

Drew, FDU to increase tuition fees

Tuition increases for the 1977-78 academic year were announced this week by Fairleigh Dickinson University and Drew University.

At Drew, tuition for undergraduate and graduate students will be increased by $220 (seven percent) to $3,400. For residents, the combined fee for tuition, board and room will be $4,500, a 5.7 percent increase over the combined charges for the current academic year.

Drew officials said scholarship budgets will grow by an amount commensurate with the rise in student charges.

Fairleigh Dickinson said the undergraduate tuition will increase 6.25 percent, but financial aid will increase 15.71 percent. The actual increase in tuition will be $5 per credit to $85.

Graduate tuition is being increased 7.35 percent, from $100 to $107 per credit. Tuition at the university's dental school will increase from $3,500 to $3,600.

Graduate students will pay about four percent more for their rooms next year, up from $780 to $820.

Dr. Jerome Pollack, president of Fairleigh Dickinson, said the 20,000-student institution expects to complete the current academic year with a balanced budget. Last year the university incurred a $1.7 million deficit; the year before it was $1.5 million.

W. Scott McDonald Jr., vice-president for administration and finance at Drew, said the board of trustees has approved a $11.6 million balanced budget for 1977-78. He reported that Drew used a version of zero-base budget technique to fund departments, divisions and programs at the current level, except for inflation which had to be whatever total inflation may take.

Rising economy noted by architect's survey

Architects in New Jersey report an increasingly large amount of commissioned work on their drawing boards, according to a recent survey by the New Jersey Society of Architects, and prospects are good that the state's depressed construction industry will begin to experience an upswing this summer.

This is the conclusion of J. Robert Gilchrist, AIA, of Hackensack, president-elect of the society, who compiled the results of the survey among member firms.

"It is a very encouraging turnaround from the past four years," he said. "In 1973, when construction men soon also will be busy, and the benefits will be felt among materials suppliers in the transportation field and in every industry serving design and construction."

Gilchrist observed that architecture has proved to be a reliable indicator of the state of the economy. For example, on Jan. 1, 1973, the responding firms reported a total construction value of $200 million for approved projects with construction drawings on the boards.

The following year the figure dropped to $173 million, then to $140 million and on Jan. 1, 1976, to a low of $130 million. "In January only," he said, Gilchrist said, "the figure had jumped to an amazing $290 million."

"It is interesting to note that 40 percent of that figure, or $116 million, is in actual work," he said. "This is an unparalleled spurt in this category and indicates that some New Jersey architects, hard hit by the local economy in past years, have gone far afield. Still, fees from foreign work will serve to support and expand New Jersey offices, and much Midwest construction work is being imported from the United States—which will contribute to the well-being of the domestic economy."

Book award nominee will speak March 23
Lawrence L. Langor, a nominee last year for the National Book Award, will speak at the American Book Society's New Jersey Division on Saturday at Keegan College, Union, on Wednesday evening, March 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Browning Room.

Langor, who is professor of English at Simpson College and lecturer in English and fellow of Morse College at Yale, is probably the first critic to devote a major study to exploring the effect of the temperature in the "Literary Imagination."

Safety Council fund campaign begun in state

The New Jersey State Safety Council, formed by business executives 30 years ago, is seeking $700,000 to fund its accident prevention programs for the next three years.

David J. Sherwood, executive vice president, Prudential Insurance Co., who is chairman of the council's statewide fund appeal, announced that Governor Brendan T. Byrne and former Governor William T. Cahill and Robert B. Meyer will serve as honorary chairmen.

Sherwood in accepting the chairmanship of the fund campaign said, "The council has done an outstanding job of making New Jersey one of the safest states in the nation. We are counting on the business community to once again provide the financial support needed to continue the council's work of keeping people alive and preventing injuries."

The chairman said the highway safety work of the council receives national acclaim when recently it was rated as the most active and effective state safety council in the nation.

The council's work includes highway safety, child restraint seats, and promoting pedestrian safety, improve on and off the job safety, and train volunteer and paid firemen throughout the state.

Program to look at N. J. theaters

The heads of three theaters in New Jersey will discuss the state of the theater with New Jersey Public Television critic, Ellen Wosler, Thursday, March 24, at 8 p.m., "Setting the Stage in New Jersey" will discuss the theater's problems and potential.

Eric Krebs of New Brunswick's George Street Theater, regional leader, and Broadway theater are distinctly different animals. Set in a renovated warehouse, in downtown New Brunswick, George Street Theater is noted for its experimental, imaginative, and creative theater.

Alluding to the energy crisis, Angelo Del Real of the Princeton Mill Playhouse said, "Even though we kept our thermostat at 55 degrees, our audience during this very bad winter... Known as the 'Plate Theater' of New Jersey, this Princeton Mill Playhouse features popular and accepted works with nationally prominent stars.

The special report will include film segments of current productions at all three theaters.

Center given accreditation

The Rehabilitation Center for speech and hearing, located at St. Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston, has been granted accreditation of its speech pathology and audiology services by the American Speech and Hearing Association.

According to Dr. Robby Matler, medical director of the department, fewer than 300 of the more than 1500 clinics and centers located throughout the country have been accredited to provide speech and hearing services.

All 5 candidates support school budget

Board candidates respond to queries

The Springfield Leader asked the five candidates for the Township Board of Education—Joseph Afflitto, Dr. Raymond A. Constantian, Philip Feintuch, Paul Potito, and John Westerfield—16 submit answers to the following questions:

How do you feel about the possible closing of one elementary school during the 1978-79 year? Which school?

What aspects of the local educational program most deserve support?

What aspects most need change or improvement?

Is the board sufficiently responsive to the people? What changes do you recommend in this area?

If you are elected, what problems and proposals will receive your top priority?

The candidates' responses are printed below.

Feintuch: I support passage of the proposed 1977-78 local school budget. In a time when costs, specifically costs for education, are feverishly accelerating, the local Board of Education actually reduced the amount of money to be raised by local taxation for the coming school year. I am a part of that board and am very proud to have had a hand in that result.

Constantian: I would be inclined to vote for the passage of the proposed 1977-78 local school budget. There could be parts of it that I may object to. However, it is difficult for me to assess specific items since I have not had the opportunity to study it in detail.

Afflitto: I would like more time to study the 1977-78 local school budget, but I do feel that more of the surplus should have been allocated to this budget to reduce the burden on our local taxpayers. Also, since three experienced members of our present board voted against passage, there must be room for improvement.

Westerfield: I am in support of the passage of the proposed 1977-78 local school budget. The budget has been decreased by close to $50,000 without sacrificing needed services to our student population. I wholeheartedly support a budget that can reduce costs while maintaining current levels of programming.

Potito: I am in support of the passage of the proposed 1977-78 local school budget. The budget has been decreased by close to $50,000 without sacrificing needed services to our student population. I wholeheartedly support a budget that can reduce costs while maintaining current levels of programming.

Board seat to Hough; Regional tab okayed

The Union County Regional High School current expense budget swept to victory on Tuesday by a margin of 1,638 to 446, carrying five of the six municipalities within the district and tying in the other.

Margaret D. Hough was elected to a three-year term in the Board of Education from Springfield. Mrs. Hough defeated Marjorie Grossbarth by 238 votes to 175. Mrs. Hough won the election in the district voting school, Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, where she led 114 to 19. Votes at the Edward Wallon School were 66 for Grossbarth and 28 for Hough. At the Florence Gaudinier School, 84 for Grossbarth and 79 for Hough. Absentee ballots were 4 for Grossbarth and 7 for Hough.

Two incumbent board members were reelected. Roland F. Hacker defeated Alfred M. D'Emilio in Clark, 344 to 186. Virginia R. Muskus of Clark won with 217 votes to 2 for John Karanus, a write-in candidate.

The number of voters taking part in the election was approximately 1,200. The voters approved the district's 42,424 registered voters. Board members described the low turnout to the daylong rally.

The budget victory reversed a trend after defeats the past two years, the only ones in the district's 49-year history. The budget was passed by 1,632 votes to 2,121, in 1975 by 770 to 721, and in 1973 by 622 to 44.

Charles Vitale of Kenilworth, board president, said the virtually total sweep had been achieved by "getting the board members to understand and work for the goal of a unified single school system."

The Springfield Youth Council will present its first concert of the season tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the Raymond Chisholm School, Springfield Avenue and Shungula road.

Lecture 'looms' at local library

Members of the Associated Handweavers of New Jersey will demonstrate their craft in the meeting room of the Springfield Public Library from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Working on different kinds of looms, they will explain how various effects are achieved. Under supervision of demonstrators, spectators will be permitted to try their hands at floor looms, inkle looms, tapestry looms and Indian finger weaving.

This is the third and final demonstration in the series offered at the library in conjunction with its March exhibition of pottery and handwoven materials.

Blood bank will be held

The community bloodmobile will be at Temple Shalom, 5 Springfield Avenue, Springfield, today to obtain blood donations between 1:30 and 6:30.

All healthy adults, 17-68 years old, may give blood; 17- and 18-year-olds, however, need written parental consent before they may donate blood. Donors may eat their regular meals, but they should not eat fatty foods or drink alcohol before visiting the bloodmobile.

According to Sue Kalem, blood program chairman, although appointments have already been made, "those who were unable to make one may come without one. We shall be happy to see anyone who wishes to donate blood."

Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Kalem at 518-8382.

Town defers action on salary ordinance

The Springfield Township Committee Tuesday night deferred action on the 1977 salary ordinance for municipal employees which had been scheduled for final passage.

Committee members told the nine members of the audience that the ordinance had been scheduled for final passage because of errors in implementing an agreement with town employees calling for an average pay increase of 3.6 percent.

Before the governing body could act, however, Jim Adams, former recreation director, presented several objections to the ordinance.

Adams commented that the director, in his second year, would receive more than the former director received after 10 years — with an increase larger than that being voted for at least a dozen year-round employees.

At the same time, he said, no increase at all was scheduled for the local teenagers who serve as hourly workers at the pool, as lifeguards, snack bar attendants and in similar jobs.

Editorial comment 'Yes' vote is vital

The Springfield Board of Education election on Tuesday will present local voters, we believe, with one very clear decision and one which is quite difficult.

The clear choice is to support the school board's proposed budget for the 1977-78 school year, calling for $2,658,583. This figure represents a drop of nearly $50,000 from the current figure.

Certainly Springfield spends a little more than other communities for its schools. We are offering a child small enough so that every child can be considered as an individual by encouraging our teachers to teach as professionals and as individuals—by doing all our things every chance to develop to the very limit of their capabilities.

We acknowledge that there are always steps the board would like to take to save money beyond those already taken to trim the fat from the budget, but we are convinced that any further economies will be detrimental.

An affirmative vote on Tuesday is the best way to protect our community—and, for anyone who thinks about it, our property values.

The more difficult decision concerns the five candidates seeking election to three seats on the board. All five have evidenced sincerity and dedication to our children's welfare.

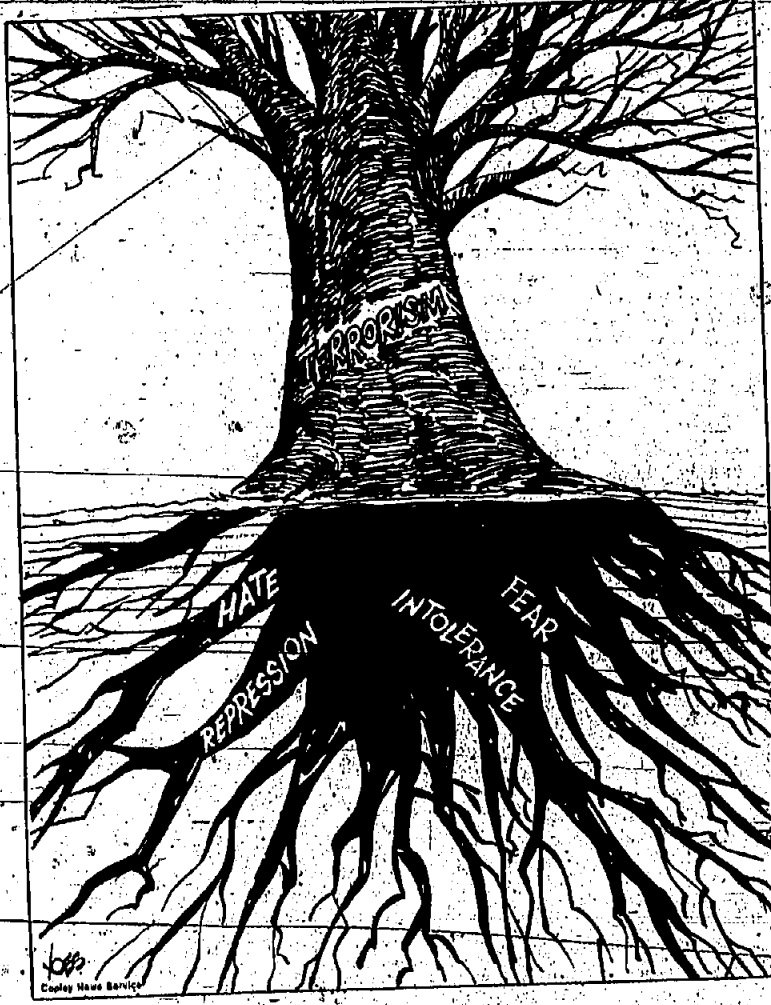

We support Philip Feintuch, Paul Pottio and John Westerfield. Feintuch, appointed to the board last summer to fill a vacancy, has shown himself to be an articulate proponent of excellence in education. His experience as an attorney in educational affairs is of great value to the board. His election to a full term looks to us like an imperative.

Pottio is a young man with a rich background in teaching and administration. He would fit in well on a board already dedicated to nothing less than excellence.

Westerfield has a long record of service to our children as a parent volunteer. He would bring that same enthusiasm and devotion to the same task as a member of the governing body.

We also feel that either of the other candidates, Joseph Affitto or Dr. Raymond Donato, would be a satisfactory board member—although we disagree with their generally conservative approach to the problems of local education.

While we have great respect for their views and while we feel they speak for a segment of the community which should have representation on the board, we have too many doubts about the ultimate results of their proposals to be able to offer an endorsement.

TRIBUTE TO TAIWAN
"The Man Who Lost China," by Brian Crozier, previously published by the Chinese Communist Party.

In 1923, Chiang Kai-Shek, previously a penniless jobber on the stock exchange, was sent to Moscow as Sun Yat-sen's emissary. He returned with an ineradicable hatred of communism and a plan to break the local power of the Chinese Communists with the financial assistance of his friends, the Kuomintang.

Gradually, with understanding, patience and love, Chiang began to emerge as a cooperative, warm, loving father figure to his people. He was a man of letters, a scholar, a statesman, a patriot, a leader, a hero, a saint, a god.

Chiang's life and his revolutionary activities leading to the 1927 coup (his final break with the Kuomintang) are the subject of this book. It is a masterpiece of historical writing.

MORAL CHOICES IN CONTEMPORARY SOCIETY Law and Morality

Editor's Note: This is the eighth of 16 articles in the series, "Moral Choices in Contemporary Society," published in the "Roots" section of the Leader. The author, Lon L. Fuller, is a professor of law at Harvard Law School. The article discusses the relationship between law and morality in a contemporary society.

By LON L. FULLER
Law and morality vary in degrees, regulate human interaction in society, sometimes reinforcing one another, at other times imposing contradictory obligations. There are also many laws that have little to do with the larger issues of moral conduct, such as securing justice, equality or social order. These laws are, rather, pragmatic regulations for facilitating or making possible orderly behavior by individuals.

withdraw the originally proposed ordinance and defer any action until the April 12 meeting.

Major Joseph noted that he had attended the opening Sunday of the town's new Sixty-Plus Information and Referral Service. The office was open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings at the Sarah Bailey Civic Center to advise senior citizens on where they can obtain help with a wide variety of financial, medical and other problems.

Marla Forman, chairman of the Springfield Environmental Commission, asked the board to make town-owned land on Hillside Avenue available to local residents for use as vegetable gardens. She said many people have gardens which are too shady for gardening, and others are apartment tenants.

Candidates debate

education my son received in the local schools."

Noting that "children are our greatest natural resource," Feintuch said, "Springfield has been fortunate in its school administrators, teachers and board of education over the years. I want to continue that tradition."

He stressed the need to maintain local standards and autonomy in the face of state efforts to standardize school implementation of the "Thorough and Efficient" education clause in the State Constitution.

Pottio said he seeks election to help educate our two young children and because of his professional interest as a teacher and school administrator. Criticizing the "flood of paperwork" stemming from 725 regulations, he said for a "moratorium on regulations until educators have time to study the problems."

Stated that he opposes the closing of any elementary school in the immediate future because of declining enrollment, he said he recently visited all the schools and was impressed with the enthusiasm I saw. There was no empty classroom space. Pottio declared, "I am proud to have my children in the local school system."

Westerfield said he would be receptive to meeting all community needs. He commented, "I am sure that with a situation where education is no longer a top national priority, we must recognize that children need discipline in the schools."

Pottio stated, "I am concerned about the citizens of Springfield. We have a sunshine law to make board decisions more open to the public, but so few come to our meetings. We don't always know what's on your mind."

Pottio reviewed his qualifications to serve. "I would be open-minded. I am a professional educator. I am an idealist. I'd like to help maintain this fine school system and make it even better."

Westerfield declared, "I want to keep the lines of communication open between the board and the public. And, again, I support passage of the budget."

dividual system in our system.

"Again, not having seen a board member, it is unfair to comment upon a system that I have not yet had the opportunity to examine closely. I feel, however, that the school system is not general must be more responsive to the local academic, social and emotional needs of students."

"I feel that the board is sufficiently responsive to the people. The current makeup of the board and the candidates seeking board membership are a cross-section of the community, reflecting various community concerns. The effect of the Sunshine Law has made it possible for concerned citizens to attend board proceedings, allowing the public to witness and be involved in the decision-making process of the local board."

"I elected, I will examine fully and respond to all problems and proposals submitted by the board. I will be a generalist, reflecting the broad range of interests of our citizens."

"I am glad to start a savings account. What is the best kind of interest to receive?"

"The day of deposit-day or withdrawal method of calculating or computing interest is the most beneficial to you. Every day you get a percent interest for every day it's actually in the account. Even if it's advertised rate of interest. It's identical what you actually receive may vary from bank to bank because of the method the bank uses to compute the interest."

"I should also check the frequency of compounding the interest. The more often it does, the greater your earnings."

"1974, an American Bankers Association survey indicated that 40 percent of the nation's banks were compounding interest quarterly and 25 percent daily."

"I recently bought some stock. I did not want it put at the brokerage house, so I had it delivered. I thought about a safe deposit box, but didn't want to spend the money. What should I do?"

"You certainly should not keep your stocks in anything less than a safe deposit box. It would cost you a great deal of money to replace your stock certificate if you should lose it. Safe deposit boxes are rare, probably many times less than the chance of an individual losing a valuable item."

"I have never had a safe deposit box, but I've inherited some valuable items that I don't want to keep in my home. Do you have any suggestions for me?"

"Yes, a list that was published by the American Bankers Association includes the following suggestions: 1. Do not put money in a safe deposit box. 2. Keep an accurate inventory, both in a separate place from all the items which you decide to store. 3. Read your lease contract before storing any items in your box and follow bank procedures regarding access to the safe deposit vault. The bank keeps no record of what is stored in your box and allows access to anyone except the renter. No matter how safe the safe deposit box is, it is still advisable to have insurance."

Veterans to get more medical care benefits

The Veterans Administration this month is telling 400,000 disabled veterans they have potential eligibility for increased medical care from the VA as a result of recent legislation. The expanded benefits were included in the Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1976. Included in the new law was extension of outpatient care for treatment of any medical condition to veterans with 50 percent or more service-connected disabilities. Previously, outpatient treatment for any condition was limited to veterans with service disabilities rated at 80 percent or higher.

Testifying in one's own defense Study says jury could react negatively

What happens during a trial when a defendant testifies in his or her own behalf? According to two psychologists from Dartmouth College, the jury probably will react negatively towards a defendant, even a credible one, who offers mitigating or favorable testimony in the courtroom. The jurors may suspect the defendant "is either lying or attempting to manipulate them." Drs. Arthur Frankel and William N. Morris have conducted several studies on the impact of defendants' testimony on verdicts and penalties. In a 1975 study, the researchers found, much to their surprise, that "college students who role-played jurors in a case of plagiarism penalized a defendant more harshly when he or she provided testimony citing extenuating circumstances." In a second, two-part study, the psychologists elaborated on their earlier experiment by introducing the impact of defendants' testimony on the credibility of defendants. They found that when the same testimony was offered by either a defendant or a third party, the defendants received lighter penalties in the cases where a third party provided the mitigating information.

Little Theatre offers variety of programs

Since its reopening in February following renovations, the Little Theatre at Kean College in Union has presented a wide variety of student-sponsored programs. Dance, drama, film and political debate have shared the stage. Funds for the facilitating were appropriated by the Student Organization in The Little Theatre Group's July of last year and work began in November. The total cost for the renovations reached by $38,000, with the most expensive item the replacement of the folding chairs with permanent theatre seating for 225 people. Additional work was done to improve the lighting and sound systems, to replace the curtains and flooring for the stage, and to purchase new projection equipment.
