LET'S NOT MOVE BACKWARD!

For over 100 years, New Jersey has had good schools.

Survey after survey shows New Jersey's schools are the best in the country. But the state's schools and teachers are being hindered by the state's outdated laws. Think what this means to the children of New Jersey! It means that our schools are not getting the best equipment and planning to do less and less for the children.

Instead, some school boards lay off teachers, cut programs, and quit their courses and planning to do less and less for the children. Now let's change that! Let's restore school programs. Let's restore school programs. Let's restore school programs.

Make sure New Jersey stays first in the nation. Make sure your State Senator agrees.

He said she was looking to the right and walked into the side of the bus as he cut the steering wheel to the left in an attempt to avoid hitting her.

General Matthias Ogden, a Revolutionary War hero, is the subject of a play at the Elizabethan Theatre.

Did You Know

That Aaron Burr, Matthias Ogden's keyhand companion, classmates and business comrade, was defeated when he ran for governor of New York because of Alexander Hamilton's control of the Federalist vote in that state. Letters written by Hamilton in which he labeled Burr "a dangerous man" and one of whom he entertained "a still more dispicable opinion" led to a duel between the two men in which Hamilton was mortally wounded.

GENERAL MATTHIAS OGDEN Elizabethan Theatre

During the Revolution there was no more portable or durable rifle than the flintlock. At the age of 21 he left Elizabethtown and, with his close friend, Aaron Burr, proceeded to Boston to join the "army of freedom" of the cause in their fight against the British.

Shortly after they arrived in Cambridge, Massachusetts, they were ordered to volunteer to assemble a hazardous march through the Mohawk wilderness in order to capture King George's army in Canada. Both Ogden and Burr refused the hazardous assignment, a captain in a regiment of Grenadiers under Lieutenant Colonel Ogden.

When the Canadian Campaign was over and the defeated American Army was being evacuated, Ogden married Hannah Dayton, daughter of General John Dayton. Not long after the marriage Hannah left for England to join her father's army. Ogden was wounded in the battle of Red Bank, the son of Elizabeth Ogden. Mrs. Ogden was also wounded in this battle.
