GLASSBORO—When people ask "what's cooking?" in home economics class these days the answer is not always food.

While many people think of home economics as "cooking and sewing," home economics disciplines have become just a part of the home economics field. Family living and consumerism have changed the concept of home economics drastically over the years," said Dr. Doris Palzer, chairwoman of Glassboro State College's home economics department.

"In fact," Palzer said, "I used to be that all our students were here to become teachers. That's no longer the case because of the number of job opportunities with business and social service agencies, and the expansion of our program to meet the changing needs of society."

The Glassboro professor pointed to her own department's progress. "If one job experience is an example, 'Where we used to have just student teaching for the education majors, we now offer three different field experiences in education, social service centers or some business establishment,'" she said.

Home economics concentrate in either nutrition-dietetics, food service management, retailing and fashion merchandising, management and consumer services or housing and interior design under the specialization of consumer-business.

Students specializing in family-life studies may concentrate in child development, gerontology or other social problems such as marriage and human relationships, drug abuse and alcoholism.

Check benefits for pensioners

It is easy for people who get Social Security or supplemental security income checks to arrange to have their payments deposited directly in a checking or savings account.

Robert E. Willworth, Social Security district manager, said all persons who wish to contact his or her financial institution—bank, savings bank, savings and loan association or similar institution, or federal or state chartered credit union and ask for a direct deposit for MSF-1199.

Completing the form only authorizes deposit in the account. Only a beneficiary or an authorized representative can make withdrawals.

It is a good idea for the person to ask the financial organization how it will handle and report check deposits, and if there is any service charge, he said.

Voters will get $115,558 question

A referendum will be held Feb. 26 on the projected $4.7 million township budget because the increase from last year exceeds the amount allowed by the state by $115,558.

The Springfield Township Committee Tuesday night unanimously adopted a resolution calling for the referendum, after the budget was introduced.

"We do not want to deprive the township of any of the services they have enjoyed and we do not want to lay anyone off," Mayor Robert Welchek said. "If the referendum does not pass, we might have to consider those alternatives."

The proposed 1980 budget totals approximately $4.7 million and includes an increase of about $400,000 from last year's total. The 1979 budget totaled approximately $4.3 million.

The increase exceeds the amount allowed by the state under its budget cap laws by $115,558. The allowed increase is $173,450.

Cap is the limit set by the state on increases. The limit is 5 percent, but the amount on which the 5 percent cap is applied in Springfield is about $3.4 million. Other portions of the budget are exempt from the cap.

The tentative budget calls for an eight-cent increase in the overall tax rate per $100 of assessed valuation. The anticipated rate is 72 cents per $100 assessed valuation, compared to last year's rate of 64 cents per $100 for municipal purposes. Other portions of the total property tax go to local schools, regional high schools and county purposes.

The eight-cent rate increase would be the result of the increase exceeding the cap, according to Mayor Welchek.

The $115,558 increase will mean a three or four-cent increase to the average taxpayer, Welchek said. He defined the average taxpayer as the owner of a $50,000 home.

"I'm hoping, but I'm not optimistic," Welchek said about the Feb. 26 vote.

"The measure has bipartisan support. All five committees are supporting the referendum," the mayor said.

The proposed budget will be published in next Thursday's issue of the Leader. A public hearing is scheduled for March 4.

Within the five percent cap are increases for such necessary items as buildings and grounds, insurance, gasoline and oil, police, street lighting, and pension costs.

The bulk of the increase exceeding the allowable figure is made up of sewerage and insurance costs.

Springfield's share of Highway Valley Sewerage Authority costs jumped to $183,570 from last year's figure of $154,885, for an increase of almost $30,000.

"A recent change in workmen's compensation laws is expected to drive insurance premiums up this year. Premiums went up to 1979 and we expect them to go even higher in 1980," Welchek said.

School to help students stop smoking

The Union County Regional Board of Education Tuesday night gave approval to George Cuzzolino, assistant principal at David Brentley High School, to begin a pilot program to help students quit smoking.

Rather than use "purely punitive means," Cuzzolino intends to use "Madison Avenue" techniques. Ten students have volunteered for the program, which will utilize psychological and sociological ways to get them to stop smoking.

Cuzzolino and school psychologist Gus Gajovnik will use Madison Avenue techniques to reverse for the three-week program.

The program, according to Cuzzolino, will cost no additional school money, and students will use study-hall time or after-school hours.

In another major, the board revised its budget, increasing the projected amount of money to be raised for pupil transportation by $13,950.

The change was made to conform to a state aid figure for transportation, according to board member Harold Burdge.

The board cut costs for the required publishing of the budget. Last year the board spent $2,000 to publish the budget in eight newspapers. The budget, to be published Feb. 21, went from a three-column ad last year to an eight-column ad this year.

"To put the much larger ad in the eight papers would cost more than $5,000, according to Burdge.

The board passed a resolution, moved by David Hart, calling for the budget to be published in either the Newark Star-Ledger or both the Elizabeth Daily Journal and The Courier-News. The board decided to put the budget in the single newspaper at the two, depending on which alternative is less expensive.

Burdge was instructed by the board to check on costs and go ahead with the publishing.

John Conlin suggested that, in the regional review of the budget, a statement appear informing residents that copies of the budget are available at the board office and at the four regional schools. The regional review by James Clancy, county superintendent of schools, will be mailed to all residents of the six towns in the district.

During the public portion of the meeting at David Brentley High School in Kenilworth, Jane Frost of Commonwealth Road, Kenilworth, said she is dissatisfied with the budget because no money was appropriated for summer school.

"I'm the mother of three children in high school. (David Brentley) one graduated and I have another who will be attending. Some took advantage of extra education in summer school," Frost said.

"The budget is not set yet," board members said.

Judge reserves decision on SEI appeal for variance to build Rt. 22 shopping mall

Superior Court Judge Milton Feller last week reserved his decision on an appeal for a variance to build a shopping mall on Route 22 in Union, at the site of the state motor vehicle inspection station and the Union Drive-In Theater.

Arguments were presented before him in Elizabeth Thursday by William Gray, lawyer for SEI, Union Properties, Inc., and George Lombardi, representing the Union Zoning Board of Adjustment, which denied the variance request last July.

Feller questioned both lawyers about an easement for a sanitary sewer which runs through the middle of the 25-acre lot where SEI wants to build the mall.

Grand contended that the board should have granted the variance on the condition that SEI obtain tomahawk approval to move the sewer line. But Lombardi argued that since the firm does not own that strip of land, it does not qualify to apply for a variance.

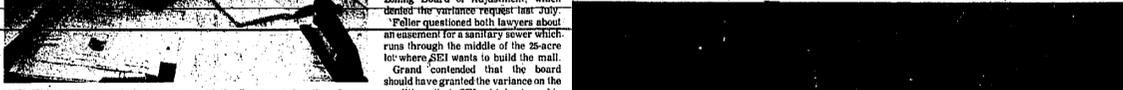

In other arguments in the case, in which SEI is seeking to have the board's decision overturned, the two lawyers reviewed testimony presented during eight evening-long sessions held before the zoners.

Among the major points at issue was testimony presented at the hearings by Peter Ables, a planning consultant appearing as a witness for SEI. Ables told the zoning board that his analysis showed there is little demand in Union for land zoned industrial—the designation under which most of the SEI land is classified.

Grand conceded that there was a dispute at the hearings over the base-figure Ables used for the amount of industrial land "available" in the township.

While the consultant claimed that the figure is 185 acres, opponents argued that many of the sites he listed are not available for industrial construction. In fact, only 20 acres are available, Lombardi told Feller.

Lombardi, who was board attorney last year and has been retained to handle the appeal, took issue with the SEI claim that the land cannot be used economically for industrial purposes. Attacking the argument that Union is able to "absorb" only six acres of industrial land per year, he said that actually developers are able to "find"

Sports chief brings varied background

There is one thing any athletic director must know: everything.

From referees to rebounds to regulations, an athletic director will see them all, and Pete Palzarano, recently hired as the athletic director at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, seems to have a good start.

A native of Striving in Sussex County, Palzarano comes to Springfield from Watchung Hills Regional High School where he coached football and baseball and taught physical education for 10 years.

"My coaching experience prepared me for understanding the problems coaches go through," Palzarano said. He also did some scheduling, which is an important part of a director's job.

Palzarano has viewed athletics from a referee's perspective. "I might have done 20 different games in a basketball season," he said. "It's an educational process as much as anything else. You get a broader picture of the problems and the good things. It's like a classroom, but a much larger classroom," Palzarano said that as an official he could not only talk to coaches and administrators at the various schools, but also "draw on" the experience of the other officials he met.

His formal education included a bachelor's degree in physical education and health at North Carolina State, Raleigh, which he graduated from in 1967. He also has completed a master's degree in administration and supervision at Seton Hall, and he's taken miscellaneous courses in athletic supervision and guidance.

"I'm still in a process of learning," he said.

His views on the role of athletics in education place sports in a group with other extracurricular activities.

Vigilance is price of property; thieves continue to prosper

Several years ago a Springfield woman, awakes at 2:30 a.m. with insomnia, witnessed a strange event.

From her window, she observed a man place a ladder against a neighbor's house. She watched him climb up the ladder, open the window and disappear into the house. A short while later, she watched the man squeeze out of the window, climb down the ladder and vanish in the night.

She never called the police; in fact, detectives did not discover that she was a witness to a burglary until they canvassed the neighborhood after the burglar was long gone.

It's incident like this that have led the Springfield Police Department to issue a request for vigilance by Springfield residents and to remind citizens how they can help in the fight against burglaries.

With the skyrocketing price of gold and silver, break-ins are a lucrative

Board deadline nears

Springfield Board of Education President Laura Rosenbaum has invited all interested citizens to file for board candidacy.

Nominating petitions may be obtained from Robert Vager, board secretary, in his office in the Raymond Chisholm School or by calling the office.

Board member John Westerfield has announced he will seek another term, and Paul Postle has said that he will not seek re-election. The third incumbent, George Coomes, said he is "seriously considering" running again.

The hospital, noting that heart and blood-vessel disease will take more lives than all other diseases combined, will offer free blood pressure screenings on two successive Sundays, Feb. 17 and 21, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Residents of Union Township and surrounding communities, including Millburn, Kenilworth, Garwood, Roselle and Roselle Park, are invited to come into the hospital for the free screenings, which are being sponsored by the hospital's Heart Health Institute. The Union County Heart Association will have information pamphlets available.

The public will also have the opportunity to view a slide presentation on the effects of smoking and overweight, and hear a short lecture by a trained cardiac rehabilitation nurse on proper diet. The program is associated with high blood pressure and the need for proper diets and ways to identify and correct diet errors.

Dayton's wrestlers drub Union Catholic
By DAVID GOLD
The Jonathan Dayton wrestling team scored its third victory of the season last Wednesday at home against Union Catholic, 45-12, and will try to improve its record Saturday when it is host to Caldwell.

The Bulldogs are "coming along," commented Coach Rick Tecono, after his team had won nine of 12 bouts. Dayton's Bill Giordano (106 pounds) and John Colongigla (118) scored falls. Other victors were Dave Cushman (106), John Caracado (122), Steve Tenenbaum (129), Ben Salluro (141), Jack Parent (150), Nino Parlavento (170) and Ron Bushman (heavyweight), who won by default.

Giordano was named wrestler-of-the-week for attaining a fall in 20 seconds. Captain Steve Tenenbaum also wrestled well, bringing his record to 12-2-1, the best on the team.

Dayton, still lacking confidence, is starting to improve and is facing wrestling teams of comparable ability.

Dayton's wrestlers drub Union Catholic

In compliance with township philosophy of coaching, Dayton's schedule includes stronger as well as less experienced teams.

The second half of the season should prove more successful for the Bulldogs than the first since Dayton will be facing teams of equal strength and the young Bulldogs have gained needed experience. Tecono has switched his emphasis in practice from conditioning to drilling and this switch has helped Dayton in its last matches.

Dayton is wrestling well aside from minor problems caused by illness.
