Cancer fight victor to be guest speaker

Design Tom Harper, who contracted pleural mesothelioma while working at Annapolis and recovered to graduate five years later, will be a speaker at the Residential Cancer Crusade Conference being held by the American Cancer Society's New Jersey Division at the Holiday Inn, Marlton Hotel, Route 227, in Somerset.

Alan K. Jones, of Los Angeles, chairman of the National ACS Executive Committee, also will address the conference of volunteers who will conduct the April fund-raising and educational Crusade in their communities. The conference begins Saturday on the aspects of the Society's education and fund-raising programs, will be held throughout the day.

Harper, 24, made the varsity football team in his first year at the U.S. Naval Academy. Soon after, he was diagnosed as having the disease, which was attributed to asbestos. He beat cancer, thanks to improvements in surgery, radiation and chemotherapy treatment, and graduated last June.

When he returned to Annapolis a year after undergoing treatment, Harper found that playing varsity football was too strenuous. He was able, however, to play three sports a day. He now is on active duty in Washington, D. C.

The story of Tom Harper's recovery is portrayed in a film produced by the National Society. In it, Dr. LaSalle D. Leffall Jr., a surgeon and president of the National ACS, discusses with him the advances in cancer treatment that made his recovery possible.

Kean College Reading Clinic is accepting applications for its spring remedial and corrective reading program for elementary school children accepted into the program. Children accepted into the program receive a short screening test to determine if their reading difficulties are caused by a remediable disability.

Kean Reading Clinic offers further diagnosis and correction. A $10 service fee is required for the testing.

The Reading Clinic is staffed by reading specialists and assistants at a ratio of one instructor to one child. Individualized instruction will emphasize the newer development and techniques of reading remediation and correction. A full report at completion of the instruction period will include recommendations for further help, if needed.

LIBRARY Stage, screen stories told

by ROSE P. SIMON

The Springfield Public Library has the following titles among the recently received books:

"Dame Edith Evans,"

by Bryan F. Breen.

The author of one of the last five years, literary, theater and film director of Dame Edith Evans, this author gives us the biography of a born actress, one of the few remaining great actresses of the stage (Gloria, Olivier, Richardson). It uses her wife to be portrayed honestly, as she truly was; there was to be no concealment of her life.

She was born in Pimlico in 1889, the daughter of a nurse and a civil servant of moderate means and was brought up with a passionate search for truth, and the desire to behave like a saint.

She began her career at 16, began to attend evening classes, fell in love with Guy Booth and participated in amateur theatricals. During a certain performance, William Poel, a theatrical impresario, saw her and engaged Dame Edith's portrayal and induced her to choose the stage as a profession when she was 23. Her progress was noted by G. B. Shaw, George Moore, and others, who appreciated her performances unreservedly.

After a passionate long friendship, during which they were frequently married, Edith and Guy were secretly married.

Edith and Guy's business made normal living together an impossibility. The author has filled the book with letters from her husband and also from their son, Bryan, who died in 1968.

Her colleagues, her many triumphs, including the four films he directed.

MORE FROM JOSH

"Movie Stars, Real People, and Me,"

by Joshua Logan.

Since 1935 Joshua Logan has directed or produced and written more than forty stage plays, including the 1967 play "Rip Van Winkle." This book, a follow-up to his autobiographical "Josh," is a collection of his memoirs, starting with "Picnic," which he wrote in 1936.

With a wide variety of experiences, Logan has countless stories to tell about Humphrey Bogart in his younger days, Sam Goldwyn and his purported affair with Elizabeth Taylor, the incomparable Marlene Dietrich, the amazingly shy Marilyn Monroe, the unpredictable Bette Davis, and the inscrutable Greta Garbo. As for his own ability, he puts out his playwriting, in particular, in a big way. He writes, "Fanny and South

"Love Letters,"

by Andrea Fraser.

It's not a scholar-collection—but a personal choice, following her fancy, admits the anthropologist. She divides the letters into emotional rather than chronological or geographical. Some of the categories are entitled: declarations, pleas, rejections, fears and worries, ecclasiastic passions, jealousy, separations, farewells, unions, beginnings and endings.

Ms. Fraser hopes that this volume

"may serve as a printed gift for lovers" whose own letters are in short supply but she doesn't guarantee it. She does say that the "it's prime purpose is to give delight to all concern: the loved and the unloved; the loving and the story-heard and, to perhaps stimulate inspiration."

Some of the letters are either from individuals to themselves. In the letter from Pierre Curis to Marie Skłodowska (居里), he writes: "I have a fine thing...to pass our lives near each other, hypnotized by our dreams: your patriotic dreams, our ardent humanism and dream, and our scientific dream."

John Keats' writer to Fanny Brawne (居里), "The last of your kisses was ever the sweetest, the last smile was ever the most winning, the last look the most caressing!" Other letters include: Heloise to Abélard, Dorothy Thompson to Sinclair Lewis, Marcel Proust to Madame Strane and King Henry VIII to Anne Boleyn.

METHODIST MOVEMENT

The name Methodist was originally given to Charles and John Wesley and several other Oxford students in 1729. The term apparently characterized the exact and "Methodical" in which Charles and John Wesley and the Chapel in which they met in Ireland carried the Methodist movement to America in 1739.

LETTERS

REVIEWING CHILDLAND

"Once you leave it's magic, you may never return again." Words from the famous "Toyland" song would be contradicted if only for a short time, if we could go back to the Toyland at St. James School in Springfield.

Here, in addition to toys, decorations and music, there is an overall atmosphere of a family sharing ideas and ideals. Many adults have been amazed at the imagination of the little ones, especially a 3-year-old imagination by the hidden talents of a 4-year-old mind.

Begin in September, the preschool offers these young people a marked contrast to the formal education presented by an alumnus of St. James school—Miss Mary Beth Ehrhard.

For ten years, Mrs. Ehrhard, author of the "Toyland" song, raised her two children alone. Then, after they left home for college, she moved from the New York suburban area to settle in a small town she had never visited before, New Scotia.

For $100, she purchased "ten acres on the water facing a lighthouse and an old mill." She had to learn how to be extremely capable woman, and her two children. They enjoyed parties, loved "jokes" and amusing stories, collecting dolls, balloon plates, liquor bottles and so on. She did not let her lack of education limit her. There were occasional failures and also his illness. Yet these have never deterred Josh from planning more projects in his field.

MURDER AND MAYHEM

"In marked contrast, our popular culture death-imperious while denigrating our human responses to it. Prime-time television shows feature death as an exciting, mysterious, and often mysterious—especially the human qualities of the victims. Victims tend to be 'bad guys' who deserve what they get or hapless individuals who are neither secondary to the plot nor important to the story line. In daytime television, with the possible exception of Marcus Welby-like programs and the more recent programming of the soapies, children cartoons, meanwhile, show antagonists, minding—and in some cases, minding their own business—dangerous consequences if it hinders us from taking actual death seriously. We are reminded of the tragic case of Kitty Genovese, who was stabbed to death in front of 38 witnesses who failed to come to her aid.

Sessions are on a 2-3 day-a-week basis from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Enrollment is open to all children, ages 3-5.

To begin in the regular arts and crafts program, parents and children can participate in development and learning how to get along with others. The alphabet and numbers become familiar tools. Games are played to develop both physical and cognitive skills. Each year, students are given a progress chart in order to enable parents to better determine their weak and strong areas of interest and ability. Pre-school "graduates" of Saint James have been accepted into kindergarten and enjoy the simple life of the solitary.

East Tumblin, a lobating village was a friendly one-in-which there were no secessors, but many rumors. But it was a community of people who were secretaries, and Guy's business made normal living together an impossibility. The author has filled the book with letters from her husband and also from their son, Bryan, who died in 1968.

Death and Dying: Challenge and Change

This is the third in a series of six articles exploring "Death and Dying: Challenge and Change." In this article, Robert Fulton and Eric Markman of the Center for the Study of Death and Dying of Monmouth College have been joined by such punk rock groups as The Sex Pistols and Dead Boys.

Similarly, violent death is a staple of popular fiction. Murder mysteries and espionage thrillers continue to draw more readers. Violence and death becomes their provide us with enhanced sense of our own lives—a case in which they and shall die, but not us.

Of course, many of these media are not necessarily well-matched with mass media. For example, violence and death in literature is often a regular diet of violence and death, a veritable feast of morbidity that we consume with gusto.

Death in the media world differs greatly from death in the real-world of everyday life, both as to cause and to consequence. While people do indeed die and die in the United States and their number is approaching that of the elderly population, death and violence—offer us a regular diet of violence and death, against us in the form of nuclear power accidents, and earthquakes or terrorist comics.

Finally, there are those who would argue that our attraction is displaced aggression. In 1975, the American Psychological Association reported that the most popular and the most violent media involved in death and violence are not those that reflect the reality of death and violence. But those that do feature such topics as death or the act of making death tend to be among the most popular and the most entertaining.

The FLICKERING BLUE PARENT

The mass media—especially television—are powerful and pervasive weapons in our struggle to educate people about death and violence. While people do indeed die and die in the United States and their number is approaching that of the elderly population, death and violence—offer us a regular diet of violence and death, against us in the form of nuclear power accidents, and earthquakes or terrorist comics.

violent media involved in death and violence are not those that reflect the reality of death and violence. But those that do feature such topics as death or the act of making death tend to be among the most popular and the most entertaining.

The CLOUTIERES

While there is not yet a definitive explanation to accept for our collective response to death and violence in the mass media, we must weigh the questionable benefits of such entertainment against their individual and social costs.

On the positive side, the mass media can provide us with information about death and dying that can help us to live and die more meaningfully.

Significantly, we, as media consumers, have the ability to live and die meaningfully, or whether they become valuable transmitters of our vital cultural meanings of life and death. Children who have never attended a funeral or seen a corpse have seen thousands of killings on television. Most of us know more about how to kill than how to live. These touch on issues involving medical care, insurance, transportation, nutrition, and crime prevention.

Flu, sniffles close Gaudineer; long weekend the best medicine

Attendance was almost back to normal at Monday's Springfield High School. Gaudineer School, where students were called off Friday because of an epidemic of influenza and colds.

Dr. Thelma Sandmeyer, principal, said customs were "fine" after the school was closed.

"The long weekend helped in getting students and teachers back on their feet," Dr. Sandmeyer reported.

She said the closing of health services at the school was "inevitable."

We also hoped a long weekend would slow down the cycle of infection and re-infection.

At least one strain of influenza—according to Dr. Sandmeyer—was still among the illnesses, while others apparently included bronchitis, severe colds and streptococcal throat infections, according to Dr. Sandmeyer.

She said physicians diagnosed longer-term illnesses in four cases: two of pneumonia and two of sinusitis.

The school nurse, Lamont Haskins, said her office grew progressively busier last Monday through Thursday.

She joined Dr. Sandmeyer in urging parents to keep children home if they are sick to prevent another outbreak of infection.

"We're fortunate to have students who are eager to come to school," said Dr. Sandmeyer. "But if we can't get them to school, then the infection will spread."

Students stayed home or were sent home Thursday because of fevers.

Dayton five loses to two league foes

By MIKE MEINER

The Bulldogs basketball team, now 4-13 for the season, suffered another winless week in Suburban Conference play, dropping decisions to Millburn (6-5) and New Providence (8-8). Coach Raymond Yanchus and his Dayton players will play at Summit tomorrow night, hoping to play the role of a spoiler against the Hilltoppers.

Bulldogs trailed by a point at half-time against the Millers, but the third quarter again proved to be the Dayton downfall. The Hilltop shooting of Steve Nitti gave Millburn an eight-point lead entering the final stanza and eventually sealed the victory.

Mike Meiner parlayed Dayton with 22 points in the second half. Dave Lauford added 11 points on outside shooting. The remainder of the Bulldogs scoring came during the stretch run. Cirigli, the point-guard, Steven Parker, Kevin Engelhardt, Ed McGrady and Steve Gofman.

Dayton hopes to gain a victory in the opening game of the county tournament which is set to be held Saturday at the Thomas G. Dunn sports complex in Elizabeth.

Dayton bowlers remain in first in conference

The Bulldogs of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School hung in first place last week in the Suburban Conference Bowling League at Madison Lanes by defeating New Providence (6-15) by a 2-1 margin after dropping a 1-2 decision to Millburn (13-10) Monday.

The Bulldogs maintained their three-game edge over Summit (12-9) by sweeping the first two games from the Pioneers by 13-7 and 13-7 before losing to Millburn, 13-10. In the series Mike Steinberg (with a 215-527 series led the Bulldogs with Steve Klein adding a 153-446. Rick Zirkel (166-481), Mike Fine (157-486) and Harry Sherman (162-464) also contributed to the win.

Millburn put together three sets series to earn a 2-1 margin over Dayton. Klein hit for 212-501 and Steinberg for 182-504 in the 1-2 loss for the Bulldogs. Dan Shriver and Tom Mullock rolled 205-576 and 211-512 series for the Millers.

The Bulldogs face Caldwell (6-13), West Orange (6-15) and Verona (4-14) this week. David Breslau, Jonathan High school (6-13) bows Dayton on Feb. 15.

Regional wins twice for 7-2 mat record

By KURT BACH

The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School varsity wrestling team increased its record to 7-2 last week with two victories over Cedar Grove and Rahway. The Bulldogs lost one to both Cedar Grove and pulled out a 31-15 victory over Rahway. Saturday night, Regional will host to Caldwell in the Suburban Conference.

The grapplers were unable to record any falls against Rahway but won nine of the 12 bouts. At 101 Dean Calabrese posted a 7-3 decision to remain undefeated in dual meets. Matt Apicella (113) and Peiglito (122) won easily.

At 132, Jim Kehoe (132) was ranked, won the initial points but lost to an undefeated opponent. At 138, Tannenbaum lost a close bout. Trailing 8-0 in the first two periods, he fought back to tie the score at 10-10. A 2-2 decision. At 141, Kehoe earned a 6-4 win. At 145, Peiglito (145) won a tight bout. Pete Russo rebounded his first varsity victory by 158. Bell recorded a quick fall; Cederquist (two points and two assists). Eric Schobel had a standout game; Don Verner and Ed Fanning played well.

The Raiders exploded to a 16-10 victory over a talented Platon squad to hold their share of first place. The visitors grabbed a 4-0 first-quarter lead but the Bulldogs took an 8-6 lead at the plateau; 6-0 in the third period and went on to win. Ken Garguilo led the Raiders with six points, aided by Jason Apicella (two points and one assist).

One Thomas Edison is not enough.

The world, with all its problems and difficulties, needs all the Edisons it can get. And while true genius is rare, there will always be a need for people who can continue what he began.

But there are two problems: finding talented people.

You can help with the first problem if you know a high school graduate who is interested in electricity or electronics.

If so, we can solve the second problem: the Navy.

It offers what we believe to be some of the world's finest training in advanced electronics. We can take a qualified young man or woman with no prior training, and in a few months, have him well on the way to being not only an electronics expert, but a confident, mature individual.

Then, when his education is completed, he'll have the opportunity to see much of the world while he works with the most sophisticated electronic equipment he'll ever see. For which he'll receive a good salary as well as Navy benefits.

We'd be happy to send more information about the Navy's advanced electronics program. Simply send in the coupon below.

Because you may be helping someone who can help.
