

We protest

Fifty innocent lives are being held in abeyance, and we protest. By now, the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has won a new constitution for Iran, making him not only the spiritual leader, but the civil leader as well.

He has become the absolute power and we, as well as the rest of the world community, are watching to see that he uses his new-found power wisely and justly.

The new constitution provides that a Faghi, a trustee, will run the government in the absence of the Twelfth Imam. The Twelfth Imam is the redeemer of the Shiite Islam world, who was hidden in a cave about 11 centuries ago.

Part of the language of the new document provides that the new leader be, among other things, "well known to the people, just, pious, enlightened, sagacious and competent" to manage affairs.

A just man, by any standard, would not tolerate a situation such as this. It falls now to the Ayatollah Khomeini to show the world how "just, enlightened and competent" a ruler he can be.

The new constitution legalizes what has developed since the departure of the Shah: Total power for Khomeini.

There has been speculation that the 50 hostages have been held to help the Ayatollah's thrust for the new constitution.

We have no interest in interfering in the internal affairs of another country. Although we might not desire to live in a country ruled by a religious group ourselves, we realize other peoples in other countries have the right to govern their own lives.

But 50 innocent American lives are at stake in Iran. Even if they are being treated humanely, and we fear they may not be, we are outraged that they are being held hostage to deliver the Shah to Iran.

In effect, 50 innocent people are paying a very high personal price for a disagreement that rightfully should be discussed in an international forum, such as the United Nations.

It is our wish that the hostages be released immediately and be given safe passage from the troubled mission in Tehran, Iran.

We also fully support our government in any action it sees fit to accomplish the safe release of these Americans.

We urge you to make your feelings known to your official representatives in Washington through direct letters or through letters to the editor, addressed to this newspaper.

Finally, we ask you to show your support of our government by flying the American flag daily, until the 50 hostages are safely released.

Dayton to charge fans

In a brief, routine meeting the Union County Regional High School Board of Education approved a mandate from the Suburban Athletic Conference that admission be charged for night girls basketball games at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School.

The charge will be 50 cents for students and $1 for others.

According to a report by Dr. Donald Merachuk, superintendent of schools, the regional board has charged admission only for football, boys basketball and wrestling events.

Regional board directors of health, physical education, driver education and athletics have recommended the charge be instituted, he reported, because it will place girls games at parity with boys games.

In other business, the board approved two payments to M. Diko Associates for work at David Bready's Regional High School the firm deemed necessary after an inspection of completed work on the playing fields. The first payment, $500, will cover extra sodding not covered in the original contract. The second payment, $1,500, will pay for the installation of additional drainage pipe in areas of the baseball field that hydraulic engineer Michael Diko says are not draining well enough.

Diko, in a letter to the board, said he will do some final work on a practice field catch basin and clear up some uneven areas on the fields at no cost to the board.

At earlier meetings, board members had expressed concern over the safety of the iron-grate catch basin. At the board's September meeting, it withheld payment on part of the project until the basin was covered with artificial turf.

Lewis Fredericks said the two payments should be the final transactions, and the extra work mentioned in the letter follows most jobs of this kind. Settling is to be expected, he said.

The board also awarded a $2,800 contract to Braceland Brothers, Inc., for printing the spring 1980 adult school brochures. The bids were reviewed by Harry Linkin, director of adult and continuing education, and do not exceed $3,000. In-person registration for the adult school will be held Feb. 13, and classes will begin Feb. 25.

The board approved acceptance of $4,716 in funds from the Vocational Education Division of the state Department of Education for district wide programs for the present school year. The funds are earmarked for 15 specific programs, including office procedures, summer work study and job placement.

In his report, Merachuk explained that in the past, accepting the funds entailed only the superintendent's signing of a specific form, but a new federal law requires approval by the board.

In personnel matters, the board approved a sabbatical for the 1980-81 school year by Barbara Oberding, a German and Spanish teacher at Jonathan Dayton. The board also accepted the resignation of Blanche Winbury as school librarian at David Bready, effective Jan. 1.

In addition, the board approved the appointment of three bedside instructors. George Scherer will teach special education at David Bready; Barbara Hedges, Latin at Jonathan Dayton; and Roland Maronni, science at Jonathan Dayton.

In another matter, the board learned from Franz Skok, board attorney, that restitution was in connection with a student's involvement with more than $8,000 in damages to bleachers and the press box at Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School. Clark, would be $1,200. Because the property was not included on the board's statement of values, the remainder of the cost will be paid by the board. These structures now are included on the statement, according to Harold Burdge, board secretary and business administrator. He told the board that press boxes were not included in the statement of values because, in most cases, they were built by booster clubs, not by the board.

Programs will recall two battles

Union Township will kick off its observance of the 200th anniversary of the Battles of Connecticut Farms and Springfield with a movie and slide show in the Union Municipal Building at 7 p.m. Dec. 14.

The program will depict events connected with two major Revolutionary War battles that took place in June 1780. The battles marked a significant victory for the American Army, which overcame a superior British-German force advancing on General George Washington's headquarters in Morristown.

The show is the first in a series of programs being sponsored jointly by 200th anniversary committees in Springfield, Union and Millburn.

Other events being planned in Union are a Colonial ball in March, a parade and reenactment and a Hannah Caldwell road race tentatively scheduled for June 8.

All events are open to the public. At the Dec. 14 meeting, questionnaires will be distributed asking members of the audience for suggestions on additional activities.

Schools job is more than a paper chase

By SAM FINNELL
Robert Yager leaned forward in his simple, chrome-armed swivel chair and grasped a small yellow sheet of paper protruding from under a larger white piece on his desk.

"If I move this, you know," he says, referring to the yellow sheet, "I know this other piece of paper's going to move."

Soft-spoken and reflective, Yager has been the business administrator for Springfield schools and Board of Education secretary since July. He says he feels he possesses two skills particularly appropriate to the job.

First, he says, is a knowledge of "total systems," understanding that few actions are isolated actions; second is a knack for detail.

His experience in business and education would seem to back him up. The Indiana native, who now lives with his wife Barbara in Waldwick in Bergen County, spent nearly 30 years in business after earning an undergraduate degree in liberal arts and a master's in business administration from Columbia in the late 1940s. His business background began in sales with Remington Rand and ended with JTT in Nulley with administrative work on national defense contracts.

It was when he—and thousands of other JTT employees—were caught in the middle of a government defense spending cutback in 1969 that he began to earn his living in education; an interest in the field, though, had always been there.

When he and his wife moved to Waldwick in 1968, the local public schools suffered from lack of space, the opposite of what most schools are trying to cope with today.

He served at that time on a citizens' advisory committee to inform the public on the need for more school space. He still serves on a citizens' advisory committee in Waldwick.

"I've always been interested in education," he says. "My family has always been interested in education."

His wife, who taught home economics and science in Waldwick public schools for 15 years, is now director of community education for Montville in Morris County.

He first took a job, "on a trial basis," he says, as director of development and business administration at the Horace Mann School, a private school in Riverdale, N.Y. After two years there and the school's acquiring the property of another school, a merger in which he played an important role, he worked on the merger of the Dwight School for Boys and Englewood School for Girls in Regional high schools' students score high on basic skills tests

The New Jersey Minimum Basic Skills Tests in reading and mathematics were administered to all ninth and 11 graders in March 1979. Students demonstrated very good basic skills competency in both reading and mathematics with 90 percent scoring above the minimum skill levels established by the state. These minimum skill levels are 75 percent correct on the reading tests and 65 percent on the mathematics test.

Analyses of the test results were conducted in order to improve instruction in these basic skills. The Union County Regional High School District test results were interpreted by comparing the students' performance on each test item with the results of the other school districts assigned to the District Factor Group H. Each school district in the state is assigned to a District Factor Group (DFG) composed of 50 similar school districts.

The students of the Union County Regional High School District demonstrated a very high level of achievement on both the reading and mathematics tests at each of the grade levels tested (9th and 11th grade). In the area of reading—the students achieved at or above the comparison group (DFG-H) in the skills tested, which included word recognition, comprehension, and study skills. Regional student performance in mathematics was also equal to or above the comparison group in all areas tested, including computation, number concepts, measurement, and problem solving. The testing results:

READING (GRADE 9)
Strengths—The ninth grade students demonstrated a high level of achievement in all reading skills.

Weaknesses—No weaknesses were identified in the district reading results at grade nine.

MATHEMATICS (GRADE 9)
Strengths—The ninth grade students demonstrated the ability to deal with the four fundamental operations and whole numbers, fractions, and decimals; the students demonstrated an understanding of number concepts; and the students demonstrated good ability in problem solving.

Weaknesses—Although the ninth graders did not demonstrate any areas of weakness in math skills, a need for continued reinforcement in applying percentage was noted. Additional instructional needs were also noted in metrics and math applications.

READING (GRADE 11)
Strengths—The 11th graders demonstrated a high level of achievement in all areas of reading skill.

Weaknesses—No weaknesses were identified in the district reading results at Grade 11.

MATHEMATICS (GRADE 11)
Strengths—The 11 graders demonstrated a high level of skills in the application of the four fundamental operations to whole numbers, fractions, and decimals; an understanding and applying number concepts; and the ability to solve problems.

Weaknesses—No weaknesses were evident in the test results for 11th graders. Reinforcement of math skills is needed with percentage, metric applications, and the reading and

Courses by newspapers Technology, change: engineering essentials

EDITH'S NOTE: This is the 10th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Connections: Technology and Change." In this article, Eugene S. Ferguson, who has been both a professional historian and an engineer, discusses why technical considerations sometimes take precedence over social problems in engineering practice.

By EUGENE S. FERGUSON
Engineers have a greater effect on the kind of world we live in than most of us recognize, and that American in a hundred is an engineer, but because they are decision-makers, engineers are far more influential than their numbers suggest.

Younger workers, the process will be repeated again and may even occur twice more before they retire. Thus, they will be embarking upon serial careers.

To visionary business consultant Peter F. Drucker, the existence of such situations indicates a need for "anticipating structural and technological changes in the economy, and preparing to retain and find new job opportunities for workers who will have to be laid off."

The hero of Entebbe

By ROSE P. SIMON
The Springfield Library lists the following titles among the books recently received:
"Yoni" by Max Hastings
In order to write the story of the life of Lt. Col. Yonatan Netanyahu, hero of Entebbe, the author felt it necessary to include information about the Israeli army and its operations. For his material he traveled from New York and Harvard to Jerusalem and the Golan Heights.
American born (1946), Yoni was imbued with Zionism from the start, both of his parents having been ardent supporters of the Jewish state. His pride in his Jewishness, his deep love for Israel, and his devotion to the Zahal (army) paratroopers were typical of his companions. They were all determined, tough, arrogant and competitive; they were always in the vanguard of battle.
Hastings describes the relentless, rigorous training, the vigilant selection of army personnel, and the special paratrooper discipline.
SOVIETS AND THE ARAB WORLD
"The Sphinx and the Commissar," By Mohamed Helal
Once editor of Al Ahran, leading newspaper of the Arab world, this reporter traces the rise and fall of Soviet influence in the Middle East from 1955, when Nasser invited the Russians to Egypt, until 1972, when Anwar Sadat expelled the Soviet technicians. It should be noted that Sadat's Israeli policy, is persona non grata in Egypt.
He views the Soviet Union as a natural ally of the Arab world, is critical of their recent policies, but hopes that for historical and geographical reasons, a balanced relationship will someday evolve. In the meantime, all roads from the Arab world lead to Washington, regardless of the fact that the Russians are the chief suppliers of arms and supporters of the Palestine Liberation Organization.
Helal reviews the opening of the High Dam in 1964 (Russia had stepped into the breach left by the U.S.), Nasser's list of do's and don'ts for Third World leaders, the author's visits to Moscow, his interviews with high officials (Nik, Khrushchev). He also discusses the break-up of the United Arab Republic, the influence of the United States in Saudi Arabia, the complex diplomacy preceding the 1967 War, the Soviet loss of prestige in the Arab world, the death of Nasser, and Russia's support of the P.L.O.
BROADWAY IN THE 1970's
"Journey to the Center of the Theater," By Walter Kerr
New York Times theater critic Walter Kerr has collected many of his best columns in a book which gives us history of the Broadway theater during the 1970s. It started off rather feebly but, gaining strength from small theaters all over the country (including off-Broadway); it miraculously began to thrive again. Now it is necessary for new productions to be postponed while waiting for closing of current plays.

Seeking the reasons for Shakespeare's long-lived, universal popularity, Kerr suggests it might be "the fluidity, the ambiguity, the contrast," the unfettered independence and consequent spontaneity Shakespeare has given his people.
Every aspect of the theater comes in for some critical attention; dramatists of the past (Moliere, Chekhov, Shaw, Ibsen), the avant-garde (at one time "Our Town" was so considered), improvisation (for the actor, for the audience), the problems of today, musicals, films, etc.
Perhaps the most satisfying section, "The Players," discusses performers of talent: Irene Worth, whose career has become "relatively magmatic, cumulatively stunning"; George C. Scott in "Death of a Salesman," "crawling magic of the highest order"; Katherine Hepburn's performance in "A Matter of Gravity" "was integrity incarnate, piercingly authentic"; Richard Burton (his voice) "This is precisely the penetrating resonance all critics should possess."
ACTION FOR CONSUMERS
"Right Back" by David Horowitz
This writer would stir up the consumers, to make them aware of their rights and to fight for them. Most of us complain of being "ripped off" in

When supermarket shopping, have a budget and a list, don't fall for the "persuaders," read labels and multi-prices carefully, be suspicious of "cents-off" coupons, try the no-frills products, check the checker.

Disc & Data
Pick of the ordinary situations the LPs, BORN AGAIN, by Randy Newman, really does it up short (stories to music), but no writer in contemporary music has managed to carve out a personal niche in quite the way Randy Newman has. And he has been playing piano. At 12 he dove headlong into music theory, a study which he later continued at U.C.L.A. Three of his albums, "Heaven Can Wait," "Honeycrisp," and "Word on a Wing," are respected conductors and film scores. Newman, premiered Salt Away, at New York's Philharmonic Hall with a truly bizarre title.
