

History made at bank All-woman team leads study

History was made in Plainfield last week when a regular supervisory examination of 115 million bank was begun at the principal office and six branches of United National Bank. The historic feature was that the examining team of 31, from the office of the regional administrator of national banks, was made up completely of women.

The examination, one of three conducted every two years in the national banks' system, is always unannounced and lasts about a week. The United National Bank, with assets in excess of $165 million, ranks 32nd in size among New Jersey's 223 banks.

The 31 women examining team, a third of whom are black and/or Spanish speaking, are all professionals from the office of the regional administrator of national banks, based in New York. The regional administrator, Charles M. Van Horn of Glen Rock, has jurisdiction over the second region which comprises New York, New Jersey, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

The National Banking System is headed by the controller of the currency in Washington and is part of the Department of the Treasury of the United States Government.

This team, led by Barbara M. Gill of Metuchen, included six commissioned examiners, whose commissions are signed by the Secretary of the Treasury, 21 assistant examiners and two financial officers. Ms. Gill has been an examiner for four and a half years. Van Horn said the first time a woman qualified as an assistant national bank examiner in the second region was nine years ago.

Last May, Van Horn was given the first promulgation of the currency award for distinguished service in the administration of the Equal Employment Opportunity Act and the national bank region has achieved outstanding results in employment of women and minority group members in examiner positions. Commensurate with the award, Van Horn started a caseload counselor and advanced to supervisor of the Essex county office. Mrs. Loudermilk has done extensive consulting and spent the past few years as Chief Consultant with Health Industrial Training Services, Parlin.

A graduate of Drew University, Madison, N.J., Loudermilk earned a M.A. Master's Degree in education, medical and psychological rehabilitation from Seton Hall University, Newark. She also has a certificate in hermiprophylaxis in various metropolitan areas. Her husband, Joseph, is the assistant administrator at Memorial General Hospital, Union. The Loudermilk have two children.

Jack W. Owen, speaking in behalf of the state's other 143 health care institutions, cited the Equal Employment Opportunity Act as "testimony to the rehabilitation hospital's continued concern for quality children's health care."

The program at Westlake School is geared not only to hospitalized patients, but also to those who are being treated at the hospital for therapy on an out-patient basis. The author of articles on Jewish music, has been on the conducting staff of the Union County Symphony for the last 14 years.

The musicians for this occasion are provided by a grant from the Music Performance Trust Fund, a public service organization created and financed by the American Industries' under agreement with the American Federation of Musicians. The grant was obtained through the excellent cooperation of Local 151, A.F. of M.

Voc students 'on stage'

The difference between soloing before a mirror and performing on a stage might best describe the difference between classroom instruction and a cooperative education work experience, according to John Kolmos of the Union County Vocational Center.

The "on stage" aspect of cooperative education, explains Kolmos, coordinator of the program, is one of the most significant aspects of the program, and 40 students at the Center are finding this to be true. They are currently attending classes in the morning or afternoon and working on a job during the remainder of the day.

1st District residents plead for flood relief

A desperate plea for flood relief, voiced by residents of the Marion Avenue-Alvin Terrace neighborhood, north of Morris Avenue near the Rahway River, was amplified by more than 100 citizens who packed the room for the Township Committee meeting Tuesday night at Town Hall.

The appeal was in the form of a petition signed by more than 75 local residents and presented by Nicholas J. Episcopo, chairman of the newly formed First District's Concerned Citizens for Action.

He warned of the effects of the new storm catch basin "located off the eastbound lane of Highway 78 near the intersection of the Rahway River and north of Springfield Avenue, and draining into the Rahway River."

Episcopo declared that an overflowing of the river could back up through this drainage system and spill over into the residential areas also expressed concern over new storm sewerage construction in Union, at Morris and Liberty avenues. Episcopo said this will pour more water into the sewer and further aggravate conditions in Springfield.

Minutemen overwhelm Mountainside on 5 Fingerhut touchdowns, 60-40

The Springfield Minutemen ran their 1973 record to 5-2 with a 60-40 victory over the Mountainside Jets at Mount Pleasant on Saturday. The home 11 minutes over 600 yards rushing and 50 passing as Kenny Fingerhut scored five touchdowns. The return of Bobby Bohrod to the lineup after an absence of three games also played a major factor in the offensive display. Bohrod scored twice on short runs and also tallied three extra points during the game.

In the opening series of downs, Springfield quickly moved into jet territory powered by Fingerhut runs of 15 and 14 yards. A pass interference call against Mountainside on a Fingerhut-to-Kevin Doty aerial gave Springfield a first down on the 18. After a five-yard loss in the backfield, Fingerhut rambled 25 yards in the end zone for a 62 yard lead.

The Jets wasted no time coming back when they took over. After three running plays moved the ball to their own 48, the Mountainside quarterback caught the Minutemen napping by going on a quick count, and spiking his ballback through the line for a 51-yard touchdown gallop. An end run for the extra point was successful and the Jets led 7-6.

After the Minutemen were on the field, competition from Graziano and a 14-yard touchdown gallop on short runs by Frank Zahra, Ed Graziano and Fingerhut and a 14-yard run by Ed Graziano to the Jets, a fumble turned the ball over to the Jets. The visitors were stopped cold, however, and forced into a punting situation but the snap was fumbled and the kicker dumped for a loss with Springfield PAT for the 20th point.

Defensive end Pete Rosomando quickly recovered a Jets' fumble on their 31, and a Fingerhut-to-Doty option pass went the route in one play to make the score 32-13.

After taking possession, Mountainside once again fumbled on the 40. Bohrod and Fingerhut grabbed the ball on the 40. Bohrod in four plays, and Bohrod barreled over for the sixth TD of the half.

With 49 seconds remaining in the half, Fingerhut picked off a Jets' pass and returned it 43 yards to the Mountainside goal line for Springfield's seventh six-point play of the half, and Bohrod's third PAT made the score 48-13 at the half.

As the second half began, Mountainside asserted itself and proceeded to dominate play for most of the third quarter. They marched the length of the field all the way to the Springfield goal line stand, but a Fingerhut-to-Doty pass to the ball back on the two. After a red flag penalty, the Jets' fullback blasted over the goal line for the touchdown. With only 12 seconds left in a close, Springfield responded with another score, coming on Fingerhut's fourth of the day, a 39-yard burst down the field to the 10. The Jets' fourth quarter saw Mountainside tally three times and Springfield once. The Jets had two five-play drives, each good for 20 yards on the ground, which went for scores, as well as a 55-yard pass play on the final offensive play of the game.

The final period score for Springfield was Fingerhut's fifth of the day. At this point, Kenny was now operating at quarterback with the second offensive unit, whose line opened huge holes for him and enabled him to execute two rollouts, good for 26 and 20 yards and touchdowns.

Final figures for the day showed Fingerhut with 162 yards rushing in 17 carries, respectively, and Bohrod had 82 yards and 10 carries, respectively, and one touchdown. Graziano and Mark Lamb, backup fullback, each gained 17 yards on the ground. This Sunday, the same two teams who will be teammates at Dayton Regional next year, will meet at the Deerfield School in Mountainside for the second part of their home and home series. This game will conclude the season for both teams. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

A group of 30 Springfield Historical Society members with Madeline Lancaster as leader, recently visited Liberty Village, Flemington, for a tour. Liberty Village is a re-created early American village. The local historians had the chance to momentarily live in the 1750 era of history.

They also had the opportunity of visiting three museums, all housed in Colonial buildings: the Vivian Beck Estlin Buffon Museum, the largest collection in the United States; the Kessler Museum of Edward Marshall Boehm's porcelain (70 in all); Swan Museum of the American Revolution and collection of early American glass and silver. MAKING TRACKS — Is Kati Spilholz of the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School cross country team who spent past many a mile opponent in the three mile competition. Coach Martin Toglietti (right) and official Martin Sherman of Springfield are stopping the watches at the finish line.

Dayton Dispatch

By Margot Krasnow

She runs four miles in the morning and six more after school.

As the cross-country season cranks to a close, Springfield senior Kati Spilholz also runs with Dayton's varsity squad — the only girl on the "man" squad. At 4:30 on the 9th, she is in excellent shape to endure the long distance running — which constitutes cross country.

Kati started running as a sophomore, inspired by her desire to discover how much endurance she really had. Having joined the team last year, she built herself up for the 2 1/2 mile run. Kati believes she ran better last year, placing behind the fifth.

Waste treatment facility gets $16 million addition

A $16-million addition to the Rahway Valley Wastewater Treatment Plant, termed "one of the most important environmental projects ever completed in the area," was dedicated at ceremonies in Rahway last Friday.

The complex of biological secondary treatment facilities, among the largest built in New Jersey in the last decade, will permit continued residential and business development in an area of nearly 50 square miles with a high concentration of industry and a population of more than 200,000.

In many other communities, some of them in New Jersey, government agencies have been forced to halt residential and commercial construction because water quality standards are rising and wastewater treatment facilities no longer are adequate.

"By moving more quickly than most municipalities to meet the need for new facilities, the nine member towns of the Rahway Valley Sewerage Authority minimized the effects of escalating construction costs and saved several million dollars for local, state and federal taxpayers," a spokesman said.

"As a significant improvement project, the expansion was financed cooperatively by federal, state, and local funds, with federal and state grants of more than $9 million to date. Local capital was raised through sale of the Sewerage Authority's revenue bonds," he added.

Start a family tradition: Thanksgiving dinner at Stouffer's.

For dad, there's dining as hearty as at home. (Maybe heartier). And he'll be secretly pleased that there'll be plenty of time for him to catch the afternoon football game.

For mother, it's a holiday from the kitchen. And for a change, she'll be wiped and dined and waited on.

For youngsters, will like taking out at a place that knows how to please their young appetites with a special menu for children.

Thanksgiving at Stouffer's is for everybody who likes all the delicious traditional holiday foods. Combine your favorites into a complete feast. Beginning with a choice of appetizers like egg-steaming oyster buque. Then succulent turkey with savory dressing and rich gravy. New England cranberries, a choice of freshly cooked vegetable and special salads. Plus hot breads, relish tray, beverage and your choice from our beautiful selection of desserts. After dinner mints, of course. Thanksgiving is for everybody. At Stouffer's.

Ignorance, prudery are main obstacles to elimination of gonorrhea epidemic

DR. HENRY BIRNE
Springfield Health Officer

A sailor I know used to tell his buddies how he never carried there leave back to the ship because he always took a shower to get rid of the gonorrhea.

That about sums up the popular attitude and prevention regarding a modern plague, gonorrhea, a far more serious disease than most people realize.

Health Departments have known for years that gonorrhea was epidemic. They talked about it too, and the gym teacher was given new liberal and tact job security if he would talk to the kids about the "trouble." If they weren't careful, and the state passed a law permitting minors to be examined and treated for the disease without telling their parents.

But the drama and scare generally associated with the word "epidemic" has always been lacking with the prevalence of gonorrhea in the community. When health boards told the press that gonorrhea was epidemic, the public reaction had been, "So is the common cold."

Perhaps no other disease draws as much public interest as gonorrhea, along with more general misinformation. This led to a strange common acceptance of the disease, one that would not have been tolerable to the public had the disease been tuberculosis or cholera. Gonorrhea is a sex-linked, public-relations-focused-disease with the same hot image of a shout-out Western or a TV detective baroque.

The disease has also been passed underground for so long that it became traditionally tied with other taboos, so that even the liberation of 65 statistics sounds like a night-evolution-fueled with pills and censorship. As a result, the epidemic of gonorrhea holds well to the epidemic of misinformation, and maintains itself upon the misinformation.

When teenage patients at the San Diego Health Department's Venereal Disease Clinic were recently questioned about venereal disease, a majority said nobody had to be scared of the disease because treatment was effective. The 1973 gonorrhea count totals up to 15 percent more than the 2.3 million nationally reported cases in 1972.

Myths form easily with the popular misinformation. Speculation in a vacuum holds up to be a wild disease by the general public. Yet the disease has been found dangerous enough to have caused serious public-inflammatory disease in one out of five women infected with gonorrhea—more than half of those women every hospitalized and half of those required radical surgery to save their lives.

Although early gonorrhea in the male is relatively simple to detect, the infected female may become a silent carrier. About 80 percent of infected women will show no symptoms. This means not enough anxiety would be there to lead her to an examination. Within this context, the "working disease" is transmitted to compounding chains of people, when the infection stays silent in 80 percent of the infected women.

The big problem in control is to find the infected women who show no symptoms. Another problem is to accept gonorrhea as a biological disease, not as a disease of misbehavior.

The opportunities for bacteriological screening of women must be freely encouraged, because 80 percent of infection without symptoms is too good a plague to be carried by a silent majority.

CARE starts drive to obtain food for nutrition program

NEW YORK—Some 7,000,000 children across the world have had to be dropped from CARE's child-nutrition program, because of reductions in U.S. food for Peace commodities allocated to private American agencies for humanitarian use overseas.

To continue daily supplementary feedings for 20,000,000 persons—almost all children—during the coming year, and to provide emergency food aid for 6,000,000 refugees and disaster victims, the 1973 holiday-season CARE Food-Crisis needs to raise $1,200,000,000, Frank L. Goffo, executive director, announced.

"Painful decisions have had to be made to drop large groups of preschool- and school-children in countries where hunger and malnutrition are the biggest killers of the young, and cause permanent physical and mental damage in millions who survive," Goffo said.

"CARE's hopeful Food for Peace cuts may be restored in the months ahead. Meanwhile, we must appeal to the public to respond generally so that our most crucial programs can be maintained."

While U.S. agricultural donations are the mainstay of the program, CARE also buys other foods to match local needs. Host governments help too, by contributing distribution costs according to their abilities.

Public contributions cover the remaining delivery and marketing costs. Checks may be sent to CARE Food-Crisis, 600 First Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016, or any regional office.

The Chubb Institute is accredited by the Accrediting Commission of the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools, approved by the State Department of Education and approved in the continuing education school as recognized by the New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Authority as an eligible institution under the State Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

Christmas delivery overseas ensured only by early mailing

The Secretary of Defense, and the Postmaster General have issued a joint statement urging the public to mail holiday packages early to members of the armed forces overseas to ensure delivery in time for Christmas.

Besides avoiding the last-minute rush, package senders have been asked to cooperate with the postal service in the following ways:

—Wrap and tie all parcels well.
—Print both mailing and return addresses clearly, include the serviceman's identification number in the address.
—Make sure the APO or FPO numbers include all five digits.

—Also include the mailing address and return address inside the package.
The postal service also advised that perishable food items and flammable materials (matches, lighter fluid, etc.) may not be mailed.
There are four methods of posting packages: To most military post offices overseas, regular mail and air mail may be used if the parcels weigh no more than 70 pounds or are no more than 100 inches in length and girth combined.

Space available for Christmas packages is limited. Packages weighing less than 15 pounds and are less than 60 inches in length and girth combined. These can be sent by ordinary post rates and will receive air transportation from the east or west coasts on a space available basis.

Parcel Airmail carries parcels weighing more than 15 pounds or measuring less than 60 inches in length and girth combined. For more than surface rates, these can be serviced from post offices overseas.

WHAT happens to flood-damaged vehicles after silt, mud and sludge makes them "unusable"? In the case of 38 Buicks damaged in an August flash flood in northern New Jersey, all of the new 1973 vehicles were donated to high schools, vocational schools, colleges and state correctional institutions for automotive mechanics instructional purposes.

New Jersey schools received 40 cars, many of which were donated by General Motors and Buick to Union County institutions, including Union County Vocational Center, Scotch Plains, and Lincoln Institute. John Mulholland, zone manager of the Buick office in Clinton, in presenting the vehicles to the students in the field of auto mechanics.

"Such contributions have been found to be of real value to educators in their shops, classrooms and laboratories. The vehicles are well preserved to meet the needs of a growing automotive industry."

Scouts launch program of energy conservation

Acting immediately on President Nixon's request to the nation to conserve energy, the Boy Scouts of America have announced a massive nationwide program involving its 5.5-million membership.

"The BSA's energy conservation program, which has been in the planning stages for many months, will be in the hands of our 450 councils throughout the country by Dec. 15," Chief Scout Executive Alden G. Barber declared at National Scout headquarters in North Brunswick.

"It is a complete program that we hope will have the support of the nation's energy industry and manufacturers of paper, metals and glass," he said. In addition, he said the program would be used in directly with the reclamation and recycling of paper, metals and glass.

Barber said that Scouts throughout the nation were geared up to tackle the energy crisis because of their direct involvement and first-hand experience with Project SOAR (Save Our America's Resources), the BSA's ongoing conservation and environmental program initiated four years ago.

The program will spell out scores of ideas for action programs for Scouts to implement in 15 specific ways that energy can be conserved, many of them explained by President Nixon in his nationwide television address.

Cub Scouts, Scouts and Explorers will be encouraged to lead energy saving efforts in their homes. Projects Scouts can do include lowering thermostats three degrees, thereby saving 10 percent of fuel bills. They can change the wattage of light bulbs to incandescent types, turn off lights and appliances not being used and survey clothes washers, dryers and dishwashers to see if they are being run with full loads.

Older Explorers who drive are being asked to drive more slowly, to avoid idling their cars and to check pollution control equipment. Younger Cub Scouts and Scouts are being encouraged to use three-liter or car pools for going to school and Scout meetings.

Cub Scout packs, Scout troops and Explorer units will also launch huge recycling campaigns for paper, aluminum, glass and steel.

"The BSA can do much to help ease the nation's energy crisis," Barber asserted. "By getting our story direct to youth and adult members, and through them to relatives, family and friends, we can reach a very substantial segment of the American people." Barber explained "Our Project SOAR program is designed to do just that."

School programs will be previewed on Jerseyview

Instructional television programs being considered for New Jersey Public Broadcasting's 1973-1974 schedule will be previewed next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday on Channels 50 and 58.

The programs, distributed by the Eastern Educational Television Network, cover subjects ranging from music to biology, from calculus to environmental education.

A schedule of all programs to be telecast during Preview Week, program descriptions and evaluation forms will be sent to all elementary and secondary school audio visual directors throughout the state. The directors have been asked to distribute the information to the teachers and students.

"Our purpose in offering a preview of new programs is to involve the educational community in the decision-making process of instructional programming for New Jersey classrooms," says Mrs. Mary Jane Phillips, director of Educational Services, New Jersey Public Broadcasting.

"We are asking that teachers, administrators, principals and students watch the programs and react to them. The information we receive from these people will help us to determine which new programs will be included in our instructional program schedule for the next school year."

Written requests for stickers should be sent to ESP, P.O. Box 960, Newark, 07102, and they should specify number needed. Written requests cannot be handled by local ITS offices or by post offices.

The new stickers should be posted on every pump in a prominent position where they can easily be seen by a customer. The old stickers should also be removed. If more than one grade of gas is sold from a pump, a separate sticker must be posted for each grade. Stickers must contain the new ceiling price and the minimum octane of the gasoline.

Under revised Cost of Living Council rules, effective Nov. 1, gasoline and diesel fuel retailers are permitted to increase their May 15, 1973, selling price to reflect a dollar-for-dollar pass-through basis. Their increased petroleum costs. This can be done no more than once a month. Whenever an adjustment is made to the maximum permissible price, each retailer must adjust his posted price.

On the reverse side of the posting instruction sheet is a form which dealers must use to compute their ceiling prices, Mr. Kinsman said.

Fuel retailers must get new ceiling price cards

Because of recent changes in the Cost of Living Council's Phase IV petroleum regulations, all gasoline and diesel fuel retailers in New Jersey must obtain new ceiling price stickers for every pump of grade of petroleum sold, P. H. Kinsman, district director of Internal Revenue, announced this week.

The new stickers must be posted on pumps by 11:59 p.m. next Wednesday. New stickers and instruction-completion forms may be picked up at any New Jersey ITS office. Stickers and instructions will also be available at selected offices of the U.S. Postal Service. In this area they may be obtained from the ITS office at 679-Broad St. in Newark.

If more than one grade of gas is sold from a pump, a separate sticker must be posted for each grade. Stickers must contain the new ceiling price and the minimum octane of the gasoline.

Under revised Cost of Living Council rules, effective Nov. 1, gasoline and diesel fuel retailers are permitted to increase their May 15, 1973, selling price to reflect a dollar-for-dollar pass-through basis. Their increased petroleum costs. This can be done no more than once a month. Whenever an adjustment is made to the maximum permissible price, each retailer must adjust his posted price.

On the reverse side of the posting instruction sheet is a form which dealers must use to compute their ceiling prices, Mr. Kinsman said.

A schedule of all programs to be telecast during Preview Week, program descriptions and evaluation forms will be sent to all elementary and secondary school audio visual directors throughout the state. The directors have been asked to distribute the information to the teachers and students.

"Our purpose in offering a preview of new programs is to involve the educational community in the decision-making process of instructional programming for New Jersey classrooms," says Mrs. Mary Jane Phillips, director of Educational Services, New Jersey Public Broadcasting.

"We are asking that teachers, administrators, principals and students watch the programs and react to them. The information we receive from these people will help us to determine which new programs will be included in our instructional program schedule for the next school year."

Written requests for stickers should be sent to ESP, P.O. Box 960, Newark, 07102, and they should specify number needed. Written requests cannot be handled by local ITS offices or by post offices.

School programs will be previewed on Jerseyview

Instructional television programs being considered for New Jersey Public Broadcasting's 1973-1974 schedule will be previewed next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday on Channels 50 and 58.

The programs, distributed by the Eastern Educational Television Network, cover subjects ranging from music to biology, from calculus to environmental education.

What to do if you're involved in an auto accident

If you're one of the more than four million persons licensed by New Jersey to drive on the traffic-jammed highways and by ways of this country, the chances of your being involved in an auto accident in the next four or five years are high.

National accident figures show that in 1972, 29.1 million drivers were involved in 248 million accidents. Because there were 118.2 million licensed drivers that year, one driver in four may have been involved in a crash.

What should you do in the aftermath of an accident—a sudden and frequently traumatic event when emotions run high?

The most valuable preparation for such emergencies, the Insurance Information

Institute says, is for every driver to understand fully and memorize these primary responsibilities: Stop. Identify yourself. Aid any injured persons.

Failure to perform these duties at the scene of an accident carries severe legal penalties. The Institute notes drivers involved in accidents where a person is hurt must come to a stop, provide identification and offer to assist the injured, or under the Uniform Vehicle Code face a fine of $100 to $5,000 and/or 30 days to one year in jail. Most states require a convicted person's license to be revoked.

Being "involved in an accident" has little to do with causing it, the Institute points out. You are "involved" if your vehicle comes into contact with another vehicle, pedestrian or object, or if you cause or contribute to a crash by another driver even though there is no physical contact with your vehicle.

An involved driver's first duty is to stop immediately—as close to the scene as possible but without unnecessarily obstructing traffic. Park on the shoulder and pull clear of any intersections, the Institute says. Not only is it unlawful for a movable vehicle to be left in the roadway, it is also inconceivable and dangerous. Motorists should be careful, however, to note where the vehicles were at the point of impact for subsequent reference in preparing accident reports.

Identifying yourself is extremely important in all types of motor vehicle accidents. Whether the accident involves other drivers or unattended property such as parked cars.

In an accident involving other drivers, you must supply all injured and involved persons and/or investigating police officers with your name, address, vehicle registration number and driver's license number. In an accident involving unattended property, you are required either to locate the owner and give him the same information or attach a note containing this information to the property and immediately notify the police.

It is also important to note that if you are involved in an accident without identifying yourself in some way, if you go to call for an ambulance or the police, the Institute recommends you leave your identification behind to avoid any possible misunderstanding of your intentions.

Prudent attention can mean the difference between life and death to many auto accident victims. It therefore is not only the legal but also the moral duty of a driver involved in an accident to aid an injured person who needs or requests medical treatment. This requires making arrangements for transporting the person to a hospital or doctor. Usually, you simply call for an ambulance, but

Institute also advises contacting your insurance agent or representative as soon as is reasonably possible. His phone number usually is on your policy identification card, which you must carry with you when driving. Because insurance policies often specify requirements for oral or written notice of accidents, your agent is a valuable assistant in preparing these reports and providing any delay in informing the insurance company of the incident. Be sure to give the agent the exact details of the accident, including the names and addresses of all involved drivers, injured persons and witnesses.

Apart from these legal requirements, the
