Dear S.S.: I can understand your not getting a clear-cut answer from the Social Security office because I don't find such a clear-cut answer for your case in the Social Security handbook. But I think the general rule is that

What I do find in the handbook is a section. Chapter 5, No. 521, which states that any person entitled to disability benefits must notify the Social Security Administration if certain conditions change. And this includes increased in-

Only to percent of senior citizens may inquire about cosmetic plastic surgery, but that is no indication that only 10 percent are interested in it. There is no point in quizzing a doctor about that which is too costly to afford: Let the price drop to say $200 per face-lift, and watch the line form, men included.

Another factor may the doctor's attitude toward plastic surgery for the ag-ed. If they are busy with heart disease, diabetes, etc., they tend to become impatient about the subject.

When I queried my medical doctor about a good plastic surgeon, he brushed the question aside. Later, he changed his thinking about the benefits of plastic surgery to the morale, and gave me a surgeon's name, but the prices have risen to such heights that I can no longer afford it.

I'm not sure that it is entirely vanity which is the source of the desire for cosmetic surgery. Americans are perfectionists. We want our cars, yards, houses, clothes, to look as well as can be managed. Why not our faces?

I'll wager that in the future (but not in my time! · doctors will accept plastic surgery as an asset in the complete well-being of senior citizens. - M.G.

The picture sleeves of records by certain groups and individuals are often in demand. Some of these include Annette Funicello, the Beatles, the Beach Boys, Elvis Presley and the Rolling Stones. Not all their picture covers are valuable, but many are.

Some people seek picture sleeves solely on the basis of the illustration. They might pay a premium for one just because they like the way it looks. Others specialize in offbeat artists. novelty covers, female groups, punk bands, or some other category of pic-

The condition of a sleeve will affect its value A common flaw on many sleeves stored with records in them is a "ring" mark. Therefore, most collectors believe it is best to remove a 45 rpm record from its sleeve and store both separately. For added protection, put the sleeves in plastic bags. Garage sales and flea markets are worth many times that amount 1 However, to get the most for those you have, it's a good idea to sell directly to collectors. You can do this at one of
