Board votes to shutter Walton School

TUMULTUOUS NIGHT—Residents of Springfield turned out Monday night to make their views heard at a meeting of the Springfield Board of Education. In the photo, picketers express their displeasure with the Board of Education to close and sell the Walton School. Picketers outside the Gaudinier School, in their final attempt before the board, displayed placards urging "Save our Schools" and "Don't Desist Springfield!"

There were no tears shed. Instead, shouts and threats of a lawsuit filled the air after the Springfield Board of Education voted to close and sell the Walton School and redistrict the students, each in a 5-4 decision, Monday night.

Local police were patient in their attempts to quell the small crowd gathered to hear the fate of the Walton School. Picketers outside the Gaudinier School, in their final attempt before the board, displayed placards urging "Save our Schools" and "Don't Desist Springfield!"

Inside the tide was tumultuous. "We'll see you in court," residents shouted, one hoisted a cardboard tombstone which read: "R.I.P. Springfield Schools."

Resident Henry Millin of Redwood Road handed board members a list of 62 names of children whose parents believe redistricting is not in the best interest of their children. Millin called Lou Monaco's motion to redistrict, "the victimization of children" and begged board members to "dig deep down into their emotions" and vote against the motion. "We will fight you in court where I believe justice will prevail," Millin shouted.

Albert LaMorges, president of the Springfield Education Association, offered his personal views: "It seems Caldwell School has become a symbol for gaining power," he said, pointing to the issues raised when that school was in the red. LaMorges said he foresaw a second redistricting within a decade "when the population of the high school is halved" and added, "perhaps with parents from both sides of town working for one school we'll get the kind of education our children deserve."

Joanne Filippone of Hillside Avenue said "there is no voter in this town who is not willing to pay for education." She added: "You'll be opening up a Pandora's Box on the issue of security — you don't need the public going into any building which houses children on a full-time basis."

"I think there are people on that board who care for Caldwell School and want an insurance policy. I think Walton is that insurance policy," Bernice Edelcreek of Fieldstone Drive said, "I think your (the board's) credibility is being questioned by many."

"A good school district must go beyond the three R's," Myrna Wasserman said recalling her term on the board, and added "When the board closed Chisholm there was no hurry to sell — why is Walton on the block? It translates into this: As long as the Walton School shall live, the Caldwell School shall die."

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Fred Baruchin said he felt "obligated" to comment. "Educators assume a role that is very important to children — they assume the role of parent, to guide the child as well as protect. I think the board is on the verge of making a big mistake."

"My experience tells me that it will take 10 to 20 years to undo the type of thing that is developing in this community," Baruchin said.

Board member Barbara Adler said: "If we close off the available facilities we can't have new programs because there will be no place to put them." Adler said the motion "degrades the concept of education."

Board member Ken Faigenbaum urged the board to accept these alternative motions he offered during last week's conference meeting. Included in those motions were the maintenance of the Walton School on a two-year trial basis "so that all possible school uses can be investigated and implemented," and a proposal that no school redistricting plan be adopted for two years, except for open enrollment into Caldwell School within the state mandated bussing limit. Both of those motions were denied.

The third of Faigenbaum's proposals, a motion that would commit the school board to retain the neighborhood school concept by clearly defining those repairs and improvements needed at the Caldwell School and appropriating adequate funds to assure their completion, was unanimously approved.

According to Superintendent George Gomes: "There is a need for both prudent and responsible decisions to be made by a Board of Education. As we approach the 1983-84 school year, this district could insure the benefit of over $200,000 without costing a single penny to the taxpayers."

Monaco stood his ground. "Based on the declining enrollment, to the tune of 50 percent in the last 10 years, we have to close this school. The school sat vacant for a year and needs some $40,000 in repairs. We've already been offered five bids, over $1 million for Walton."

Two program directors resign at Regional BOE

The Regional Board of Education Tuesday night accepted the resignation of two program directors for five days.

Coordinator of Mathematics in the Regional School district, Joseph Sott, notified the board of his plans to resign from that position after 42 years of service. Sott, who entered the regional school system as teacher, moved up through the ranks to department head, and finally coordinator.

He recalled those years as "rewarding ones" and added, "I will leave with a great sense of satisfaction and with fond memories of pleasant associations that I have enjoyed with many Board members, administrators, staff members, other school personnel and students." His retirement becomes effective Oct. 1.

A second resignation was accepted from Director of the Adult Learning Center Harriet Diamond who has accepted an administrative position at Seton Hall University. Diamond, who thanked the Regional Board of Education for their "generous and continuing support" in her letter of resignation, said, "I take great pride in the Center's creative, talented, professional staff and in the steady increase of program options we offer. Because the Center has developed as a team effort, I know it will continue to function at peak performance in my absence." That resignation will become effective June 24.

Approval gained for the staffing of summer programs included 16 guidance counselors (at a daily rate set according to their salaries) and 43 personnel members (paid by stipend by the hour), to be divided among the four regional schools.

Five of the 16 guidance counselors scheduled to work out of Jonathan Dayton will be: Marie Giannone for a total of seven days during the summer; Jane Laustsen and Warren Robst, each for three days; Francis Clancy for 12 days, and Robert Basso for five days.

Summer counselors at David Brearley will be: Joseph Conzolo for nine days; William Blakely for 11 days; Joanne Jakubik for five days, and Maria Settino for five days.

David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth will gain William Berger, one of the 43 personnel members hired, as head coach for the basketball team for the 1983-84 school year.

The board awarded a bid in the amount of $135,059 to Computer Solutions, Inc. for an Instructional Computer System for the four Regional High Schools; and recommended the purchase of 26 Apple IIe Computers for purchased from Prodigy Computers of Iselin, on a State contract price of $50,772; eight Radio Shack Model four computers to be purchased from Radio Shack Computer Center of Springfield, on a State contract of $12,793.60, and computer software to be purchased from the Wayne Computer Consortium of Wayne at a cost of $1,200. The computers are to be used by all subject matter disciplines, and are to be available to teachers for use in their classrooms on a scheduled basis, to students in the Instructional Media Centers and to subject matter software review committees.

In other business, Board President Stephen Marcinek pointed to a survey he conducted concerning the board's various committees.

According to reports, Marcinek, who is in favor of rotating committee members annually, charged head of the Policy Committee David Hart with the responsibility of organizing rules to govern the committees. Board Attorney Franz Skok recommended a limit of four persons per committee to stay in accordance with the Sunshine Act.

Questions were raised concerning the issue of allotting $55,000 towards the purchase of athletic shoes for students of the regional school district. According to Skok: "New Jersey schools have a legal obligation to provide for full education of its young people including equipment for athletic activities or other student activities. Marcinek suggested the item be referred to the Student Activities Committee to provide Skok with a list of such items that should be included in future considerations."

Giblin is appointed as school attorney

By LYNN JOFFE

During the Springfield Board of Education meeting Monday night, unanimous approval was granted for the acceptance of the board's bylaws and policies "as is", and the board hired a new school attorney.

On a motion by Board member Lou Monaco, seconded by member Pietro Pelino, unanimous approval was granted to "adopt the board policy and bylaws as it now stands." This, after that policy was rejected during the April reorganization meeting on grounds that new board members had not reviewed the regulations.

In other business, the board approved 5-3, with Board member Ellen Dahmen abstaining, the employment of Paul Giblin, of Giblin and Giblin, Hackensack, as board counsel.

Giblin's list of credits include: personal appearances before the New Jersey Department of Education; involvement with individual boards of education to discuss budgetary and personnel problems; served as guest speaker at Harvard University, Rutgers University, New York University and other colleges and universities in all areas of law; represented several banks in the area; represents several large corporations in the area and corporate clients; represented numerous municipal governments over the past 18 years; professor at Rutgers University.

He is a member of the Bergen County Bar Association; the New Jersey State Bar Association since 1966; the American Bar Association; the Trial Lawyers Association (American); and the New York State Bar Association since 1981.

"Presently I maintain a very active general law practice. I have handled cases of every description in virtually all areas of the law. I had extensive trial experience in the Law, Civil and Chancery Divisions of our Court.

"I have served as General Counsel to the New Jersey Civil Service Employees. As counsel to this group, I acquired a very thorough knowledge of the laws applicable to municipal civil service employees," according to Giblin.

A resident of Paramus, Giblin graduated Seton Hall University School of Law in 1968 and earned a bachelor of arts degree in political science from Rutgers University in 1981.

Light turnout marks primaries

In a typically light turnout Tuesday primary elections, incumbent Democrats William Cieri and Stanley Kalish, and Republican newcomers Ronald Citron and Gregory Druker won their spots in the general election in November for Springfield Township Committee.

Kalish garnered 298 votes, while Cieri polled 290. Citron and Druker each received 304 ballots. All four men were unopposed. If Druker and Citron win in November, it would mark the first time in 14 years that Republicans would hold all the seats on the township committee.

Joanne Rapoppi, a former assistant secretary of state, freeholder, and mayor of Springfield, received 229 votes to unseat Democratic foe Howard Freund, who had 66 in the county register balloting. Rapoppi beat Freund's 4228. Rapoppi will oppose Republican Robert Hatfield of Scotch Plains in November. Hatfield, who ran unopposed Tuesday, received 309 votes.

Running unopposed for state assembly on the Democratic side were Eugene Carmody of Roselle Park, who received 725 votes and Barbara Brande of Cranford, with 279. Republican incumbent Chuck Hardwick of Westfield recorded 399 votes, while fellow incumbent Edward Gill had 315.

Incumbent Democratic Sheriff Ralph Froelich, who easily won his primary countywide, received 268 votes in Springfield. He will face Republican William Kelly, an Elizabeth deputy police chief, in the general election. Kelly registered 307 votes in the township primary.

In voting for Union County freeholder, the local balloting followed the countywide results as Democrats Brian Fahy (258 votes), Ronald Scorsese (265), and Michael Lapolla (257) will run against Republicans Frank Lehr (111), Robert Miller (106), and Julia Richie (94).

Ten residents protest request for variance

By LYNN JOFFE

The Springfield Planning Board Tuesday night adjourned the new application of the Greenbrier Service Corporation to erect an office building at Shunpike and Wilson roads to the board's next meeting at 8:30 p.m. on July 5.

About 10 residents were out to protest the variance application which would set the building in an area zoned for residential use. These residents are expected to return to the scene to hear the application.

In other Planning Board business, attorney Jay Bloom, representing two area physicians who have applied for a variance to erect a medical building at 25 Morris Avenue, won a conditional board approval.

According to Bloom, the medical building would be strictly for the doctors' use. Conditions to be met by the applicants include the removal of an entranceway step, to make the building barrier-free, and the addition of a six-foot high fence of either slatted wood or chain link along the southerly and easterly portions of the property line.

Courter rated at 58 percent on LWV issued

Congressman James Courter (R-31st District) has received an overall score of 58 percent in a political accountability rating (PAR) by the League of Women Voters of the United States.

The scores are based on Senate and House members' voting records during the first and second sessions of the 97th Congress. Members were rated on votes on 12 issues of concern to the League.

The issues included voting rights, social program spending, foreign aid, budget, food stamps, education funding, environmental funding, domestic content, hazardous waste and resource conservation.

Matthew Rinaldo (R-7th District), who represented the 12th District in Congress until last year's redistricting, scored a 60 percent PAR and Sen. Bill Bradley (D-N.J.) scored 61 percent.

Harrison Williams, who resigned from the Senate in March and Nicholas Brady, who was appointed to replace him, were not rated.

Each member of Congress is rated twice, once on such items as absences or failure to announce a stand and secondly on actual votes cast for or against the League's position.

League members in more than 1,200 state and local Leagues across the nation determine positions after studying the issues and developing a national consensus.

SCIENCE WIZARDS—James Caldwell (left) and Anthony Priore (right) work on their science projects to study the issues and developing a national consensus.

Kuperstein: West Point-bound

SPRINGFIELD—Matthew P. Kuperstein, a resident of Albert Drive in Springfield and an outstanding scholar-athlete at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, was among 16 Union County students who recently were appointed to U.S. service academies on the nomination of Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo, R-N.J.

Kuperstein has been accepted at the Military Academy at West Point. He was among 60 young men and women nominated this year by the congressman for appointments to the 1983-84 academic year.

At a Washington briefing for the appointees, Rinaldo congratulated them on their selection and noted that the competition for academy appointments was stiffer this year than it has been for the past several years. He said West Point received 27 percent more applications this year than it did in 1980, and the Naval Academy had 29 percent more. The Air Force Academy, which was up 40 percent, reported 12,300 applicants for the 1,450 positions in this year's freshman class.

"What this means," the congressman told the appointees, "is that by virtue of your selection, you rank near the top of a very select group of young Americans. It's safe to say that you are among the best and brightest of our youth and are our hope for the future."

(Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss., also paid tribute to the appointees at a briefing. Montgomery is chairman of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs.

SPRINGFIELD IMPORTED MOTORS LTD.

In this day and age when every car maker has such a wide selection of models to choose from, it is really difficult for you to decide where to go for a new car. All the companies advertising their cars are so busy that they don't have the time to help you. Obviously, all the cars on the market today must have their good points, or they wouldn't have survived the ups and downs of the business. We therefore can conclude that the real difference in buying a car is the dealer who sells it.

The ideal dealer to buy a car from offers a fair price on the new unit, as well as an honest dollar for the car you trade in. However, the most important factor is the service that you receive on your new car year after year.

One of the most important parts of selling a car is the quality service he can offer you after the sale is Springfield Imported Motors Ltd. at 146 US Highway Route 22 in Springfield, phone 376-8721. They are dealers for the dependable Dodge, Nissan and Fiat automobiles.

See them today for a new or quality used car, or come in for service work. You'll see why we say "Customer Consideration" is their byword.

Camp Runamok, for boys and girls ages 4-12, is an eight-week program that runs from June 27-Aug. 15. Daily activities include: swim lessons, plumes, team games, arts and crafts, nature study, hikes and much more. Outside activities take place at Watchung Reservation and Echo Lake.

Library Column Steiglitz biography is revealing

By Rose P. Simon
SPRINGFIELD—Following are the reviews of the recently published books for reading at the Springfield Public Library.

MODERN ART IMPRESSIONIST
"Steiglitz," by Sue Davidson Lowe.
These memoirs by a grandniece of Alfred Steiglitz serve as his biography as well as an intimate history of the family. Alfred's unhappy marriage and divorce, his friendship with Georgia O'Keefe and their marriage, and their illnesses. We learn of Georgia's progressively successful rise to fame under Alfred's tutelage, her independence, their separations and reunions, Alfred's declining years, and his death in 1946.

AMERICAN INDIAN MOVEMENT
"Blood of the Land," by Rex Weyler.
An associate publisher of a Boston magazine "New Age" recounts the efforts of American Indians to oppose the plans and activities of the U.S. government (state and federal) and corporate elements (Exxon, Gulf, Union Carbide) to separate the Indian people from their sacred native lands. Although 371 treaties between the U.S. and the Indians were ratified (1776-1871), these have been violated, broken, ignored, or otherwise subrogated by our government. It is true that some lands were ceded to Canada and the United States, but most of the rest is said to have been stolen by treaty, harassment or violence. In many cases the F.B.I., the C.I.A., and the Army were involved.

These people are honestly trying to preserve their culture and reclaim their lands, despite the untoward tactics of those who wish to destroy the environment. Their voices, augmented by the Indians of Central and South America, and supported by non-Indian celebrities everywhere, are being heard all over the world.

Prominent members of the Indian movement (Aqash, Banks, Dog Crow, Fowl, Matthew King, Russell Means, Dickie Wilson) and notable confrontational events (Black Hills, Pine Ridge, Wounded Knee) are reported. Insight into the character and goals of the American Indians is aimed to evoke sympathy for their plight and for their cause.

Computer study always in season

By BILL GOODMAN

In this age of the computer, there is no "off season." With some libraries allowing members to check out computers as easily as books, not to mention the numerous home instruments that can be purchased at reasonable prices, summer is as good a time as any other season for individuals to become educated in this burgeoning field.

To accommodate the growing need to become at least fundamentally knowledgeable in this area, area colleges and other organizations, such as the YM-YMHA, are offering computer classes this summer.

Union County College, for example, is offering 11 computer science courses at its summer sessions on the Cranford campus. The next summer session available will be a six-week course from July 11 to Aug. 18. There are classes in the morning, afternoon, and evening.

Computer science courses available are: Elements of Computer Programming, Introductory Data Processing, Cabol I, Assembly Language I, Introduction to Computer Programming, Business Applications for Computers, Fortran, Operating Systems, Cooperative Experience in Computer Science, Introduction to Computer Based Systems, and Applications Program Development.

GETTING THE MESSAGE ACROSS—Staff reporter Lynn Jaffe demonstrates what a lot of people will be doing this summer: using a computer. Schools throughout the area have scheduled summer classes in a variety of computer skills.

Handling a job interview topic of workshop tonight

The "Job Interview" workshop being offered at the YM-YWHA on Green Lane in Union from 8 to 9:30 p.m. today.

Each participant will receive individual attention in preparing an effective cover letter. Samples will be distributed to teach participants how to be prepared and relaxed at a job interview. Through role playing, participants will learn how to appear calm and confident. The class will be given a list of the 15 most asked questions at an interview as well as the 10 "killer" questions, and will be taught how to handle them.

This workshop will give suggestions and uses standard techniques which can be adapted by anyone—from the recent graduate going for the first job to someone looking to start over.

The instructor, Jean Canning, is president of Business and Professional Services, Inc. The fee for "YM" members is $5; non-members $7.50. Pre-registration is required. Further information is available from Renee Drell or Linda Curtis at 289-8112.

Computer study courses always remain in season

The college's Computer Science/Data Processing and Accounting/Data Processing programs are two-year programs leading to associate in applied science degrees. The two-year Computer Information Services Program leads to the associate in arts degree.

The YM-YWHA on Green Lane in Union is offering two, four-session computer classes this summer. The introductory course, Demystifying the Computer, is designed to provide the novice with a conversational knowledge of the computer world. Special emphasis will be placed on terminology in the field.

Sessions will be divided into lecture/discussion periods and hands-on experience. The next step, Computer Programming for Adults, will provide participants with a working knowledge of computers and elementary computer programming. Each session has been designed to allow the student to have hands-on experience on a personal computer. Microcomputer equipment will be used, as will the basic language.

Demystifying the Computer meets Thursdays, June 23, 30, July 7, 14, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Computer Programming for Adults meet Sundays, June 5, 12, 19, 26, 10 a.m. to noon.

Pre-registration is required. Additional information is available from Renee Drell or Linda Curtis, 289-8112.

Also keeping up with the demand for computer education are the summer sessions at Kean College in Union. Eight courses in the computer science field are being offered.

The courses include computer organization and programming, business orientation and programming, data processing, advanced assembler, and a graduate class in microcomputers.

The summer sessions run from June 27 through Aug. 4. The summer semester is broken down into either three or six-week classes. The courses are available morning, afternoon, or evening, but there are no Friday or Saturday classes.

Registration will be accepted as late as June 22.

Nursing department to be set up at Kean

The two-year-old bachelor of science in nursing program at Kean College of New Jersey in Union will grow up in September into a full-fledged department of nursing with 223 students.

Dr. Carolyn Oiler of Maplewood, coordinator of the nursing program, said students in Kean's nursing program are registered nurses seeking bachelor of science degrees.

Enrollment this year totaled 85 students and another 45 will be admitted in the fall.

Phonathon brings in record sum

Volunteers working the Kean College Alumni Association Phonathon raised a record $35,559.

Caroline Jolly Koschig of Linden, director of alumni affairs, said 265 people participated, as compared with 217 last year. Koschig noted that administrative and faculty representation increased by more than half, from 27 last year to 59 this year.

In the last six months, the Alumni Association has provided $43,000 in grants to the college, she said. These funds provided a prime mini-computer to expand the college's computer capacity in academic areas. Also funded were: music listening, library equipment, travel expenses for selected faculty members, two microcomputers — one for biology research and the other for the graphic arts department, partial expenses for the baseball team's spring training in Florida, and partial cost of the Grub Street Writer, a student literary magazine.

Programs on health technology presented

Students at the junior high and high school levels in the Union County area who are interested in health technology careers recently had an opportunity to explore the many alternatives available to them, thanks to a new Union County College academic information program. Coordinators representing some of the college's 13 health and health technology programs visited high schools in the area, speaking to groups of students who had expressed a desire to learn about a particular health field, Caryl Watkins of Scotch Plains, UCC recruiter, explained.

"It is the first year that we have focused on health career presentations," and utilizing our faculty coordinators helps us answer the pertinent questions that the high school student has," Watkins stated.

Area eclipse-chasers are heading for Java

Java is the destination of the fifth international eclipse expedition for members of Amateur Astronomers, Inc., headquartered at the Sperry Observatory on Union County College's Cranford campus.

After three years of intensive planning and preparation, David and Gloria Kuchinsky of Scotch Plains, both members of AAI and co-chairpersons of the Java Eclipse Expedition, will lead 65 "eclipse chasers" half-way round the world to observe and photograph the passing of the moon between the earth and the sun.

The total eclipse of the sun, which will take place Saturday, will be over five minutes duration, giving the astronomers a chance to observe and photograph the spectacular celestial event.

During the eclipse, the amateur astronomers will perform experiments, compare timings of the actual phases with previous predictions (it can be timed very accurately), and photograph and analyze the sun's corona, which will appear as a fiery ring around the dark orb of the moon. They will also make observations of the shadow band phenomena and "flash spectrum," as well as the background of stars which are so near the sun they cannot otherwise be seen in the daytime. Members of the expedition, who originate from 11 states beside New Jersey, will be housed at the Gadagh Maha University Guest House, near the major viewing site at Yogyakarta in central Java. The university will provide meeting facilities for pre-eclipse briefings, and the Education Committee of AAI has arranged for a series of lectures to the faculty and student body.

AAI members scheduled to talk about eclipses in particular and astronomy in general will be Dr. Lewis C. Thomas of Plainfield, chairman of the Education Committee; Donald Kruse of West New York, AAI president; Carl Kurtz of Westfield; Frank Birbauer of Chester, vice president and program chairman; and Ernest Finli of San Jose, Ca.

The Kuchinskys have made a number of exploratory trips to Java and contacted other amateur astronomers in Jakarta and Yogyakarta for liaison assistance. These individuals have been "most helpful" in setting up logistics such as securing accommodations and assisting with site selection, according to Kuchinsky.

"They will accompany our group in the field and assist with the lecturing, primarily acting as interpreters for the symposium to be presented by our members."

CP CITATION—Dr. David Spelkoman, executive director of the United Cerebral Palsy League of Union County, presents certificate of merit and commemorative plaque to Dr. John C. JOAN CORBET

Corbet elected to second term by United Way

Joan K. Corbet of Westfield has been named president of the United Way of Union County for the second consecutive year. She will oversee the 1983-84 campaign for the county unit, an umbrella organization which takes in the United Way of Eastern Union County as well as other groups.

In addition to Corbet's United Way work, she has served on the board of trustees of the Washington Rock Girl Scout Council and Union County College.

"I have the time and I'm interested," she said. "And once you join one committee, your knowledge carries over to the next."

Last year, the United Way of Union County raised $4.3 million, 9 percent over the previous year's total, for the member agencies of the United Way in the Union County area. This year Corbet predicted it will do even better.

"We have good relationships in Union County, and last year the blue collar workers really came through for us," she said. "This year we're going to use our successful formulas of the past. Plus we have a few new programs."

Consumers' corner

Alert is issued on three products

A safety alert on three defective products was issued this week by Ellen Bloom, director of Union County Consumer Affairs.

Honeywell battery-operated smoke detectors — models TC89B and TC89C — that sound when the test button is pushed, may not sound when smoke is present, she said. Owners of the defective models should call the toll-free number 800-328-6194 for information about free replacement.

"Placing an extinguished, smoking candle under the smoke detector is the best way to check the effectiveness of these Honeywell models or any other battery-operated unit," Bloom said. "If it still fails to sound, even after you replace the battery, then it is defective and should be replaced."

The folding metal hinges on an infant stroller called E-Z Roller have proven dangerous to little fingers, Bloom added. There have been four instances of children who were not yet in the stroller, getting their fingers caught while it was being unfolded. Owners of these umbrella-type folding strollers, models 6620 and 6620, should call 800-345-4109 to receive free plastic hinge guard kits that will prevent such problems.

The third product involves the transformer unit that was sold with some Texas Instruments 99/4H Home Computers. Although no incident has occurred, there is a potential for electric shock hazard if the transformer fails, Bloom said. Should the transformer fail, there is only a hazard when touching an input port on the console or the RF modulator connected to the television. Owners of the affected models can call the toll-free number 800-858-4565 to get information and receive a transformer adaptor that will eliminate any shock hazard.

"There's a dangerous — and potentially fatal — game that children play with automatic garage doors," Bloom said. The "game" consists of youngsters trying to "beat" the door by racing under it before it closes. With the door in the raised position, they activate the door by means of the wall mounted switch or remove control switch, then race under as it closes.

"This so-called game has had some tragic consequences," said Bloom, who noted there have been injuries and at least nine deaths in the last three years. Even garage doors having an automatic reverse feature have been involved in deaths.

To prevent such tragedies, Bloom suggested relocating the wall-mounted switch out of the reach of children or, if remote controlled, placing the switch in the locked glove compartment of the car. In addition, the automatic reverse mechanism should be adjusted periodically for sensitivity in accordance with the owners manual.

Children also should be warned about the danger of hanging on the garage door handle while another youngster pushes the open and close button.

Product safety is just one aspect of consumer affairs, Bloom said. Anyone who has a problem regarding a retail transaction or contract can write to the Union County Division of Consumer Affairs, P.O. Box 186, Westfield, 07091.

Nearly 5,400 fingerprinted within two-month period

Union County Sheriff Ralph Froehlich, reporting on the first two months of his office's Fingerprints on File program, said that between Jan. 25 and March 31, members of the sheriff's staff fingerprinted 5,396 children at 27 schools in 14 communities in the county.

According to Froehlich, the goal of the program is to furnish to those parents who wish them a full set of professionally taken fingerprints of their child or children. The printing is voluntary and no copies of the prints are kept by the Sheriff's Department or any other law enforcement agency. The objective of the program is to provide a means of identifying lost or kidnapped children, Froehlich said. He said the program also has a preventive value in educating young people to the dangers of strangers.

Froehlich said, "I am very pleased with the community support and involvement in our program by principals, teachers, parents, and law enforcement officers. I am also pleased to report that 97 percent of the children in schools we've gone to have participated in the fingerprinting program."

The sheriff added, "In every school we've visited, parents have arrived bringing their pre-school children to be fingerprinted. We've also had a large turnout of parents and children from neighboring towns where the program has not yet been implemented."

The program, which was researched, developed and implemented by the Union County Sheriff's Department, was the first of its kind in the country. Froehlich said, "The program is now being copied all across the nation. We have received requests for information from every state in the nation and several foreign countries. The New Jersey State Sheriff's Association has adopted the program, and there is now legislation introduced to make the program available in all districts in the state."

Obstetrical medical bag recalls earlier era

An obstetrical medical bag with its original instruments has been donated to the library at Overlook Hospital in Summit by Robert J. Staub, M.D. The bag is more than 50 years old.

John I.B. Vail, M.D., was the original owner. He carried the bag when he delivered babies in homes from 1929 to 1959 in Hyannis, Mass.

Before his death in 1966, Dr. Vail gave the bag to his son, William Vail, M.D. Both doctors, John and William Vail, graduated from Columbia University, College of Physicians and Surgeons. Overlook Hospital is a major teaching affiliate of Columbia.

According to Dr. William Vail, who is now director of employee health services with Prudential Life Insurance Company in Roseland, "The bag contains not only instruments and solutions needed for uncomplicated normal deliveries, but also specialized instruments required in certain complications of childbirth. The instruments were housed in a metal container which could be sterilized in a hospital. This is also currently done to guard against puerperal infections. My father would travel miles to deliver a baby, and then return several times to check on the progress and welfare of the mother and baby."

Dr. William Vail was a member of Overlook's medical staff from 1949 to 1976. He had a practice in Short Hills in internal medicine when he met Dr. Robert Staub, an obstetrician in the same building. The two men became friends, and in 1976, when Dr. William Vail closed his office, he presented the bag to Dr. Staub. "I felt Dr. Staub would be interested in the bag since it certainly shows the strides made over the past 50 years," said Dr. William Vail.

Dr. Staub had the bag for six years before he decided to donate it to the library for public viewing. "It certainly shows how far we've come," Dr. Staub said. "It is just amazing to me that a doctor could practice literally 'out of the bag,' when my entire career has been hospital-orientated," he said. "I admire the doctors of the past," he added.

According to Kathy Hoeller, director of library services, "While the major goal of Overlook Hospital's Health Sciences Library is to provide access to current health care information, part of the library's role is to keep the history and culture of past achievements in medicine. We invite the public to view this new addition during the month of June."

The library is open Monday to Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

It's all on tape: service offers facts on health

Answers to questions about mumps, diabetes, venereal disease, gout, bee stings or Little League elbow will soon be only a phone call away.

As of June 13, Overlook Hospital in Summit will reactivate its Tel-Med service, offering area residents the opportunity to call in for answers to scores of health-related questions.

Tel-Med is a library of more than 200 tapes. They are catalogued numerically. The caller may request to hear a tape by either specifying a number or the subject matter. A listing of the tapes will be available at central locations throughout the community and at the hospital. The tapes average three minutes in duration and disconnect after playing.

After a two-year hiatus, Overlook's Tel-Med service is being restarted in its new location at the reception desk in the Center for Community Health. It will be operational Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will be staffed by men and women volunteers who will also serve as information guides for areas within the new Center.

Tel-Med is sponsored by the Overlook Hospital Auxiliary and will offer area residents a wide-range of health educational information, according to Auxiliary President June Riley. Through contributions by the auxiliary, the service is offered free, although there will be a toll charge for out-of-area phone calls.

Tel-Med was created in 1970 by a group of California physicians. It is currently operational in 18 other hospitals in New Jersey and in more than 100 hospitals nationwide. The Princeton Center for Health Affairs is the coordination and evaluation center for New Jersey's programs and maintains a full library of some 400 tapes. Information about health topics not included in Overlook's tape system can be obtained by calling the Princeton number 609-452-2882. The number for Overlook's service after June 13 is 522-2300.

Troop registration

The Watching Stable, Glenside Avenue, Summit, a Union County Department of Parks and Recreation facility in the Watching Reservation, is now accepting registrations for equestrian programs for adults. Beginners, intermediate and advanced lessons are offered. Additional information is available from the stable at 273-5547.

Red Cross launches relief services drive

The Eastern Union County Chapter, American Red Cross, headquartered in Elizabeth, has launched an emergency fund campaign to enable the Red Cross to continue relief services for the many victims of disasters throughout the United States, according to Genevieve Pascale DiVenuto, first vice chairwoman.

During the past ten months, $33 million has been spent in a series of major disasters, she said. The national goal for the fund campaign is $12 million. "Eastern Union County Chapter has been assessed $23,884, and with the help of our twelve communities, we hope to raise this sum," said DiVenuto.

Texas was struck by tornadoes, storms ravaged the West Coast and an earthquake hit Coslins, Calif. The 4,343 disasters also included a hurricane in Hawaii, floods and tornadoes in Mississippi, Illinois, Arkansas, Missouri, Alabama and Louisiana.

DiVenuto pointed out that "the Red Cross has been helping victims of disasters for 102 years, and that is exactly what we are going to continue to do." Contributions should be made out to American Red Cross and designated "Emergency Disaster Fund." They should be sent or delivered to Eastern Union County Chapter, American Red Cross, 203 West Jersey Street, Elizabeth 07202.

Social Security record reflects hiatus in a wage-earning career

Women who stop working to raise a family or for other reasons should remember that any Social Security credits they have already earned will remain on their Social Security earnings record, John H. McCutcheon, Social Security district manager in Elizabeth, said recently. If they return to work, any additional credits they earn will be added to their record.

Although this applies to both men and women, it may be of more significance to women who decide to remain at home while their children are young. McCutcheon said.

The amount of a person's benefits will probably be affected if he or she stops work, because the amount a worker receives is based on covered earnings over a period of years. Thus several years of low or no earnings would result in lower benefits than would be the case if that person worked continuously, McCutcheon noted.

'Psycho' album is released by MCA Records

By Milt Hammer
In the Pick of the Dees, "Music From the Original Motion Picture Soundtrack, Psycho II" (MCA Records) here are nine tracks opening with Bernard Herrmann music from the original "Psycho" shower scene and continuing through the eight Jerry Goldsmith compositions that give the story of "Psycho II" life. Goldsmith conducted and also produced the soundtrack.

Twenty-two years have passed since the release of one of the most classic thrillers ever filmed, Alfred Hitchcock's "Psycho."

Now, there "Psycho II," with Anthony Perkins recreating the role he made famous starring once again as Norman Bates. The picture is being held over at the Linden Twin Two Theater.

And after 22 years, Norman Bates is back home. Norman has spruced up the old Bates Motel in anticipation of new customers. The location is still the same: In the shadow of that infamous house, where a young Norman committed some rather heinous crimes 22 years ago. But that's all in the past. Norman has been declared by the court legally sane, a rehabilitated man. Hmm.

Since music plays such a critical role in setting the mood of a film, particularly a thriller, composer Goldsmith plays one of the key roles in this production.

'To the Nines' set by Whole Theater

The Whole Theater Company Professional Theater School's adult performing workshop will hold a performance of "To the Nines," an evening of nine actresses presenting scenes and monologues June 10 and Saturday at 8 p.m.

Theater plans play auditions

The New Jersey Public Theater, 118 South Ave., Cranford, will hold auditions for an original children's musical, "Pete's Invisible Dragon," Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. in the theater's Acting Studio. The play has been written and will be directed by David Christopher.

Rehearsals will begin June 27, and the show will run Friday and Saturday mornings at 11 from Aug. 13 through Sept. 3.

Additional information can be obtained by calling Christopher at the Acting Studio at 276-0276 or the public theater at 272-5704.

FOOD POISON
Over 2 million cases of bacterial food poisoning occur each year in this country, says Donald L. Houston, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service. Many, he says, are the result of improper food handling, cooking, cooling or storing of foods.

Disc & Data

By Milt Hammer

Pick of the LPs, "Travelin'" by L.J. Reynolds (Capitol Records). L.J. Reynolds started traveling when he was 10 years old, trekking up and down the Eastern seaboard with his R&B stand-up group, L.J. and Chocolate Syrup, who enjoyed a moderate late 1960s hit entitled "Sweet Tooth." Although Chocolate Syrup melted in 1970, L.J. continued to travel, going on to become lead singer with the Dramatics and then strike out on a solo career with Capitol Records, for whom he has released this, his second album.

"I'm going places and reaching a lot more people with this album," says L.J. "It's got a concept like a travelogue, with all the songs being different slides from a trip. But each individual song, like a picture, tells its own complete story. And some of my stories are dance tunes while others are ballads."

L.J. developed his powerful and emotive baladeering style during a seven-year 10-album stint with the Detroit-based smooth soul group, the Dramatics. His role within the group was eventually expanded to where his responsibilities included co-producing, songwriting and bass playing. L.J. sang lead vocals on the group's Top 10 smash, "I Can't Get Over You" in 1977 and wrote, produced and sang lead on half of the popular "Do What You Wanna Do" LP in 1978.

He chose to leave the Dramatics to pursue a solo career in 1980, maintaining that he "wanted to be able to express myself in a variety of styles. Singing with the band situation because there was an abundance of talent. Since everybody wanted to lead singer, I couldn't share all of myself with people."

L.J. was finally able to share of himself with his first solo venture, a namesake album that was released in May 1981. The album included the regional hits, "Am'N' No Woman (Like My Baby)" and "Key to the World," both of which were number one records in Detroit, where L.J. now resides. He also embarked on a promotional tour in support of the record and was extremely well-received in New York City as well as his hometown.

The new "Travelin'" LP was co-produced by L.J. and Don Davis, his associate since the Dramatic days. The same duo that worked magic on the "L.J. Reynolds" album, they each produced one side of "Travelin'." L.J. played bass on all the basic tracks and sang all the parts, including the lead vocals and four-part harmony overlays. "My goal," he says, "was to combine music you could dance to with great lyrics that had meaning. I always wanted the characters in my songs to come to life for the listeners."

"Travelin'" continually reiterates L.J.'s favorite themes, most of which are based on men's relationships with women, and vice versa. "I enjoy singing to women for all men," says L.J. "We're all traveling down the road of life together, and I just want to make the trip a little more pleasant for everybody."
