

Newest Kean College facility named in honor of 37-year faculty member

Kean College of New Jersey's newest academic building—housing classrooms, faculty offices, laboratory and student services—has been named in honor of a 37-year faculty member.

The building, which is the largest and most modern of the college's buildings, is located on the campus in Trenton, N.J. It was dedicated on Tuesday, April 2, 1975.

The building is named in honor of Dr. Herbert H. Golub, who has been a faculty member at Kean College since 1938. Dr. Golub is a distinguished educator and a leader in the field of electronics and electrical engineering.

The building is a three-story structure with a total area of approximately 100,000 square feet. It features modern classrooms, laboratories, and offices. The building is designed to provide a conducive learning environment for students and faculty alike.

Dr. Golub's contributions to the college and the field of electronics are highly regarded. He has been a mentor to many students and has played a significant role in the development of the college's academic programs.

Kean concert features Golub as piano soloist

Herbert Golub, chairman of the music department at Kean College, will be the soloist in a concert to be held at the college on Tuesday, April 8, at 8 p.m.

The concert will feature a variety of musical pieces, including works by Beethoven, Chopin, and Liszt. Dr. Golub will be accompanied by the Kean College Orchestra, which is led by conductor Joseph P. ...

The concert is open to the public and tickets are available for purchase. The proceeds from the concert will be used to support the music department's activities.

Supernatural chants

Many Hebraic chants have been preserved and are being performed at the Kean College Yachit Center and served as a source of inspiration for the college's students.

The chants are believed to have been passed down through generations and are considered to be a form of spiritual communication. They are often performed during religious services and other special occasions.

Safeguards are urged for buyers

Bruder praises work of township attorney

By ABNEH GOLD

Township attorney Joseph Bruder Tuesday night called for safeguards for buyers of condominiums, particularly in the area of apartment development.

Bruder, who is vice-president of the Springfield Township Association and president of the 'Town Village'—local organization proposed an ordinance to protect buyers of condominiums in buildings other than those in which the owner lives.

He did not mention efforts launched by local landlords to convert their developments into condominiums. A number of tenants have received notice that their leases will not be renewed because of the condominium plans. Tenant advocates denounced the plan as a ploy to increase rents. They have strongly urged the township to take action.

Bruder also commented on the past. He said that the township had been slow to act on the issue. He said that the township should have been more proactive in the past.

He said that the township should take action to protect the interests of its residents.

A shot against cancer?

One day the scariest thing about cancer may be the needle that makes you immune to it.

The theory: build up the body's defense to fight off a disease naturally.

Dramatic research in this direction is going on right now.

Scientists are working on mechanisms to make the body reject cancer.

And the promise for the future is staggering.

Wouldn't you feel good knowing you contributed to the research?

Feel good.

Please contribute. Your dollars will help further all our cancer research.

We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime.

Dear Larrie:

There seems to be an enormous amount of products being advertised as "made by the blind." How would it know if these products are really made by these handicapped people? My friend told me that only a small percentage of the work performed is done by the blind employees. If this is so, these companies should be allowed to advertise as they do. What do you know about this?

MATTER OF PRINCIPLE

Dear Larrie:

There is a law in many states concerning the use of this claim in advertising. As of Sept. 1, 1973, companies are prohibited by law from making this claim unless blind employees comprise at least 75 percent of their work force. All firms making the claim must also be registered with the Commission for the Visually Handicapped after Sept. 1, 1975. After Dec. 31, 1976, all firms claiming to sell products made by the blind must be prepared to submit documentation or request to the Commission for the Visually Handicapped.

Larrie Farrell, Better Business Bureau

Dear Larrie:

My TV needs to be repaired but I've been unable to have this work performed because I don't have the money. I saw an ad for a repair service which advertised that they would fix a TV for just $1 plus parts. Can this be possible?

LOW ON CASH

Dear Larrie:

Some service shops have been known to advertise that they will fix your TV for $1 plus parts. Since they obviously cannot afford to raise their labor without a big cut, they will advertise the price for the parts to cover the labor costs. Do not be deceived by this kind of advertising.

Larrie Farrell, Better Business Bureau

Dear Larrie:

In the owner of a plumbing company and I contacted a particular fuel oil corporation for a two-on-one oil burner. I advised the company that I signed all contracts before coming to repair. A salesman examined the burner and selected repairs would total $200 with an additional $10 for the service charge. I paid the service charge and waited the return of the serviceman to make repairs. Days passed and I called the company with regard to the date for service and was told that because I didn't purchase from their firm, they couldn't service my burner. I contacted the company and they have informed me that they should have checked their records to determine beforehand that you did not qualify for service because you were not a regular customer.

We were informed that you should be receiving shortly the return of the $15 service charge.

Know Your Government

As is usually the case the week after a school vacation, things are quiet in returning to school. For a number of teachers and students were surprised when they drove into the parking lot Monday morning.

The situation is probably not unlike that of many schools in the area. The problem wouldn't have been noticed if some people had exercised some common sense, but that was not the case.

The school is a relatively quiet place. It is not a place where you would expect to see a lot of activity. It is a place where you would expect to see a lot of quiet.
