

Arts Festival ends next Wednesday

The final program of the Union County Park Commission's Summer Arts Festival will take place on Wednesday, Aug. 16, at 8:30 p.m. in Echo Lake Park.

The featured group will be the Children's Village Steel Band from Bobb's Ferry, N.Y., which is comprised of young boys playing steel drums of varying tones.

The steel drums, originating on the island of Trinidad, West Indies, are made from old oil drums. Once the drums are tuned, they produce a mellow tone as the player strikes the drum sections with a stick wrapped with strips of rubber.

The band's program includes a variety of steel drums of varying tones.

The Children's Village in Bobb's Ferry provides a number of recreational activities designed to encourage participation by boys at the center who otherwise might not become involved. The steel drum program is one of these activities.

Local Girl Scouts stage a reception for English visitors

Senior Girl Scout Troop 14 of Springfield held a reception last Thursday at the Girl Scout House for three English Girl Scouts who are visiting this month. Cadette scouts, Girl Scout adults and members of the Township Committee and their wives were invited. The three Guides are staying with Springfield Scouts who visited them last summer as part of the English Exchange program. Rona Arthur of Birmingham is staying with Holly Huneke. They will go to New York City, Massachusetts, the New Jersey shore, and the Honecker summer home in Pennsylvania. Pamela Bordell of Sutton Coldfield is with Cindy Madison. Their plans include trips to Washington, D.C., New York City, the Jersey Shore and the Garden State Arts Center. Valerie Robertson, also of Sutton Coldfield, is staying with Gladys Roth. They plan to go to New York City, Starbuck Village, Mystic Seaport, the Jersey Shore, the Garden State Arts Center and the Stokes State Forest area. The four girls visiting the Arts Center will hear a concert by Judy Collins. "It is hoped that the three Guides will enjoy learning about our way of living as much as our girls enjoyed their visits to them last summer and that lasting friendships may be made," a troop spokesman added. Cadette Scout-Kristy Mathis of East Dodge, Iowa, is staying with Senior Scout Ann Duffly, who visited an Iowa family last summer. The girls will attend a splash party, and go on a trip to New York City. They were not able to attend the Senior Scout reception.

Police arrest three in connection with township break-in

The Springfield Police Department reported the arrest last Friday of three men, one a local resident, in connection with a Ruby street break and entry that had occurred the previous day. Wilbur Hill Jr., formerly of Springfield, and now on parole from state prison, was charged with the theft of two guns from the local residence and held in the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bail. Ronald Brooks of 28 Stiles st., Springfield, and Eugene Block of East Orange were charged with receiving stolen property on Friday when local police broke up a meeting they were engaged in with Hill. Block was held in the county jail in lieu of $4,000 bail and Brooks was released on his own recognizance. Det. Sgt. Samuel Calabrese, Det. William Cieri and Patrolmen Dominick Olivo and Joseph Fusco assisted in the arrest of the trio. "It seems that many of the people who find these cards share in the excitement and fun of this event as much as the children. TIME FOR LAUNCH—Youngsters from all 11 Springfield programs send their hopes, in the form of postcards, aloft at the 'balloon blast' sponsored by the Recreation Department last week at the Municipal Swim Pool field. (Photos by Bruce Auterlin)

Second annual 'balloon blast' draws crowd of 300 children and parents

The Springfield Pool softball field was the scene last week of the Recreation Department's second annual "balloon blast" and carnival. Recreation Director Stephen Magione indicated that approximately 300 youngsters and parents had a "fantastic afternoon" participating in all of the planned activities. "Following the balloon blast ceremony, the children and parents were treated to the feast of Sandrine the Magician. A resident of Fairwood, he is a former schoolteacher who uses a lot of child psychology and sugar-coated object lessons to make his show educational as well as interesting to the children. Carol Dreyer, cultural arts director, and Joe Blanda, playground supervisor helped obtain his services for the carnival. "Sanhorse was white beagling dwer in his act, but the birds are colored in red, blue, green and pink. Each bird has been trained to do one unique trick. His coloring of the birds is a secret that he will not divulge to other magicians. "Throughout the afternoon children were able to enjoy pony rides, a whip and individual playground booths. The lines of children were long, awaiting a turn on the rented whip and the ponies. "Children tested their skills at the various playground booths. The creative genius of the playground staff had youngsters throwing birds into bottles, rings onto strategically placed nails on multi-colored boards depicting well-known cartoon characters, and softballs into tilted peach baskets. There were wet sponges to be thrown at the head of a friend, placed through a hole in a board decorated with the body of a clown. "The remaining booths had darts to be aimed at balloons, soda cans to be knocked over with white balls and a booth constructed like a golf green to test putting skills. Ring toss, a bean bag toss to knock over dolls in the likeness of Peanut characters, ping pong balls thrown into a basket, and a game of catch were also included. Bank assets show gain

Assets of Springfield State Bank reached $16 million dollars as of July 3, it was announced this week by Benjamin Romano and Frank M. Pihl, chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, of the bank. "Several favorable developments during the first half of 1972 strongly indicate that we have taken a giant step along the road toward profitable and successful banking in the Springfield-Mountaineer area," the two executives said. Springfield State Bank, located at Hillside avenue and 111 St. Springfield, reported that its assets nearly doubled from $5,914,581 as of June 30, 1971, to $9,922,277 as of June 30 of this year. "The healthy increase in our deposits can be attributed to our own marketing efforts and a substantial gain as a result of our winning a long and involved court case," Romano Springfield. As a direct and Pitt said. "The court ruling con- sidered our deposits included with an order closing in effect of two competitors in June."

Mrs. Johnson to leave library post

Headed review committee for three years

For the past three years the Springfield Public Library has had an exhibit review committee to plan and advise on the selection of exhibits offered to the public in the library's reading room. "During the period Lillian Johnson has been chairman of the committee, she has kept the group functioning, and when no member could help hang exhibits either she or Helen Frank has done it alone," according to Helen C. Francis, head librarian. When Mrs. Johnson leaves Springfield in the near future the exhibit review committee will have lost an able and imaginative chairman. "All the time the Springfield Public Library moved into its new building in 1969, one of the hopes of the board of trustees and a staff dream came true in the provision of a meeting room for art exhibits. The first exhibit was held in April 1970 at the open house for the new library. On that occasion a craft exhibit was displayed against the beautiful oak walls where the color and texture of the exhibit was enhanced by the warm tones of the paneling. "To insure quality exhibits and to give opportunity for displays by local artists or to supplement other educational and artistic showings borrowed throughout the year, the board appointed to this committee that first year Springfield residents who were representatives of different art media: sculpture, painting, photography, art criticism and a gallery owner. The original members were: Mrs. Johnson, sculpture, Mrs. Frank, painting, Marty Faine, photography, Robbi Reuben Levine, critic, and Mr. Stanley M. Cornfield, art promoter and gallery owner. The committee met and elected Lillian Johnson as its chairman.

The New Jersey Table Tennis Club is celebrating its 75th year of existence by moving into new quarters at 226 North ave. in Westfield. This will make possible an expansion of activities to 150 members and 10 tables. Present membership of the club includes players from 39 localities in New Jersey. Springfield residents who are members include: Murray Levine, 5 Avon rd.; John Sommer, 234 Riverside dr.; Pat Stokes, 509 Mountain ave.; Mark Tenenbaum, 375 Mountain ave.; and Stanley Greenberg, 99 Morris ave. Advanced, intermediate and beginning players participate in three team leagues, on Thursday, Tuesday and Monday nights, respectively. During September, players are assigned in accordance with their abilities, to an appropriate position on a team in one of these leagues. League play continues through the winter and concludes in April. An individual competition league, available to all players, is scheduled for Wednesday nights. Tables will also be available for open, informal play during the week and on weekends. "The club will be host to several major tournaments during this playing season, sanctioned by the United States Table Tennis Association. Several internal club tournaments will also be held, on Friday nights. All those interested in joining were requested to contact the club membership chairman, Bob Barnes, at 43 Martins lane, Berkeley Heights. "Both policemen were assisted by Det. William Cieri in their arrests. Iserne and Di Taranto were released on their own recognizance pending preliminary hearings here on Aug. 28.

Formerly appointed by Sanforized Co.

Leo Fornero of Springfield, formerly assistant secretary and patent and trademark counsel for Cluett, Peabody & Co., Inc., has been appointed vice president of the Sanforized Company, a Cluett division. It was announced by George A. Cluett, chairman of Sanforized. This appointment, which takes effect immediately, reflects increased activity at Sanforized in many new areas, including knit shrinkage control, liquid ammonia technology and other processes. "Styers noted. An alumnus of the University of Miami, where he also took his law degree, Mr. Fornero has also studied at New York and Columbia Universities. He joined Cluett, Peabody in 1962, became patent and trademark counsel in 1964, and advanced to assistant secretary in 1968. Fornero resides at 15 Sharon rd. "The Springfield Public Library will lose a valued community-minded leader and the guiding light of its exhibit committee when the Johnsons move to Florida. But Lillian Johnson, leaves behind the example of what an ideal chairman should be for an exhibit committee."

First Aid Squad to conduct door-to-door drive for funds

Members of the Springfield First Aid Squad will start ringing doorbells throughout the town on Labor Day weekend as part of their annual fund drive to support their program of emergency service 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Explaining some of the Aid Squad activities, Dan Kalem, squad president, this week declared:

"You're frying lamb chops, and suddenly the fat catches on fire and ignites your clothing—and you!

"Your son is hurtling down a steep hill on his new 10-speed bike, no hands. Suddenly he's flying through the air—no bike, but lands on the pavement—no teeth, plus multiple injuries.

"You're wending your way down a township street in your new car, with no one else in sight, when suddenly an animal runs across your path. You try to avoid it. Next thing you know, you have not avoided hitting a tree, and both you and your new car have been injured.

"You awaken in the middle of the night with severe chest pains, prearrange a doctor's visit, but you can't seem to catch your breath.

"You're almost at the top of the ladder preparing to repair the leak in your roof, when the ladder collapses; next thing you know, the ground has come up fast to meet you.

"You're having dinner with some friends and suddenly one of them slumps over and onto the floor.

"These are some examples of the types of ambulance calls the Springfield First Aid Squad must deal with in its operating schedule of 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 52 weeks a year. It cannot be a part-time operation, because accidents and sickness occur all the time.

"When the alarm sounds, signifying that there is an emergency call, the First Aid Squad must be ready.

"Being ready means having the latest and best equipment, from the ambulance itself (cost, $2,000) to the many life-saving pieces of equipment in it (cost, thousands more), including oxygen and resuscitation apparatus.

"Being ready means never-ending training courses in all aspects of first aid—oxygen administration and cardiopulmonary resuscitation; coupled with surprise drills to test efficiency.

"Being ready means having a second fully equipped ambulance available to respond to an emergency call when the first unit is already in service. It means a great deal of time spent in making certain that the ambulances and their many items of equipment are in top condition, ready for any emergency.

"Being ready means having enough volunteers (more are desperately needed)—people who live in Springfield, your neighbors, who give most generously of their time all year round without pay to make certain that you and your family have the best ambulance service available. The finest ambulances and equipment mean nothing without qualified conscientious people to use them.

"First Aid Squad ambulances do not mean only answering ambulance calls (over 500 of them last year). They include an annual full-day demonstration of first aid techniques and equipment for all the sophomore health classes at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School.

"They include first aid seminars for teachers of the Springfield school system to assist them in dealing with an emergency involving your child. They include furnishing qualified instructors, members of the First Aid Squad, to teach first aid courses for members of the police and fire departments and for township residents. They include lectures on first aid to many Township organizations. Your First Aid Squad is totally involved in your safety and well-being.

"When the dedicated volunteer in white calls on you for funds starting with the Labor Day weekend, please give as generously as he or she has given of time and effort every hour of every day of every week to help you and yours."

As a new school year draws near, about 30 people are getting ready again to do a job that deals with a valuable portion of the community.

Mrs. English rips Army Engineers on plans for river

Mrs. Jerry English, Democratic candidate for the 12th District Congressional seat, this week charged that if the Bayway River flood-control plans of the Army Corps of Engineers "continue to be counterproductive," the people will suffer.

Speaking before members of the Citizens' River Environmental Coalition gathered at the National State Bank in Springfield, Mrs. English charged that the Corps "has progressed too slowly or hardly at all while the situation of flooding since the project began in 1960 has repeated and has worsened."

She declared that "basic solutions have never been implemented while $3.1 million of a $13 million project has already been spent."

Mrs. English said that the "new" flood control in New Jersey is "acute," and praised the citizens' group she addressed for its work in this area.

"What is needed," Mrs. English said, "is a well-conceived, overall plan that reaches beyond the state line, if that's where the water flows, because, every time a new structure goes up, more need is constructed, the natural water absorption capacity of the terrain is blocked, and the water has to go somewhere."

She charged that the Army Corps of Engineers "call for construction of dams and levees and artificial lakes, instead of calling for preservation of nature and its flood plains and channelization, assuring the retention of nature's own ways of handling excess water."

"They cannot continue," she concluded, "to plant and engineer without full awareness of the environmental impact on the local region. The citizens affected must be considered, and the Corps... must take into account the human and social needs that will be affected by their plans."

But as usual, if they do their job, they will be probably overlooked. It's their very efficiency that makes people take them for granted.

In the words of a Springfield Police Department spokesman, Sgt. Richard Goetzke, "Too many people take school crossing guards for granted, until they are not there. They're a very important part of our town and they protect our most precious commodity, our youth. Their responsibility is to ensure the safety of our children."

The crossing guards serve two specific purposes. As previously stated, they provide protection for children but they also free motorists from the duty at the locations where they serve.

With the guards on duty, the police department can keep up patrol strength sufficient to protect the entire town. If police were needed at each of the 30 present school crossings, the cost per year would be approximately $200,000.

BUT IT IS VERY difficult to get people to fill these positions. They work odd hours. Their four or five hour-day starts at 7:30 or 8 a.m., resumes at noon and concludes after 3 p.m. at the end of the school day. Obviously these people lose more than five hours out of their day.

Another factor that makes the job difficult is that the guards have to be at their posts every school day, in all kinds of weather.

A widely-held misconception also makes it difficult to attract people to the job. Many people believe that the guards are just police officers. Under law, they are allowed to enforce traffic laws at busy intersections like Evergreen road and S. Springfield avenue, motorists complain when guards don't direct traffic.

In the words of Sgt. Goetzke, "Our guards are not police officers. Under law, they are allowed to enforce traffic laws at busy intersections like Evergreen road and S. Springfield avenue, motorists complain when guards don't direct traffic."

Buffet to follow 'Mrs. Baking' contest at pool

By MARY BETH EHRHARDT and RICH GAIFFA

The fastest event on this week's schedule of activities to be held at the Springfield Municipal Pool is the "Mrs. Baking" contest on Sunday. This activity will include a judging in the three categories of appetizer, entree or dessert to the dish's uniqueness, tastiness and appearance, and a buffet for adults afterward to sample the delicacies. Participants were requested to sign up for the contest with Anthony Pilone, recreation director, as soon as possible, and everyone was urged to enter.

The host is Shea Stadium in the Meigs vs. Atlanta Braves game will leave the pool at 11 a.m. today. A softball game of the Springfield All-Stars vs. Hiram Lake County Club will be played today.

Continuing with the week's activities, a treasure hunt is scheduled for tomorrow and a scavenger hunt on Monday. Spring Garden will again challenge Springfield in a softball game on Tuesday. A tug-of-war will also be held on that day, and a crazy hat contest is Wednesday's highlight.

Last Tuesday a sack race was the major event in the 10-year-old and under group. Pam Fraude was first, Leslie Kornblum was second and Valerie LaCasi came in third in the girls' race. Richard Bantel was first, David Goetzke, second and Jerry Bahall third in the boys' race.

In the 11 and 10-year-olds race, Mary Kelly was first, Eileen Gajula second, and Tilly Massey third, for the girls. Bruce Davison came in first, Gary Kramer, second, and Tom Brennan, third, in the boys' contest. Cindy Halpin was first and Charles Leedy, second, in the teenage race.

Springfield women won two out of the three games of softball last Wednesday against Spring Garden. The team consisted of Middle Fountains, Irene Frank, Joyce Fiddo, Roz Sternbach, Joyce Palmar and Mary Monticello.

Springfield men defeated Spring Garden for the first time in a game of softball last Thursday. Home runs were contributed by Don Lam, Don Kinser, Mike Plesko (two) and Len South, who added an outstanding pitching effort. The final score was 10-11.

On Sunday, the Springfield All Stars defeated the Irvington team in a close game of basketball. Contributors to the score of 87-62 were Jim Schlobo, with 12 points; Joe Pope, with 11; Mark Tasher, 10; Bill Palmar, 9; Howard Drew and Gavin Wilson, 4 and Robert Fromer, Valerio LiCausi and Angelo Finora.

Democrats pick Marino as Committee candidate

John R. Marino of 16 Denham rd. has been selected by the Springfield Democratic organization as a candidate for Township Committee. Marino joins Arthur Kesselhaut, candidate for Township Committee, and Doris Huff, candidate for town clerk, as the Democratic entrants in the November race.

A spokesman indicated that the selection was the result of a screening process begun several weeks ago when Donald Caschi, incumbent Democratic committeeman, decided because of personal commitments not to seek reelection and withdrew from the Democratic ticket.

Marino is an expert in computer data processing technology and works as a manager of systems and programming for Blue Cross claims processing in Newark. He has lived 22 of his 29 years in Springfield.

He is a product of St. James School and Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, where he engaged in varsity football and wrestling. After graduating from Dayton in 1961, he attended Seton Hall University.

Local politics is nothing new to Mr. Marino. John pointed out that the family of his wife, the former Patricia Callahan, has been in Springfield for more than 70 years. "My father-in-law, Paul Callahan, ran for Township Committee in Springfield in 1960. His father, before him was an assistant tax collector back in the days when there weren't too many taxes collected."

Marino declared that he brings to his candidacy "deep" feeling for Springfield and a concern for community services exemplified by

Police crackdown on speeders to be continued—Parsell

Chief George Parsell of the Springfield Police Department announced this week that his department will continue its speed enforcement program. The chief said, "Since we initiated our program the township has experienced a definite decrease in accident injuries."

A significant factor, according to Chief Parsell, is that despite an increase in reportable accidents and traffic flow this year, the injury rate has declined. This decrease is the first reduction in more than four years.

Successes of the program is credited by Sgt. R.E. Goetzke, department executive officer, to the adoption of the new radar "speed gun." He said, "New radar equipment has given our officers the mobility and flexibility they need to effectively locate and apprehend speeders."

Goetzke said, "In enforcement during the study period increased 128.9 percent, 271 moving violators were processed in the three-month period during 1971, police records show this apprehensions for that same period this year."

Chief Parsell added that he has directed his personnel to increase their efforts in apprehending speeders in high-accident areas which include Morris avenue, Rt. 28 and Mountain avenue.

July report issued for First Aid Squad

During the month of July the Springfield First Aid Squad answered a total of 92 calls for help. Of these, 82 were emergencies, including nine heart cases, 22 illnesses and 16 auto accidents. The 22 illnesses noted a total of 122 miles and squad members put in a total of 312.8 man-hours.

A spokesman added, "Volunteers are still urgently needed. If you wish to become part of this vital organization, please contact Dan Kalem, 375-4811, or Ruth Parco, 378-4811."

Profile-Paul J. Krebs

Following is one of a series of Profiles on candidates running for office this year.

Paul J. Krebs says he is running as a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate because he knows that on the basis of his experience and interests he can do a better job than the incumbent, Republican Clifford P. Krebs has been a union leader, congressman and state director of consumer affairs.

More than that, Krebs hasn't spoken out on the many domestic areas where we need his help. He has been quiet on the energy in the area of foreign affairs, and he hasn't given us the kind of leadership that is required in dealing with the economy.

When it comes to the national deficit I'm a Democrat and I support the decision of the national convention. Sen. George McGovern will develop the basic issues throughout the campaign, and he will do a good job when he is elected.

School enrollment rises in N.J. but pace slows

The State Department of Education anticipates an increase in the number of pupils, teachers and classrooms when New Jersey public schools reopen in September for the new school year.

Projections made by the department show that enrollment is expected to reach 1,535,000, an increase of 37,000 over last year. The number of classroom teachers is figured to climb to 80,800 a rise of 4,280. The number of classrooms is expected to total 63,800, an increase of 1,200.

The projections were prepared by Dr. M. Jack Krupnick, director of the department's branch of Statistics. He noted that although enrollment is expected to increase this year, it is not as high as in the foreseeable future. The rate of increase had been three per cent for many years, will be dropping to about one per cent annually.

Krupnick cautioned that enrollment projections for the public schools can be affected by changing factors. These factors include the student dropout rate, which has been remaining fairly constant at about one per cent of all pupils enrolled; the number of children moving into and out of New Jersey; the trend to establish nursery or pre-kindergarten classes in public schools, and exchange of pupils between public and non-public schools.

The projection on the number of classroom teachers expected this coming year figures out to an increase of six per cent, compared with an anticipated pupil increase of some two and one-half per cent. Krupnick points out that the estimated percentage hike in the teaching force is about the same as that experienced annually...

Blood drives less than half of average

The North Jersey Essex County Blood Bank has been able to schedule only 15 blood drives this month compared to its usual quota of about 35. The inability to find organizations which can hold banks in the summer is the reason for the seasonal shortage of blood.

While the blood bank has more than 500 participating member organizations, few of them are able to hold their banks in the summer months because of "vacationing" employees. The North Jersey Essex County Blood Bank has been able to supply the 56 hospitals it serves only through making personal calls to those who have given blood in the past.

The 15 August drives include 10 mobile units and five scheduled at the blood bank headquarters at 65 Grove st., East Orange. Any healthy person from 18 through 65 is urged to make an appointment to give blood to help the ill and injured.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Our rescue when things get out of hand and out of control. We are so quick to demand of God a miracle or a solution to our problems, but only with our worldly affairs that when we are desperate. We find it hard to give God something that we believe that our more than an hour of time moment of deprivation can be each week, or even each month or year. But we are so quick to call on God to come to our rescue when things get out of hand and out of control.

N.J. dental schools seek more minority students

A cooperative effort to attract more minority students into dentistry has been initiated by the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, Newark Dental School and Patrician Dickinson University School of Dentistry.

Dr. Carmine J. LoMonaco, assistant dean for student and alumni affairs at the New Jersey Dental School, and Dr. Douglas Roberts, assistant dean at Patrician Dickinson, directed the recent formation of the Health Manpower Consortium, which has received a $20,000 planning grant from the National Urban Coalition. The funds will enable the group to begin implementing its goal to increase and diversify dental manpower in urban New Jersey. The Consortium will eventually comprise statewide professional, educational, and community leadership.

According to a Carnegie Commission study, Higher Education and the Nation's Health, the most severe manpower shortage in the United States is in health services. New Jersey is a typically underserved state in terms of health care, with large numbers of its citizens, particularly in densely populated urban areas, receive little or no medical and dental care.

Mental Health unit asks more effort on a national scale

Richard C. Hardenbergh, president of the New Jersey Association for Mental Health, announced this week that the New Jersey Association for Mental Health has joined the National Association for Mental Health and its 1,000 state and local affiliates in calling upon the President and Congress to establish a "National Commitment for Mental Health."

In telegrams sent to all New Jersey Congressmen Hardenbergh said: "The New Jersey Association for Mental Health respectfully urges support of the proposal called for by Irving H. Glass, president of the National Association for Mental Health, that the executive and legislative branches of government initiate a massive 'National Commitment for Mental Health' to find the causes of mental illness, to prevent mental illness, to provide adequate treatment for the mentally ill, and to eliminate public misunderstanding and myths about all aspects of mental illness."

According to Hardenbergh, "The surge of national interest in mental health elicited by the withdrawal of Senator Eugene McCarthy as vice-presidential candidate is evidence that citizens are concerned about this cause and want an expanded effort."

"This effort will require action by the Government and the people. Appropriate legislation will be needed as well as increases in the mental health budgets of the federal government."

DR. LOMONACO EXPLAINED that health services are best delivered when people serve their own communities. "The health professions today must compete with industry and other professions for qualified minority students," he explained. "Yet, only by convincing minority men and women to earn a medical or dental degree and then return to practicing in their communities, can we ever hope to reverse the tragically deteriorating condition of urban health care delivery."

The planning grant from the Urban Coalition will be used to develop an effective structure for identifying and motivating minority students toward health careers in dentistry. Dr. LoMonaco and Dr. Roberts are currently

Flood insurance available in area

NEW YORK—With some residents of New Jersey still feeling the effects of Hurricane Agnes—which caused an estimated $500,000 in property losses in the Garden State—the need for consumer awareness of the availability of insurance for losses resulting from floods was stressed this week by the Insurance Information Institute.

"Uncle Sam and the private insurance business have worked out a way to help people protect themselves against financial loss from flood—the National Flood Insurance Program. But few people know about it."

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in partnership with the private insurance industry has made available for three years now flood and mudslide insurance for property owners in flood-prone areas. The plan provides flood and mudslide insurance—coverage previously unavailable at "insured rates."

Originally designed to provide coverage only for homes and small businesses, the National Flood Insurance Program recently was expanded to include all apartment buildings, business structures, agricultural, religious and non-profit buildings and buildings owned by state or local government agencies.

In addition, the program's rates recently were slashed by nearly 10 percent. The program now offers typical basic coverage of up to $17,500 for a single-family dwelling, and up to $5,000 for dwelling contents at an average cost to a home owner of around $60 per year.

Property owners in an eligible area may purchase the coverage from any local property and casualty insurance agent or broker, according to the Institute.

Charcoal cooking perilous indoors

"The outdoor pastime of barbecuing should remain outdoors," advises Dan Costa, safety director of the Allstate Insurance Companies. "Otherwise, what begins as a festive meal may finish as a tragic disaster."

"Many people regard the use of charcoal briquets as harmless indoors, while accumulating a deadly carbon monoxide may accumulate. Carbon monoxide, a colorless, odorless, and tasteless gas, is the most common cause of poisoning deaths in the United States."

Costa warns, "Sufficient air is needed in the room to burn the charcoal. If the room is not well ventilated, the carbon monoxide will build up and can be fatal."

Israeli at Beth Israel to learn pacemaker center operation

An Israeli cardiologist will spend the next three months at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center learning how to set up and administer a pacemaker evaluation center because two old friends were willing to swap favors for the interest of medical education.

Dr. Salomon Feldman is a full-time physician in the Department of Medicine at Tel Hashomer Government Hospital, Shiba Medical Center, Tel Aviv. When the 110-bed Medical Center decided to establish a clinic for the scientific follow-up of its many pacemaker patients, Dr. Henry Neufeld, director of the Heart Institute and president of the American Heart Association, contacted Dr. Feldman, who has been on the staff of the Medical Center, which has one of the most active pacemaker implantation programs in the country and which opened its doors in 1967.

State plans Office of Student Affairs

An Office of Student Affairs within the State Department of Education will be closer to reality this fall, thanks to the efforts of seven young men and women during the past summer.

The office is being established by a link between the student and the department. According to Education Commissioner Carl L. Marburger, "The office will seek to represent student interests through legitimate channels, present and provide, within the department, public service work opportunities for area residents."

Work this summer has been basically planning and has involved the seven high school and college students, ranging in age from 16 to 20, in meetings with department staff members as well as with groups and individuals outside the department to share ideas and collect information.

The high school students in the group working with the department are all active in student government.

Mrs. Susan Kinsey, an administrative assistant in the department's division of curriculum and instruction, only three years from her own college undergraduate days, is coordinating the group's activities.

Mrs. Kinsey stresses that her role has been strictly coordinating—and that the seven have been doing the planning for the design and objectives of the office themselves.

She sees the summer program as a sincere attempt at effective student involvement in department activities and policy-making, an effort which will set the precedent for future student involvement.

The office and the embryo office will also be involved in distributing a second printing of "A Guide to Student Rights and Responsibilities in N.J.," first published last year by the department.

The guide summarizes laws concerning students as expressed in the U.S. and N.J. Constitutions, state school law, federal and state court rulings and decisions of the state commissioner of education and the State Board of Education.

The guide covers such areas as free education, school rules and regulations, hair, dress, buttons and armbands, flag salute and Pledge of Allegiance, distribution of literature, assembly and petition, school records, police in the schools, locker searches, corporal punishment, suspension and expulsion, appeals and scientific and management people in area corporations, industrial firms, governmental agencies, and special interest groups.

Mrs. Kinsey says she is identical with the idea of the Office of Student Affairs.

Area culture dean appointed at Drew

Drew University President Robert F. O'Connell announced this week the appointment of a new senior academic officer assigned exclusively to the development of academic and cultural activities for area residents.

Dr. John T. McCall, former general manager of research and development at Intracep Corp., has already begun at Drew as dean of special university programs and continuing education for the Hudson Institution.

The appointment is the result of a search that began in February of 1970 when the Drew Board of Trustees mandated the university to "find new ways of relating academically and culturally to the surrounding region."

In announcing the appointment, President O'Connell explained that Dr. McCall will develop new academic programs that will attract first primarily to the credit and post-graduate level. In addition to intellectual enrichment studies for area residents, he said, there will also be special programming for science education at the University of Georgia, and scientific and management people in area corporations, industrial firms, governmental agencies, and special interest groups.

Mrs. Kinsey says she is identical with the idea of the Office of Student Affairs.

Pierfy appointed to post on Rider College faculty

David A. Pierfy of Athens, Ga., has been named assistant professor of education and director of professional laboratory experiences at Rider College. It was announced this week. The announcement was made by Dr. Frank N. Elliott, president of the college.

Pierfy, who has been serving since 1970 as a research specialist in elementary social science education at the University of Georgia, will join the Rider faculty Sept. 1.

From Better Business Bureau

Dear Larrie:
My husband is a sucker for mail-order companies. I keep nagging at him to stop doing this money this way, or to get all wound up in something that takes months and months to arrive—if ever. Is there any way to tell what's legit and what isn't? I'm confused.

Dear Confused:
You and millions of others still, mail order is an important aspect of convenience shopping. There are, as you know, huge mail order houses that have business in the millions of dollars annually—and whose satisfied customers do business with them through catalogues on a regular basis. There are other mail order organizations with the kind of management that orders merchandise from suppliers only after gauging customer demand through the arrival of checks—only quickly cash the checks and let customers wait for weeks or longer for the products. Remember—check with the Better Business Bureau before sending a check to a mail order house you're not familiar with. And you should stop and think twice before doing business with a mail order house whose only identification is a post office box number. Keep trying with your husband, but don't nag.

Larrie O'Farrell, Better Business Bureau

Dear Bewildered:
The Better Business Bureau checked its records on the driving school and found that it had maintained a good record for several years. The Bureau contacted the school regarding your wife's complaint and the following: Your wife had been enrolled and taking driving lessons for the last eight months. During that period, she had not been able to learn how to drive. She took two driving tests and failed both of them. As you know, she changed collision between the school and the instructor.

By this time your wife should have received a letter from driving school. It is sending back $100 with this statement: "We think that obtaining a fresh viewpoint by attending another driving school of your choice is a good idea. We are sorry that we were unsuccessful in aiding you to obtain a license. We sincerely wish you the best of luck."

Larrie O'Farrell, Better Business Bureau

Dear Baffled:
There are ways to go about finding a good repair service and here are some of them: First, ask your friends and neighbors. Usually, you'll find expressions of satisfaction that you can count on. When you get the name of a repair company, call the Better Business Bureau.

Textures add touch to fashions

That favorite shopper's line, "I'm just looking," may soon be changed to, "I'm just touching." Textured materials will make fall and winter clothes very touchable. Wool for coats and sportswear separates will favor the downy textures of fleeces, chinchilla and brushed finishes, while nubby tweeds will be among popular pants, skirt and jacket fabrics. Pile will give tarty depth to fake fur coats and jackets, and suede will turn up in all sorts of coats and separates.

Putting sportswear separates together will be a matter of dressing by touch as well as sight. The trend will be to mix the textures, combining knit with suede and wool, putting various wools and knits together.

There will be an inclination to keep uniformity in color. Reference to the "monotone look" has turned up in several early announcements of collections, for example, apertures, shades and base to match clothes will make the harmony complete.

Plain weave commonest fabric type

The quality of a fabric is dependent on its construction. By knowing the basic weaves and how to identify them, you can examine a fabric and tell whether or not it will wear well.

The plain weave is the most common. Every other yarn is on top in the weave. The warp or up and down yarns are the strongest and will wear better than the weaker filling or crosswise yarns. Therefore, it is important to see which yarn is on the surface where the wear is. In the plain weave, the warp and filling yarns are on the surface in the same amount. Therefore, it is important that the yarns be packed as close together as possible to eliminate slippage which will produce wear on the sides and bottom of the yarns.

The plain weave is the least expensive to produce because it is the simplest. The shrinkage is relative to the number of threads or yarns per inch. The more yarns, the less shrinkage. The fewer the yarns per inch, the greater the shrinkage. Thus, if a fabric is woven lightly, it will not shrink as much as a loosely woven fabric.

A rib variation of the plain weave is easy to recognize because the interlocking of the yarns is the same. The only difference is that the vertical rows (usually) will appear as ribs. This type of fabric will have more wear on the ribs and therefore, will not wear as well as the plain weave.

The basket variation of the plain weave is the same as the plain weave, except that instead of every other yarn being on top, it is every two or more yarns on top. It may have the same number warp and filling yarns crossing. For example, two warp yarns will pass over two filling yarns then they will pass under two filling yarns. This type of fabric has poor wearing qualities. It is used only for linings.

A very popular weave is the twill. It is characterized by the fact that the interlocking of the yarns is at an angle. Two popular examples of a twill weave are denim and herringbone (or reverse twill).

This is the most durable of all fabrics because of the closeness of the yarns and the interlocking pattern. The wear is mostly on the warp yarns but because of their weave, they will wear well. Twill weaves hide soil very well but it is hard to remove it. Thus the fabric won't show the dirt for quite a while.

Denim is a good example of what happens to a twill weave as it wears. It frays. Sateen is a very old fabric. It is characterized by long floats of yarn on the surface. That is, the warp yarns will float on the surface over more than one filling yarn. This fabric wears better than sateen (explained below) because the floats are with the wear (in the warp direction).

Sateen has the filling floats on the surface. Wear will be across the yarns and friction will cause uneven wear. Snagging can be a problem. There are also a number of decorative weaves. Each one uses a special loom to create the desired result. This one used for brocades, lace, etc. is the Jacquard. It is the most intricate and complex of the decorative weaves.

WHAT KINDS of people work as school crossing guards? They are usually retired people, housewives or college students. They are paid $2.35 per hour and receive on-the-job training from police officers before they can work alone. They also attend training classes twice a year.

With the new school zoning system, the guards will have added responsibility and the police department will need many applicants, even though at this time the exact number is not known.

To make the job more attractive to prospective applicants, this year the police department is trying to institute a system of split shifts. For example, a guard could work only in the morning and at noon and another person would cover his post in the afternoon. As Sgt. Gonzalez puts it, "The job can be rewarding but thankless. Many guards get very close to the children who cross at their points. They are dedicated people and dependable."

For further information on the school crossing guard program, residents may contact Sgt. Gonzalez at the police department, 396-0000.

SOCCER SCENE

By BILL WILD

Most of the Farther's Grove regulars were on hand last Saturday night at the Grove, but this time they were in the ballroom to celebrate the winning of the National Open Challenge Cup (the "Trophy") by the Elizabethtown SC the second time in three years. Sharing our table were my wife Christine and I; Helmut Tattler, publisher of the German American newspaper, New Jersey; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ogle Jr., of the Elizabeth Daily Journal, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lacko, Unionie referee from New York.

Lacko, a former Elizabethtown SC player, changed my opinion of soccer referees. I found out that some of them are almost human and have to laugh when he admitted that he could not see a thing without his glasses up close. They say that the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence, I think it is the same with referees and the Hudson River.

Bill Bush of the Elizabethtown SC had many soccer figures to introduce that night. Among them was Mayor Thomas Dunn of Elizabethtown, State Senator Frank McCormack of Union County, James McGuire and Kurt Lamb of the players came up and accepted their rings. Mario Gonzalez was named most valuable player. Mrs. Hugo Klein and her son, Ronald, and Richard, died on a fire for former president Hugo who died on the 4th of July. Ronald spoke for the three and said his father always wanted to be a policeman and now he did. He finished by saying that everyone should have an emergency plan in case of a fire. He would have liked to say that.

HARRY PLATT, president of the Elizabethtown SC, congratulated the new Jersey Soccer League winners of the National Open Challenge Cup.
