Close to $250,000 in financial aid is available to students attending Union College this year, according to Mrs. Betty Ehrhart, financial aid director.

Federal and state grants, scholarships, loans and part-time employment are available to students who meet established requirements. Economically disadvantaged students are eligible for Federal Educational Opportunity Grants totaling $5,971 and state-sponsored Educational Opportunity Fund grants totaling $187,000. These grants range from $200 to $1,000 a year and are awarded on the basis of need.

Current law enforcement officers enrolled in the college's law enforcement program are also eligible for federal funds to cover tuition and fees.

Full-time students who demonstrate financial need and are in good academic standing may also qualify for a work study program. The college has been awarded a $27,468 grant to provide jobs on campus for these students. The college also contributes to

English scouts visiting county

Members of Washington Girl Scout Council are entertaining 50 Girl Guides from Sutton Coldfield, England, this month as the second half of an exchange program.

Last summer 100 Girl Scouts traveled to England to meet and live with Girl Guides there. Girl Scouts and Girl Guides are members of the World Association of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides. In the United States members are called Girl Scouts and in Europe, they're known as Girl Guides.

"Some of the activities planned for the Girl Guides and Scouts," says Mrs. Raymond Ballard, program director for WERA and chairman of the England exchange, "include trips to Washington, D.C., Mystic Seaport, Pennsylvania Dutch Country, New York City and the Girl Scout National Center in Riverwood." Some Girl Guides will travel to Canada and across country with their hosts family.

"Part of the preparation made for the English visitors as part of the Living Heritage Program included developing a historical map of the County's jurisdiction. The girls will be able to visit historic sites in Union, Middlesex and Somerset counties by auto, foot or bicycle. The purpose of the historical map is to share the area's heritage with the English girls and adults."

Vocational grads finding good jobs

While college graduates are searching for jobs, graduates of Union County Vocational Center, Scotch Plains, are earning available salaries at jobs they like.

A recent survey of graduates reveals controlled grants to adults. In the form of script or vouchers redeemable only to certified treatment centers. After a year or two of study, we could refine and expand the program. "These two approaches, I believe, will help financial drug treatment centers without imposing rigid bureaucratic controls."

Rinaldo proposes federal funds to aid drug rehabilitation

State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldo, Republican candidate for Congress in the 12th District, in the week proposed that the federal government help fund private residential drug treatment programs such as Odyssey House and Synanon, which have proven successful in fighting drug addiction.

"Groups such as Halfway House, Phoenix House, Daytop Lodge, Odyssey House and Synanon have had great success in treating addicts. Former addict graduates administer a very tough, Spartan-like program which demands total withdrawal from the drug, followed up by individual and group therapy, counseling and guidance."

3 new departments created in division at Union College

The creation of three departments within the newly established Division of Special Services and Continuing Education at Union College was announced this week by Dr. Kenneth W. Iverson, president.

The new Departments of Community Services, Continuing Education and Special Services will be headed by chairmen who will report directly to the dean of educational services.

Recognizing signs of cancer may save lives of children

"While the chances of any child being stricken by cancer are remote, there are some 4,000 children under the age of 15 who will succumb to cancer this year. Every parent should be aware of this statistic and other facts about cancer in children," according to Dr. Warren Krauer, executive committee chairman of the Union County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

"Cancer in children is labeled an important health problem because more children of school age will die of cancer than of any other disease," Dr. Krauer said. "Almost half of this number will die of leukemia, leukemia, cancer of the blood-forming tissue." Dr. Krauer explained, "is characterized by the abnormal production of white blood cells. Acute leukemia strikes children in large numbers and can be treated by drugs. Combination of drugs have proved capable of extending life for a few months or as long as ten or more years—beyond signs that medical science is on the right track."

Deans to attend leader session

Union College's three new divisional deans will participate in the six-day National Division Leadership Conference at Brookdale Community College, Lincroft, according to Dr. Kenneth W. Iverson, president of Union College.

Dr. Frank Deo, of Placetaway, dean of special services and continuing education; and Prof. John S. Westfield, dean of science and engineering, will attend the Conference which opens tomorrow and continues through next Wednesday.

Gardeners warned to protect eyes when using pesticides

To prevent serious eye damage—and possible blindness—safety goggles must be worn during all pesticide mixing and applying operations. So warns the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness in an appeal to gardeners to protect their eyes from accidental injury.

"You have to remember that insecticides and herbicides are poisons," says society executive director Virginia S. Boyce, "and you simply cannot be too careful. They have to be powerful to do the job, but that means they are dangerous."

Bond sale authorized

Governor William T. Cahill has approved the sale of $15.1 million New Jersey Turnpike Authority bonds, which will result in a net savings to the Authority of approximately $10 million.

The issue, designated Series G Refunding Revenue Bonds, bearing an interest rate of 5 1/2 percent, will be used to retire the Authority's outstanding 7 percent Series F bonds issued in 1969. These Series F Bonds were part of the financing for the recent Turnpike widening program, which expanded the Turnpike system from six to 13 lanes in the northern 30 miles.

Governor Cahill commented that he was gratified to see the Turnpike Authority's ability to lower its interest cost and thereby provide savings in debt service.

Two grades to get 1st statewide tests in reading, math under new program

This fall more than 200,000 New Jersey public school students will take the first statewide tests to be given under the State Department of Education's Educational Assessment Program. The tests, to be given on two consecutive days between mid-October and mid-November, will measure levels of achievement in reading and mathematics among students who are beginning the fourth and 12th grades. Estimated are that some 65,000 12th graders and 117,000 fourth graders will be tested. Since the present school year will just be starting, the tests will attempt to determine achievement on the basis of the first three and 11 grades of school. According to Dr. Gordon Ascher, director of the program, the assessment is designed to provide information to state and local decision makers and will help develop norms of achievement for the state. Ascher said that some 9,000 persons have been involved in preparation for the tests including education department staff members, technical experts, subject matter specialists, classroom teachers, high school and college students and advisers from universities, business and industry and the public at large.

However, no data will be released without explanatory or interpretive material. The assessment program, under development for three years, will fit with the "Our Schools" project conducted by the Department of Education, eventually assessing the status of students relative to the goals determined by "Our Schools."

Gene Rau is a meathead.

Meaning he's meat smart. He ought to be. Gene Rau has spent 30 years in the meat business. And he's learned a lot about what you want and need, when it comes to meats. So when Gene set up his freezer plan he made certain of three things. One—that the meats be supplied for the plan over the best. Two—that the freezer didn't cost an arm and a leg. After all, it's the food you're interested in. Three—that you weren't obligated in any way to lay anything you don't want and need. As a matter of fact, Gene will lease you a freezer while you try out the plan. Or he'll supply the food you want to put in a freezer you already own. Of course he'll supply you with frozen food other than meat. If you want. But your plan will be designed strictly to meet your needs. Gene or one of his assistants will come to your house and put together a plan just for you. So why not give the "meathead" a call. Or come by in person. And learn about the food freezer plan that really saves you money.

However, on Saturday morning, at maximum, as many as 50 meteors per hour may be visible. Time To Spare

A recent column about the retired friend who found "something to do" in sponsorship of teams in city recreation play brought to attention the story of another retired citizen we shall call "grampa".

Several years ago, grampa "retired from farming in one mid-western state and moved to an adjoining state where he had spent many earlier years as operator of a short distance and charter bus service.

Grampa wanted to "take it easy," so he chose to live in a hotel which was popular with retired citizens in the area. He found some old friends there and made new ones. He wanted, not a farm, but "just a piece of ground to grow a few things," so he "traded" with a nearby farmer - exchanging several work hours each week for a plot of ground on which he could grow a vegetable crop. He still had time on his hands, so he "adopted" a team in the local Little League, attended all their games, eventually wound up sitting on the bench as an "honorary" manager.

Whatever spare time is left, grampa devotes to fishing and politics. He doesn't like to fish alone, but there's no problem... he can always find a young ball player with a day off or another retiree who wants to wet a line. As in all small towns, grampa's town is one for politics and the local coffee shop is the place. There is no pot-bellied stove, but opinions abound and a polite argument is always available.

Why all this about grampa? We merely wanted to say that time need not hang heavy in retirement. Think about the things you like to do. Then, go out and do them.

NATURAL GAS HAS NO ODOR.

Public Service has the odor added. Its purpose is to make even the smallest gas leak detectable long before it could cause any problem. If you should smell gas — or think you smell it — telephone Public Service. Our servicemen are on call every hour of the day, every day of the year. They will track down the leak and stop it. Of course, there's never a charge for the investigation... and certainly never any reason to be embarrassed should the suspected leak turn out not to be a leak. So please — if you think you smell gas — don't hesitate to call. Holidays. Weekends. Nights. Anytime.
