

Stabilized enrollment, fiscal situation reported by schools in archdiocese

On Sept. 4, approximately 105,000 students will enter the doors of the 272 elementary and secondary schools of the Archdiocese of Newark to start a new school year. The figure represents 26,100 pupils on the secondary level, an increase of 2.5 percent in enrollment, and 78,855 students on the elementary level, or a decrease of two percent in enrollment. Overall, there is a net decrease of 4.9 percent in enrollment as contrasted to last school year.

Perhaps the most significant aspects of these figures, according to Msgr. William J. Daly, superintendent of schools for the Archdiocese of Newark, is that this represents the first increase in secondary enrollment in six years, and the lowest percentage decrease in elementary enrollment in close to a decade. These figures, Msgr. Daly said, lay stress on the fact: projections for the fall portend a stabilizing enrollment in the rest of the year.

On the secondary level, the net change in enrollment and the net change in archdiocesan figures of less than two percent indicates that the schools are meeting the challenges of the day in excellent form.

Citing the vitality of the schools, Msgr. Daly pointed to the fact that in September, 30 new kindergartens will be opened in as many elementary schools throughout the four counties in the archdiocese: Union, Bergen, Essex and Hudson. The addition of these classes provides not only a needed addition to the educational service of the school, he said, but also serves to stabilize the enrollment picture for those schools offering such education and confirms the commitment to the education of the children in the archdiocese.

In reporting statistics for the forthcoming year, the majority of the schools noted their tuition charges would remain the same for the forthcoming year, Msgr. Daly said. These schools that will be raising tuition are doing so in "modest amounts" to meet the rising cost of living and the costs of operation. The average increase for the elementary schools of the archdiocese for the first child of the family will be $128. On the secondary level, the average tuition for archdiocesan regional high schools will remain at $700, while parish and private schools within the archdiocese range in tuition charges from $300 to $1,500.

Msgr. Daly also cited the fact that the faculty of the elementary and secondary schools are at all time high in professional qualifications and competence and curricula are "extremely stable unit" in the school structure. Faculty changes in both religious and lay teachers will also remain stable at an average of one to two teachers on a staff member. "The ratio of religious teachers to lay teachers will vary rather extensively however; in religiously trained schools, the ratio of religious to lay teachers will be as high as 10 to 1, while in other schools, the ratio will be as low as 1 to 10.

With stable enrollment, finances, and curriculum, we believe that our schools have met the various criteria of the previous years and are now about to enter into a period wherein the schools can concentrate on the furthering of

State's Prevailing Wage Act now affects all municipalities

New Jersey municipalities having a population of less than 25,000 are no longer exempt from the state's Prevailing Wage Act, according to Joseph A. Hoffman, commissioner of the N.J. Department of Labor and Industry. "Under legislation enacted last month," Hoffman said, "the Prevailing Wage Act has been amended to include 300 municipalities with a population under 25,000. All municipalities in the state, a total of 567, are now covered by the law.

"All townships, boroughs and cities have received notification of the amended law, which calls for every contract in excess of $2,000 for any public body to stipulate that wages shall be paid not less than the prevailing wage rate," Hoffman said.

According to the act, any public body involved in public work must ascertain from the Commissioner of Labor and Industry the prevailing wage rate in the locality in which the public work is to be performed for each craft or trade needed to perform the contract.

"The purpose of the amended act is to extend the prevailing wage law to all municipalities rather than to limit its effect to the large municipalities of the state," Commissioner Hoffman explained. "The obligation of public employers to pay the prevailing wage rate should not be based upon the size of the municipality, since the need for the maintenance of a reasonable rate of earnings is unrelated to size."

Securities draw blast by Realtors

Citing "a new crisis" in New Jersey's housing market, the 13,000-member New Jersey Association of Realtors (NJAR) is urging immediate action to stem the drop in volume funds for home mortgage loans from thrift institutions.

Sidney H. Kooser, NJAR president, said, "Immediate action must be taken to delay the passage of the bill which would require the payment of prevailing rates on all new mortgage loans."

"If commercial banks are permitted to offer these securities to the public through their holding companies, it could result in buying huge sums out of the Garden State's housing market which is already caught in a tight money squeeze," he said.

Hearing to be held next month

Change one of several introduced at meeting

By KAREN STOLL

A number of policy changes, including one dealing with student attendance, were accepted on first reading Tuesday night at the Regional High School Board of Education meeting held at David Brainerd High School, Kenilworth. Public hearings on the questions will take place at the board's September session.

The new attendance policy, drawn up to replace the controversial one which had been in effect, accepts personal illness or injury, illness in the family, family religious observances, a period of bereavement for death in the family, doctor or dental appointments and college visitations as being acceptable reasons for absences. Previously, acceptable reasons for absences, provided a written excuse is filed, pupils receiving bedside instruction and those absent because of a school-sponsored activity will not be recorded as absent.

Students who are treated or excused from school once or twice or who call class once or twice are required to make up one hour of detention for each school hour missed. If additional truancies, cuts or unexcused absences occur, a conference with student and parent will be required to determine the appropriate course of action, which may include out-of-school suspension or withdrawal from the course with no credit being earned. Students with more than eight excused absences per marking period may be required to take part in a student-teacher-parent conference. In addition, students absent from class must initiate contact with their teacher to make up missed work; being allowed three class days per day missed to complete the course.

Archie, Maude at FDU TV episodes will be studied

The first college course to use programs from the TV series "All in the Family" and "Maude" as textual material will be offered at the Flom-Rosenbaum campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University, this fall. An undergraduate and a graduate course entitled "The Communication of Social Issues" will be taught by Irving H. Buehler, professor of English and head of the "Public Opinion" program.

The idea of the course occurred to me almost 2 years ago, a half ago," Dr. Buehler said. "I just finished watching the news on TV. I was furious with the flippancy and superficial way certain news items were being treated. I identified around a whole lot of news items as settled back to watch 'Maude.' I immediately was struck by the fact that I was watching a series of news items that were being treated in a way that was more critical and creative than the news. I decided then to see whether I could obtain the rights to use the series in my course. I contacted the producers of 'All in the Family' and 'Maude' to provide me with copies of some of the programs. The producers of 'All in the Family' and 'Maude' were very cooperative and readily agreed to my request. I have since been able to obtain the rights to use the series in my course. Students restore Cannon Ball House kitchen

Teachers and students from home economics and industrial arts classes at Florence M. Gaudinier Middle School have completed the third restoration program in the Cannon Ball House. They were joined in the work by members of the Springfield Historical Society.

The house was the site of the battle of Springfield during the War for Independence. The house was one of the few in the township which escaped burning by the British on June 23, 1780.

After the cleaning of the wide-planked floor in the kitchen, a frame was constructed for the fireplace area. This involved rebacking the entrance of the lavatory and sealing over an existing door. The fireplace was then "studded out" backed and mortared with synthetic materials to appear as a cooking and baking fireplace of the period, circa 1780. The hand-cut brick fireplace had a rough-hewn beam as a mantel. The walls were covered with paneling, and the ceiling and walls were painted white to simulate the whitewashing that was customary in the 18th century.

A table and bench were assembled and finished in Senkowsky's shop. Items were selected for their authentic design and their appropriateness to the house and its contents.

The ceiling beams, carefully cut and placed into position, have many dried herbs hanging from them. Faded, worn, tawny, hued, rosemary, sage, dill, fennel, lavender, sweet gum, and oregano, all grown in the herb garden by Mrs. Christine E. Egan, Society member, were picked and dried during the year. Further, various other herbs and dried apples completed the ceiling decorations.

A hand-crafted chandelier with five candles (electric) was made of milled steel and pine by Brian J. Fournier, a student of the school. Senkowsky shaped the wooden parts of the chandelier.

The kitchen was furnished by Miss Kilbourne and Mrs. Amelia working with a team of girls. A hand-hewn rug runner was made for the floor. An apron and napkins made at school were casually laid on the kitchen table, together with two large round loaves of yeast bread, baked and shellacked to preserve them. One loaf was broken into sections as though in preparation for immediate consumption. Pigs' tails only, ground corn in a linen sack, a wooden bowl and spoon completed the table arrangements.

The lunch situation on the south wall replaced a radiator. It was filled with dried ears of corn, hand-made wicker trencher filled with large-slice corn, also shellacked for preservation—oven baskets containing sacks of oats, corn, and rice, and a cone of sugar, covered with blue paper. Home-dyed yarns were also made together with sacks full of wood shavings, home-made soap, and hand-dipped candles completed this display.

A small barrel was placed by the hand-crafted chandelier. The barrel was filled with dried flowers, which were decorated by placed nearby. A sign on the barrel is a dried apple doll made and dressed by the students. More hand-dipped candles are there as if for ready use.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Dear Pat and Marilyn: where? Remember it in the mothers and fathers who are here. It would be so bad if they were. Mom had a nice thin figure, but she had the 1 1/2 inch 2 and weight.

I've talked with her and all she says is, "I'm comfortable and I'm not any age that's what counts." What can I do?

Dear Sue: Not much. Maybe some of our readers will have a suggestion.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: I appreciate your opinion but still feel my answer is correct. If a student is homesick, fearful, or under too much stress, his academic program will suffer accordingly.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: Yesterday my dog was poisoned. How could my name person do such a thing? The dog didn't bark or run free. She was always in the backyard. Now the kids are crying and so am I. We walked into the patio and found our dog dead. Our veterinarian confirmed what we feared.

Y nursery school registration open

Registration is open for the 1974-75 nursery school at the Eastern Union County YM-YWHA, Green Lane, Union. The school is fully accredited by the state board of education, and is run by nursery school teachers certified in early childhood education and trained assistants. "The school's objectives are based upon the need for the development of the whole child," a spokesman said. "It tries to accomplish this by bringing out a sense of self-awareness and confidence with which the three and four-year-old is helped to relate to his or her peers in an informal group situation. This climate bridges the home and school atmospheres to morning or afternoon sessions three and five days a week where the child engages in varied learning experiences."

Parents stay informed of their children's progress through orientation meetings, parent-teacher conferences and visits to the school. Those seeking to enroll their children in the school can contact Rose Nebehaus at the Y.

Upsala will begin morning courses for women in fall

A special program to attract women to the classroom will be inaugurated at Upsala College, Passaic, in September. The program will offer six credit and non-credit courses at reduced tuition on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. While the program welcomes men, its main thrust is toward women, particularly housewives, who do not find it convenient to attend college at the usual hours. Busy living facilities will be available at a minimum fee.

Dean Dorothy Schneider said the program is designed to help women reenter school after having been away from classroom for several years. She pointed out, too, that while Upsala always welcomes mature students into its day and evening sessions, it also recognizes the life styles of many people, women and men alike, make it impossible to fit into the regular academic calendar. Therefore, she said, an alternative is being offered in the form of morning sessions.

"There may be a reluctance on the part of some people to return to college with younger students," Dean Schneider also pointed out. "This program will help older students reorient to college life in an atmosphere conducive to their academic preferences. By Tuesday and Thursday mornings, the program will be offered in the form of morning sessions. Courses to be offered include: 'Women in Transition,' 'Introduction to Anthropology,' 'Developmental Psychology,' 'Women in Literature' and 'Business Organization and Management.' Among the teachers will be: Carole Klein of West Orange, author of the highly successful book, 'The Single Parent Experience.' Also to be given will be a course, 'Body Language and Awareness' by Betty Weitz, a professional dancer who is a member of the Upsala faculty.

Classes will begin on Monday, Sept. 16, with registration and orientation taking place at Upsala on Sept. 12. Further information on the program may be obtained by phoning 266-1072.

State acquires 3,564 acres of park in largest Green Acres money deal

In the largest Green Acres money transaction ever accomplished for the state, Commissioner of Environmental Protection David J. Bardis has completed the acquisition of 3,564 acres of park land in the northwest part of the state for the sum of $6,237,784. Fifty percent of the purchase price will be reimbursed to the state by the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

The land, which now belongs to the citizens of New Jersey, was purchased from the estate of Peter Rutherford Stuyvesant. The second largest Green Acres acquisition in the state's history, it averages the tract lies in Warren and Sussex Counties and now forms a major portion of Allamuchy State Park.

"All citizens of New Jersey can rejoice that the superb woodland area, a large portion of it virgin forest, now belongs to the state," Bardis said. "Portions of it are distinctly wildlife and natural areas, while other sections will lend themselves to development as multi-purpose recreational areas."

"The acquisition from previous Green Acres Bond issues—whose funds are now fully committed—is a dramatic illustration of what more can be done if favorable action is taken on Governor Byrne's proposed new Green Acres Bond issue for 1974. If approved, this bond issue will provide vitally-needed new funds for the acquisition of open spaces and their development."

"The transaction culminates almost eight years of effort begun on Oct. 19, 1966, by Congressman Robert A. Roe, then congressman of the former Department of Conservation and Economic Development," Bardis said. "We are indebted to Congressman Roe's foresight and to the public spirit of Peter Rutherford Stuyvesant and the success of his estate. Also, my immediate predecessor, Edward J. Sullivan, gave this acquisition a high priority in the Green Acres program."

The property is located about three miles north of Hackettstown, across from Panther Valley and on the east side of Route 517 in Green and Byram Townships, Sussex County, and Allamuchy Township, Warren County. On the east, the Stuyvesant estate runs along the Musconetcong River, which parallels Waterloo road.

The total Allamuchy State Park area, of which the Stuyvesant property now becomes a part, covers approximately 12,000 acres. It is bounded on the south by Mount Olive Township and lies between Routes 517 and 208. A southeastern portion has not yet been acquired. The Stuyvesant land is characterized by varied terrain with rolling hills and forested mountains. The central portion, known as the Deer Park area, comprises about 1,000 acres of fenced virgin woodland with many rare species of flora and fauna. Nestled in the midst of mountains in this section is Deer Park Pond, a 65-acre lake of pure mountain water. In the tract, along Route 517, are several farms, including Tranquility Farm, a large dairy farm. Grain, some row crops and dairy herds prevail on these farms. "We will encourage the continuation of farming in these areas," said Bardis.

The Stuyvesant estate belonged to Peter Rutherford Stuyvesant, a direct descendant of Peter Stuyvesant who served as the last Dutch governor of New Netherland which included all of what is now New Jersey and parts of Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware. Peter Rutherford Stuyvesant died April 17, 1796, at the age of 34.

Harvey P. Johnston, senior community relations consultant in the Community Affairs Department of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, has been elected president of the board of trustees of the Garden State Ballet Foundation, the governing body of the Newark-based ballet company.

Governor asks Legislature to place transportation bond issues on ballot

Governor Brendan Byrne this week asked the Legislature to place two transportation bond issues on the November ballot—one to provide $200 million for highway safety improvements and the other to create a $100 million contingency fund to preserve railroad passenger and freight operations.

"This is a critical time for transportation in New Jersey," the governor declared. "We know what must be done. We are ready to do it. We need the money to translate our plans into action."

The governor added that he has directed the Department of Transportation to prepare a final issue for mass transit projects for submission to the Legislature in 1975.

Of the proposed $300 million Highway Bond Issue, the great bulk of the projects will be for the removal of congestion and safety obstacles. The criteria to be used in selecting the projects are:

- Construction starts at once or within two years at most.
- Priority is given to projects to remedy immediate safety hazards.
- Priority also is given to projects which will reduce congestion and not adversely affect the environment.

"Projects are selected which are either not eligible for federal aid or which, if federal aid were sought, would unreasonably delay their implementation."

In addition to these projects, $50 million is allowed for highways, 10 million for the acquisition of right of way, $12.5 million for improvements of traffic circles and intersections, and $24 million for essential repairs to bridge structures, decks and safety.

"It is approved by the voters," the $100 million contingency fund would be used only if federal programs to preserve railroad passenger and freight operations fail to materialize.

Governor BYRNE said that "the U.S. Department of Transportation has recommended the abandonment of numerous essential freight and passenger lines throughout the state. Recent litigation has raised the possibility that liquidation outside the terms of the Regional Rail Reorganization Act is a possibility at which time prompt and immediate State action to save essential services will be necessary. For every major rail carrier in this state in bankruptcy and reorganization, the threat to our economy, our environment and our transportation system is imminent. It is necessary to salvage any portion of our rail systems abandoned as so large, the Legislature would not be in a position to make emergency appropriations to preserve rail service unless these bond funds were available."

The Governor pointed out that the proposed bond issues provide that before any of the bond funds can be spent, the Legislature must first approve the bond funds for specific purposes.

The Governor also noted that highways accounted for 10 percent of the 1973, 1974 and 1975 state budgets. He said that the narrow roadways are among the potential

Publication lists 'forbidden fruits' from foreign land

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued "Travelers' Tips," a new publication that tells about what foods, plants and animals of plant or animal materials can and cannot be brought into the United States.

"This publication is designed to save travelers unnecessary delays and possible loss of property on their return to the States," explained Leo E. K. Foran, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Federal quarantine prohibitions bring many agricultural items into the U.S. because they may carry destructive plant or animal pests and diseases. Passenger baggage—including handbags—is inspected at U.S. ports of arrival. Illegal agricultural items are confiscated and destroyed.

"Some people think agricultural quarantines apply only to large commercial shippers," Foran said. "That's not true. They apply to anyone coming in from a foreign country with an agricultural product. Just one orange could carry enough insect eggs or disease spores to do a million dollars' worth of damage."

Free copies of the new USDA publication may be obtained by writing "Travelers' Tips," U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

"In addition, a fund for early land acquisition will help to counteract the impact of inflation that is a million dollar cost," he said. "The land parcels acquired would only be used for the types of improvements needed to carry out the intent of the bond issue; that is, to improve safety and eliminate congestion."

OLD MACK TO THE RESCUE — Ball Leis recently retired 1942 fire truck has found a new home at Graystone Park Psychiatric Hospital, near Morristown. "Old Mack," a still-sturdy, 750 gallon-per-minute pumper, was donated to the hospital in ceremonies at Ball Leis' Murray Hill location. The 2,000-gallon Graystone Hospital lost one of its three fire trucks May 25 when the truck was damaged lighting a fire in the main dining room. Participating in the ceremonies were (left to right) Chief Frank Neer, head of the hospital's fire department; Vernie G. Tommerdahl, Ball Leis plant maintenance and Donald W. Thomas, Ball Leis executive vice-president.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Dear Pat and Marilyn: At 61 I am past being a dandy old man, but I'm not getting old yet. My wife passed away three years ago and lately I've been keeping company with a lady who has been a friend for several years. She's wonderful. I think that getting married at my age is not of the question. I own my own business, my home, and drive a new car. We could have several good years. Am I too far over the hill?

Dear Pat and Marilyn: My sister is 3 years old. My boyfriend does not want to come over anymore because my little sister spends the evening with a boyfriend who has been a friend for several years. She continues to pester me. I have spoken with my parents, but they think she is cute. My mom feels that my sister has the right to look at TV with me. I have my rights. I want to be alone.

Dear Grandpa: No! The lady will most probably consider you a great catch. They old men need love too!

You should be allowed some time alone with your friend. You're not over-aging. Why not suggest to your parents that little sister be allowed to look at her favorite television for a certain time and then leave? Or, you and your boyfriend could have another room and little sister can watch TV all by herself.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: How can I learn to control my temper? At times I feel as if I'm really going to explode. He works hard, is a good father and loving husband. However, I will get so exasperated over a minor incident that I lose control. Then I scream and once I've been a plate of spaghetti.

Dear Temper: Like many young women, you have probably found that housework and child care is a never-ending job. When you're a man or woman, feel something fulfilled and bored something is going to give. My advice is for you to find something that interests you. Perhaps you have always wanted to play golf or tennis, or maybe write a novel. This is an afternoon a week, hire a sitter, and get out. It is cheaper than psychotherapy and does delay you will come home a better wife and mother. This is a do-able job as I do it now.

RIGHT TURN ONLY — Traffic on the recently opened portion of Rt. 78 in Springfield can pass over Morris Avenue, but must then turn onto Rt. 24 to Short Hill. All west-bound traffic had been completed on the left fork, but only for a mile before the highway reaches the Watchung Reservation, where the link to Berkeley Heights remains a matter of lengthy debate.

Angelo Panconi, Planning Board chairman, said he received "implications of unsafe speed." He declared, "We did not do a slow job."

Edward Panconi, a member of the Zoning Board of Adjustment and a Democratic candidate for the "Planning Committee" in November, said there should be more environmental guidelines. Mayor Stas replied that the committee will move in his direction in the coming months.

Township adopts recodification for zoning ordinances

Members of the Springfield Township Commission Tuesday night voted to recodify the township's zoning ordinances. The recodification process systematizes the ordinance definitions and the ordinance definitions in the ordinance definitions and the ordinance definitions in the ordinance definitions.

The major topic of the four-hour session, along with the environmental dispute, was a strong attack on the performance of the governing body delivered by a member of the Springfield Tenants Association.

Recodification does not represent changes in the effect of the zoning laws. Rather, the recodification process systematizes the ordinance definitions and the ordinance definitions in the ordinance definitions.

The mayor's office is currently reviewing the ordinance definitions and the ordinance definitions in the ordinance definitions.

Mayor Edward N. Stas Jr. noted that such proposals had been considered by the Planning Board in drafting the ordinance definitions in the ordinance definitions.

Committee Chairman Stas declared that the environmentalists had been frustrated in the planning process. He added that the Planning Board would make copies of developers proposals available to the environmentalists.

Committee Chairman Robert Wellbeck said that by giving discretion on environmental impact to the planning board, the township will gain protection not now available.

In response to further questions from Ruth Stas, another member of the commission, Stas declared that he would support the recodification process.

Banner, a Republican, succeeded to his first term in 1972.

Scientist studies hardening of arteries

Dr. Verlangieri: vitamin C may offer cure

By KAREN STOLL

A young Rutgers research scientist, who credits his being a teacher at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School with being the person responsible for his choice of career, has discovered what may be a major breakthrough in the prevention of atherosclerosis—hardening of the arteries.

Dr. Anthony Verlangieri, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Verlangieri of 190 Meigs Ave., Springfield, recently completed a study of the disease and its treatment with ascorbic acid (vitamin C). The project was conducted under the auspices of the environmental toxicology program of the Rutgers Animal Sciences Department, where Verlangieri has been an associate professor for the past year.

"Atherosclerosis is a disease everyone has the potential to get," Dr. Verlangieri said, noting that atherosclerosis in early infant deaths have shown signs of the disease beginning, "the question really is how fast it progresses and how fast," he explained.

The culprit in the disease appears to be cholesterol, but scientists do not fully understand how it does its damage and why it affects people so differently—to the extent that some of the worst cardiovascular cases have by cholesterol counts.

Most people think of hardening of the arteries as the building up of cholesterol inside a blood vessel until it becomes clogged—but there is more to it than that," Dr. Verlangieri said. "Before this occurs, something happens to the lining of the vessel, but exactly what is not yet known."

The 28-year-old scientist's research was built on his theory that the cholesterol enters the blood vessel after there is a breakdown of the sulfated compounds located between the cells of the vessel's inner lining. "We have evidence that vitamin C is a sulfating agent," he said. "It can carry sulfates and transfer them to other compounds, so it is possible vitamin C acts to keep the structure of the lining (the inner lining intact)."

Verlangieri set about supporting his theory by adding cholesterol to the diet of laboratory rabbits. With one group of the animals, he also (Continued on page 14)

Dr. Verlangieri, a former Springfield resident, has shown that the severity of the disease in the test animals receiving a vitamin C-enriched diet was cut in half.
