More witnesses will be called for mall

BY PHILIP HARTMAN
Additional witnesses will be called before the Planning Board Aug. 25 to testify for the applicants, Bambergers and Alexander, on the proposed 725,000-square-foot shopping center off Route 22 and South Springfield Avenue. Because of scheduling problems, Robert Podvey, council for the applicants, said he did not know which witnesses would appear and what they would testify on. Audience members complained that this would be unfair—questions could not be prepared because no one would know what expert testimony would be given. However, the board backed Podvey when it admitted the change in the meeting date this month, from the 28th to the 21st, had affected the scheduling of witnesses who had to come from long distances. Last week, the board heard testimony from David D. Bender, senior vice president of Cross & Brown Company on Mountain Avenue in Springfield, who discussed the viability of possible uses for the site given the current real estate market in the area. He testified for the developers of the site, General Growth of Des Moines, Iowa. The realtor discounted office and industrial uses claiming that the current market would not support the leasing of office space and demand is not sufficient for an industrial complex there. "Springfield can support an office leasing market, but not larger corporate users," Bender contended. The realtor said that 30,000 square feet, or the "absorption limit," is the maximum office space that could be built at the site within one year. Any complex larger than that would not lease in the current market, he maintained. He added that because the site is on Route 22 and not near any major roads, it would be undesirable for office traffic and the rents for an owner would be less than in other areas. The mention of rents brought questions from the board. "What about (rents) in high financing for shopping center tenants?" asked board member Robert Wetcheck. "The developer feels he can get the tenants," Bender responded. However, he added, "that is not a question for me." Bender said the mall would be fully rented because of its location and that retail rents, although substantial, "would compare favorably to other locations (malls)." When Wetcheck asked about vacancies in other malls in New Jersey, Bender responded that with this site, market studies by the developers show that the demand is there. "You do have a mall developer with interest in developing the site—that is a market demand." Bender also gave examples of local office and industrial complexes which are successful at their present locations, but would not, he said, be practical at the Route 22 site. Allied Chemical in Morris Plains, which has about 5,000 employees, is there because it is within three minutes of Route 207, he explained. Off Route 22, it would be impractical, according to Bender. H. Harding Brown, council for Valcor Engineering located next to the mall site, asked the realtor if he knew of any site in the area capable of supporting a 200,000 to 300,000-square-foot commercial development. Bender said, "I don't think there is existing zoning; I don't think the market could support a building of that size." He added that there is a 12-acre site off Route 24 that could be developed as a light industrial area. The only other remaining large tracts of land are the Hardsville Quarry, owned by the state, and the Baltusrol golf course. At the meeting it also was revealed that in 1975 a filer was sent to local brokers giving the location, size and taxes for the proposed mall site. It was received by the Real Estate Board of New York, the Society Board of Realtors of New Jersey and all industrial realtors in the area. There were no offers to buy the site, according to Podvey. "Basically, there was no interest for industry, for offices," he said. He said the property was taken off the sale lock in 1979.

Local people: mall opinions

Since February, as the Planning Board and Bamberger's-Alexander's people have bickered about evidence on the proposed shopping center off Route 22, audience members at the hearings, residents of the surrounding area and local merchants have been forming their own opinion groups which were evident at the meeting last week. In one corner of the school cafeteria at the Florence Gaudineer School sat about 50 pro-mall people donning "I'm for the Mall" buttons. Surrounding them, and dominating the crowd of about 250 people, were the anti-mall forces, armed with "Stop the Mall" buttons. In their arsenal that group also has funded a campaign to buy lawn signs objecting to the project, has distributed petitions and has taken a post office box for contributions toward their literature. Outside the township, the Westfield Town Council appropriated $20,000 last month to aid what it called "mounting community opposition" to the shopping center. According to reports, that money will probably be used to hire expert witnesses to plead the town's case before the Springfield board. In addition, the Westfield Chamber of Commerce and the towns of Kentonville and Cranford have publicly opposed the mall. Among individuals, some of the strongest comments have come from shop owners who operate near the mall site. "Of course I'm against it. It could put me out of business," complained Frances Rothman, owner of the Bookstore of Springfield. Rothman, who operates out of the Echo Plaza shopping center across Route 22 from the property, added that she was against conglomerate chains which are "very destructive." "All these people who are tax paying and independent would be out of business—its preposterous." She said that most people, the property owners, are the ones most disturbed by the possibility of a mall being built. Diane Wilkowsky, manager of Carol Lane Card and Gift Shop in the plaza, agreed that a mall would damage businesses. She also said that most people seem to be against construction of the mall. "Everybody (store owners) is against it here. We go through so many petitions, which is about 10 sheets with 30 spaces." Wilkowsky said, however, that the card shop would probably be moved into the mall if asked to by the developers. "From what I've heard, most of the store owners are against it," according to George Pappadopoulos, the owner of the Plaza 22 Restaurant and Coffee Shop. "I could move into it, but why should I?—I'd vote against it."

Seymour Dychtvald, owner of the Dress Rack in the plaza, said the community "would have to have its head examined" if it allowed the center to be built. "There is no question, two of the stores (Bambergers' and Alexander's) are two of the world's worst from every angle and for what little they do for a community." He added: "However, if a mall did come in I would jump right along with it. I do feel malls have higher quality operators." Some had other opinions. "Yeah, why not? You don't have to go all the way to Woodbridge," said Clara Juliano of Central Avenue in Westfield. S.C. Fulton of High Point Drive said he has "no objection against it." "We're going to get a lot of traffic, but we're going to get it anyway." He also said that the mall would be a convenience. Jim Fenton of Hedgewood Road said he was "pretty well neutral. I'm not sure if it will help us or hurt us." Albert Preziosi of Raccoon Hollow in Mountainside said the mall might improve traffic on Route 22. "If they put it in they will have to make improvements to 22, which is one of the worst highways."

CONTROVERSY—Signs shouting this message have been sprouting on township lawns since a "Stop the Mall" group was formed earlier this year. Other campaign paraphernalia, including buttons, are being used both by groups who oppose and favor the proposed mall off Route 22 and South Springfield Avenue. The next hearing date for that application is Aug. 25 at the Florence Gaudineer School. (Photo by Philip Hartman)

Contract problems lingering

"Although some matters have been agreed upon between the parties, the economic provisions of a settlement remain in dispute," George Gomes, Negotiations Committee chairman for the Board of Education, stated this week in reference to stalled contract talks between the board and the Springfield Teachers Association. The board announced last week that joint notices of impasse had been filed by the board and teachers with the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC). According to a board release, the association's last proposal was for a 12 percent increase of the base salary of all teaching staff members. Also unresolved is the association's proposal that the work time for teachers be precisely defined with the beginning and end of the work day specified. The teachers also are seeking other time off provisions as well as extra pay provisions for certain activities. "The board's settlement proposal was a salary increase of seven percent on the base salary of teaching staff members, but with a maximum increase of $2,000 to any one teacher," Gomes said. "The board also has agreed to increase the hospitalization benefit covering teachers to provide for an improved 1420 series, a state-mandated benefit package for public employees. The board's cost for improved hospitalization coverage for teaching staff members is about $20,000, the equivalent of 1 percent of base salary." The board has taken a position that "Teachers are hired to perform all services which are required of them to teach effectively and to care for the safety and welfare of the students of the community without regard to the structure of time. It is the board's position that we expect no more of teachers than the services they performed in the past—but we expect no less." In the negotiations, Frank J. Peterpaul of Yashch, Peterpaul & Clark is representing the board. Ronald Harvey of the New Jersey Education Association is representing the teacher's group. No date has been set for teacher mediations, according to Dr. Fred Baruchin, superintendent of schools. He also said he expects teachers to work this fall even if a contract agreement is not reached. The mediation date for secretaries, who also are at impasse with the board, is set for Aug. 25. "The Public Employment Relations Commission has appointed a mediator to meet with both parties. The mediator's role is to help the parties move closer together in order to bring about a settlement," Gomes explained. In other business, board member Nancy Heller has announced her resignation effective July 30. "An ideal board member," according to Baruchin, "she is dedicated, child centered and it has been a pleasure working with her. All of the board members will concur on that." The board will accept applications next month for the position. Applicants can apply at the board offices at the Raymond Chisholm School on Shunpike Road. They should be 18 years of age or older and a Springfield resident for more than two years.

YMCA spreads appeal

SPRINGFIELD—The YMCA, the people who invented physical fitness and health programs and have been doing them for over 120 years... has taken another step toward bringing its fitness message to the modern woman. These companies are among a growing number of corporations that recognize the importance of making available a convenient fitness program for their employees. The Y's JOY program certainly fits the bill. Taught by well-trained, qualified instructors who know how to make exercising fun, this program incorporates a stimulating blend of exercise that promotes cardiovascular conditioning, flexibility and muscle tone development. Corporate employees interested in enjoying their lunch hour or taking the Y's JOY class after office hours at their own facility are invited to contact the Summit YMCA, 67 Maple St., at 273-3330. "Working women need to be especially fit," commented JOY Director Midge Meyerowitz. "If your time is at a premium, in only two hour-long classes a week, we'll help you get into shape and then teach you to taper down to maintain... ready to enjoy the rest of the day or evening." Meyerowitz said that any company can derive benefit from offering an on-site fitness program like JOY to its employees. "Reinvigorated, invigorated workers are just bound to be more productive," she said. "Working women need to be especially fit," commented JOY Director Midge Meyerowitz. "If your time is at a

Orbach singing career set to skyrocket

BY PHILIP HARTMAN
New York City has become the home and testing ground of singer's songwriter Judy Orbach, who graduated Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in 1972 and whose parents still live in Springfield on Shunpike Road. Orbach, who said she is close to signing a recording contract with a major record label, appeared last night at the Club Bened in Sayreville and is looking toward more area engagements with her group, "The Judy Orbach Band." Since 1976, when Orbach moved to Perry Street in Greenwich Village, she has been appearing at the "Improvisation," a 4th street and 9th Avenue club which features comedians and musical acts attempting to make way into the entertainment business. She also was a manager at the club for three years. Orbach's chance to sing at the "Improvisation," as she calls it, came really by chance when she, her mother and a few friends happened in one night about seven years ago. "I was sitting there watching other singers and said, 'Ha, I can do this.'" The group called the club's manager to their table and Orbach told him "I can sing," whereupon the manager told her to get up and do it. She did. Orbach was hired as a "graveyard shift hostess," which meant working 11 p.m. to 4 a.m. and providing some of the night time entertainment. Since then she has been "totally enchanted by the whole thing." Besides the "Improvisation," she also sang at several other clubs, including the now defunct "Trudy Heller's" in New York and "Pips" in Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn. "After performing in relative obscurity for the past seven years, the former Springfield resident said she really got serious about a year ago when "I got my confidence back." During this past year she has completed her band, lead guitarist Chuck Montgomery, bassist Jonathan Katz, pianist Paul Greenwood and drummer Jeff Moser. The group's current act, "Comedy of Errors, Part II," features mostly original songs written by Orbach. "Pop rock," somewhat influenced by Carole King, Laura Nera and Barbara Streisand, is how the singer describes her music. Orbach said she listens to those artists because "I was star struck; I still am." She added that her dream, to someday be the star, may have gotten a boost last month when independent producer Michael Austin began handling her career. "He just came out and said, 'what are you doing with your music,' and it went from there, according to Orbach." "In three weeks my life has changed a lot." The 27-year-old brunette's songs, albeit late last and love themed, are biographical. Relationships and sometimes depression provide the inspiration for most of her writing. "I write very well when I'm feeling miserable. When depressed, I come up with great songs. Writing is an outlet, you know. When I'm happy, content, I don't feel the need." "Up to now, past unhappiness" has helped her author about 40 compositions. "I'm not real good with the theory part of it," she admitted. "Usually, I have everything written in the key of C and then have it transposed." Orbach gives much of the credit for her singing career to her parents, both of whom were entertainers, and the music and drama department at Jonathan Dayton. Before moving to Springfield when she was 13 years old, she performed in school plays in Newark, where she lived the early part of her life. "I remember the first time we moved to Springfield. It was the first time we lived in a house. In the Newark apartment you couldn't walk heavy; I painted my way through the house running and screaming." "Springfield was difficult the first year. The thing that got me over was I joined the choir. At the Christmas concert I was given the solo... when I came back to Spanish class they all started applauding. After that it was easy." While at Dayton she appeared as Nellie Farlow in "South Pacific." "I learned a lot from the man," Orbach remembered. She also credited Ed

JUDY ORBACH

Shirley of the Dayton music department for much of her success in that field. At the end of her high school career, when she also was a member of the drama club and thespian society, she was voted the most talented senior at Dayton. From there, she went to Rider College in Lawrenceville which she left after one year. Orbach also remembers the days performing with her mother in a group called "The Entertainers." That was a musical comedy act of five women which played for many of the local Jewish organizations. She also has a brother who is an actor. "I love hearing the applause—when I'm singing, I'm singing about my life. Since music is universal, I want to touch a lot of people."

S.A.T. prep is scheduled

A "High Scores S.A.T. Preparation Workshop" to prepare students for the Oct. 23 and Nov. 6 tests will be offered by the Summit Area YMCA on Aug. 10, 12, 17 and 19, 7-9 p.m. The "High Scores" workshop is designed to turn the challenge of the SAT into an opportunity for the student to successfully qualify for admission to the college of his or her choice. The workshop spotlights intensive review in the verbal and mathematics areas, understanding of key concepts and application of these to now and different types of questions. Also featured are test taking, timing and confidence building strategies and registration information and flyer, contact William Lovett or Rita Williams at 273-3330.

Simpson gets advisory post

Liz Simpson, chairwoman of the Springfield Recreation Commission and a Board of Education member, has been named the Interagency Recreation Advisory Council. The council represents all Union County towns and meets to discuss more effective recreation programs. The council also will compile a master calendar of recreation activities being held in the various municipalities and will share ideas for programming. Liz Simpson

"We're just thrilled!" the comment may have belonged to Coach Harry Weinerman, but it was certainly the unanimous sentiment of Springfield American Legion Post 22's baseball team, which won its first-ever Union County championship Sunday with a 5-0 victory over Clark. Post 22 will now move on to the state tournament. More details can be found on page 4.

Veteran population to decline in future

The number of living U.S. veterans will decrease by about 40 percent during the next 50 years, according to data released by the Veterans Administration.

The total veteran population, assuming no future U.S. involvement in armed conflict, will fall from the current level of 30 million to about 18.2 million by the year 2030.

The aged veteran population will grow dramatically during the next 20 years. Veterans 65 and older will increase from the present mark of 3.2 million to nearly 9.2 million before the turn of the century.

California is expected to maintain its position as the state with the largest number of living veterans, although its veteran total will fall from 3.3 million to an estimated 1.9 million by the year 2030. Alaska's veteran population will continue to be the smallest, falling to 24,200 in 2030.

New Jersey is expected to have 640,800 living veterans in 2030 and their average age will be 54.9.

The VA's projections of the number of living veterans cover each year from 1982 through 1995 and every fifth year thereafter up to the year 2030.

Prepared by the agency's Office of Reports and Statistics, these data show the number of living veterans worldwide by age and period of military service, and they further display the veteran population of each state and age.

In announcing the release of the data, VA Administrator Robert P. Nimmo pointed out that information of this type is essential to the VA to best address the needs of veterans.

"Effective management of the wide range of VA programs is greatly enhanced when a detailed profile of the veteran population is at hand," he said.

Commission established on state colleges' future

Chancellor T. Edward Hollander has announced the establishment of a commission on the future of the state colleges.

The commission will study the mission, governance and financing of New Jersey's nine state colleges. Focus will be on those areas which will enhance academic excellence at these institutions, which currently serve 84,000 undergraduates and graduate students.

At its April 16 meeting, the State Board of Higher Education adopted a formal charge to the commission, which is expected to submit its report by July 1983. The membership of the commission was appointed by the board at its meeting of June 18.

Hollander said that Dr. Calvin Lee, vice president for educational planning at Prudential Insurance Company, will head the commission. Anthony Cicatiello, president of Holt, Cicatiello, Neiswanger and Ross, will serve as vice chairperson. The executive director of the commission will be Dr. James Young, former provost of the Newark campus of Rutgers University.

Hollander said, "These three individuals offer the professional expertise and balanced backgrounds to lead a successful effort."

The Chinese Academy of Science is the nation's comprehensive research center of natural sciences in China with regional libraries in Wuhan, Shanghai, Chengtu and Lanzhou, and it serves as the nucleus of a network of 10 libraries with over 16 million items in their collections. Besides serving the research needs of the Academy, they serve in libraries, universities, factories and other government agencies.

While in China Father Sharp and Ven also toured several major academic research libraries and they report that they were received with great enthusiasm. Ven served as Father Sharp's translator and at each lecture they introduced Seton Hall University to their audiences through both words and picture displays.

The Seton Hall travelers also had the opportunity to pay a courtesy visit to the Chinese Academy of Science where they were received by Dr. Gao Shang Yin, the academic vice-president. Dr. Gao, a Yale-trained biologist, came to Seton Hall last year to formally sign a faculty-student exchange agreement which is now fully operative. Father Sharp and Ven also had the opportunity to inspect the library of the Beijing Institute of Foreign Trade, which also has an exchange program with Seton Hall.

Seton Hall began exchanging scholars with China in 1979 — the first American religious-affiliated university to participate in exchange activities. Since that time 10 Chinese and Seton Hall faculty and student participants in science, languages, and business have

Father Sharp said that one of the most pleasant aspects of his trip was the result in the donation by Seton Hall of a set of Chemical Abstracts to the Library of the Academia Sinica. These books date back to the first volume published in 1907 and encompass 72 years of vital information. Seton Hall will be able to donate this collection since its library now has the complete set on microfiche.

Seton Hall will play host to a group of visiting library personnel from the People's Republic of China at the end of this month when they begin a visit to the New York metropolitan area. The group will subsequently visit the Boston area and Washington, D.C.

Tong Zengqiang, vice director of the Library of Academia Sinica, wrote to Dr. Richard Connors, academic vice president at Seton Hall, and said of the visit by Father Sharp and Yen: "Their visit to China has won great success and made a great contribution to promoting friendly relations and opened the channels for further exchanges between our two libraries."

State's drivers given tips by motor vehicle chief

Residents needing to visit N.J. Motor Vehicle Agencies will receive better service if they arrive at off-peak hours, advised Clifford W. Sneider, director of the N.J. Division of Motor Vehicles.

The best time to arrive at the agencies is from 8:30 - 11 a.m. and from 2:30 p.m. Also, on the one night a week the agency remains open until 6 p.m., try to visit from 4:30 - 5:30 p.m.

The worst time to visit an agency is during the first and last days of the month, Sneider said, because that's when the last-minute rush hits. The same goes for the first and last days of the week, and at opening and closing, and also during the lunch period during the week.

Union College skills program has openings for 33 trainees

Thirty-three spots are open in clerical and bookkeeping training programs at Union College's Employment Skills Center, according to Dennis Madol, director of the center.

The center, which receives funding from Elizabeth and Union County CEYAs (Comprehensive Employment Training Agencies), conducts job training programs for unemployed and underemployed individuals at the college's Union Educational Center, 10 Butler St., Elizabeth. Approximately 200 individuals are enrolled in the center's programs on an ongoing basis.

The openings in the clerical training program are the result of recent "graduations" of trainees. A total of 33 clerical students has left the center over the past nine months for jobs or for additional clerical skills training. Twenty-eight of those positions remain open.

The bookkeeping program, initiated last spring, has openings for trainees.

UMDNJ lists results

Mammography's effectiveness in detecting early breast cancer clearly was demonstrated during a five-year screening of 10,250 women at UMDNJ/University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey in Newark. The screening program, funded by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute, was conducted in 29 regional centers.

During the screening, 137 cancers were detected—97 percent of them by mammography. Nationwide, 50 percent of the 3,557 breast cancers discovered were detected by mammography.

In the New Jersey program, 32 percent of the cancers were unnoticed by physical examination but were detected by mammography. Nationally, mammography detected 41.6 percent of cancers in cases where negative findings were made by physical examinations.

Speakers Hotlines set up give talks for inspections at NJIT

Students enrolled in New Jersey Institute of Technology's summer programs for pre-college students heard speakers from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and from IBM Corporation at a special assembly program last week.

Among the speakers were Daniel Thomas, coordinator of youth programs for the NAACP; Leroy Mobley and IT Childs, also of the NAACP; Margaret Townsend-Cooper, a recruiter from IBM; and Cynthia Pruitt, both alumni of NJIT presently employed by IBM. They discussed careers in industry and the role of the engineers.

Three hotlines have been established by the state Division of Motor Vehicles (DMV) which motorists can call concerning the temporary odd-even inspection system which goes into effect on Monday.

The numbers all are area code 609; they are 292-3586, 292-3540 and 292-0383. DMV staff members will be answering questions about the new system from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

Under the odd-even system, motorists whose cars are due for inspection after Monday and whose license plate numbers end in an even number will be required to have them inspected this year. Odd numbered plates and personalized plates without discussed careers in numbers will be inspected in 1983.
