William J. Maguire - PROFILE Matilda T. McGowan

The seat time a 350-kilowatt motor pulls up alongside of your automobile to the driver, it might be William J. Maguire, a 35-year-old engineer who has been in the business of engineering for his second year.

Maguire, a former mayor of Clark Township, has already exchanged post shows with the municipality's present mayor, Thomas Kaczmarek, who is running for reelection. Their campaigns should be among the most interesting to watch during the political season.

BUT THE INCUMBENT mayor is making a strong showing in the polls. Maguire would like to see the county's garbage. The details are included in the Clark report which has become the center of controversy in Linden. It recommended the acquisition of about 600 acres of land in Linden for the sanitary landfill and construction of a shredding and milling facility that would help solve the solid waste disposal crisis in Union County.

Linden officials are up in arms that the community is stalling in its efforts to solve the problem. Linden officials have a more reasonable approach, this will be recognized.

Maguire SEES NO alternatives other than to put the dump in Linden. Middlesex County has authorized a solid waste study of their own which will probably show that Linden is the best site for the dump. Linden officials are also looking at other sites which would require less money in Union County. Time is also limited, said Maguire, because of the state's new law which closed its dumps to other counties two years ago and has proposed a Union County transfer in the Clark survey, said Maguire.

Maguire's interest in municipal government grew in 1953 when he was named to the Clark Planning Board. He served as its chairman for two years ago. He served as its chairman for two years ago. He served as its chairman for two years ago.

Janet Memorial Home picks Clarke as executive director

Gregory Clarke of 119 Teol., a Springfield, has been named executive director of Janet Memorial Home, a residential treatment center for adolescent girls located in Elizabeth.

Clarke was district supervisor of the Newark office of the Bureau of Children's Services for four years. Before joining the Newark office, he was an assistant supervisor in the bureau's Elizabeth office. Clarke also was a social worker in the East Orange school system, and an assistant supervisor in the Jersey City office of the Bureau of Children's Services.

Clarke is a graduate of Bates College, Lewiston, Me., where he majored in economics. He received a master's social work degree from the School of Social Work, Rutgers, the State University.

Clarke is a member of the National Association of Social Workers, and is accredited by the Academy of Certified Social Workers. He is a member of the Master Works Choral Society. Camping and canoeing are among his hobbies.

His wife, Mrs. Ryonella Dawn Clarke, is executive director of the Family Service Bureau. She also is a graduate social worker. They have four children, Karen, 12; Susan, 10; Laura, 8, and Walter, 5.

Accepting the position at the Janet Memorial Home has given New Jersey children for the past 113 years. Accepting the position as the new executive director of the home, which is the tradition of helpfulness which Janet Memorial Home has an enviable reputation among those who work with the troubled adolescent, for its constant adaptation to the changing times and the needs of each generation presents.

Only in the past year, two innovative additions have been made to its constantly expanding program: An on-ground, on-campus, second, group home has been established. It is the first of its kind in the state, and is intended to constantly evaluate, adapt and adopt to Janet Memorial Home those methods that have proven to be successful in helping the adolescent girl with problems.

Dear Lattie

Dear Lattie, I have been back several times, writes two letters and called the four times. The manager keeps telling me to "call him" but I don't know who he is. I haven't gotten anything. Can the Bureau help?

Dear Brooking, I spoke with the manager and a check is being mailed to you for the purchase of the roller as well as the 1500. The manager is opening the box. Next time you purchase an appliance, ask to read the instruction book.

Dear Miss O'Farrell, I wrote you about my problem with the sofa some time ago. You said that you would try and help me. I then got a letter from the Better Business Bureau saying that you had investigated and that you could not help me. I am writing you again. I want my money back and insist that you make the store give it to me.

Dear Furious, The Better Business Bureau did investigate and learned that you had not been entirely frank about the matter. You purchased the sofa three years ago. The sofa has not been in storage, as you claim, but has been constantly in use. In fact, the store manager showed us correspondence from you stating that your sister complained that the sofa was getting too lumpy for him to come sleeping on it. At that time you asked the store to give you a new sofa. The store refused but offered to replace the cushions for a very fair and reasonable price. You have used the sofa for three years and now want the store to give you back the money you paid for it. We believe that your claim is unwarranted.

Dear Lattie, My folks gave me a sewing machine for my birthday. They said I should get through it through the store and show them how much I love it. I want to make something out of it. Can you help me?

Dear Silbich, We asked our shopper who suggested that you contact the store where the machine was purchased and ask for some instruction on the subject. She did have some tips that may be helpful. If you're a beginner, make sure you choose simple patterns and fabrics that are easy to handle. Before you buy the fabric examine it carefully and read any hangtags or information. You can usually find out the bolt ends. If you are going to line the draperies, make fabric. Don't buy a lining that requires a different type of care or performance than the finished project. Again, your best bet is to make sure you get the machine where you bought it.

Where both teacher and student learn Pilot-program uses individualized instruction

Thirty-five students from the Morris County Vocational-Technical Institute are participating in a pilot program which stresses individualized instruction. The program is being conducted by the Foreign Language Department at Clifton Borough High School and a graduate student. I've been teaching for five years but now I am thinking of teaching in terms I never thought of before.

THEY ARE FOUR basic characteristics to this type of program. They are: 1. Students are free to proceed through their own materials at their own pace. 2. The program is designed to teach language through the use of audio-visual materials. 3. This program is known by using materials. 4. The program is known by using materials.

Pharmacists will press for continued education

The New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association has announced a continuing program of education for its members. The association is planning to implement the society's recently announced intention to seek legislative action to require continuing education for pharmacists.

The association's president, Nicholas J. DiStasio, said that the committee, headed by Matthew Waters of Newark, is making studies and inquiries into the subject and will prepare recommendations as to procedure.

The study group already has endorsed a resolution concerning drug information. The committee is planning to continue education a requirement for all pharmacists registered in the state, DiStasio said.

In the public interest, 100 percent participation is needed, and that is a goal that cannot be achieved unless licensees are required to attend continuing education. It is not content to rest on its laurels.

Dr. Bert Hochstadt, vice-president for management information services of McGraw-Hill, New York City, has been named the board of trustees of Ridge College, Trenton.

Bar unit prepares broad revision of delinquency laws

The New Jersey State Bar Association's Committee on Delinquency is preparing a complete revision of the state's juvenile delinquency laws.

Marcia R. Richman of Newark, a deputy public defender who is chairman of the New Jersey State Bar Association's Committee on Delinquency, said that in the committee's view the number of reasons for delinquency is a number of reasons.

Chairman John P. Gallagher of the New Jersey Highway Authority, which operates the Arts Center and the Garden State Parkway, said this week arrangements have been made with the Federated Art Associations of New Jersey to present a display of paintings and sculpture.

The paintings will be hung from now on, from what will be erected on the ground and along walkways of the Arts Center located in the Telegraph Hill Park off Exit 116 of the Parkway.

Among those participating in the show will be the following members of the Kenilworth Art Association: Shirlee Silverstein, 200 N. 10th St., Union; Rose Egan, 100 N. 10th St., Kenilworth; Mattie Jancic, 19 Park Dr., Kenilworth; and Carl Dembowski, 80 Mt. Vernon ave., Irvington.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am a boy, 15 years old, and I have a problem. The girl I like is very much in love with me, and she has discovered that if she found someone else, she never has a date or even talks with him. I have written her letters asking what happened between us, and if she would please go with me again. She doesn't write back. I really love her. What can I do to get her back?"

OUR REPLY: "If you do not remember doing anything to cause the break-up and she fails to answer your letters, why not write to her in a nice way? If she decided she no longer likes you, there is no formula you can use to make her like you again. She may even dislike you more if you continue to send letters. If you have told her you still like her, leave it that way for a while and see what happens."

Publicly Challenge are urged to observe the Friday deadline for other than spot news. Include your name, address and phone number.

Realtor, bar groups plan a test suit on documents

A LAWSUIT expected to attract wide interest has been filed in the New Jersey Superior Court, Trenton, through the cooperation of the Jersey State Bar Association and the New Jersey Association of Realtor Boards, to determine the extent to which real estate brokers and salesmen may prepare documents incident to transactions where they are brokers.

The suit, filed by the Bar Association against the Association of Realtor Boards and nine realtors, who have volunteered as defendants, seeks a declaratory judgment that the preparation of contracts of sale by all real estate brokers and salesmen constitutes the unauthorized practice of law, and should be restrained.

The litigation results from a suggestion made by the New Jersey Supreme Court in a 1970 case, State v. Bender. Although in that case the Supreme Court held that a broker who drafts real estate contracts is not guilty of the unauthorized practice of law, it did not eliminate the possibility that such conduct might constitute the unauthorized practice of law, and suggested that a test case be brought to establish what regulation, if any, might be needed to protect the public interest.

Since real estate transactions constitute the most important investment which most people make, the Bar Association alleges that they must be handled with the greatest care and skill. It contends that the preparation of such contracts is a legal activity which should be restricted to those who are properly trained and supervised by the courts.

The Bar Association requests that the court look into the matter and consider whether brokers should be prohibited from advising the public about legal matters for which they may not be qualified by training, or to which they are not subject to supervision by the courts. The Bar Association suggests that, at the very least, contracts prepared by brokers be subject to revision when legal counsel for the parties and the terms may be injurious to their interests.

REALTORS CLAIM That the preparation of a sales contract is essential to their business, that they have always been permitted to draw such documents, and that they are adequately trained for it being subject to the supervision of the New Jersey Real Estate Commission.

Robert F. Ferguson Jr., executive vice-president of the Association of Realtor Boards, said in the suit, "The inference to be drawn from the Bar Association's position is that they would like to have a lawyer review every real estate transaction. This would be cumbersome, time-consuming, and expensive. Ferguson also points out that brokers are not prohibited from drawing such contracts in other states.

Although the two associations seek opposite results, the Bar Association, Robert Bank, president of the 600-member New Jersey State Bar Association, they are agreed that the decision of the court should be based upon the interests of the public and not upon the rights of their members to perform the challenged service."

Coloring change set for Parkway

There'll be a change in the coloring along the Garden State Parkway. Toll plazas will be repainted in a color scheme reflecting the pale yellow or buff of New Jersey's official state flag along with foliage green. The painting pattern will also be modified.

Chairman John T. Gagliardi of the New Jersey Highway Authority, which operates the Parkway, reported that upgrading of the restaurant-house service areas along the road was proceeding at full speed with several new ones to be completed by the end of the year.

The Monmouth, Brookdale and Vauxhall service areas were marked as ready in the northern Parkway sections with the larger Chesapeake unit due for completion by mid-August.
