Heart defect corrected by operation

Now county poster boy 'does what he wants'

A lucky 11-year-old New Providence boy with a slim chance for survival at birth has been named 1972-73 poster boy for the Union County Chapter of the American Heart Association.

Ronald Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Parker of 12 Bergen rd., Murray Hill, was recently crowned "King of Hearts" by State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldi.

But Ronnie Parker was one of the lucky ones. Because research dollars provided by the Heart Association had financed the development of open heart surgery, a procedure called cardio-catheterization had been perfected. When Ronnie was four and a half, he underwent surgery at New York's Albert Einstein Institute, which is affiliated with the college of medicine operated by Yeshiva University.

Although the general consensus has it that children like Ronnie must lead completely sedentary lives, this was not the case. Ronnie's mother was among the skeptics who doubted that a child with a heart defect could play normally with other children.

Stiso, Wasserman, Buehrer cite rent group 'deterioration'

Ed (Rusty) Stiso Jr. and Bob Wasserman, Republican candidates for Springfield Township Committee, and Art Buehrer, candidate for township clerk, issued a statement this week supporting passage of a municipal rent stabilization ordinance and accusing their opposition of being either unwilling or unable to provide effective leadership to the community.

The current presidential freeze has provided some temporary relief to the tenants of our community, but temporary measures are not enough. Permanent legislation is needed to protect tenants against unfair and burdensome rent increases.

"We urge the Township Committee to take prompt and thoughtful action toward the passage of a rent stabilization ordinance, and a campaign spokesman added: "All friends of the president who wish to participate in the campaign to reelect President Nixon are invited to attend."

"Volunteers are needed from every neighborhood, from every political party and from all age groups to rekindle the will of President Nixon. For information call James Thompson 3rd, 467-5311; Annette Gioia 467-7122; or Ralph Lindeman, 378-6261."

Additional registration for the presidential election only is open at the same places until the close of business Oct. 10 for several categories of voters.

Those fully qualified in the county who have failed to register earlier.

Those moving from the county who have not lived in their new districts long enough to register for the election there.

Those moving into the county who do not qualify under state law which requires 40 days of residence before the election.

All voters fitting into these categories who register before Oct. 10 will receive absentee ballots permitting them to vote only once.

In addition, any voter who has moved out of New Jersey may return on election day to the Board of Elections, 92 Highway Ave., Elizabethtown.

Town moving closer to flood control work

Committee OKs pact to build dikes

Army engineers to offer plans at public meeting.

The Township Committee Tuesday night announced several steps toward an ultimate solution of Springfield's flood control problem.

With some 25 citizens in the audience at Town Hall, Committee member William Russo received approval for a contract with the Union County Park Commission to construct dikes and traverse the Rahway River in the vicinity of Washington Avenue and Riverside Drive.

The town attached three conditions to the contract, all of which have been agreed on by both sides in principle, according to Township Attorney Jay Bloom.

1. The Park Commission will extend the present storm drainage pipe through the dike area, with a cutoff valve to prevent runback of water.

2. The project must comply with requirements of the State water policy experts.

3. The township must enact an ordinance to provide funds for its share of the work, in compliance with this clause, the governing body on Tuesday authorized preparation of a $60,000 bond ordinance.

PROGRESS on a second front was announced by Mayor Robert Wallace, who reported that the Township Committee met on Monday with representatives of the Army Corps of Engineers to review plans completed to date for additional major flood control work.

The mayor said a public meeting will be held in the next few months. Army engineers are expected to offer details on several alternate plans. He said that an environmental impact study is underway, with participation scheduled by the middle of environmental commission.

Party meetings in a little closer to the job, he said.

The reports on flood control plans brought praise in the public portion of the meeting from Albert Hill of 75 N. Park Ave., a member of the town's flood control committee, and a frequent speaker with calls for speedier progress.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the mayor reported that a special executive session was scheduled for last night to complete work on a municipal rent leveling ordinance.

REFRACTIVE ERRORS

Most of us have seen a photograph that is out of focus. The blurred image formed by an out-of-focus camera is similar to that of a person with a refractive error.

When light enters the normal eye, it is refracted or bent by the cornea (the transparent front covering of the eye) and the lens and brought to a single sharp focus on the retina, the eye's innermost layer. From the retina, light impulses are transmitted to the brain, resulting in vision.

Clear vision depends upon the existence of a precise relationship between two eye measurements: the refractive power of the lens and cornea and the length of the eye. Any variation in this relationship results in a blurred image or refractive error.

The most common refractive errors are myopia (near sightedness) and hyperopia (far sightedness). In myopia, parallel rays of light come to focus in front of the retina. This occurs either because of the refractive power of the lens and cornea being too great for the length of the eye, or because the length of the eye is too great for the refractive power of the lens and cornea.

Hyperopia is the direct opposite of myopia. In this condition, light rays are intercepted by the retina before they come to focus. The far-sighted eye may be either shorter than the normal eye or the refractive power of the cornea and the lens may be too little for the length of the eye. In either case, the focused image of a near object will fall behind the retina.

Often the hyperopic eye can adjust itself to normal vision through accommodation. That is, the blurred image will cause the muscle which controls the lens to contract. This increases the refractive power of the lens which may be sufficient to compensate for the hyperopia. In other cases, the accommodation is not enough to neutralize the hyperopia, and glasses must be used to see near objects clearly.

THE STATE WE'RE IN

By David F. Moore,
North Jersey
Conservation Foundation

In columns past I've gone on at length about the worldwide problem of energy: its supply, use and waste. I haven't changed my view that energy (in good form) is the most precious commodity on the planet, stored over millions of years in coal, oil and gas, and is being used up by modern man's voracious appetite for energy.

That's why my eye was caught recently by an article in the New York Times which announced the discovery of a new source of energy in the form of a gas called hydrogen. It is the whole world's eye is on this gas because it is a clean-burning fuel and is being used up by modern man's voracious appetite for energy.

It's seldom we get such a clear-cut, naked look at conflicting priorities which are being put on the brink of having to reshape itself. Somehow to get along without these fossil fuels of energy. At any rate, I guess it's actually referring to the boys come out of the back woods and public anger over the price of energy.

As I've noted in the past, the huge Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, based as it is in the city of New York, has been urging electric utility companies to "Save a Watt." Public Service Electric and Gas Co. has been doing the same thing here in New Jersey.

The man from GE was quoted as saying, "What I'm doing is offering a sane perspective on this problem." He was said to be perturbed about the apparent movement away from electrical energy, something which Con Ed is no longer pushing. He argued that electric heating reduces air pollution and that the use of electric energy in the winter time, help level off the electric supplier's year-round business.

He also claimed, according to the Times, that if all houses were heated electrically, overall air pollution would drop by 20 percent. Another 20 percent overall air pollution would come "if we got half the cars off the road and switched to electric vehicles," he added.

The GE man claimed it would be a "national tragedy" if every utility adopted Con Ed's "save a watt" slogan. He asserted there are only limited power shortages, "with only one utility in trouble—Con Edison."

I SUSPECT THE GE MAN was jumping to the handy conclusion that continuing increases in electric consumption can be handled by building more nuclear power plants, as do any of his brethren in the utility business. The only technical solution of electric power, grows, more problems, or potential problems, is found to slow down proliferation of "make more power" for electric power.

It is a new problem with the fuel itself not saving as expected. The GE man just might have some logic when he talks about cutting down air pollution, and saving overall energy at the same time, when he advocates electric heating of homes. My idea about this is that most electrically heated homes now are terribly wasteful of energy. However, with much-needed stiffening of construction quality requirements everywhere, extra household insulation could save a whole lot of energy during winter heating.

Added to this, solar energy could make remarkable savings in energy consumption by directly converting sunlight to heat for hot water and heating houses.

LETTERS

Why the highways?

On Sept. 21 the Springfield Leader ran an article on Sen. Matthew J. Rinaldo's fine job concerning the completion of Rt. 78. The editor declared, "The people of this county have been patient long enough in waiting for energy. At any rate, I guess it's actually referring to the boys come out of the back woods and public anger over the price of energy."

Why do people need highways? Why must they constantly be moving further and faster? Where are they going? Perhaps they are looking for jobs. Perhaps the reason they have to travel so far is because the trees in their backyards have just been paved over, their brooks have been corrupted and the air in their neighborhood is beginning to smelt.

If we are going to stop, we have to start here and now. We don't need Rt. 78. We will find ways to survive without it.

I can't believe that a senator, during an election year, is assuring us, with the utmost confidence, that he is doing his best to put a highway through Watchung Reservation.

Profile -- Arthur H. Buehrer

An ability to work "with all types of people," a career in administrative work and political levels are the advantages Arthur H. Buehrer would like to bring to the post of Springfield township clerk.

Buehrer, who has resided at 135 Hawthorne ave. for 21 years, is campaigning for the position to be vacated by Thomas Blosser on Nov. 7. He is currently employed as a clerk in the office of the township engineer, where he has worked for 15 years.

"I see no problem, personally, in working with any political faction in my job," Buehrer continued. "For years I have worked with all types of people. I have been involved in politics for about 15 years, working on the county Republican committee, the industrial committee and the Board of Adjustment."

ONE OF Buehrer's main interests is an "open door policy" at Town Hall, at which he is concerned. "For years I have worked with all types of people. I have been involved in politics for about 15 years, working on the county Republican committee, the industrial committee and the Board of Adjustment."

Regarding town-wide issues, Buehrer backed the proposed plans for a self-sustaining day camp at the swim pool and a project have burglar alarms, connected to police headquarters, installed in private homes.

Both these services would be paid for only by those people who want them," he said. "Taxes would not increase if you want to enroll your child in the camp you would pay a set pool fee and a camp fee. If not, you would pay only the pool fee. Some of our families belong to swim clubs elsewhere. They would love to stay in Springfield, but they don't, because these other clubs have camps and we do not."

He is active in other community affairs as a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Springfield. Currently a ruling elder, he served as head deacon in 1970.

Continental Lodge 99, F&AM of Milltown, Alpha Sigma Fraternal, 291 Alpha Sigma Alumni Club, the Springfield Republican Club, the Blue and Gold Square Club, the Garden State High School, the Ballantyne Quarter Century Club are other organizations with Buehrer's name on a membership list.

He is a former member of the Board of Education, Florence Gaudiner and Jonathan Dayton Regional High School PTAs.

Half-time approach shown by Regional's marching band

The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School marching band of 122 members, led by clarinetist, trumpeter, trombonist, saxophonist, drums, flutes, horns, piccolos and glockenspiels, presented its new approach to half-time shows at Meade Field last Saturday afternoon, under the direction of Jeffrey Anderson, when the Dayton Bulldogs opened the 1972 football season by defeating Roselle High School, 24-14.

"We are presenting a more formal approach to half-time football shows this year," Anderson said. "We are stressing a drum and bugle approach that emphasizes military banding with accuracy and power in contrast to the normal use of pictures and formations. We've integrated the twirlers, color guards, drill team, cheerleaders and drum majorette into a single unit that operates as the 'band front' so all our musical activities function as a coordinated group."

Patry Heinrich is drum majorette of the unit, Jodi Kross is twirler captain, Debbie Ironson is color guard captain, Marie Wilson is drill team captain, Charles Van Riper is student band director, Larry Zeller is associate student band director and Larry Zeller is student director of the jazz ensemble.

The Dayton band will play at this Saturday's 2 p.m. home game against Roselle at Meade Field. The band will also play at a show that includes "Reinset" by Wagner.

Retirement can be a miserable time for one who has nothing to do. For many, the greatest source of pleasure is in working before you retire. If one has been "on the move" for twenty years or so, there's little comfort in the equally motion of a rocking chair.

Longing for 'golden days' IN PAST TENSE

By JOHN SINOR
The price of movies keeps climbing higher and higher. Up to $1 a ticket. With a house full of movie nuts, this has me climbing higher and higher up the wall.

What happened to the 10-cent double feature? Back in those days, big movie stars still made enough to drive around in limousines. Now, if you should take my whole family to the movies, it would cost me exactly what I made in a week's wages when I started in this line.

Only three out of 10 films ever make any money. I was told recently by a film producer, "I would hate to see for Jim, except I might have spilled a tear on his $400 suit."

"You've got to see the kid market," said the producer. "They're the ones going to the movies."

I looked up a recent copy of Variety. Of the 50 grossing pictures playing throughout the country a couple of weeks ago, there were only six that my younger children could even get into.

I was raised in the days of Roy Rogers and Buck Jones, Charlie Chan and Tarzan. Every Saturday afternoon I had reservations at the Helig in Eugene, Ore., and later at the Hoxie in Sacramento.

There was an idea among my friends that we could make into a movie by walking in backwoods while the rest of the crowd was walking out.

We believed it, but nobody ever tried it. I wanted to see the picture, but I didn't have a ticket, and he would open the emergency exit door on the side and let the rest of us in from the side.

Even if we were all buying tickets, $3 in those days would have gotten 30 of us in. I think that prices have gone up over the years, but 3,000 percent is pretty high.

Back in those golden days -- at least they seem golden to me now -- you could get all through a double feature in two nice hours.

And you know you can buy a 3 1/2 car for 99 cents in several of our local movie houses? I popped into a picture the other day and saw a hot dog and a cold drink for 99 cents.

Tips for traffic safety

By SGT. R. E. GOETZKE, Springfield Police Department

Unfortunately, asking the question "Who was to blame?" or "Whose fault was it?" following a traffic accident fails to correct traffic injuries or property damage.

In today's traffic a driver needs to do more than just obey the laws of the road, because driver error, on the part of either driver, is the critical factor in most all traffic accidents. The motorist of today must also watch out for other drivers as well as non-traffic hazards and be prepared to take evasive action.

A safe driver must be prepared to do everything in his power to prevent accidents. According to the National Safety Council a preventable accident is one in which a driver failed to do everything that he reasonably could have to prevent it.

On thinking of evasive action for possible hazards the driver must not consider himself an escape artist; escape artists are not safe drivers.

1. See the hazard.
2. Understand the defense.
3. Act in time.

Safe driving encompasses many things, and in today's traffic situation a driver must prepare himself by learning to drive defensively. Just having a driver's license is not enough. The most necessary preparation is:

Handball to be taught

Team handball for junior high boys will be introduced this year at the Summit Area YMCA according to William L. Liebig, Y program director. The game will be taught on Saturday mornings at 11:30 during the junior high recreational gym, and a league and club will be established in November.

Team handball, as seen in the Olympics in Munich, is a combination of soccer, basketball, and hockey. A widely seen sport in Europe, the game is less known in the United States. The object is to pass the ball into a hockey style net past goalies. Dribbling and passing skills associated with basketball are also taught as part of the offensive play.

Interested junior high boys were urged to register now for the Saturday instruction in preparation for league play. YMCA membership is required and further information may be obtained by calling Liebig at the YMCA, 273-3330.

Seton becomes member of Campus Afloat group

Students at Seton Hall University in South Orange will now spend one or more semesters at sea as part of their regular studies, since Seton Hall has just become a member of the World Campus Afloat Association, a consortium of colleges and universities which sponsors an innovative program of shipboard education.

World Campus Afloat, directed by Chapman College of Orange, Calif., conducts a four-month world study tour. It consists of the 18,000-ton S.S. Universe Campus, which is fully equipped with dormitory, library and laboratories and can accommodate more than 500 students and professors.

Seton Hall University is the 24th member of the World Campus Afloat Association. Dr. Paul M. Ochajski, professor of English at Seton Hall who already has spent two semesters as faculty member with the floating university, has been appointed campus advisor at Seton Hall for the World Campus Afloat program.

Battling the agreement for Seton Hall was Dr. John B. Duff, executive vice-president, while Mr. A. Griffiths, vice-president of Chapman College, represented the floating university.

Charter presented to new chapter of Red Magen David

The American Red Magen David recently presented a charter to the new Suburban Chapter of Union and Essex counties at an installation of officers held at Stanley's Restaurant, Springfield.

The American Red Magen David (Star of David) represents the ambulance corps serving the civilian population in the state of Israel. Norman Salata, Chapter president, said, "It also functions as a comprehensive and sophisticated blood bank and first aid training center. Its training program implements the mandatory requirements of 26 hours of first aid training for most students and all drivers of public conveyances such as buses and taxis."

"Should a tourist or a resident suffer mishap or illness on any street in Israel," Salata said, "there is little likelihood, as a result of the widespread popularity of the first aid training, of passersby not becoming involved. There is almost a guarantee that one will receive knowledgeable emergency attention before the ambulance arrives. An emergency telephone system similar to New York's emergency number 911 summons an ambulance from one of its 73 stations located throughout Israel."

"Funds for these services are raised among the Israeli citizens by voluntary contributions. The American Magen David is but one of the chapters that exist in many other countries that lead their support to help maintain this humanitarian effort."

Auto club announces support of state's transport bond issue

The AAA Auto Clubs of New Jersey, with a membership of more than 300,000, this week announced support of the $550 million bond issue on the ballot this November. Announced at the AAA endorsement was made by Ralph F. Angello, executive vice-president of the Automobile Club of Southern New Jersey and state chairman of the AAA clubs.

He said the endorsement "was voted with reluctance. It is very probable that this will be the last major transportation bond issue our group will support until and unless a sincere effort is made to step a patchwork approach to the state's transportation needs."

Angello commented:

"We of the AAA have long advocated that all or a major portion of highway user taxes be dedicated to highway transportation purposes. The dedication method has been used successfully in many of our sister states, and it is the best way to properly plan and execute the multi-million dollar needs of transportation exercise a greater control over so-called traffic generators, such as massive shopping centers and the like, which often force unanticipated expenditures of highway dollars and a change in promised priorities. We feel very strongly that the voters in New Jersey are entitled to vote on a change in our state constitution to permit the dedication of highway user taxes and to end the crisis approach to the transportation needs of the most densely populated state in the nation."

"If that is not the case, we of the AAA feel we have no alternative but to support the $550 million bond issue. We are not happy with the amount earmarked for highway needs or with some of the indicated priorities. We believe, however, that New Jersey voters cannot afford the luxury of saying no in the hope that future legislators will act constructively on the dedication question. This money is needed, and needed now, and we have no alternative but to urge our members to vote 'yes' on this referendum on Nov. 7."

Lifespan may reach 110, 'futurologist' forecasts

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Within 25 years, the normal human life span will be extended to 110 years, according to a "futurologist" Dr. W. H. Wheeler, director of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, says.

In an interview in the current issue of the NITRA, "biological evolution," Wheeler says that the prospect of a prolonged lifespan stems from today's "biological revolution," resulting from the unlocking of the genetic code. By 1997, he predicts, scientists will be able to operate with the vigor of people in their 60s today, creating a retirement revolution.

A fellow at the Santa Barbara center working in the field of future public policy, Dr. Wheeler predicts that Americans will have several different occupations during a lifespan. Besides work, leisure, recreation and the like will be devoted to work to improve the community — "helping to see that everyone is developing as well as he can and is enjoying life."

Community-oriented work would not necessarily be of the volunteer variety. "I would think of it as paid," says Dr. Wheeler. "After all, the building and maintaining of the proper society is an important and hard job, and the person doing that ought to be paid, just as we now pay legislators."

"To meet the challenge of greater longevity, people will need formal education throughout their lives," he says. "As a result, formal education is going to be one of the boom industries in the future."

Meet Rudy Russo, Dollar Stretcher:

He has a machine that handles up to 15 jobs concurrently to help conserve your health-care dollars.

Rudy is Senior Manager in our Data Processing Department. He and his round-the-clock crews operate the modern computers we use to screen, record and store data, process enrollments and issue checks for the more than $515 million worth of eligible claims we pay every year.

Rudy knows how to keep operating expenses to a bare-bone minimum. Recently he began using a new, highly efficient computer that will literally perform 15 jobs concurrently. The result is considerable savings in time and operating expenses. Thanks to people like Rudy and our other dollar stretchers, the operating expenses for New Jersey Blue Cross and Blue Shield are only a few pennies of each membership dollar. About one-third the operating expenses of commercial health insurers.

Rudy Russo. It's your dollar he's stretching. He's another one of the many reasons New Jersey Blue Cross and Blue Shield deliver more health care for your health-care dollar.

At a meeting of the Springfield Citizens for McGovern-Shriver Sept. 29, Chairman Dan Dunn reported that efforts by the group to register Springfield citizens to vote were in full swing and would continue through today.

Optimism for the McGovern-Shriver campaign was voiced by the youth co-chairman, Tom Cohen. Cohen cited a Gallup Poll of Sept. 20 which indicated that the gap between President Nixon and Sen. McGovern can be closed.

Many confused and fearful voters must be convinced that George McGovern's proposals to cut the military budget, withdraw from Indochina and convert the arms industry to civilian production are beneficial and practical.

The local Citizens for McGovern-Shriver group plans to distribute literature throughout Springfield, pertaining to Sen. McGovern's foreign and domestic programs.

Kesselhaut, Marino criticize GOP lack of accomplishments

He worked for? What charities have benefited from his presence in Springfield? What child is better off for his guidance? None.

"Since a 20 year man in Springfield, Mo., or Springfield, Mass., or anywhere else. He asks for the town not a bit better or a bit worse than if he spent that time in Springfield, Mo., or Springfield, Mass., or anywhere else."

"Wasserman, on the other hand, claims only three years in Springfield. During that time what has he done? For one thing he has been appointed by Hucoco and Banner as an alternate to the Board of Adjustment."

"The dates of an alternate to this vital board are to attend the meetings, to be available if a regular member is absent or if a regular member must disqualify himself due to any one of a number of reasons, such as living within 200 feet of the property being discussed, being related to an applicant, etc."

"As a result of Wasserman's total disregard for the responsibilities given him by the board, on a number of occasions, had only a partial board available to hear their cases. This situation that reflects poorly on the board and on the town of Springfield. An applicant is entitled to a full five-man board. It is for this reason that the state law setting up the board provides for alternates. Wasserman now asks the town to give him added responsibility on the basis of his record."

"In addition to his lack of activity on the Board of Adjustment, Wasserman has among his achievements the writing of a letter to the editor of the Springfield Leader supporting Alexander's shopping center development, a position he now disclaims since he detects a shift in public opinion."

"We must deal in real issues in this election. We, Art Kesselhaut and John Marino, have tried to suggest new issues and new ideas that would benefit the entire town. Thus far we have publicly communicated on crime prevention, safety and tenants rights. Our opponents have avoided issues or reduced them to abstractions."

"During the past year the tenants of Springfield have found it necessary to join together to form a tenants association which has served as an outlet for airing grievances and solving the problems faced by apartment dwellers. This association has accomplished a great deal in its short life span."

"We believe that a strong and active Tenant-Landlord Committee can and should complement the work being performed by the private association. As an official arm of the municipal governing body, the Tenant-Landlord Committee has a unique opportunity to bring the full influence and power of the municipal governing body into negotiations between landlord and tenants."

"Effective rent stabilization legislation and a strong Tenant-Landlord Committee represent an unbeatable combination that can and will work for the benefit of all apartment dwellers in Springfield. We pledge to support both."

"Our opposition chose to place political considerations above the needs and welfare of our apartment dwellers by refusing to reappoint Harold Leber as chairman of the Tenant-Landlord Committee just because he happened to be an active Republican."

"Leber's tenure as chairman of the Tenant-Landlord Committee and under his leadership the organization functioned as a force capable of promoting cooperation between the landlords, tenants and officials of the township. His ideas and innovations have been copied and put into effect in many other communities. But in Springfield, the Tenant-Landlord Committee now has dormant because of mediocre leadership from the Democratic administration."

"We pledge, if elected, to revitalize the Tenant-Landlord Committee and appoint individuals who will once again bring effective leadership into the organization."

"We have dealt with issues objectively, not politically, as in the case of the Mountain Avenue parking ban, we took a position that we felt it was right for the town. We will continue to speak issues and ideas, not because of their political impact, but because we are concerned about the town and its residents."

"Our opponents say they will open up Town Hall to all the people. Our only question is, will they be interested enough to be there when anyone comes to visit?"

Hospital insurance handbook available to state consumers

Governor William T. Cahill and New Jersey Insurance Commissioner Richard C. McDonough this week announced the public distribution of a consumer's handbook on the pitfalls of buying hospital insurance policies through the mails.

The handbook, titled "The Step and Look! Approach in Buying Mail Order Accident and Health Insurance," results from the department's recent investigation into misleading and deceptive advertising by insurance companies who are selling accident and health, hospitalization and medicare supplemental insurance coverage through the mails.

The commissioner said the purpose of the handbook and the new advertising regulations is to "alert the public of New Jersey not to be duped by slick come-ons, gimmicks, and endorsements by prominent persons."

He said copies of the handbook are available by writing "Step and Look!" New Jersey Department of Insurance, 201 E. State St., Trenton, 08625.

Treasury Dept. admonishes on using bonds for schemes

Jack J. Dunn, state director, U. S. Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, this week cautioned residents of New Jersey about becoming involved in chain-letter or similar schemes "to get rich" with Savings Bonds.

"Many years' experience with chain letter schemes indicate that most participants lost their entire investment," according to Dunn. "This outcome is inevitable because the supply of interested persons is soon exhausted; the greater the amount to be invested, the sooner the saturation point is reached."

"Banks and other issuing agencies are therefore authorized by the Treasury to refuse applications for bonds where there is reason to believe they will be used in chain-letter schemes," Dunn said.

"Chain-letter schemes which use the mails to facilitate their purpose are considered by the Postal Service as a violation of the postal lottery and fraud laws - 18 USC 1302, 1341. Further, postal officials have warned that, even though the lists of participants are not included in the mails, this does not alter the illegality of the operation since, usually, the bonds or other evidence of participation in the scheme are mailed. There is also the possibility that the scheme may violate local anti-lottery laws, even if the mails are not used in any way."

"In addition to the fact that chain-letter schemes violate federal law, the Treasury believes that the public should be made aware of such schemes - which are essentially get-rich-quick endeavors - to a distinct disadvantage to the Savings Bonds Program. Rather than encouraging persons to make genuine investments, they create the illusion that participants are both aiding their Government and themselves. Even in the rare case where an individual receives a large return, it is likely to be quickly offset by the Government's rather placing a charge against the Savings Bonds," Dunn said.

"The availability of qualified speakers to review the bond issue prior to the public hearing on the ballot was announced by the Balanced Transportation co-chairman, C. Malcolm Davis, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Fidelity Union Trust Co., and Charles H. Marcantoni, president of the State AFL-CIO.

Changes in status should be reported to Social Security

If you're one of the nearly 600,000 students, 18 to 22, getting monthly social security checks, it's important to report any changes in your status to social security according to Ralph W. Jones, social security district manager in the Union County area.

Students get monthly social security payments when a parent receives disability or retirement benefits or has died. They can continue to get payments to age 22 as long as their student status does not change, Jones said.

Changes in earnings, school enrollment, attendance, or marital status can affect their payments, however.

"If a student is or ever is receiving social security payments and leaves school or starts attending on a part time basis, he should notify social security immediately," Jones said. "He is obligated to tell us of these changes" so we can stop his monthly benefits, as required by law.

A student's total yearly earnings from part-time or temporary jobs as well as self-employment can also affect his social security payments, Jones stated.

Any student in the Union County area who receives social security payments and knows his earnings for 1972 will exceed $1,680 should report this to social security," Jones said. "Otherwise, he might get checks which would have to be paid back later."

Social security benefits are reduced by $1 for every $2 earned if the student beneficiary earns between $1,680 and $2,880 in a year. In addition, benefits are reduced by $1 for every $1 earned if earnings exceed $2,880 a year.

"But a beneficiary can get full benefits for any month he doesn't earn more than $140 or perform substantial services in self-employment, regardless of how much he earns in a year," Jones pointed out. "If a student beneficiary changes schools, he should report his transfer to social security. If a student marries, he should contact us right away. Marriage stops a student's social security payments."

Course takes the cake and decorates it at Voc Center

"Holiday on Ice" describes a special program at the Union County Vocational Center this fall, but it doesn't refer to skis on the skating rink.

The "ice" is the sugary kind and the "holidays" are Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day, which will be just a few of the special projects undertaken in "Cake Decorating," a non-credit, 15-session course offered by the Division of Continuing Education this fall.

"Cake Decorating," according to director Richard Kay, will feature cake, pastry, and petit four decoration studied and practiced by each student under the supervision of instructors in the Food Services Department. Class members will also undertake individual projects for special occasions, including the holidays, weddings, birthdays, etc.

Classes will meet one night per week for three hours. The course is open to anyone wishing to attend.

Forty other special interest courses designed for those wishing to upgrade employment skills, switch jobs, or fill their leisure time constructively will be offered by the Division of Continuing Education at the Vocational Center. Classes will meet one or two nights per week beginning Monday, Sept. 25.

Among the areas of concentration offered this fall at the Vocational Center will be: appliance servicing, auto mechanics, food services, welding, millwright-maintenance, machine shop, power engineering, radio and TV repair, beauty culture, commercial art, heating, ventilating, and air conditioning, and photography.

Registration for any of our courses may be handled by mail or in person at the Vocational Center on Wednesday and Thursday evening, Sept. 20 and 21, from 6 until 9 p.m.

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I have a big problem I was going with this boy who I really liked, but I was a fool and listened to my "best" girlfriend. She told me that my boyfriend was cheating on her. He had only gone out with me and he was innocent. But now it's too late. Please give me advice on how to get him back. I really don't want to let him go, but I don't know what to do.

Plumbers Local 245 has broken precedent to endorse the Congressional bid of State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldo, the Republican candidate in the 12th district. Thomas Flammia of Roselle Park, president of the 172-member local, explained that the organization had never endorsed a candidate below the level of United States Senator. ## 2 Dem candidates list achievements, program for future

Arthur Kesselhaut and John Marino, Democratic candidates for Springfield Township Committee, issued a statement this week citing the achievements of Springfield's Township Committee during the two years that Town Hall has had a Democratic three to two majority. In reviewing the record, Kesselhaut and Marino stated that only if both of them are elected in November would a three to two Democratic majority continue. Both seats being contested are held by Democrats. Citing programs instituted by the Township Committee in the areas of flood, tenants' rights, zoning, traffic safety, drugs, recreation, senior citizens, town cleanliness and citizen participation in town government, Kesselhaut and Marino pledged to continue Democratic programs of service to all of Springfield's citizens and not a privileged, partisan few. Their statement follows: "The area of flood control, Springfield is on the verge of significant improvement. During this past year dredging of Bryant Brook has taken place. An ordinance for a $60,000 bond program for flood control is being prepared. (Continued on page 20)

Wasserman claims misrepresentation made by opponent

Robert H. Wasserman, Republican candidate for the one-year seat on the Township Committee, this week released a statement regarding his opponent of conducting a campaign based upon "misrepresentations and outright lies." Wasserman stated: "The last week's edition of the Leader, my opponent made certain statements about me which are totally untrue. I realize that when an individual throws his hat into the political ring, he must be prepared to face criticism and subject himself to the attacks of his opponent. However, I also believe that there is a big difference between political rhetoric and total disregard for the truth. My opponent has now called the point where his rhetoric has turned outright lies. I thought about merely being his interrepresentations but have decided not to remain silent. I feel that I have a obligation to my family, supporters, and especially to the voters of Springfield to set the record straight. I hope those lies and set the record straight.
