

Public Service reduces budget in construction

Public Service Electric and Gas Company announced this week that it will cut construction expenditures by $68 million over the next five years. Work will proceed, however, on nuclear power units already under construction in order that more lower-priced nuclear power can be made available to consumers.

The overall construction budget will be reduced from $2.6 billion to $1.9 billion for the years 1974 through 1978. The utility's new construction schedule was reviewed and approved by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners Sept. 18.

No major nuclear construction projects have been cancelled, according to Robert I. Smith, president. Two projects in Salem County—Salem Generating Station and Hope Creek Generating Station—will provide thousands of jobs for New Jersey. Smith pointed out. More than 4,000 workers will be on the job for a five year period, 1975 to 1979, reaching a peak of nearly 5,000 in 1978.

This should have a beneficial effect on the economy of the state, Smith said. Peach Bottom Generating Station, which PSE&G has a 42 percent share, is scheduled to begin full operation before the year's end. The first large nuclear unit completed at this southeastern Pennsylvania power station began operating earlier this year, giving PSE&G 42 megawatts. The economic impact of this cheap nuclear power lowered consumer bills slightly in July and August. A second unit, which will supply PSE&G with 422 megawatts more by December, stands have a similar effect.

HEW to keep eye on nursing homes

NEW YORK—The establishment of a new unit to enforce federal standards for nursing homes was announced here this week by Mrs. Bernice I. Bernstein, HEW regional director. The standards apply to more than 12,000 long-term care facilities serving about 112,000 Medicare and Medicaid patients in New York, New Jersey and Puerto Rico.

Alan J. Superstein, a health official from the Social Security Administration, was named director for long term care standards enforcement and will head the new unit. Mrs. Bernstein said, "Long term care facilities have become a vital element in the nation's health care industry. In this country, the nursing home operators can afford a level of care in these facilities that is less than safe, pleasant and beneficial to the patient."

Dear Pat and Marilyn: I am 38 years old and not bad looking. I am still trim and young enough to wear youthful styles, but, unfortunately, my daughter is 17 and she has a wonderful figure. Clothes look great on her but she spoils the entire effect by not wearing a bra. Many of her friends also do not wear bras and it ruins the appearance of her outfit. I cannot understand why she does this. Am I obsolete at 38? Is my idea of good taste crazy? My father says I should live with the dinosaurs. Aside from the obvious, this braless era is creating a new fashion. What would you do?

Architecture unit opens year with anthropologist talk

The newly established New Jersey chapter of the Society of Architectural Historians will hold its first regular meeting Friday, Oct. 11 at 8 p.m. in the Gallery of the Art Center of Seton Hall University, South Orange. Prof. Herbert C. Kraft, anthropologist and professor of sociology at Seton Hall, will be guest speaker. The event is open to the public free of charge. Prof. Kraft, president of the Archaeological Society of New Jersey and director of the Archaeological Research Center at Seton Hall will discuss "Indian Housing and Settlement Patterns in New Jersey." For several years Prof. Kraft has led archaeological excavation expeditions in various parts of the state which have contributed to scholarly knowledge of earliest Indian sites.

His talk will be illustrated with color slides showing many of these sites, pointing out different kinds of houses uncovered and comparing such domestic with those discovered in other areas of the country. The influence of early colonists on house and settlement patterns of indigenous people will also be explored.

Bell's new copper alloy called cheaper, stronger

A new family of metal alloys which makes more efficient use of copper, and of our most rapidly used and rapidly depleted natural resources, has been developed at Bell Laboratories. The Bell System uses about 25 million pounds of copper alloys annually in manufacturing relays and connectors for switching offices, and for making springs, such as those behind the buttons in Touch-Tone telephones.

Board will restudy policies on ranking, music unit trips

Members of the Regional High School District Board of Education indicated Tuesday night that they would reconsider two recently adopted policies — one limiting the number of major trips undertaken by musical groups, and the other establishing a system of class ranking, starting with this year's freshmen.

The policy on musical groups states that each group may go on a trip of exchange concert more than 400 miles from home only once every three years. Students and parents affiliated with the school district music programs argued that the policy may be fair to bandmen, who often participate for four years, but unfair to chorists, who move up to the top groups only in their junior and senior years.

BOARD MEMBERS said their intent was to reduce the strain on budget groups and the community, which must provide substantial amounts of money to pay for the trips. The action came after strong objections to both policies were voiced by parents and students who were among the 40 persons in the audience at the monthly board meeting at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield.

Dr. George Schuler of Kenilworth, a consistent critic of board actions, presented a detailed argument against the new ranking system which provides greater weight for more difficult courses. He contrasted two hypothetical students.

Awareness cited in finding of rabid bat in township number of courses for four years, including the most difficult, with an A average. Student B would take all the same courses, but as many electives as possible, after with an A average.

According to Schuler, the student taking more courses would end up with a lower rank, because the more lightly rated electives, from tripping to the south side of the field house, would dilute the otherwise high carry heavier status.

Editorial comment CAMPAIGN FINANCES

Developments in one area over the past few months have given us the uneasy feeling that the leaders of both political parties in Springfield are interested in the cause of good government—but only if their own particular factions are doing the governing.

Last spring we suggested that a community like this one, where Republicans and Democrats can designate the party of his or her choice, could be a fine spot to try giving the political financing process back to the people. We proposed that two-person teams, one Democrat and one Republican, ring each doorbell in Springfield asking for campaign contributions, not to exceed, perhaps, $5.

The receipts could all be poured into one pot and then be divided equally to each doorbell could designate the party of his or her choice. The mechanics, we were certain, could have been arranged.

The important thing was the receipt—proving, at least on this small scale, campaigning could be conducted without dependence on any large contributors. A joint project of this sort, with prominent public figures, could be a first step toward the $2,000- or $4,000 needed by each side for a municipal election campaign.

The chairpersons of both parties, Democrat Arthur Schwartz and Republican Angelo Menza, both expressed polite interest, and they promised to discuss the matter further with their committees.

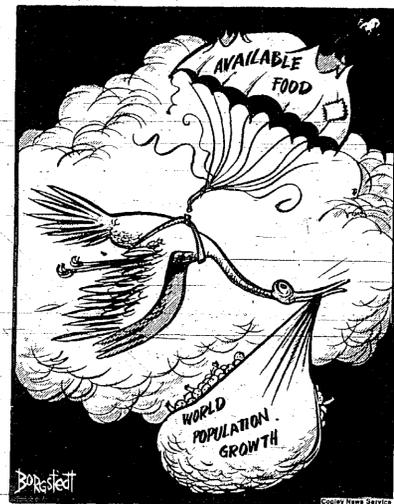

The next we heard from each was an assurance that the other side would never be allowed to put the end of our modest proposal, at least for 1974.

We do not intend, however, to give up entirely. This is a subject on which the candidates, who are not entirely after eyes of the chairman, might have some opinions.

And then there is always next year.

LIBRARY

The sun never sets...

By ROSE P. SIMON
The Springfield Public Library lists the following titles among the recently received books:

BOOK ABOUT MUGGERIDGE
"Chronicles of Wasted Time, No. 2," by Malcolm Muggeridge. Part of this re-echoing biography—"The Green Socks"—covering the years preceding 1971, is narrated by the internationally known English editor, journalist, and TV personality, Malcolm Muggeridge.

The author begins this volume with his temporary post in Geneva at the International Labor Office, then shifts to Calcutta where he spent a delightful year as assistant editor of the Calcutta Statesman.

Called back to Geneva to work for the International Labor Office, after which he has been in London, and bought a country home where he spent three happy years with his wife (whom he deeply loved, but to whom he was occasionally unfaithful) and his children.

Seen after the outbreak of World War II, he became a member of the Secret Service, serving in London, Libya and Africa. He viewed his intelligence operations with cynicism and reverence, writing about them with wit and clarity.

Among the many fascinating vignettes of men in power, friends, agents, journalists, and others, are those of Andre Gide, Graham Greene, George Orwell, Fred Astaire, Montgomery, DeGaulle, Coco Chanel, Kim Philby, Eric Rothchild, Simone Weil and P. G. Wodehouse.

THE GREAT WESTERN PLAINS
"The West," by Russell McKee.

This history of the Great Plains of North America is written by a native of Illinois who is also a lover of that immense and monotonous land between the Mississippi and the Rockies. McKee describes it as being only sparsely populated by hills, small mountain ranges, valleys, prairies, and rolling hills.

He gives an account of the area's origins, starting with the Cambrian period. He speaks of the unbelievable variety of wildlife, the migration of people from Asia, the later advent of Europeans into territories occupied by Indians, and the ensuing conflicts. There are many anecdotes about early explorers seeking furs, and the traders and trappers and Eastern merchants.

The author gives details about the acquisition of "extensive territories" by the U.S.—the Homestead Act, the Pony Express, the Great Railroad, the extinction of wildlife and the reclamation of lands to the reservations. He tells about the new European immigrants who changed the grasslands into tiered fields which became the breadbasket of the world; their oil and mines became their riches.

U.S. Sen. Clifford Case

The United States Export-Import Bank, a federally-owned and operated enterprise, has been authorized to extend its commercial rates to foreign countries to buy American products, as do banks owned by the governments of other industrialized countries.

Since 1972 the Export-Import Bank's activities have become controversial because of massive long-term credits have been extended to the Soviet Union and other communist countries at part of its policy of détente.

$120 to $300 million in credits has already been given to the Soviet Union alone without consideration of the technology, previously unavailable to the USSR. And some of the credits to be used to build natural gas pipelines in the USSR, looking toward the further development of huge natural gas projects in the USSR.

If these projects, taken in the aggregate, are credited, they will cost many billions of dollars. We want to rely on non-Western countries to supply our energy needs. It is not a matter of competing with the USSR for the development of our own energy resources to foreign countries. Further, do we want to obligate billions of dollars to other governments on a long term basis?

It is clear to me that Congressional review of such expenditures and policies is needed for these programs can receive the fullest public scrutiny.

The Senate has now acted on the renewal of the Export-Import Bank Act and has placed a number of significant restrictions on loans to foreign countries.

For any loan of more than $50 million, Congress will have to receive prior notification of the proposed transaction on the national security and the economy of the United States. Included in an analysis of the impact of the loan would be the competitive position of U.S. industries, whether such a loan would lead to any shortages in food and raw materials and whether any loan would make available advanced technology not obtainable elsewhere.

The Senate bill places a ceiling on Export-Import Bank lending authority to the USSR at a total of $500 million. The bank may not make loans to the Soviet Union during the life of the act without first receiving Congressional approval.

For loans to communist countries involving the purchase, lease or procurement of products for research, exploration or the production of social fuel energy resources, the Senate bill requires prior Congressional approval for any loan of more than $50 million.

The Senate-passed bill also contains a provision that forbids the Export-Import Bank under its new authority to extend credit to the Soviet Union until the Trade Reform bill is signed into law by the President. In essence, this provision withholds credits until the free emigration from the USSR is resolved. An identical amendment is included in the House-passed bill.

The position taken by the United States Senate does not, in my view, constitute in any way an attack on true détente or opposition to the purpose of the Export-Import Bank, but, in my own view, I would like Congress affirmatively to approve all "large" loans, whether to a communist country or not. But that Congress must take a positive role in approving major transactions, especially with a communist country, that could have an impact on either our own economy or on security.

The position taken by the United States Senate does not, in my view, constitute in any way an attack on true détente or opposition to the purpose of the Export-Import Bank, but, in my own view, I would like Congress affirmatively to approve all "large" loans, whether to a communist country or not. But that Congress must take a positive role in approving major transactions, especially with a communist country, that could have an impact on either our own economy or on security.

For loans to communist countries involving the purchase, lease or procurement of products for research, exploration or the production of social fuel energy resources, the Senate bill requires prior Congressional approval for any loan of more than $50 million.

The Senate-passed bill also contains a provision that forbids the Export-Import Bank under its new authority to extend credit to the Soviet Union until the Trade Reform bill is signed into law by the President. In essence, this provision withholds credits until the free emigration from the USSR is resolved. An identical amendment is included in the House-passed bill.

Levin proposes: amend rape laws, don't 'try' victim

Democratic Congressional nominee Adam K. Levin says existing rape laws must be amended and victim-oriented programs initiated on a local level, if America is to win the war against its fastest-growing violent crime.

"I am calling for state legislation to enable a prosecutor to charge alleged rapists with the most serious type of assault when he considers it too difficult to obtain conviction under a charge of rape," Levin said.

Judges are now too prone to admit testimony about a victim's prior sexual conduct in rape proceedings, thereby placing the victim on trial instead of the defendant. Such evidence would be irrelevant in assault proceedings. I also propose that we specify in the penal code section on rape that a woman's sexual conduct on other occasions be barred from submission into evidence.

The 12th District, Union County, candidate said more than 40,000 rapes are reported annually, and the FBI estimates that only one in 10 is ever reported. This means almost 40,000 rapes are committed yearly in the United States, about one every 30 seconds.

"Many rape victims are now unwilling to report the crime out of shame, embarrassment, or because they fear harassment. As a result, many rapists continue to walk the streets unopposed," Levin continued. "To counter this, police departments should recruit rape investigation procedures to the needs of the victim, set strict limits should be placed on and by women."

"Federal and state bills should be made available for the establishment of Rape Crisis Centers on a regional basis or in high-crime areas, which will assist rape victims and advise to victims; help the victim obtain the medical and psychological aid she requires, and smooth the legal process so that the victim is neither intimidated nor treated like a defendant."

Levin's proposals were included in the minutes of the 12th District meeting with President Ford. Rinaldo attended the White House Conference on Inflation, which concluded Saturday. President Ford inserted Rinaldo's proposals into the official records of the meeting.

Pre-Executive predicts recovery in construction

The housing industry is certain to recover from its current slump, says a pre-executive of the U.S. Home Corporation, the country's largest housing builder. He predicts a recovery in construction activity by the end of the year, and housing starts will be up 10 to 15 percent.

The "rate sensitive" family housing market is expected to be the first to recover, followed by the multi-family market. The rate sensitive family housing market is expected to be the first to recover, followed by the multi-family market.

The first "village within a village" at Shawnee Village was unveiled Tuesday held by Fred recently of a special event. Waring and Karl Hoop.

Members of the press toured the first complete section of townhouse clusters built on the grounds of the Shawnee Inn and Country Club, made famous by Waring.

Designed and planned by the firm of Callister, Payne and Blackoff of Los Angeles and Boston, the Village of Shawnee introduces a new lifestyle in four-season recreational living. The completed cluster includes one and two-bedroom lodges as well as a three "bedroom" townhouse.

Architecture depicts casual country moods and blends into the natural beauty of the Shawnee tract. The relaxed atmosphere, indicative of the area, will be preserved within the Village by the exclusion of automobile traffic.

In addition to new facilities to be constructed such as ski shops and village centers, residents will have the total facilities offered by the inn at their disposal including the 27-hole championship golf course, tennis, swimming, boating and fishing, as well as food and beverage services and housekeeping.

The Village at Shawnee is truly unique in that it couples the relaxed atmosphere of country living with the total recreational package offered through the facilities of one of the nation's truly great resorts.

The Village is located three miles north of the Delaware Water Gap and bordered on the west by the Pocono Mountains and on the east by the Delaware River.

Lowell will speak at Torah rally for Jews in Russia

"To convey the abiding sense of interdependence between Soviet and American Jews," Stanley H. Lowell, chairman of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry, will address participants of the Simhat Torah Unity Rally for Soviet Jews on Sunday at 8 p.m. at the YMA-YWHA of Metropolitan New Jersey, Northfield Avenue, West Orange.

"We are heartened by the recent reports of Soviet desire for compromise on the issue of free emigration," noted Jacqueline Levine, president of the Metropolitan New Jersey Conference on Soviet Jewry. "We applaud the efforts of Senators Jackson, Javits and Ribicoff, whose persistence and dedication together with Secretary of State Kissinger have made a compromise form of the Jackson Amendment which would be acceptable to all parties involved a viable alternative. While we are hopeful that such a resolution can be agreed upon and carried out to the good faith by the U.S.S.R.," she continued, "we know that Soviet officials, in their cold and systematic persecution of their Jewish minority, are capable of reversing government policy at a moment's notice."

"We must not be lulled into a sense of complacency by these promising developments," warned Mrs. Levine. "We must remain vigilant. We must continue to support our Soviet brothers and sisters' struggle for freedom until we are sure that all those who

New unit opens at St. Barnabas

Congressman Joseph Minchin was the guest of honor at a dedication function for the new Cooley's Anemia (thalassemia) unit located in the Pediatric Department of Saint Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston.

The ceremony under the direction of Anthony Scala, chairman of the Saint Barnabas Development Committee, honored the members of the Cooley's Anemia Blood and Research Foundation for Children Inc., New Hyde Park, N.Y.

Following the ceremony, a bronze plaque was installed in a special area in appreciation of funds and ongoing support that have been given to the program at the Center. Cooley's Anemia is a severe blood disease for which there is no known cure. It's victims are children who receive the genetic trait for the disease from each of their parents. The condition is found mainly among persons whose origin is in the Mediterranean area of the world. While this condition is found in many of the nations in that area, the greater number of children afflicted are of Italian or Greek origin.

FBI reports 16 percent crime increase in nation

Serious crime in the United States rose 16 percent during the first six months of 1974, the largest first-half increase in six years, according to FBI statistics released today.

The crime increase contrasted with actual decreases of one percent during the same period of 1973 and 1972.

In announcing the statistics, Attorney General William F. French said, "This sharp rise in serious crime is disturbing to all law-abiding Americans. It means that the entire criminal justice system must pursue new directions to turn back this threat to our society."

The six-month increase continued the upward trend that began in the last quarter of 1973. Mr. French noted that during the first half of 1974, violent crime increased six percent, compared to a four percent rise the year before. The more numerous property crimes rose 17 percent, compared to a 2 percent increase in the first half of 1973.

The latest figures were contained in the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports, which, was released by FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley. The reports are based on crime statistics furnished by city, county and state law enforcement agencies.

Only 17 major cities reported actual crime decreases for the first half of 1974 compared to 85 for the same period a year ago.

The Uniform Crime Reports divides serious crime into two categories: violent, which includes murder, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault, and property, which includes burglary, larceny-theft, and auto theft. Felonies rose eight percent, aggravated assaults seven percent, and murder and robbery each five percent. Larceny-theft jumped 20 percent, burglary 18 percent, and auto theft four percent.

Suburban law enforcement agencies reported a 20 percent increase in robbery crime in rural areas was up 18 percent for the first half of the year.

First place prizes are awarded to the top 100 cities in the country. Prizes will be awarded through Cleaner Air Week.

Agency sponsors clean air theme poster competition

Cleaner Air Week, Oct. 29-31, will include a poster competition for youths sponsored by the Suburban Air Pollution Commission. The commission, which is an enforcement agency, serves 14 communities, including Union and Irvington.

The contest, with entrants from all 14 member communities, is intended to foster interest in environmental problems among students. Posters submitted must deal with some aspect of air pollution, such as sources or effects. Last year more than 600 entries were received in grades 1 through 12.

In past years, winning posters have been displayed in the New Jersey Public Broadcasting Authority building, at the state PTA's annual meeting and in local libraries and banks.

Prize winners will receive prizes at a banquet in their honor. Prizes will be awarded through Cleaner Air Week.

Gill, who has written the "New Yorker" theater column since the 1950's, is chairman of the annual coin convention on the Jersey coast. He will talk on "Portrait of a Period," the "Victorian Age at the Jersey Shore."

Lyle will speak on "The Victorian House in Monmouth County."

Weekend activities will take place at various sites in Monmouth including a candlelight reception Friday, Oct. 11, at the headquarters of the Monmouth County Historical Association.

Registration may be received by tomorrow, information may be obtained through the Newark headquarters of the New Jersey Historical Society, 230 Broadway, Newark.

With the close of the boating season, frothing the boater for offshore activities, boating safety courses are being offered by the Coast Guard Auxiliary.

An important part of any boater's seagoing, the course will run for 12 consecutive weeks, one lesson each week. Upon successful completion of the end of course examination, the graduate will be awarded a completion certificate.

Some of the areas to be covered in the course are: Marine Engines, Rules and Regulations, Aids to Navigation, Flooding and Electronic Navigation, and Maritime Police Seamanship.

Most areas have Auxiliary Facilities which hold classes at a convenient location. For class schedule and location, readers may call 219-284-4905, or write to Director of Auxiliary, Bldg. 104, Governors Island, NY 10004.

Bicentennial's symbol N.J. picks contest winner

A design submitted by a magazine art director from Pompton Lakes is the overwhelming winner of a statewide contest to select the symbol of New Jersey's celebration of the nation's Bicentennial.

The winning design was created by William Galbreath, assistant art director for Forbes Magazine in New York. It received 1,175 of the total 13,723 ballots mailed in by the people of New Jersey for the five designs that were selected as finalists.

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne unveiled the winning design during ceremonies at the State Museum in Trenton, where a special exhibition also was opened to display the more than 100 entries in the contest originally submitted by New Jersey artists and designers. The Governor presented Galbreath with his prize check of $1,722, corresponding to the year the Declaration of Independence was signed.

Gov. Byrne said the fact that so many New Jerseyans took the time and effort to participate in the contest demonstrated their pride in the principles on which this nation was founded and awareness of the key role New Jersey played in the American Revolution.

Galbreath said the Commission felt it was appropriate that the people of New Jersey themselves make the final choice of the 200th anniversary symbol of their country.

Galbreath also expressed gratitude to the artists and designers who participated and commented that the panel of judges must have a difficult task reducing the number to the final five because of the high quality of the entries.

The four other designers who made the finals were Peter Huang, a graphic designer for the Campbell-Suppe-Design-Center in Camden; John S. Strydom, a graphic artist for the N.J. Public Broadcasting Authority in Trenton; Bill Wood of The Design Shop in Glen Ridge; and Charles F. W. of North Clinton Avenue, Weehawken.

The winner, Galbreath, attended the ceremony with his wife, Lois, who originally spotted the newspaper announcement of the contest and urged him to enter, and their sons, Gerald, 12, and Charles, 10.

A native of Colorado, Galbreath has been a resident of New Jersey for 14 years, the last four in Pompton Lakes and the 10 years before that in the state of Colorado.

Dayton soccer squad splits two; record 2-1

By MICHAEL MESKIN
The Jonathan Dayton soccer team split its last two games, whitewashing West Orange, 4-0, and then losing to a tough Caldwell squad, 3-0. The split brought their record to 1-2.

Against West Orange the offense did the most damage, scoring five goals in the opposition's defense. Though the unit had other scoring opportunities, the score indicates the impact of Coach Art Krupp's newly installed 4-2-1 formation, which is used to make offensive punts.

Springfield summer school ran from traditional to rock

A full report on the 1974 Springfield summer school, for youngsters up to the eighth grade, was submitted to the Board of Education last week by Blanche Truett, director. Roosevelt Williams was assistant director.

The summer session included such features as a pop-rock ensemble, cooking, tennis, gymnastics and golf, as well as the more traditional enrichment and remedial courses.

G. Tutorial consultation for students was offered by the librarians in cooperation with the reading and English teachers.

The 1974 Springfield summer school has met with great success as illustrated by the enthusiastic community response. The dividends of early planning were seen in the summer school's ability to meet the demands of an unprecedented enrollment.

As in previous years, the one-hour sessions in improvement courses allowed for greater flexibility, providing more options for more children. The atmosphere created within the classes fostered eager attendance at both improvement and enrichment courses.

There was a gratifying interest in the program expressed by parents, who also generously offered their assistance and cooperation in both time and the gathering of materials. This interest was expressed by individual teachers as well as to the director.

The 1974 summer school was the first session to operate on an independent budget. This too added to the program's success. It provided for early planning of curricula and collection of materials. It also allowed for earlier ordering of materials so that their arrival was for the most part complete.

Maintenance of bus insurance and a bus driver was of essential value to the summer program. This provided transportation for the students to tennis classes, but also for numerous field trips.

The 1974 summer school staff consisted of 10 teachers, two teacher aides and the director. Early selection of this staff was crucial to the summer success of the session. This early selection allowed for periodic meetings of the staff to discuss and plan the direction of the program, and coordinate activities. It also provided the opportunity for teachers, drawn from all the schools, to develop the camaraderie essential to a highly successful program. The benefit of this strong association was a unique set of inter-disciplinary activities:

A. Pop rock ensemble made a sound track for a film produced by filmmaking.

B. The cooking and science classes shared a field trip to Cook College Environmental and Agricultural Center.

C. Flexible scheduling and grouping were possible between the two industrial arts shops.

D. Both shops shared a field trip to the Shasta Beverage Co.

E. The two reading-teacher-teams frequently discussions were used as stimuli for creative writing. Individual interests were pursued with the assistance of our librarian who directed research skills as well as excursions to Lake Park. For this excursion the cooking class prepared the food, the gymnastics class planned the activities and our filmmaking shared their new-found technical recording techniques.

As in previous years, the one-hour sessions in improvement courses allowed for greater flexibility, providing more options for more children. The atmosphere created within the classes fostered eager attendance at both improvement and enrichment courses.

There was a gratifying interest in the program expressed by parents, who also generously offered their assistance and cooperation in both time and the gathering of materials. This interest was expressed by individual teachers as well as to the director.

The 1974 summer school was the first session to operate on an independent budget. This too added to the program's success. It provided for early planning of curricula and collection of materials. It also allowed for earlier ordering of materials so that their arrival was for the most part complete.

Maintenance of bus insurance and a bus driver was of essential value to the summer program. This provided transportation for the students to tennis classes, but also for numerous field trips.

The 1974 summer school staff consisted of 10 teachers, two teacher aides and the director. Early selection of this staff was crucial to the summer success of the session. This early selection allowed for periodic meetings of the staff to discuss and plan the direction of the program, and coordinate activities. It also provided the opportunity for teachers, drawn from all the schools, to develop the camaraderie essential to a highly successful program. The benefit of this strong association was a unique set of inter-disciplinary activities:

A. Pop rock ensemble made a sound track for a film produced by filmmaking.

B. The cooking and science classes shared a field trip to Cook College Environmental and Agricultural Center.

C. Flexible scheduling and grouping were possible between the two industrial arts shops.

D. Both shops shared a field trip to the Shasta Beverage Co.

E. The two reading-teacher-teams frequently

discussions were used as stimuli for creative writing. Individual interests were pursued with the assistance of our librarian who directed research skills as well as excursions to Lake Park. For this excursion the cooking class prepared the food, the gymnastics class planned the activities and our filmmaking shared their new-found technical recording techniques.

G. Tutorial consultation for students was offered by the librarians in cooperation with the reading and English teachers.

The 1974 Springfield summer school has met with great success as illustrated by the enthusiastic community response. The dividends of early planning were seen in the summer school's ability to meet the demands of an unprecedented enrollment.

Overlook acts to help patients after they leave the hospital

Many patients leave the hospital with unanswered questions. Perhaps their illness has eased a real change in life style. How will they cope with it at home?

Education is being filled by Barbara A. Baron, RN, MSN, of Roselle Park.

"Patients often get very confused. It's hard to absorb medical information when you are sick, fearful or under pain," Miss Baron pointed out. "Doctors may give instruction but the patient doesn't always understand, or forgets to ask -- or is just too overwhelmed."

"Our goal is to help patients -- the new diabetics, the victims of asthma, emphysema, the colostomy patient. We want them to understand their illness and how to regulate their lives in accordance with their health needs. With basic, step-by-step explanation and warm understanding of their adjustment and fears, we hope to motivate and teach them so that they can carry the major responsibility for their own health."

Decreased hospital stays and fewer doctor visits should result from this program, as well as increased well-being of the patient who understands his problem and knows how to deal with it, she added.

Miss Baron's assignment is to plan, organize, implement and evaluate a program of health education for patients and members of the community in the Overlook Hospital service area.

Brothers, Sevareid to speak at NJEA session Nov. 7-9

The New Jersey Education Association will offer teachers three days of activities to improve their background knowledge and classroom skills at its annual convention in Atlantic City Nov. 7-9.

The NJEA convention annually draws some 40,000 teachers to its hundreds of meetings on instruction, methodology, subject matter and innovations in Convention Hall and surrounding hotels.

"Because these are lively times for teachers," says NJEA Executive Director Frederick L. Hipp, "the convention will be crisscrossed with provocative and informative sessions."

The 1974 NJEA convention includes addresses by Dr. Joyce Brothers, the nationally known child psychologist, at the first general session; and by Eric Sevareid, the CBS commentator at the second general session.

The leaders of New Jersey's state government and Department of Education will also address the massed teachers. Gov. Brendan Byrne and Education Commissioner Frederick F. Burke are scheduled for the convention's final general session.

In addition to general sessions, the convention program includes hundreds of seminars and meetings on subjects ranging from such specific subject matter as the teaching of reading to such special interests as minority involvement, alternative education, and the harmful effects of sex stereotyping on girl students.

A special meeting on "Minority Involvement" will bring James Harris, president of the National Education Association, and the Rev. S. Howard Woodson, speaker of the New Jersey Assembly, to Convention Hall Friday for a 12:30 p.m. conference sponsored by the NJEA Minority Groups Caucus and the NJEA Human Rights Committee. Harris will also appear at the first general session.

Highlights of Thursday's opening-day program include meetings of the annual Curriculum Work Conference in the Chalfonte Hotel and a meeting of NJEA's policy-making Delegate Assembly in Haddon Hall.

New this year is a series of meetings conducted by authors of educational handbooks and textbooks for teachers whose specialties lie in such fields as reading and early childhood education.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
My daughter is beautiful, talented and a college graduate. She has been married for five years to Bill. He did manage to graduate from high school and began working in a garage. He is now a mechanic and makes a good living. He also comes home dirty and greasy.

Dear Mother:
Her sense of value is right where it should be. Why do you stop being Mrs. Clegg? Let your daughter's marriage alone. She seems to be handling the situation very well.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
Some of the girls at school mentioned your mail pellets. They said it formed a protective film. Can you tell me about this?

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
No doubt you're referring to a new product called "Strong-Guard" vinyl wall guard. It's actually formulated with vinyl. It will protect your walls from nail points to coat fingertips, with strong, high gloss finish. It is colorless, quick-drying and living. It also comes home dirty and greasy.

Dear Mother:
I am 14 and decided to do something different to my room. My room had been painted white about five years ago and I was sick and tired of the dull walls so I purchased some paint and decorated the wall with flowers, etc. I am quite artistic and was really proud of the results. It attracted attention in the room and I looked so professional that I signed my name—like a real artist.

Chrysler Corporation announces a new car warranty with unlimited mileage for one full year.

For the first 12 months of use, any Chrysler Motors Corporation dealer will fix, without charge for parts or labor, any part of our 1975 passenger cars we supply (except tires) which proves defective in normal use, regardless of mileage.

And that's just the beginning. We're confident that you'll find everything about our new '75—from engineering and styling to economy—easy to say yes to. And for the clincher, we're backing them up with our new Owner Care Program.

It starts with a new 12 month, unlimited mileage warranty so strong and simple it's bound to generate questions. So, right here and now, we offer some answers.

Q. Unlimited mileage sounds simple enough. But what's the catch?
A. There's no catch. The warranty covers every part we put in the car. And it's good for as many miles as you can drive in 12 full months.

Q. But there are some expensive things that could just "wear out" if you drive enough miles even though they're not "defective." You know, brake linings, mufflers, shock absorbers. Do I have to pay for them?
A. No. To a lot of people those might be considered something for you to worry about. But since we want to make your relationship with the car we make as worry-free as possible, we're ready to take on those responsibilities. So, even if they just wear out during the first 12 months of normal use, we'll replace them no matter how many miles you drive.

Q. The only way you could top all that is a free loaner. Uh...do you?
A. Sure. If you make an appointment for warranty repairs in advance, and the job cannot be completed from morning until evening of the same working day, participating dealers will supply you with a loaner. Free.

Q. Is there anything else I should know?
A. Replacing certain worn out parts, our unlimited mileage warranty and our free loaner program are all just the beginning of a new Owner Care Program, designed to make owning our new cars so worry-free, they're irresistible.

Q. That's a great "extra." Does it include everything that just wears out?
A. No. We expect you to take care of normal maintenance—the little things like changing filters and wiper blades (unless, of course, they're defective, then they come under the warranty).

Q. What about labor?
A. Nothing. If Chrysler Corporation put that part on your car, it's covered. Parts and labor. And that goes for everything except tires, which are covered separately by their manufacturer.

Q. So your Chrysler Plymouth or Dodge dealer. Ask him about his new cars, then ask him about "The Clincher!"

TWO-WAY STREET — Politically minded motorists can take their choice as they glean the messages from this double billboard at S. Springfield and Mountain avenues. The candidates posted are Democrats Ed Fanning and Stan Bruder and Republicans Norman Banner and Bill Ruocco. Neither sign, incidentally, carries a party label. (Photo-Graphics)

Administrator would give township greater efficiency, economy -- LWV

Appointment of a township administrator to improve both the economy and efficiency of local municipal government was strongly urged by Leslie Zuckler, president of the Springfield League of Women Voters, in a statement presented to the Township Committee at its meeting Tuesday night at Town Hall.

Although the League has concluded that our present form of government is well suited to our local needs as any other form of government would be, we do feel that there are certain weaknesses inherent in our system. These, of course, are to be expected in a governmental structure originally intended for a rural community that in a mere 25 years has grown from 7,000 to 17,000 citizens.

Two-town police effort nabs suspect in 20 break-entries

Springfield police said his arrest is believed to have cleared up four burglaries in Millis and eight in Springfield last week on Wednesday among others. Police charged that Fiero spread on foot and took only money and jewelry which he could hide in his pockets.

CONCLUSIONS RECOMMENDATIONS
The League of Women Voters urges the Township Committee to consider the hiring of a full-time professional business administrator. By so doing, the committee would be able to concentrate their efforts on setting township policy while retaining ultimate authority as the administrator would serve all of their pleasure.
