

System blends gasoline with air

The energy that moves the car comes from two sources—gasoline and air. The purpose of the fuel system is to store gasoline, blend it with the correct proportion of air and send this combustible mixture to the engine's cylinders. A float inside the gas tank measures the amount of fuel in the tank and sends a signal to the fuel gauge on your car's instrument panel.

The fuel pump moves gasoline from the gas tank to the carburetor. A fuel filter in the connecting line, usually between the pump and the carburetor, screens out dirt and rust particles.

Hidden beneath the big, round air cleaner on top of the engine is the carburetor, which has the vital function of mixing just the right proportions of fuel and air.

Air enters the carburetor through the air cleaner, where it is filtered to remove dust and other foreign matter. It then flows through a narrow throat in the carburetor. Here's where the fuel is added, through a nozzle. The mixture enters the intake manifold, which is essentially a pipe with a branch for each cylinder in the car's engine.

Engine speed is controlled by the throttle, which is a plate inside the carburetor; it acts just like a door. When you step on the accelerator, a system of rods and levers connected to the carburetor pushes the door open. The further down you push the accelerator, the wider the door opens, and a greater amount of fuel-air mixture enters the manifold.

The carburetor is set to mix about 15 parts of air with each part of gasoline, by weight. Under some conditions, the engine requires a "richer" mixture, that is, a greater proportion of gasoline. For example, the choke enriches the mixture when a cold engine is started. This device is similar to the throttle, but it's located near the top of the carburetor. When the door is partially closed, it chokes off part of the air—but allows fuel to flow freely. On some cars, the choke can be controlled by a cable attached to a knob on the instrument panel, but most cars are equipped with automatic chokes, which open and close by thermostats similar to the type that regulates the temperature in the home.

The engine also needs a richer mixture when pushing down hard on the accelerator to pass another car, or to pull into fast-moving freeway traffic. It's provided by the accelerating pump, a small piston or diaphragm inside the carburetor, which squirts an extra few drops of fuel as the accelerator is depressed.

The carburetor is often blamed for troubles that start elsewhere. If the engine doesn't start with the first few turns of the starter, prolonged cranking and pumping the accelerator may cause the carburetor to "flood."

You'll notice a strong smell of gasoline. Don't keep grinding away on the starter. Turn off the ignition and wait a few minutes. Then try again. Usually, the flooded carburetor can be cleared by holding the accelerator all the way down while the starter turns. If the engine still won't start, check the ignition.

Vapor lock is a problem that sometimes occurs in hot weather when you attempt to restart an engine that has been shut down briefly. Vapor lock develops when fuel in the line boils, forming bubbles that block the flow of gasoline. The situation can be relieved temporarily by soaking rags in cold water, then holding them against the fuel line and fuel pump. If vapor lock persists, check to be sure the fuel line isn't resting against a hot part of the engine. Have your serviceman test the pressure of the fuel pump.

The element in the air cleaner should be cleaned or replaced at the interval recommended by the car manufacturer, or more often if you drive in dusty areas. Also have the fuel filter serviced at the specified mileage.

When gasoline mileage slips, or performance isn't quite up to par, the carburetor can be checked by your serviceman with modern precision test equipment.

Often, disassembly, cleaning and adjustment will cure the trouble, but if parts are worn, the carburetor should be overhauled or replaced with a new or reconditioned unit. The fuel pump should also be overhauled or replaced if it does not develop the specified pressure.

Township committee abolishes police 'assistant'

By VICKI VREELAND
Police from PBA Local 76 spent over an hour at the township committee meeting Tuesday night discussing the final reading of an ordinance that would eliminate the position of an administrative assistant to the police chief. The ordinance then was passed by a 5-3 vote.

The officers first came out two weeks ago when the ordinance was introduced by Philip Feintuch, police commissioner, to voice their objections. The ordinance, which was adopted by the township committee in 1976, created the position of administrative assistant to the police chief, which was held until this summer by Phyllis Brower.

The job description for the administrative assistant gave Brower the authority to assist the police chief in financial and disciplinary matters, as well as being a confidential assistant. Feintuch maintains that his only reason for rescinding the ordinance, thereby abolishing the position, is because he feels a civilian should not have those duties.

Committee members Stanley Kaish and William Cieri, police officers, and Kimberly Thompson, president of the Municipal Employees Association, requested the township committee to simply change the wording of the job description and return Brower back to work.

Detective Donald Dancer told the committee that ever since July (when Brower was removed) the record bureau for the detectives has been in "chaos." He asked the township committee to define job descriptions for all the municipal employees in the police department.

Judd Levenson, vice president of the PBA, also told the committee about the problems in the department since Brower left. Levenson told of officers appearing in court unprepared because reports have been lost or not typed.

Pointuch said that he hopes Brower will return to the department in a secretarial capacity. She has since been working in the court clerk's office.

Thompson pointed out that the MEA could call for a new position (such as secretary to the police chief) to be posted in municipal hall so that employees within can apply for the job.

Barbara Parsell, wife of Police Chief George Parsell, commented on the discourteous way Brower was notified of her removal. According to Parsell, Brower received a letter after the decision was made and was not informed why she was being moved. Two days later, according to Parsell, she received a call that if she was not out of the office in a matter of hours, she and the police chief would be subject to disciplinary action.

The PBA told the township committee that they think there is more behind the situation than just a matter of changing employee positions or job descriptions. In a written statement to the township committee, they anticipate that in the near future, additional responsibilities will be given to Captain Samuel Calabrese in an effort to undermine the police chief's duties. At the conclusion of the meeting, Levenson commented that the township committee's decision was "predictable."

Township Committee takes board to court

The Springfield Township Committee filed a verified complaint against the Springfield Board of Education Friday in Superior Court, Elizabeth to declare that the contract for the sale of Walton School is void. Named in the complaint are the Springfield Board of Education, all individual members of the board of education, Frank Racioppi, builder, and his corporation, Green Spring Estates.

Gary Lanzara, a member of the law firm Simon and Allen, Newark, has replaced the township's regular attorney, Jay Cloud, in representing the township in the suit against the board of education. According to Lan-zara, "The township committee is only interested in the contract complying with the statute." Lanzara was referring to the state statute that mandates that public land to be sold must be subdivided prior to the sale or the contract must provide a contingency for it to be done afterwards. The township maintains that these provisions were not met.

According to Yale Greenspoon, attorney, "The state statute gives the right to the local township to enforce the ordinance.

David Blederman, of Giblin and Giblin, Hackensack, (the board of education's regular law firm) is representing the board of education. Blederman said, "I don't know why individual members were named, the contract is between the board and the purchaser (Racioppi)."

The contract's 90 day closing date is now up.

The defense attorneys represented by Judge Beglin had, no closing date had been set for the immediate future. Judge Beglin said the temporary restraining request.

"To restrain the application that is being prepared and filed could harm the public interest if the board of education were to prevail on the final legal question," he told attorneys.

He did, however, accept the township's complaint to show cause and set the trial date at Superior Court for Nov. 14 at 9:30 a.m.

FIRST PLACE WINNER—Gayle Grabsinsky, drum major of the Jonathan-Dayton Regional High School band, accepts congratulations from Union County Regional High School District Superintendent Donald Merachnik after her band won first place for its group size at David Brearley's recent band competition. Dayton band gave stirring exhibition performance in the rain at its own band event last Sunday.

The 2 Democratic candidates are profiled

(This is the second of a two-part series on the candidates for Springfield Township Committee. Last week we profiled the Republicans. Today we profile the Democrats.)

By VICKI VREELAND

BILL CIERI
"I believe I will have strong objections to make to Springfield, in addition to what I have done already," said Bill Cieri, Democrat committee member who is seeking re-election in November. Cieri has served six years on the township committee and two terms as mayor.

"I enjoy serving the public," Cieri continued, "and would like to see programs carried out that I have been working on." Specific programs Cieri referred to were a nine-community area sharing forum and a nutrition program at the township's newly acquired Chisolm School. The nutrition program will provide hot lunches for needy residents. Rebecca Seal, senior citizen coordinator, is assisting with the program. Cieri said, "Hopefully, it will be in place in the next several months."

The Area Sharing Forum was developed to organize ways different communities could share each other's facilities. Cieri sees it as important because, "higher taxes are no longer acceptable or affordable." "We do have an aging population in Springfield and we want to maintain a high quality of life for residents," Cieri said.

In regard to the Springfield board of education's recent sale of Walton School, Cieri said, "My position on the entire board of education issue was to maintain all the schools. It was my position at the outset and still is." Cieri said that he is "personally troubled" by the issue.

He believes the way the community will be united again, "is when people start talking and listening to one another. I have made an effort in private circumstances to bring people together and I will continue to do that. I don't believe the divisiveness can continue in Springfield."

Cieri likes to do "productive" things for people. He has been named "Man of the Year" by the St. James Men's Club and "Knight of the Year" by the Springfield Knights of Columbus. He is a charter member of the Springfield Optimist Club and vice president of the Community Opera of N.J.

Cieri has been a resident of Springfield for 28 years and resides at Ardenbridge Lane. He is an account executive and a divisional sales manager for Bulk Institutional Food Products, Long Island City.

Cieri believes the role of a township committee to be one of a legislator. "He should get very much involved in his assigned department because there is no township administrator or manager. He should visit the various departments to discuss problems and to implement programs. I don't believe in interfering with the professional part of the department, but you must work with them in the decision-making process."

cess so that the department can run more efficiently," Cieri said. "I don't believe this can be done on an absentee basis," he added.

Cieri has been filing for grants for Springfield and would like to see any monies that come in go towards senior citizen activities, development of recreation programs at Chisolm School and improvements in public safety.

STAN KAISH
Stanley Kaish, Democrat incumbent committee member, is seeking reelection because, "I think I do the job well, and I enjoy it." Kaish said he is also afraid that if his opponents are elected, Springfield would not be best served by a township committee where four of the five members have a cumulative total of 20 months experience, not to mention the fact that the township committee would be made up of one political party.

Kaish, like his running mate Bill Cieri, is proud of his six years experience on the township committee and the service he has provided.

When asked what Kaish saw as Springfield's biggest problem, he replied, "I think Springfield's biggest problem is trying to stay the way it is." He referred to outside forces such as the county freeholders who have suggested Springfield as a good site for an amphitheater. Kaish believes energies should be spent in trying to preserve what people like about the town's suburban atmosphere.

With a Ph. D. degree from New York University in economics, Kaish feels he

He stressed the importance of residents who are concerned about the amphitheater to come out when called upon and state their opposition, this may be done by attending meetings or signing petitions.

Kaish also sees the appointments to municipal boards as an important responsibility of the township committee person. He feels residents should be appointed to boards for reasons other than friendship.

Kaish believes that before new programs or positions are created in town, they have to be studied for cost effectiveness; are taxpayers willing to pay the cost for new programs.

He views the creation of a township administrator position to be one that "would make the governing of the town more efficient, and would certainly make the committee person's job easy." But he also sees a problem with the position.

"We're not just creating a position for this year. The salary of the person (about $50,000) would be covered by the township for years to come. When our administrator gains experience, he or she might be hired away by larger towns who could afford to pay more, and we would have a serious loss of experienced administrators. You have to measure the benefits against the cost."

should know about analyzing costs and benefits. He is a professor and chairman of the Department of Economics, Rutgers University, Newark. He is also a trustee of Temple B'Nai Brith, Springfield.

Speaking more on economics, Kaish said, "You can always have more of everything, but you have to study the cost-effectiveness." He thinks the township could provide more youth, non-athletic activities.

He strongly feels that, "there are professionals who are hired to run the actual municipal departments in town. He also thinks that the township committee person should associate with the professionals to see what their needs are." The township committee's overall job is to provide resources for the departments," Kaish summed up.

In regard to the local board of education issue, Kaish said his position has always been to maintain all township schools. As an economist, for the short run, he can see the economic reasons for closing a school. "However," Kaish said, "perhaps the Walton School issue should not be resolved along economic lines."

150 at candidates night

By VICKI VREELAND
Candidates-Night, sponsored by the Springfield League of Women Voters, brought out about 150 residents to Jonathan-Dayton Regional High School for the local township committee candidates, as well as the state senatorial and assembly candidates.

Incumbent Democrat committee member William Cieri Monday night made opening remarks, followed by Republicans Ron Citron and Greg Druker and concluding with Stanley Kaish, Democrat incumbent committee member.

The first question from the audience asked all the candidates to specify their top three priorities in Springfield and name a unique qualification they had to do the job. Kaish, who replied first, said he was concerned that "outside" forces were trying to change Springfield. He referred to the Springfield Mall issue and named the current threat as the freeholders' proposal for an amphitheater in the Houdaille Quarry.

Kaish said that he worked to stop the mall and will support a petition or a march to demonstrate opposition to the quarry. Kaish said another of his priorities would be to heal the town. "The town has suffered a severe rupture," Kaish said, referring to the divisiveness in Springfield attributed to the board of education's sale of Walton School.

Citron commented on the "band-aid approach." "The town reacts to crises instead of preventing them," he said. Citron said that the township committee should have wanted the freeholders ahead of time to oppose the amphitheater.

Cieri replied that a statement like that shows the inexperience of the Republican candidates. "We did go to the freeholders ahead of time," Cieri said, "I think the amphitheater would be absolutely a disaster for Springfield." He is concerned that Shan-pika Road would be the only access to the "cultural center." Cieri said his top priority is the school board issue.

"The amphitheater is a non-issue," Druker stated, "both the Democrats and Republicans have gone on record being opposed to it." He suggested better lines of communication between the township committee and the freeholders.

Druker also said, "Definitely the biggest issue in town is Walton School. My main purpose for running for public office is to bring a sense of unity to Springfield."

Whether or not the candidates favored the position of a township administrator was the next question asked. Cieri replied first, "I have no problems with a township administrator, but we'll (the committeemen) have nothing to do." Cieri said he wanted to go on record as saying that if he were elected, and a township administrator was hired, he would suggest that the committee person's salary be lowered to $1. "I don't need a township administrator, I'm willing to do the work," he said.

Druker said that under the present guidelines department heads have no one to report to. "We have a $6 million dollar budget and no boss." He also quoted two-thirds of the towns in Union County as having a township administrator.

Kaish said, "Every now and then we reinvent the wheel." Kaish said that the idea was discussed before (suggested by the League of Women Voters) but that he wasn't sure that the cost the township would pick-up, salary, secretary, cur. (ice, etc.) would justify the output from the administrator.

Citron, "I'm neither for or opposed to the idea of an administrator, but I want the feasibility of it studied."

The next question was what benefits if any can be derived from the completion of interstate highway 78. Druker replied, "Interstate 78 is a national defense highway. It will go through." Druker said he thought money that was being spent fighting it was a waste and that instead the township should look for concession from the government in the way of environmental protection.

Cieri said, "We have stopped fighting it." Cieri said that he had fought the highway because of detrimental factors to Springfield, "which it has had." At this point, Cieri remarked, "All of Mr. Citron's and Mr. Druker's answers for the first three questions have been written, which leads me to believe that these are stacked questions."

Citron also addressed the audience at one point, "We have all tried to remain gentlemanly. I think people are here to hear our views, not slide remarks."

Returning to the topic of the amphitheater, the candidates were asked to describe steps they would take to prevent the construction. Citron said, "I would appoint someone on a regular basis to attend freeholder meetings to express the views of Springfield residents." Cieri said, "I want to mount a massive petition drive to Trenton or Washington to stop this incursion into the township."

Kaish, responding to the amphitheater, stated, "The freeholders are highly motivated to go ahead with this thing. 'Sweet Reason' is not going to do it. The only way to do it is through protest." Druker added, "I spoke to the Republican candidates for freeholder and they said that if they were elected they would not push the amphitheater."

The candidates were also questioned about their views on affordable housing in Springfield. The township committee's legal action against the board of education and bi-partisan representation on the township committee.

Dems in look at record

KENILWORTH—Walter E. Boright, Sr. campaign manager for Mayor candidate Charles E. Vitale and Borough Council candidates Vivian Volz and Tony Montanari, spoke to a group of over 40 Kenilworth residents at campaign headquarters last week and discussed the past performance records of the Mayor and candidates.

Boright stated that during Livio Mancino's years in office, "he pushed the local radiation facility with an 80 foot tower, a cultural center in a double 'A' zone and townhouses on 14th Street. He has been promising the senior citizens a new facility for the past eight years, and told them he received $15,000 in aid to build it, which is totally untrue."

"Mancino also failed to apply for at least $50,000 in free aid under the 1983 supplemental jobs bill grant. Last but not least, the issue on apartments and condominiums was started by Mancino when he advised his planning board it was necessary to come up with recommendations on rezoning. After a lot of work—the rezoning—the Planning Board came up with its recommendations for Mancino, and then all the local controversy started."

Boright further commented that "John Brede, the other Mayoral candidate, admitted at the homeowners' meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 18, that he was appointed to the Planning Board by Mancino and was later elected council member with the support of special interest groups."

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER—Mrs. Jeanette Aronow presents Evelyn Aronow Dolan Foundation Scholarship to Maria Franchino. The foundation is located in Springfield.

Franchino receives Dolan's scholarship

SPRINGFIELD—Upsala College junior Maria Franchino is this year's recipient of the Evelyn Aronow Dolan Foundation Scholarship.

The presentation was made recently at the college by Mrs. Jeanette Aronow, mother of Evelyn Aronow Dolan and a trustee of the foundation located in Springfield.

For the past two years, scholarships have been awarded by the foundation in memory of Mrs. Dolan, a 1969 graduate of Upsala. Although confined to a wheelchair because of cerebral palsy, Mrs. Dolan was active in student organizations while at Upsala and worked tirelessly for the rights of the handicapped after her graduation. She was executive director of the New Jersey Governor's Committee on the Handicapped for seven years until her death in 1981. She was also New Jersey director of the White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals and a member of the National Implementation Advisory Committee.

Franchino, the daughter of Rocchina and Nick Franchino, has been disabled with cerebral palsy since her birth and walks with the aid of crutches. A psychology major who plans to become a clinical psychologist, she has organized a club on the campus with the objective of clearing up misconceptions about the disabled and acting as an advocacy group to help remove physical barriers for the handicapped that still remain. The letters of the group's name—C Club—stand for Care, Communicate, Cooperate and Compensate.

"In the past," Franchino said, "I thought coping with my disability meant trying to be normal in every way. But that's not a healthy way to think. What you must do is come to accept your disability and try to be the best you can, setting goals for yourself and working toward accomplishing them without letting your disability get in the way."

In awarding the scholarship to Franchino, Mrs. Aronow said, "We're interested in someone who will become an advocate for the disabled. That is why we felt Maria was the right person."

Franchino, along with another handicapped student, also received the award last year.

The Evelyn Aronow Dolan Foundation was established to continue the work begun by Mrs. Dolan in providing linking the handicapped and non-handicapped communities and assuring the right of all human beings to realize their potential. It is an educational organization committed to making major changes in public and professional attitudes and increasing the awareness of productive contributions by handicapped people to society. In addition to scholarships, the foundation provides workshops and seminars for community groups, professional organizations and corporations.

Safety is first for halloween

SPRINGFIELD—Halloween should be a fun time for children, and to make sure it is here are some tips from Springfield Police Chief George Parsell. When trick or treating, children should travel in small groups of 3 or 4.

Young children should be accompanied by an adult or older child. During evening hours, children should be with an adult.

Children should not go to homes of strangers or go inside any home. Children should only go to homes with lights on and should be home at a set time.

Treaters should not go to homes of strangers or go inside any home. Children should only go to homes with lights on and should be home at a set time.

Supporters laud mayor's record

KENILWORTH—Independent campaign coordinators Steve Kotch and Bill Chango went on record today with a challenge to the opponents of Mayor Livio Mancino and Councilwoman Phyllis Balzacchini saying, "We challenge our mayoral and council opponents to show factual proof of any area where this administration has not succeeded or made a genuine effort to help correct a problem."

"Let them tell us how they will improve the low tax rate, fantastic surplus, a top recreation department, the garnering of state and federal funds, numerous street improvements, almost total removal of flood problems, and the many other benefits enjoyed by the residents of Kenilworth."

"Surely, the Democratic team can do better than raising the issue that our community is plagued with finances, for it is their supporters who have caused the finances. It is also their real estate supporters who want the town changed."

In related matters, in the ninth article entitled, "Do You Know Your Mayor?" the independent publicity coordinator, Vivian Keenan, cites "the effectiveness of the Mayor's business ability which has created a strong financial base for the Borough, with a surplus reaching nearly $900,000."

"The Republicans are likewise looking for issues that don't exist. They followed the mayor and councilwoman's opposition to the Planning Board's recommendations. Yet, the mayor candidate who ran for council last year, never issued one statement about senior citizens' needs. He also was on the planning board when the master plan was discussed, yet he never opposed their recommendations. The record also shows he voted for that eyesore building across from the Harding School. In fact, the mayor urged him to oppose it.

"Some of the council candidates have barely been to council meetings, yet they are addressing issues and making changes—or is it just political rhetoric without substance."

The campaign coordinators concluded by saying, "Our opponents have already admitted that this is an election without issues, for if they had any they should have first addressed them. Apparently, they also know that this administration, under the leadership of Mayor Mancino supported by Councilwoman Balzacchini, has done an outstanding job in addressing the needs of the Borough. This is why we feel the people will re-elect them on Nov. 8."

Republicans stressing 'unity'

KENILWORTH—In a joint statement Republican mayoral candidate John Brede and his running mates Mike Thorsen and Ron Mack pledged to "end the divisiveness in government which has split our community and made a mockery of the governmental process."

The three candidates said "Unity in both spirit and action is a necessary factor in maintaining public confidence. 'The people of Kenilworth are looking for positive leadership in helping to solve some of our many problems, not ridicule from elected officials'."

The candidates went on to say that "the residents of our borough were tired of reading about all the lawsuits against the community and that a change of leadership was necessary."

"We offer ourselves as the alternative in indifference, intolerance and misdirection. We became involved because we care about our community and are concerned about the direction it is going."

Citron, Drucker: Dems 'confused' on facts

SPRINGFIELD—"Bill Cieri and Stan Kaish are obviously confused about the facts on bread and other issues," points out Greg Drucker, Republican candidate for Township Committee. "In their release published in the 'Springfield Leader' on Oct. 6, they refer to the 'Republican controlled Freeholder Board,' when, in fact the Board is Democrat controlled."

"It is no surprise that they're pursuing the phony issue of the 'two-party system' to get themselves elected," adds Ron Citron, Drucker's running mate. "They don't have any other issues because things have been getting done in the last nine months since Joanne Tedesco and Phil Feintuch joined Bill Rucco in office."

"They've painted themselves into a corner with this one," explains Drucker. "Their press release calls for 'wheelchair' behind the scene swapping of

Cieri, Kaish stress 'quality' in election

SPRINGFIELD—"Two-party government and the quality of the candidates are the overwhelming issues of this year's election in Springfield," said Bill Cieri and Stanley Kaish, Democratic candidates for re-election to Springfield's Township Committee. "We deserve re-election on both counts."

"Without bi-partisan representation of the Township Committee there is no way whatsoever to be assured that politics won't run amok in town government. There are police and fire department appointments to be made. Without one party watching the other these appointments can very easily be made on the basis of political friendship rather than the applicant's qualifications."

"There are planning and zoning matters to be considered. Without bi-partisan government there is nothing to prevent cronyism and not objectivity from determining these decisions. There are neighborhoods to be lighted, contracts to be awarded, streets to be paved. Without bi-partisan government there are no assurances that these will be done to best suit all the people and not a few."

The Cieri and Kaish statement continued, "We are the sole Democrats boards, traveled to Washington, Elizabeth and Trenton on Springfield's behalf many times during the six years they have served on the township committee. Additionally, both served for years before running for election on Springfield's Board of Adjustment. By contrast Citron and Drucker have spent no years in town government, and in fact, attended their first township committee meeting only after announcing their candidacy."

"Springfield has many critical issues facing it this year; too many to be left to a township committee on which four of the five members would have a total of two years experience among them. Be elected Cieri and Kaish. We have earned your vote."

For land and sea

The emphasis is on the environment with the two bond issues and the public question appearing on the ballot in the Nov. 8 election.

One of the bond issues would provide $155 for Green Acres — a program which by now must be familiar to almost all New Jerseyans. Of the total, $50 million would be used for state recreation and conservation projects; $30 million would go into a revolving fund that would provide loans to local governments; and $75 million would be used for matching grants to local governmental units.

A second bond issue calls for $50 million for shore protection programs. Of this total, $35 million would be used to provide matching grants to counties and municipalities for shore protection research and to acquire and maintain lands; under the matching grant terms, 75 percent of the funding would come from the state and 25 percent would be raised locally. The remaining $15 million in the bond issue would provide loans to small municipalities, which could use the money as their share of the matching grant program.

Also on the ballot is a public question authorizing funding for water supply plans, programs and studies. It is, in effect, the second time around for this question. A water supply bond act was approved in 1981, but none of the funds in it were specifically designated for feasibility and engineering studies; the public question on the ballot in this year's election would make money available for such studies.

The argument for a "yes" vote on all these issues is the same: Preserving the environment and natural resources such as water becomes more and more essential as the state becomes more and more industrialized.

Additionally, voters should remember when they pull the lever on the shore protection bond issue that tourism is vital to New Jersey's economy; and the shoreline is vital to the tourist industry.

The amendments

As usual, voters going to the polls in the off-year election on Nov. 8 will find themselves faced with not only a list of candidates for state office, but also a list of proposed amendments to the state constitution.

There are four of them this year, and all merit favorable consideration.

One is a question of simple common sense. Listed on the ballot as "bond refinancing," it would permit the New Jersey Legislature to rewrite existing bond issues to take advantage of more favorable interest rates.

Another is a matter of simple justice. On the ballot, it is described as allowing a surviving spouse to receive the veterans' real and personal property tax deduction or exemption. What it would do is remove gender-based language, so that widowers of women veterans could retain this exemption; widows of men veterans can already do so.

A constitutional amendment on transfer of judges to the Superior Court would complete a five-year court reform program. Judges from the juvenile and domestic relations courts or family courts would be among those transferred, bringing all family matters — including divorce, alimony, adoption and child support — into the jurisdiction of a single court. County district court judges also would be transferred in a streamlining of the judicial system.

Another amendment, revising gubernatorial veto provisions, would give the governor seven days after the close of a legislative session to sign bills passed in the final 10 days of the session. This should not be needed; vital legislation already faces enough delay in the state governmental process. Unfortunately, the usual end-of-session chaos, when legislators have been known to pass bills without reading them, makes it necessary. The governor needs the extra time; the amendment, therefore, deserves a reluctant "yes."

Scene around the towns

Someplace in Roselle: that's where this week's mystery scene, above, is located. If you recognize it, let us hear from you by 9 a.m. Monday. Write to Scene, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 3109, 1291 Stuyvesant Ave., Union 07083.

Michael Korah lives in Linden, not in Union, but he recognized last week's Union scene, at right, which proclaims Union's birthplace with one slight problem: a pair of transposed figures; Union became a township in 1808, not 1809.

The photo is the Connecticut Farms Presbyterian Church sign on Stuyvesant Avenue," he wrote. "The sign is in front of the church." He noted that the cemetery next to the church has "the oldest stones I have seen."

Another reader who recognized the

"mixed-up sign" is Lisa Battilo of Kenilworth, who described some nearby landmarks. The sign is across the street from the Recreation Center Scene, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 3109, 1291 Stuyvesant Ave., Union 07083.

So did Connie Lordi of Union, who wrote: "How could I miss...?" She noted that the sign is located on Stuyvesant Avenue "alongside Connecticut Farms Cemetery... Connecticut Farms Church in the background, directly across the street from the Recreation Center."

Another Kenilworth resident, Mildred Kendig, also recognized the scene.

Once again Norman Cousins relives a period of illness. This time a cardiac attack (1980), "assisted hunting and bringing hope and positive outlook to those with a serious illness. When a regimen was recommended to him at diagnosis, Cousins, contrary to the cautions of his physicians, took charge of himself (with modifications) proving that he understood his own body best, and his reactions to his needs. Forunately, as a member of the faculty of the School of Medicine in Los Angeles, climate gradients, and he had the knowledge that he had in his body to heal himself.

Previously, while enduring another health setback, his confidence, purpose, a deep will to live, joyousness and vigor, and his vigorous rehabilitation program," had worked well for him. Now he decided to test his own improvement. He had refused surgery, and though still a patient "at the risk," he was told that a new series of blood vessels had been created around the heart.

Cousins emphasizes the role of the physician when "words" can either spark a recovery or lead to panic, confusion, immobility, or create hope and an environment for healing. He discussed the growing interest of consumers in medicine: prescriptions, malpractice suits, good physician-patient relationships, nutrition, and modern technology.

In the epilogue of the author speaks of existing anomalies: the attempt to save lives, yet sells handbags, the appropriation of taxpayer's money to promote the sale of cigarettes, the menace of international foreign policies (anarchic, primitive, hostile, pathological), the search for ways to combat disease and the creation of organisms for warfare, the assistance that we can survive nuclear war. He concludes: "...the conquest of war, therefore, must become our grand preoccupation and magnificent obsession."

Ham operators out of this world

SPRINGFIELD—For the first time ever, citizens from localities all over the United States and the rest of the world will have a chance of talking directly with an astronaut in orbit when the space shuttle Columbia lifts off from Cape Canaveral tomorrow carrying the first Amateur (ham) Radio station into orbit.

Members of Springfield's Emergency Management, under the direction of deputy coordinator Scott Seidel, a club of ham radio operators will be among those who will attempt to contact Dr. Owen Garriot, astronaut and ham operator.

Dr. Garriot will use a hand-held radio during his off-duty time to communicate with some of the thousands of "ham" radio operators around the world. Dr. Garriot's call sign is W5LFL. Only a lucky several hundred will actually contact Dr. Garriot. Springfield Emergency Management (S.E.M.) is a volunteer organization open to anyone over the age of 14 who lives or works in Springfield and has interest in radios, electronics, communications. No prior knowledge of electronics is required. Many of the present members joined the unit and then obtained their ham licenses.

Ham radios are entirely different from citizen band radios. Radio amateurs operate relatively unrestricted by government regulations because they must demonstrate their knowledge of radio theory and regulations before going on the air. Other's who are not required to pass an examination, are severely limited in what they can do.

There are currently over one and a half million licensed Amateur Radio operators worldwide. Japan represents half of these amateurs. Most government agencies acknowledge Amateur Radio as a source of technical and communicating skills, especially during emergencies.

Seidel, 29, joined emergency management in 1973. He obtained his ham license in 1974 as a result of classes sponsored by the unit. Since then, he has served as a radio operator, radio officer before becoming deputy coordinator. He is a real estate broker in Springfield.

Mays' training for EMT helps save elderly man

MOUNTAINSIDE—Patrick Mays, a former resident of Mountainside and the 21-year-old grandson of Anita and Larry Curtis of Sunny Slope Drive, had a memorable experience this summer.

A former member of the Mountainside Rescue Squad when his father Ronnie was captain of the squad, teenager Pat served them mostly as a gofer and observer. He always wanted to be a medic and a law enforcement officer. Now he is both and, because of it, a Wagoner, Okla. man is alive today.

Pat's training in EMT (emergency medical training) stood him in good stead this July as he answered an emergency police call where he found an elderly man with no pulse or breathing. Neighbors who had found him had given him up for dead. Mays performed CPR, got the man breathing again, administered oxygen, and checked for medications in the man's home that would aid the doctors. He then followed up on the man's daily condition.

Mays recently completed the academic studies required for a para-med, and he has only 200 hours of clinical practice remaining before he qualifies. In January he plans to start taking the 30 college credits which will qualify him to take the entrance exam for the Oklahoma Highway Patrol Academy.

Mays explains, "I try to set my goals as high as I can." Saving the life of an elderly man has made him feel "fantastic... makes me want to work even harder."

The Mays family, including parents Ronnie and Anita, and brothers Richard, Jeff and Frank moved to Broken Arrow, Okla. about six years ago from Mountainside.

21st district candidates discuss their 'priorities'

By ELIZABETH BEP
SPRINGFIELD—Education, toxic waste and senior care are among the concerns 21st district legislative candidates were asked to discuss Monday at a candidates night sponsored by the League of Women Voters here at Gaudinier School.

State Senate candidates Anthony E. Russo, a Democrat, and Republican C. Louis Bassano, the incumbent, took part in the program. Also on hand were state Assembly candidates Barbara Brande and Eugene J. Carmody, Democrats, and Republicans Edward K. Gill and Chuck Hardwick, the incumbents.

The school gymnasium contained about 150 people who heard the views of the local township committee candidates after their running for the state legislature had begun.

All of the legislative candidates were asked if they would pledge to make toxic waste their number one concern if they were elected.

Hardwick said that his opponents have charged that the Republicans have been "anti-environment."

"Our record is one to be very proud of. The cleaning up of the environment is under way with the Republican administration," Hardwick said.

"I am very much concerned with solid waste as well as with toxic waste," Gill said, stating that New Jersey is the "number one" recipient of federal superfund money.

"New Jersey, so far, is ahead of the other states in getting rid of toxic waste. We should be very proud," he added.

As for whether he would make toxic waste his primary concern, Gill said that "there are so many priorities right now, such as excellence in education."

His opponents, Carmody and Brande, disagreed, saying that the environment "has to be the number one priority."

"My opponents are not taking much of a stand on clean water. New Jersey has been dubbed the cancer alley of the United States. We can and should be doing something more. It has to be one of my top priorities," Carmody said.

"The state has spent a lot of money on clean-up, but what we really need is laws to stop it before it gets to that point," Brande said.

"The health of our family is our most important asset," Russo said.

He added that the state's water supply and the transportation of toxic waste must be monitored.

"There has to be strict control. There is no second chance. Once you are hit with cancer, it's too late," Russo said.

His opponent, Bassano, said that he "wrote the law on the books" pertaining to the transportation of waste, "the strongest law in the nation."

"I have worked in that area and I will continue to," he added.

Bassano and Russo were asked their thoughts on senatorial courtesy and both said they are not in favor of it.

"It is an unfair thing and should be abolished. There are enough safeguards in the system to be sure that anyone appointed is qualified for a position," Russo said, adding that senatorial courtesy could cause problems.

Bassano said that during his year and a half in the state Senate, he has never used senatorial courtesy "and have no intent of using it."

"It is used as a backdoor against the governor. Senatorial courtesy benefits few people. I am not in favor of it," Bassano said.

All of the candidates were asked whether they feel the present system of financing education is adequate.

Bassano said that there will be "a great number" of changes in the education system during the next couple of years.

"Throwing money at a problem is not necessarily the answer," Gill said.

"Governor Kean's suggestions are going to cost more money, especially his proposal to put teachers' salaries. We'll have to put the money where it will do the most good — get the biggest bang for our buck," Gill said.

Hardwick said that only three out of 20 state departments got increases this year "and the Department of Education was one of them."

"I'm not sure I agree with all of the governor's recommendations, including giving teachers an $18,500 salary. We pour tens of millions of dollars into the educational system and we still don't seem to be getting a product we're satisfied with," Hardwick said.

"I think the state has an obligation to finance 40 percent of each school district, but we don't always find it at that level. I believe in local boards of education and think more teacher input is needed," Carmody said.

Russo cited a weakness in the number of child study teams available who work in school districts with special education children.

As for the education system in general, Russo said that "it's time to see what hasn't worked and get rid of it."

"If we have to compete to get good science and mathematics teachers, then we have to look at salary increases," Brande said.

She called the merit system "a bad plan with little success," and said that although "we are moving into high tech," children in vocational programs should not be forgotten.

"Not everyone is going to be a computer analyst," Brande said.

Russo was asked whether he would support a law limiting the number of positions an elected official could hold at one time.

Calling the question "a ringer," Russo said that he "has no problem with that bill," adding that his term as mayor of Union Township will end in December.

SHAME ON YOU, LOU BASSANO!

Republican C. Louis Bassano is at it again! This time he has unfairly attacked Mayor Anthony Russo on the basis of the public money Russo EARNED! But there's more to the story of public funds. Let's look at how Bassano and Russo handle public funds.

RUSSO GIVES:

BASSANO???

BASSANO PUT his ex-wife on his payroll while he was an Assemblyman. (According to official records on file in the State House)

IS THIS PROPER?

BASSANO PLACED his lady friend on his personal Senate staff payroll — at an annual salary of $13,000 of your hard-earned tax dollars. (According to official records on file in the State House)

IS THIS PROPER?

BASSANO MANEUVERED the appointment of the same lady friend to YET ANOTHER STATE SENATE PAYROLL... in a job that pays her $5,000 more of your hard-earned tax money — for spending about 30 afternoons a year in Trenton. (According to official records on file in the State House)

IS THIS PROPER?

HOW SENATOR BASSANO MANAGES HIS PERSONAL AFFAIRS IS HIS OWN BUSINESS... EXCEPT WHEN $18,000 OF YOUR TAX MONEY IS INVOLVED!

Dayton boys awaiting meet in conference

Winner of eight of its first 10 dual meets, the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School boys cross-country team has to be considered one of the favorites in Tuesday's Watchung Conference Championships at Donaldson Park in Highland Park.

The Bulldogs dropped their first dual meet of the season and then recited off seven straight victories before that streak was broken last week. The success of the team, along with the unbeaten mark posted by the Dayton girls, gives the Bulldogs one of the best overall cross-country programs in the state.

The Springfield harriers came in fifth in the recent Union County championships. Tom Jackson paced the Bulldogs with a nine place finish, while teammate Chris Woodall came in 14th.

Other runners who have made key contributions to the Dayton success have been Tom Laustsen, Kip Levinson and Joe Melkowitz.

Cantor captures tennis crown

Artie Cantor won the Springfield senior men's singles tournament at the Twin tennis courts by defeating Art Ginsberg, 4-4, 2-2.

Holding off Ginsberg in the first set, Cantor raised the level of his play to close out the match in two sets. The singles victory matched his mixed doubles championship earlier this summer. Cantor also performed well in representing Springfield in the sectional tournament of the Lipton Mixed Doubles Championship at Center Court in Chatham.

Prior to the tournament, Linda Hockstein and Eric Kahn, teammates on the Springfield Recreation Department's junior tennis team, were awarded trophies for their third place finish in the state championships.

ON THE MOVE—Jonathan Dayton's Paul Centamore lines up ball despite close pursuit of David Brearley Regional High School player during last week's soccer game between rival schools. Dayton prevailed, 2-0, as Joe Blanda scored both goals, with assists from Steve Katowicz and Howie Wagner. The win raised Springfield's record to 6-6-2, while Brearley fell to 5-7-3.

Brearley gridders show poise despite 8 injuries

Despite an incredible eight starters missing due to injuries, David Brearley is showing its might on the gridiron.

"It was a real character-builder," said coach Bob Taylor after his team scored the game's first 40 points in burying Manville, 40-16. The win raised the Bears' record to 5-0 at 2-2-1 with a chance to put together a three-game winning streak against Bound Brook Saturday.

"I was very proud of the way we played," said Taylor, whose preseason confidence in his team is being borne out with each passing week. "I have never had a team with so many injuries to starters, but the kids never panicked. They just went out and did their job. The players maintained their poise."

Offensive tackle Joe Andes and guard John Kravovsk, besides doing a fine job blowing people away at the line, showed great leadership," continued

Brearley boss. "Our spirits were way up despite the injuries. Everybody gave that extra effort, which is typical of him."

"Danny Simma becomes the regular quarterback now," added the Bear pilot. "He is only a sophomore, but he has the ability." Mike Mancino was originally the backup quarterback, but he was injured in the opening game of the season.

McSorley and Phillips are expected back this Saturday. Dennis Miller became the workhorse against Manville and rushed 25 times for 200 yards and three touchdowns.

"Denny was super, just super," raved Taylor. "I know he could do the job, but with McSorley out he had to carry the load and responded well. Now everyone knows we have two outstanding runners to defend against."

Darren King also ran well, rushing for 85 yards as the Bears recorded a stunning 415 yards in total offense.

Blocking Mark Phillips was his younger brother, Pat, who stepped in and did a commendable job. Also driving great defensive linemen Tony Seragusa, who had 10 tackles, a sack and a blocked punt; and fellow lineman John Rubinitz, who had an "outstanding day."

Bear gymnasts sweep 2 meets

Kathy Beurer.

In the victory over Ken Place, Millus was first on vault, followed by Schmidt. Riley captured the bars with 8.25.

The David Brearley Regional High School girls gymnastics teams posted two victories last week. The Bears defeated Elizabeth, 89.60-38.50, and Kent Place, 89.65-60.20.

In the Elizabeth meet, the Bears' Lynn Ferrara captured top vaulting honors with 7.55, as teammate Nancy Masterson was second with 7.45. On bars, Maureen Riley was first with 25, followed by Tracy Spillman's 7.6. The top beam score of 8.1 belonged to Claudine Nalky with Riley second at 7.55.

Riley triumphed in floor exercise with 8.05, while the runnerup spot went to Sandra Spillman. Also contributing for Brearley were Donna Millus, Marianne Schmidt, Denise Fitzpatrick, Kelley Shields, Susan Beurer, and

Dayton comes up empty once again on gridiron

SOLID HIT—Jonathan Dayton Regional High School's Darren Ialane makes solid hit on North Plainfield ballcarrier during game in Springfield last Saturday. The Dayton defensive team made a lot of solid hits, but the offense was shut out for the third time this season as the Bulldogs were defeated, 8-0. The loss dropped Dayton's record to 1-3-1 and for the Bulldogs to finish above .500 and repeat last year's winning mark they must win their four remaining games. Dayton hopes to get that winning streak going this Saturday when 4-1 Ridge comes to Springfield. (Photos by John Boutsikaris)

When a football team like Jonathan Dayton Regional High School that has had trouble scoring gets an opportunity, it must cash in on it. Twice last Saturday the Bulldogs were knocking on the door and came away empty.

As a result, the Bulldogs suffered their third shutout in bowing to previously winless North Plainfield, 8-0. The loss dropped Dayton's record to 1-3-1 and derailed hopes of a winning season.

The Bulldogs haven't scored since defeating Bound Brook on Oct. 8 and things don't look especially promising this Saturday when 4-1 Ridge visits Springfield.

"We can still turn it around and have a winning season," said Dayton coach Tony Policare. "But the boys have to believe in themselves and go out and do the job. We are in every game and the defense is going a good job. But the team has to go out and do more than just show up."

After digging a "hole" for itself by fumbling the opening kickoff Saturday, Dayton fought off a North Plainfield threat as Glenn Booker recovered an NP fumble on the Bulldog 6. Dayton then drove 80 yards to the NP-14-yard line.

On a third down play, Darren Ialane ran to the three-yard line for an apparent first down. However, running back Rob Martinetti was called for illegal procedure to void the play and the drive fizzled.

There were no more scoring threats until the second quarter when a North Plainfield punt dropped dead on the Dayton 3-yard line. On a sweep of tackle, Ialane was tackled in the end zone for a safety to give NP a 2-0 halftime lead.

NP extended its lead to 8-0 in the third quarter when it went on a 74-yard, 8-minute drive that was culminated by a one-yard plunge by Mike Mills for the touchdown. Two penalties helped NP keep the drive alive. The extra point kick went wide to leave the tally at 8-0.

In the fourth quarter, Dayton made its bid to even up the game. After repelling a North Plainfield drive that got as far as the Dayton 1-yard line, the Bulldogs marched deep into NP territory.

On a fourth and four at the 20, Levent Bayrasi hauled in a six-yard pass to give Dayton a first down at the NP 14. On the next play, the Bulldogs tried a halfback option pass with 1:30 left in the game, but it was intercepted in the end zone.

Dayton rushed for 84 yards and completed four of 12 passes for 49 yards with two interceptions. North Plainfield rushed for 126 yards and threw for 49.

"Our statistics weren't that much different," said Policare. "Despite the fact that our line was outwitted, it did a decent job. But our receivers are going to have to better. We have also have a couple of players who have been disciplinary problems. They have to do more than show up for the game. It disrupts our practices, our timing, and it affects the performances in the game."

Once again, Dayton nose tackle Joe D'Anna excelled, making 11 tackles, including seven solos. Mike Graziano also had a key interception in the third quarter which he ran back 25 yards. Martinetti led Dayton in rushing with 60 yards in 12 carries.

While still determined to have a winning season, Policare feels assured that the program is on the right track as the freshman and junior varsity teams remain undefeated.

The immediate concern, however, is Ridge, which has won four straight since an opening loss to Immaculata.

"Ridge plays an unpredictable kind of game," said Policare. "They will use double reverses and flea flickers, that kind of thing. They don't use a fundamental style. You have to be prepared all times."

Ridge also utilizes an unconventional 7-1 diamond defense, with men to man coverage. Passing is the typical way to combat that kind of defense.

Brown helps stage benefit for Olympics

David Brown of Springfield, chairman of the U.S. Olympic Committee in New Jersey, helped the New Jersey U.S. Olympic Committee hold a gala dinner-dance benefit at The Mall at Short Hills last Saturday to support the Olympic fund.

Brown said the benefit will raise much-needed funds to support the U.S. Olympic program. He said, "American business and citizens are the heart of the financial support for America's Olympic program. Of the 149 nations involved in the Olympics, the U.S. is the only one whose Olympic activities are not continually subsidized by its government."

The multi-course dinner was catered by Farfalle and used "American Cookery" as its theme. The effort menu was researched in an entire present authentic American foods for the gala dinner.

Among those who attended the benefit were Wendy Boglioli, Long Branch, 1976 gold medalist for swimming, 400-meter relay; John Woodruff, Newark, 1988 gold medalist for 800-meter run; and Steve Sobel, Glen Ridge, secretary of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Brown said the benefit would help support the U.S. Olympic Committee's training center in Colorado Springs where some 12,000 athletes of all ages and levels of ability train each year. He said, "Only some 725 of the thousands who share the Olympic dream will 'make it.' And they will be America's best."

Brown, principal staff engineer for Public Service Electric & Gas, is one of the six members-at-large in the U.S. who serves on the executive board.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE VOTING PUBLIC OF SPRINGFIELD

Over the past few weeks you have been barraged with charge and countercharge. Each side in this battle is out to win your vote. I hope this letter will clear up some of the rhetoric and give you some insight as to what our local election is all about.

I, together with JoAnn Tedesco, took office on January 1, 1983. Our election enabled Bill Ruocco, who has been on our Township Committee for twelve years, ten of those years as a minority member, to become Mayor of Springfield. At this time, the majority party on the Township Committee changed hands for the first time in ten years.

As a result of our majority, we have begun to make some waves and have begun to displace a feeling of apathy and lethargy with a feeling of vibrancy. Some of our attempts to bring the government of Springfield into the 1980's have been controversial and have been met by resistance.

Did you know, for instance, that our Town with a budget of $5,000,000.00 and with approximately 100 employees does not have even one computer? Did you also know that we don't even have a purchasing agent?

Well JoAnn, Mayor Ruocco and I are trying to change that. Additionally, we are demanding some measure of accountability from our career employees.

Our Police Department needs to be studied and possibly upgraded. The needs of the 1980's must be met with approaches for the 1980's.

The two democrats running for office are well known. They have been around for six years, but they have been obstructivists in our attempts to modernize. They are playing politics. They have been around Town Hall for a long time. BUT JUST BEING THERE IS NOT ENOUGH.

I ask for you to vote for Ron Citron and Greg Druker. Our ideas and designs to bring Springfield into the 1980's must be reinforced with new energy and a sense of vibrancy that Messers, Kaish and Cleri are not accustomed to.

Please vote for Ron Citron and Greg Druker on Row B on November 8. SPRINGFIELD DESERVES THE BEST.

Thank You.

Dems aim efforts at seniors

UNION—The three Democratic candidates for Union County freholder this week promised to "support efforts to consolidate the many senior citizen service information lines" available to Union County's older residents.

Michael Lapoli, an Elizabeth attorney, said, "The many social service agencies throughout the county as well as our own office on aging do a most commendable job in referring seniors in need to proper sources of assistance. Many times, however, the agency initially called may not have knowledge of the full gamut of services available and in addition may not possess either the financial or staff resources to follow up each inquiry."

Brian Fahey, a Westfield councilman, added, "What we're talking about might be considered by some to just be another 'hotline.' But we envision something more encompassing than that. We're looking at something that might be better called a 'mini-unit with max-knowledge.'"

Ron Scorse, a Kenilworth businessman, said, "Persons seeking senior services would invariably continue to contact existing social service agencies seeking help, but that agency could then refer that person to just one phone number, knowing full well that the senior would definitely receive the proper service plus guaranteed follow-up."

GOP cites '30' years in office

UNION—Republican freholder candidates Frank Lehr, Bob Miller and Paul O'Keefe said this week that their experience qualifies them for election on Nov. 8.

"We'd considered doing a kind of tally or comparison sheet of our side versus our opponents," Lehr said.

"However, how can you compare the 30-plus years Lehr, Miller and O'Keefe have of service in elected public office with the nine months served on the part of only one of our opponents?" he asked.

Miller, a former freholder said, "Out of our three opponents, one was elected last year to his home town council and that's after losing two tries at higher office. Now he wants to run for higher office again, not even fulfilling his commitment to his community."

Former Plainfield Mayor O'Keefe continued, "The other candidates have never held elected office, have never had to fight for the needs of the citizens. They've never had to plough through the underbrush of government bureaucracy, and I might suggest, probably wouldn't know the difference between 'infrastructure' and 'superstructure.'"

"On the other hand," Lehr said, "all three of the Republican freholder candidates... have been the elected chief executive officer in our home towns. As mayors, all three have had to have their own names have proved themselves in perhaps the hardest arena of all, and that is, our home towns, where we were elected and re-elected to govern by our friends, neighbors and fellow citizens."

Bring the family to worship this weekend.

Let's Keep A Good Thing Going!

A MESSAGE FROM GOVERNOR TOM KEAN

Union County is fortunate to have three of our state's best legislators representing them in Trenton — Senator Lou Bassano, Assemblyman Chuck Hardwick, and Assemblyman Ed Gill. They are all effective and hardworking men, and I need them serving with me in state government.

Together, Lou, Chuck, Ed and I have formed a team — a team that works in the interest of the people, to make our state a better place to live. We have worked on crucial issues that directly affect you and your family — education, auto insurance, environment, crime, just to mention a few.

The four of us have had a successful legislative session working as a team. But there is still a lot to do. I need you to send Lou Bassano, Chuck Hardwick and Ed Gill back to Trenton, so together we can work for you.

A Halloween warning

The danger's not just from ghosts

Once upon a time — not so very long ago — there was a fun-filled holiday when pint-sized ghosts, giggling behind their masks, went from house to house, ringing doorbells and calling out to those who answered, "trick or treat."

But in recent years, Halloween has become a day that many parents approach with fear and concern.

These parental fears are well-founded, according to Ellen Bloom, director of the Union County Division of Consumer Affairs. For that reason, her office has prepared some suggestions that, she said, "will keep little ghosts and goblins safe."

First and foremost, she said, safety rules should be thought out and discussed with children before they go out trick-or-treating.

It's always a good idea to have children go only to the houses of people the family knows, Bloom said.

They should be also be instructed to bring all treats home for inspection before eating them.

"These guidelines used to be sufficient to protect against candy or other edibles that have been tampered with," Bloom said. "Unfortunately, there have been instances in recent years of people unknowingly buying such tampered treats and innocently giving them to children."

"While candy manufacturers can't guarantee candy hasn't been tampered with, all are quite concerned with safety and have been working on tougher, tamper-proof packaging," she said.

"Young children, of course, should always be accompanied by a parent, older brother or sister or other responsible adult and kept in sight at all times. There's never a need for a child to go inside a house to collect treats," Bloom cautioned.

Children should go to only those homes that have a porch or other outside light lit; a dark exterior is an indication that the home does not welcome trick-or-treaters, Bloom said.

Youngsters should use sidewalks and cross streets at intersections, and should never run between parked cars or across lawns where they can trip over hard-to-see lawn ornaments or clotheslines. Flashlights can help illuminate their way, but it's best

The state Department of Community Affairs has called it "the hidden problem."

It is a situation which only recently has begun to attract attention: abuse of the elderly by younger members of their families.

There are, the state agency has pointed out, three categories of abuse: physical abuse, ranging from actual beatings to the denial of medical care; financial abuse, with theft of money; psychological abuse, involving threats, verbal abuse, isolation or actions which force the elderly out of their homes.

The Gerontology Center at Kean College of New Jersey in Union will devote its seventh annual Sadie B. Richman Gerontology Conference on Nov. 18 to the problem.

Scheduled for 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., the conference will focus on the theme of

The author of "The Violent Home," "Family Violence," "Behind Closed Doors: Violence in the American Family," and "The Dark Side of Families: Current Family Violence Research," Geller also has lectured to policy-making groups on family violence research.

In addition to his talk, the program will feature workshops dealing with legal, administrative and service delivery perspectives.

An annual statewide event, the Sadie B. Richman Gerontology Conference is sponsored by the Gerontology Center and Family Studies Program at Kean College in association with the Department of Human Services, Division of Youth and Family Services; Department of Community Affairs, Division of Aging; and the Gerontological Society of New Jersey and the New Jersey Council on Family Relations.

In the past six years, the conference has dealt with a wide variety of topics, including "Aging and the Aged Developmentally Retarded" in 1979; "Arts and Aging: Agenda for Action" in 1980; "Families and Aging" in 1981; and "Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders" in 1982.

Disc & Data

By Mill Hammer

Pick of the LPs, "Cha," by Jo Jo Zep (A&M Records).

"With 'Cha,' I finally got the opportunity to let my ideas go," says Joe Camilleri, also known as Jo Jo Zep. "I've always had strong influences in the past whether they be jazz, funk, or whatever, but I've always blended them into the song. With 'Cha,' I haven't had to compromise anything."

For Camilleri, "Cha" is an album that combines the familiar with the adventurous. It is the Australian singer, songwriter, instrumentalist's debut on A&M Records, but his sixth album overall (including one EP) and his third to be released in America. And while "Cha" reunites Camilleri and producer Peter Solley, who produced two earlier Jo Jo Zep efforts, it also is the product of Joe's newly-streamlined attitude in the studio. After two years away from recording, Camilleri came back hungry and excited, and in just three weeks, he polished off an album that has already been called "cheeky, honest and bursting with charisma."

"Cha" by Camilleri's own admission, is an album that came up against some odds, including Joe's glandular fever, producer Solley's commitments in America and limited available studio time once work began in Australia. In the end, however, some of those limitations became advantages. Camilleri had planned to use a new drummer on nearly every track, but the shortage of studio time made that impractical. A Linn drum computer was used instead. "I was amazed when Peter suggested using the Linn drum," Joe recalls, "but he was right. It has a very real sound. You can change it or update it; it also has the percussion element, and because I was into Latin rhythms, it was perfect. We got all the feels we wanted without wasting time or sounding cold."

Concert opens a new season

The Adelphi Chamber Orchestra will present the opening concert of the season Sunday at 8:15 p.m. at the Central Unitarian Church, Forest Avenue, Paramus. Joshua Greene, music director of the orchestra, will conduct. Featured soloist will be violinist Harold Coletta.

Admission to the concert is free of charge. Additional information can be obtained by calling 684-5983.

'Sticks and Bones' opens in Cranford

"Sticks and Bones" by David Rabe will open at the New Jersey Public Theater, 119 South Ave., E., Cranford, Oct. 26 and will run for four Thursdays at 8 p.m. through Nov. 10.

June Carpenter will make her directorial debut with this comedy. Additional information can be obtained by calling 272-5704.

Grisi heads Union County Arts Center drive

Arthur J. Grisi, Union County manager, has accepted the voluntary post of campaign manager for the fund drive to purchase and restore the Rahway Theatre in downtown Rahway for operation as the Union County Arts Center.

The fund drive was officially launched this summer by Rahway Landmarks Inc., the nonprofit organization formed specifically to save the theater, which has been closed since November 1981. The 155-member organization has raised nearly $15,000 toward purchase. The total funding needed for purchase and restoration is expected to exceed $600,000.

The project has received official resolutions of support from both the City of Rahway and Union County. It has also received an endorsement from Governor Thomas Kean.

The Rahway Theatre is a brick-and-concrete structure which seats 1,400 and has facilities for stage presentations of all sorts. It has an ornate, sculptured interior typical of the film "palaces" that thrived in metropolitan centers until the advent of television. The Rahway was last used for the showing of X-rated films. Prior to that, Rahway Landmarks ran a series of variety shows and pipe organ concerts to stimulate community interest in its cause.

Grisi has promoted the concept of a county-based arts center and indoor and outdoor facilities to accommodate cultural activities the year-round. In his view, he said, "the Rahway is an appropriate choice for the indoor facility."

As an arts center, the Rahway will provide a performing facility for use by Union County's more than 60 performing companies, most of which are without a permanent home. It will also serve individual performers, dance studios, and painters and sculptors wishing to exhibit their work.

Anyone interested in becoming involved in the campaign may contact Rahway Landmarks at P.O. Box 755D, Rahway 07065, or phone 738-0636.

LANDMARK FOR ARTS—Union County Manager Arthur Grisi and Sandra Sweeney, president of Rahway Landmarks Inc., discuss plans for fund-raising to purchase and restore the Rahway Theatre, which would then become the home of a Union County Arts Center.
