BREAST CANCER DETECTION

A woman herself is often first to discover a lump in her breast. If she does, it is important for her to see her doctor about it right away. Most breast lumps are not cancer, but a doctor can make the diagnosis.

The doctor may ask a woman's age and question her about her own and her family's medical history. Such information can help the doctor determine whether a woman is at higher than average risk of breast cancer.

SUBURBAN REAL ESTATE MART

City • Suburbs • Farm Country • Lake • Shore
The NEWPORT—A typical residence in the new neighborhood concept of homes being developed in the community of Lehigh, Fla., is the three-bedroom, two-bath Newport. Highlighting the best in Florida living, the Newport features a kitchen with a pass-through window to an adjoining outside patio, a vaulted ceiling in the living room, a beamed ceiling in the family room, and a master bedroom with double doors and walk-in closet.

An affordable dream for sale in Lehigh, Fla.

A dramatic new neighborhood concept of home construction is being maintained in the American dream in Florida. An affordable reality in the community of Lehigh, Fla., is the three-bedroom, two-bath Newport. Highlighting the best in Florida living, the Newport features a kitchen with a pass-through window to an adjoining outside patio, a vaulted ceiling in the living room, a beamed ceiling in the family room, and a master bedroom with double doors and walk-in closet.

The approach of developing individual neighborhoods in this community of 16,000 residents has followed the lead of corporate planning by Lehigh Corporation, a major Florida developer celebrating 25 years of building a town.

New construction techniques utilized in the neighborhood concept have resulted in keeping construction costs down and moving the savings on to the buyer, according to Harry C. Powell Jr., president of Lehigh Corporation.

Powell added, "Owning a home in Florida is a dream that is becoming a reality for both the retiree and the young family, as well as others, through alternative financing programs. If you're buying a home as attractive as possible to people on all income levels."

Each of the planned neighborhoods, Willow Lake South, Leeland Meadows and Cedarwood offer two, three and four-bedroom homes with wide variety of interior and exterior design. The homes range in price from $60,000 with lot to $100,000.

The company also prides itself on the quality of management and the quality of construction. The homes range in price from $60,000 with lot to $100,000.

Lehigh Corporation has already established itself as a major Florida builder breaking construction records in the southwest area of the state. Lehigh is one of the fastest growing counties in the United States, and with communities such as Lehigh offering the home buyer a totally different lifestyle at affordable prices, it's easy to see why.

Homes on waterfront mark Laguna Village

Today's buyers of construction, the homes which are lined with attractive and long-lasting Swedish-processed built-in Lagoonos are wide and deep enough for the largest pleasure craft. Rooms are designed for views of the waterways. Kitchens feature dinettes with bay windows that take fullest advantage of the waterfront scene.

Energy conservation has also been considered in situation of homes on each site, with window placement and design of front entry aligned to take best advantage of off-the-water breezes, yet protect from winter winds.

Because of this, many of the Laguna Village home designs offer an L-shape which makes for privacy and separation of various formal and informal living areas.

Laguna Village opened a little more than four years ago offering colorful, styled large family homes priced from the mid-$100,000 range. Today's buyer demand, larger homes continue to be built on the lagoon-front sites and contemporary designs have been introduced.

While energy efficiency and custom insulation are always been a part of Laguna Village (Point Pleasant) navigable waterways.

WATERFRONT HOMES—Wide waterways and large family homes are featured at Laguna Village, Point Pleasant, constructed around five finger lagoons with deep, navigable passages to Atlantic Ocean and Barnegat Bay. Homes, priced from $170,000 to $275,000, offer new contemporary designs in addition to the Classic Colonial models that create a fine family neighborhood on the landward side of homes shown above. Laguna Village is located just east of the Lovelandtown Marina and information office, just opposite entry to the community, is at 2133 Bridge Ave., Point Pleasant.

Utility offers contracts to install solar heaters

A residential solar water-heating program for homeowners in Public Service Electric and Gas Company's electric service area was announced by Robert T. Smith, chairman and chief executive officer, at a "Solar Summit" held recently at the New Jersey Sports Complex in East Rutherford.

The "Solar Summit," which was open to the public, was sponsored by the New Jersey Board of Public Utilities and attended by representatives of business and government.

Smith said the new program will offer the homeowner who resides in the company's electric service area "the opportunity to obtain a soundly engineered solar water-heating system installed under PSE&G's supervision to assure quality work and backed by service from the company."

In order to qualify for the program, the homeowner must meet the following criteria:

- No more than five persons in the household.
- A portion of the roof must face in a southerly direction.
- The roof must slant between 30 degrees and 60 degrees.
- The roof must be in good condition and be constructed of wood or asphalt shingles.
- The roof must be free of trees or other burials.

Members must be adequate working clearance to install the storage tank and piping.

The solar collectors will be installed by qualified contractors at a fixed price. The system will consist of three flat-plate solar collectors with a net area of 40-60 square feet, a 120-gallon glass-lined storage tank containing a solar heat exchanger and a 400-watt resistance electric immersion supplementary heater. Other equipment provided will include a circulating pump, controller and associated plumbing, insulation and safety devices.

The solar collectors will be mounted on a roof and it is estimated that they will provide for 40 per cent to 50 per cent of the annual hot water requirements of a family of five. The supplementary electric energy required by the immersion heater will be billed under a solar provision of the residential load management rate.

The company will be the purchasing agent for the solar water-heating system. Contractors, selected by competitive bidding. Because of the large service area to be covered, it is anticipated that more than one contractor will be retained.

PSE&G will offer a five-year warranty on both parts and labor. Service during the first year will be performed by the installing contractor. During subsequent years, the five-year period maintenance will be performed by PSE&G's gas transmission and distribution department.

Because of the natural topographical and climatic characteristics of the state, he explained, it is doubtful that any meaningful amount of electricity can be generated by these methods in New Jersey between now and the end of the century.

Major new electric generating capacity in New Jersey between now and the end of the century will have to be either coal or nuclear, he said.

"In spite of the concerns which have arisen as a result of the accident which occurred at Three Mile Island," he said, "we remain firm in our conviction that nuclear units offer the best solution to the problem of electric supply in the state of New Jersey. As a result of the Three Mile Island investigations, improvements in the design and operation of nuclear plants have been made to make the plants safer and less vulnerable to unanticipated events."

Coal for electric generation in New Jersey would be more attractive if gasified or liquefied coal were available, Smith said. He added that it is anticipated that these forms will be made available in the future. It is difficult to meet the environmental requirements when burning coal in its natural form.

Conservation is viewed by many as the solution to our energy problem. Smith said, but at best it is only a partial solution unless we want to make a radical change in our current lifestyle and give up many of the conveniences which we have come to look upon as necessities for normal living. All can agree, he said, that energy should not be wasted and the efficiency of its utilization should be increased.

New Eyes for Needy helped one million

Recycle old eyeglasses to bring sight to the poor? Why not? Recycling may seem like a new conservationist idea, but a group of volunteers in Short Hills, many of them housewives, have been doing it for years, ever since 1932.

As a non-profit organization called "New Eyes for the Needy Inc.," this group of volunteers has helped over one million persons to see.

Last year over one million pairs of old glasses were sent to New Eyes For the Needy, Short Hills 07078, where groups of volunteers over 200 in number, have been taught to sort and classify them.

Simple non-assignment lessons go to medical missions abroad since federal law prohibits their redistribution in this country. Simple glasses are prized in bright, hot countries, even leper colonies where the burning rays of the sun are too much to tolerate.

Metal frames go a refiner to be melted down, along with other scraps of precious metal, such as gold from dentures and tooth inlays, old watches, broken jewelry, spare cufflinks, earrings and old silver.

The money realized from refining goes to establish special eye funds for hospitals and welfare agencies throughout 48 of the United States, to purchase new prescription glasses for those who can't afford them.

New Eyes holds periodic sales of antique jewelry and silver along with reusable costume jewelry, which adds significantly to these funds.

Since its inception 47 years ago, New Eyes has asked only for eyeglasses and precious metal articles, never for a cent's worth of donations.

Heartwarming stories come from the many people and places where New Eyes has helped.

Ten-year-old Timothy of Waco, Texas, who loves to play baseball but always struck out because he couldn't see the ball now is one of the top batters in his class with his glasses from New Eyes.

A child from Taiwan Free China sees for the first time in his life after cataract surgery and glasses from New Eyes.

Little 18-year-old Kimberly from St. Louis, Mo., whose "lasy" eye required glasses which her unemployed father couldn't afford.

The Pennsylvania Association for the Blind wrote New Eyes: "We regret that you are unable to share in the joys that result from your magnificent efforts — the joy of an elderly client reading a newspaper for the first time in many many years... On behalf of all the blind who have entered school with the best possible vision and for those whose world is made brighter, we thank you."

Another letter from a Methodist Mission Station:

"We are delighted to learn that so many children are on the way. We do surgery every day. These people are farmers who have hardly enough to

New Eyes for the Needy Inc., a nonprofit charity, in Short Hills, recycles not only old eyeglasses, but other useful eyeglasses, old jewelry, gold and silver items, linens and other bits of precious metal.

'Aging parent' course offered at Kean Center

Aging parents, a crisis in the lives of many middle-aged adults, will be the subject of a course scheduled by the Center for Continuing Education at Kean College of New Jersey.

Meeting five Tuesday nights beginning Oct. 30, the course will deal with factors making changes in the lives of elderly parents and characteristics of aging, family dynamics, stresses in having an older person in the family and making special care for the older person.

How to deal with the system when an older person is put in a nursing home and how to be comfortable with your parent's and your own aging will be discussed.

Donna Gaffney, a clinical specialist in geriatric nursing, will be the instructor. Registration closes Oct. 23. The fee is $20.

Additional information may be obtained from Kean's Center for Continuing Education at 522-2153.

SMILES OF SUCCESS—The smiles are shared by Dr. Carl Quillen and his patient, Lemuel Bush, at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center. Bush is able to grasp and make a fist now, less than a year following microsurgery which was performed to restore arm muscles destroyed by a bullet.

Rajoppi endorses senior sidcount plan

Democratic State Senate candidate Joanne Rajoppi of Springfield this week endorsed a plan which would offer store discounts of 10 percent to senior citizens.

Vice-chairperson of the Union County Freeholder Board, Rajoppi cited inflationary pressures and the hardship of living on a fixed income as reasons for her support of the voluntary discount program.

"In many communities throughout the state, seniors are given store discounts. Merchants are able to offer the discounts without raising prices to other consumers because of the increased sales volume. It works out well for the store owner and the senior citizens," Rajoppi stated.

A member of the Union County

Council on Aging, Rajoppi said, "The administrative functions of the program could be dealt with directly on a volunteer basis with senior citizens themselves organizing into task forces to handle the duties connected with the program."

Rajoppi said actual development of the program would not necessitate special funding or expertise as it could be patterned after programs already in existence.

A former mayor of Springfield, Rajoppi initiated a "50-Plus" program which provided a place for seniors to call for assistance for various problems on the local and state levels during her term. She was also responsible for initiating a survey to study possible sites for senior citizen housing.

Techniques of microsurgery applied to many

In the last decade, microsurgery has become a technique clinically applicable to every surgical specialty. It may be defined as surgery performed under magnification using instruments, illumination and special microinstruments.

Using microsurgical techniques, amputated body parts may be reimplanted; breasts may be reconstructed following mastectomy; trauma and burn scars and congenital disfigurement may be repaired; muscles and nerves may be restored; and wounds that cannot normally close may be filled in with tissue from other parts of the body.

Carl G. Quillen, M.D., assistant professor of plastic surgery at the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey and an attending physician at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, is a specialist in microvascular surgery which involves the restoration of blood vessels and nerves.

In the case of amputation, he says, successful reimplantation depends on the size and status of the blood vessels and the general condition of the amputated part. "If a body part is crushed in a machine, it probably can't be reimplanted," he said. "Clean cuts such as those caused by a knife, are the most amenable to surgery."

Dr. Quillen recently had a patient who, while working as a cook on a ship, cut off a thumb with a butcher knife. The amputated part was brought to the medical center and examined under a microscope to determine if the blood vessels were in satisfactory condition to undergo microsurgery. The decision was made to perform the surgery and, after about six hours of intense concentration and precision operating with the help of very fine sutures and a microscope that magnifies 18 times, Dr. Quillen had reestablished the blood vessels in the patient's thumb. Proper sensation and function of the finger will be restored within six months.

When a body part is severed, the surrounding nerves die and must go through a period of regrowth once implantation takes place. In the case of a reimplanted thumb, there are no muscle functions necessary, only sensation. In more major amputations, when the nerves die, the muscles they supply may become atrophied (withered and wasted), making the return of muscle function difficult. With physical therapy, however, there is a good chance that muscle use may be recovered. Generally, chances for reimplantation are greatest when the patient and amputated part arrive at the hospital within six hours following the accident.
