Weltchek to serve as mayor during 1976

SING OUT THE NEWS—Youngsters of the Springfield First Presbyterian Church Nursery School raise their voices in a Christmas tribute, with Mrs. Sherry Schromm as the hostess. (Photo-Graphics)

Top posts to Fanning and Bohrod Rajoppi to be named town's deputy mayor

Township Committeeman Robert Weltchek will serve as mayor during the coming year, according to a reliable source. Other key appointments when local Democrats take over the control of Town Hall at the organization meeting on New Year's Day will include Edward Fanning as township attorney and William Bohrod as assessor. Fanning was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the governing body in 1974.

Weltchek, who served a previous term as mayor in 1972, is one of the five committee members, all with equal authority. He is scheduled to be named by his colleagues as presiding officer, with the largely honorary title of mayor. Weltchek will also head the department of public safety, with authority over the police and fire departments and the civil defense program, as well as the Local Assessment Board.

Joanne Rajoppi, newly elected Democratic member, will be named deputy mayor and administrator of public affairs. She will have jurisdiction over parks and public property, recreation, the municipal swimming pool, the local assessment program, and the health department.

Kat Stokes, a Democrat who has been mayor for the past two years, will be named deputy town clerk, in charge of the township clerk, personnel, licenses, offices, sanitation (as it applies to refuse collection) and the township attorney.

The departments of finance and public works have been assigned to the two Republican members—William Flusca and William Flusca, who are scheduled, as to which member will take which assignment.

Finance includes real estate, budget control, town treasurer, tax collector, assessment of taxes, permits and purchasing. Public works covers roads, the engineering department, utilities and the building department.

MEMBERS of the new administration were reported agreed on a number of the other posts to be filled Jan. 1, although some appointments remain undecided. Anthony D'Alesio will be named as township prosecutor.

Charles Payerle will be appointed recreation director to replace James Adams, who has resigned. Payerle, one of four applicants interviewed, has served in recreation programs in Millburn and on Long Island.

Dr. Albert Siegel, president of the Board of Health, will be reappointed to that body, and Harkin Tridibani will be named as a new member.

Louise Dam will be named to the Springfield Public Library board of trustees to complete the unexpired term of Robert Halsey, who has resigned.

John Garry and Marilyn Arvey will be reappointed to the Springfield Environmental Commission, and Ellen Bloom will be reappointed as assessor.

College students surveying township to produce natural resources profile

The recent arrival in Springfield of a husband and wife team, who are conducting an unofficial start of the township's natural resource inventory, will indicate how much of the township's land is still available to absorb water. This data will be one portion of the material to be collected in relation to Springfield's hydrology, which will be a major factor in the inventory.

Dr. Joseph Conessa's geography class, equipped with measuring tapes, pocket computers and maps of Springfield, had come to measure the land surface covered by recent development. (See pictures on page 13.)

Armen, such as Golf oval, Skyline road, Egmont, Estates, Pineview Estates, and several industrial sections on Rt. 22 had small groups of students measuring sidewalks, applying driveways and parking lots.

The results of their measurements, when combined with estimates of land coverage obtained from aerial surveys of Springfield, will indicate how much of the township's land is still available to absorb water. This data will be one portion of the material to be collected in relation to Springfield's hydrology, which will be a major factor in the inventory.

A natural resource inventory is a collection of data on the existing physical and environmental features of a municipality. In the case of Springfield, the local Environmental Commission plans to include data on factors such as topography, hydrology, soils, geology, climate and sites of historic, scenic and cultural value.

The inventory will be presented as a report containing a set of factor maps and a written text relating to them. Each factor, such as hydrology, will be placed on a standard base map of Springfield, an transparent material.

It will be possible to overlay the factor maps to determine the combined effect of all or several factors on the entire community. As an example, it will be possible to overlay the maps of topography, geology, and hydrology to determine which could be critically affected by development.

The net result of the natural resource inventory will be a collection of information which will make it possible to determine limitations to development of environmentally critical areas, to provide basic data for environmental impact statements for proposed developments within Springfield and to provide a basis for evaluating the present zoning policies from the viewpoint of environmentally sound land use.

'Instant access' system Computer aids police work

A computer terminal, utilization of which drastically reduces the amount of time required to obtain information on suspicious persons or motor vehicles, has been installed at the Springfield police headquarters.

The IBM system, put into operation approximately two weeks ago, allows the officer operating it to have instant access to the files of the Springfield Police Department, the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles and the New Jersey State Crime Information System, both in Trenton, the National Crime Information Center in Washington, D.C., and the National Law Enforcement Telecommunications System headquartered in Phoenix, Ariz.

It will allow officers to check the Springfield Police Department's files for information on persons whose licenses were revoked.

'I know that you still exist' Santa and the true believer

Many haven't yet reached the age where knowing Santa Claus turns into making Santa Claus.

She realizes that older children and grown-ups no longer believe in Santa but she KNOWS that he exists. And she told him so in a letter relayed by the Post Office. She wrote:

"Dear Santa, I am starting to be better. My sister doesn't believe in you. Now, I know that you still exist but why don't big people know that too? I would like for Christmas a cute little puppy called Cleopatra in the Sears store on page 477. His number is 10. My sister doesn't believe you exist so can I have a picture of you?"

Other children struggled with the desire to repeat good behavior, justifying presents and the need to tell the truth.

Johnna's letter said, "I have been with that word crossed out tried to be a good girl all year."

Kimberly held out a bright note for the future: "Dear Santa, I am starting to be better."

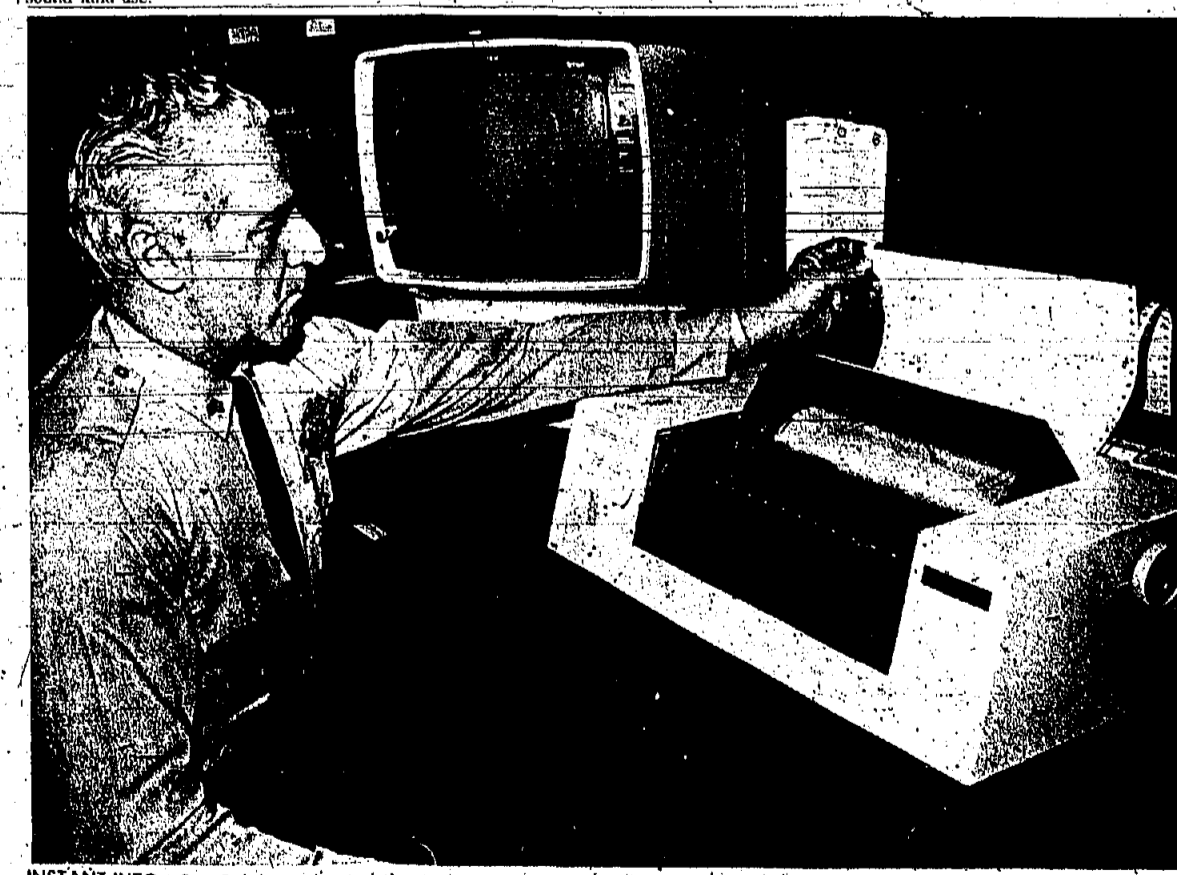

Renewal Jan. 31 for dog licenses

Township Clerk Arthur H. Bucher has reminded township residents that dog licenses must be renewed by Jan. 31.

Bucher said dog licenses are one for one renewal. Licenses are obtainable at the office of the township clerk, Municipal Building, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. State law requires proof of rabies inoculation. The fee for 1976 is $3.50.

The clerk said municipal offices would close at 1 p.m. Christmas Eve and would be open Dec. 29 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Holiday deadline Careful adherence to this newspaper's Friday news deadline is urged for material intended for the Jan. 1 holiday, which will be printed early because of the New Year's holiday. All organizational, social and other news items for the Jan. 1 issue should be submitted by this Friday morning, Dec. 26.

INSTANT INFO—Sgt. Ralph Marucci of the Springfield Police Department checks teletype print-out of computer file on motor vehicle records—information now available to local officers within seconds through use of the new computer terminal installed recently at headquarters. The device, hooked up to state and national files, can tell officers instantly if a vehicle is stolen, if its driver is being sought by other police departments. (Photo-Graphics)

Overlook begins closed-circuit TV with varied uses

Dedication of a $20,000 closed-circuit television system at Overlook Hospital was held with special ceremonies on Dec. 15, honoring the installation as a memorial gift to the late Elizabeth Gay Connell and Judge E. Donald Scarborough. Available to patients free through Channel 6, the closed circuit television will have many uses for overlook patients.

A special "child's corner" has been set up in the hospital lobby where, by special arrangement, children under visiting age can call their relatives by phone. At the same time, the young visitor can be seen by the relative in his or her patient room.

Outside of television TV "visiting hours," Channel 6 will be set with a permanent camera viewing the Overlook Interfaith Chapel altar, where music by Johann Sebastian Bach will be playing. Religious services will also be broadcast over Channel 6, for Christmas as well as regular hospital chapel services held on Saturdays or other holy days.

The closed circuit television system will enable health education programs to be developed for hospital patients, focusing on "preventive" medicine as well as on many "specialized" subjects of benefit to various types of patients such as diabetic management, ostomy care, infant and maternal care and post-operative care.

All these programs will be available free through Channel 6, on the television sets that the Overlook Auxiliary has installed in all patient rooms. Other channels will function on the television system as usual, from which all proceeds are used to purchase new equipment and services for hospital patients.

Exxon clean-up bonds approved by pollution unit

Assemblyman-elect William J. Maguire of Clark, as chairman of the Industrial Pollution Control Authority of Union County participated in a hearing on bonds for the clean-up of environmental problems at its Bayway refinery in Linden. The money will be used to finance a $20 million emission control system for the refinery's exhaust stacks and several other air and water pollution control projects.

This is a plant site to prove that government and industry can work together to solve pollution problems," Maguire said. "I congratulate Exxon for its determination to clean up the Bayway facility and for its cooperation with the authority that led to the bond approval."

Maguire, a former Union County Freeholder, explained that the authority was created to assist energy industries meet anti-pollution standards established by the Environmental Protection Agency. The authority's goal is to clean up the plant as well as the industrial complex receives the cost-sharing benefit of tax-free status for its bonds.

Maguire emphasized there is no commitment of public funds involved in the bonding initiative. "The authority is simply the catalyst to secure the tax-free status of the bonds which are secured by the assets of the industry involved," he said.

Bill passes to limit apartment switch

The rights of tenants will be protected when a bill passed by the Council on Economic Priorities as one of the state's recent priorities. "Obviously, Exxon is doing something about it and I am very proud that this county authority was able to cooperate with Exxon to help clean up our environment," Maguire said.

The bill, which was introduced by Assemblyman-elect William J. Maguire, would limit the number of times a tenant can switch apartments in a year. The bill also would require landlords to provide a written notice of the reasons for a tenant's eviction.

Eternal spring at UC Greenhouse tops class building

It may be winter outside, but in the Union County Greenhouse in Crawford it's always spring. The greenhouse atop the Science Building is green year-round, according to Thomas M. Ombrillo, botany instructor. While snow beats against the glass walls, tropical plants thrive in the artificially created atmosphere of the greenhouse, he notes.

Most of the more than 500 plants, he adds, are tropical plants because they don't need periodic cold to survive. A yam plant laden with yams grows along the ceiling and small tomato plants are crowded on the 30-foot long walk surface that dominates the center of the greenhouse.

"The majority of plants," stated Ombrillo, "were chosen because they represent the major plant families and are used in botany classes."

Grant approved for rehabilitation of historic home

The New Jersey Historical Commission has approved a grant of $7,424 for rehabilitation of the Plum House, Newark's oldest building. The project will be carried out by volunteer labor supplied by the Newark Construction Trades Training Center, which prepares inner-city residents for careers in the building trades.

The Plum House, built as a farmhouse around 1710, is owned by the House of Prayer Episcopal Church, which uses it as a rectory. The project is sponsored by the Newark Preservation and Landmarks Committee. The grant was recommended to the Historical Commission by the Newark Historic Sites Committee, headed by Mrs. Frederick Frothingham of Princeton, who also is chairman of the New Jersey Historic Sites Council.

In announcing the grant, former Gov. Robert B. Meyner, chairman of the Historical Commission, said the project ideally meets criteria set by the Commission for disbursing its largest grant funds—local initiative and participation and broad community involvement.

The grant funds will be used entirely for the purchase of materials. The labor—estimated at nearly 2,000 man hours—will be donated by supervisors and trainees of the Newark Construction Trades Training Center.

The Plum House at 107 Broad St. is one of only two existing Newark buildings that were standing at the time of the American Revolution. Washington's retreating army bivouacked by the Plum House in 1776.

A woodland now public Wuester gift to be conserved

Twelve acres of rugged woodland in Ringwood with a series of waterfalls will be conserved as a natural area for the public by the New Jersey Conservation Foundation, it was announced this week.

The land is a gift to the public, through an organization from Dr. William D. Wuester Jr. and his wife, Janet, of Hillsdale, who want the area to remain in its unspoiled condition, free from development.

The Wuesters, founder of the Elizabeth cancer clinic, purchased the property in 1932. It was originally part of a farm owned by the Stevens family as far back as 1820.

As a child living in Pompton Lakes, Dr. Wuester used to ride his bicycle some 10 miles north to the area and explore all the hills and gorges on foot. Since buying the land, he has enjoyed fishing for trout in the West Brook which borders "a very pretty stream," he declares and examining its "lovely wooded terraces which include hemlock gorge and other trees typical of New Jersey hardwood forests."

West Brook flows into the Wanaque reservoir, which supplies more than 100 million gallons of water daily to municipalities in Essex, Passaic and Hudson counties. Dr. Wuester recalls working on the dam for the reservoir during vacation from college.

Vestiges of an old iron mining operation remain on the tract, and it is traversed by the Hewitt-Hunter Trail, a 10-mile-long hiking trail.

The gift is being accepted by the New Jersey Conservation Foundation, a non-profit organization which was established in 1972.

'Unconference' aids in education on environment

In a two-part attack, the New Jersey Education Association is carrying its fight against the energy crisis into the public-school classrooms.

NJEA has mailed a kit of teaching materials to every public school in the state. The kit, says a spokeswoman, contains energy and environmental education programs for school children.

In addition, NJEA is offering awards for ideas from teachers on ways to improve environmental education.

"When educators combine their talents on energy and environmental education, they can do more than just teach," NJEA President's letter states. "The result can only mean better programs of learning for students."

NJEA calls its campaign a "statewide environmental education unconference and contest." The goal is to spread good teaching about the environment without tying teachers up in workshops.

The contest entries will be accepted through February 1, 1976.

Learning disabilities chapter opens an office in Glen Ridge

State-wide organization sponsors a Saturday Play Program for children 4-14 at Montclair State College that services almost 50 children. These children enjoy swimming, gym, games, music, arts and crafts, within a framework designed to help them gain social skills. A similar program for teenagers takes place Saturdays at Seton Hall University. In the summer the chapter sponsors a day camp in conjunction with the Morris County Chapter.

Mrs. Werner urges parents wanting further information to call the office at 749-7020 between 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday to Friday.

The association is a non-profit, non-sectarian organization of professionals and parents of learning-disabled children.

Mrs. Werner notes that children with learning disabilities have normal intelligence but have difficulty learning in school. There are varied causes, such as birth defects or unusual brain dysfunction which impair a child's perception of information. "Such problems may evidence themselves in language irregularity, hyperactivity or resistant lack of achievement in school, but the purpose is to help these youngsters become productive, well-educated adults who live normal, fulfilling lives," explained Mrs. Werner. "This can be accomplished through early diagnosis and an integrated program of special education, remediation and counseling."

At present, the files do not include previous criminal records, only outstanding warrants and motor vehicle violations, but arrest records are expected to be added some time in 1976.

Democratizing the device, Cieri typed out a license plate number. Within seconds, the TV screen showed a listing giving a description of the car and the name and address of the person to whom it is registered. Simultaneously, a print-out of the same information was produced.

DISC 'N' DATA
Pick of the LP-S. MURKINS by Miss Peggy Lee (AMM RECORDS, SP-527). The ten selections by Peggy on this her debut album for AMM, comprise the most compelling work she has done in years. With songs that range from child-like whimsy ("A Little White Ship") to aching poignance ("I Remember") and musical settings flowing from ragtime to folk-like balladry, Lee, with stirring displays of her technical finesse and her unerring ability to get to the emotional core of the song.

WHO ARE YOU? growl the startled animals, and who of us is the trespasser? This scene is from The Adventures of the Wilderness Family, now showing at the Five Points Cinema, Union. It is based on a true story of a modern family, and how they survived with their wilderness friends.

DISC 'N' DATA
Pick of the LP-S. MURKINS by Miss Peggy Lee (AMM RECORDS, SP-527). The ten selections by Peggy on this her debut album for AMM, comprise the most compelling work she has done in years. With songs that range from child-like whimsy ("A Little White Ship") to aching poignance ("I Remember") and musical settings flowing from ragtime to folk-like balladry, Lee, with stirring displays of her technical finesse and her unerring ability to get to the emotional core of the song.
