Thirteen student productions from an expanded four-county area of New Jersey are entered in the High School Musical Competition. The winning performance will be staged at the Garden State Arts Center. Chairman John P. Gallagher of the New Jersey Highway Authority, which operates the Arts Center on the Garden State Parkway, reported this week that expansion of the 1972 competition to include high schools from Ocean and Somerset as well as Middlesex and Union Counties has drawn 13 entries. The high school musical selected as best in the competition by a panel of judges will be staged at the Arts Center on Friday, June 2. The competition is sponsored by and proceeds of the grand finale in the Garden State Arts Center Fund, which finances free programs at the Parkway shopping plaza for New Jersey school children and senior citizens.

The winner among the 13 student productions, viewed in their school auditoriums, will present an afternoon matinee for an invited audience of senior citizens June 2 at the Arts Center with an evening performance open to all at $2 paid admission. The 1972 high school entries listed by county with their student musicals and dates for local showing are as follows: Union County: Cranford High ("Palomino Game") - March 16-17; New Providence High ("The Music Man") - March 17-18; Rahway High ("Sunset Boulevard") - March 17-18; Summit High ("Peer Gynt") - March 17-18; Roselle Catholic High ("Wizard of Oz") - April 21-22; Middlesex County: New Brunswick Senior High ("Guys & Dolls") - March 25-26; Perth Amboy High School ("Man of La Mancha") - April 26-27; J.P. Park Commission cites need to add more open-space acres for recreation

The Union County Park Commission reiterated this week its statements asserting the need for adding more open-space acres for recreation. The commission has filed applications for state Green Acres assistance funds for 475 acres. After future meetings with Green Acres and U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Agency of Parks officials, the commission plans to file for an additional 200 to 300 acres. AT THE PRESENT TIME, the commission is studying passage of a bill, S-300, which has cleared the State Senate and is now in the General Assembly. This bill provides enabling legislation, permitting the Board of Chosen Freeholders to add to the Park Commission funding for capital projects. The approval of this legislation is necessary for the purchase of the Oak Ridge Golf Course in Clark. The Oak Ridge preliminary application for 101 acres is one of four filed by the Park Commission for Green Acres projects. Another is Hidden Valley, comprising 72 acres in Summit and Springfield. The remaining two parcels will be disclosed when discussions reach a more advanced stage with state and federal officials. The commission has stated that it has "always been conscious of the areas of population throughout the county," and maintains and develops recreational facilities close to centers of population, whenever possible. BECAUSE IN THE EARLY DAYS of the Park Commission the eastern and central parts of the county were more heavily populated than the western end, more recreational activities and facilities were provided in the eastern half of Union County. It adjusts to changes in recreational and leisure time needs and desires, as gauged by the use of facilities. Whenever possible, the Park Commission seeks to provide the multiple use of some of its areas, such as converting baseball and softball fields into football and soccer fields in the fall.

The Union County Chapter of the American Heart Association will continue its fund-raising drive through March. It was announced today by State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldi of Union, sponsor of the annual Heart Fund. Senator Rinaldi said Heart Fund volunteers who did not complete their calls during February will remain on the job through the end of March. "In most communities, the Heart Fund campaign spans the efforts of volunteer solicitors to explore cold and inclement weather during February hampered our efforts. This is why we must extend our drive. The Union County unit has set a goal of $100,000 for 1972. In order to reach this target, we must hit every home in Union County. It is noted that the funds contributed by Union County residents are used to support the research, community service and education programs by the Heart Fund on a year-round basis.

Other members of the committee include Mrs. Donald Faughnan, Mrs. William Sweeney and Mrs. Frank DeRobertis. Mrs. Theodore Melrosky of Roselle will provide the musical accompaniment for the affair. Members of the club will receive an agenda.

YMCA is offering spring scuba class

A 10-week basic course in scuba diving will be conducted at the YMCA of Eastern Union County, 135 Madison ave., Elizabeth, Co. time, such as developed outside of city limits, and are intended for use over long periods of time, such as over an entire day. A third purpose of county parks is to develop areas that will serve the people of more than one community. However, the Park Commission stresses the fact that it is limited to capital expenditures for new areas and facilities, generally requiring enabling legislation. In closing its statement, the commission again noted that it provides for all areas of the county and that it plans ahead on the same basis. It emphasizes that the largest single tract in the park system—the Waldenburg Reservation, representing more than one third of the total acreage at present, is essentially a nature preserve easement from all parts of the county by those especially interested in it. Without this reservation, park holdings are about equally divided between the eastern and western sections of the county, with connecting links almost completely through the central parts of Union County.

Would treat 3 schools as one unit

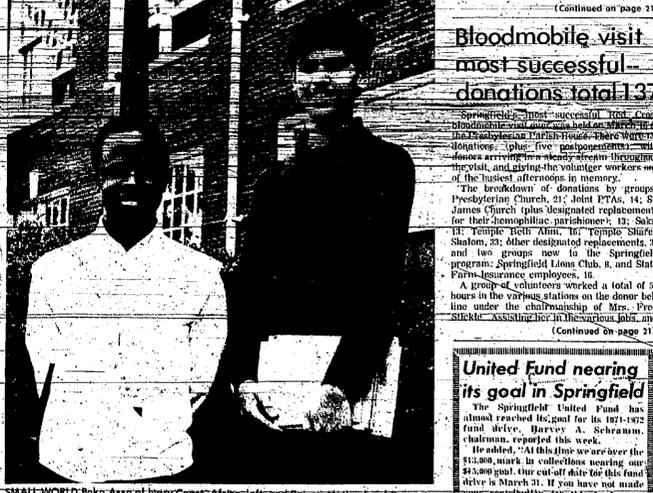

Plan is not yet final, board informs crowd. BY ANKER GOLD. The Springfield Board of Education Monday night unveiled its proposed plan for a drastic redistricting of the town's four elementary schools, which run up to the fifth grade. An audience of some 200 local residents who packed the cafeteria at the Florence Gaudin School heard school board members stress that the plan is not final and will not be adopted until after at least two more public meetings to provide for a full expression of public opinion. The board's proposal is designed to meet a consistent decline in school population, as well as deteriorating facilities at the Raymond Children's School, which has no longer met educational standards. The plan would treat the Chisholm, Thelma Sandmire and Howard Walton School Districts as a single unit. All fourth- and fifth graders from areas now served by the three schools would attend the Walton School, and all first-, second and third graders would go to the Sandmire School. All kindergarten pupils would attend Chisholm, which would also house classes for pre-kindergarten youngsters. The board said this could be done next year unless for all children a year too young for kindergarten for a pilot group of some 240. The plan also looks some five years into the future, when it says facilities at the Caldwell School, the town's oldest, would severely diminish use of modern teaching techniques and coordination with the town's largest educational institution. If proposed that Caldwell then be replaced by three "comparatively inexpensive but highly functional open area buildings" in the area between the Walton and Sandmire schools, to consolidate all education up to the fifth grade in one elementary education plant. The report does not deal at all with the Florence Gaudin School, which houses grades six and eight. Secondary education for Springfield youngsters is handled by the Regional High School District and beyond the jurisdiction of the local school board. (Continued on page 21)

Dayton Regional is host to youth forum delegates

For a three-week period this month, Jonathan Dayton-Regional High School in Springfield has been host to two delegates to the 1972 World Youth Forum. These delegates were staying with families in Springfield and attending classes at Dayton. The delegates and their host students are: Boka Asan of Ivory Coast in Africa; with Paul Finnoff; and Hajek Motwala of Poonah, Maharashtra, India; with Robert Seeger. Delegates from 20 countries spent the period from early January to mid-March in the United States in participation in the 20th annual World Youth Forum. While here, they lived with American families and visited high schools, studying topics of worldwide importance and taking part in a five-week series of television shows now being broadcast on Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. on WGS-TV Channel 2 in New York. They will spend the last week in the month visiting government officials in various discussion groups. (Continued on page 21)

Kaleidoscope of art and color featured at Springfield Library

Vivid colors, varied textures and diverse techniques are characteristics that highlight the wall hanging exhibition on display in the meeting room of the Springfield Public Library, 66 Mountain Ave. The exhibition has been coordinated by the artist and craftsman club at Cranford. The contemporary works of seven artists, including Linda Vargo, are on display. The exhibition is open to the public and on view during regular library hours until March 11. Hangings of Ann Debeck, whose pieces were included in "Discovery '71" at Rutgers University—her educational background includes a master's degree from Trent Institute. Linda Vargo's work deals with a whimsical theme—the whimsical and the large macramé wall hangings of Judy Levy of Roselle suggest the versatility in the art of macramé. Ruthie Vicker-Frazerstein, a brightly colored addition to the collection. The exhibition is open to the public and on view during regular library hours until March 11. (Continued on page 21)

State Senator MATTHEW RINAIDO

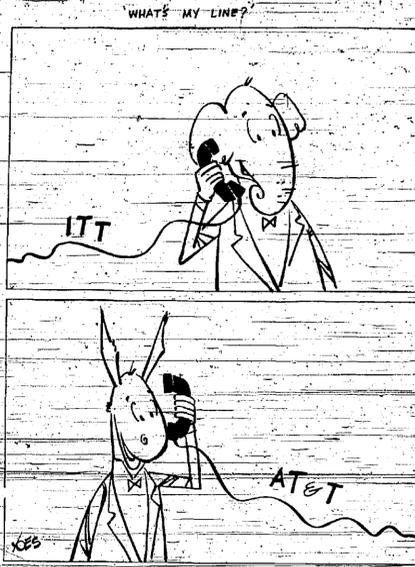

A few months ago residents of the metropolitan area were shocked to hear of the death of a pair of New York teenagers in a plane crash over the Atlantic Ocean.

The saddest aspect of this tragedy is that the deaths might have been avoided if the operators of the plane had been more responsible.

Since people of all ages go to drive-in theaters during the colder months of the year, they should have some assurance that the operator will do more than collect their money and hand them over to some untrained attendant.

The BILL I HAVE INTRODUCED in the State Senate would require drive-in theater operators to make sure all attendants are properly trained and supervised.

I do not believe that this measure would impose an undue burden on the drive-in theater operator. It would give the customers some assurance that someone will be responsible and concerned about his welfare.

He received a bachelor of science degree in business in 1970 and received scholarship support from both Wharton and the University of Pittsburgh.

Uncertain where he would attend school, Frye went to Pittsburgh with the Rev. Elmer Williams, whom Frye knew as the former pastor of his church, the First Baptist Church in Southall, Va.

State Board plan would boost tuition 40 percent at NSC, other schools

(Second of two articles)
By FRANK PONTANAU
Jurying the plan for a proposed increase in tuition for Newark State College and New Jersey State College is the question.

The State Board of Higher Education, facing a $12 million deficit in the higher education budget, has turned to the students to solve its problem.

At a meeting held Friday in Trenton, the state board took the tuition hike one step closer to reality by reducing to change its stand on the proposal.

The NSC students face an increase in tuition from $175 per semester to $250 per semester, or about 40 percent. The new figure is 100 percent greater than the 75 per semester tuition in 1970-71.

While the $12 million deficit may seem dramatic for the board, the 40 percent increase in tuition for NSC is not as dramatic for the students, many of whom are already working their way through college.

While tuition costs at the six colleges went up four years ago, Rutgers has not had an increase since 1956-57. Fairbanks noted in that time, the cost of educating a student while his cost today is $1,289 per semester.

The State We're In

By David F. Moore, North Jersey Conservation Foundation

One of the first signs of spring is the arrival of the robins which occurred on my lawn on the morning of March 2. Another is the New Jersey State Department of Environmental Protection's report that the gypsy moth has been detected in the state.

POPULATION DYNAMICS is a fancy term covering raised or lowered numbers of species due to such ecological factors as predation, parasitism, food supply, climate, disease and stress. The latter is an increasingly important process by which predators and parasites place a great deal of pressure on the population.

ANSWERS TO 40 OTHERS
Among these are discussions of the administrative code under which also organization, powers and duties of all county departments and agencies are established; the option given counties to administer civil service under supervision of the State Department of Civil Service and provisions for application of civil service rules to county employees.

THE STATE SUPPORTS six state colleges: Rutgers University and Newark College of Engineering, with varying degrees of autonomy. The six colleges are: Rutgers, State University of New Jersey, Newark State College, Trenton State College, William Paterson University and Montclair State College.

ADDITION TO tuition at all the colleges, there are other fees, including those for student activities, student services, registration, and optional public insurance, on-campus living expenses, etc.

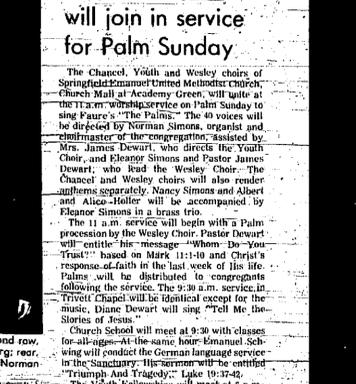

THE STATE BOARD OF Higher Education eventually gets its way on the tuition increase issue. It can expect student demands for a larger say in how higher education money is spent, according to both DiPernando, president of the Student Organization at Newark State for the past year.

IN WHAT FORM DOES YOUR SEWAGE GO TO SEA?

There is a great deal of interest and discussion presently regarding treatment of sewage being discharged from our communities directly into our waterways. Many people do not really understand how sewage is handled in water or, in fact, how the process of sewage treatment works. This is a very important area of understanding which has contributed to the slowness with which local governments have entered into projects relating to building of sewage treatment facilities. The average citizen has, due to a limited understanding, not insisted vigorously enough on this important community service.

A municipality may choose between four degrees of sewage treatment.

It can provide only primary treatment of sewage (primary or primary coupled with secondary) and it can decide whether or not to combine the wastes of dwellings and factories which is called sanitary sewage with street run off (storm sewage). The best system is one which separates the waste and provides primary and secondary treatment for each.

Session will probe safety at highway construction sites

How to make driving safer and more convenient for motorists at highway construction sites will be the subject of an all-day symposium tomorrow by leading government and safety officials and construction industry representatives.

The symposium, a joint effort of the New Jersey Heavy and Highway Construction Industry Advancement Fund (IAP) and the New Jersey Citizens Highway Committee (NJCHC), will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Ramada Inn, East Brunswick.

"So far as we can determine, this marks the first time that an effort of such magnitude has been launched to tackle this serious problem, which long has plagued both the motoring public and the construction industry," according to William M. Brooks, vice-president of sales, Houlihan Construction Materials, Inc., of Morristown, and chairman of the NJCHC's subcommittee on highway safety and traffic engineering. "We intend to work toward improved standards which industry can follow and government can enforce."

Improved safety procedures at highway construction sites was one of the major recommendations of a study on highway safety in New Jersey, a widely circulated report on highway safety conditions published by the NJCHC's subcommittee last year.

Principal speakers will be New Jersey Motor Vehicles Director Ray J. Martin, who is the governor's highway safety representative; Paul C. Petrillo, director of traffic engineering and safety services for the Automobile Club of New York City; and John F. Logan, traffic engineer, for the Federal Highway Administration's Regional Office in Albany, New York.

Ernest A. Banding, Bergen County's transportation engineer, is symposium chairman.

Weather conditions contribute to number of traffic accidents

Last week's wet weather was a contributing factor in the unusually high total of traffic accidents which occurred in Springfield. Three accidents occurred on Rt. 22. An accident on Belleville was traveling in the westbound center lane when apparently, Meertel of South Orange pulled his car out of the west-east cutoff, opposite Harmony House, in an attempt to cross three lanes and enter the Harmony House driveway.

Peck stated that he did not see Rusaano's vehicle coming and could not avoid hitting him.

Another incident happened near Padan road. Stany Masterson of Plainfield was at the corner of Padan road and Rt. 22, attempting to make a right turn into the eastbound lane. Albert Coughlin of Piscataway slammed in, in the rear of Masterson's vehicle as it pulled on to the highway.

Elle Roudon of 600 South Springfield ave., Springfield, was making a right turn from Schaffernol-place in the eastbound lane, toward the stop area, but stopped again due to heavy traffic. Then a car driven by Betty B. Beardsley of Montclair, pulled out into the highway and hit Miss Roudon's car in the rear.

Two accidents took place on Mountain avenue. Richard Colandrea of 61 Rose ave., Springfield, said that he was traveling north on Mountain avenue when Columbia slammed into his car. Injured in the crash was Robert Mello of 35 Tammt lane, Springfield, who complained of a rib injury to his right side. He saw the other driver.

Donald Faison of South Plainfield was driving south on Mountain avenue, when a public utility truck, driven by a driver who tried to make a left turn from Calvelly avenue, Seltzer hit Faison's vehicle at the intersection.

An accident occurred on Morris avenue when Francis Levitt of Union, was driving in the westbound lane. Lala Kallina of Hackensack, apparently tried to make a left turn from Alvin terrace onto Morris to go eastbound.

She proceeded because the west bound traffic in the right lane was stopped. Miss Kallina pulled out and Miss Levitt, driving west, couldn't see her and hit her vehicle. Police report that, because of a slight rise in Morris avenue at this intersection, neither driver could see the other vehicle.

Three drivers were involved in accidents because they skidded on slippery roads.

Senior Supervisor of Union lost control of his vehicle going westbound on Rt. 24. She jumped the curb and landed on a lawn.

Milij, Schwabert of Wallington was heading south on South Springfield avenue, when he skidded at the intersection of Northville avenue and hit a tree.

James Conover of West Orange was driving south on Padan road, when he skidded and rammed a utility pole.

Citizens' attitudes on taxes surveyed

A clear majority of New Jersey residents favor a state income tax, but only 14 percent are willing to accept a state income tax if it provided substantial relief from other taxes.

The second New Jersey Poll, conducted by the Fairleigh Dickinson Institute of Public Affairs, indicates that 72 percent of New Jersey citizens favor a state income tax.

Another eight percent would favor an income tax "if it were guaranteed that property taxes would be reduced."

That's the most striking finding in a survey of 2,221 New Jersey residents over the age of 18 who were asked to rate their attitudes on property taxes.

More than 50 percent of those interviewed had read or heard something about a state income tax.

The second New Jersey Poll, supported by a grant from the Wallace-Elabor Foundation and the Ruppel Institute of Politics, was conducted by phone between Feb. 18 and 26.

The results were tabulated by Opinion Research Corp., Princeton.

The trend in fabrics is natural

Think natural, then think classic, and you'll have the feel of the strongest trends in fashion fabrics this spring.

The natural colors, textures and textures that look as if they came from the earth are blended and worked together to achieve a rustic look.

Home spun, linen looks and slubbed silks all capture the natural feeling. Knits have new rustic surface textures.

And many of the spring's bright prints have natural colored grounds.

The same nostalgic pull is felt in fashion's preoccupation with old, near forgotten favorites in colors, textures and weaves.

English country cottages and flower prints in years in English country cottages and flower prints in years in English country cottages.

Check a range from tiny squares to super-labelling size, plain plaid and paisley are being revived.

Or a classic white is everywhere, on the spring scene.

The favorites of the past are back-dots, calicos and paisley in many colors and sizes.

High-contrast stripes and soft, brushed denim scene. Leather sportswear and fabrics are being printed to duplicate all sorts of skins.

Chambray, soft suede and kidkin have been brought to work and he wears like cloth, either in their own natural shades or in soft spring pastels.

Some leathers have other prints, concentrating on figures, from floral and animals to copies of the vintage. Many spring knits feature large, decorative weaves.

VIRUSES FOR M.R. CURE?
 Using bacterial viruses—a new research technique has been developed which has potential application in the treatment of a number of genetic or hereditary diseases.

This means that it may become possible for example, to cure some forms of M.R. mental retardation by infecting patients with a virus of genetic or hereditary origin.

Dr. Carl R. Merrill of the National Institute of Mental Health, Health Services and Mental Health Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, made the discovery as head of a research team. They reported in the British scientific journal "Nature" that the discovery suggests that viruses may play an important natural role in the exchange of genetic information among different species.

The British Journal, in an editorial, called their report "little short of revolutionary" and said that the work would have "far-reaching implications."

Dr. Merrill said that the development suggests that it might be possible to introduce selected bacterial genes into living human beings and significantly change faulty metabolic processes.

Answers to questions concerning the exact degree of improvement, its permanence in the human system, and possible side effects from the transposing virus are among those which must now be determined. In additional studies before the technique is ready for use.

The scientific team in its reported work has shown that, under laboratory conditions, bacterial viruses are able to infect human cells grown in tissue culture. The cells used were derived from a patient with galactosemia, a genetic disease in which there is a lack of activity of a specific enzyme required to metabolize the sugar galactose.

Galactosemia, caused by a missing gene, can lead to mental retardation, impairment of body functions, and even death in early childhood. Viruses selected for the study contained the bacterial genes necessary for the metabolism of galactose, including the one defective in galactosemia. They found that an active enzyme was produced after galactosemia cell cultures were exposed to the bacterial viruses.

Arts Center asks groups to give rides

The New Jersey Highway Authority is calling upon service clubs and other local organizations to help transport senior citizens and youth groups to free performances for them at the Garden State Arts Center.

Authority Chairman John P. Callagher said such an appeal is based on the need to assure bus or other transportation from home communities for the young and old invited to attend the free programs arranged for the Garden State Arts Center.

He noted that last summer a number of groups of senior citizens and young people were unable to attend free shows planned for them at the Arts Center on the Garden State Parkway due to the absence of transportation means.

Letters have been sent by Callagher to many service organizations throughout New Jersey such as the Lions and Rotary Clubs seeking their interest in providing transportation to the Arts Center.

In its planned expansion of free programs this year through the end of May, the authority has extended the scope of its projected activities to cover the handicapped veterans and orphaned children of New Jersey as well as the senior citizens and youngsters in general.

The fund, whose income is dependent upon public contributions and Arts Center benefit affairs, finances the free programs. But it has no money for bussing the invited guests.

Group interested in exploring the possibility of arranging bus transportation to the Arts Center for people have been asked to contact Frederick W. Weck, the cultural fund's administrator, at the Highway Authority offices in Woodbridge.

The fund sponsorship of free programs at the Arts Center is to assist in May and September on public contributions continue to strengthen the early fall.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

By Pat and Marilyn Davis
Dear Pat and Marilyn: We have been having a discussion about human development in our physical class and my parents are going to do everything short of picking the school they don't want to go to for me. I feel that I should learn about the human body in the classroom from a teacher. I feel this is archaic. How can they be so old-fashioned? We are having five nudes or pornographic pictures flagrantly displayed. This is a part of physiology that all teenagers need to understand. I feel that I should learn about the facts and not from some embarrassed parent. If I had not had a few understanding teachers, I would still think that the world brings the babies. What can I do?

Dear Phyllis: Take the textbook home and let your parents see it. Tell them exactly what you have learned. If they are still upset, discuss the subject with your teacher and the head of the department.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: My boyfriend is 21 and I am 19. We are both high school seniors. We have been dating for five years and the topic of marriage has come up many times. First, we felt that we were too young. Then we both wanted to complete college. Now that we have graduated, we want to get married. I know this young man very well, and he understands me completely.

Here is our only problem: The fund, whose income is dependent upon public contributions and Arts Center benefit affairs, finances the free programs. But it has no money for bussing the invited guests.

Group interested in exploring the possibility of arranging bus transportation to the Arts Center for people have been asked to contact Frederick W. Weck, the cultural fund's administrator, at the Highway Authority offices in Woodbridge.

The fund sponsorship of free programs at the Arts Center is to assist in May and September on public contributions continue to strengthen the early fall.

State property tax backed by plurality

Almost half of New Jersey's Legislature is in favor of a statewide property tax in place of a local property tax proposal of the state's Tax Policy Committee, according to results of the second New Jersey Poll conducted by the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers University.

State asking comment on master plan

The Department of Transportation has mailed draft proposals of the 1972 Master Plan to state and county officials for their review and comments.

The officials were asked to return brief statements and other comments dealing with the proposals for highways, railroads, buses and airports by April 4 so that the Master Plan document can be prepared for distribution in May.

Commissioner John C. Kohn said the objective is to get feedback from the officials on what they feel should be included or not included in the plan.

The draft proposals and public indecision about a statewide property tax is largely due to a relatively high level of awareness. At the time of the survey conducted by the Eagleton Institute, 59 per cent of those interviewed had read or heard of the proposal for a state income tax, while only 41 per cent were aware of a possible alternative property tax.

"We want the county officials to review the proposals with county planning," the commissioner said.

He noted that the 1972 Master Plan will be an update of the 1968 plan and will carry the state's long-range programming for transportation for 1980 and beyond.

The Master Plan will not contain a listing of project priorities. The commissioner added, "These will be determined on the basis of the completed Master Plan."

Bulldog hopes high as baseballers drill for April 1 opener

A hardtiding squad of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School baseball players has begun strenuous workouts to prepare for the season opener against Kenilworth April 1.

The Bulldogs boast an exceptional defensive infield. Tom Gleim will return behind the plate and work to extend play with both hit and over last year.

Third base, thus far, is up for grabs with four boys seeking for the position. They are Jeff Colandrea, Bill Palazzi, Chris Lehman and Howie Tanshaum.

Despite the graduation of Dave and Tom Kossler are the other candidates.

The overall fielding also looks solid but there remains a single question at this point. Does the pitching staff have the necessary fire needed for a club contending for a league title?

At 8 p.m., the final game of the Ivy League championship playoffs will be played. The winning team will receive individual awards and the outstanding player in the tournament will get the MVP award.

This Saturday, the 7th annual Springfield Invitational Tournament will start. Four opening round games will be played between top program school teams in the area.

The Bulldogs were crowned champions of the Caldwell Small-Fry League last Saturday afternoon at the Gaudinier School.

Little entrepreneurs in big business

1st graders corner snack cracker trade

A class of first grade students at the Edward Walton School in Springfield have put buying and selling into practice through an economics project on running a store.

The project was developed by a student teacher, Karen Hager, working with Helen E. Golden and Vickie Hager. The idea was started by the first graders themselves, who kept asking questions about the economic world in which they live. Miss Hager explained.

"To initiate the project, the children were asked: 'How can we learn about the way our economy works?' 'Timothy Walker replied, 'Build a store!' 'Where will we get the money to run the store?' 'What can we sell?' 'For how much?' 'After deliberation, the children decided to sell crackers filled with peanut butter at a certain time each day.

An investment of 25 cents became the working capital to finance the project. After a brief discussion the children agreed on a division of labor and working groups were formed.

They also worked on efficiency resulting from division of labor and then concluded that this made people and even members of the family more productive. The children involved themselves by taking turns 'shopping' for or that a decision could be made as to where to buy the best quality peanut butter and crackers for the least money.

"They learned that making the sandwiches worked them to be called producers of goods, and selling into practice through an economics project on running a store.

Alternate plans on redistricting listed by board

In addition to its proposal for a major realignment of elementary school classes, presented at its meeting last week at the Pinerose-Gardiner School, the Springfield Board of Education also outlined several alternative plans for redistricting to deal with the present decline of student population in the lower grades—which is expected to continue.

The board's proposals were given by the Raymond Childs, Thelma Sandrieter and Edward Walton Schools as a unit. All kindergarten classes and possibly pre-kindergarten group, would be located at the Childs School, Grades 1 to 3 would be at Sandrieter and Grades 4 and 5 at Walton. See editorial on Page 4.

Although the James Caldwell School would not be involved in this realignment, a second redistricting plan was also outlined. This would include the youngsters from Caldwell area—perhaps in another five years, with additional facilities in the Caldwell area.

3 from Gaudineer win seats on band

Three instrumental music students from the Pinerose-Gardiner School in Springfield, have won seats in the Central Jersey Intermediate Band. The students are Eric Golie and Steven Hochstein, trumpet players, and Michael Tuckman, clarinetist. Golie was the first choice in the band.

The announcement was made by Joseph M. Peirullo, instrumental music teacher at the Springfield Schools.

On Feb. 26, more than 60 instrumentalists auditioned for placement in the regional groups. A concert was held at Hopewell Valley High School, Pennington, Sunday.

Invitation to seniors

The time is now for those men over 60 who are tired of sitting and waiting for a telephone call to come down to the Springfield Recreation Department, at Church Hill, and sign other men of their own age. They are invited to check out the cards and shuffleboard every Monday from 1 to 3 P.M.

Township urged to act on summer day camp

By ARNOLD GOLD

Nell Prager, who was a Democratic candidate for the Township Committee last November, Tuesday night presented the Democratic majority on the governing body for establishment of a summer day camp at the Municipal Swimming Pool.

Speaking before some 20 citizens in the audience during the public discussion portion of the town meeting in the Municipal Building, Prager several times called for speedy action on a day camp. He noted that it had been urged by both parties during the local campaign last fall.

Committee member Naft Stokes, a Democrat who heads the recreation committee, commented that the committee feels a day camp would be beneficial, but that there are problems of "finance and facilities."

He said the pool is just breaking even and that the immediate goal is to maintain membership fees at $75 per family despite the fiscal squeeze. Stokes said that funds would be required to close and for a day-camp adjacent to the present pool area and to construct the needed facilities.

He added that the area is vulnerable to flooding, which poses another problem. Stokes stressed, however, that a day camp is under intensive study and "we should go ahead on it in the next year."

Prager replied, "All we need to start is a small facility—basically a baby-sitting center." He added that response to such a program would indicate interest in an expanded day camp in the future. Prager said he was interested in such a program for children 6 and younger.

Committee member Donald Clancy, also a Democrat, noted, "We don't want just a baby-sitting service. The entire project is under serious study and we want to be sure of the ages we can best serve."

Stokes said that baby-sitting at the pool "is the responsibility of the parents. A day camp should take children perhaps 6 and older, so that we can give them some experience in things like such features as arts and crafts and music building equipment."

Committee member William Ruocco, a Republican, who was elected last fall, com-
