YES, MR. MOTORIST, THERE IS A RT. 78!

BUT, MR. MOTORIST, IT'S NOT for you who regularly have to slow to a crawl as you fight your way through the tangled traffic on Rt. 22 in the Union area—the congestion which Rt. 78, as an east-west highway across the state, was designed to ease. From the entrance ramp at Berkeley Heights (above left), heading west to Phillipsburg on the Pennsylvania line, drivers find a clear road ahead, with only occasional light traffic till they reach the Rt. 287 junction near Somerville. But coming east, it's another story. When motorists reach Berkeley Heights (right), they find that Rt. 78 comes to an abrupt end. If they want to continue eastward, it's back to Rt. 22. (Photos by Greg Koep)

SOE takes newspapers at Glass-in Saturday

Springfield's third Glass-in of the year will be held Saturday at the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School parking lot, on Mountain Avenue. For the first time, newspapers as well as glass containers, will be collected for recycling.

The first collection, sponsored by the Springfield Save Our Environment Committee, was held last December and yielded more than six tons; the second, in January, almost 12 tons. The committee chairman, Charlotte Karp, said that they have been "rewarded by the response of Springfield residents" and issued a call to service clubs and organizations to aid in processing the glass.

Mrs. Karp asked all contributors to lighten the work load of the volunteers by observing "a few simple rules":

1. Rinse all glass, but leave on the labels.
2. Remove all caps, wires, metal or plastic parts.
3. Sort the glass by color if there is a sizeable amount to be turned in.

"The newspapers in bundles that may be easily handled."

"Please observe the closing hour, so that trucks may depart on schedule."

She added, "In the past, local Scout Troops 70 and 700 have supplied expert and dedicated manpower. For Saturday, Troop 73 and the Squires of the Knights of Columbus have volunteered their services, while other groups have the matter under consideration. In addition, Dr. Theima L. Sandmeier, principal of the Florence Gaudineer School has secured the help of a number of her students.

"With all of these special people helping, and with the public spirited cooperation of all of our citizens, we cannot help but succeed," said Mrs. Karp. She noted that "with the trucking supplied to the Joint by the 10th Engineer Battalion, 50th Armored Division, of the New Jersey National Guard, we are prepared for the greatest turnout ever."

Aid announced for flood control

Rep. Florence P. Dwyer (R-12th Dist.) this week announced federal approval of a $275,000 grant to Springfield for a storm drainage project. The grant was made by the Department of Housing and Urban Development under its water and sewer facilities grant program.

The new storm drainage system will consist of updating, lining and surfacing approximately 3,000 linear feet of Bryant Brook East and 3,000 feet of Bryant Brook West. Mayor Robert Weltschek said that the grant, the full amount applied for, will greatly ease the burden on local taxpayers.

Bids for Route 78 due this summer: Rinaldo

The State Department of Transportation will accept bids this summer for construction of Rt. 78 through portions of Union and Springfield. It was announced yesterday by State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldo of Union.

Sen. Rinaldo said he had obtained information about the department's plans from sources high in the transportation agency.

Letters revealing the department's intentions were scheduled to be sent yesterday to officials in Union Township, who had expressed concern last month over the lack of progress on Route 78.

According to Rinaldo, the state road agency plans to seek bids on paving Rt. 78 from its junction with Rt. 24 in Springfield to the Union Township line. That project would also include reconstruction of a bridge at Springfield avenue. The state transportation department also intends to solicit bids on the paving of Rt. 24 from the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad near the Springfield-Phillipsburg line eastward to an intersection with Rt. 78.

Bids on the Union portion will involve construction work. The state acquired land for the right of way through Union Township nearly a decade ago. The section from the Springfield line to Burnet Avenue in Union will be constructed under a contract that is expected to be awarded after bids are taken in mid-year.

Bids will also be received in the middle of this year on the section from Burnet Avenue to the Garden State Parkway. Senator Rinaldo said the work would also involve construction of ramps in Union Township that would permit motorists to reach the Parkway. Rinaldo added that the work in Union Township is scheduled to be completed in 1974.

The Union Township legislator also said bids are expected to be solicited late this year on the section linking the Parkway with Lyons Avenue. (Continued on page 11)

Arrangements made for visit by bloodmobile

Plans for the forthcoming Red Cross bloodmobile visit to Springfield are well under way. It will take place on Thursday, March 16, from 7:30 to 6:15 p.m. at the Presbyterian Parish House, 32 Church Hill.

Participating donor groups and their chairmen are: Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Tom Galles; St. James Church, Mrs. Edward Kaye; Joint PTAs, Mrs. E. L. Corey; Temple Sharey Shalom, Mrs. Charles Danziger; Temple Beth Ahm, Wallace Callen; Saks 5th Ave. and the Springfield Lions Club, Harold Bishop. Donor appointments can be made through the individual chairmen or by calling Mrs. Daniel Kalem, blood bank chairman, at 376-0582.

Tax changes may have mixed effect in township

Elderly persons struggling to meet expenses and maintain homes on limited incomes would probably be the primary Springfield residents to benefit financially from proposals of the New Jersey Tax Policy Committee.

Other homeowners in the township would find their tax bills somewhat lower. But with an income tax and new sales taxes, some with net incomes over $15,000 would probably end up paying out more in taxes than they do now.

A Springfield resident owning a house with a current market value of $30,000 and having a net taxable income of $15,000 per year would apparently end up with a small saving. A resident owning the same house but with a net taxable income of $20,000 would have to pay a little more than he does now.

These are preliminary conclusions which can be drawn from the lengthy and highly complex report of the Tax Policy Committee, whose chairman, Harry L. Sears, said the recommended plan would "give us a tax system that no longer soaked the poor, the elderly, and the homeowner."

The principal means by which the committee hopes to accomplish this is by having the state take over a large part of school costs from the property owner.

But the proposals will probably face rocky going in the legislature, with strong opposition expected from veterans, who would lose their tax exemptions; teachers, who probably would have to negotiate salaries with regional organizations rather than local school boards; and other groups.

The full impact of the report will not be known until experts can study and analyze the six volumes that make up the report.

But there are some indications of what the effects would be in Springfield, should the report be adopted as it stands.

There are about 300 senior citizens with incomes under $5,000 a joint income for husband and wife, and not including Social Security or railroad pensions who are getting property tax exemptions of $100. The state reimburses the township for half this amount.

The Tax Policy Committee recommended that the senior citizens' tax exemptions be increased to $500 and the income limits for those eligible be raised to $7,000. The state would pay the cost of the additional exemptions.

VETERANS

Springfield has about 1,000 veterans who are receiving property tax exemptions of $50 per year, none of it reimbursed by the state. Under recommendations of the committee, these exemptions would be eliminated completely.

PROPERTY TAX RATES

With the state picking up a large share of the tab for school costs, property taxes would drop somewhat in Springfield but not as much as in some other communities, because Springfield is a comparatively wealthy town.

The 1971 Springfield tax rate of $8.72 per $100 of assessed valuation would, under Tax Policy Committee report provisions, have dropped to $7.25. On a house assessed at $15,000 (with a true value of slightly more than $30,000), this means that the tax bill would have decreased from the 1971 figure of $1,308 to $1,087. (Continued on page 11)

Players will cast Simon comedy at center next week

The Springfield Community Players will hold an open casting for their next production on Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Sarah Bailey Civic Center on Church Hill.

The Players will next present Neil Simon's "Plaza Suite," a comedy in three parts. This will be the sixth production by the Springfield Community Players, and follows closely in the footsteps of "Fiddler on the Roof." Carl Hantz will be the director of this next show, and production has been set for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, May 19, 20 and 21.

The Players said welcome all newcomers, and "many people are needed for set production, make-up, costumes and a variety of other jobs pertaining to the theatre, besides acting."

A troupe of the Players, under the sponsorship of Springfield Post 7803, VFW, visited the Lyons Veterans' Hospital on Feb. 10. Gerald Cohen, who is the commander of the post and also a member of the Players, brought the Drama Group to present their production of "Fiddler on the Roof."

"Fiddler" was directed by Bernice Barr, and starred Manfred Orbach as Tevye, the dairyman and Tama Bruder as Golde, his wife. Rose Miller, head of the VFW Auxiliary, and the women of the auxiliary, gave apples from Geigers to all attending and performing.

Dewart decries resignations of two members

The Hon. James Dewart, chairman of the Senior Citizens' Housing Committee, this week charged that the two new members of the committee, who submitted their resignations last week to the Township Committee, had acted with undue haste.

He said that Mrs. Barbara Seal and Leslie Ward, before their resignations, had not presented a plan of the selection to the township, which would have given the committee a chance to discuss the matter.

Mr. Dewart noted that the committee will meet tonight at 8:30 in the Planning Board room at 700 Central Ave. and that the meeting is open to the public.

The full text of his statement follows:

"The verbal spanking given to the Senior Citizens' Housing Committee at the meeting of the Township Committee on Tuesday, Feb. 22, deserves a reply which I make personally, and not as chairman. The progress that the committee has made in three meetings since Jan. 13 is proof of the seriousness with which we are pursuing our work despite the allegations of our critics.

"Mrs. Seal, Mr. Ward and I were added to the committee's membership on Jan. 11, making a total of seven on the panel. Jan. 13 we selected our site consultant, the last member of the professional team whom the previous committee had not been able to choose.

"Wanting to move as quickly as possible the committee, site consultant, and architect toured proposed sites on Jan. 16.

"Feb. 3, the next regularly scheduled meeting, the professional leadership made its recommendations regarding sites, and were authorized to negotiate with the owner of a choice location.

"Two weeks later, Feb. 17, our consultants reported that the price per acre was far in excess of what we would be permitted to pay." (Continued on page 11)

GOP committee seeks candidates for offices

Harold H. Liebeskind, chairman of the 1972 Springfield Republican screening committee, this week announced that candidates are being sought for the offices of township clerk, and for three-year and one-year terms as township committeemen.

Resumes should be sent to Liebeskind at 1 Dogwood Ter., no later than March 16.

State employment level down—less than usual

Richard M. Heymann, commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry, announced this week that the state's nonfarm wage and salary employment dipped in January to 2,555,700 from 2,415,000 a month ago. The decline of 140,700 was less than usually occurs in January.

Engineers 'forget' N.J. opportunities, say college deans

Young people in New Jersey may be overlooking opportunities for engineering careers in their own state, five engineering college deans agreed this week. Because of the state's heavy concentration of industry, New Jersey is a traditional employer of engineers from other states, according to the members of the Council of New Jersey Engineering College Deans.

Commissioner Heymann said, "The bulk of this month's decrease resulted from the typically seasonal reductions in wholesale and retail trade and in construction activity. The decline in manufacturing was limited to 2,000 in food products industries and 4,300 among soft goods manufacturers."

The number of full-time payroll workers, which is estimated monthly by the department's Division of Planning and Research on the basis of an employer survey, was 5,000 less than that of a year ago. Nonmanufacturing employment was up by 30,700, sparked mainly by over-the-year gains of 15,300 in trade, 8,600 in government, and 7,800 in service. This was more than offset by a drop of 36,300 from a year ago in the manufacturing sector. The drop from last year in manufacturing was caused largely by declines of 10,200 in electrical machinery, 5,000 in chemicals, and 4,800 in fabricated metals.

Average weekly earnings of factory production workers fell by 2.22 in January to $156.90. This was the first monthly decline in weekly earnings since July-1971. Wage rate increases and higher overtime pay added three cents to the average hourly earnings bringing them to $3.81. However, decreased overtime cut the workers by 39 minutes to an average of 36.6 hours. Compared with a year ago, weekly earnings were up by $12.51 or 8.7 per cent, reflecting both a longer workweek and higher hourly earnings.

New Jersey institutions are making every effort to increase their capacity for those interested in becoming associated with the state's industries and public agencies, reported the deans. "We are acutely aware of the contribution which engineers can make to the needs of society, so we are adjusting our priorities to educate young men and women in solving problems in such areas as the environment, mass transportation, urban renewal and health care."

The council reported that approximately 30,000 engineering students receive baccalaureate degrees each year in the United States. At the present time it is estimated that all those engaged in engineering work throughout the country, New Jersey employ about 10 percent of the engineering colleges and universities produce only 5 percent of the nation's total each year.

Art workshops for family teams

Members of the Fine Arts Department of Newark State College, Union, have designed two workshops for parents and children. The Art Workshop for Parent and Child is designed to encourage dialogue and understanding between parent and child through art media, and through an artistic environment. Activities will include making macrame and jewelry, sculpturing, painting, and other projects. The workshop will meet Saturday mornings, 10 a.m. to noon, at the Newark State College, Union, campus. The fee for a parent-child team is $45. Supplies are additional. A catalogue will be sent upon request, to the office of the Center for Continuing Education, 10-527-2867, in the Keen Building, K-4, on the second floor.

NSC plans shows at Lincoln Center

The spring lecture series at Newark State College will include two Sunday evening productions at the Vivian Beaumont Theater of Lincoln Center. Participants will include the performances of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" on March 5 and of "The Crucible" on April 30. The fee of $10 for the lecture series includes admission to the lectures, bus trips to and from Lincoln Center, and admission to the two productions. A brochure on the series and registration materials are available on request from the office of the Center for Continuing Education, 327-2867, in the Keen Building, K-4, on the second floor.

String players appear at Seton

The March Chamber Orchestra, a ensemble of 12 string players plus harpsichord, will appear in concert at Seton Hall University in South Orange on Thursday, March 2, at 8:30 p.m. Tickets to the concert, which is included in the Student Programming Board's concert and lecture subscription series, are $4 at the box office.

Conducted by Hans Stadlman, the March Chamber Orchestra has performed throughout the state and has been featured on radio and television. The orchestra is made up of students from Seton Hall University and other area colleges.

Tax changes

Apartment dwellers would be able to deduct 30 percent of the rent they pay from their state income tax. There would be higher exemptions for senior citizens who rent.

Whatever savings most taxpayers make on their property taxes will probably be swallowed up in an array of new taxes, including a state income tax and an expanding sales tax (the sales tax would, for example, apply to clothing, which is now exempt).

The income tax would account for the largest chunk of these new taxes. Illustrations given by the Tax Policy Committee show the "net burden" of the state income tax on a family of five with various income levels, after the taxpayer has made the deduction to which he is entitled from his federal income tax.

A taxpayer with a taxable income after deductions of $7,500 would pay $22; with $10,000, $41; with $12,500, $61; with $15,000, $77; with $20,000, $116; with $25,000, $227; with $50,000, $1,227.

THE PROBLEM FOR SPRINGFIELD is that the report was made public, when rumors of its contents were circulating through the state, they were gloomy predictions that "it cannot be good for Springfield."

The report bore out this forecast but only to some degree. The reason lies in the total amount of property value in each community compared with that community's school population.

In Union, the equalized valuation per pupil, allowing for both local and Regional schools, is $662. This is nearly twice the state average of $318 per pupil. And it makes a comparatively wealthy community.

Another factor is involved. Springfield has been spending (figure for a hypothetical formula used by the state) $1,200 per pupil, compared with a statewide average of $600.

Under provisions of the Tax Policy Commission report, communities which have been spending more than the statewide per-pupil average would be able to continue doing so.

The poorer communities would even get state aid known as "local money funds" to pay at least part of the difference between the state average and their actual expenditures.

But Springfield, as one of the well-off municipalities, would get only 3.75 percent of this difference in money funds.

The basic state school aid for Springfield in 1971-72 would have been $1,510,122 under the Tax Policy Commission proposal.

Another $1,207,188 in money funds, bringing the township to the state average to its present per-pupil expenditure level, would have been raised under the estimated $7.25-per-$100 local property tax.

A tax-inflation Commission report is not adopted, Springfield faces a serious problem unless the Legislature takes special action on school financing.

This is a result of a recent ruling by State Superior Court Judge Theodore I. Botter, who held that a school tax system based primarily on local property taxes was unconstitutional because it denied equality to the rural and urban poor.

As part of this decision, Judge Botter struck down the "leave harmless" provision in the Botter Act — minimum state aid that goes to communities such as Springfield which do not qualify for other types of assistance.

Senior housing

and the committee requested that the team of experts analyze the remaining sites in regard to their possible use.

Take note that the committee was engaged by 19 members on Feb. 3, that the two members were appointed committee action to date, and personally toured the sites. It doesn't sound like as if we have been negligent in facing the responsibility given us by the township.

Let me further state that any member of the committee, including those who presented their resignations to the township fathers, could have made a motion regarding site selection at the meeting on Feb. 17. They did not choose to do so, or at least I heard no motion by anyone concerning any tract of land in Springfield. We did, however, ask the consultants to investigate another excellent site.

May I suggest a little less heat, and much more light to aid the committee in its task in a community which is obviously kind poor, and which has charged us with the task of erecting low-cost housing for senior citizens."

MEASUREMENTS: "YOUR OWN THERM" "AM" "THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF HEALTH" "THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF HEALTH" "THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF HEALTH"

GERMAN MEASLES — A 19th-century virus once called "measles" is still known as such, but for those living in the 1970's, this statement is only partially true. With the development of a vaccine, we no longer have to "go through" German measles.

Also known as rubella, German measles was first considered to be an unimportant childhood disease until 1941, when an Australian eye doctor noted cataracts in many infants whose mothers had contracted rubella early in pregnancy.

Today, rubella is a "silent" killer. It causes "rubella syndrome," which is found to have a history of hearing, heart defects and mental retardation.

A virus called rubella is spread by droplets expelled from the nose and throat. Its symptoms — light fever, swelling of the lymph glands and a rash — appear from 11 to 18 days after exposure.

However, infection does not occur without symptoms. If a woman contracts rubella during her first three months of pregnancy, and possibly just before conception, the virus can pass through the placenta, apparently damaging the fetus by attacking developing tissues and cells. Different parts of the fetus are affected, depending on the stage of development at the time of infection.

The rubella virus was first isolated in 1961. Five years later, scientists at the Division of Biologics and Control developed a live attenuated (weakened) rubella virus strain, "5001," thereafter, the "National Institute of Health" announced its extensive vaccine research program.

At the University of Texas, scientists and volunteers in many parts of the nation, a thousands of tests proved the vaccine to be both safe and effective. The federal government issued a "license" for its manufacture in 1969, using the rubella strain developed by the CDC.

The CDC reported recently that more than 22 million doses of vaccine have been distributed so far. It is estimated that about half of the rubella vaccine target population — children aged one to 15 — have been immunized.

Since a rubella vaccine has been available, the Public Health Service, the National Institute of Health, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the CDC have been working to increase the number of children immunized.
