Proficiency test is cut as biology prerequisite
The biology classroom door was opened wider for future ninth graders Tuesday night by the Union County Regional Board of Education. Passing a proficiency test and passing eighth-grade Algebra, both required now for freshmen to take biology, will not be required for ninth graders to enter the biology classroom in the fall. While biology is normally a sophomore-entry course, freshmen who qualify and take it are the standard earth science prerequisite. In spite of a plea made by regional science administrators, the regional board voted unanimously that the test and certain other criteria used this year to select students for the advanced placement be eliminated. Effective next September, the students will be permitted to enroll in biology based almost entirely upon the recommendation of the principal of the elementary school they attended. The board advised that the recommendation be based on academic achievement, ability in mathematics and grade level in reading and self-motivation for science. The ruling by the board came after many months of deliberation by the selection process, cutting it to a minimum and unfair. The process being based on criteria that are not in order for a student to be allowed to take biology his freshman year, normally, a sophomore year offering. They include overall academic achievement in the seventh and eighth grades, Algebra in the eighth grade, grade in reading level, and self-motivation for science. "It's the manner that the policy was implemented," said John Elwood of Berkeley Heights. "Not many people even knew about the test. It's totally unfair."

School board candidates agree on most questions
Four of the five candidates for the Springfield Board of Education Tuesday night gathered for a debate that lacked one essential element—strong personal attacks. The candidates, who are running for election in May, agreed on most questions. The candidates for the board are: Philip Solomon, a senior at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School; John Westering, a senior at Springfield High School; and two machine parts manufacturer in Kenilworth, below "Terri" Rossiter, assistant parts manager for Meridian International Corp. in Springfield, writes up an order. Students get help from school when they're looking for a job
Breaking into the job market can be lonely and frustrating, especially for those who lack experience, a specific skill or a college diploma. Well, for many students and graduates of the Union County Regional High School System, the realities of life won't be quite so harsh. Thanks to the regional high school's job placement program, many students are getting a taste of what it's like to work in the "real world" and, lucky for them, they're not having to face it alone. For seven years, the regional schools have provided a job placement service for students in grades nine through 12 who are interested in securing employment. It helps students find full-time jobs for the summer or after they graduate, or part-time jobs while attending school. "We want to provide them with some sort of instruction before they go out," said Barbara Ullom, job placement coordinator for the four regional high schools. "It helps them when they go out to look for another job or apply to colleges. Colleges are looking for a full, well-rounded student. When a student can hold down a job, it shows they're serious about their education." Ullom emphasized that the job placement service is not connected in any way with the work-study program. "We cooperate with them but they're a separate operation," she said. "The student's work with us does not get credit for anything."

Board call cheerleading a sport
Although state and federal officials have ruled that cheerleading is an extra-curricular activity and not a sport, Union County regional high school personnel are continuing to look into the possibility of winning the activity status as a sport. Regional Board of Education Tuesday night passed a resolution that cheerleading is a sport. In the meantime, the board has gone ahead with drafting a paragraph describing the activity's status and placing that statement in the athletic policy manual, which Merchiek said makes it "more like a sport." Ullom said that cheerleading is a "highly organized" activity, according to Peter Pizzanaro, athletic director at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School. The four regional high school athletic directors are planning to meet in April to discuss standardizing awards for cheerleaders. Cheerleaders at Jonathan Dayton currently receive letters and chevrons as the regular athletes do. In fact, Pizzanaro said, water cheerleading teams attended the winter sports award ceremony Monday. "They're as much a part of the athletic program as anybody else," Pizzanaro said. Varsity cheerleaders at David Brearley, Kenilworth, receive a letter after two seasons. Varsity football players, for example, receive a letter after one year of varsity competition, according to Tom Santucci, Brearley athletic director. He also said the Suburban Conference, of which Jonathan Dayton is a member, selects one of the schools' athletic directors to oversee conference cheerleading.

Summer class fee is sought
The Springfield Board of Education has requested permission from the county superintendent to charge a fee for several enrichment courses offered in the summer school. The board Monday made a motion requesting the county superintendent to approve for the local schools to charge $20 per course for five summer school courses. The courses that the school wants to charge for, which school superintendent Dr. Fred Baruchin said were strictly enrichment courses are: tennis, environmental science, pop-rock ensemble, computer science and film-making. "Our budget is very tight. We are in a bind," said Board President John Westering. (Continued on page 3)

OPINIONS — OURS, YOURS

Vote for excellence

The voters of Springfield have a multitude of reasons to vote, and to vote in favor of the proposed budgets of both school systems during the Board of Education elections next Tuesday.

Those with children in the schools—both the local system up to Grade 8 and the Regional High School system—have a direct interest in maintaining the excellence of the education provided for their children.

Those who have completed their primary and secondary education, and whose children are also grown, have their own obligation to repay the community for the schooling they received whenever and wherever they were young.

All of us should remember that we will not be voting for the ordinary, average educational program, like most of the others being chopped to bits by the scholastic time-servers in Trenton. We are voting for the exceptional, the quality checkers get finished with our local schools they will have the top prime quality of hamburger.

The primary school district has built at least a statewide reputation for innovation and freedom. Through many varied roads toward the single goal of excellence.

There are also those of our neighbors who oppose spending money who look at every picture with a dollar sign superimposed. Let them look at the price tags on their own homes. As we have said for these many years, and will continue to say, the quality of its schools is the major single factor in determining the character of a community, and the value of its homes.

THE STATE WE'RE IN

By D.F. Moore, North Jersey Conservation Foundation

The Interior Department has pinned one of the most seriously extensive, environmentally destructive and just plain dangerous practices of our culture: development of barrier islands—those narrow strips of sand which buffer the Atlantic and Gulf coasts from the fury of the sea.

Such development means a lot of money for a relatively few people because of our national penchant for living or vacationing by the sea. But the typical American taxpayer vastly outnumbered those who gain from such developments, and up to now the majority has been paying through the nose to benefit the few.

Government has fostered this development in a variety of ways, with various kinds of federal aid for roads, beach protection, water systems and sewage facilities, to name a few. And federal flood insurance makes it pretty easy for survivors to rebuild after major storms. If they can find their property.

I say survivors because, while everybody knows that hurricanes happen every year, few come to grips with the fact that this country has been abnormally lucky in hurricanes beating relatively harmless paths away from the most densely developed coastal sections in recent decades.

Some of the gamblers in Atlantic City (built on a barrier island) can attest to themselves by hearing the siren sound coming from a direct hit by a major hurricane there.

The knowledge that not only does a hurricane bring lowering waves, but that the waves come on top of an ocean which can be as much as 15 feet above its normal level because of the sea being scooped up by the retreating winds.

All at the start of this century, some 6,000 died at Galveston, Tex., because they lived on vulnerable coastal sands. When a similar storm hit there, as it will sooner or later, the mortality can be greater because more people now occupy the same strip of beach.

The gist of Interior Department and Carter administration thinking, therefore, is that we should stop wasting taxpayer money keeping the sea away from man's works, and concentrate on keeping man's works away from the sea.

This new philosophy is embodied in H.R. 581 (The Barrier Islands Bill), introduced by Rep. Phillip Burton (D-Calif.), which would limit the federal grants that now attract more potential victims to barrier islands. It would also provide for federal purchase of undeveloped barrier islands, or undeveloped segments thereof, when development is likely. These would become part of a Barrier Islands National Park.

As constituted by nature, barrier islands reshape themselves with normal sea and wind actions, remaining a precious safeguard for the mainland sections they front. But when nailed down by all manner of construction and futile attempts at beach preservation, they are more prone to destruction by storms. And so is the mainland they are supposed to protect.

There in New Jersey this problem is aggravated by a sinking coastline. It is dropping at the rate of about a foot a year, which translates a vertical foot into a horizontal mile of marsh reaching back from the shore. Healthy barrier islands are even more essential in this situation.

A group of national and regional environmental groups, including the New Jersey Conservation Foundation, has petitioned the Interior Department in Washington, D.C. This organization supports H.R. 581, even now being readied for a House vote after committee approval. The coalition in seeking public support of the bill in coastal states, with voters writing to their Congressmen and Senators to give their views. Frantic opposition from developers and allied interests is being heard.

Howard Jarvis, the California taxpayer subordination of barrier island development, has written to the Carter-Congress for the barrier island protection completed by H.R. 581.

PLAYERS PLEASED I hope you will print this "thank you" to the Springfield Community Players. Their production of "Cinderella" was so filled with talent, lovely songs, warmth and love it was a pleasure to be part of the audience.

The fine performances of the entire cast, and lovely music which filled the entire auditorium, lit the faces of all the children, as well as adults, who made up the audience.

Remembering the happy, glowing faces of little spectators prompted me to write this letter to the local Springfield paper with hopes a public "thank you" could be printed for all the hard workers involved in the production.

I am not a resident of your town, although I support many of the functions. I know I am expressing the feelings of all the hundred of people who saw "Cinderella" at the Springfield Community Players to do more and more such productions just like this one. Their group is certainly to be asked to your town.

Introduced in the two years, more than 5,000 bills and resolutions in both houses—was approved by the 96th Congress.

The number of days in which the legislature met to deliberate bills was a few under the high of the 1974-75 session. The Senate met on 41 days in 1978 and 38 in 1979, while the Assembly met 42 and 35 days, respectively, in 1978 and 1979. Each house of the 1974-75 Legislature met for more than 80 days in the two years.

The list of important bills passed in the second year of the session (1979) will vary according to one's viewpoint. To mention but a few of the bills: creation of a transit corporation, $475 million transportation bond issue, revision of board of education laws, pipeline protection, increases in fees for motor vehicle registration and in corporation net income and casino taxes, parole reform, and other bills.

The second year of the 1978-79 session made history in several respects. Probably the most significant statistic is the record number of bills enacted into law in one year since the 1947 Constitution—50, compared with the previous high of 47 in 1948. The number of pocket vetoes also set a new record—13. The volume of legislation

Women's units sponsor forum on draft tonight

The issues of registration and the draft will be discussed at an open forum sponsored by area women's groups tonight at 8 in the Springfield Library.

The Union County and Summit Area chapters of the National Organization for Women (NOW), the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom (WILPF) and the Union County Women's Political Caucus have organized the open meeting, where the issue of registration and the draft will be discussed and questions answered.

The groups have selected their opposition to compulsory registration as a first step toward conscientious objection. They are opposed to the selective service laws which require that all men 18 years of age register for the draft.

Speakers at the forum will include Nancy Smith of New Jersey NOW, Letty Sweet of National WILPF and Kathy Brock of the Women's Political Caucus. The public is invited to attend.

The forum will be followed with a national march and rally against the draft in Washington, D.C., Saturday sponsored by Committee Against Registration and the Draft (CARD).

Police reported that Lett was discovered after the woman escaped from a room where she said she was being held against her will, and alerted the motel manager. The manager called the police.

The woman is unnamed, police said. According to Thomas Schir, a detective from Rockville, Md., the woman was abducted following a brief discussion between her and Lett, described as acquaintances, in the parking lot of a restaurant. He had requested that they have a talk, explaining that he had a problem, said police.

Lett forced her into the trunk, and drove to Frederick Md., where the two spent the night, police said. At that time, Lett assaulted her, and attempted to rape her, but she talked him out of it, police said.

Erik Bruhn biography among books received

The Springfield Public Library lists the following titles among books recently received:

"A MOST GIFTED DANCER" by Erik Bruhn, by John Green. Based on interviews with the subject of his biography, as well as extensive dance research, the author has given us an excellent portrayal of Erik Bruhn—phenomenal product of the Royal Danish Ballet. Blessed by an extraordinary physical appearance, with a face capable of mirroring many moods, and trained to superb technical accomplishments, Bruhn's appearance of the stage virtually mesmerizes his audience.

The only boy in a family of women, he developed a sense of responsibility and self young Erik's fears and reticence, his mother sent him to dancing school, where his innate grace proved to be a promising future. By 1937 (at 10), he had already been accepted into the prestigious Royal Danish Ballet School. The public is invited to attend.

"Green reviews the history of the Danish Ballet and its famous director, August Bournonville, who established his characteristic style, created more than 50 ballets and produced many talented dancers. Among them were the outstanding Brhan. His official entry to the Royal Danish Ballet, his first love affair, his association with New York's Ballet Theater (he was principal dancer), his wife reporter, and famous partners, are included in this account. More events in his fascinating life comprise his connection with the Royal Swedish Ballet and the National Ballet of Canada, his relationship with the Nureyev, his retirement, and spectacular comeback.

"IT HAPPENED IN IRAN" by Kermit Roosevelt. It is interesting in view of recent U.S.-Iranian events, to look back several decades to learn what occurred in that chaotic country, as seen through the eyes of Kermit Roosevelt (cousin of F.D.R.), then an important member of our Mid-East C.I.A.

He begins by recording the history, geography, and the political situation in the Middle East, and then the author tells of the Shah's fall and the rise of the Islamic Revolution. The author then tells of the Shah's fall and the rise of the Islamic Revolution. The author then tells of the Shah's fall and the rise of the Islamic Revolution.

"The Wild Edge," by Philip Kopper. This title refers to the natural beaches of the East Coast, from Maine to the Outer Banks, 1,200 miles south as winter approaches. This region is described ecologically. The author links it frustratingly ever changing, shifting, continuing, mystifying.

"Sitting in the front of the Atlantic Ocean is made of barrier islands with their inlets, bays, sounds and lagoons, lined by uncoupled miles of marsh, a realm of astonishing ecological importance to human and marine life.

Kopper notes the oceanographers of Ocean City, described to fall some 500 during some abnormally high tides, and that the formerly planned lagoon lots at a near by municipal sewage are now under the Atlantic. This is proof that the title will be a best seller. It will suit to another ocean as "Countless grains of sand answer the ceaseless winds and waves."

Kopper brings us information with the best amount of scientific jargon, he writes for the layman in an almost conversational, casual manner. In Part I he discusses the zoological beach tribes, mollusks, oysters, birds, snakes, whales. Part II is about the physical beach, the changing forces, vegetation, beach manners—man's frustrating efforts to control the beach. The last section includes the author's preferences for beaches, and specific first aid for special beach hazards.

"SMALL POEMS" "This Tree Will Be Here For a Thousand Years" by Robert Bly. In this slim volume is this sixth collection of poems. Bly affirms his belief in the sharing of confidences between man and his coexist, hope, life, and an outer "green" world: the land, nature, and the sea.

"EVER-CHANGING BEACHES" "The Wild Edge," by Philip Kopper. This title refers to the natural beaches of the East Coast, from Maine to the Outer Banks, 1,200 miles south as winter approaches. This region is described ecologically. The author links it frustratingly ever changing, shifting, continuing, mystifying.

IN CONGRESS

Matthew Rinaldo

The major emphasis in Congress is on the shaping of a new federal budget, but attention also is being given to a wide range of legislation touching on virtually every aspect of life in America.

Some of the bills that I have introduced or sponsored form part of the legislative spectrum in Congress. Others that I have introduced or sponsored in the 8th session have already been enacted into law or have passed the House and are awaiting a vote in the Senate.

Those that have become law include one that helped Americans everywhere to demonstrate national pride and to show concern for Americans held hostage in Tehran. It proclaimed a National "Only Day" - Dec. 18 with the flying of flags from dawn to dusk. People throughout the United States wrote telling me how much they appreciated that legislation.

One of my bills that became law eliminates wasteful and redundant federal regulations in banking. It exempts savings and loan institutions from the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission except when unfair, deceptive practices are involved. Savings and loan institutions previously came under the jurisdiction of both the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the FTC.

Another bill I sponsored urging the U.S. Olympic Committee, the International Olympic Committee and the Olympic committees of other countries to move the 1992 Olympic games out of Moscow also sailed through the House and the Senate.

It provides the kind of forthright language that the Soviets understand. Their national pride would be hurt far more by being deprived of holding the summer games than over any condemnation by the White House.

Allowing the Olympic Games to be staged in a country that was waging a

More than 150 wheelchair athletes from seven states, ranging in age from five to 60 and older, will compete in the third annual Central Jersey Invitational Wheelchair Meet Saturday, April 19, at the Dunn Sports Center in Elizabeth.

The all-day competition is being co-sponsored by Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountainside and the Sharon Frant Brooks, Sharon Mankoff and Andrew Chasnovitz, meet coordinators, and the event, which was first started in 1976 to give physically-disabled children and adults an opportunity to compete in various athletic competitions, has grown tremendously.

They expect entrants from Delaware, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Maryland as well as New Jersey and New York.

Scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m., the event will be run under the rules established by the Tri-State Wheelchair Athletic Association, a division of the National Wheelchair Athletic Association.

Events will include the slalom, softball throw, swimming, track, weightlifting and table tennis in three age divisions: Junior (10-15), Adult (16-60) and Masters (60 and older).

The invitational competition serves as a warmup for coming regional and national meets. National and international wheelchair champions, as well as novices, will compete April 19.

Medals and trophies will be awarded for first, second and third place, sportsmanship and best all-round athlete.

Among the swimming events are the front freestyle, backstroke, breaststroke and butterfly. Track competition will include the 50-yard dash, slalom and relay races. There will also be a softball throw and an open mile run.

The wheelchair athletes have grown in number and level of competitiveness is very high at these meets, particularly among the children, the organizers noted.

Shared-time students, who attend local high schools for part of their studies, are tested at their respective schools for enrollment.

Applications must be completed prior to testing. Kaczmarek explained that an adult who is interested in applying to the center is asked to contact the admissions office at 689-2000.

Fifteen programs, including vending machine mechanics, appliance repair, radio-TV repair and beauty culture, are offered at the school which boasts low tuition with top placement records. A new program in medical mechanics will be offered in the fall.

Clearbrook homes astride a golf course

Joining the tremendously popular Clearbrook adult condominium community, the newest series of Clearbrook units, "Fairway Homes"—set astride their private golf course—is nearing completion. Spacious and livable in concept, "Fairway Homes" are enclosed for additional livability features, usually found in the most exclusive and costly homes. John B. Anderson, vice president and director of marketing for Guardian Development Corporation, and developers and sponsors of Clearbrook (Morroe Township) for active adults over 45, announced enthusiastic response to this new section.

An electric radiant ceiling heating system is one of the unusual luxury features offered. Throughout the interiors of the homes, separate room thermostats control invisible energy-efficient heat, providing new dimensions in economy and heating comfort. The heating system heats by electric current panels in the ceiling, banishing a major source of grime and dirt in the home. The system eliminates blowers and the air currents that circulate dirt. Gone are the dusty baseboards and blowerdrift-stream drapes and curtains. With no heat outlets and blowers to worry about, virtually unobstructed wall spaces are conveniently located. Each room can be kept at an individual comfort range with individual thermostats to suit different needs. Uniform heat travels invisibly to every corner, warming each object as though it were being touched by sun. Designed to operate at low temperature, the radiant heating system distributes heat uniformly and economically and is clean and safe.

Free-standing wood-burning fireplaces, spacious living and dining areas and large kitchens—with deluxe furniture-finished kitchen cabinets and stainless steel sinks with "instant" hot water faucet, built-in garbage disposal and oil over range with exhaust hood vented to the outside—will satisfy the most discerning home buyer.

The new models—Belair, Meadowbrook, Edgemoor and Zamarack—boast luxurious light, airy oversized bedrooms with massive chest space, full baths with ceramic tile floors and full vanities with integral

Townhome's appeal cited for high sales

The combination of recession and inflation has curtailed home buying in the metropolitan area but not at Panther Valley, the private luxury residential environment in Allamuchy. There, the same factors are being credited for the sales success of the community's three varieties of townhomes.

"The opportunity to own a home within Panther Valley for as little as $63,740 continues to be compelling," explained Charles Kneller, sales manager for the 1,500-acre community off Exit 18 of Route 95. "Many also have especially true for singles, newly-married couples and older couples."

"The young people, Kneller stated, value the opportunity to live at the top while they're on the way up. The adults, meanwhile, appreciate the appropriate spaciousness of the townhomes, the community's security and maintenance services provided all townhome residents—the snow removal, road work, landscaping, lawn care, exterior home maintenance and upkeep of community recreational facilities overseen by the homeowners' association.

"In effect, the townhome residents enjoy the same benefits and pleasures as the residents of the Panther Valley single-family homes which are priced from $142,900.

They have the use of their own neighborhood tennis, platform tennis, swimming pool and children's playground facilities. They have the same encompassing views of the surrounding hills and mountains.

Here we go again, New Jersey.

It's the same old story. The recession and inflation has curtailed home buying in the metropolitan area but not at Panther Valley, the private luxury residential environment in Allamuchy. Women in key posts at Archie Schwartz

Real estate traditionally has been considered a man's field but in the past few years the ranks of women have been on the upswing. Due to the changing attitudes of society, women are electing to return to the work force in even greater numbers than ever before.

Elmer Schwartz, president of the Archie Schwartz Company, East Orange-based realtor, realizes this, and commended his staff for its outstanding expertise.

"These women are very important to the company," he said. "In the last few years while the company has doubled its operations, these women have maintained a balance with our office personnel and outstanding clientele that is a crucial element in our success."

Most businesses do not acknowledge the importance of women in business, but I know I can't do it alone in seeing that women with intelligence and integrity are vital to the success of any company."

SUBURBAN REAL ESTATE MART Wishnik cites price spiral

800 sales last year amazed Pine Ridge

It was quite a first year for Pine Ridge Hovnanian's adult condominium community in Florida's Palm Beaches. With home prices, mortgage rates, maintenance costs and virtually everything else continuing to rise, the community's sales were up and down the East Coast. Pine Ridge proved to be a glowing exception. Week after week, people continued to visit the Pine Ridge sales centers in New Jersey and Florida, and more than 800 purchases were made during Pine Ridge's first year, nearly 500 of them coming from the Garden State.

"We knew we could offer more home for the money than anywhere in the market," John Strapa, executive vice president, said. "And Hovnanian Enterprises has had an outstanding million of purchased mortgages."

The New Jersey-based company continued to produce the most loans in its home state—more than $50 million of the closings, followed closely by California ($45 million) and Florida ($42 million). The company believes that its total closings are larger than those of any other mortgage banker headquartered in the state.

Based on current servicing additions, the company expects to reach $600 million in servicing this month.

Berg unit sets mark

Margaret & Co., a mortgage banking firm headquartered in Perth Amboy, completed its fiscal year with record mortgage production. The company, which has operations in six states, closed just under a quarter of a billion dollars in residential mortgages secured by one to four-family homes.

According to Felix Beck, board chairman, the dollar volume of closings ($248,496,000) was primarily produced by the company's 14 branch offices. "The company's progress in mortgage origination and servicing, our two primary areas of operations, continues to advance strongly and steadily," Beck said.

"The decade of the 1970s has been outstandingly productive for us."

According to the chief executive, the mortgage closings included $211 million generated by Margaret's offices in Everett, Wash., covering themselves and $37 million of purchased mortgages.

One Million A Day In Mortgages

More impressive when you consider that Kennedy Mortgage is less than five years old. And still more impressive given the current economic pressures on the mortgage and real estate industries.

But $1,000,000 a day is more than just numbers. It symbolizes the fact that we, at Kennedy, are making mortgage commitments and closing loans that others can't or won't make commitments to the home buying public.

We're doing it with innovation, ingenuity and the rapidly changing industry of which we are a part; and excited about the promise of a richer era for our clients and us.
