with the finest shops of similar nature in the state. The collection of all these stores at the Center would certainly be the equivalent of a major department store.

We have stationery stores and banks, mens shops and German butchers, women's figure salons and finance companies, jewelers and shoemakers, fur salon and tobacco shop, bridal salon and hearing aid store, children shop and movie theatre, drug stores and picture framing shop, Chinese restaurants and—reputable—shops, women's shops and barber shops, Italian butchers and interior decorators, orthodontists and candy shops, cocktail lounges and lawyers, supermarket and sewing machine store, weight control clinic and restaurants, book stores and camera stores, cosmetic studio and health stores, 5c & 10c store and office machines, army-navy store and uniform shop, liquor store and furniture store, Italian bakery and record shop, shoe stores and podiatrist, gift shops and optician, carpet store and picture framing store, karate school and I.B.M. school, wig parlor and pizza parlor. The only thing we don't have is a candlestick maker but we do have a number of stores that sell candlesticks.

If commercialism is not your desire we have churches and a synagogue within two blocks of the Center. We have a magnificent library situated in a park-like setting. If you want to leave the center we have a central taxi stand located in our bus terminal building complete with waiting and courtesy rooms. We have the Town Hall plus all of its politicians. We have a "Festival On The Green" every September which is wonderful and we have well lit streets, properly maintained and lined with blossoming fruit trees. These esthetic qualities of Union Center did not develop overnight but it is in reality an evolutionary perseverance on the part of all persons connected with the Center. The merchants, the consumers, the political leadership, store employees, office workers, municipal employees and all the community leadership that recognize the mutual responsibility to keep the Center a viable entity. The Center is a reflection of the community at large and the direction it wishes to go. It is a mirror image that it desires to reflect.

Most of the merchants especially the "long termers" recognize their responsibility to the Center in particular and the township in general. This responsibility involves not only maintaining a constant image that appeals to potential customers for continued growth and success but in the broader scope it involves an intangible but real image of personal character, integrity, personality and dependability. We have tried as merchants to achieve these intangible but real assets, and for the most part we hope we have succeeded. The retail longevity and the customer loyalty of Union Center may be the prime beneficiary of our daily attempt to demonstrate our responsibility to our customer and our community.

Center has answers 5 years of adult classes

By BARBARA WALCOFF

Do you know someone who cannot comprehend or would have trouble reading this article?

If you do and that person has the desire to change, the Union County Regional Adult Learning Center wants to offer some free help.

The Adult Learning Center, now in its fifth year, has enjoyed a high degree of success with the many adults who seek help in basic education. The director of the center, Harriet Diamond, attributes much of the credit to the dedicated teachers and the individualized programming.

The free programs offered by the center include adult basic education (reading, writing, spelling and basic mathematics), high school completion (General Educational Development test), adult high school option and English as a second language. The high school completion program prepares students to take the GED test while the adult high school option allows students to earn their diplomas without the test. This is done through classes where credits accumulated for work completed, life experience, on-the-job training, community services and more.

The center, located at the David Brantley Regional High School in Kentonville, will open its doors to anyone who wishes to enter any of the programs. Hours for the learning center are Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday, from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., from September to June.

"The Adult Learning Center," Diamond said, "is not a classroom program." Rather than offering a ten or 15-week course to students, the center allows enrollment on a continuing basis and places people in programs of study which cater to each individual's needs.

"There are so many adults who need these basic skills and each one thinks he is the only one," the director said. According to a summary of educational attainment of adults 25 or older, Union County has 85 percent of its adults listed as non-high school graduates. That adds up to 138,788 county residents who are without diplomas.

THROUGH TRAINING in the adult center, many people who did not think it possible have earned their high school equivalency diplomas. A random study made by the Union College Testing Center showed that out of the students who studied at the Adult Learning Center, 100 percent passed the test. Diamond said that in the past, records showed the center also had a 100 percent success rate with students attempting the GED.

"Generally we can tell when students are ready and willing to learn and we generally make it," she added.

Adults seeking their high school diploma may opt for the more structured atmosphere in the adult high school program. In this program, students attend classes and receive credit for past experience and work currently being done in the adult school.

It was this structured type of classroom which originally put the idea of the adult center into Diamond's head. Harry Linton, the Regional District director of Adult Continuing and Community Education, helped Diamond develop the idea of a more flexible program and put it into action.

The center opened in 1975 with four teachers who worked two nights per week teaching adult basic education. English as a second language and high school equivalency. The program has grown to 12 teachers and two aides. This increase has allowed the center to offer the summer school program, evening classes, and a variety of other services.

The growth of the center has not been restricted to numbers. The teachers, who Diamond said "are here to help

Local K-8 school boards weigh unification options

Area-wide education officials generally agreed last week the state will set the initiative unless local school districts develop their own recommendations about merging school systems in the wake of declining pupil enrollment.

"Unless we look at these issues together, we're going to have someone from the state looking at them for us after we've lost our chance to determine the scope and direction of such a study," said Bob Taber, president of the Board of Education for the Berkeley Heights kindergarten through eighth-grade (K-8) system.

Taber's prediction set the general tone at an informal meeting of K-8 Board of Education representatives from Kentonville, Clark, Garwood and Berkeley Heights. The superintendent of a sixth K-8 district, Dr. Levin Hanigan of Mountainside, sent a message expressing continuing interest in a school-consolidation study.

The informal discussion group, called the Constituents Boards Committee, met Sept. 27 at Lincoln School in Garwood under auspices of the Union County Regional High School District.

The Springfield, Mountainside, Kentonville, Berkeley Heights, Clark and Garwood K-8 systems operate independently—each with a separate Board of Education, administration and property-tax rate covering only one community. But the six communities are all geographically part of the Regional High School District, which also has a separate board, administration and tax rate.

As an informal group, the Regional District Constituents Boards Committee has no legal powers and takes no official votes. But the representatives last week obviously agreed, without any formal vote, that Taber is correct in predicting the state will soon be pushing school consolidation.

"If not this year, then next year," commented John Kish, superintendent (Continued on page 5)

Blood drive donations sought in Springfield

Springfield's second and final community blood drive of 1978 will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 28, in St. James Church.

Sue Kalem, blood program chairman, and Helen Slickle, co-chairman, issued their semi-annual appeal for blood donations from healthy adults 18 to 68. They said 17-year-olds may give blood with written parental consent.

Mrs. Slickle will be in charge of the Oct. 28 blood drive. She said members of an established donor group should contact their own organization's blood non-affiliated prospective donors should contact her, 688-2742, or Mrs. Kalem, 376-0882, to make individual appointments or to get information about forming a new donor group.

The community blood program is jointly sponsored by donor groups from St. James Church, Temple Beth Ahm, Presbyterian Church, Lions Club, Saks Fifth Avenue, employees, REGM Foundation, Balthasar Golf Club employees, Springfield municipal employees, PTAs of the township public schools and the staff and parent-teacher association of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, all in Springfield. The staff of Gov. Livingston Regional High School, Berkeley Heights, also cooperates as a donor group.

Although fresh, whole blood can be stored only three weeks, Kalem and Slickle explained, donors earn credits "good for an entire year. She said credits may be "expended" to replace blood needed by a donor or someone whom the donor designates. "Group donations have an advantage over individual donations," Kalem noted, "since the resources of the whole group will be available when someone in the group needs blood."

Sites rotate for the community program, "conducted in cooperation with a bloodmobile team from the North Jersey Blood Center in West Orange, which supplies blood for surgery and other medical needs in the area including Springfield."

While health professionals conduct the actual blood drawing, non-professional volunteers serve as registrars, hosts and hostesses.

"Those willing to do these things, but unable to give blood themselves, are urged to consider working as volunteer helpers," according to Slickle, who said that many telephone calls are received.

Slickle and Kalem said they also will take calls from any Springfield resident in need of blood credits. They said some of the donor groups have earned surplus credits in the past 11 months and are "willing" to give them to non-members within the next month.

Seton chief to speak at testimonial

John S. Moore, president of the Lions Club of Springfield, announced this week that Dr. Robert T. Conley, president of Seton Hall University, will be the principal speaker at the citizenship award dinner honoring Anne Romano, principal of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, the award will be presented at a dinner to be held Oct. 19 at L'Affaire on Rt. 22, Mountainside. Tickets are available at $21.50 per person.

Dr. Conley is a native of Springfield and is a graduate of Dayton Regional, Class of 1965. He graduated from Seton Hall in 1963 and subsequently received

DR. ROBERT T. CONLEY, a master's degree and a doctorate in chemistry from Princeton University. Dr. Conley, the 15th president of Seton Hall, is the first layman to hold that position in the school's 121-year history. Dr. Conley assumed his duties as president at Seton Hall after serving as vice-president of Wright State University, Dayton, Ohio. He had been on the faculty of Wright State since 1967. He also served on the faculties of Episcopal Theological Seminary, Washington and Seton Hall. He is the author of five books and more than 75 scientific articles.

Lecture to present money-saving ideas

Donna Paterek, home economist for the Union County Extension Service, will present the first of three lectures, "Saving Ways at the Supermarket," tomorrow from 1:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the Springfield Public Library. These programs, designed to help consumers get the most for their money, are free and open to the public.

Pumpkin sale slated Oct. 21

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Swanson of Mountainside, co-chairmen of the annual Pumpkin sale sponsored by the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School Choral Parents Society will be conducted on Saturday, Oct. 21.

Students of the Vocal Music Department will sell the pumpkins door-to-door in Springfield and Mountainside. Proceeds will benefit retreat weekends, concert tours, scholarships and summer vocal training scholarships.

Dates selected for next week's paper pick-ups

The best collection of newspaper and magazines will be held Monday in the area south of Shunpike and Milltown road and Tuesday in the rest of town, according to Joyce Garry, chairperson of the Springfield Environmental Orientation.

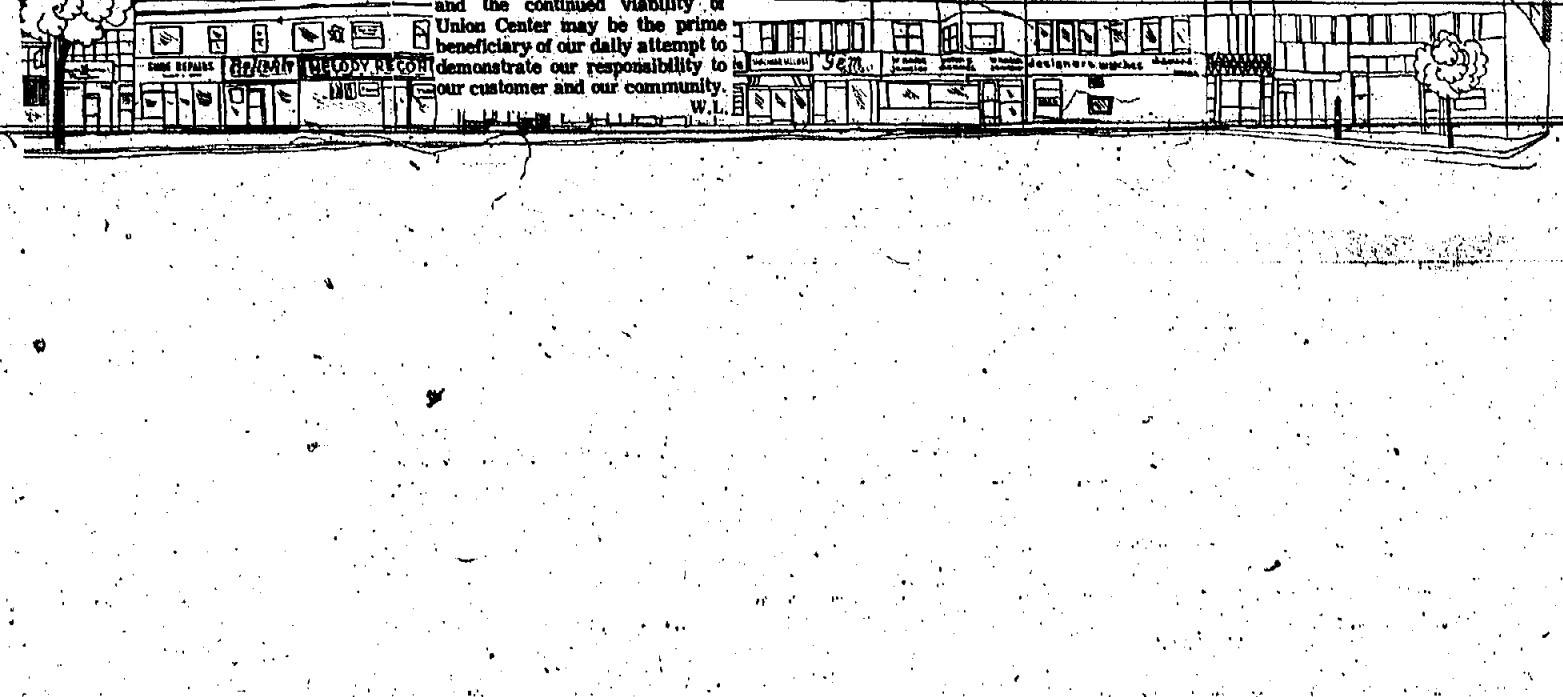

Mrs. Garry stated "The last collection showed an increase of about 50 percent over previous ones. We attribute this to the cooperation of residents who appreciate the value of recycling and who responded to our request to put bundles out by 8 a.m. on collection day rather than the night before. Tied and untied bundles were noticeably decreased."

"This week we have an additional request. We are asking each recycle to call one neighbor who doesn't recycle. With any success we will soon reach a message that will start bringing in revenue."

"As our recycling volume increases, pickup times may become later," she said. "If there is unusual delay, call 499 or leave your name and telephone number at the township clerk's office 196-2000. A member of the committee or our paper contractor will return the call."

The committee asked donors to be prompt and to place bundles in a neat and orderly fashion. It is requested that bundles be put out in paper shopping bags.

Located on the Seine River 70 miles northwest of Paris, Rouen, France has long been of great historical interest. An important British military base in World War I, many of Rouen's fine buildings were damaged during the war. Through some of the finest art collections in the world, the Church of St. Ouen and the 14th Century Tour de la Grosse Horloge (clock tower) were unharmed. Rouen became the capital of Normandy in the 10th Century; it was here that William the Conqueror died, and where Joan of Arc was tried and burned. Rouen is also the birthplace of Gustave Flaubert, who had much to say of his hometown in his masterpiece Madame Bovary.

LIBRARY Tragedy and hope

By ROSE P. SIMON
The Springfield Public Library lists the following titles among recently received books:

RESEARCH FOR ANSWERS
A Place for Answers
By Joshua Greenfield
After having written about the first five years in the life of Noah, his hand-drawn brain-drawn son, Greenfield, a journalist, novelist and screen-writer ("Harry and Tom"), kept a diary during Noah's best six years.

A VANISHING CULTURE
"First Catch Your Elbow"
By Laurel van der Post
In his despair over his beloved Africa of which he is a native, the author (found that with all the warring and conflicting systems, countries, tribes and races, food, money, the one common denominator, he recalls his first African moment. He recalls his first African moment, his first African moment, his first African moment, his first African moment.

ACQUIT LIFE
"Belief Sevens"
By Elizabeth Gray Vining
A writer "Windows For the Crown Prince," "Adam of the Road," "Quiet Pilgrimage" gently records the day-by-day happenings during her 70th year. A Quaker and a graduate of Bryn Mawr College, she attends the 50th reunion of her class (feeling to great enthusiasm), and she still recalls tenderly her four-year happy marriage of about 40 years ago.

PROTECTING YOUR HEART
"The Heart Attack Handbook"
Subtitled "A Commonsense Guide to Treatment, Recovery, and Prevention"
This handbook was written to answer the many questions and to quiet the myriad anxieties that arise following myocardial infarction or heart disease. It is by no means expected to be followed strictly, it is intended to supplement the advice of the patient's own physician.

ONE YEAR AGO
Springfield elementary school teachers ask the state Public Employee Relations Committee to appoint a fact-finder to help break the impasse in contract negotiations with the Springfield Board of Education.

This is the third in a series of 15 articles exploring "Taxation: Myths and Realities" in this article, series coordinator George F. Brock, who is professor of taxation at the University of California, San Diego, and published by this newspaper in cooperation with Union College.

EQUITY OR SIMPLICITY?
Most federal tax arguments involve the relative merits of equity and simplicity. Equity is the concept of fairness, and simplicity is the concept of ease of understanding. The two are often in conflict.

QUESTIONS OF TRADE-OFFS
The major tax sources of our three levels of government—federal income tax, state sales tax, local property tax—each have mixed ratings on the tests of a "good" tax system. No single one is perfect nor likely to be made so.

For the Birds
By Farris Swackhammer

The last day of summer was soggy and cool. National weather maps showed a cold front coming through during the final hours of the season. Autumn's first day was clear and crisp. These are the conditions our avian visitors prefer when starting south. As I lay in bed listening to night sounds just before dawn, I heard the call of a Canada goose flying over.

This bright fall day and the days to follow in October were known to Indians, living in what is now called New England, as the Goose-Gone Days. The hunters from the north were right on time. Later that day, when we went out onto the floodplain of the Rahway River, uncounted migrants twittered in the branches above.

Prominent among those calls was the oft repeated "chick-a-dee-dee-dee-dee" of the silver, black-capped screech. Loose fall flocks of these tiny fellows were searching for any form of insect—eggs, larvae or cocoons. No loose piece of bark escaped their scrutiny. Leaves were still on the trees so the chickadees often kept sight on one another, hence the constant chatter. Soon these flocks will be easier to locate. By month's end leaves will have fallen in the forest floor, to decay and nourish next year's growth.

October is the time of the color. Near the middle of the month, soon after the first hard frost if it comes early enough, the green of summer will be replaced by the golds, yellows and reds of fall. Green is the color of chlorophyll, the catalyst that takes water and carbon dioxide from its surroundings and makes sugar and oxygen out of them. It is the predominant color of the woodland in spring and summer. But there are other colors in the leaves during their green life. It's just that our eyes can't see them. Only sophisticated instruments in the laboratory are they visible.

With the autumn breakdown of chlorophyll, however, orange and red carotenoid pigments, those that give their color to carrots, are unmasked. The chemistry of the leaf changes in other ways too. Anthocyanins, also yellow, orange and red, are now formed instead of sugar and these add to the color. Almost as soon as the color appears, it turns brown and the leaves part from their summer home. The richest colors occur in the New England States, where the autumn colors are the most brilliant. The further south, the poorer autumn's display. Down in South Carolina and Georgia most leaves just age on the tree, turn brown and drop to the ground. Optimum conditions for color are a hard, rather early frost closely followed by several warm days.

Nature writers, many of them from the country north of us, have written countless lines about the color. Their thoughts are as varied as the windsof through which they watch the landscape change.

Words really can't describe the beauty of the color. Hal Borland thinks the color supplies its own

Hospital seeks new volunteers

"We're looking for someone who can talk to people and has a good self-image," that's what Susan St. George, the new manager of volunteers at Alexian Brothers Hospital, Elizabeth, expects of adults and teenagers interested in helping patients and hospital staff members.

"Volunteer work is an honorable and important duty," she says. "It's a definite asset to the hospital. Last year, for example, 340 people donated their time and talents to Alexian Brothers Hospital, racking up an impressive 43,000 man-hours and saving some $160,000 in payroll costs."

Anyone interested in being a volunteer may contact the Volunteer Office at Alexian Brothers Hospital, 251-9000.

John Burroughs wrote of October's leaves, "The whole body of air seems enriched by their calm, slow radiance. They are giving back the light they have been absorbing from the sun all summer." Loren Eiseley sums it up. "The world lies still—no green leaf hides the brown."

Return to his Hungarian roots in stark contrast to prof's flight

NEW BRUNSWICK — Joseph Held, a refugee who fled Hungary one November night 22 years ago, returned to his native last summer as a guest of the government.

He had been in the United States for 22 years, working as a factory worker, now 36 years old at that time. Held, his wife, Margaret, and their small son were at the Austrian border, but the guards released them because there were too many refugees to detain, the professor said.

Before his return to July at the invitation of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences, the Franklin Township resident had his visa presented to him personally by the Hungarian consul general in New York.

Held earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Budapest. He received a master's degree from the university the following year, and then, while working for University College as an assistant professor, he earned a doctorate from Rutgers in 1959.

Now collaborating on a book about Hungary's changing countryside, he was a guest at Keszthely where he spoke to the Summer Institute of the Hungarian Historical Society about the training of American historians, and at

Dr. Allhouse heads N.J. unit

Dr. Marie F. Allhouse, president of Bloomfield College, was elected chairman of the board of the Association of Independent Colleges and Universities in New Jersey at the September meeting.

The association represents 18 independent colleges and universities in New Jersey, including Bloomfield College, the state's four-year undergraduate student population and 25 percent of its graduate and professional students.

Other officers elected were Dr. Jerome Pollack, president of Fairleigh Dickinson University, at vice chairman, and Dr. Charles Dick, president of Centenary College, as secretary-treasurer.

Recalling his bitterness at the time, Held now speculates that the rejection was not personal but reflected that year's international political scene.

It was during their 1972 stay in Vienna that Held and his wife were briefly reunited with their parents. Although they had been in contact through the years, it was the first time the grandparents and grandchildren, "strangers to each other," met, Held said.

It was only after he reached America that Held decided to continue his education. On arriving at Camp Kilmer, Held set about learning English. His first job here was as a ditch digger for Public Service Electric and Gas Co. and as a delivery man for Rutgers' Alexander Library.

Held earned a bachelor's degree from University College in 1962. He received a master's degree from the university the following year, and then, while working for University College as an assistant professor, he earned a doctorate from Rutgers in 1969.

Now collaborating on a book about Hungary's changing countryside, he was a guest at Keszthely where he spoke to the Summer Institute of the Hungarian Historical Society about the training of American historians, and at
