PBA lists proposals

The executive committee of the Spr ingfield Policemen's Benevolent Association has approved the following proposals for submission to the ownship committee. Patrolman Jel frey Vreeland, PBA vice president, said he expects the PBA membership to approve the proposals next week.

The proposals stand as follows: •That the township fill the current patrolman vacancy on the police department immediately. That the township agree to maintain the 40-man level on the police department and add one additional officer each of the next five years.

•That with respect to police depart ment vehicles the township should take the following steps to increase the fleet. 1) The township should purchase two new marked radio cars immediately and retire only one of the current units, thus bringing the number of marked units up to six.

2) The township should purchase one new unmarked radio car for assignment to the detective division and keep all the current unmarked units bringing this level up to four. That one of the current unmarked units shoud be assigned to the patrol division, and that township should agree to maintain this level

3) That the police department station wagon (unit 73) should be marked with department insignias in the same fashion as other marked units. •That the lownship purchase all of

FDU receives Mellon grant

New Jersey's Fairleigh Dickinson University has joined a special group of colleges and universities to ive sills from the Andrew W-Mellon Foundation The grant of $350,000 will be used by the university to analyze the liberal arts programs on all three of its North Jersey campuses, in order to provide courses which will prepare a student to integrate liberal arts . lisciplines and apply that knowledge appropriately. The grant will also make possible oppor The grant will also make possible opportunities for faculty to consider new ways of using interdisciplinary tudies and teaching methods: Last year the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation con-

Fairleigh Dickinson University's tiberal arts colleges, Dr. Joan P. Bean of Teaneck-Hackensack, Dr. Frederick H. Gaige-of Florham-Madison and Dr. Michael S. Pincus of Rutherford. Since 1968, the miversity has had separate Maxwell Becton Colleges of Arts and Sciences on each of its three New Jerse campuses

University President Jerome M. Pollack, in asking the deans to develop the proposal, said "it was a natural collaboration for the deans, who have been dealing with the-need for more integrated courses of study which cross department and discipline lines and incorporate the newest research." Each dean solicited ideas from faculty to define more clearly what a liberal arts education must offer now.

The liberal arts colleges have experienced a pattern of enrollment decline over the past six years as student interest has shifted from liberal arts to career-oriented programs, especially business ad-The Mellon grant will provide for ninistration analysis of the required basic course of study of the three colleges, so that courses may be planned to connect the liberal arts disciplines with one another, and to incorporate knowledge about computers and how their use impacts on various subjects.

The proposed program, Dr. Pollack noted, offers undergraduate courses which will facilitate a student's ability to integrate liberal arts disciplines and also develop skills capable of addressing the problems of contemporary society. Every student, no matter what his or her major, will also gain experience with comlers, he said

While the number of liberal arts students is declining, the size of the liberal arts faculty has remained elatively constant. About half of the 540 faculty at Fairleigh Dickinson University teach in liberal arts olleges. To assist faculty to prepare for new teaching responsibilities, the university will offer seven seminars for liberal arts faculty over the next four ears on interdisciplinary studies. "Interdisciplinary applies to both method - the way in which faculty teach, generally using a team approach, and to content - integrating material from different disciplines and presenting ideas that cut across department lines. Another seven seminars from 1983-86 will focus on computers - on how to use them to enhance teaching capability, and on the ipmact computers have on various disciplines.

"The quality of our faculty is without parallel," Dr. Pollack concluded. "and I am particularly proud of the accomplishment of Deans Bean, Gaige and Pincus and their faculties, in conceiving and presenting this fine proposal which the Mellon Foundation endorsed."

second class matter at the Springfield, N.J. Post Office.

When Philip Feintuch and JoAnne Tedesco are installed on Jan. 1 at the Township Committee reorganization, residents should reorganize with them and help their effort to make Springfield a community that is safe to live in, free of prejudice and division, and responsive to the needs of its citizens.

Perhaps Springfield will never be a Shangri-La, but those are the stated goals of the new Republican administration, and with a some support from the citizenry, improvements could be made.

It is inevitable that changes will be made in the police department. Additional manpower may not be the Republican answer to a safer community; but deployment of traffic officers to dangerous intersections and streets, some rearrangement of personnel within the department and an open ear toward the safety needs of residents will strike a new attitude.

The next time a traffic officer is needed to help students cross in front of the Thelma Sandmeier School, or any other school, one may be assigned without parents having to make repeated appeals for two months.

To solve such problems, open forums have been promised on a regular basis at town hall. Citizens will have some recourse when their needs are not being met.

In addition, plans are being made for more and bigger community recreation activities. The recent Halloween painting of store windows is scheduled to become an annual event for all the children, adults and businesspeople of the township, as it should be. An upcoming Christmas tree decorating contest for children and the placement of a large menorah in front of town hall during Hanukah are other ideas that deserve support from residents.

The Republican majority-to-be has said it will do those and other things to improve and personalize the quality of Springfield life. We hope the residents of Springfield will hold them to those promises.

We urge the citizens to make use of an open town hall and participate in township activities; Those avenues for improvement will be there, but cannot succeed without the public lending support.

All of us are faced with shrinking pur-of our families on the other. Meeting our needs within a budget, whether it's running a household or a multi-million dollar road program such as the one I administer at the department, is a challenging and sometimes frustrating

Since New Jersey's Constitution was

All these and more are offered in the Travelearn program during January, 1963, by Kean College of New Jersey. The trips may be taken for graduate and undergraduate credit or for conti-nuing education. Participants are urged to do some pre-travel-reading andparticipate in individualized program-ming before the trips.

New this year are trips to Brazil, Peru, Nepal and India. Charles Longacre, recently retired Dean of Academic Administrative Services at the college, and Mrs. Longacre, a former teacher, will conduct the first. tour to Brazil and Peru. The trip will include visits to Manaus, an island in the jungle, where the Amazon River begins; Brasilia, the new modern city: SUS ш Ouro Preto, the largest 18th Century TH town in the world; and Rio de Janciro. Emphasis of the trip will be on natural history and culture. Two trips are planned to India. The first will be from Jan 3 to 21. including Nepal and the second from Jan. 3 to 23.

Foundation reelects Pass at its president

Mrs. Arline Pass of Westfield was recently re-elected president of the St, Elizabeth Hospital Foundation at the annual meeting in the Elizabeth hospital's board room. In addition to her responsibilities of presiding at all meetings and appointing committee chairpersons, she is an ex-officio member of the organization's six standing committees

Pass has been a member of the Foundation for 13 years and has served in many leadership capacities during that time. Under her leadership as president in 1980 and 1961, the Foundation raised $50,000 toward its $250,000 pledge to the Building Fund of the hospital, munities which

Animal group is inundated with beagles The Linden Pets Adoption Waiting Station has been "swamped" with beagles during the last month

The small, brown, black and white olored dogs were probably abandoned by area hunters who were dissatisfied with the dog's hunting performance, according Jeanne Astalos, group presi-dent. The shelter has six beagle dogs and the animal organization is desperately looking for good homes for

The shelter has a number of dogs to chose from. There is Fritz and Buddy, tri-colored and approximately two years old. Monty is a brown and white beagle who is a little larger than the normal size. He is also about two years

Betsy and Belle are tri-colored and are about one year old and Ruby, tri-colored, is about five years old. The latter is very complacent and chubby and would love to sleep in a warm living room

All the pets are fully innoculated, very docile and get along well with other_dogs. Anyone interested in_adop-, ting a beagle or any of the other waiting station dogs may call 499-9300 or visit the shelter which is located on Range Road, off of Lower Road, behind Koos Warehouse and Route 1 in Linden. The shelter is open on weekdays from 6 to 9 p.m. or on weekends from 9 a.m. to Special appointments may be set up. Messages may be left on the answering service if no one is at the shelter. Volunteers, donations and food always are needed. The mailing address is P.O. Box 470, Linden, 07036.

'Royal' meal offered at Ramada's Camelot

BY GAIL CASALE When one thinks back to the days that King Arthur and the Knights of the Round table lived, images of royalty and gallantry come into mind. These cound table rived, images of royalty and gallantry come into initia. These characteristics are personified through the satisfying experience offered at Camelot inside the Ramada Inn locafed on 36 Valley Road in Clark. Many pleasures await you inside King Arthur's Dining Room. A dimly lit atmosphere grace the decor featuring high-back chairs, wall plaques of crossed swords and coats of arms reminiscent of the restaurant's theme. Pure white tablecloths and brown cloth napkins further accent Camelot's harm and refinement.

The menu provides enough variety and versatility to please even the most demanding. Allow your taste buds to begin the Camelot venture with ap-petizers such as quiche lorraine, coconut shrimp or oysters rockefeller. Clams casino baked with butter and topped with smoked bacon and wine at your request is a rare delight worth sampling.

A house specially enjoyed by many a Camelot diner is the flambeed delights prepared tableside. Let Maitre d Sergio or another of Camelot's servers display their expertise in this culinary art.

Choose from six flambeed dinners including veal saltabucca, made of sauteed veal stuffed with mozzarella cheese and procuitto ham, served on a bed of spinach. Others are the roast long island duckling and Shrimp de Miguel composed of tender fresh shritnp, souteed in butter, spices, a pinch of white wine and sweet plum tomatoes that provide a deliciously creamy marinara sauce.

Other chef's specialties feature breast of capon cordon bleu and the highlighted Paella Valenciana. Served for two, this dish is made with rice, mussles, shrimp, clams, scallops, lobsters, combined with chicken and pork cooked in Camelot's unique sauce. This gourmet treat satisfies almost any kind of teste imaginable

Coinciding with the first rate quality prevalent throughout Camelot, the restaurant also offers the finest cuts of meat such as roast prime ribs of beef au jus and tender filet mignon. Crown the Camelot meal aptly with one of its tempting desserts. Select
