Regional board waits for state fuel guidelines

SCENE TO CHANGE — This view from Summit road just north of Little Brook road shows where Rt. 78 will leave Springfield heading toward the Watchung Reservoir. The environmental impact statement recently issued by the Department of Transportation stated that homes in this area will be affected by noise and some air pollution, as well as obstruction of the view. Methods to save energy topic at closed session

By ARNER GOLD
The Regional High School District Board of Education Tuesday night went into a protracted closed session to consider plans for dealing with the energy crisis, in accordance with proposals issued last weekend by the state's acting education commissioner, Edward Kipatrick.
Kipatrick, who is superintendent of the State Board of Education, which was scheduled to meet yesterday in Trenton.
Kipatrick's "purely voluntary" guidelines, which could lead to further, more binding recommendations, included the following:
— Curtailment or elimination of after-school activities and field trips using buses, and the transfer of evening athletic events to daytime hours.
— Closing of buildings on weekends.
— Reduction of evening use by half, but with efforts to retain such vital programs as some

Rudolf may have only light in town

Energy-savers dreaming of a dark Christmas

By RAREN STOLL
It's a month before Christmas, and all through the town citizens are planning their holiday decorations—with the energy crisis in mind.
We made a telephone survey of Springfield residents, and all of those we spoke with indicated they are going to comply with their requests of President Nixon and other leaders to curtail holiday lighting.
Last week the Township Committee announced there would be no lights on either the Town Hall or on the tree in front of the building, but assured residents there would be a full range of other Yule decorations.
The idea of compensating for lights with non-electric decorations seems to have found favor with many of the local residents we contacted. These included Rose Phillips of 188 Reshaw ave., who stated, "We'll definitely not have any electric decorations outside this year—and we used to use a lot of lights outdoors—all across the front of the house. This year, we won't even put lights in the windows. Instead we'll use more trimming for windows and doors—wreaths and things like that. We'll probably light the tree, but we have very tiny lights, and they will be on only for brief periods."
Myrtle Manella of 43 Hawthorne ave., told us, "We've definitely decided not to decorate with lights this year if we did in the past. We decided to do the entire house, with lights around the house and garage, on the shrubs and up the walk. We might put an electric candle at the foot of the front steps, but I'm not sure yet. Probably, we'll just have a wreath on the door. Inside, I think I'll use those paper decorations you see in the stores."
JEAN WILSON OF 29 Troy dr. is a resident of Troy Village, where a "community tree" has been a part of the holiday season. "After hearing the President's address on the energy crisis, the residents decided we would not have the tree this year," she reported. "I'll probably have my own tree inside, but without lights on it. I'll just use more greenery and more colorful decorations."
Frank Farnell of 31 N. Derby rd. explained he used to decorate his home with lights, including strings of bulbs on shrubbery and trees. "But this year, there'll be no lights at all outside," he said. "Our Christmas tree won't have lights either, just ornaments."
John E. Johnson of an Edgewood ave., also said he used to decorate his property, but does not intend to this year. "And we won't put lights

CD office to assist homeowners with emergency fuel oil

A recent executive order signed into law by Gov. William Cahill designated all civil defense agencies in New Jersey to assist the newly created State Emergency Fuel and Energy Agency.
Saul Freeman, Springfield's director of civil defense, stated this week that an emergency hardship number—667-5388—is available for requests from residents who are undergoing hardships because of home heating oil shortages. The phone will be manned from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. each day, except Sunday.
Freeman also stated that all residents are expected to help in the conservation of fuel, by lowering their thermostats as directed by President Nixon, by keeping windows closed, holding in every way possible to conserve energy.
Freeman added, "In the event of a homeowner finding that his oil supply is running low, his first action should be to place a call to his supplier, and to ascertain when the next delivery is due.
"If the supplier is unable to guarantee the delivery of fuel, then a call to civil defense should be made, on the emergency phone. Certain information will be asked for: fuel used (usually No. 2 heating oil), the name, address and phone number of the supplier, and the reason for any hardship that may be involved.
"If a determination is made by the director of civil defense that a hardship does exist, then every effort will be made, through local, county and state agencies, to procure the needed oil for that hardship case."
Freeman also stated that "anyone who has made no effort to conserve oil, by not lowering his thermostat, an action that can easily be determined by the records of the supplier, will have no basis for being declared a hardship case."
"However, there may be cases where people have recently bought homes in Springfield who have no supplier at all. These people should call the emergency number at once, as should anyone who does not have a supplier for home heating oil."
"A concerted effort by all residents," he concluded, "to conserve all types of energy can help us through the coming winter with the least possible disruption of our daily lives."

Gunman gets cash from Grand Union

A lone gunman forced his way into the Grand Union Supermarket at General Greene Plaza after closing time Friday night, ordered a store executive to open the safe, and escaped with $1,000 and $2,000 in cash, Springfield police reported.
According to police, assistant manager Bill Hackbay was leaving the market at 9:15 p.m. with two other employees when the pistol-wielding bandit appeared at the door and forced them back inside. Police said the other store employees had already left for the night.
The holdup man then reportedly made Hackbay open the safe, and after removing the contents, he ordered the trio into the basement.
"The holdup man then reportedly made Hackbay open the safe, and after removing the contents, he ordered the trio into the basement."
"The robber was described as a light-skinned black man, about 25 years old and approximately six feet tall. He was wearing a blue hat and a black leather jacket."

GOP spending topped Dems in local campaign

Springfield Republican Township Committee candidates outspent the Democrats by nearly $1,000, but the Democrats rode the anti-Watergate tide to compensate for the spending difference and win the election.
The successful Democrats, Robert Wolfchuck and Ed Stiles, spent about $2,200 while Republicans Dr. Raymond Constantian and Hal Dennis expended about $1,400, according to campaign financial statements filed with the Union County clerk's office.
The final of three campaign financial reports was filed in late October. The second was filed in late October and the final report on Nov. 21.
The Springfield Municipal Democratic Committee, which financed the Wolfchuck-Stiles campaign, started out the election bid with $200 in its bank account. The Democrats received a total of $2,200 in contributions, including $800 from a barn dance and candy/cake sales. A total of 60 contributors received less than $100 each for about $2,100, and contributors of $100 or more came up with $351 for the campaign coffers. Contributions of $100 or more included $220 from the Union County Democratic Committee and $100 from Edward Olesky.
The Springfield Republican Campaign Committee began the campaign for Dr. Constantian and Dennis with $91 in its treasury and added $2,200 from 54 donors contributing less than $100 each and $2,200 from donors putting up more than $100. The two candidates supplied $50 each. Other major contributions included $200 from Norman Lowenstein, $400 from Sanford Meakin, $200 from the Springfield Republican Club, $200 from Frank Monz, $200 from the Springfield Municipal Republican Committee, $200 from Stanley's Restaurant and $60 from Union Paving and Construction Co.

Board postpones goals evaluation

Formation of a special community committee for Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, which was to hold its first meeting tonight, has been postponed, it was announced by Alan Ineson, assistant to the Regional Superintendent for public information. The committee was designed "to evaluate educational goals."
Ineson explained that the postponement was caused by a lack of response by local residents selected by a random sampling of the voter registration rolls. The Board of Education and Administration will review the selection procedures of committee members and develop a process whereby interested persons may be asked to become involved. He added, "I wish to publicly express my appreciation to those persons who were willing to serve on their high school's community committee. In addition, I would like to formally thank Fredrick Moore, Muriel Cruser, Grace White, Isabel Heller and Elsa White of the Dayton Regional PTA for assisting me with the community involvement program," stated Ineson.
In addition, he noted that those persons who were willing to serve on their high school's committee will again be contacted in the spring when the program is reinitiated.

Toys will brighten holidays

Methodist Church is collecting gifts for children and youth housed at the Javonville Center in Elizabeth. Last year approximately 100 gifts were collected to brighten the Christmas celebration at the center, which is located on top of the county garage. Gifts should be brought to the church no later than Sunday, Dec. 16. Community residents were also invited to share in this nonsectarian project.
Children of the Methodist Church School are collecting gifts for the Methodist Hospital of Brooklyn. Their gifts assist the hospital in its charitable ministries in Brooklyn and are used without regard to race, creed or national origin. Members of the congregation also are invited to share another project of the Church school, where pupils prepare gifts for their adopted grandparents, the shutins of the congregation.

Four health board presidents decide order of priorities

A meeting of the presidents of the four boards of health of the contract regional (Summit, New Providence, Berkeley Heights and Springfield) was held last week in Summit.
A determination of priorities was made and adopted in the following order: Environmental control, health education, streptococcus screening program in schools, upgrading of local health laws and hypertension testing for adult and adolescents.
A spokesman reported, "The anticipated significance of environmental controls in the challenges offered by health enhancements in land use is a vital feature of the times. The energy crisis will also draw new attention to health boards of health that will ultimately be reflected in whether or not local health law will have the flexibility to bend without breaking."
"Health education is also high on the list because it is the most effective and least expensive way to stop disease in the population. Attempts will also be made to work the four health boards closely with the Board of Education where assistance to current curricula may be offered, or teacher-health personnel discussions or seminars. Student health personnel talks may also be considered. General health education will continue through the cooperative media, and also by newsletter."
"The first film sponsored by the Friends and making use of the library's new 16mm projector was the 15 part Kenneth Clark 'Civilization' series which runs from April to July of this year."
"This film showing is free and open to all people in Springfield and their friends."

Town seeks ways to meet fuel crisis

Although the Township Committee last week failed to obtain bids for fuel oil and gasoline supplies for 1974, municipal officials this week expressed optimism over their chances of keeping the town's furnaces and vehicles fueled throughout the year. Township Clerk Arthur Huebner noted that supplies are assured to the end of this month, even though some towns are already sending police cars to commercial gas stations.
He added that the N.J. League of Municipalities is pressing for federal or state action, perhaps similar to state regulations which assure fuel for the schools. Huebner added, "Perhaps our next step will be to put up a bicycle rack at Town Hall."

Editorial comment TEAMS AND TEAMWORK

Action is getting under way in the most rewarding and best attended activity of the Springfield Recreation Department program, the basketball competition for boys in grades four through eight.

Every youngster who takes part has an opportunity to play and to learn, that is to the destination of the men and teenagers who serve as coaches. And the Mountaineer team permits the boys with a little more talent to sharpen their skills in games against allstars from other towns.

This year, the great benefits of an opportunity to build bodies, learn the benefits of teamwork and reap the rewards of sportsmanship will also again be extended to local girls through a parallel program.

All of which, we emphasize, is just part of one ever-progressive and equally necessary training for parents whose children are entering the basketball staircase.

Basketball is a game played according to very definite rules, even though the rules can be bent somewhat to provide for enthusiasm and lack of finesse on the part of the smallest fry. But they still govern the conduct of the game and parents, particularly, should know what all the whistles mean.

The purpose of basketball is to throw the ball through one of the baskets hanging at either end of the court. This was usually done, in the younger leagues, by the best player, by the kid with the loudest voice or by the coach's closest available relative.

More and more coaches do devise systems of play, and the player with the ball is encouraged to throw it to a teammate in a better position to shoot for the basket. This can provide less ego for the player and the family of the best player, but it does tend to win more games.

Parents should be thankful when they run into a coach who stresses practice in passing and defensive skills, since this is the way a youngster learns how to work with the rest of the team—and how to win games when the competition gets tougher and everyone is a potential star.

The best coaches, too, work hardest on the players with the least talent. This way the team is hurt least when the benchmarks play their allotted time, or when the stars foul out of a game. Good coaches, and they are usually the same ones mentioned above, are also the ones who win the most games.

As it does in all sports for small fry, the value of the local basketball program depends on the men, and women, who coach the teams.

The parents of Springfield can indeed be thankful for the dedication of the adults and teenagers in charge of their youngsters.

They can, and most often do, teach the youngsters that the rewards can be derived from team effort in a team game. They teach, too, the rewards that can be enjoyed by every youngster who gets the most out of his or her potential talent.

The best teams, in basketball as in many other avenues of life, often have the fewest individual stars.

LIBRARY Men of the rivers

By ROSE P. SIMON

DAYS OF THE STEAMBOATS
"The Steamboats," by Harry Sinclair Drago. The steamboat, unlike the steamship, carried its boilers and engines on the deck. It was used for all kinds of transportation on navigable rivers, great and small.
Though the average life of a steamboat was but three years and hundreds of them were lost by striking snags, fires, collisions, exploding boilers, and ice, the boat business proved to be extremely profitable. In the early 19th Century the boats were crude and ugly, but somewhat later, they were speedy, grand and luxurious, providing music, dancing and entertainment.
Two-deck steamboats were responsible for facilitating migration to the West, turning sleepy towns into thriving cities and bringing them a measure of culture, romance and prosperity. By the middle of the 19th Century, canals and rivers began to feel the impact of the railroads, and the Steamboats finally succumbed to the competition.
The boats, rivers and men associated with them are part of America's history. There are many colorful stories of the life and times of steamboats from the early side-wheelers to the big packets.

LIFE ON A CHINESE FARM
"A Year in Upper Pootung," by Jack Chen. It was during the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution that Chen and his wife spent one year on a farm in China's Hsienan Province. He describes the simple, three-room cottage they moved into in the winter of 1969.
The composition and dates of the cadres, the layout of the hamlet, the methods of raising crops and animals, the celebration of festivals, the betrothal and marriage customs—be details a mixture of the old and the new. He also explains the local government and its relationship to the Communist Party.
We are told of the spring activities, which include hoeing, weeding, and the spring festival. We read next of the intense summer heat, the rains, and the floods which must be controlled in the autumn. The economic conditions are related and the produce distributed according to the plan of the revolutionary committee—all part of the Communist Party program.

Mr. Average gets richer, poorer - at the same time

By JOHN SINOR
"The average man's income is up 8% from this time last year. But the average man's buying power is down 5%."
This news comes to me in a financial paper. It appears we are gaining all at once, but still wind up losers.
Six steps forward, then nine steps back. The average man earns $15.43 a week. If you earn more than that, you're losing even MORE. Talk about depressing statistics!

So, what else is new with Mr. Average. I haven't read a piece on him in a good many years.
There was a time when the average man was 23 years old, married and had 2 1/2 children. He also had 1 1/2 automobiles.
You think a man with 2 1/2 children and 1 1/2 cars would cause a lot of fancy talk in his neighborhood?
An enterprising reporter somewhere took all the facts about the average man then went out looking for him.
He finally found him in a medium-sized town in Utah. (I wasn't easy. Average men are few, and far between.)
The reporter asked him for an interview and Mr. Average became indignant. "Who'd you mean, 'average'?" Who's average? I got lots of things special about me."
That view is not shared by the man who only average thing about the man. Who wants to admit to being average?

U.S. Sen. Clifford Case

The United States has been heading for shortages of fuel for some time. Domestic production, particularly of petroleum products, has been declining with rapid increasing consumption of energy. Only increasingly large imports have kept supplies and demand in tenuous balance. The situation became acute when oil supplies from the Middle East were curtailed and it became obvious that immediate steps had to be taken to make sure that available supplies would be apportioned to those most in need.

As a result, the Senate last week approved legislation establishing national emergency procedures to deal with the current energy situation.
Long before the President delivered his special message on Nov. 7 calling for emergency authority to deal with the situation, Congress had begun work on such legislation. It is only as late as Jan. 1973 that the President's bill which has been sent to the President. And just 11 days after the President's speech the Senate passed an emergency bill providing most of the authority requested.

Among other things, the emergency legislation authorizes the imposition of 50-mile-per-hour speed limits, gasoline rationing, lighting and recreational parking, and has an experts of energy resources under certain circumstances.
I have been active in connection with a number of bills in this area. The Energy Research and Development bill that I am cosponsoring is expected to be reported to the Senate in the near future. The Senate already has passed a strip industry bill that includes my amendment to stimulate deep mining of coal, one of our most abundant energy resources. And progress is being reported in research on converting coal to oil, a process that should help to ease the petroleum squeeze. The research is being carried out in cooperation of federal funds I helped to make available.

IN PAST TENSE

ONE YEAR AGO
The Regional High School Board of Education plan to name a citizens advisory committee for each of its four high schools. Gasoline leaking from a tank in a parking lot station fire destroyed the school sewer system in the industrial sector of Trenton, causing fires throughout the area and posing the threat of extensive explosions. Firemen trace the leak and flush out the sewer, thereby averting disaster. The Godfather, starring Al Pacino, is Jerry Bruckheimer's production. In all, Hadassah has raised over $6 million for Youth Aliyah. At the beginning of 1973, nearly 1,400 youngsters from the Soviet Union came within the framework of Youth Aliyah.

"Youth Aliyah must be ready to cope not only with children from the Soviet Union, but with the many more it is hoped will come from Latin and South America and from any country where the life and existence are in jeopardy. One in every 10 Israeli citizens was once a Youth Aliyah child."

Start of Regional adult school put off to March to save fuel

In cooperation with national, state and local programs to conserve energy, the Union County Regional High School Board of Education has given approval to its Office of Adult and Continuing Education to begin its spring classes the week of March 18. In past years, the spring program started in January.

By holding the adult and continuing education program in warmer weather, noted Harry E. Linkin, the program director, "the Regional District will be able to save fuel."

Linkin stated that area residents should receive the 1973 spring session brochure by mid-February. In-person registration will be held on Thursday, March 5, in each Regional high school.

Classes will run at each high school from the week of March 18 until the week of June 3. Persons desiring additional information may call the Office of Adult and Continuing Education at 376-6300, Ext. 59.

Miss Lee to take part in Black Gospel Choir

Gloria Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lee, 21 Mechanics St., Springfield, is a member of the Swarthmore (Pa.) College Black Gospel Choir, which will present its first concert of the year Sunday in the college's Whittier House.

The 38-member ensemble will perform from a repertoire drawn from such well-known gospel artists as James Cleveland, Edwin Hawkins, Henry Jackson, J. C. White, Myrna Summers and Harrison Johnson.

In another action, parents of Regional high school students this week were urged to cooperate with school and public officials in conserving fuel resources.

Dr. Donald Meraclinski, Regional superintendent of schools, stated that parents can help "save fuel" by having their children transported to school by public transportation facilities rather than in private vehicles. Students who must drive to school because of employment or other commitments should be encouraged to form car pools, he said.

Parents were asked to drive their neighbors' children if they bring their own youngsters to school on a regular basis.

In addition, students should be dressed warmly during cold weather since the thermostats in all Regional buildings will be set for 68 degrees. At 3-45 p.m. the heat in all buildings will be reduced or shut off in most areas in order to conserve Regional fuel oil supplies. Heat will be furnished in gymnasiums, auditoriums and other rooms in each school for practices and other after-school activities.

During the cold months ahead, students were urged to have a hot bowl of soup with their lunches. Persons having other suggestions how the Regional District can conserve fuel and cope with the pending oil crisis were asked to call Alan Tansone, assistant to the superintendent, at 376-6300.

On Nov. 29, at 1 p.m., three motorists were involved in a chain crash on the S. Springfield avenue turnaround off Rt. 22. Police said autos operated by Dean Landow of Westfield, Alan J. Paszkowski of Kenilworth and Terry Elliott of Cranford were halted at the turnaround, when Elliott reportedly drove into the rear of Paszkowski's car, pushing it into Landow's. No injuries were reported in the accident.

An Elizabeth woman was reported slightly hurt in a collision Nov. 29 on Morris avenue at the driveway to Sales Fifth Avenue.

Police said Yveta Hregan was making a left turn into the store driveway, when she collided with a westbound auto, operated by Ruth H. Wainston of Irvington.

According to police, Mrs. Hregan suffered a wrist injury in the accident, but stated she would see her own doctor.

During our Diamond Trade-In Event, you may trade in your old diamond on that special ring, pin, pendant, necklace or whatever of her dreams. Choose from our large selection, or purchase loose diamonds and work with our designers to create an original.

In either case, we will accept your present diamond in trade and give you a liberal allowance toward the purchase of a new one.

So do something beautiful. Trade in her diamond on a great new one!

Use one of our convenient divided payment plans.

KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

From N.J. Taxpayers Association
HIGH APPROVAL RATE
ON LOCAL REFERENDA
Voters in 12 of 14 municipalities approved the Nov. 6 general election—a notable record, observes the New Jersey Taxpayers Association.
In six municipalities, voters endorsed the charter study referendum question and elected five commissioners to conduct a study of their municipal government over the next nine months. The study question won by a comfortable margin in Bridgeview Township (Somerset County), Cherry Hill Township (Cameron County), Galloway Township (Atlantic County) and Hamilton Township (Mercer County). The vote margin was less than 100 in Lopatcong Township (Warren County) in Somerset County. In the narrow margin of 106 to 100, the city voted to become only the third municipality in the state to reject a charter study in more than 110 years' efforts.
A new governmental form was approved in six municipalities out of eight which had a change referendum. Voters in three municipalities ratified changes recommended by charter study commissions elected a year earlier. A mayor-council plan of the Fairview (Mercer County) and the Fairview (Bergen County) and council, will be effective in the City of Paterson on July 1, 1974, in Burlington Township (Burlington County) the small municipality plan of the Optional Municipal Charter Law will be untripped for the mayor-council plan with a seven-member council. Burlington will become the third municipality to have operated under two different forms of the charter law; the other two are Long Branch and Parsippany-Troy Hills, both in Essex County.
Among them are scientists of the HJW National Institute of Health, with laboratories at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md. The research in this field at colleges, universities, and other research institutions.
At a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the chief of the Institute's Laboratory of Psychology, Dr. David Rosenhan, reviewed research findings on the number of sources to tease apart the sticky mixture of environmental heredity that contributes to the development of antisocial behavior.
Dr. Rosenhan's opinion is that most crime arises because of environmental and psychological influences and that socio-cultural factors in modern society primarily underlie the great current crime wave.
Differently organized societies, such as the Israeli kibbutzim, can reduce the frequency of crime dramatically, he adds.
With respect to crime prevention in hereditarily disposed individuals, says Rosenhan, it is possible that, with increasing knowledge, we might be able to provide them with the kind of socio-cultural environment in which criminal behavior is neither gratifying nor desirable to them and in which preventive factors are kept to a minimum.
But both researchers and officials—responsible for dealing with crime as today "impeded by a monumental lack of knowledge and understanding regarding criminality," he says.
This suggests "the importance of a range, both wide and deep in character of research and study in this field. Considerable research is underway, and it is key to the long run of problems involving crime and the complex mixture of environmental-hereditary factors in every human being."

Homeowners can take many steps to reduce fuel consumption and help out in the energy crisis, according to Perry L. Shearin, "total energy specialist" for the Jersey Central Power and Light Co., Morristown. Among her heat-saving tips are the following:
Everybody has a responsibility to keep heating bills as low as possible, especially today when every form of energy grows more precious and will be more expensive in years to come. You may be wasting heating energy by a combination of inefficient insulation and habits which could be improved.
What are the trouble spots?
Doors and windows should be well caulked and weatherstripped. Storm doors and windows (double insulating glass) will reduce heating costs about 15 percent and are an absolute must if your home is electrically heated. If the attic is unheated, its floor should be insulated. The attic door or hatch should be solid, insulated, and weatherstripped.
If any hot water pipes or heating ducts pass through unheated areas, they should be well wrapped in insulating material to prevent heat loss.
Talk to an insulation dealer or contractor if you have these areas without insulation: a floor over an unheated space like a crawl space, garage, porch or unheated basement; basement walls when rooms are finished for living purposes; and inside walls between living area and unheated area such as a garage.
Besides saving on heating costs, insulation reduces noise levels and adds fire protection. Good insulation pays for itself in lower fuel cost in a few years.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

BORN BAD?
Can a tendency toward crime be inherited? Are some children just "born bad"?
Researchers today are taking a long, deep, and most careful look at the evidence for a genetic relationship in criminal activity.
Among them are scientists of the HJW National Institute of Health, with laboratories at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md. The research in this field at colleges, universities, and other research institutions.

For the first time in the history of the New Jersey State Police Academy at Sea Girt, officers who have completed one of its training courses taught by its own instructors, can receive college credit for what they have learned.
A cooperative venture between the academy and Thomas A. Edison College, New Jersey's new "general degree college" in Trenton, has made it possible for 60 policemen, all members of county and municipal police in the state, to take examinations prepared under Edison's guidance, and to receive as many as six semester hours credit in the areas of sociology and psychology.
The significance of this program, according to Dr. James Douglas Brown Jr., Edison College president, extends far beyond the 60 officers whose educational aims and careers have been enhanced. "Edison can perform this same function in many other types of training programs, both in public agencies and for private industry," he says.
The key to the cooperative program is in the evaluation, which takes place at two distinct levels. First, the college retains expert faculty consultants from other colleges, since Edison has no faculty of its own. These consultants evaluate the course to insure that its content is of college level. Later, when the students complete the course, an Edison examiner tests individual students to determine whether they have learned the material.
"We are not accrediting the course or the instructor, but certifying the specific knowledge which the student has gained," explains Brown, and this is in keeping with Edison's mission to give people credit for what they actually know, regardless of where or how they learned it.
The evaluators and the examiner are selected by Edison College from among college faculties for their special competence to assess the quality of the material being taught and ability to examine the students accurately and fairly. Edison's examiner at the State Police Academy was Dr. James Finckhaus, head of the Department of Criminal Justice at Trenton State College. Sgt. Timothy Loftus was the coordinator for the Academy.
According to Captain Thomas Tyrrell, director of training for the Academy, the graduates were eager to take advantage of the opportunity afforded them by the program. "There is no doubt that the possibility of earning college credits also made the course more desirable for the men," he added.
Edison College is presently discussing with several other state and local agencies, as well as a number of business concerns means of arranging evaluations of their training programs, according to Dr. Brown. He invites those in charge of such programs, including college credits also made the course more desirable for the men, to contact him directly. Edison College is located at 129 N. Olden ave., Trenton 08628.

Union College adds course for non-English class offerings

A new course in the English for Speakers of Other Languages program has been added by the Union College curriculum. It was announced this week that the annual meeting of the Board of Boiler, Pressure Vessel and Refrigeration Rules will be held next Tuesday morning in the auditorium of the State Health and Agriculture Building in Trenton.

Philanthropic tradition 51 years of gifts by family

The William Edgar Reeve family of Westfield has been a faithful contributor to the Children's Specialized Hospital, Westfield, Mountaineer, every year for 51 years.

Edgar Reeve, son of the late William Edgar Reeve and Marie Tchenar Reeve, said, "The Children's Country Home, Children's Specialized Hospital was always of interest to my parents, especially my mother. I continued to make contributions after the death of my parents because it is a family tradition, and we were always interested in the work being done there."

The Reeve family has resided in Westfield since 1880 and their ancestry includes early settlers in the Union County area, some of whom date back to 1716. The Reeve family made its first contribution to Children's Specialized Hospital in 1922.

Charles H. Frankenbach Jr., president of the board of managers, said "We are most grateful to the Reeve family for their continuous support of Children's Specialized Hospital. It is a wonderful thing to make a family tradition of giving to help physically handicapped children learn to live as productive citizens in our society."

William Edgar Reeve was one of the founders of the Westfield Club, where he served as treasurer, and member of the board of trustees and board of directors. Edgar Reeve resides at 314 Mountain ave., Westfield.

Gift to Cancer Society is a tribute, aids science

A memorial gift to the American Cancer Society "not only contributes to vital research but is a tribute to someone already stricken with cancer," according to Mrs. Rosemary Carmody, county Crusade chairman for the society.

She stated, "Many individuals, organizations, firms and other groups practice memorial giving regularly. These gifts support an increasingly large proportion of the American Cancer Society's programs of research, rehabilitation and service to patients."

Research supports scientists in more than 140 of the nation's laboratories, hospitals, and universities seeking the cause and cure of cancer. "Education alerts the public as to bringing men and women to physicians in time when most cancers are curable, and it helps to inform the medical profession about the latest methods of diagnosis and treatment."

"Rehabilitation and service help cancer patients by easing the pain of those who are ill and lessening the burden on their families," Mrs. Carmody continued.

"Mrs. Carmody stated that when making a memorial gift, the donor should include his own name and address, the name and address of the family or the person in memory of and the FRIDAY DEADLINE. All gifts other than $500 new gifts should be in our office by noon on Friday.

39 UC freshmen get federal grants from new program

A total of 39 Union College freshmen have qualified for Basic Educational Opportunity grants, according to Mrs. Betty Elgrott, director of student financial aid.

The new federal support program, Mrs. Elgrott said is open to all first-time, full-time college students and provides for grants of $50 to $150 for 1973-74 year.

The 39 Union College students qualifying for the grants received awards of up to $467, which covers full tuition and fees for a full academic year.

"BEOG, Mrs. Elgrott said, is a new program of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and is intended to be the "floor" of a student's financial aid package. Students receiving BEOG grants are also eligible to receive scholarships, work-study funds, grants and loans.

BEOG grants are determined by the amount a student's family can be expected to contribute. Gross income, expenses, assets, liabilities, number of children in a family and unusual hardships that may place a financial strain on the family are among the factors considered in determining eligibility.

"This makes the BEOG program somewhat different from other financial aid programs," Mrs. Elgrott noted.

She encourages all students who are in college or who are planning to attend college to apply for these funds, if they have not already done so.

BEOG applications are available in the Student Financial Aid at Union College, Cranford. Deadlines for filing applications for the 73-74 academic year is Feb. 1.

How not to be a sorry saver.

Now long term savings certificates paying higher rates have recently been introduced, and the numbers look good... at first glance: but people who have locked up most of their money in these certificates from four to ten years may regret the eight tight instead of hitting the financial jackpot. Why? Well if they should need that money before the term of the certificate expires, the interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate which may be 5%, 6%, 4 1/2%, or even 4%, and they incur a penalty of 90 days interest as well. That's a federal regulation.

We're simply saying that four years or more is a long time to tie up savings, particularly since most people save in order to have cash on hand for emergencies. It's why more often the highest rates on regular, in and out savings accounts, and short term certificates. They give you covers the best possible flexibility.

Don't take chances to keep warm

NEW YORK — As cool weather settled across much of the country this month, the energy crisis prompted many homeowners and apartment dwellers to start looking for alternative ways to keep warm through the winter.

With fireplaces electric heaters of all kinds, and other heat substitutes pressed into service by the shortage of home heating oil and other fuel, the Insurance Information Institute has called for more vigilance in safety practices in the home.

Methods of heating a home or apartment or an office in a factory, whether conventional or energy substitutes, must always be used with caution and common sense, said the institute.

The need for extra caution is as simple as this: Any device used to keep people or places warm will generate enough heat to cause fires, or enough fumes or lack of oxygen to cause asphyxiation.

The following tips are offered to help avoid tragedy that may be caused by improper use of heating substitutes.

Look for the Underwriters Laboratories' seal of approval on all electrical appliances in your apartment that the appliance has undergone certain safety tests.

Never leave a portable heater unattended. If you use an electrical heater, get one with a safety switch that will turn it off if it tips over.

Keep the heater far enough from furniture and curtains to prevent them from catching fire.

Never touch an electric heater or any electrical appliance while in the bathtub or shower, or while using a hair dryer.

If the heater has a circulating fan, make sure that the air intake is open. If it isn't, the cabinet of the heater may become dangerously hot.

Avoid an overhead on the house wiring by plugging the heater into a little wood electrical circuit, never into a circuit carrying other major appliances.

Be sure that the electrical circuit in the house has correct fuses or circuit breakers, never unsafe substitutes.

THOUGH MOST LESS-EFFICIENT in warming a home than an electric heater, a wood fire in the fireplace is more romantic, the institute says.

Never leave a fire of any size unattended. To save carpeting or a spark does pop out, keep a cloth in a can of water handy.

Before coals in a can of water handy, check to make sure the chimney and damper are working correctly. A single bird or squirrel's nest could mean a lot of smoke damage in your house.

Never use gasoline to get the fire going. Fuel could build up in the flue and explode, demolishing the chimney. Use kindling and newspaper.

Let the fire die down before going to bed and then pile ashes over the coals and close the damper part way.

ALONG WITH SOME of the other alternative sources of heat that some people may be using this winter are gasoline catalytic heaters. These devices use a platinum impregnated pad to produce heat without carbon monoxide. However, they must be used with adequate ventilation anyway because just like a fire they consume oxygen. When using these catalytic heaters, be sure to follow all instructions of the manufacturer.

Storing gasoline, whether for heaters or as a backup against a gasoline shortage, is a highly regulated activity. Gasoline is most powerful than dynamite and can send a house up in flames in minutes. Any gasoline that is kept for heaters or lawnmowers should be in a safe container, labeled and kept in a cool place.

Make sure small children are kept away from electric heaters and fireplaces when in use and that older children are instructed about the dangers of fire and electricity.

NO 'CHICKENERY' CRISIS — Research at Rutgers University, indicates that a petroleum by-product, a paraffin similar to mineral oil, shows promise as a replacement for scarce and expensive fats in the ration of chickens. Dr. Robert L. Squibb, principal investigator, said that taste panels could detect no difference in the flavor of the broiled product.

New food for chicken? Paraffin called promising

Molasses may worry about empty gas tanks but the chicken shows signs of benefiting from a petroleum by-product that is still available in ample supply.

This is the conclusion drawn from a two-year study at the Rutgers Bureau of Biological Research and Department of Biological and Agricultural Engineering, financed by a grant from the Esso Research and Engineering Company, Linden.

In the collaborative effort Dr. Robert L. Squibb of the Rutgers Bureau conducted the biochemical and nutritional studies, and Dr. John W. Frankel of Esso handled the problems of organic chemistry.

Their work showed that the mineral oil, a paraffin similar to petroleum oil, when included in a chick's ration, was utilized by the bird, was both palatable and nutritious, and used in the right proportions, resulted in weight gains equal or superior to the standard diet. Numerous tests by taste panels found no difference in the flavor of the broiled meat.

As a source of energy it showed potential as a replacement for animal and vegetable fats, both now in short supply and high in price.

"These results are very interesting," Dr. Squibb commented, "because the same adjuvant is not suited to most animals, in which it causes a metabolic reaction that is fatal, like any mineral oil."

Results of the experiments were published in the "Journal of Nutrition" under the favorable title of "The Metabolizable Energy of Linear Paraffins for the Chick."

For the benefit of those scientifically minded, the carbon level of the material found satisfactory was in the range of C14 to C17, with a molecular weight of 200 to 300.

"The results reported herein are encouraging and indicate the need for additional research to establish possible commercial uses for this exotic material in poultry diets."

Ramapo has 4th highest SAT score

Traditional academic standards have been met at Ramapo College of New Jersey, where the average SAT score for incoming students of Higher Education report is 1075.

In a report prepared by Chancellor Ralph A. Dungan for the state Board of Higher Education, the combined average Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) score for incoming students at Ramapo has jumped from 940 to 999 since 1971.

On the verbal test, Ramapo students averaged 490, on the math test, 500. Overall, the '90 total was fourth best among state institutions of higher learning, not including the specialized engineering, nursing, and pharmacy schools.

Through a selective admission policy, 55 percent of students now enrolled are in the upper two-fifths of their high school graduating class.

The figures seem to indicate that the college is attracting capable students with academic potential.

Ramapo President George T. Potter said, "Ramapo is fulfilling its mission of providing quality education for the state's newest four-year educational facility, first opened to students in September, 1971. It is organized into five schools, each with its own faculty and staff. Together, they offer a broad range of academic programs leading to bachelor and master's degrees.

The college, through its two distinct inter-disciplinary programs, is identified as a leader in education leading to certification.

Teachers asked to find victims of child abuse

Concern is growing over the problem of child abuse, and teachers are being alerted to identify its victims.

"The major cause of death in children is no longer attributed to disease," says an article in the current issue of the New Jersey Education Association's monthly journal, the NJEA Newsletter. The biggest danger to children today is violent parents.

"It is not uncommon for an abused child to be continuously abused over a period of time until the parent has indicated either permanent damage or caused death," says an article by Judith Resnik, a teacher and parent living in Union Township.

A 1972 state law requires every Jersey teacher to report suspected cases of child abuse to police. Resnik says, because about half the children subjected to abuse are of school age, teachers and administrators can be an important detection source.

Most reports of child abuse now come from hospitals, Mrs. Resnik writes. "The educator must use his or her valuable insight to help the abused child so that these cases will never reach hospital status."

Child abuse, fear, or loyalty to the parent, abused children are often reluctant to talk. "How awful it must be," Mrs. Resnik commented, "to think that you are so repulsive to your own parents that they would want to harm you." The majority of abusive parents are female, who have large numbers of children, but not without counseling or therapy.

Early detection can better chances for prevention efforts and stop the battered-child syndrome, which can end in death for the child," the NJEA Newsletter article says. "The sooner the report is made, the sooner help can be given."

Energy woes spur Parkway stations to shut on Sundays

The New Jersey Highway Authority, in an effort to cooperate with the President's energy crisis program, has requested Texaco, Exxon and Citgo, which operate service stations on the Garden State Parkway at Montvale, Brookdale, VanKanal, Chesebrough, Monmouth, Forked River, Atlantic City and Seaside, to discontinue gasoline service on Sunday through Saturday through Midnight Saturday.

Texaco, Exxon and Citgo have agreed to cooperate and will close the service stations for all services during that time period each week until further notice. The Seaside location is completely closed for the winter months as it has been each year after Labor Day.

Signs notifying the motoring public of the compliance of the New Jersey Highway Authority with President Nixon's request have been posted.

Texaco, Exxon and Citgo operate the eight service stations on the authority-controlled portion of the Garden State Parkway on a 24-hour basis under license agreements. There is a 3-mile stretch of the Parkway from the Hartman River Bridge to the Union Toll Plaza that is operated by the State of New Jersey. The other areas on this stretch of the road are under the authority's jurisdiction.

The restaurants at Montvale, Brookdale, Southbound, VanKanal, Chesebrough, Monmouth, Forked River, and Atlantic City will remain open as usual.

The program was announced by A. Fenwick, director of administrative services.

Students will be on campus during the period, but classes will be held in a temporary facility in heated buildings during that period.

THE WEEK BEFORE Q-DAY

Think over your list of reasons why you should not smoke: the risk of disease, the blurring of the taste of food, the cost, the cough, the bad breath, the mess and smell of morning-after ashtrays. Concentrate each evening, when you are relaxed, just before you fall asleep, on one dreadful result of cigarette smoking. Repeat and repeat and repeat that single fact. Prudential Insurance, head of Atlanta Life cited by ICBO

Joseph Hill, president of the Atlanta Life Insurance Co. one of the largest black-owned insurance companies in the world and the Prudential Life Insurance Co. of America, Newark, the largest insurance company in the world, were recipients of the Distinguished Service Award of the International Council for Business Opportunity of New Jersey (ICBO) at its recent eighth annual dinner.

Earnings increase to $2.42 a share at Public Service
Earnings available for common stock of Public Service Electric and Gas Co. for the 12 months ended Oct. 31 were $199,100,000 before the prior year's effect of a change in accounting, or $2.42 an average share, compared with $188,000,000 and $2.18 a share, or 9 percent fewer average shares, in the similar period ended Oct. 31, 1972.

During October, the company changed its method of accounting to record revenues and costs based on service rendered rather than on the basis of service billed. This change had the effect of increasing the earnings available for common stock by $1,800,000 for the 12 months ended Oct. 31, 1973, or 4 cents a share.

The unbled revenues at Oct. 31, 1973, revealed as one time credit to income of $1,800,000, net of related taxes resulted in a special credit to income of $1,429,000, equivalent to 29 cents per average share for the 12 months ended Oct. 31, 1973.
Earnings for the month of October 1973 totaled $8,100,000 or 47 cents an average share, compared with $7,100,000 and 38 cents an average share, or a 26 percent fewer average share outstanding in October of last year. Kept for the change in accounting, the earnings per share for October would have been 43 cents.

Total revenues for October 1973 amounted to $81 million and exceeded last October by $6.5 million. Electric revenues were up $4 million, or 17.0 percent, on a 2.9 percent rise in kilowatt-hour sales mainly as a result of the higher rates under the rate increase and recovery of higher fuel costs. Gas revenues were down $2.9 million, or 11.7 percent, as there sales declined 1.8 percent primarily as a result of the milder weather.

Both gas revenues and therm sales included the effect of the transfer of 6.5 million therms to another utility during October 1973. Excluding the transfer, the percentages of decrease in revenues and sales would have been 13.3 percent and 13.4 percent, respectively.

Unemployment dips again in N.J.

"Normal wage and salary employment in New Jersey rose more than 100,000 jobs in October while unemployment dipped for the fourth straight month," Ronald M. Heymann, Commissioner of the Department of Labor and Industry announced this week. A gain of 100,000 in the employment total to 2,753,300, the highest since June, Employment dipped by 9,000 to reach 196,600, the lowest so far this year.

"The decline in joblessness," Commissioner Heymann added, "was largely a seasonal phenomenon resulting from the continued winter summer withdrawal of jobseekers from the market." The October dip caused the unemployment rate to edge down from the September figure of 6.2 percent of the work force to 6.1 percent. The seasonally adjusted rate dipped from 7.1 percent to 7.0 percent during the same period. Both the adjusted and the unadjusted unemployment rates were the same as a year ago.

"The rise in employment," Commissioner Heymann stated, "was spurred primarily by a 100 expansion in the nonmanufacturing sector. Manufacturing employment registered a net gain of only 20,000 jobs. The increase in the durable goods group was largely offset by a drop in non-durables." The over-all gain of 7,400 was largely due to an increase in October, on a seasonally adjusted basis, the increase amounted to 16,500 jobs.

PSE&G petitions state to offer common stock

The proceeds from the sale will be used for general corporate purposes, including the payment before maturity of a portion of a two-year promissory note, or the payment of a portion of short-term obligations, or both.

PSE&G says oil crisis hits output of heating gas; pact 'red tape' rapped

Public Service Electric and Gas Co. this week reported the current oil shortage was impairing its ability to manufacture gas to make up for curtailments by pipeline companies in natural gas supplies and charged government "red tape" threatened the loss of a large contract to import liquefied natural gas from Algeria, beginning in the winter of 1974.

"We filed for a permit to import this gas in August of 1972 and hearings were not scheduled by the Federal Power Commission until September 1973, said Edward R. Eberle, chairman of the board of PSE&G. "Recent indications are, however, that the FPC will not act on this application until early next year."

Jersey 'Pike sets uniform speed of 55 miles an hour

A new maximum speed limit of 55 miles per hour for all vehicles on the New Jersey Turnpike has been put in effect, it was announced this week by the New Jersey Turnpike Authority.

The authority decided against increasing the differential speed limit of 50 and 55 MPH as to passenger cars and trucks and buses, as recommended by President Nixon.

The Turnpike action was taken in the interest of the overall safety of the traffic stream and particularly the safety of passenger vehicles, following the recommendation of the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association at its annual meeting in Miami Beach last week.

At the same time, the authority announced that service areas on the New Jersey Turnpike will remain open on Sundays to provide a limited fuel supply for motorists. Passenger cars will be allowed five gallons of gasoline and trucks and buses will be allowed 20 gallons of diesel fuel.

The small quantity of motor fuel that will be made available on Sunday is designed to avoid having motorists stranded on the Turnpike, particularly interstate travelers.

To prevent the sale of fuel on this basis, each purchase of gasoline or diesel will be stamped on the back of each full ticket. This is to discourage repeated purchases by motorists.

Turnpike, which would be defeating the purpose of the law, the Turnpike Authority will naturally comply with the statutory provisions that might go into effect," a spokesman said.

President Nixon's energy recommendations were discussed by the membership of the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association at its annual meeting.

The authority reviewed the president's requests and voted to recommend the uniform speed limit for the full road industry.

The new speed limit of 55 MPH on the New Jersey Turnpike was recommended by the authority's traffic department. It explained that a higher speed limit for commercial vehicles would cause them to overdrive the traffic stream, causing hazardous conditions for passenger vehicles.

London gets blueberries from N.J.

The hundred and twenty tons of frozen blueberries grown in New Jersey were recently shipped from Philadelphia for delivery to London where they will be used by bakers and the food processing industry in the United Kingdom.

The berries were loaded into six containers each holding 40,000 pounds, and were shipped from Philadelphia to the port of Felixstowe, England, from where they will be trucked to London.

Communicating in the shipment, Secretary of Agriculture Philip Alampi said that there are about 11 million pounds of frozen blueberries in cold storage in the United States this year, the result of a bumper harvest and picking of the biggest crop in many years.

Alampi said that the United States is the largest producer of blueberries in the world, with 12,000,000 pounds of frozen blueberries on hand as of Oct. 31, compared with 9,500,000 pounds on the same date the year before.

To market this year's big crop in an orderly manner, Alampi said all possible outlets are being utilized—and the newly developed markets overseas. The most overseas markets include the United Kingdom as well as countries on the European continent.

Alampi expressed satisfaction that the London market had been opened up through the combined efforts of the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the North American Blueberry Council.

Jersey colleges' enrollment increase almost 3 times that of national average

Enrollment data released this week by the N.J. Department of Higher Education indicated an increase in New Jersey college enrollments of nearly 7 percent over last year. This is almost three times the enrollment increase of 2.5 percent estimated for all United States colleges.

The enrollment data show 1973 fall enrollment at New Jersey colleges and universities totaled 1,137,810 full-time and 77,000 part-time and 10,276 graduate and professional students, (1,052 full-time and 26,771 part-time). This is an increase of more than 15,000 undergraduate and more than 1,000 graduate students over 1972 fall enrollments.

While the rate of growth of full-time undergraduate students over 1972 enrollments is about 7 percent, the part-time enrollment of 77,000 students represents a 14 percent increase over the part-time undergraduate enrollment in 1972.

Communicating in the shipment, Secretary of Agriculture Philip Alampi said that there are about 11 million pounds of frozen blueberries in cold storage in the United States this year, the result of a bumper harvest and picking of the biggest crop in many years.

Alampi said that the United States is the largest producer of blueberries in the world, with 12,000,000 pounds of frozen blueberries on hand as of Oct. 31, compared with 9,500,000 pounds on the same date the year before.

To market this year's big crop in an orderly manner, Alampi said all possible outlets are being utilized—and the newly developed markets overseas. The most overseas markets include the United Kingdom as well as countries on the European continent.

Alampi expressed satisfaction that the London market had been opened up through the combined efforts of the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the North American Blueberry Council.

Parochial schools to conserve energy

In a memorandum to the 275 elementary and secondary schools throughout the Archdiocese of Newark, Msgr. William J. Daly, Superintendent, this week urged all schools to take steps to conserve energy.

Giving the possibility of a 15 percent cutback in fuel supplies, Msgr. Daly recommended that each school lower thermostats, check engine check heating systems, control hot water usage, shorten or eliminate bus routes, and take whatever steps may be necessary to keep the school building operating comfortably while at minimum fuel expenditures.

Also noted in the memorandum was the possibility that some schools might consider closing for periods during the coldest part of the winter and making up the days later on in the year.

Seek boost in park size

WASHINGTON—U.S. Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr. (D) and Clifford P. Case (R), N.J., introduced legislation to expand the Morrisania N.J. National Historical Park.

The bill would authorize an additional 4,500 acres to the existing 1,200-acre park, located on the shore of the Continental Army camped during the winter of 1777 and 1778.

A similar measure has been introduced in the House of Representatives and is sponsored by the entire New Jersey delegation.

"The present size of our national historical parks makes it difficult to expand the Morrisania Park and appropriate," Williams said in remarks prepared for delivery on the Senate floor.

Regional board deplors Times story on scope of marijuana use at Dayton

The Regional High School Board of Education this week strongly asserted as exaggerated and inaccurate an article entitled "Getting High in Mountainside" which appeared last Friday in the New York Times.

Written by Margo Krasoff of Mountaineer, a student at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, the article declared, "Marijuana is an integral part of my high school as its doors."

"The school is divided into groups," the article stated, "those who smoke and those who don't." It added, "Marijuana is being used all over the school."

The high school children drift through school in their euphoric state and don't give a damn about their grades. They don't care about politics or sports, only about where their next nickel is coming from and whether the stuff will be potent.

A spokesman for the Regional board school issued the following comment on the article: "The New York Times Friday, Dec. 1, published an article written by Margo Krasoff, a student at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, in Springfield, who reported an alleged drug abuse in high school. "Although it is a known fact that there is drug abuse in every high school in the country, it is not true that marijuana is an integral part of every high school as its doors."

Board tentatively approves $3,201,625 school budget

The Springfield Board of Education tentatively approved a budget of $3,201,625 for the 1974-75 school year August 20, 1973, at a meeting held in the board room of the board of education, told both members of the audience that the budget now goes to the Union County superintendent of schools for his approval. It will then be available for inspection at the board offices at the Raymond Cindolungo School, starting Jan. 11, and the full text will be published in the Leader.

A final hearing and public discussion of the proposal are scheduled for the 20th board meeting. The budget will then be presented to the voters in the Feb. 13 school board election. The figure represents an increase of a five percent increase above the current budget.

In other business, board member J. Scott Denington issued a heated reply to comments last week by Mayor William A. Ruocco. The mayor had said at a Township Committee meeting that he receives complaints about board actions and that "if you are not satisfied with their policies, then elect candidates to the board to represent you."

"Secondly, it should be pointed out that during my term as a member of the Board of Education, not once did this board arbitrarily or summarily deny any use of facilities, service or time, but quite to the contrary they have given more of themselves as a group than should be expected."

Denington also declared, "This board has not only met with other elected officials but has met with parents, private citizens and other civic organizations that have requested time and consideration."

"Thirdly, and lastly, I can state unequivocally that no member of this Board of Education, including myself, has ever alluded to another elected official or an elected body should be or could ever be expected."

Denington also declared, "This board has not only met with other elected officials but has met with parents, private citizens and other civic organizations that have requested time and consideration."

Library planning vacation program

The children's department of the Springfield Public Library is planning some special programs for Christmas vacation, according to Cynthia Landauer, children's librarian.

The film "JIP" will be shown on Dec. 29 at 10 a.m. and again at 2 p.m. The film, which lasts 30 minutes, is the story of a 16-year-old boy who lives in near-poverty in New York City with his mother. He is a lonely child who has already turned to petty crime for thrills, but his life is radically changed when he finds a sick and helpless kitten whom he befriends and cares for.

"JIP" is suitable for children six and older, and free tickets for either showing are available at the desk in the children's department.

On Dec. 27, and again on Jan. 3 from 2 to 4 p.m., there will be a "drop-in afternoon" featuring stories, games and music for children 6 to 12.

Stiso will be named mayor in Dem-backed alignment

Township Committeeman Edward Stiso Jr., elected as a Republican last year, will serve as mayor during 1974 in the support of the governing body two Democrats, Robert Weltsch and Nat Stokes, according to reliable sources.

The new alignment results from a split between Stiso and the other two Republicans on the Township Committee, Mayor William A. Ruocco and Norman Banner. Another key figure in the split is Angelo (Duke) Monza, GOP municipal chairman, who has reportedly been at odds with Stiso.

That disagreement burst into the open last spring when Committeeman Robert Wasserman, who was elected with Stiso in 1972 on the Republican ticket, was denied renomination. Stiso, who strongly backed Wasserman, took no part in this year's election in which Weltsch and Stokes defeated Republicans Nat Dennis and Dr. Art (Constantin) Wasserman endorsed the Democrats.

With their support of Stiso, the Democrats reportedly gain a strong voice in the appointment of many township officials for the coming year, which will take place at the committee's organization meeting New Year's Day.

Stiso, a Democrat who formerly served as township committeeman and then as township administrator in 1971 and 1972, is scheduled to be appointed to the latter post.

Other key appointments are expected to include: municipal prosecutor, Michael Blacker, as members of the Board of Adjustment, Stanley Kish and Edward Fanning; alternate members of the board, Scott Tanne and Harvey Schramm; as a Planning Board member, Richard Colandrea; as building inspector, Harry Kolb; and as recreation director, James Adams.

Several other key members of the municipal administration are in the midst of terms which do not expire this winter. Among them are Mayor Joseph Horowitz and the building inspector, Walter Kosub. Township Clerk Arthur W. Dlugosz was elected to that office a year ago. He would win tenure if he is re-elected another four-year term in 1977.

Stiso is also to be named as New Year's Day as the committee chairmanships for the five members of the Township Committee. Stiso is expected to head the public works department; Weltsch, public safety, including the police and fire departments; and Stokes, recreation.

Assignments for the other two Republicans were still undetermined according to the latest information, but Ruocco will probably be assigned to administration and Banner to finance.

Court orders new bidding on garbage pick-up

By WILLIAM GARNETT

Mayor William Ruocco announced at the last meeting of the year of the Springfield Township Committee Tuesday night that a contract which had been accepted for garbage pick-up was overturned by the courts because it was not complete.

Ruocco noted that the bid had been accepted at an earlier meeting, although one of the finer points of the bid were not clear. Ruocco said the committee accepted the bid because it was a save the township approximately $8,000 a year.

But a taxpayer's suit brought by a resident of Springfield, who had taken exception to the bid, and therefore should not be accepted, he added. The court overturned the decision of the township failed, the Township Committee was ordered to re-bid for bids, which will be accepted on Jan. 1.

The mayor also announced that the committee has agreed to hold a public hearing on the recent R. J. environmental impact statement. A request for the hearing was brought in the committee in this form of transportation, and according to students in

Bike riders not fueling Cyclists help meet energy crisis

By KAREN STOLL

The current energy crisis, accompanied by dire predictions of gas rationing and two-day-a-week closings for service stations, has led some area residents to take to the streets on bicycles. As a result, the youngsters are way ahead of the adults in utilizing this form of transportation, and according to students in interviewed at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, two-wheeled vehicles are preferable to the gas-eaters for many reasons.

Actually, most of the boys we spoke to who ride bikes to school admitted they are too young to drive anyway, but many declared they'd continue using cycles even after they get their licenses. However, before someone starts handing out awards to patriotic kids, it should be noted the teens had reasons other than fuel conservation for making the decision.

David Frank, a ninth grader, has several years to go before he turns 17, but stated he would consider leaving the auto at home when commuting to school. "I'd save a lot of money," he explained, "but it is also because cars are too expensive. I'm sure that when the time comes I'll buy a small car, since I think it will burn less gas and also because I think single ones are safer."

For a 17-year-old senior, does have an auto, but takes his cycle to school. "It's not really because of the energy crisis, though," he admitted. "Actually, considering the time it takes to get through all the traffic around here, it's more because I like to ride. Besides, I don't have to waste my money on gasoline."

"SHRIMP" (D) USE bicycle instead of a car," declared 16-year-old Dave Klein, but he qualified it by adding, "It depends on where I was going and what kind of car I had. Besides, I want to get a motorcycle."

Allan Holzman, who is 15, was the most enthusiastic about bicycles, stating, "I'll always ride a bike. In fact, I'd live on one if I could! I like it everywhere, and I'm so used to doing it I know I'll continue to use one even after I get a car." Despite Allan's enthusiasm, he did have a pertinent comment that deflated it a bit. Wheeling away his bike, he added, "Anyway, I get up so late in the morning that by the time I get to school all the parking spaces are taken."

Allan also had some criticisms regarding the energy crisis. "Personally, I think it's a hoax" by the big oil companies so they can charge more for gas," he declared. Another cyclist shared his disagreement of the comments, adding another charge: "It's just a Nixon snow job."

Several of the boys were in agreement with restrictions asked by the President, but only where others are concerned. "I think the people should be given instead of cars," 13-year-old Robert Guba stated. "We should tell adults

DAYTON CYCLISTS — Scores of bicycles were parked in the rocks on the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School lot, costumed in the students are being conscientious in the face of the current energy crisis by using pedal power instead of auto. The Leader checked out
