are represented among them — Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox and various Protestant denominations.

A non-profit organization dedicated to the service of the Jewish children of New Jersey, the Y Camps program is now in its 49th season under the sponsorship of the state's Jewish Welfare Board and Federation of Jewish Centers and YVYHA's.

Hughes declares state fitness day

In recognition of New Jersey's ever-growing number of cyclists and joggers, Governor Richard Hughes has proclaimed "Bob Richards Fitness Day in New Jersey" for Thursday, Aug. 14, the day the fitness crusade arrives in the state for a four-day visit.

Richard, who left Los Angeles on June 1 in the interest of national health, is a 43-year-old ordained minister, and the father of three children. His oldest child, Carol, recently presented him with a granddaughter.

The "Bob Richards Fitness Crusade" will reach New Jersey via the Palmyra Bridge from Pennsylvania, and is expected to be greeted across the state by members of jogging and cycling clubs as well as those who enjoy the outdoor exercises individually.

A garden of rare trees, flowers Rutgers continues work of 2 brothers and burn built in the early 1800s and a wooden... who created a garden of rare and beautiful trees and flowers is being carried on by Rutgers University. Last year the State University acquired the Willowood Arboretum near Gladstone, straddling the Morris-Somerset county lines. Rutgers officials hope to develop it into the finest arboretum in the state.

Willowood's history is the story of two brothers who wished to share their love for flowers and trees with the people of the state. In 1908 the brothers, Henry Welles Tubbs and Robert Hamilton Tubbs, purchased the property and began to plant. As word of their activity spread, gardeners and horticulturists began sending them plants, including such rare species as Chinese lace-bark pine, davidia, waterlily-magnolia, and Chinese house-lennon. In 1911, a local farmer sent them a railroad freight car filled with many species of shrubs and trees and some conifers.

The arboretum takes its name from some huge weeping willows near the house. It also includes groves of bamboo, 20 species of dogwood, white paper birches, a hillside covered with wild-ginger, sweet-spiraea trees, and cedars and firs from Algeria.

In all, some 1,500 different species of woody plants are grown on the 30 acres of the arboretum itself and on 110 acres of woodland and fields. Most of the plantings, except for the formal garden near the main house, are situated along informal paths in the woodland areas.

This property also includes the main house, which dates back to the 1700s, a stone cottage...

and a fund-raising drive was started, but was discontinued when World War II broke out. The offer was withdrawn when the death of Robert Tubbs in 1942.

When Henry Tubbs died in 1958, his will specified that Willowood be maintained perpetually as an arboretum and controlled wildlife preserve. Last year, the legal action was completed and Rutgers took title to the 140-acre University committee, headed by Dr. Charles E. Hess, administers Willowood for the University. Dr. Hess is chairman of the department of horticulture and forestry in the College of Agriculture and Environmental Science at Rutgers.

"As the years go by, the collection of native and exotic trees in the arboretum at Willowood will be of great value to the university and to the people of the state," Dr. Hess commented.

"The arboretum has a three-fold purpose," he explained. "It provides a site for research and teaching for the College of Agriculture and the Rutgers College Department of Botany. It also provides the people of the state with both an educational facility and a place to enjoy the beauties of nature."

Landscape architect has been retained by the Willowood committee to combine and extend the present plantings; Long-range plans, according to Dr. Hess, include the construction of a small irrigation lake and a wider entrance road, so that buses can enter the preserve. Plans also call for the arboretum to eventually be open to the public on a regular basis. At present it is open only through special arrangement.

A FEMININE LOOK

(Commentary on a Study Mission from the Atlantic to the Pacific but across the USSR)

by FRIDINA HOWARD

Tenth in a Series
TASHKENT

The city of Tashkent was off in the wilds of Uzbekistan in the middle of the USSR — it is nothing to sneeze at.

It is the capital of the Republic of Uzbekistan and has a population of 1,300,000. It also has nine theatres, one huge and busy opera house, one purple man's bikini, and in the past two years, has had 800-year 800 earthquake shocks.

Even the weather is nothing to sneeze at. While its winters are respectfully moderate at about 43 degrees Fahrenheit on the average, or, as they say in Tashkent, "plus one degree centigrade," its summers are entirely uncivilized. On many a day it gets to be 125 degrees Fahrenheit, and its average is 44 degrees centigrade, or about 110.

The Republic itself has 11 million people of 100 ethnic backgrounds; it has 27 theatres, 300 newspapers, 20 magazines, 250 movies, 23 to 25 centimeters or 9 to 10 inches of rain a year, and grows four million tons of cotton and one purple bikini a year, second only to the U. S. All this is about 100 miles northwest of New Delhi, India in the middle nowhere. And it has a woman for a president.

TASHKENT, THE CITY, has still another biggy: cranes. Not the bird but the machine. I have never seen so many cranes at work as viewed from the roof of our six-story hotel. It seemed as though there was a veritable forest of cranes along the horizon.

Speaking of forests, besides the crane forest there is also the making of a real forest in the city. And no wonder. There are rules about trees in Tashkent. If you cut a tree down you must plant three. If you have a child you must plant one tree; if you have two children you must plant two trees; if you have three children, three trees, etc.

There are a lot of trees in Tashkent, too. While we couldn't tell much about the fauna of the region — we hardly even saw a cat — there was much to notice about the flora. Most of the trees are oak, maple, mimosa, birch, and the flowers are hollyhocks, red hocking, delphiniums, phlox, zinnias, gladioli, canna lilies, roses, black-eyed susans, marigolds. Samarkand, as well as the other cities we visited in the USSR, have much the same in flowers, although not in trees. Samarkand, which was hot and dry had trees of the desert type, and Irkutsk and the Lake Baikal area had them none. Right a great deal of Siberian pine-along-with-the-birch-and-oak-and-maple.

Just across from our hotel was a large square on which was situated the grand old opera house. The square at one time was called the "Grand Bazaar," and opium, wine and beer were sold there. Now it is the front garden of the opera house.

Today one must go across the street to another G.U.M., a mother Government Department Store, to do the deed.

On the occasion of our swimming party (see Feminine Look No. 3 June 19) on the artificial island in the artificial pond in the middle of Tashkent, one of our Gallants needed a snack and he went over to the G.U.M. to purchase one. He came back with quite a specimen. It was pasty purple, if anything, and sort of a half-hearted bikini. All I can say is, well, it matched the stewardess' eyes. No, that isn't fair. The stewardess' eyes were blue.

WE HAD A GAY TIME in Tashkent despite the USSR's total ban on alcohol. Tashkent had a crummy rooftop restaurant, an overheated restaurant with a stage for a "Real Live" orchestra, a regular restaurant with the usual solid linen but also chairs whose backs didn't hold, and a droopy patio. But nevertheless there was a roof-top orchestra and a patio and that was wealth. The hotel was U-shaped toward the back, and a thing they called a garden-filled the U. But best of all, the rooms facing on this patio — had balconies. Ah me, romance. Our three sets of sweethearts that were left — one had gotten lost somewhere between Heaven and Hell, I think — went into the balcony and were floating. But they were uds to have around just the same.

The rooftop restaurant was marvelous for a view of the city and for shashlik, but it was rather clumsily arranged and not very pretty in itself. To get to it one had to take a flimsy elevator in the dingy back halls of the hotel (only three elevators in the whole hotel) that elevator do in the middle of one of those) even on top it was dingy and narrow and one had to

"THIS IS ROMANTIC? The balconies of Tashkent," which really look bleak but which, for one dining moment they were even quite charming. One of our gentlemen climbed the ladder, walked the roof and stretched over the balcony to kiss someone goodnight. How about that!

Wind around behind the kitchen, then flew past an open air grill filled with cooking shashlik and fought through the smoke before coming out on the entire expanse of roof filled with the inevitable chrome chairs, greasy stained tables, bright fluorescent lights and bolted senior citizens. In this case it seemed all the one million three hundred thousand people of Tashkent were on the roof of the Hotel-Tashkent. It was so jammed with people.

But the shashlik was delicious. The lamb itself was not as tender as U. S. lamb, and it was prepared in small portions and without the vegetables, but it was good. The uncooked vegetables, mainly onions and tomatoes, were served with the meat, but they were not put on the skewer.

THE RESTAURANT WITH A STAGE for a Real Live orchestra was for gayety. We went to it as usual one night quite innocently for our regular dinner, but it was Sunday and an orchestra arrived and we ended up with a regular live orchestra. When the Real Live orchestra began to play, it went straight to everyone's head and before we knew it, we were not only dancing with each other, but with the Uzbekians too. It was the night that one gallant Uzbek daddy bought champagne for Uz-Becky, our little lady from Seattle. It was not the first one opened that night either. Good part of this study mission was learning how to eject corks from warm champagne bottles — and we were taking lots of lessons. Warm champagne at 110 degrees night-time temperature with a hot orchestra can do some mighty interesting things.

While this musical dining room may have been the gayest thing in Tashkent, the balconies to our rooms were quite the most romantic. After we left the dancing and had retired to our rooms, the orchestra played one last melody out in the patio under the great big beautiful sky, and one of our Casanovas was so inspired he even climbed one of the balconies and sang "I Love My Love Goodnight in front of God and everybody."

And that was nothing to sneeze at either.

TURNTABLE TREATS (good listening COURAGE) by Milton Nascimento. This young Brazilian singer was discovered by Eumir Deodato, the arranger and conductor who did the musical backing on this LP album. The sound of Nascimento's voice is set by these arrangements in a context that enhances every nuance. The relation between his voice and the musical backing is delicate and highly effective. Although he speaks little English, he sings it with assurance and with articulation. But it is not really necessary to have the lyric in English for the listener to understand the songs. You will soon see what we mean after you hear the selections: "Bridges," "Vera Cruz," "Tres Puntos" (the small city near Rio from where he comes), "Outubro," "Courage," "Rio Vermelho," "Gira Girou," "Moxro Valley," "Chavento" and "Cancero Do Sol" (A&M RECORDS SP-3019).

AIDS on the A&M RECORDS label, THE LIT LIKE IT IS by George Benson. This lively instrumental instrumentally (with 12 English numbers) — "Soul," "Limpet," "Are You Happy?," "Well It Liked It," "Land of 1000 Dances," "Jockey," "All," "Don't Tell Me Callin' To You," "Water Brother," "My Woman's Good To Me," "Jama Joe," "My Charlie Amour," and the evergreen "Out In The Cold Again." (SP-3020).

Since the ABC TV daytime series "Dark Shadows," TV's first soap opera-horror show premiered in 1966, the public and the press have given it nothing but raves. Now, in answer to a multitude of viewer requests, PHILIPS RECORDS has released the complete and original music from the TV set on a LP album (PHS 600-314). Emulated on the LP are musicals by the series' stars, Jonathan (Egmont) Frid and David (Quentin) Selby, as well as the entire score composed by Robert Cobert, who has scored more TV shows than any other composer.

The Iron Butterfly, is collecting a platinum record, indicating that their LP "In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida" has topped the $7,000,000 mark. The record has been among the Top 20 on the record charts for a full year.

73,000 get work in JOBS program

WASHINGTON — Nearly 1,000 contracts have been awarded between private industry and the U. S. Department of Labor under the Job Opportunities in the Business Sector (JOBS) program, Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz announced recently. More than 73,000 job opportunities for the disadvantaged have been provided under this program with a total federal investment of more than $213 million.

The JOBS program is a joint effort of the Department of Labor and the National Alliance of Businessmen (NAB) to hire and train 238,000 disadvantaged jobless persons in 125 of the Nation's largest metropolitan areas by June 1970. The goal is 614,000 by June 1971.

Nearly 285,000 pledges of jobs have been announced to date by the NAB, covering both independent and federally assisted programs, and almost 178,000 disadvantaged jobless persons have been hired. Of this number, more than 102,000 have remained on the job.

Mrs. Fleming joins committees

DENVER, COLO. — Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, acting president of Seton Hall University, has been elected to the advisory committee and a member of the steering committee of the Education Commission of the State, according to Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon, chairman of the organization.

The Education Commission of the State, which was founded in 1966 and has headquarters here, was formed by the Interstate Compact for education and has over 500 members from 41 states. It is designed to strengthen the states' education systems and to bring legislators and educators together to increase their understanding of each other's role in the state education process.

Sticky problem

It's hard to get chewing gum off shoes, but this will do it: First, remove as much gum as possible with hot water; then saturate another cloth with turpentine and rub off the rest.

Williams cites drug abuse in sports

WASHINGTON — Excessive use of drugs by professional and amateur athletes for "improved performance" may pose a triple-edged sword, Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr. (D-N.J.), said Monday.

Senator Williams, a member of the Senate Subcommittee on Alcoholism and Narcotics, said Monday that he is concerned about the effects of drugs on the athletes themselves; possible repercussions which might cripple the sports world; and most important, potential impact among young people who might be influenced by the image of nonchalant drug use among sports figures.

Senator Williams, who recently introduced the Drug Abuse Prevention and Rehabilitation Act of 1969, made his remarks in a letter to Charles B. "Bud" Wilkinson, former Oklahoma football coach and now a special advisor on physical fitness and sports to President Nixon.

Senator Williams asked Wilkinson for the Administrator's position and plan of action on the drug-and-sports matter.

Citing a recent series in a national magazine which detailed the use of drugs in organized athletics, Senator Williams told Wilkinson that the use of drugs among athletes and the casual display of drug use in sports, may be contributing to a dangerous mentality among young people. When youngsters see sports idols turn almost routinely to drugs, there is a tendency to justify increased experimentation and drug abuse, Senator Williams noted.

"The drug scene in America is a chaotic nightmare for too many young people already," Senator Williams said. "Before we rush about attempting to chastise kids for their drug behavior, let's take a hard look at drugs in sports — a very real part of the adult world."

Merachnik attends Harvard institute for administrators

Dr. Donald Merachnik, director of special services of the Union County Regional High School District, was a participant at the seventh annual institute for administrators of pupil personnel services held at the Graduate School of Education, Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., July 13 to 25.

The institute is an invitational conference attended by 80 pupil personnel administrators from all over the United States and Canada. The theme of the 1969 conference is "Student Development: Patterns, Influences, and Potentials." Its director is Arthur M. Kroll, assistant professor of education at the Harvard Graduate School of Education and Clark University, Worcester.

The 1969 institute examined student development from the pre-school level through the college years. Among the topics considered were the effects of poverty and racial discrimination, liberalism and radicalism, learning disabilities, development of moral behavior, maturing in college, and implications of student activism for pupil personnel services.

Speakers included Robert J. Havighurst, professor of education and human development, University of Chicago; Paul Goodman, author; Helmer B. Myklebust, director, Institute for Language Disorders, Northwestern University; Joseph D. Fletcher, professor of ethics, Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge; David V. Nedeman, professor of education, Harvard University; Edward Joseph Shoben Jr., director, Center of Higher Education, the State University of New York at Buffalo; and other scholars and practitioners.

FAMILY LIFE TODAY

By MABEL G. STOLTE

County Home Economist

"Look, Mommie, see what I've picked for you!" says Jane, three years old, as she holds up a big yellow daisy with leaves and roots.

If you know that you have no daisies, that they were picked from a neighbor's garden, what do you do? Do you immediately ask "Where did you pick that? Don't you remember I've told you not to pick other people's flowers?" Or do you say "My, isn't that a pretty flower - did someone pick it for you? Your child's spirit of adventure and exploration, held in check all winter, is bound to be awakened by the warm sunny days. Encourage curiosity but teach your child respect for other people's property through such incidents.

When your child ventures beyond the limitations of respect for other people's property imposed by society, use such incidents to help get to know your child and your neighbor a little better.

Your neighbor needs to be told, of course. If you know your neighbor enough to understand that she likes children, go with your child to apologize. Take this opportunity to tell your neighbor and explain that your child did not understand that she should not pick another person's flowers unless invited to do so. Through this, both you and your children can gain friends.

Putting a smile on 'Danny's face' NSC institute battles handicaps to learning

Not aware of the buzzing around him in the lobby, "Danny" sits quietly. His eyes are bolted forward as he stares out of the window. "Danny" is a firm but gentle hand moves the baseball cap on his head around and "Danny" smiles his hello in return.

The man responsible for making "Danny" and many other children like him smile is Dr. Edward LaCrosse, director of the Institute of Child Study on the campus of Newark State College, Union. The special job of the Institute is to assist children in overcoming their handicaps to learning.

One of the essential departments in the institute is the Educational Resource Center. "The center's primary function," according to Dr. LaCrosse, "is conducting experimental learning classes for both normal and handicapped children." Another experimental class in session at the Institute is a class for pre-school deaf and blind children. Dr. LaCrosse believes that "this class is the only one of its kind operating south of Boston and north of Washington." The New Jersey Commission for the Blind is working together with the Institute in the operation of this class.

ANOTHER SPECIAL CLASS underway is a pre-school art class for the "unteachable" child. It is hoped that the positive results from this class will open the doors of instruction for these children who would otherwise remain outside of the classroom.

Working in close cooperation with the objectives of the educational resource center are the various clinics operated at the Institute. They are the comprehensive evaluation clinic to measure the overall progress of a student, the audiology or hearing clinic, the speech clinic for articulation, tongue-thrust and stuttering and the reading clinic. The Institute also runs a cleft-palate clinic in cooperation with the Montefiore Hospital in the Bronx.

The special nature of the Institute requires a special professional staff. Among the professionals working at the Institute are 51 psychologists, 2 pediatricians, 12 audiologists and several Ph.D.'s in various areas of special education. Students attending instruction at the Institute also reflect a variety uncommon at the state college level.

Among the students at the Institute's classes are pediatric students from the N.J. School of Medicine and Dentistry, social work students from Fordham University and doctoral candidates from the department of special education at Columbia University. In addition to these students are the undergraduates and graduates students in Special Education at the college itself. They are carefully selected and rank among the top students at the college.

SEVERAL SPECIAL PROJECTS are being conducted under the auspices of the Institute during the summer. Two unique day-camps are being held at the Institute, one for the brain-damaged and emotionally-disturbed child, and one for the mentally retarded adult. Additionally, a special in-service training course is being held at the Woodbridge state school. This course is designed for teachers in special education about first-hand methods in teaching the mentally-retarded child. The course is being conducted by Dr. Blowitz of the college faculty and Institute staff.

After five years of service at Newark State's Institute, Dr. LaCrosse will be leaving the college in February to assume the position of Professor of Child Health in the division of Pediatrics at the University of Nebraska Medical School and Director of Educational Programs in the Children's Rehabilitation Institute at Nebraska.

While his presence will be missed, his achievements will remain. The Institute which now treats over 1500 children a year has grown under his leadership to the largest operation of its kind in the state.

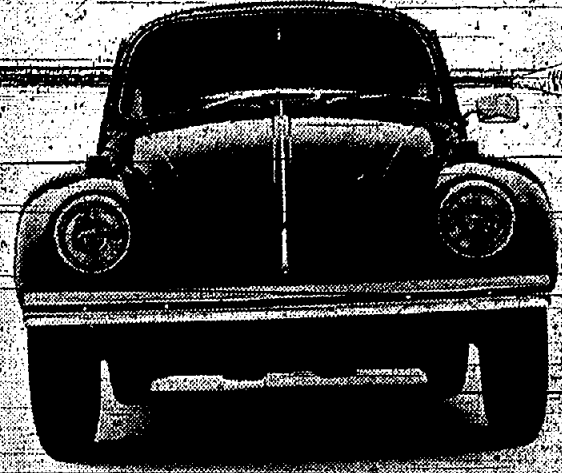

Dr. LaCrosse moves on "Danny" will continue from the love and dedication that he has put into the development of the Institute for Child Study at Newark State College.

Present play by Euripides

The Ars Nova Players will present Euripides' 'The Trojan Women' under the direction of Joseph Witt at the Center for Cultural Activities, 300 Mendham rd., Morristown, today through Monday at 8:30 p.m. The production will employ the traditional use of mask and choral music.

The central role of Hecuba will be played by Jesse Nacovitz of Morris Township, a student at Brandeis University, and a veteran of two other Ars Nova productions. Talthybius will be played by James Curran, a graduate of Seton Hall, currently working in the poverty program in Newark. Judith Kneule of Morristown will double as Cassandra and Helen, and Robert Rogers, a student of the University of Denver, will play Menelaus, Carol-May of Whippany, a student at Carnegie-Mellon University, will portray Andromache.

The program is sponsored by the Masterwork Music and Art Foundation, and tickets will be available at the door. The admission charge is $2.

What's the catch? There isn't any. $1799* is the suggested retail price of the part of entry for the VW sedan. The price includes the Federal excise tax and import duty.

It also includes the built-in heater/defroster, windshield wiper, electric windshield wipers, outside rearview mirror, padded dash, front seat headrests and seat belts front and back.

Not to mention the new electric rear-window defogger and the new ignition/steering lock. It's the price of the real thing, not a stripped-down economy model.

What else do you have to pay? Transportation from the port of entry. Dealer delivery charge, local sales tax.

One optional extra that makes a lot of sense, automatic stick shift. (It eliminates the clutch pedal.) Another is leatherette upholstery. And that's it.

Astronauts become shutterbugs

Moon voyagers use Linden firm's camera

Apollo 11 Commander Neil Armstrong played tourist during his trip to the moon with a camera distributed by a Union County firm. The camera, the Hasselblad 500EL model, is distributed in this country by Pallard Inc. of Linden. Modified versions of the single-lens reflex camera were used during the moon walk and in the command capsule.

One crucial difference between the model used on the moon and the production model is the use of silver color film. Silver color was used as plating for the camera, said a Pallard spokesman, because it gives a more uniform temperature than black. Varying temperatures often affect color photography.

The three Apollo adventurers returned to earth Thursday with 1,720 individual frames. Film is housed in magazines, which hold up to 200 frames each.

An addition to the basic Hasselblad was a Redcan grid plate for precise measuring of areas photographed. Also, a special lens was designed for use on the lunar surface. The cameras and magazines were fitted with a tether ring which can be latched out of the way when not being used. The cameras were left on the moon, however. Only the film magazines returned with the astronauts.

According to NASA, the national space agency, Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin, the two astronauts who stepped out on the lunar soil on July 20, used the Hasselblad Data Camera extensively during their surface EVA to document each of their major tasks. The astronauts also took 360-degree overlapping panorama sequence still photos of the lunar horizon; close-ups of geological samples and the lunar camera; also recorded the appearance and condition of the lunar module after landing.

A magazine of black and white film was used to record the lunar excursion vehicle's descent to the Sea of Tranquility. Magazines loaded to hold "BARGE PARTY" The Union County Young Republicans are sponsoring a "Barge Party" down the New Hope, Pass canal on Aug. 5. The Nickelodeon, Benjo trio, will provide entertainment. Further information is available by calling 686-4956.

the black and white film usually have 200 exposures and images of color film from 100 to 180 exposures. Six film magazines, two color and four black and white, were exposed on the command module during the voyage in addition to those taken on the moon.

All of the mounted lenses for the Hasselblad cameras, including those used on Apollo 11, are as interchangeable as are the magazines, an important reason for the camera's use in space. The firm is waiting anxiously for Schriber's Mercury flight in October, 1962.

For the EVA photography, Aldrin lowered the camera and magazines to Armstrong, who then attached it to a special bracket on his portable life support system chest pack. The camera was locked on the bracket during use and was easily removed by sliding it along a four-inch track for use by either of the astronauts for handheld photography.

In past flights, the still photographs taken by the Hasselblad cameras have proven their importance as aids in defining missions and in earth and weather studies, according to a Pallard official.

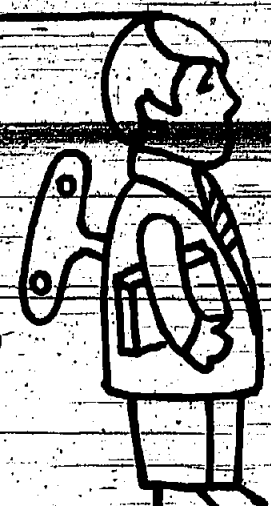

Jerry Kovanda, vice president and service manager of the photographic division of Pallard, said the firm is awaiting anxiously the processing of the Apollo 11 moon snapshots. The pictures will be processed in Houston, but it may be some weeks before they are available, since the film magazines must be checked out in the quarantine quarters before prints can be made.

SHUTTERBUGS ON LUNA - Apollo 11 Commander Neil Armstrong, right, helps fellow moon walker Edwin Aldrin with an experiment simulated before their historic flight. Armstrong has a Hasselblad camera mounted to his life support system chest pack. The camera, distributed in this country by Pallard Inc. of Linden, was used on the moon and discarded before it returned to the command module. Two other cameras distributed by the Linden company were aboard the command vehicle. The three astronauts took 1,700 photographs.

Golf show to help Boys' Club

Golf widows, arise! The long-suffering wives who've waited by the hearth while hubby hawks his way around the back nine will have their chance Aug. 7 to find out painlessly and pleasurably what it is that keeps their spouses away on weekends.

That's the date for an appearance at Gallop Hill Golf Club by world-famous trick shot golfer Paul Hahn, who'll be putting on his exhibition for the benefit of the Boys' Club of Union. Hahn's show is one of 25 sponsored by P. Ballantine & Sons of Newark for the benefit of local charities from Maine to Florida.

According to Mrs. Grace Lane of Union, chairman of the reception committee for the event, the show is a "must-see" for the ladies. Mrs. Lane says she regards the Hahn show as a "great way for women like myself to be introduced to the game of golf. Even if you don't know anything about the game, Paul Hahn's exhibition will familiarize you with the basics of the sport."

Mrs. Lane notes that in addition to explaining the basics of using conventional golf clubs, Hahn employs a wild array of crazy, unorthodox clubs. For instance, the famous trick shot golfer hates a ball 250 yards with a club head affixed to the end of a rubber garden hose.

"Besides, he's a first-rate raconteur who regales his audience with a steady stream of amusing chatter," Mrs. Lane observes.

"All in all," she concludes, "it's a great show for everybody - golfers and widows alike and it's in aid of a good cause."

Other members of the reception committee are Mrs. Fran Hande and Mrs. Pat Passo. Tickets at $2 each may be obtained for the 7 p.m. program by calling the Boys Club at 687-2697.

Dr. Goff resigns post at Memorial

Dr. Herbert Goff of Westfield, medical director of Memorial General Hospital for the past two years, has resigned due to the pressures of his private practice and the recent completion of a new medical building in Union, which will require his full-time attention.

The board of trustees of Memorial General Hospital accepted his resignation with regrets. At the same time, the board delegated responsibility for quality of medical care to the directors of the various specialty services in the hospital.

Dr. Martin Sherer was reappointed as director of medical education and will work with the president of the medical staff and the heads of services to provide a meaningful training, educational and clinical environment, according to a hospital spokesman.

Y camp carnival set Wednesday

The Carnival will have a space theme in honor of our moon-landing astronauts. Work has already begun on booth construction and sign making.

19,000 capacity enrollment near for Job Corps centers

WASHINGTON — The Job Corps, with a capacity of nearly 19,000 youths, is operating at almost full strength today, Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz announced recently.

The Secretary said the 48 centers transferred to the Labor Department on July 1 are at 95 percent of capacity and are continuing to improve and expand the training and educational services available.

He said another 1,000 new enrollments will be recruited to permit full use of the services for disadvantaged youth who need residential facilities as well as training. The centers have already absorbed

"Hold it!"

6,000 transfers from closed camps and have enrolled an additional 1,700 youths since June 7, when Job Corps began filling centers after a short suspension.

The State Employment Service oversees and conducts shift-activities to provide new enrollees for the centers. Recruitment procedures include testing, screening and counseling to give youths the total assistance that is available in the Labor Department's array of manpower services.

To bring residential manpower services closer to home, the Department's Manpower Administration is moving ahead to open new lines of residential centers. Two are already in partial operation and the third has been contracted for and will open in October. In partial operation are centers at Edison, N.J., where part of the Camp Kilmer facilities will be used to eventually enroll 350 youths, and the Hawaii Job Corps Center which will have facilities for 250 on three islands including the former camp at Koko Head. A totally new center will be opened in Phoenix, Ariz., for 350 youths.

FIRST MAN ON THE MOON Stamp to commemorate 'First Man on Moon'

Postmaster General Whitman M. Blount has announced the design of the 10-cent Moon Landing commemorative air mail stamp.

The 10-cent air mail stamp, a juju-bo-size 1.05 x 1.80 inches, will be issued with first day ceremonies in Washington, D.C., late in August. The horizontal stamp will be printed in red, white, blue and brown. It shows an astronaut descending from the module, his left foot making the first contact with the surface of the moon. In the background, more than a quarter million miles away, is the planet Earth. An initial printing of 120 million has been authorized.

Across the bottom of the stamp in blue, white capitals is "First Man on the Moon".

Dependency payments increased, VA reports

Increase in the base pay of members of the Armed Forces as of July 1 will mean an automatic increase in dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) payments to approximately 160,000 recipients of monthly DIC checks, the Veterans Administration announced last week.

DIC payments are authorized for widows, unmarried children under 18 (older if attending school or helpless), and certain parents of veterans who died as the result of military service.

Payments equal $120 a month, plus 12 percent of the monthly basic pay currently being received by a serviceman whose rank and years of service are the same as those of the deceased veteran.

In addition, the VA said, DIC beneficiaries need not apply to VA for the increased monthly payments since the new rates have already been computed by the Veterans Administration and will be reflected in the checks which VA will send out at the end of July.

Owning Campsites Becomes Popular

Owning your own Campsite has become quite popular with outdoor enthusiasts. Many families who enjoy camping and all it has to offer in outdoor activities are now buying their own private campsites. This allows them to use the site anytime they wish without being turned away at overcrowded public camp grounds. Many from the N.J.-Pennsylvania area are heading towards the Poconos, according to the developers of Indian Country Campsites.

Their tract is located on Pa. Route 507, near Gouldsboro, 6 1/2 miles east of U. S. Route 611 just 10 miles from Lake Wallenpaupack. The Campsites are near Gouldsboro State Park and State Game Lands at an elevation of 2142 feet above sea level. Actually this is the highest campsite elevation in the entire Poconos. Site owners may pitch a tent, build a cabin or park a trailer or camper and enjoy the mountains to their fullest.

Inexpensive camping vacations have tremendous appeal to families and sportsmen. Campsites at Indian Country range from 2000 square feet up.

White is director of the institute, and William Gutsch of Belleville and Daniel R. Matlega of Garwood are serving as instructors. The participants are from public, parochial and private secondary schools in Union, Essex, Middlesex, Morris and Somerset counties.

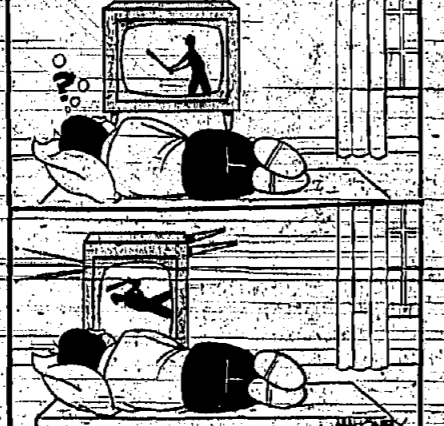

'Moon Day' theme at Girl Scout camp

"Congratulations, astronauts. The Girl Scouts couldn't have done better!" With these words, the Scouts attending the second day camp session of Washington-Rock Girl Scout Council's Camp Sitawik in the success of Apollo 11. The message was printed on a large sign at the entrance to the camp in Green Brook.

Drug advisory commission created by Union County freeholder board

The Union County Board of Freeholders has created a Narcotics Advisory Commission in an "initial step in a direct frontal attack on the problems of narcotic addiction and drug abuse."

The commission was formed by a resolution at the July 24 meeting of the freeholders. It was presented by Walter E. Ulrich, chairman of the County's Department of Public Affairs and General Welfare.

Ulrich said that "while Union County has been a forerunner in this field through the efforts of the former narcotics commission and the limited capability of the Union County Narcotics Clinic, the time has past when we can talk about the problems which narcotic addiction and drug abuse have created in our society but must act to stem the tide of new addicts to the use of narcotics and drugs" and "also create the incentive and assist the addict to 'kick the habit' and additinally to guide the after care and rehabilitation to insure a productive return to family and society."

Clinic and bring forth recommendations as to how it can perform the maximum of effective and efficient services to the County. Following that there will be the establishment of procedures in the areas of prevention, education, rehabilitation, after care and law enforcement, Ulrich said.

ULRICH STATED "I can envision among many of the recommendations which will be forthcoming from the Advisory Commission one which would create an educational bureau which could take the prevention message on a regularly scheduled basis to all of our schools as well as to the public at large. In the field of rehabilitation, I can see a program which would assist those who would qualify through professional evaluations for job placement so as to insure not only the vital incentive needed by the rehabilitated addict but the measure of assurance to the potential employer that his cooperation would be productive and not a regrettable experience."

Freeholder Ulrich said that the problems of narcotic addiction and drug abuse "old ones which the freeholders recognize are increasing at an alarming rate while the fields of narcotic and drug prevention, education and rehabilitation are relatively new."

Among those to participate in the production was Ira Hoidal of 731 Summit rd., Union. He is a junior end an industrial education major at the college where he is serving as president of the Circle "K" Club, and chairman of the Service committee of Nu Sigma Phi fraternity.

Kniss, where he is minoring in speech and drama. He has worked in five production, acting in three of them, and served as the President of the Friends Players. He has had one year of theatrical experience.

ALSO IN THE PRESENTATION was Deborah Raiffe, of 1164 Ostra dr., Linden, who is a sophomore at Newark State and a secondary education major. She has been a member of the Linden Dramatic Club for three years and has acted in the play, "Dear Ruth."

From Springfield, Sally Vogel of 1 Juniper way participated in the mixed media presentation. She is a senior at Kent Place school and is interested in professional theater. She has experienced in amateur and school productions.

N. J. Open Space Commission wants action on state land use resources

The New Jersey Open Space Policy Commission has announced that it will undertake an independent study of the Garden State's land use resources. "We are not doing another massive study but are oriented toward action," the commission said.

The statement was a joint announcement by former State Senator John A. Waddington, commission chairman and Sen. Wayne Diamond, Jr. (R-Sussex, Hunterdon, Warren), vice chairman.

Members of the Commission on Open Space Policy believe another separate study is not needed at this time. Our immediate task is one of reviewing, evaluating and coordinating all the information already compiled over the last few years," Waddington said.

The commission has been made to review all existing studies including the New Jersey Open Space Policy Plan put out last year by the Department of Community Affairs, the Division of State and Regional Planning, studies by the Department of Conservation and Economic Development related to water resource needs and a comprehensive recreation program, and studies by the Department of Agriculture and the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science concerning the role and potential of agriculture in the state's future.

"THE COMMISSION HAS also decided to review all state laws now on the books relating to the retention of open space in New Jersey. In looking over these various pieces of legislation, we will search for ways to update and revise them so that they will work best in a total picture of land use," he added.

land in public open spaces. The Horizon Plan further documents how the state could still have one-half of a million acres (or over 10 percent of the state) devoted to agricultural production even if it were to eventually reach a population of 10 million.

age, the State Legislature approved the creation of the commission in February 1969. Waddington said that as stated in the legislation sponsored by Assemblyman Peter Selecky, Schuler, Gimson, Hupley, Casero, Assemblywoman Margetta, Assemblymen Wilson and Iorn, the concerns of the commission are:

Meyner attacks Federal cuts in funds for mentally retarded

Former Democratic Governor Robert B. Meyner, who is seeking reelection to that post, has criticized the Federal government cutbacks in programs for the mentally retarded which, he said, can have a "catastrophic impact" on New Jersey's pioneering plans in this vital area.

During my administration, we were able to establish the Field Services Unit and the regional offices of the Division of Mental Retardation in our State Department of Institutions and Agencies. We also were able to establish the Edward J. Tompkins Training and Research Center and, for the first time, obtained appropriations for research positions in mental retardation.

GOING ON, MEYNER SAID: "State government in New Jersey has manifested a profound and continuing interest in the needs of the mentally retarded and their families. Personally, I am proud that the 1961 bond issue made possible the construction of the Woodbridge State School and reconstruction of the New Lisbon State School."

CONTINUING, MEYNER SAID: "The Mental Retardation Facilities Construction Act, as amended, also makes grants for the initial staffing of facilities with professional and technical personnel. The original congressional authorization for new staffing grants for 1970 is $14 million; the Nixon budget request for $5 million, which is a $9 million decrease from last year."

Ask Amy

LOVE IS SPLENDID... BUT NOT HER'S
Dear Amy:
I would like to have advice from you because I can't talk about this to my friends or parents.
I am in love with a married man. He has one little boy and has been married for two years. He does not love his wife (so he tells me), but when I see him, he tells me that he needs me and wants to be with me.
Do you think I should stop seeing him or what should I do?
Confused

Dear Confused:
When a married man wants to fool-around with a single young girl, he never loves his wife.
Love is a many splendored thing, but not yours, and I'm sure you are merely infatuated. Don't ever see him again, no matter what he says.
Dear Amy:
I am only 14-1/2 years old and I have a terrible problem. I hope you will be able to help me.
All the kids in my class, except me, shave their legs. I asked my mother once or keep writing him, but without pressing him to write. Send him little excerpts that will push him to write such as a budding leaf, later, one in bloom, later, it's changing color, and later, a tiny branch from a bush or a tree. This tells him of his passing time. Whatever the outcome of his writing, be content. Use it to cease your longing for that next letter. I'm going through my third year.

Annou.
(Elizabeth, N.J.)

Dear Amy:
I'm 12 and I'm so ugly that it's pathetic. I have a pretty nice figure, but it's my face: I have nice eyes, nice nose and a nice mouth, but they don't seem to go together, and my hair is short and unnaturally curly. I was letting it grow but I looked awful. It would never stay combed neatly so I had it cut, and now I look like a boy! No matter what I do, puff it up, put a little makeup on, I still look like a boy.
Please help. I need it.
H.U.P.

Dear H.U.P.:
I doubt that you are as ugly as you think. Many girls your age are not satisfied with their appearance, but at your age many changes are taking place and in the near future, you will be more satisfied than you are now.
Be patient and do the best you can. Nature will take care of the rest.

The first unit will have a capacity of 1,000,000 kilowatts and is scheduled to begin operating in 1972. The second unit will have a capacity of 1,000,000 kilowatts and is scheduled for operation in 1975.
The two new units would be for operation in 1975 and 1977, respectively.

VA reminds GIs on loans
Paul M. Nugent, manager, New Jersey Veterans Affairs Administration Region 4, Newark, this week cautioned veterans who will be transferring to new jobs in new locations this summer to get releases in writing from the VA on their present G.I. home loans.
In the excitement of moving and concentration on the new job, Nugent pointed out that it is easy to overlook the fact that even though a veteran sells his present home he is still liable for his G. I. loan unless the VA releases him in writing from all future liability.
Nugent also pointed out that the veteran who sells his home because of a transfer to a new location will be entitled to restoration of the VA home loan guaranty in order to purchase a home in his new community if his old G. I. loan is paid off.
Veterans may obtain additional information or release from their loan liability and restoration of their loan guaranty from the Newark VA Regional Office, 20 West Union Plaza, Newark, 07102. Telephone 201-645-2150.

Schedule is listed for new swim pool at Summit YWCA

Some 60 day campers were the first to plunge into the Summit YWCA's new pool this week. After numerous delays, including an area-wide strike in the construction industry, the YWCA's addition to its present building opened Tuesday.

The 35' x 75' pool took three days to fill with 150,000 gallons of water. It is 41 inches at the shallow end and 9 feet 2 inches at the deep end. Theatorium, as the pool area of the new addition is called, has a natural-colored laminated wood ceiling with hanging lights, the gold-colored laminated wood ceiling with hanging lights, the gold-colored shades which are perforated, giving the area a star-like effect. Cobalt blue columns contact with pale blue walls and multi-colored blue tile flooring.

The summer schedule for open recreational swimming will be in effect from now through Aug. 23. Hours are: Monday, 1:30-5 p.m.; Tuesday, 2-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m.; Wednesday, 2-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m.; Thursday, 2-5 p.m.; Friday, 1:30-4:30 p.m.; Saturday 10 a.m.-Noon and 2-4 p.m.

During these hours members as well as non-members are permitted to swim at "moderate" fees. Beginning swimmers under 12 years of age must be accompanied by an adult. Private and semi-private lessons are available by appointment. Readers may call Linda Johnson, health, physical education and recreation program director, at the YWCA, 275-4242, for further information.

The formal opening of the new addition, which also includes a new entrance way on Maple street, locker rooms, additional club rooms, and surgery will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 20 and 21.

Pingry to hold a soccer camp

Competitive soccer will be emphasized in Pingry's first summer soccer camp, to be conducted at the school from Aug. 25 to 29, according to the director, Dan Phillips.

"The philosophy back of the five-day venture is that the best way to improve one's soccer is through playing in game situations," Phillips said. "A major part of each day will be devoted to competitive play in closely scanned contests. After each contest, each squad, individually and collectively, will receive a critique from one of the coaches. There will also be contests which are to stress essential soccer skills such as dribbling, kicking the like."

In addition to Phillips and his assistant, Ed Scott, the coaching staff is composed of Bob Adrance (Westfield High School), Miller Bugliatti and Frank Romano (Pingry School), Lou Bergallo (Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School), and Frank Severage (David Brearley Regional High School). In addition, former All-County stars Don Burt and Art Kurz will assist in demonstrating and coaching.

Sessions will run from 9:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., each day. Tuition is $35. There are still three openings. Interested persons may call Pingry School, 355-6990.

Plenty of ringneck pheasant forecast for autumn by state

New Jersey's most popular game bird, the ringneck pheasant, again appears to be in good supply, according to Commissioner Robert A. Roe of the State Department of Game and Economic Development.

Results of the fourth annual "crow count," census of male pheasants were released this week by the Bureau of Wildlife Management of the Department's Division of Fish and Game. The study found a 67 percent increase in the number of adult cockbirds in the survey area—using identical methods. The number of male birds estimated has increased each year of the survey, and these increases have generally been borne out by fall hunting success, as well as by the survey trend itself.

The major increase was found in Hunterdon County, heart of the State's prime pheasant habitat. The surrounding farm belt of Somerset, Middlesex, east Monmouth and north Burlington field its own as did moderately productive areas like southern Morris and Warren counties and Salem County. Natural pheasant populations remain scarce in the Sussex County area and the Delaware Bay area outside the Salem farmlands.

In all, 16 routes were surveyed during the mid-May breeding season. Wildlife Biologists traversed these rural routes during the early morning, stopping regularly to count the calls of male pheasants, who crow at regular intervals during the mating season. A total of 387 calls were heard this spring, compared to 362, 346 and 331 for the three previous years. The count in the central farm belt has increased every year, and the route in Morris County was substantially above the 4-year average this year.

Principal Wildlife Manager George P. Howard tempers his optimism by noting that other factors, such as sex ratio, brood production and survival under unpredictable weather conditions, remain important factors governing pheasant abundance. Nonetheless, the spring census of cockbirds is a readily available index indicating good prospects for hunters.

In addition to native populations, pheasants are reared at two State Game Farms, Rockport and Forked River, and by 4-H cooperators. All indications are that over 60,000 pheasants will be produced, as in recent years. These birds are stocked on State Wildlife Management Areas and other lands open to all general hunters, according to sporting opportunities for Garden State hunters during the season opening November 8.

Dr. Lob is named as general manager

Dr. Joseph A. Saloom, vice-president, Eastern operations, Varian Associates, has announced that Dr. Chester Lob of Springfield has been appointed general manager of the Eastern Division.

This new division of Varian's Eastern operation was created by combining the Varian SPD Laboratories of 800 Rahway Ave., Union, with the Microwave Tube Operation of the Varian, Bomac Division, Beverly, Mass.

Dr. Lob, formerly general manager of SPD Laboratories, indicated the combined use of the talents and facilities of the two activities would greatly improve Varian's ability to penetrate the microwave tube market. The new division will continue to operate in two plant locations. The recent 35,000-square-foot expansion of the Union facility will be fully utilized by the present backlog and proposed growth of the Union operation.

Dr. Lob and his wife Glynn reside at 11 Juniper way, Springfield.

Stanley Kramer signed for new 3-picture pact

HOLLYWOOD — Producer-director Stanley Kramer's first two independent productions on his new three-picture pact with Columbia Pictures will be "R.P.M." and "Cyrano de Bergerac," a musical version of Leo Rostand's romantic French classic.

Rod Sterling is writing the screen-play for "R.P.M.," (Revolutions Per Minute). Erich Segal is scripting "Cyrano," originally made by Kramer as a non-musical in 1951. Four-time Oscar winner Johnny Mercer is lyricist. Michel Legrand, also an Academy Award winner, music composer, and another Oscar holder, Onna White, is doing the choreography.

Principal Wildlife Manager George P. Howard tempers his optimism by noting that other factors, such as sex ratio, brood production and survival under unpredictable weather conditions, remain important factors governing pheasant abundance. Nonetheless, the spring census of cockbirds is a readily available index indicating good prospects for hunters.

In addition to native populations, pheasants are reared at two State Game Farms, Rockport and Forked River, and by 4-H cooperators. All indications are that over 60,000 pheasants will be produced, as in recent years. These birds are stocked on State Wildlife Management Areas and other lands open to all general hunters, according to sporting opportunities for Garden State hunters during the season opening November 8.

Agenda for educators: 2 weeks' TV watching

David Brearley Regional High School in Kentworth will host to some 100 educators who will spend two weeks watching TV, beginning Monday.

The school has been picked by the New Jersey State Department of Education as one of two sites where educational TV tapes will be previewed and evaluated for eventual showing on the Infant State Broadcasting Network.

The ideas of previewing tapes made throughout the country came from the Department of Education television advisory committee, according to Dr. Warren M. Davis, superintendent of schools of Union County Regional High School District.

Dr. Davis is a member of the 15-man committee made up of educators from throughout the state which is acting as an advisory group to State Commissioner of Education Carl L. Marburger.

According to William King, acting executive director of the Public Broadcasting Audit and on leave of absence as director of audio-visual education, approximately 200 teachers, administrators, principals and curriculum coordinators, will view tapes at the Kentworth school and in Trenton.

SPRINGFIELD (N.J.) LEADER - Thursday, July 31, 1968 - 21

"The advisory committee felt it would be beneficial to see what educational tapes were available, so we have gathered tapes from the Eastern Educational Network and the Instructional TV Library at the University of Minnesota and the National Center for Educational Television at Belmont, Mass.," King said.

He noted that New Jersey and Wyoming are the only states that do not have public broadcasting networks in operation. "New Jersey is first catching up now," he said.

The TV tapes will include almost every subject imaginable on both the elementary and secondary levels: art, astronomy, economics, African anthropology, communism, primary and secondary, science, remedial reading, English composition, mathematics, foreign language and driver education.

"The advisory committee will receive these evaluations and recommend what tapes would be appropriate for showing in New Jersey schools," Dr. Davis said. "Educational TV to make sure our students see the best available programs."

The State Department of Education will supply the video tape recorders and monitors at the preview sessions where five or six teachers will view each tape. The tapes run from 15 to 30 minutes each.

King said the state broadcasting network has already leased and occupied a temporary studio and office in Trenton. The network will eventually comprise four UHF transmitters and studios in New Jersey along with mobile units.

Senator CLIFFORD P. CASE

Reports

A few days ago the Department of Justice filed a civil suit which, it is hoped, will open the way to a great easing of public life at every level of government.

Specifically the United States has brought an action to recover from Bobby Baker, former secretary of the United States Senate, all gains made from the use of his influence and the prestige of his office. The filing of this suit is particularly gratifying to me for as long ago as July, 1964, in a speech on the Senate floor, I pointed out that there was a way, through a civil suit, to compel Bobby Baker to pay over to the U.S. every penny he made through the use of his influence and the prestige of his office.

But, despite repeated prodding by me, the Attorney General seemed uninterested in pursuing this course.

It was justified by his reluctance because it has always seemed incontrovertible to me that public office is a public trust.

Thus we have long recognized that a person who sells his vote violates a trust, and it has long been the law that the government can recover a bribe paid to an official to influence his official action.

BUT PUBLIC TRUST means more than that. It means that each of us, in the Congress or of its staff, holds the influence and prestige which goes with his position as a fiduciary. Such influence and prestige is not his personal property. They are not his to sell or barter or otherwise compromise. They are held in trust for the nation and for all the people. And if he breaches that trust and misuses his office, he must account for that to the people and to the government.

The accountability of a government official for breach of his fiduciary duty is well recognized by the courts.

The courts have sustained suits to recover from executive officials. I see no reason to treat legislative officials differently from executive officials.

In the private field the principle is well established. Take for example, corporate officers. Some years ago the courts established strict standards for officers and directors of corporations. As persons holding positions of private trust, corporate officers can be and are held accountable for the use of so-called inside information for personal advantage.

The same principle is equally applicable to public office, I believe, whether it be legislative or executive. And in Bobby Baker's case, the abuse of his office is very plain. Despite the inadequacy of the Senate Rules Committee inquiry to the matter, the counsel for the committee stated flatly that Baker used "the prestige of his official position for his own private gain."

I AM THEREFORE very confident that the courts will uphold in the Baker case the principle that the influence and power which come to men through the holding of public position is held by them in trust, that it may not be sold or bartered, that it may not be used in any way for personal gain and that anyone breaching that trust can be held to account and compelled to disgorge every penny of profit.

The time has come in the field of public affairs, as it came in the past few decades in the field of private corporate affairs, to put an end to all short cuts to big loot, to easy money, to the "fast buck."

The doctrine that a public officer or employee is liable to pay over to his employing government any profit derived from the use of his official position is, of course, applicable not only to members of Congress and its employees, it is equally applicable to all office holders and employees of all governments—federal, state and local.

YM-YWHA aide will return home

Mrs. Rita Herzog, of Elizabeth, head bookkeeper at the Eastern Union County YM-YWHA, Green Lane, will visit her Austrian homeland in August for the first time in 23 years.

Mrs. Herzog came to this country following her release from the Dachau concentration camp in Bavaria, where she was a prisoner for two months. She has been associated with the Y since coming to this country.

Mrs. Herzog will leave by plane Sunday. She plans to visit for a week in her native Vienna, other cultural centers and spend two weeks in Bad Gastein, Salzburg.

UC intersession will begin Monday

Some 840 college students will complete summer courses in Union College, Granford, tomorrow, according to Prof. Farris S. Swackhamer. The summer session enrollment has been the largest in the college's 90-year history, Prof. Swackhamer said.

Classes on the Granford campus will resume Monday, when the annual intersession begins. The four-week mid-summer program will offer nine college courses in an evening session only. Courses include Principles of Accounting, General Chemistry, Western European Literature, Beginning French and Spanish, Physics (Mechanics, Heat and Sound), and Business Law. Classes are conducted from 6:30 to 10:35 p.m. Registrations for the intersession will be accepted through Monday.

The 840 summer-session students, Prof. Swackhamer reports, represented 184 colleges and universities in about 40 states. Forty liberal arts, engineering, physical and life sciences and business administration and non-credit courses in English review, chemistry, algebra, trigonometry and physics were offered during the six-week session.

$2,060,000 goal is posted for county United Way drives

Union County's United Way drive for an overall goal of $2,060,000 for all United Way campaigns in the county, is announced today by Gavin Spofford, general campaign chairman and president of the Summit & Elizabeth-Trent Co., noting that the new fund is following the national trend of centralizing the solicitation of corporate and employee giving within a county-wide organization. Of each dollar received nationally by United Funds, 91 percent is from corporate and employee giving. This county effort will not only prove to be more efficient, but more economical.

"Each local United campaign will continue to solicit some local business, professional and in some cases residential areas; while we in the county fund will concentrate entirely
