

Lunch program to be expanded after survey

Parents of public school pupils throughout the state will be surveyed this fall in preparation for next year's expansion of the school lunch program.

A new state law requires school districts to provide a lunch program, including free and reduced price lunches to needy students, by July 1, 1975, but all schools may not be affected. Just which districts will be covered by the new law will be determined by this year's survey.

The legislation exempts schools where less than five per cent of the students are eligible for the free or reduced price lunches. Eligibility is determined by family income. Family member ratio is below certain levels, the student is entitled to a totally free or a reduced price lunch.

Each school district will conduct its own survey, sending home complete application forms for parents to complete.

According to Walter Colander, the Department of Education's director of Food Program Administration, there are now some 400 school districts which have school lunch programs operating in one or more of their schools. "We expect a substantial increase in participating schools next year, but until the survey is complete it is impossible to predict the increase with any degree of accuracy," Colander said.

A memorandum about the new law from Colander and acting Assistant Commissioner Catherine Horvick has been sent to the state's more than 500 school districts. In the memorandum, school districts are urged to offer both the free and reduced price lunches this year. They are also told that the minimum nutritional standards for lunches shall be identical to the nutritional standards for lunches served under the national school lunch program.

COMPENSATION COVERAGE: The U.S. Department of Labor reports that more than five million employees are covered by federal workers' compensation laws in fiscal 1973.

PSE&G raising king-size shrimp Experiment involves water at power station

Public Service Electric and Gas has begun an aquaculture experiment using the warm-water outflow from its Mercer generating station near Trenton to grow a giant type of freshwater shrimp.

The National Science Foundation has awarded the company $25,000 to carry on the project through June 1975. It is an initial payment resulting from a requested grant of $211,000 for research which would last 28 months. The objective is to determine the technical and economic feasibility of using heated water from power plants to achieve high yields of protein production from ponds or raceways having special designs and controlled environments.

Dr. Carlos H. Guerra, PSE&G project manager, says present-day technology can transform only about one-third of the energy in fuels into electricity; the other two thirds are disposed of as waste heat, mostly to cooling towers.

Each school district will conduct its own survey, sending home complete application forms for parents to complete.

Hard water best for hypertension, pharmacist states

Persons with high blood pressure or heart disease who live in an area where the public water is soft or contains water softeners should drink bottled water instead, Col. Jacob Eisen of Mountsinclair, scientific editor of the New Jersey Journal of Pharmacy, writes in the current edition of the magazine, official publication of the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association.

Eisen, chairman of the association's therapeutics committee, cited tests at Washington University which show half as much hypertension and heart disease in areas with comparable social conditions where the drinking water is hard. Similar surveys in England and other countries verify the findings, Eisen reported.

Water softeners, Eisen says, remove calcium and other chemicals and replace them with sodium, "the chemical that all hypertensive and cardiac patients must avoid."

Eisen also cited a report from Korea which shows that salicylates, including aspirin, act through a direct on pituitary-adrenal function, producing therapeutic effects in inflammation and rheumatic fever by steroid release.

The research is being conducted in two laboratories and outdoor facilities built by the Mercer Station personnel near the point where the plant condenser cooling water flows back into the Delaware. The shrimp seem to thrive in the plant discharge water. In the last six months, the researchers have succeeded in raising a few specimens from mosquito size to adults measuring six inches. One pond has been stocked with about 2,000 shrimp and another will receive 20,000 more. These shrimp will be harvested in October and November. At that time, the mature shrimp will be sent for marketing tests or returned to the enclosure to winter over until spring, while rainbow trout will be stocked in the ponds.

The species of shrimp is technically known as Macrobrachium rosenbergii. It is a much-sought food, found in the rivers and streams of several countries in Southeast Asia. In Malaysia they call it "Udang Galah" and in Thailand "Kong Yai"—big prawn.

It is omnivorous—sannibalistic, when food is scarce—with a short larval life, fast-growing, adaptable to a wide range of salinity, and prolific. In Hawaii, where research on pond culture of this shrimp began in 1968, 30 shrimp imported from Malaysia became the progenitors of five generations that grew to 2 million shrimp by 1970. "We think the potential for commercial development, using the warm-water process, is great," John A. Canzara, vice president for research and planning for PSE&G, said. "Shrimp is the single largest seafood item consumed in this country, and almost half the shrimp consumed in this country are imported. Americans use one-third the world's shrimp production. Intensive aquaculture could make us exporters instead of importers," Canzara said.

While it is relatively little-known as an edible in this country, a New York testing lab, at the behest of the University of Hawaii, conducted taste-tests and determined that frozen fresh-water prawns were more detectable than frozen salt water shrimp. They command high prices when available at fish markets. They are appearing in Florida restaurants where they are stuffed with crabmeat, reportedly as sold for $4.50.

County unit wants town to pay more

The Township Committee Tuesday night voted to sue the Union County Park Commission to force compliance with a 1972 contract for construction of dikes along the Runway River at Washburn venue and Riverside drive. More than 35 citizens attended the meeting at Town Hall as the governing body authorized the court action by a split vote.

As Committee member Robert Wolkeck explained the matter, the Park Commission last week took bids on construction for the long-awaited flood control project. The low bid was $10,000 and the contract must be signed by Sept. 20 or the bid expires.

Other than sign the contract at once, he said, the Park Commission has called on the township to pay $100,000 more than was required as its share in the 1972 contract before the municipality and Park Commission.

The decision to bring suit was backed by Mayor Edward N. Sileo Jr., Wolkeck and Commissioner Nat. Sileo. Commissioner William Huoco was opposed. Committee member Norman Banner, just named to the Park Commission by the Union County Board of Freeholders, abstained.

Ruoco said that the township should try to negotiate with the county.

Overlook closes floor—no nurses
Robert E. Heitland, president and director of Overlook Hospital, announced this week that the hospital has temporarily closed a nursing floor because of a shortage of nursing personnel. The 44-bed medical-surgical unit will shut-down Saturday morning after months of recruitment attempts by the hospital.

Heitland stated that one important obstacle to successful recruiting is the unavailability of reasonably-priced rental housing for nurses. He also said that the closing of this unit is "at an unfortunate time, since the demand for hospital beds is exceptionally high." The hospital has been operating at approximately 90 percent of its 341-bed capacity, but at 95 percent of medical-surgical capacity.

The hospital has been attempting for more than a year to obtain Summit municipal approval for construction of apartments for nursing personnel in the Overlook neighborhood. An application for an 88-unit building was denied last June. A revised application for 76 to 80 units is pending.

For approximately 75 cents a senior citizen can purchase a complete lunch consisting of hot plate of meat or fish, a cold salad platter or a sandwich plus vegetables, fruit or dessert and milk. Other items can be purchased separately at a carte prices.

To participate in this program, a Mountsinclair or Springfield senior citizen must be at least 60 years of

In-school, adult education programs expanded by Public Broadcasting

New Jersey Public Broadcasting's fifth season of instructional television programming begins Sept. 23 on Channels 50 and 58.

Program series for "in-school use" will be aired Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. In addition, adult education series will be broadcast four nights weekly from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

According to Mrs. Mary Jane Phillips, director of instructional services, more than 60 percent of this year's instructional schedule features new programs.

"We will offer programs for primary, intermediate and secondary school students, in-service programs for teachers, high school equivalency programs, adult education series and a special series featuring English as a second language," Mrs. Phillips says.

New regulations will clarify meat, poultry product 'dating'

American consumers will soon be finding more precise "expiration" information on the packages of meat and poultry products, says Mrs. Nancy H. Stearns, special assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture for consumer affairs, announced that in a move designed to eliminate the present confusion over product dating, meat and poultry products will be voluntarily dated to a calendar date—rather than a coded date—on their products, most let consumers know what that date means.

Under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) newly amended federal meat and poultry regulations, the calendar date will be identified as a "packing date," "sell by date" or "use before date." These dates may be qualified by such terms as "for maximum freshness," or similar terms.

Some processors are already using standardizing to respond to consumer demand, but there has been some confusion as to the specific meaning of such dates. This action should resolve that problem.

Laff of the week

"I'm not only the most popular holiday weekend of the year, but also the most tragic. Since Labor Day is the last holiday of the summer, everyone tries to get away to enjoy it—the result is a startling number of injuries, traffic deaths and home burglaries every year."

"As you take off for the beach, ballpark or backyard barbecue," the institute said, "you find that overcrowded roads step up chances of an auto accident and the home you leave behind often invites its own invitation to burglars."

"Last Labor Day weekend 750 people died as a result of auto accidents—making it the worst weekend of the year."

"With more than one-and-a-half million homes burglarized last year, it's clear that Labor Day weekend has proven to be a favorite time for thieves to operate."

Institute offered a few common sense rules this Labor Day weekend:

- Lock cars and store personal property out of sight.
- Don't drink too far in three days. Stay away from alcohol before you drive, and don't speed.
- If you must drink, do so in moderation. Leave a light or two when you're gone.
- Piled up newspapers and mail also tip off burglars. Ask a neighbor or apartment manager to remove newspapers and mail from your front step.

Rinaldo asking additional funds for flood control

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo (R-N.J.) has called for supplemental appropriations totaling $415,000 to expedite flood control work in Union County.

Rinaldo demanded that the Army Corps of Engineers step up flood control construction along the Elizabeth River and other tributaries of the Rahway River during the current fiscal year.

Although the Army Corps of Engineers has obtained all the funds it can use at this time, Rinaldo stated that an additional $300,000 for the Elizabeth River Project and an extra $100,000 for the Rahway River studies could be efficiently used to expedite these programs in 1975.

The Union County lawmaker has written to Rep. Joe L. Evins, chairman of the House Public Works Appropriations Subcommittee, to urge that the funds be provided in a supplemental appropriations bill.

"People in flood-prone areas of Union County are entitled to the swiftest possible action on flood control," Rinaldo said. "I intend to see that the Army Corps of Engineers utilizes all the manpower and machinery that it can use to solve this problem."

"It makes no sense to get into an economic and humanitarian viewpoint—to expedite construction of flood control projects. Since the federal government has an obligation to taxpayers to get it done as economically as possible."

"Moreover, the people along the Elizabeth and Rahway Rivers have suffered enough. Recently, another heavy rainstorm caused extensive damage. It is not only possible to push for approval of this supplemental appropriation."

Rinaldo said that he had conferred with Elizabeth Mayor Thomas G. Dunn and other officials regarding the impact of the latest flooding in Union County.

Rinaldo said the Army Corps of Engineers is expected to receive $7,000 for flood control studies along the Rahway River under the conference report on the public works appropriations bill.

The Union County lawmaker said the Elizabeth River project is "labeled" to receive $2,000,000 during the current fiscal year.

Levin blasts U.S. issuance of notes with high interest

The federal government's recent decision to release 8 1/2 percent and 9 1/2 percent interest-bearing notes for public purchase is another glaring example of economic folly for which the average wage-earner will ultimately pay.

"By placing these Treasury notes on public auction at such a high return of interest, the Administration has encouraged a run on lower interest savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks that has further depleted the supply of mortgage money," Levin said.

"Without sufficient mortgage money, housing construction will continue to plummet while Union County's already incredible 3 1/2 percent unemployment rate continues to spiral."

"I have spoken to bankers within the county who are as bewildered as I am over the federal government's taking such a curious action at a time when the country is facing perhaps its most severe liquidity crunch in a decade."

Training course listed for home health aides

A 40-hour course to train home health aides will be held Sept. 23 at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountaintop, and Overlook Hospital, Summit, by the Visiting Homekeeper Service of Central Union County and the N.J. Department of Health.

Janet Cabrera, director of the homekeeper service, said persons wishing to take the course should call her at 230-3113. She said that transportation will be arranged for participants when needed.

"Although this course is designed to prepare women and men for assignment in homes where there is a mental disorder, the content is applicable to any household," the director pointed out. "Indeed, graduates are sometimes assigned a teaching role to help disorganized families improve their living patterns," she continued.

Heart ills top list of disabilities

Heart disease is the most common cause of disability among people getting social security disability payments, according to Robert E. Willwerth, social security district manager in Elizabeth.

Social security pays monthly benefits to over 2 million people under 65 who are severely disabled and cannot work for a year or more.

Other basic causes of disability among people getting social security payments include accidents, eight percent; respiratory diseases, seven percent; and disorders of the nervous system and sense organs, six percent.

Many people who have heart disease and other ailments can and do work," Willwerth noted. "Social security disability benefits are paid to severely disabled people whose impairment prevents them from working."

In selected cases, social security helps pay for vocational administration of disabled workers.

Monthly social security checks also go to more than 14 million dependents of disabled workers. The average social security payment to disabled workers is now $205 a month.

The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The Union County area social security office is at 242 Westminster Ave., Elizabeth. The phone number is 684-6200.

Hitch suspends extension of aid to N.J. jobless

Because of a delay in Congress, there is no extended benefits program for unemployment insurance in effect in New Jersey as of this date, Joseph A. Hoffman, director of the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry, said today.

Hoffman added, "Because of a combination of inaction and a delay in Congress, the extended benefits program was not extended in a timely fashion, but in this instance it was not known when and if a bill would be enacted while the New Jersey Legislature was in session. Unfortunately, the latest extended benefits bill was finally passed and signed by the legislature last week."

Extended benefits provide a maximum of 13 additional weeks for those claimants who have exhausted their regular 26 weeks of benefits. It is funded 50 percent by the federal government and 50 percent by the state government. The extended benefits program was extended on June 30 to June 30, 1974.

When the extended benefits program expired on June 30, Hoffman said, "Congress did not conduct extensive debates on the subject. The outcome early in July was that a stop-gap measure was passed extending the program only until Aug. 1."

Hoffman pointed out that the New Jersey State Legislature was at that time in session. The governor immediately submitted a bill extending the program to Aug. 1 in response to the congressional action. The State Legislature immediately approved the bill.

On the day the program again expired, Congress, after further debate, extended the program until April 1975, after the New Jersey State Legislature and the legislatures of most other states had recessed for the summer.

Hoffman said, "When the State Legislature recessed on July 29 there was no indication from Washington that Congress would further act on that time on an extended benefits bill."

He added, "As soon as the New Jersey State Legislature reconvenes in September, Governor Brendan T. Byrne will have to re-introduce the bill, pending the expiration of the program through April 1975."

Hoffman said that there was much confusion regarding extended benefits in recent weeks because of fragmentary and incorrect reports which have been circulating.

JCP&L cutbacks increase because of budget trimming

Additional employee layoffs and job reassignments have become necessary as Jersey Central Power & Light Company continues to adjust to construction program cutbacks and other operating austerity measures. This is the second cutback announced in the past two months.

Shepard Barfield, JCP&L president, said in Morrisiana that approximately 200 employees will be laid off in addition to the 200 previously announced. The cutbacks in JCP&L's construction programs and in the operating and maintenance budgets also reduced the amount of work done by outside tree trimming and line construction contractors, resulting in the dismissal of 100 employees.

"We continue to be concerned and disappointed at the need for employees—both ours and those of firms who do contract work for us—to be forced out of work," Barfield said, "and we hope that our earnings picture will ultimately turn around so that we can finance the needed construction and get on with the job that has to be done in order that adequate and reliable service for our customers, in the meantime, we have to lay off our level of employees."

Noting that peak loads and increasing demand for power have caused a sharp increase in the need for employees—both ours and those of firms who do contract work for us—to be forced out of work, Barfield said, "and we hope that our earnings picture will ultimately turn around so that we can finance the needed construction and get on with the job that has to be done in order that adequate and reliable service for our customers, in the meantime, we have to lay off our level of employees."

Barfield went on to comment that the longer it is necessary to operate on restricted budgets, the more likely it is for the quality of customer service to be affected. This is particularly true because of the elimination of many tree trimming activities, especially if the cutbacks continue into next year. In times of storms, there will be no one to trim trees, which will cause wind-whipped and ice laden tree limbs. This will cause more interruptions of service.

Symposium on child abuse planned by public health unit

A day-long symposium on Child Abuse, Neglect and Children's Rights is being planned for Oct. 9 at the Holiday Inn in North Branch. The program will be held under the auspices of the New Jersey Public Health Association with the New Jersey State Bar Association serving as a co-sponsor.

Announcement of the symposium was made this week by Dr. Sylvia Herz, a psychologist and sociologist, who is serving as chairman of the event. A member of the executive board of the Public Health Association, she was recently appointed Governor Brendan T. Byrne to the State Board of Psychological Examiners.

Dr. Herz explained the purpose of the full-day program—"Our symposium will attempt to deal with the problems of child abuse and neglect, and children's rights, from the medical, legal, educational and psychological points of view. We have invited experts from a variety of disciplines to speak on separate aspects of this growing social issue."

"New Jersey will be the first state in the nation to hold this type of inter-disciplinary symposium," she added. "Among the speakers scheduled to appear are: Dr. Vincent J. Fanagan, chairman of the Task Force on Child Abuse and Neglect in New York City; Dr. Larry S. Silver, chief of the Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry at Rutgers Medical School; and Judge Justice Poller of the New York State Family Court."

Other speakers will include Dr. Irwin Hyman, associate professor of psychology at Temple University Graduate School; Jean Reynolds, coordinator of HEW's Center for Child Advocacy in Washington, D.C.; and Dr. Sprague W. Hazard, director of Health Services at Brandeis University.

In addition to the New Jersey State Bar Association, a number of health and professional organizations from throughout the state are also serving as co-sponsors of the event.

Further information about symposium registration and fees may be obtained by writing to Dr. Sylvia Herz, New Jersey Public Health Association, Box 14, Roseland 07068.

N.J. water researchers will cover Union, Essex

State Environmental Protection Commissioner David J. Borjas this week announced the retention of Louis Berger and Associates of East Orange and Ralph M. Peltz and Associates of Westport, Conn., to perform a comprehensive water quality management study in northeast metropolitan New Jersey including Union and Essex counties.

A further element of the study will develop a management plan for water quality management that considers the institutional, financial, jurisdictional and operational and maintenance needs of the entire study area.

The study will cover 1,250 square miles in nine counties and will lead the way to more effective water pollution control and water resource protection for the area, according to Borjas. The counties are: Bergen, Passaic, Hudson, Union, Morris, Essex, Somerset, Middlesex and Sussex.

Borjas said the consultants were selected after an extensive process designed to insure open and free competition of technical proposals. Commission Borjas said, "As a result of this lengthy process, we feel that we have carefully selected consultants who can best accomplish all the tasks required to complete this very important study within our budget."

He commented that the study, which also will include portions of Rockland and Orange counties in New York, covers highly developed portions of New Jersey including areas with severely degraded water quality. A comprehensive planning process is being initiated to coordinate water quality activities in the region, providing for compatibility among the various pollution abatement efforts and assure a consistency in abatement strategy."

The study area, will be divided into the two sub-studies—the freshwater—Potomac—Susquehanna and the saltwater—Chesapeake—Delaware—Atlantic.

LABOR DAY

"Blessed is he who has found his work; let him ask no other blessedness. His is the greatest of all."
—THOMAS CARLYLE

Labor, said a wise man, preserves us from three great evils...weariness, vice and want. It also serves as an excellent measure of strength and prosperity...especially when a nation's people are independent and proud of earning a fair day's wage for a fair day's work. Today, we take proud of earning a fair day's wage for a fair day's work. Today, we take pride from our daily jobs to pay our grateful tribute to the American ethic that dignifies honest labor and knows that work is love made visible.
