Township employees gain 8 percent wage hike

By LYNN JOFFE
The Springfield Township Committee approved a 2.5 percent increase in the 1983 municipal budget during a special meeting called Tuesday night. With the new 7.5 percent cap, township employees will see an 8 percent wage increase this year.

In a unanimous decision, the Township Committee voted to accept the increase and raise the municipal budget from its previous 5 percent limit.

A new law governing townships' budget caps allows a municipality the option of remaining within the percent budget cap, or raising the ceiling to 7.5 percent for 1983.

Within the revised law, known as the Implicit Price Deflator, previously existing exemptions such as utility costs, fuel oil, gas, water, electric and telephone costs in excess of $100,000 are included, as is a video game fee appropriation in the amount of $10,000. That amount is an estimation reached by the Township Treasurer in anticipation of monies to be received for 1983.

The municipal budget ordinance reads that the purpose of raising the cap is "in the interest of promoting health, safety and welfare of the citizens."

According to Mayor Bill Ruocco,

"It's a very good budget. One of the things about the budget is that we're able to keep our people working in town."

The formal introduction of the budget comes late in the year mostly due to red tape. "First of all, we had to wait for the approval of the flexible cap law," Ruocco said, "There were some items of a special nature that had to be approved by the state. Then we had some searching to do — where are we going to make cuts?"

"Since the state gave the extension, we took full advantage of it. There are cuts — throughout the budget. No one department was singled out. With the extra 2 1/2 percent we picked up $104,170.78. That money would otherwise have had to be cut out of the budget and would have resulted in some layoffs."

"There are basically no large increases. The largest increase is primarily in the wages category," Ruocco said.

"Each employee of the town got an 8 percent wage increase, within reason of the cap and we feel it is really one of the better raises we've given employees than when we were restricted with the 5 percent cap. It should give the employees some relief," Ruocco said.

Committeeman Stanley Kalish added, "The municipal budget is a small percent of the total tax. Most of the money is paid to the schools. The total tax consists of budgets of the municipality, school and county."

The next step will see the budget published by March 31. The final budget hearing has been scheduled for April 19.

Regional board ups budget 2.94 percent

By WICKI VREELAND

Dr. Donald Merachnik, Union County Regional High School District Superintendent of Schools, announced at a public hearing Tuesday night at Berkeley Livingston High School in Berkeley Heights that the 1983-84 budget will only have a 2.94 percent increase.

After careful examination of educational spendings, the business committee of the Regional Board of Education made strategic cuts in the four involved high schools that would be the least detrimental to students. One such cut will affect school athletics, who beginning in September will have to purchase their own athletic shoes. This move will represent a $58,000 savings to the District.

Attendance at Monday evening's meeting was comprised of administrators from the high schools, but few residents. The support of residents is needed on April 12 when the Board will vote on the budget.

The budget increase is set into a current expense figure of $15,605,554 which accounts mainly for salaries and student services, and a capital outlay figure of $199,400 which provides for improvements to district buildings and grounds.

It is expected that there will be a loss of 149 students next year due to decreasing enrollments. This fact, along with the need to save dollars, has forced the Board to reduce 17 positions on staff: 10 teachers, four library aides and three clerical workers and to drop eight course offerings: Cultural Anthropology, Creative Writing, Needlecraft, Acting, Home Decorating, Italian I in Governor Livingston High School and Hebrew I and German I in Jonathan Dayton only.

Added to the curriculum will be courses in Global Geography, Cooperative Home Economics and a pilot program offering Computer Science 1 to Freshmen at 7:30 a.m.

Other economy-minded tactics will be the consolidation of the summer school sessions into one building. This summer's program will be held at David L. Brearley High School, Kenilworth. And as instituted last year, transportation will not be provided to any student within a 2 1/2 mile radius of the school.

Improvements at the four high schools have been allocated for the 83-84 school year. Renovation of the hockey field and repairs and resurfacing of tennis courts are planned for David Brearley.

At Jonathan Dayton in Springfield, projects will include blacktopping under the bleachers and resurfacing the tennis courts, along with the purchase of a shed to store athletic equipment.

Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School in Clark will require installation of gas fired hot water heaters with timers, improvements to the exterior lighting and replacement of the front steps.

Governor Livingston High School in Berkeley Heights also needs heaters along with a lighting panel for the stage. A special project will require dirt to be filled in behind the bleachers to reinforce the embankment.

Dr. Merachnik said that the budget is "a very good budget. One of the things about the budget is that we're able to keep our people working in town."

The formal introduction of the budget comes late in the year mostly due to red tape. "First of all, we had to wait for the approval of the flexible cap law," Ruocco said, "There were some items of a special nature that had to be approved by the state. Then we had some searching to do — where are we going to make cuts?"

"Since the state gave the extension, we took full advantage of it. There are cuts — throughout the budget. No one department was singled out. With the extra 2 1/2 percent we picked up $104,170.78. That money would otherwise have had to be cut out of the budget and would have resulted in some layoffs."

"There are basically no large increases. The largest increase is primarily in the wages category," Ruocco said.

"Each employee of the town got an 8 percent wage increase, within reason of the cap and we feel it is really one of the better raises we've given employees than when we were restricted with the 5 percent cap. It should give the employees some relief," Ruocco said.

Committeeman Stanley Kalish added, "The municipal budget is a small percent of the total tax. Most of the money is paid to the schools. The total tax consists of budgets of the municipality, school and county."

The next step will see the budget published by March 31. The final budget hearing has been scheduled for April 19.

One bid is received for sale of Chisholm

By LYNN JOFFE
The local Board of Education has received one bid, by the St. Demetrios Greek Orthodox Church of 216 Clifton Ave., Newark, for the construction of a church and community center on the site of the Chisholm Tract.

The bid, for $202,056, was received during a special meeting called Monday morning, the bidder approached Board of Education Secretary Dr. Leonard DiGiovanni, with a bid of $202,056 for the 4.32 acre tract which currently houses the Raymond Chisholm School building.

However, contrary to board policy, the bid was not accompanied by a certified check. According to DiGiovanni, the legal implications must be "taken up with Board Attorney Seymour Margulies."

"Technically the board has the option to accept or reject all bids," DiGiovanni said. The board's decision on the bid was expected at last night's meeting.

The Board of Education's decision to sell the building came after a serious problem within the proposed budget was realized. With two board buildings (Chisholm and Edward Walton schools) nearly outphased due to decreasing enrollment, maintenance costs have been on the rise and so the decision to sell was reached.

Controversy concerning the building's future has become a major issue in town. Those involved have considered the outcome if the building should be sold to an outside agency as opposed to its remaining as township property. Residents agree they have already paid for the building once and are unwilling to pay for it again.

At this time, Board of Education offices are being relocated to the Walton School. The move should be finalized by the first week in April. The board offices will join the Dyke Deaf Youngsters (Deserve Early Education)

Last week board members voted to restore the Minimum State Aid for the full amount of $202,056. Approval came after eight members voted for the restoration with Board President Myrna Wasserman abstaining.

According to DiGiovanni, "As a result of the legislation raising the income tax and sales tax, they (the legislators) felt that the minimum aid money should go only to the restoration of cuts. Out of the $202,056 restored by virtue of the law, the town will receive about $68,688 in terms of tax relief."

According to DiGiovanni, the County Superintendent will allow only $133,370 to be directly restored to the 1982-83 budget due to the actual fiscal need. DiGiovanni said the difference in monies is made up of items that are not being used — Caldwell School buses, fuel oil and cafeteria services.

The 1st aid squad seeks volunteers

A special meeting was called recently by the captain of the Springfield First Aid Squad, Liz Simpson, to discuss the severe shortage of members for the day shift.

Due to the shortage, the first aid squad might be forced to cutback on its free service of 24 hours a day, every day. The first aid squad is composed entirely of volunteers: housewives, business people, teachers, students, etc.

The first aid squad is looking for volunteers. For further information and applications, call Springfield Police headquarters at 376-0400.

WELCOME INSPECTOR—Springfield's new Building Inspector, Matthew Ciarello keeps himself busy checking blueprints for a new construction. Ciarello said he's "happy" to be here in town and looks forward to meeting new applications coming in all the time." Ciarello said.

New building inspector fills vital township role

By LYNN JOFFE
Nearly three weeks into work, Springfield's new Building Inspector Matthew Ciarello said he is "happy and very, very busy" meeting people and reviewing the various construction going on around town.

"I feel fortunate to be working in Springfield. There are very qualified people here and that helps a great deal."

A Bound Brook resident, Ciarello said his interest in the field began many years ago. As chief superintendent of his uncle's construction firm, Ciarello said "I've been involved in building thousands of homes and apartments. I was raised in the construction industry."

"Over the past 20 years I've worked for four different municipalities — Bound Brook, Somerville, Middlesex and Roseland. As a result of having too many licenses, a lot of towns needed my services because they couldn't find people to meet the criteria of the state," he said.

The list of state licenses Ciarello proudly displays is impressive. "I'm licensed as a construction official, building subcode official, building inspector, fire protection inspector and fire subcode official."

As building inspector, Ciarello said "We do everything in this day and age. Since the adoption of the new building code, it has become a very specialized field. To become certified by the state, you need licenses."

"The amount of activity in Springfield is very challenging. In addition, there is a lot of administrative work. I'm responsible for the functions of each separate bureau."

"Springfield has a very stringent property maintenance code. Its intent is to maintain personal pride in the municipality," Ciarello said.

"The position of building inspector is very, very important. We are usually the ones who must solve the problems in the total construction and enforcing the building codes. The buck stops here."

"I used to be that there was little concern for consumer protection. We are now in a better position to protect the public than we ever were before."

"In this department you're never finished with your work. There are always loose ends — so much to do with new applications coming in all the time." Ciarello said.

At home with his wife, Helen and three sons Matthew, Stephen and John, Ciarello said he keeps himself busy with woodworking "I like to work with my hands designing and woodcutting to get a final product."

Ciarello holds a degree in architecture and served in the Korean War. He was awarded a Bronze Star for serving "above and beyond the call of duty."

As far as his work is concerned, Ciarello said, "the public should realize that the building code says what it says and must be complied with. I'm looking forward to a very positive relationship with the people of Springfield."

Rajoppi gains Dem backing

Joanne Rajoppi of Springfield has received Democratic Party support as the organization candidate in her bid for the Union County post of register of deeds and investigator.

The Democrats also picked Brian Fahay of Westfield, Michael LaPola of Elizabeth and Ronald Brown of Kenilworth as the organization candidates for the Union County Board of Freeholders.

Rajoppi, who heads her own association, is a former chairman of the Union County Board of Freeholders, and was an assistant secretary of state in New Jersey.

9 gypsies are charged in liquor store robbery

A band of nine Illinois gypsies, charged with stealing $761 from a local liquor store Friday, have been released from Union County Jail, Springfield police said.

According to reports, the Chicago and Skokie residents arrested and charged were: Bato Petrov, 26; Mita Pavlov Petrov, 21; Slobodan Martinov, 22; Nicholas Grucic, 25; Luba Denilov, 22; Meci Petrov, 18; Rubila Pavlov, 33; Lilana Martinov, 25, and Peroska Denilov, 40. Three children were reported present at the scene.

Police said several suspects distracted the store manager while others made their way into the office area of Buy-Rite Springfield Liquors, Echo Plaza, at about 12:45 p.m. and forced open a safe. When the store manager realized the theft, he immediately flagged down Patrolman David Hartong in a nearby patrol car and pointed to the suspected cars.

Hartong chased and stopped one car on Route 22 in Mountaineide; then he sent out a county alarm. The second car was stopped by Berkeley Heights police on Sterling Road in Warren. The stolen money was recovered, police said.

It was discovered that Mita Pavlov Petrov and Peroska Denilov were fugitives from Georgia, according to reports. Springfield Municipal Court Judge Malcolm N. Bohrod set bail at $1,000 each, police said.

Escaped Mountaineide jail, was arrested earlier this month in connection with eight Springfield home burglaries and numerous other incidents reported throughout several eastern states, police said.

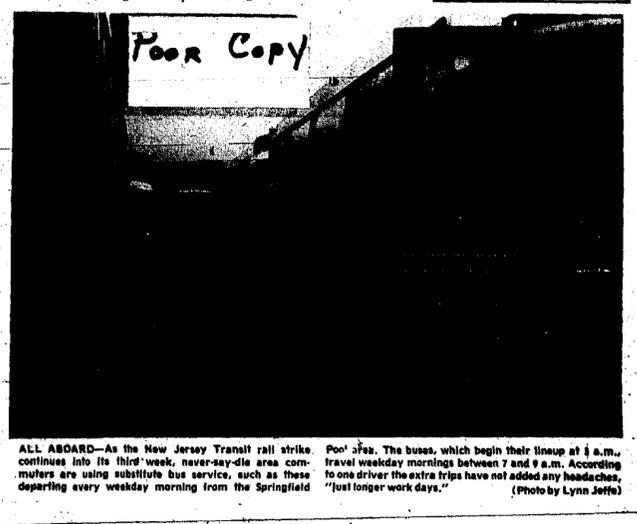

According to reports, Zdyb and Bernard Annicciarico of 41 Poplar St., Jersey City, were arrested on Jan. 11 by Mountaineide police for a Springfield home burglary.

Police said it was discovered they were in the possession of stolen jewelry and a New Jersey driver's license which belonged to a deceased Springfield resident. This discovery led police to the house, where they realized it had been broken into.

Both were charged with burglary, theft, of movable property and conspiracy, police said.

Zdyb, who escaped the Mountaineide jail cell, was recently picked up in Union Beach. She told police of seven other house breaks she had performed since last July, police said.

In total, Zdyb is charged with eight burglaries in Springfield, two in Mountaineide, one in Watchung, one in Hillside. Police said there are holdings on her from Essex, Bergen, Somerset and Monmouth counties; as well as Vermont, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York state, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

ALL ABOARD—As the New Jersey Transit rail strike continues into its third week, never-say-die area commuters are using substitute bus service, such as these departing every weekday morning from the Springfield Pool Deck. The buses, which begin their lineup at 8 a.m., travel weekday mornings between 7 and 9 a.m. According to one driver, the extra trips have not added any headaches. "Just longer work days." Scene around the towns

That very special flagpole in last week's scene around the Towns is the one in front of Caldwell School in Springfield, as Barbara J. Reifsnider of Springfield pointed out. "It is quite famous because of the controversy over the painting of it," she recalled. "It is half white and half blue."

It's the only blue and white flagpole in town, Elizabeth Simpson, a member of the Springfield Board of Education, pointed out. Recalling the battle to keep Caldwell School open, she described it as "very special to many people in Springfield," because "it signifies 'people power' and the saving of a school."

She added: "The painting of the pole was only one of the many rebuffments to the institution by volunteer concerned citizens, saving the Springfield Board of Education enormous amounts of money."

"The first time I saw this flagpole," wrote Susan D'Andrew of Springfield, "was in 1955 when I entered kindergarten. And my children now pass the same. Hopefully this flagpole will always be there to remind us of the wonderful historic town we live in and can always be proud of."

Several "graduates" who were at Caldwell much more recently than 1955 also wrote.

For example, there was Stephanie Ruelke. "I am 12 years old in 7th grade, and I live in Springfield," she wrote. "I have lived here for six years. It is the flagpole outside of Caldwell School. This is my first year and I'm positive I'm right. I still go here every day to pick up my brother."

Susanne Rendeiro, also in the 7th grade, was another who recognized the flagpole in front of Caldwell School. "I should know, because I went to that school for six years," she wrote. "And though she is no longer a student at Caldwell, I pass the school every day," she added.

April Fool!

In just a little more than two weeks — on April 1 — the 5-cent federal tax increase on gasoline goes into effect.

Coming at a time when gas prices are falling to levels most motorists would not have dared to dream of a year ago, the new tax should not be too hard to bear. And it does have a worthwhile purpose: the money raised will be distributed to the states for much-needed work on roads and bridges.

The construction work to be undertaken with the money will, authorities hope, make at least a small dent in the unemployment picture.

And, of course, our highways will be in better shape.

Or will they?

Those who think so ought to take a look at the date when the new tax goes into effect. It's April Fool's Day.

As the most recent New Jersey Automobile Club bulletin reminds us, there's a catch to this lovely picture.

Another federal law, the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982, also sets April Fool's Day as the effective date for one of its provisions. If New Jersey and the 13 other states which now ban twin tractor-trailers do not allow these vehicles to travel the interstate highways within their boundaries by April 1, 1983, they stand to lose their share of the money that will be raised by the new tax.

Twin tractor-trailers are behemoths that consist of two short semi-trailers, each about 27 or 28 feet long, coupled together and drawn by a truck tractor.

They can be expected to tear up our roads much faster than smaller vehicles, thus creating plenty of work to be financed with whatever new funds the state may get from the additional gas tax.

Of course, any New Jersey who has ever been out on any of our highways might protest that we don't need help in tearing up our roads and bridges. They're in bad enough shape already.

The situation is so serious that perhaps the state should consider refusing the federal money rather than forcing its people to accept these large trailer trucks on our already-crowded highways.

If New Jersey does accept the April Fool logic that would require it to let down the barriers against twin-tractor trailers, drivers of passenger cars will have to use extra caution. They will have to keep in mind constantly that in any two-vehicle collision, the occupants of the lighter vehicle are more likely to be injured or even killed. In short, they had better remember that the additional danger on our highways is no April Fool's joke.

Chisholm School

Recently our Board of Education has been agonizing over the disposition of the Raymond Chisholm School and its accompanying property. They have spent many hours in conferences and many a sleepless night.

The Chisholm building, because of its strategic location and diversified facilities, is an asset that should not be lost in Springfield. The building should be given to the town for use by such groups as the senior citizens and youth activities clubs. The adjacent land could be purchased by the town or offered for sale to other interested parties.

I find it difficult to understand why the Board of Education cannot see the only justifiable course of action that should be taken in this matter. The board members, although charged with the responsibility of providing the best education possible for our children, have a duty to make the right decision for the entire community.

Police officer does lots of 'site-seeing'

By PHILIP HARTMAN

David Allison, a Linden policeman, has been gaining notoriety among his friends in the Linden Police Department and the staff of this paper.

The 23-year-old N. Wood Avenue resident is on a tear. In the past several months, he has identified 11 "Scene around the Towns" photos in Suburban Publishing's weekly editorial page contest.

His site-seeing accomplishments have earned him the long-in-check title of "Mr. Scene around Towns" from his friends on the police force. For the press, he has become something of a celebrity because of his ability to identify landmarks, no matter how obscure they may be.

Allison began to play the game just by chance.

"He remembered, 'One day I was just sitting reading the Linden Leader in the eleven in town. I was flipping through it and the scene was in Linden, some round cement blocks. I thought, 'This is really stupid, who is going to look for this?'"

"So I work on the cops. I was going down to get past Memorial Park and I cut through it to the fire house on a little Cushman. It just so happened that I and the scene was in Linden, some round cement blocks. I thought, 'This is really stupid, who is going to look for this?'"

"I figured, 'What the hell, I'll send it in.'"

After that, the contest became child's play for Allison, who admitted that he was challenged to rack up as many

THIS MAKES ELEVEN—David Allison holds up the March 17 issue of the paper and identifies his 11th scene around the Towns. It's at Chestnut Street and 11th Avenue in Roselle, where the conversation takes place in memory of Alan Jay Chaney.

His new-found hobby has also garnered him a little kidding from other police force members.

"I've seen you go to the contest around town. I take a little kidding from the guys," he said.

DENTAL HEALTH MONTH—Dental assistant Rita Stein helped fourth graders at Caldwell School in Springfield get ready for dental health month. Eisenhower administration fit the time and feeling of country

By ROSE P. SIMON

SPRINGFIELD—Following are the reviews of the recently popular books at the Springfield Public Library.

"EISENHOWER AS LEADER: The Hidden Hand Presidency," by Fred R. Greenstein.

The general opinion concerning the Presidency of Dwight D. Eisenhower was that it was an effective one. However, Greenstein's book is a study of the President's leadership. He is described as being "perfectly suited for adapting to the president's role as a controversial chief of state and potentially divisive private minister."

Those who knew Eisenhower over a period of time admitted to his duality of character. The public man whose general public expressions indicated a vague, superficial thinker, and the private individual who was precise, forceful in writing and speech, and who was sophisticated politically. He could frequently fly into a rage, but wore no lasting grudges; he could feel contempt for a man, yet maintain a decent, cordial relationship with him.

In the army and in government, he tended to consult with subordinates, to explore their opinions, thereby eliciting warmth and loyalty. Confident and unpretentious, Eisenhower was usually able to rally and sustain public support. Greenstein itemizes the strengths and weaknesses of the President's style, indicating his accomplishments as well as his failures.

During his two terms he encouraged detente, resisted pressures to increase defense spending, and opposed nuclear war.

CHALLENGE TO INDUSTRY—"Fear at Work," by Richard Kazis and Richard L. Grossman.

Many communities are led to believe that any policies which may restrict corporate freedom or profits, will reduce employment. Business and government use this fact to manipulate public opinion on such issues as: Tax reform, civil rights, military spending, public health, and urban development.

The authors call this job blackmail, but they concentrate here on one "insidious" form which they dub "environmental job blackmail."

Schneider 'focuses' on students

MOUNTAINSIDE—As a candidate seeking re-election to the Mountain Board of Education on April 12, Linda Schneider says she has maintained a vision of which keeps the best interests of all the children in clear view when making decisions.

"I believe my tenure on the Board can be highlighted by this commitment. I made three years ago 'To keep the Board's focus of attention on the students in our district,'" said Schneider.

Having been a member and chairwoman of the Board's Education Committee for the past three years, Schneider has played a significant role in helping to improve the quality of education in the schools. Appraising almost all the district's curricula revisions, evaluating new textbooks in many subject areas, and supporting staff development were just a few of her responsibilities.

"In addition to having been student-oriented, I have kept watchful eyes on the needs of the community at large. With the diverse experiences I have had on the Board during my first term and with my continuing personal and professional commitments to help in the field of education, seeking a second term is a fulfillment of my vision for community responsibility in a positive way."

She says she seeks re-election to the Board of Education from a "sincere interest to maintain the quality educational system in Mountain. With the diverse experiences I have had on the Board during my first term and with my continuing personal and professional commitments to help in the field of education, seeking a second term is a fulfillment of my vision for community responsibility in a positive way."

CARE '4' issues views on board

"There is a pressing need to elect reasonable and competent middle-ground candidates to the Springfield Board of Education on April 12." This was the summary statement issued by Madeline Zamorra, president of the Dolores Johnson, and Kerr Faigler, all of whom have already received the support of the Civic League for a Responsible Education (C.A.R.E.).

"As between the ineffective and uncaring attitude of the incumbents running for reelection and the narrow sectional attitudes of the hard-picked C.A.U.S.E. slate of candidates, we believe that we offer the better responsible choices for all of Springfield's residents who are concerned about their children, their tax dollars, and the quality of education in our town," the C.A.R.E. candidates continued, "and there are many facts to support our position that the incumbent candidates and the C.A.U.S.E. candidates represent two undesirable ends of the spectrum."

Madeline Zamorra, president of the Dolores Johnson P.T.A., stated, "The incumbent candidates have shown an alarming lack of interest in both the safety and education of our children. For example, when many parents requested help from the members of the Board for a crossing guard at Sandmeier School, the parents went met with rebuffs and had to present their request to the Township Committee with no help or advice from anyone on the Board. Further, the Board has allowed Sandmeier School to become seriously overcrowded with no separate set or music room and some gym classes being held on the school stage and all of this goes on while the school remains open but virtually unused."

Furthermore, there are different subjects taught at the different elementary schools in Springfield; a common core curriculum should be implemented as soon as possible to correct this haphazard and

Library drive underway

SPRINGFIELD—The Friends of the Springfield Public Library are launching a community-wide campaign to collect 250 books of S&H Green Stamps. Converted to cash, these books will add $500 to the library's budget for book purchases.

Announcement of the start of the stamp drive was made by Mrs. Thomas Baer, chairman of the drive.

Full books, practically filled books or loose stamps will be welcome. The stamps should be mailed (or delivered) to The Library, 66 Mountain Avenue, Springfield. It is hoped that the stamp project can be completed by July 1.

All members of the Friends of the Springfield Public Library are involved in the stamp campaign. They will contact friends and acquaintances by mail and telephone to stress the library's need for additional funds.

Baer pointed out that the Friends' appeal provides an opportunity for a wonderful contribution to the library. The generosity of the stamp savers will be reported from time to time until the target date of July 1.

Social and church news

Chomets

"Chomets," says Rabbi Turner, "refers to grain, cereal and other such products not especially prepared for Passover. Not only may they not be eaten on Passover, according to the Jewish law, but they or utensils associated with their use may not remain in Jewish possession during the Passover period." Traditionally, says Rabbi Turner, "a life transfer of these items to a non-Jew may be arranged for this period without charge."

The Repeal of the First-Born will be held in the synagogue March 28 following the morning minyan service, which begins at 7 a.m. The repeat is scheduled to remove the fasting obligation from the first-born males or from fathers of first-born sons younger than 13 years of age. Otherwise, they would be required to fast before Passover (this year, March 30) in commemoration of the sparing of Jewish first-born in Egypt when the Angel of Death "passed over" them on the way to the slaying of Egyptian first-born.

As this is a minor fast, says the rabbi, "participation in a 'seder' mitzvah, a repeat associated with joy," removes the obligation for the fast. Completion of a tractate of the Talmud is an occasion for such a joyous repeat.

Rabbi Turner has announced that the Sivan this year will be conducted by one of the synagogue's young people, Mark Einhorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Einhorn, who will complete the study of a Talmud tractate on March 28.

Kuperstein concludes a stellar season

BY BOB BRUCHNER
Although he didn't bring home the state wrestling championship, it is impossible to deny the truly outstanding season pointed out by Matt Kuperstein of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School.

The 188-pounder captured the District 12 and Region 3 championships before falling Friday night in the quarterfinals of the state championships at Princeton University's Jadwin Gymnasium.

"It was just a good feeling," said Kuperstein of his remarkable advance in mat competition. The Dayton matman added he couldn't have done it without excellent coaching.

"Matthew represented Dayton Regional in a very fine manner," remarked Bulldog mat coach Rick Iacono. "He did a nice job and ended the season on a strong note."

"I thought Matt did an outstanding job," continued Iacono. "As I reflect, I am pleased with him. It is difficult to be a state champion in any sport, especially wrestling. I was not in the least disappointed."

Kuperstein topped in his opening round state match, downing Roxbury's Sean Henry, 10-4. The Bulldog took Henry down with a bear hug for four points. He then utilized a cross face cradle and earned an additional two points for a near fall.

Kuperstein controlled the match and went on to win by a comfortable margin.

In the quarterfinals, however, it was a different story against East Brunswick's Chuck Fedak.

Kuperstein opened up a two-point lead by taking his opponent down with a sparkling single leg drop. Fedak then managed to escape, but was unable to take Kuperstein down with an attempted double leg takedown.

Kuperstein then employed a defensive takedown on Fedak to the final period in recording a 4-1 lead. Fedak then reversed to earn two points near the close of the first period and, cut the lead to 4-3. Finishing the period flat, Fedak slipped a near side cradle on Kuperstein to take a 6-4 after the first period.

In the second period, Fedak put Kuperstein on his back twice en route to taking a 12-4 lead. The mat, Brunswick senior then fought off a furious Kuperstein effort in the final period in recording a 17-6 triumph.

Close loss 'disappoints' Miller; Ferrara is cited

BY TOM VANDEWATER
Ed Miller went further in the state wrestling tournament than any David Brearley Regional matman in history, but he wasn't satisfied.

"It was a very disappointing match," said Miller after he bowed, 10-9, in the heavyweight quarterfinals at Princeton Friday night to Hon Ippoliti of Highlands Regional, 10-9.

Miller, bound for the University of Pittsburgh on a football scholarship, had captured district and regional crowns en route to the state round in Princeton.

There was some good news for the Brearley mat program. Brearley wrestling coach Ronald Ferrara has been named Coach of the Year for District 11. It was announced by Joseph

"I was down by one point with 13 seconds left and I needed a takedown to get a point," explained Miller, "and he kept backing away from me until time ran out." The vocal crowd felt Ippoliti should have received a stalling violation which would have given Miller the tying point.

Bear bowlers show skills in finishing 3d

The David Brearley Regional bowling team, coached by Vincent Albano, completed its 1983 season by finishing third in the Mountain Valley Conference League. The team compiled a 117-91 record, behind champion Jonathan Dayton's 184-29.

"We were a young team and had a good year," said Albano. "The team bowed well and we attained our goal of third place."

The five-man team averaged approximately 800 per game. Tom Vandewater rolled for a 174 average, third high in the league. Elliott Wasky was fifth with 168 and Mike Tango was 12th at 155.

The Bears were second in total 200 games, recording 12 wins. Wasky led the team with five, followed by Vandewater with four, Tango 3, and Pat Gilbertson. Vandewater's 609 series was tops for the team, and fourth high in the league.

"Things look bright for next year. We are only graduating one senior and with the rest of the team improving, we'll have a good shot at the state," stated Albano.

We're inviting all the "gals" to this event. Bring your favorite guy, but this is really for you... a seminar devised by one of our mechanics for his wife in case she ever got stuck on the road with a minor repair and there was no service facility, or help nearby. It worked so well on one occasion for her, we found out about it and decided to hold a seminar on the subject for everyone.

You are all invited, Thursday, March 24th at 7:30 PM to watch our mechanics demonstrate first hand how to change a tire on a side road or in traffic, clean your windows so they don't streak, check your spare tires to maintain the right pressure, how to locate and change a fuse, when to add windshield-washer fluid, even how to check the oil, brake fluid, power steering fluid and a host of other items everyone who drives should know and understand. Refreshments will be served, there is nothing to buy, there is no charge for the seminar whatsoever... and we don't care if you purchased a car here... it doesn't even make any difference what type of car you are driving. it's not just good, it's the best!

You've probably looked at other insured money market deposit accounts and found them lacking, deceptive, or unprofitable. Many are, because many institutions have taken a good thing and watered it down until it's no longer a good thing... except for the institution offering it. Here are some examples of what we mean:

Many institutions pay money market rates only on amounts over the $2,500 minimum required; all other money in the account earns a rate of 5 1/4% per annum. That means that if you have $2,501 in your account, only $1 is earning a high return.

The INVESTORS FUND™ account pays you the money market rate on every single dollar in your account as long as you have a balance of at least $2,500.

Many institutions do not base their money market account rate on a specific index. You'll never know if what they are paying is what you should actually earn.

The INVESTORS FUND™ account is based on the seven-day average of money market funds for the prior week as published each week by Donoghue's Money Fund Report - and Investors Savings then adds .25% to that figure. You not only earn more, you can find out exactly what you're going to earn by looking in a major newspaper!

Many institutions offer two types of money market accounts: a limited-transaction account that pays you a money market rate, but gives you limited access to your funds; and a total-transaction account that gives you unlimited checking, but pays a lesser rate.

Sunny gifts not available with this account.

State cable TV wants shows in culture field

The Cable Television Network of New Jersey is now accepting programs in the fields of the arts, crafts, music, drama, poetry, dance and other cultural areas for distribution over the network.

The announcement was made recently by Wallace Conway, chairman of the network committee on cultural programming. Conway is curator of exhibits at the New Jersey State Museum.

"We want professional programs," Conway said, "and our range will be wide. We are interested in any music, from bluegrass to avant-garde jazz, and in the field of dance we will try to schedule all varieties from folk dance to ballet. We are also interested in poetry readings, panel discussions and anything related to the arts," he added. The network will need programs of 29 minutes duration, on three-quarter inch videotape, in color. Artists are asked to send their programs to the office of the Cable Television Network of New Jersey, 132 West State St., Trenton, N.J. 08666.

The Cable Television Network, which will eventually include virtually all the cable systems in the state, will reach more than one million subscribers.

Freeze' group meets tonight

SPRINGFIELD—Members of the Springfield Nuclear Freeze Group urge area residents to make their feelings known by calling U.S. Representative James Courter and voting on upcoming nuclear issues. The group has scheduled a meeting for tonight.

According to Sylvia Zisman, at a recent meeting held in the home of Evelyn and Morton Farnish, Parsippany Way, the group discussed last week's lobby in Washington D.C. Zisman said Senator Bill Bradley "seemed in favor of deployment of crews purging missiles," while Senator Frank Lautenberg "seems supportive of our position."

The group urges residents to call Courter at his offices in Washington D.C. at 202-225-5801, or locally at 386-0974.

Zisman additionally urges residents to vote "yes" on HJR15, the mutual verifiable nuclear freeze which is also known as the Zabriskie Resolution; and to vote "no" on HJR16, the Zabriskie initiative. Zisman said the President's aides on nuclear arms are to "build them up and then freeze them."

A statewide meeting for the campaign has been scheduled for 8 p.m. tonight in the UAW Hall, 16 Commerce Drive, Cranford.

Albanese issues status report on service to visually impaired

Human Services Commissioner George J. Albanese has released a six-month status report on a management plan aimed at improving services for the state's 50,000 blind and visually impaired people.

The status report on the department's Commission for the Blind and Visually Impaired management efforts was released today at a press briefing in Newark. The briefing was conducted by Larry J. Lockhart, Special Assistant to the Commissioner.

The plan detailed the reorganization of district offices, noted the implementation of a computerized client tracking system and detailed efforts to improve employment and vocational programs.

During the briefing, a needs assessment for clients served by the commission was released. The study was conducted by Robert Scott, a Princeton Consultant.

"Before we could begin to design and offer improved programs for the clients in the commission, we had to first know how many clients needed services, who they were, what type of services they needed, and if the commission could play any role in fulfilling those needs," Lockhart said.

By conducting the needs analysis, Lockhart explained the commission is better able to direct its limited resources to specific programs.

The commission also implemented a computerized client tracking system which not only identifies clients, but notes what their needs are and whether they are being served by other social service agencies.

The six-month status report notes that a Rehabilitation Center Study Group composed of consumers, representatives of the federal government, and commission staff have been charged with finding a less expensive alternative to the "Westfield Project."

Other consumer groups have been advising the commission on such things as the vending stand program. The district office reorganization establishes one manager who is responsible for all client services. This system provides for standardized methods of record filing and providing services to clients. The district office reorganization was approved by the Science Management Corporation, a private consultant firm hired by the Governor's Office to recommend management improvements to the state departments.

Lockhart pointed out that as a result of the study, the commission recognized that two thirds of the blind and visually impaired people in the state are elderly. As a result, he said the commission will double its special workers staff from four to eight in an effort to locate elderly clients in need of the commission's services.

"The commission is also developing a community relations program aimed at the under-served areas. This program was initiated with the establishment of the toll-free number for clients. The toll-free number is 800-962-1233.

Lockhart noted that the commission is also initiating a comprehensive effort to assess the needs of the multiply handicapped clients. The needs assessment indicated there was a need for this study because clients might be falling through the cracks.

More than 30 writers, poets, scholars, publishers and artists will gather in Newark in April to participate in a national conference, "Images and Identities: The Puerto Rican in Literature."

The three-day conference, April 7-9, will be held at sites on the Newark campus of Rutgers, the Newark Museum and the Newark Public Library.

Dr. Anesia Rodriguez de Laguna, a Rutgers associate professor of foreign languages is conference director.

The literary forums will open with keynote addresses by Jose Luis Gonzalez on April 7 and by Luis Rafael Sanchez on April 8.

Forum topics on April 7 are "Suspended Identities: Between Two Cultures," "Puerto Rican Women Writers and the Image of Women in Literature," "Translation and Translators," and "The Poet and His World: A Reading 'Images and Identities'."

On April 8, the topics are "Projected Images: Perceptions of the Puerto Rican," "Young Writings: Drama and Film," "Puerto Rican Literature in the Public School Curriculum, and Interrelations Between Puerto Rican and Other Hispanic Literature in the United States."

The April 7-9 programs will be held in the Robeson Campus Center with registration at 8 a.m. on the opening day and at 9 a.m. on Friday.

On Saturday, April 9, the Newark Museum will host a symposium on "Art and Artists of Puerto Rican Heritage: The Search for Personal Creative Identity." This program, coordinated by Dr. Hildreth York, chair of the Rutgers-Newark art department, will be moderated by artist Rafael Ferrer. The program begins at 9:30 a.m. in the museum's lecture room.

Also, on Saturday, the Newark Public Library will host two forums; at 10:30 a.m. the topic is "Publishing Houses and the Authors" and, in the afternoon, the topic is "Language and the Puerto Rican Writer: An Encounter with Young Poets Who Write in Spanish, English and Spanish."

The host institutions will also hold art, photography and book exhibits in conjunction with the Images and Identities conference.

The Newark Museum and the Robeson Center Gallery are holding a joint art show, curated by Dr. York. An exhibit of photographs opens at the museum on March 18 and runs through April 15. On March 30, an exhibit of paintings and other art will open at the Robeson Center Gallery and will run through April 21. A reception for the artists, open to the public, will be held at the gallery on April 7 from 4 to 6 p.m.

An exhibit of posters, magazines and books by writers appearing at the conference opens April 4 at Dana Library on the Rutgers-Newark campus and runs through April 15. A display of books by Puerto Rican authors and an exhibit of posters will open at the Newark Public Library April 8.

Inquiries on the conference may be directed to Dr. Rodriguez de Laguna at 948-5594.

Computer courses slated

To meet the needs of the growing numbers of home-computer owners, the Division of Continuing Education on the Florham-Madison campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University is sponsoring a series of non-credit microcomputer courses during March, April and May.

Dr. John L. Kallas and David Herzog, faculty members in the University's College of Education, will teach the courses which are designed to introduce students to BASIC programming.

The four courses which will be offered are: Introduction to Microcomputers BASIC, Advanced BASIC, Advanced Microcomputer BASIC for the home user, Advanced BASIC for fun and profit.

The courses will be taught in the Division of Continuing Education's new microcomputer lab. The method, developed by Kallas, is a simple, straightforward approach with emphasis on individualized instruction, hands-on experience and small classes. Students enrolled in the courses will receive special workbooks and teaching aids and extra computer lab hours and computer lab assistance will be available.

Students will be working on Apple II computers. Those participants in the courses will learn the BASIC programming language, which is used with most microcomputers. BASIC makes it possible for anyone to write programs for the computers.

Introduction to Microcomputers BASIC is designed to orient the uninitiated into the world of personal computers. It will include four sessions of three hours each, and up to six hours of lab time. The cost is $65. Advanced BASIC is a continuation of the first course. It will include eight sessions of three hours each and up to 10 hours of lab time. The cost is $170. Advanced Microcomputers BASIC for the home user will enable the student to make full use of his home computer.

Class schedules and registration forms can be obtained by calling the Office of Continuing Education, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Florham-Madison Campus, 377-4700, ext. 302. All courses carry a $3 registration fee.

The fear that afflicts one in ten...

By JOE BERTONE
According to a Union County Mental Health Association psychotherapist, one of every ten persons suffers from some form of phobia, and may not know it.

Nancy Marie Bride, a therapist at the Phobia Resource Center of the Union County Mental Health Association, said the most common type is one known as agoraphobia. Because of its symptoms, people often mistake the ailment for heart trouble or other illnesses.

The symptoms include excessive perspiration, breathing difficulty, fast heart beat, nausea and dizziness, all of which stem from anxiety or "panic" attacks.

The "panic" attacks, explained Bride, are triggered by a fear of tunnels, elevators, closed spaces, loneliness, bridges and a host of other situations most people have come to take for granted as the accepted routine of their daily lives.

She described the attacks as "bio-chemical reactions to surroundings which make individuals ill at ease for some reason or another."

Other common phobias include acrophobia (fear of heights), claustrophobia (fear of enclosed spaces) and hydrophobia (fear of water).

Bride, who is director of the Phobia Release Educational Program (PREP), treats these phobia sufferers at the Union County Mental Health Association headquarters in Cranford through a series of two-hour sessions.

"We do a complete screening on the patients, defining physical, emotional and mental symptoms and then attempting to cure the patients through help groups and behavioral oriented therapy," Bride said.

Bride along with Dr. Ho Young Lee runs the program, which includes the recruitment of recovered phobia patients to assist in the therapy.

"It is a mutual help group," she explained.

"There are some 65 to 70 people involved in the program, including patients and former patients who share the benefit of their experiences as fellow sufferers. That is a very important part of the treatment," Bride said.

According to Bride, the problems facing persons afflicted with phobic illnesses present major obstacles which can alter the entire lifestyles of some individuals.

"At the very least, phobias will keep some persons from doing or experiencing certain things others take for granted," she added.

"Agoraphobia forces people to live very restricted lives — the simplest thing like driving through a tunnel or over a bridge could prompt a 'panic' attack," Bride said.

"Jobs have been lost and families have been broken up as a result of phobias," Bride emphasized that the symptoms should not be confused with insecurity. "All the research in this area points towards the fact that something goes wrong with the body chemistry," she explained.

"The psychotherapist is also quick to point out that the 'panic' attacks are not life-threatening — despite the similarities between their symptoms and those of heart trouble.

While the program has been "a resounding success" during its three-year existence, it is still suffering growing pains attributable for the most part to a lack of the funds which are needed to expand.

The expansion Bride envisions incorporates more self-help facilities and materials.

"We have added a library to the Phobia Resource Center which we hope will gradually grow into the kind of facility which will afford patients the opportunity to research and learn more about their particular phobias," Bride said.

The Exxon Company recently donated $1,000 at the center's request to help stock the library with books and equipment.

"We still don't have the funds needed to implement the kind of comprehensive program we are striving to achieve, but the program is working nevertheless," she said.

Each two-hour session costs the patients $45, which is subsidized by the Mental Health Association. According to Bride, as much as 90 percent of the fee is often paid by individual health insurance coverage.

The Mental Health Association's main function is to serve as a watchdog which affect mental health problems such as phobias, Bride noted.

The Union County chapter is one of eight in the state, she said. Patients in the PREP program undergo therapy in groups of eight to 10 people. The program runs for 15 weeks.

"The beauty of this program is that many of the people who complete it come back voluntarily to support and help others overcome this mental and emotionally draining affliction," exclaimed Bride. Literature on the problems of phobia, as well as information on its treatment and research on the subject, may be obtained by writing to the Phobia Resource Center, Mental Health Association, 15 Alden St., Cranford 07016.

Anyone wishing to telephone the center may call Nancy Marie Bride at 272-6363, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hospital plans an open house

The St. Elizabeth Hospital Nursing Department will hold an open house and buffet luncheon on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the hospital's Education Center, 210 Williamson St., Elizabeth.

April Bahruth, SEH assistant director of nursing/medical division, will speak on B.R.I.D.G.E. (Bicultural Route: The Interphase and Diversified Graduate Nurse Experience) program. A panel discussion on "Transition Programs — How To Ease Reality Shock" will be led by Patricia Frammligen, assistant director of nursing/education and quality assurance division.

Law Project grant to help children of needy

A special grant received by the Community Health Law Project will finance a new program to help children of indigent families in Union County with special education problems and needs.

The Law Project will expand its Elizabeth office, employing an attorney and a human services advocate to assist children with special education needs. The Law Project staff will counsel and represent children and their families who meet the income eligibility criteria in meetings and hearings with school, community and residential programs that are involved in the education and support services for children who are classified and who are placed outside of regular school programs.

The attorney in charge of the project will be Steve Zamrin, formerly with the N.J. Office of the Public Defender in the Department of the Public Advocate. Zamrin's eight years of experience in that agency included specialization in children's legal concerns, including the statewide law guardian program for abused children, and the child advocacy program.

As part of the special nine-month program, to be funded through Sept. 30 of this year, the Law Project will also sponsor two public county-wide seminars on legal and social aspects of special education systems and of individual children's rights and responsibilities in such systems.

C of C issues listing

The Union County Chamber of Commerce has produced its first county-wide industrial directory.

Prior to this year, the Chamber's directory listed only industries in the 15 communities of Eastern Union County. "However, when we changed our name from Eastern to Union County Chamber of Commerce, we felt an obligation to produce a directory of all Union County industries," said Cliff Peake, president.

The information, broken down by town, lists class of trade, principal personnel, complete address and phone number, plus number of employees.

The directory is available to the general public for $25, including tax. Those interested can call the Chamber at 352-9900 for further information.

In offering the special service, the Law Project staff will contact all interested agencies and organizations in the county, including child study teams and others in the school systems, parent-teacher organizations, and community social service agencies.

"Our goal is to work constructively and effectively on behalf of children from indigent families with special education needs, to secure the most appropriate educational and social services for them with the least disruption in their educational and living arrangements," said Berger.

The Law Project proposed the new service because of recent cases in which educational services were important to the security and stability of its clients. In three cases, Law Project staff in Union County worked with the children, families, school officials and other agencies to bring about the provision of special education programs with financial support and agreement from local school officials, and with resources supplemented by applying for disability benefits through the Social Security system.

"We have found that we can bring people together and resolve certain concerns to everyone's benefit. It will be our goal under this grant to provide this service for more children and families in Union County," Berger said.

Eligibility for services under the special education project will be restricted to children from families who meet the poverty income guideline established by the federal Department of Health and Human Services. The maximum incomes for families are $6,220 for a family of two, $7,760 for a family of three, $9,300 for a family of four, $10,840 for a family of five and $12,380 for a family of six.

The Community Health Law Project, a non-profit tax-exempt organization, was founded in 1977 with grants from the American and New Jersey Bar Associations and the N.J. Division of Mental Health and Hospitals. Until 1982, it was named the Community Health Law Project, but the name was changed as the organization expanded its services to a number of different types of disabled persons who were also indigent and needed assistance with services, housing and related social and community supports. It also has offices in Camden, Essex and Mercer Counties.

In Union County, the Law Project has served indigent and disabled clients since 1977. Currently, with contracts and grants from Union County, United Way and state agencies, the Law Project represents and assists clients who are mentally ill, mentally retarded, and elderly and in need of assistance. More than 600 Union County residents were served by the Law Project in 1981. The Union County office has a staff of attorneys and human services advocates.

Coward's 'Suite in Two Keys' is illuminating

By BEA SMITH
 "Suite in Two Keys," a pair of Noel Coward's two sophisticated, one-act plays, currently offered at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, is an illuminating study in words and characterizations. And the performers chosen for this production seem especially to be made for their roles — or the roles especially made for them.

Whatever the case, the cast of four, Barry Nelson, Elaine Strich, Gwyda Donhowe and Paul Messenger, inject life, drama and humor into characters, who might otherwise appear rather dull and dreary.

In his inimitable style, Coward's biting, sarcasm, irony and bitter humor are enlivened in both plays, "Come Into the Garden, Maud," and "A Song at Twilight." Both plays take place in a private suite in a luxurious hotel in Switzerland.

The first play, "Come Into the Garden," is a light comedy, in which Nelson and Strich, play a wealthy couple with contrasting interests. Strich, as Anna-Mary Conklin, spends all her waking hours planning and giving dinner parties for the top brass and dissident royalty, while her bored, henpecked husband, Vernon (played by Nelson), sits around in discontent, accepting the fact that all excitement has gone out of his life at age 58. That is, until Maud Caragnani (Donhowe), a socially prominent, Italian princess and lively grandmother, comes upon the scene. Her interest in Vernon pumps adrenaline into his veins and turns him back into a human being. Paul Messenger is appropriately cast as Felix, a waiter, in both plays.

In the second play, "A Song at Twilight," where drama outweighs Coward's comedy, Nelson is seen as Hugo Latymer, an ailing, highly successful novelist, whose secretary-wife (Strich), a plain-looking woman, handles his business and his sarcastic remarks, with a grain of salt. When an old love, Carlotta Gray (Donhowe), a retired actress, reappears, he is devastated by her request to use his old love letters in her forthcoming autobiography, and his life is turned into a nightmare, when, upon his refusal, she threatens to blackmail him with his well-concealed homosexuality.

Richard Barr does an excellent job of directing both plays, and he really must have had his hands full, when the two stars of the original cast, Betsy Palmer and Kim Hunter, bowed out of the production. (Palmer, because she broke her foot in an accident on the eve of the play's opening in Millburn; and Hunter, due to "other commitments.") Strich and Donhowe are real pros, however, and there is no indication that the audience is aware of the substitutions. And the actors feed upon the delightful response of the theatergoers.

The setting in both plays is a huge living room, which cleverly changes in appearance with the changing around of the furniture.

Nelson, Strich, Donhowe, and even

Messenger, are such fine performers, and do such great justice to Coward's work, that if the famous playwright was alive today, he would certainly sit up, take notice and utter some appropriately sinister, but humorous remark.

'Excerpts' set at Y Saturday

The Westfield YWCA/Westfield High School Awareness Club and the Westfield Neighborhood Council will present a free performance of the musical revue, "Excerpts of My Blackness," Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in the Westfield High School.

Vita J. Greene will direct the production. Among the members of the cast are Cynthia Pullen, Sondra Kimbrough and Rosalind Mitchell, all of Union, and Renee Walker of Irvington.

Pick of the LPs, "Mental As Anything," (A&M Records). Recent years have proved beyond a doubt that there is a lot more happening in Australia than kangaroos, the outback and the Sydney Opera House. With the release of the Mental As Anything group's first United States album, "If You Leave Me, Can I Come Too?," the group intends to add itself to the list of popular imports from Down Under. If the band even comes close to getting the same kind of reception in America that it has enjoyed in Australia, England and Canada, Mental As Anything might just end up giving the koala bear a run for its money. "Cats and Dogs," wrote the Melbourne Age about Mental As Anything's third album (nine tracks from which are included in "If You Leave Me, Can I Come Too?"), "is simply, the catchiest, most delightful pop record of 1981, an album loaded with songs destined to become classics of modern pop." Mental As Anything's sound has been whimsically described by the group as "punk funk and beatnik rockabilly." Drawing on styles as diverse as skiffle, vaudeville, rockabilly, and what one writer called "the merely anarchic," the group has been compared to the Lovin' Spoonful, Rockpile, Mungo Jerry and even Sam the Sham and the Pharaohs.

The nucleus of Mental As Anything—former East Sydney Art School students, Reg Mombassa (guitar-vocals) and Wayne Delisle (drums)—discovered five years ago that they had something in common beyond an interest in painting. Originally a "bedroom band" (Wayne Delisle's bedroom, to be exact), the trio worked its way through the living room and the garage, eventually coming to prominence as regular performers at the Unicorn Hotel in Paddington.

Having recruited Reg Mombassa's brother, Peter O'Doherty, on bass and vocals, and Greedy Smith, harmonica, keyboards, vocals, Mental As Anything recorded a three-song LP in 1979, produced by Cameron Allan. One of those songs, "The Nips Are Getting Bigger," became both a sizable radio hit and a classic drinking anthem in Australia. The LP, "Get Wet," followed later that same year and soon achieved gold record status.

Two more albums and a string of hit singles followed as the band walked away with the Australian Rock Music Award in 1981 for best single with "If You Leave Me, Can I Come Too?." Those LPs, "Espresso Bongo" and "Cats and Dogs," produced gold and platinum sales, respectively, and included songs such as "Too Many Times," "Just Like Romeo and Juliet," and "If You Leave Me."

It will be held in the main lounge of the Robeson Campus Center, 350 High St. with exhibits of arts and crafts representative of the three ethnic cultures. These include embroidery, weaving, wood carvings, dolls and straw incrustation design.

Amateur Talent Night set March 25 in Cranford

An evening of music, dance, instrumental and variety entertainment presented by about 20 different acts, will be open to the public at the Union County Amateur Talent Night, March 25 at 8 p.m. at the Union County College auditorium, Springfield Avenue, Cranford. It will be sponsored by the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation.

Performers will compete for first, second and third place honors at the talent show. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Among the 20 acts selected last month to participate will be a female singing trio from Roselle, a jazz and tap dance from Studio B of Clark, a ballerina from Berkeley Heights, an Elizabeth violinist and two bands: a heavy metal group from Cranford and a pop rock group, "The Characters."

Other performers will be Barbara Saladino of Mountainside, Lorilyn Allen of Clark, Cindy Smith of Westfield and Katherine A. Cregge of Rahway.

Performers will be judged on originality, personality and mastery of their art form. Prizes will go to the overall winners in the first, second and third place categories.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the Parks Department office at 352-9431.

Rahway house to convert to an art center

A contract was signed March 5 which will give the Rahway Landmarks, Inc., a purchase option on the Old Rahway Theater. Principal signers were Norman Schonfeld, president of the Wood Group Theater chain and present owner of the 54-year-old building, and Robert Balfour, president and board chairman of Rahway Landmarks, a non-profit corporation, which plans to convert the facility to a county performing arts center.

Spring festival is set March 17

The Major Theater series of the Montclair State College will present the spring dance festival, an annual showcase of new works choreographed by Montclair State College faculty and students and a guest professional, March 17 through March 19 at 8 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium.

The festival will include dance pieces, including classical ballet, modern dance and jazz works, with musical accompaniment ranging from the classical to the contemporary.

Choreographers will include Betty Martyn, Dianne McPherson, Jane Maloney and guest Henry Van Kullen. The college's student-choreographers will be Felicia Falzarano, Karen Kalbfell, Pattie Meyer, Denise Le Donne, and McIntyre and Kathy Lowry.

Coordinator is Linda Roberts.

The contract, of which Eric Ricketts, trustee and funding coordinator of Landmarks, was principal negotiator, calls for an initial nonrenewable payment of $10,000, which was made at the signing, to be followed by two additional payments of $2,500 each within the next 12 months. The total balance of $16,000 by March 4, 1984.

The initial $10,000 payment came largely from member contributions, and included a $2,000 grant from the Rahway Junior Service League and $300 from the Allstate Insurance Foundation.

The Rahway Theater, opened for business Oct. 18, 1929 as a combined film and vaudeville showplace in the small Bratter & Pollak chain.

It became best known for the concerts played on its restored Wurlitzer pipe organ, which had been installed originally to accompany silent films.

A special display depicting the theater's history is on exhibit in the Rahway Public Library for the remainder of the month.

The festival will include dance pieces, including classical ballet, modern dance and jazz works, with musical accompaniment ranging from the classical to the contemporary.

Choreographers will include Betty Martyn, Dianne McPherson, Jane Maloney and guest Henry Van Kullen. The college's student-choreographers will be Felicia Falzarano, Karen Kalbfell, Pattie Meyer, Denise Le Donne, and McIntyre and Kathy Lowry.

Coordinator is Linda Roberts.

Guide to Good Dining

ORIENTAL COOKING FLAIR — is demonstrated by chef Seiji, one of the masters at Benihana of Tokyo at 840 Morris Turnpike, Short Hills. Diners welcome to watch the craftsmanship involved in the art of Japanese cooking.

Benihana provides a dining adventure

By GAIL CASALE
When you visit a restaurant, one of the things you might look for is adventure. Why go out to eat for a particular food that you can enjoy just as easily in the comfort of your own home?
You only need to travel as far as Short Hills to find the answer. Benihana of Tokyo, located at 840 Morris Turnpike, provides the dining contrast you desire. Allow one of their expert chefs to entertain you with the art of Japanese cooking.

The star of the show the night we went to Benihana was chef Seiji, who delighted us with various tricks of the cooking trade. Some of the feats he performed included juggling salt and pepper shakers, tossing shrimp into diners' plates and precision dicing of vegetables and meat with the sharpest of knives. The majority of cooking is done on a hibachi grill right in front of the customer so what you see is what you get.

One does not become a Benihana chef overnight. Training begins at Benihana of New York located in Tokyo during a four to six month course. The recruited chefs then get their labor visa to come to work in the United States about a year later.
Manager Holman Tan is a gracious and learned man who came to this country 14 years ago. He explained that the origin of hibachi cooking stemmed from ancient times as a Japanese serving tradition communique of the emperor's family. All I know is this basic style of preparation using soybean oil gives a superb taste to meats and vegetables without relying on heavy sauces.

The best news is you can get a complete, authentic Japanese dinner for only $6.95 through March 31. This features sukiyaki steak (sliced extra thin to enhance the oriental flavor), hibachi chicken, hibachi shrimp appetizer, soup, salad, rice, cooked vegetables and green tea (made from small leaves grown in Japan).

Benihana's "onion soup" is not the typical kind you would expect. Made from mushrooms and other flavorful ingredients, it's a welcome surprise to the normal type.
And the celebration continues. Birthdays are an extra special event at Benihana's. During April, for parties of four or more, the lucky guy or gal who has a birthday that month gets a free sukiyaki steak and chicken dinner while the staff sings "happy birthday" to them in Japanese. I bet it's not every year you get your birthday serenaded to you in a foreign language. (Birthday persons must show I.D. as proof of birthday).

The regular menu offers combinations of scallops, lobster tails and filet mignon each prepared with an oriental flavor. Exotic cocktails served in tall glasses are for the more daring, one luscious example is aptly named "shogun coffee." As an after dinner treat, I recommend the Benihana plum wine which goes down smooth and easy.

Benihana is a friendly place. Oriental music piped in at a comfortable level sets the mood. Each rectangular table seats eight-around the chef, allowing smaller groups to get acquainted with their fellow diners and together share the Benihana experience.

Party facilities are available with accommodations up to 100 and cordial assistance from the capable management.
Lunch, including daily specials, is served from 12 to 2:30 p.m., Monday through Friday; dinner hours are 5:30 till 10 p.m. weekdays, until 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday and Sunday from 3 until 9 p.m. Reservations are preferred and major credit cards accepted.

If I were you, I'd make a trip to Benihana's now while the special offer is still good. It's the only place in town where you can get dinner and a show at such a reasonable price.
