C.A.R.E. wins big

By VICKI VREELAND
 In the most highly contested school board election in Springfield history, a record-breaking number of voters came out Tuesday to overturn the sitting majority on the Springfield Board of Education.

The three candidates supported by C.A.R.E. (Civic Association for Responsible Education): Ken Falgenbaum, Dr. Richard Luciani and Lee Eisen, were elected to serve three-year terms on the school board. They accumulated twice the number of votes cast for their three opponents.

Elizabeth Simpson-Fritzen, Elaine Auer, and Edward Franko, who were supported by C.A.U.S.E. (Citizens Alliance for Unifying Springfield Education)... C.A.U.S.E. held a 5-4 controlling board majority prior to the election.

Voters also approved the $4,397,408 current expense school board budget for 1984-85, 1,777 to 555. In addition, a ballot question to place the proceeds from the sale of the Raymond Chisholm School, ($346,000) into the capital outlay account, was approved 1,812 to 775. Under ideal election day weather, almost 5,000 voters went to the polls — about two-thirds of the voting population. About 66 percent of the eligible township voters went to the polls Tuesday. The average state voting turnout for school elections is 15 percent. Of the 611 absentee ballots applied for, 490 were counted.

Simpson-Fritzen's bid for a third term was thwarted as was the second attempt by Auer for a board seat. Newcomer Luciani came in as the top vote-getter, followed by Eisen, and incumbent Falgenbaum.

The victorious candidates began their series of hugs and back-slapping about

Regional school tab gets local voters' OK

Voters in the six communities which send their residents to the four regional high schools approved the $22-million school budget for 1984-85 in Tuesday's election by nearly a 2-1 margin. Sixty-eight percent voted to approve the budget, while 38 percent voted no.

The school tab was approved by a total of 3,768 yes votes to 2,309 no. The voting breakdown was as follows: Springfield, 1,961 yes, 730 no; Mount-ain-side 343 yes, 194 no; Kenilworth, 154 yes, 117 no; Berkeley Heights, 476 yes, 150 no; Garwood, 147 yes, 272 no and Clark 687 yes, 649 no.

The proposed $22,339,055 budget is 1.1 percent higher — $255,350 — than last year's $22,082,705 budget. The $16,892,575 tax levy to support it is $1,287,021 — 6.4 percent — more than in 1983.

With three candidates running for three board positions, the only question that had to be answered Tuesday was whether the regional board budget would be approved.

Two of the three board candidates, Joseph R. Vaughn and Stephen Marcinko, are incumbents. Vaughn, the board president, is employed by ABC News and represents Berkeley Heights on the board. He received 615 votes from Berkeley Heights voters. Marcinko, who received 1,157 votes from his representative community, Clark, was once president of the board on which he has served 12 years.

The newcomer is Frederick J. Soos who made his first bid for the board. Soos replaces Charles Vitale, a 12-year member and former president of the board (See accompanying story). Soos, a former member of the Kenilworth Borough Council, received 231 votes from the borough. He is employed as a construction superintendent. He was initially challenged for the position by James Kehoe of Clark who later withdrew from the race.

9:30 p.m. when all unofficial results were returned to the office of the board secretary, Dr. Leonard DiGiovanni, at the Gaudineer School. It was not until 10:30 p.m. that the results were made official.

Eliann Dahmen, who also served two terms on the board but decided against running for re-election, said that this year's fierce election campaign was different from others. "There is a completely different atmosphere this year. All the candidates are usually here and congratulations are given no matter who wins," she said.

The three C.A.U.S.E. candidates were not on hand as the election results poured in at the board offices. However, Mayor Philip Feintuch was present to prematurely congratulate the winners. "My hope is that you bring the town together somewhat," Feintuch said.

Luciani made only a brief comment on his victory. "The people have spoken," he said.

Falgenbaum also echoed those sentiments, "the numbers speak for themselves." He added that he was, "pleasantly surprised," by the election results. "I never got overconfident. We remained devoted and dedicated to the campaign to the end of the election," he said.

Eisen, also a newcomer, commented, "I am extremely happy for myself and my running mates, and also for the town. I think the people have made the

Vitale steps down after 12 years on board

By PHILIP GIMSON

After 12 years of service, Kenilworth resident Charles Vitale retired from the regional Board of Education this week, leaving behind a record of dedicated accomplishment that will have a lasting impact on the educational quality of the district's high schools.

Though Vitale is stepping down from his long tenure on the board, which included nine years as the district's president, this does not mean that he is giving up a way of life that has been characterized by sacrifice, selfless accomplishment and commitment to the community.

"Even though I'm retiring from the board, I'll still be very much involved in the education of the students of the district," Vitale said in an interview Friday. "By nature and temperament, I must be involved with the people and issues that concern our schools, and now being a senior citizen, my contributions to the community will continue to be one of my main concerns."

Vitale wouldn't have it any other way. During his years on the regional board, he dedicated himself to unifying the district; attempting to strike balance and harmony among often competing and diverse interests of six towns and four different high schools.

"It's a complete school system now," Vitale claimed. "It's no longer six towns sending students to four different high schools that happen to fall within the same district. I'm proudest of being responsible to a great degree of having all the towns of the district accepted and treated as full and equal participants in the educational system with all accompanying benefits and responsibilities."

The current degree of unity wasn't always evident in the district during Vitale's early years on the board. Vitale remembered that during the early 1970s educational progress among the schools was often fraught by a philosophy of viewing the district as an overlapping system of independent high schools in separate communities coming from varying socioeconomic extremes.

At the same time that district unity has been enhanced throughout his tenure, Vitale also believes his efforts, in conjunction with other board members, have helped instill a greater sense of community spirit among the schools.

"Interest in the schools has changed from one of strictly academic concerns to a time and point now where they're the hub and center of most of the community activities of our town. Senior citizen gatherings, local recreational events and community organization activities have all become associated with the school system."

While Vitale sees a consequent improvement in the involvement and participation of parents, taxpayers and students in the school system, he states that one of the board's most important priorities for the future is to achieve even greater rapport with local parents and community organizations.

Another issue that Vitale perceives as a vital educational concern is the current district attendance policy; now in its third year of operation. Vitale states that "there are still some questionable areas of the attendance policy that must be researched with regard to academic consequence and discipline as they are affected by these new regulations."

The district attendance policy, which has been in effect since 1982, allows students a maximum of nine absences per semester. Any student with more than nine absences automatically fails the course unless the school principal determines that the excessive absences were due to a legitimate cause.

Vitale favors giving each high school principal flexible discretion in implementing the policy, but also expresses the need for further examination of the effect of strict enforcement of these regulations. "In spite of the concern of parents involved, the policy has led to such a significant increase in student attendance that it's in the best educational interests of the district that it remain in effect, but with the stipulation that it be continually evaluated."

Other prospective changes in district policy that may be in the offing, according to Vitale, include the possibility of eliminating standardized exams and replacing high school curriculum coordinators with individual department heads.

Vitale considers these issues to be some of the biggest challenges facing the board, because the elimination of these policies could threaten the cohesion of the district school system. "Without curriculum coordinators, there will be no central, unifying parameters to make sure each school meets the academic parameters of the others," Vitale contends.

In looking toward the future, Vitale is hopeful that the board will make a smooth transition in working with his Kenilworth successor to the board,

Frederick Soos. "I would like to wish Fred Soos an even more fruitful and successful tenure than my own."

As for his own immediate plans, Vitale plans to continue serving the district and the community in one capacity or another from the not-so-distant sidelines.

"I suspect that so long as the good Lord gives me the strength and Charlotte (my wife) doesn't object, I will continue to serve the community in the same capacity. No matter what I'm doing, I will always be involved in working towards the educational progress of the high schools of the district."

Board of Realtors makes First Aid Squad donation

The Board of Realtors of the Oranges and Maplewood is making a special effort to celebrate Private Property Week next week.

As part of its "Make America Better" campaign, the board has made contributions to each community in its service area.

Private Property Week, Monday to April 14, is the annual observance of the right of Americans to earn property, according to Gella Seiden, board president. The board serves the communities of Millburn/Short Hills, Livingston, South Orange, West Orange, East Orange, Orange, Maplewood and Springfield. This year's week-long program is highlighted by board representatives making contributions in each community.

The board, represented by Charles A. Remlinger, made a contribution to the First Aid Squad of Springfield. Daniel D. Kalem, president of the squad, received the donation.

The donations are being made in order to encourage activities which recognize the rights of all citizens to own property, according to Barbara Robinson, chairman of the "Making America Better" campaign. "It is our hope that these contributions will directly assist a specific charity or local project that will help make America better," she said.

EPA fines school district

By VICKI VREELAND and TIMOTHY OWENS

The Springfield school district is one of four in the state cited by a federal agency for failing to comply with asbestos safety regulations.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) reported Tuesday that the district is subject to a $6,000 fine for failing to warn parents that an auditorium rotunda ceiling in a middle school contained asbestos. School Superintendent Fred Baruchin said Tuesday that he believes the citation was a bureaucratic error.

The area cited by the EPA as containing asbestos, according to Rich Cahill, agency spokesman, area is the auditorium rotunda ceiling in Florence Gaudineer School. However, Baruchin said the asbestos was removed in December. "In fact," Baruchin added, "during a summer conference, the state was pleased with our plans of action. We are one of the few schools in the entire state that has done it (removed asbestos)."

Whether the situation has been taken care of "is immaterial" as far as the EPA is concerned, said Cahill. He said that the district was in violation in not posting warning signs and sending letters to warn parents and employees about the asbestos. Cahill said that the district was certified after an initial inspection but after a recent EPA review, violations were uncovered. This review consisted of checking as to whether appropriate warnings were issued by the district, Cahill said.

"Asbestos exposure has been linked to lung cancer, and other respiratory disorders."

Baruchin offered a paperwork slip-up as reason for the citation, but said that after a check Tuesday following the EPA's visit, all paperwork seemed to be in order. He also said he believed the state was "remiss in putting out information."

"In checking, we find the paperwork in place, all notifications were properly made, and the asbestos was removed in December. They should have cited James Watt instead," Baruchin said.

The district has 20 days to ask for a hearing to contest the fines or a conference with EPA officials to discuss the violations. Three other districts — Brick Township, Dumellen and South Orange-Maplewood — were also cited by the EPA for violating the regulations. They could face fines ranging from $7,300 to $31,000.

Dayton senior will receive scholar award

Todd Bisenstock, a senior at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, has been awarded a National Merit Scholarship from the Prudential Insurance Company of America.

Bisenstock was among more than 1 million students who took the qualifying test for the 1984 Merit Program, in which 15,000 were designated as semifinalists. He is one of 8,500 finalists expected to be named.

The four-year scholarship can range in value from $1,000 to $8,000 over four years of college, and on the average, an awardee receives about $5,300.

Composite drawing released in murder

SPRINGFIELD—A composite drawing of a man wanted for questioning in the 1982 murder of Springfield resident Sylvia Karlsberg was released Tuesday by the special investigative team conducting a renewed probe into the killing.

The man in the sketch is described as being in his late 20s, about 6 feet tall and weighing 240 pounds. He is believed to frequent the Union-Maplewood area.

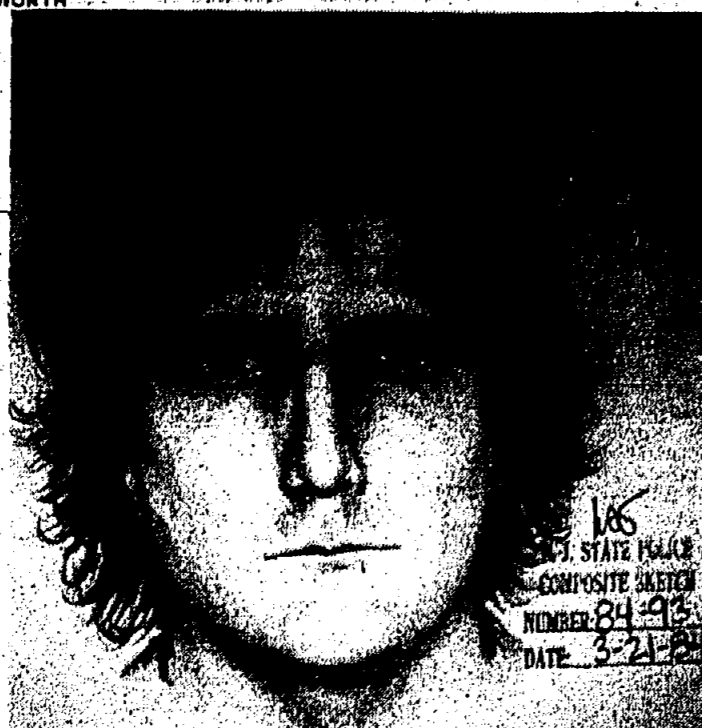

Investigators said the man is not a suspect in the killing but is believed to have important information about the murder of Mrs. Karlsberg.

Police are now working on the theory that there is more than one person who has knowledge of the killer's identity.

Earlier they announced that a reason for the crime had been determined and that the investigation was being refocused on certain people. The composite sketch is the result of newly supplied information unearthen by individuals who have been interviewed in the last two weeks.

Karlsberg was found stabbed to death in her home on Feb. 13, 1982. She was 43 years old.

Anyone with information about the man being sought is asked to call the Major Crimes Unit of the Union County Prosecutor's Office at 527-4529 or the Springfield Police Department at 378-0400. All calls will be kept confidential.

COMPOSITE DRAWING—Law enforcement authorities believe this man has information about the murder of Sylvia Karlsberg.

Regional board starts department's super plan

The Union County Regional Board of Education passed a resolution Monday night to adopt a pilot program, initiated this year, of departmental supervisor instructional supervision.

The program will replace the coordinator hierarchy that the district previously used. This year's pilot run was confined to the Mathematics Department of the four schools. Upon the retirement of Joseph Sott, math coordinator, in the fall, the board appointed a department supervisor in each school, rather than select an overall coordinator.

The system was monitored by the Board Personnel Committee during the school year, until Tuesday night's announcement of extending the supervisor program to other departments in the regional district.

In the 1985-86 school year, coordinators will be replaced by four separate supervisors in the English, Social Studies, and Foreign Language departments. For the 1987-88 school term, the Business Education and Science departments will be placed in the new pattern of supervision.

Dr. Donald Merachnik, superintendent, said he hopes that the district's current coordinators will be happy to serve as school supervisors. The supervisors will also have teaching assignments, but according to Merachnik, "they will be mainly supervision." Merachnik added that the supervisor program worked well this year.

The board also approved a change in the school year calendar to extend the last day of school, previously scheduled for June 21, to June 22. The school year was extended to recover a school day that was called because of last week's snow storm.

The calendar had designated three snow days, however, four were needed. Commencement exercises were also postponed to June 24.

Murray makes list

SPRINGFIELD—Lynne E. Murray of Overlea Avenue, has been named to the dean's list at Moravian College, Pa., for the fall term. Murray is in her junior year.

Dr. Donald Merachnik, superintendent, said he hopes that the district's current coordinators will be happy to serve as school supervisors. The supervisors will also have teaching assignments, but according to Merachnik, "they will be mainly supervision." Merachnik added that the supervisor program worked well this year.

choice for professional educational priorities," Eisen said.

Barbara Adler, who is now the only female board member, remarked, "I think having a new majority who's aim is to unify the town will be a step in the right direction for Springfield. This election showed a great awareness of people in this town about the issues and felt compelled to express their opinions by voting," she said.

Dahmen described herself as "relieved." "I am very, very happy. I can leave breathing easier. I am very pleased that the township came out and supported what they believed," she said.

Board member Stuart Applebaum also expressed pleasure with the results. "I believe the three candidates will bring sanity back to the board of education. I am looking forward to an open dialogue and communication with the public. I think we have all learned that intimidation tactics have no place on a board of education," Applebaum said.

This is the second time in the last two years that the controlling board majority has shifted. The board's reorganizational meeting will be Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Gaudin School.

Flyers sent to prosecutor

SPRINGFIELD—Police Chief George E. Purcell announced Wednesday that he is forwarding recently distributed campaign flyers from Tuesday's Board of Education elections which "illegally" used the police department letterhead to the Union County Prosecutor's office for investigation.

Purcell charged that the campaign flyers, reportedly circulated by one of the two resident organizations backing candidates for the board, "were not part of any official police document," and that their distribution was "not authorized or sanctioned by the Springfield Police Department."

No information was available on the content of the flyers, or on which of the two groups, C.A.R.E. and C.A.U.S.E. was apparently responsible for circulating the material.

Club meets today

SPRINGFIELD—Dennis J. Smith of the Mental Health Association of Essex County will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon for the Kiwanis Club of Millburn/Springfield today, at 12:15 p.m.

For further information, including membership, call President Cliff Bakley at 532-7928. Lou DeSanita of the North Jersey Blood Center will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon April 12.

Dentists come to St. James

SPRINGFIELD—The fourth-grade students of Saint James School, Springfield, were given the opportunity to celebrate the recent Children's Dental Month in a special way.

Through the efforts of Dr. Lee Kaswimer, orthodontist, and Dr. Irwin Hammer, D.D.S., both of Springfield, students were part of the "learning through fun program" which allowed them to make impressions of their index finger and actually fill cavities of models using regular dental instruments and materials.

With each activity, the rather complicated procedures involved in making impressions, X-rays and corrections of irregularities of the teeth, as well as dental hygiene were explained in positive, clear form with the assistance of Rita Stein and Helen Heller, dental assistants.

Kaswimer and Hammer have provided this educational program for local school students for six years.

PLANTS FOR SALE—Students of the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School Vocal Music Department, such as Peter Fellman and Cindy Moser above, will sell potted, blooming plants door-to-door in Springfield and Mountainide Saturday. Proceeds from the sale, sponsored by the Choral Parents Society, will be used for concert tours for the three choral groups which make up the Vocal Music Department and for musical study scholarships. Odelette Fellman is the sale chairwoman.

Prior to joining the Family Service staff, Beckerman served as a member of an interdisciplinary team at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Lyons. Her assignments included work with acute and chronically ill medical and psychiatric in-patients, group work, and marital and family counseling. She also served as field work instructor for undergraduate and graduate social work students at the University of Maryland. Beckerman is a private, nonprofit, not-for-profit, United Way Agency. To the winners

Now that the votes are counted, it's time for congratulations to the winners. As members of the Board of Education, you have a difficult task ahead. You get no pay for the hours you put in — at least in cash; but you do get remuneration in the knowledge that the policy decisions which you make can provide a better future for the young people of the community.

Selective charity

Assemblyman Chuck Hardwick (R-21st District) has introduced legislation to permit state taxpayers to designate certain charitable and service organizations to receive a contribution from their state tax refunds. Hardwick says that if the bill becomes law, these organizations would see an increase in contributions.

Letters to the editor

Equal justice
This letter is about fines for drunken driving which I don't consider equal justice for all. To someone making $50,000 to $100,000 or so a year, a fine isn't the same as for a person making $10,000 to $20,000 a year. To the latter, it could represent a real hardship and to the former, it doesn't mean a thing.

Church and state

There have been a few letters to the editor recently concerning separation of church and state. Since this concept relates to the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, here it is: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech, or the right of the people to peaceably assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Pappas seeking nod for freeholder race

Pappas said, "I have spoken to many people about my candidacy and especially about any possible conflict between my wife, Joanne Rajoppl, who is the county register of deeds and mortgages, and my responsibilities as a freeholder. I have been encouraged to seek the nomination knowing that if I am elected I would have to remove myself from any matter pertaining to Joanne and/or the register's office to insure that no conflict of interest arises."

Pappas, a Springfield resident, was appointed purchasing agent for Union County in 1975 under the previous form of government and served as both purchasing agent and director of purchasing under the present freeholder/county manager form of government.

During his two and one-half years as purchasing director, he said, he saved Union County taxpayers almost $500,000 by reorganizing the department and eliminating outdated purchasing policies. In 1976 he challenged a federal law which prohibited the bidding of fuel oil. Pappas bid the fuel oil and Union County saved more than

Bassano bill sets longer prison terms for murder

State Senator C. Louis Bassano (R-21st District) has announced plans to introduce legislation in the near future that will require any person who commits a murder to serve at least half of his or her prison term before becoming eligible for parole.

The bill would require anyone who is given a life sentence to serve at least 30 years before any consideration of parole.

Bassano said his action was prompted by Neil Costanzo, who pleaded guilty to the 1978 murder of Michelle DeMatzo, a high school senior from Cranford. Costanzo becomes eligible for parole in 1987.

"The system doesn't seem to be working. The judges are turning people loose who deserve to be in jail. Adding insult to injury, people like Mr. Costanzo are making a mockery of the system by taking a person's life, and serving only a few short years behind bars," Bassano said.

"The Costanzo case is not the only instance in New Jersey where a convicted murderer may be returned to the streets. Our laws must be tougher and our parole board must make it more difficult for convicted murderers to leave prison in the future."

"My heart goes out to Miss DeMatzo's parents," Bassano said. "There is nothing anyone can do to make their ordeal less tragic, but perhaps this legislation will serve as a deterrent to future crimes. I urge the legislature to act quickly."

Women's softball wasn't as big 50 years ago as it is now. Players had to be asked to try out and play, and the Arians were formed more by word of mouth, according to one of the team's original players, Lil Horn.

"We just had enough players to field a scrub team and we had to teach them the game," she recalled. "There wasn't too much competition, as there is now."
And going to key games wasn't easy, either. They qualified for the national championships, but

The real hub of the Arians for these many years is Margaret "Toots" Nusse, the team's founder and a recent inductee into the National Softball Hall of Fame's "Hall of Honor" in Oklahoma City, Okla.
Nusse organized the meetings, the practices and helped in the fund-raising events, such as dances and card parties. The rest came out of the players' pockets.
They were a powerhouse in the early days, winning the Union County league seven straight seasons. They also won four state titles in a row and in 1988 were asked to compete in an

From the pulpit

By REV. ROBERT PAUL
Carbon dioxide instead of oxygen was administered to a patient in a New York hospital. Authorities say death resulted almost immediately.

A trained anesthetist was administering a controlled mixture of oxygen and anesthetic gas when the tank of oxygen became exhausted. A new tank, labeled "oxygen," was substituted.

Following the autopsy, the "oxygen" tank was found to contain carbon dioxide. The tank had been mislabeled before it reached the hospital.

No doubt the manufacturer was sincere, the anesthetist was sincere, the surgeon was sincere and certainly the patient was sincere.

But sincerity is not enough. Certainty must be coupled with sincerity. The Bible says, "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man; but the end thereof are the ways of death." Prov. 14:12.

Too many people are saying, "As long as I am sincere, I'll come out all right in the end." But they are sincerely mistaken. Too many things are mislabeled: "life," "peace," "security," and "satisfaction."

But one can be sure of his eternal destiny. The Lord Jesus Christ said, "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life, no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." St. John 14:6.

Arians reach half century mark

The Arians will be playing a formidable schedule this season, starting June 5 against the Haledon Ree-Gals. Linden also will be facing the Montclair '81's, Bergen County Blue Jays, Budweiser Belles and the Staten Island Saints, all of whom are the top women's softball teams in the Northeast.

The team will hold its 50th anniversary dinner, attended by many former and as well as present team members, on May 19 at Dastl's Restaurant in Linden. Planning to attend are former Montclair State women's basketball star Carol Blazewski, who played in the outfield during the '70's; Pat Willis, who is the softball coach at Rutgers; Dr. Chris Haycock, who was one of the team's top players in those early years, and Shirley Blazier, who played second base for 14 years with the team and is a New Jersey Hall of Famer.

When Nusse retired in 1978, there was fear that the Arians would break up. But thanks to the financial help from the Linden Recreation Department, which has been a co-sponsor of the team, the Arians have reached this milestone year. Support has come not only from the Rec Department shown its support, but also from Linden Mayor George Hudak. The 1984 squad will have a new, and youthful look. It will be guided by manager Linda Lensch, who is in her fifth year with the Arians and her second year as manager. She will be assisted by Coach Ruben Cordero Jr., who has started on four championship teams in North Jersey. He is a graduate of Newark's Vailsburg High.

Among the top players on this year's Linden High School standout in basketball and softball who has also led the Kean College women's basketball team to the national Division III quarterfinals the past two years; Lisa Manhardt, who is one of the top players at Rahway High; Shelly Moore, who played last year with the national champion Montclair '81's, and Lisa Rever, who is the top pitcher on the Union High softball team that is a probable state championship contender this spring.

Also ready to help are Mary Jo Plantery, Barbara Black, Annie Fread, Michelle Zaleski, Gina Biel, Lisa Dembeck, Lois Carpenter, Debbie Renaldi and Barbara Ruh. The latter five

'Joseph' is amazing, uproarious on Paper Mill Playhouse stage

By BEA SMITH
 It takes a special kind of talent to uplift a serious chapter out of the Old Testament and adapt it to an uproarious musical comedy in a mixture of Biblical and modern settings. And that special kind of talent is credited to Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber (creators of "Jesus Christ Superstar," "Evita" and "Cats"). The musical comedy is "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" and following its huge success on Broadway, is delighting and amazing enthusiastic audiences at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn.
 Tony Tanner, who originally served as director and choreographer for "Joseph" on Broadway, reapplies his talents to the Paper Mill production, along with the original lighting designer Barry Arnold and the original set designer Karl Elgati. And the results are positively sensational!
 The story of Joseph, the youngest of 11 brothers, who is the favorite of his father, Jacob, and who is given an amazing multi-colored coat, tells of his outraged, jealous brothers. As a result of their father's generosity, the brothers sell him into slavery to a wealthy Egyptian, and the innocent Joseph is eventually brought to the Pharaoh to interpret his dreams. When Joseph's prophecy saves Egypt from financial disaster, Joseph becomes the Pharaoh's chief economic advisor. And in the end, his impoverished brothers come to him for assistance. They are forgiven and rewarded by their beloved brother, Joseph.

harder than anyone on stage.
 The others in the cast, including Tom Carter as the Elvis Presley-type Pharaoh; Gordon Stanley as Jacob, who wears a Biblical-type headdress and cape, and a pair of overalls (the ancient and the modern); Wayne Bryan, David Dollase, Willy Falk, Timmy Fawell, John Ganzer, James Geddes, Stephen Hope and Lorena Palacios, are marvelous.

The Egyptian settings are impressive, especially with the realistic pyramids in the background. And the score is lively and resonating, particularly "Joseph All the Time," "Jacob and Sons/Joseph's Coat," "Joseph's Dreams," "Poor, Poor Joseph" and "One More Angel in Heaven." The other songs, which may not be as popular, are equally enjoyable.
 If you want to see a fun show with loads of music and laughter, "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" is the choice production. And the Paper Mill Playhouse has it!

Flower bulbs are bright idea for the garden

Flowers, such as crocuses and glory-of-the-snow, herald spring's arrival and, in the summer, brightly colored dahlias, gladioli and lilies add much to the season's beauty. Indeed, landscapes would be incomplete without flower-grown from bulbs.

Bulb flower beds can be a beautiful and simple addition to any yard or garden. Bulb gardening is easily compared with other gardening tasks, and most bulbs share common cultural techniques.

However, planting a bulb flower bed does require foresight and proper planning. It's important to learn to recognize healthy bulbs, to select and prepare the soil, and how to plant and maintain bulbs throughout their growing cycle.

When planning your personal bulb landscape, aesthetic considerations become important. Gardens are more dynamic if you concentrate on planting a few kinds of bulbs rather than many.

Other ways to add visual excitement to your garden include planting bulbs in clumps rather than as isolated plants or in single rows and planting borders of low growing bulbs around flower beds or vegetable gardens. If you want to create the look of a formal estate, choose tulips, irises, hyacinths, anemones or ranunculus, which are spectacular when planted in large blocks of a single variety of grouped by color to create patterned designs.

By creating lush areas of colors, you can either break up a lawn's green expanse or highlight it with a border of bulbs to add a distinctive finishing touch. Success begins with good-quality bulbs. Always buy from a reliable source, whether you are shopping at local outlets or ordering from catalogues. Usually it is more economical to buy fewer bulbs of high quality from a good source than to search for bargains.

Normally, larger bulbs mean more or larger flowers. Bulbs should be firm and free from deep blemishes, cuts or soft spots. They should feel heavy for their size, not light or dried up like a seed. Small nicks and loose skins or tunics do not affect development. In fact, loose tunics help you spot harmful diseases.

Site selection is another major factor for a successful bulb garden. Read the instructions that come with the bulbs you have chosen and then find a spot in the garden to meet those specifications.

The best soil for bulbs is loose and porous with good drainage. Prepare the soil before planting bulbs so that the tender roots can easily move through the growing medium and water will drain through.

Heavy clay soils or extremely sandy soils can be improved by the addition of compost, humus, ground hard, sawdust, or peat moss.

You should consult a planting table for the proper planting times for various bulb types. As a rule, plant bulbs as soon as possible after receiving them to prevent their drying out.

Bulbs are usually planted at a depth equal to three times their diameter at the widest point. Again, it is advisable to consult a bulb chart for specific planting information.

Winter or spring rain usually provide all the moisture needed until the bulbs sprout. If you live in a dry climate, you may need to provide additional water if the soil dries out.

Once your bulbs begin to flower, care must still be taken with the flower beds. Weeds are an eyesore to any successful flower bed. Weed control in your bulb beds should begin in the spring, or when the bulbs begin to germinate.

FOOLING MOTHER NATURE—Though Mother Nature dictates how long the outdoor growing season lasts, man often comes up with ways of counteracting her influence. One of these is the coldframe, which is an effective way of producing more vegetables by extending the growing season.

Spring is time to plan for shrubs and hedges

Hedges and shrubs provide privacy, define the boundaries of your property and add color to your land.

Planting hedges and shrubs is one of the easiest methods of beautifying your property and requires little maintenance after the initial plants are installed.

One of the more difficult aspects of

These flowers are 'survivors'

If there's one group of survivors in the world of gardens, it's the perennials. They are the most versatile of all plants and can grow in every type of soil — wet or dry, fertile or infertile — in any type of lighting from full sun to shade.

And, as their name suggests, perennials are long-lived as well as adaptable. Some peonies, for example, have outlived their owners.

Many gardeners have taken advantage of that longevity to help them create living works of art. The French impressionist painter Claude Monet spent more than 30 years developing the garden that he immortalized on canvas. "I perhaps owe having become a painter to flowers," he said two years before his death in 1926.

landscaping is choosing the plantings that are both aesthetically pleasing and that will thrive in your area.

Consult the experts at your local garden center for advice and tell them about the available sunlight on your property and purpose of the planting.

When your selection is made, acquire a few tools for the project such as a shovel, trowel, crowbar, spade and garden hose or pail of water.

Most garden experts suggest using transition soil, or dirt that simulates the soil of the container. This eases the transition of the plant to your native soil, and reduces the possibility of your hedges and shrubs going into shock.

Dig a hole twice as wide and one inch shallower than the rootbase.

Hedges and shrubs have a tendency to sink deeper into the ground, so if the hole is too deep, the plant may get root and crown rot.

If you have a problem with soil drainage, add organic matter, such as compost, particularly effective with earth that contains too much sand or clay.

You should now mix and add the transition soil. Remove dirt, or backfill soil, from the hole, place in a separate pile and add an organic matter to the pile.

Gardeners most often use manure, compost, fish meal and blood meal, which can be expensive but last a long time. The ratio of organic material to backfill should be roughly 25 percent organic to 75 percent native dirt.

If planting at a time when you wish leaf growth to commence, add fertilizer to the hole.

Most manufacturers recommend one or two tablespoons for shrubs in a one-gallon container, ¼ cup if the plant is in a five-gallon pot. Stir it around in the hole so the roots do not come in direct contact with the nutrient.

When removing the plant from the original container, pull gently if the pot is plastic, taking care not to break the rootball.

If in a metal container, have the nursery cut the tin if planting the same day; if not, cut with tin snips yourself. Do not attempt to pull a shrub from metal containers.

You are now ready to plant the shrub. First check the rootball to make sure none of the roots are tangled or matted. Shorten the roots so they are level with the floor of the hole.

If you are satisfied that the roots are radiating out from the rootball, insert the plant in the hole and fill the surrounding space with backfill soil.

During the first few weeks of your plant's life, proper irrigation is crucial to survival.

Most experts suggest building a shallow basin of dirt around the shrub so water will drain evenly around the plant. Leave the basin in place for about six weeks.

TOUCH OF BEAUTY—Shrubs and hedges are one way of beautifying the lawn...and, once the initial planting is done, they require little maintenance.

Be conscious of color when planting flowers

Nearly everyone beautifies their property by planting trees and flowers. From the homeowner who raises a few daffodils each year to herald the approach of spring to those who consider gardening a major hobby, using plants for decorative purposes has been with us since the Egyptians started the practice as early as 1500 B.C.

Designing a beautiful garden with color is more than a random, hit-or-miss process. Advance planning is necessary to determine whether you want a formal or informal landscape, subdued or brilliant colors, or a harmonious color scheme.

Since colors will have the greatest impact on the appearance of your garden, it is worthwhile to learn a few basic principals employed by artists and professional garden designers.

To start, purchase a simple color wheel from an artist supply store to study the interrelationships among basic hues; notice that some colors complement each other while others clash. It will also help you determine whether you choose warm or cool colors, a factor that will have major impact on your landscaped environment.

Warm colors appear to advance and cool colors tend to recede. If you use both, you can create the effect of a larger yard by planting the cool-colored flowers at the rear of the garden.

Remember that brilliant reds, yellow and oranges create a dramatic effect and tend to catch the eye first; more subdued hues are better for close-up viewing.

Home gardeners who decide not to mix warm and cool colors find brilliantly colored plants and flowers will make the yard look smaller, while subdued colors will give the appearance of more space.

There are four basic color schemes used to create a harmonious effect: monochromatic, analogous, complementary and polychromatic colors. If you want a monochromatic effect, which is very popular with many home gardeners, select a pure color such as red with various tints and shades.

The beautiful azalea is a favorite of many, especially when displayed in variations of red ranging from pink to deep red.

Analogous colors are any three colors found in sequence on the color wheel, such as green, yellow-green and blue-green. A more delicate combination might be white, silver and pale lavender.

Selecting this color scheme has the advantage of giving you a wider variety of plants to choose from.

Complementary colors — those opposite one another on the color wheel — can create the most dramatic effect. Yellow daffodils and purple hyacinth or blue asters alongside orange azalea will catch the eye with their powerful combinations. If attempting this color scheme, try to keep the colors as pure as possible to avoid a disharmonious effect.

A polychromatic scheme uses combinations of any color on the wheel. Random planting is another way of creating a dramatic effect in landscaping: a brilliant array of yellow and red tulips next to an arrangement of orange marigolds and white petunias will give a spectacle of nature's glorious colors.

Windows need upkeep too

Many homeowners call a professional window washer, especially for external cleaning, but the job can be simplified by proper maintenance.

Acquire a few simple tools, such as a squeegee (a tool with a rubber blade used to remove solvents or water from the glass), a cloth and an ammonia-based window cleaner.

The method is simple: spray the window cleaner over the surface of the glass (or wipe with a wet sponge) and wipe clean with the squeegee blade.

Hard-to-reach external surfaces can be made accessible by using special long-handled squeegees, some of which have a sponge attached to the opposite end of the handle.

Remember to use proper safety precautions, however, when attempting to do the exterior job.

Washing the glass is only one element of proper window maintenance. Inspect your windows periodically for cracks, since they make the glass vulnerable to breaks. Cracked glass should be replaced immediately. To mend small fractures use glass repair glue, available in hardware stores.

Proper maintenance of frames and sliding surfaces is also important for long-term functioning of the window. Use a chisel or knife to scrape and clean the window channels inside the frame, clearing them of accumulated dirt or paint.

Years of changeable weather can create gaps or cracks in the frame or between the frame and wall, permitting cold air to enter. These can be easily filled with commercial caulking compounds.

Cold air drafts can be caused by too much space between the window and the frame. These can be eliminated by installing weather stripping; insulated material in long, thin strips which can be tacked onto the window frame in problem areas.

Metal window frames are subject to another problem: rust. Rust should be stopped before it spreads and destroys the frame.

Rust can be removed with a wire brush, sandpaper or a commercial solvent designed for that purpose; e.g. a rust remover. Once the rust is gone, the frame should be painted with a paint designed for metal protection.

Preparation key to good paint job

The first step toward a perfect paint job is careful paint preparation. If you are planning a painting job using paint you have just purchased, the only preparation you need is careful stirring. But if you are using paint that you have had on hand for a while, you may need to thin, strain and drain the paint.

There is a real trick to stirring paint. Professional painters use a "boxing" technique to be sure colors match when they are using a number of cans of paint.

Here is the way it works. First step is to pour most of the thin top paint into a separate container. Then stir the thick paint until it is smooth and the color is uniform. Then, slowly pour the "thin" paint back into the can, stirring it into the heavy paint. Pour paint back and forth between can and container until the color and consistency are uniform.

It is often better to stir latex paint rather than have your dealer put it into the mechanical shaker. Shaking can create fine air bubbles which can show up as craters on your walls.

Every painter knows the problem created by dribbles of paint that have settled in the groove around the top of the can. This paint residue then prevents an airtight seal. Solution? Just pound a few nail holes in the bottom of the groove.

Empty water barrels stop mosquitoes cold

While many products on supermarket shelves are labeled "instant," the concept also applies to nature.

In fact, if you looked closely at a batch of mosquito eggs, a label might read "Just add water," for instant trouble.

Mosquito eggs begin hatching in just a few minutes when immersed in water—even if they have withstood long periods of drying.

A mosquito egg can go from nymph to big, hungry adult in just 10 to 14 days at 80 degrees.

It is the adult female mosquito with which we are all too familiar. While feeding on human and animal blood, the female pierces the skin and injects saliva, causing the subsequent itching and irritation.

Mosquitoes can really spoil summer outdoors and indoors. Although in some cases the insect can transmit diseases such as malaria, for the most part, mosquitoes are simply a nuisance.

The best thing you can do to reduce the Weatherstripping

A window without proper weatherstripping can be costly in terms of energy. Windows and gliding patio doors with factory-applied vinyl weatherstripping are one way of providing snugger closures and added comfort.

number of mosquitoes breeding this season is to be sure there is no standing water around the yard.

The mosquito is not selective in its breeding sites and will lay eggs in water filled gutters, tin cans, bottles, old tires, jars, empty flower pots, and other objects that water collects in.

In addition to eliminating the standing water in your yard, encourage your neighbors to do the same.

If you discover major new potential breeding sites, bring them to the attention of local agricultural officials or mosquito control commissions.

Once mosquitoes are a problem, the use of an insecticide will help reduce their numbers.

There are over 2,000 species of mosquitoes in the world and more than 60 common to the U.S. Most states have problems with at least 10 mosquito species.

Some freshwater mosquito species take a year to complete a generation, whereas saltwater marsh mosquitoes can have a new brood every two weeks.

All species of mosquitoes, however, lay eggs constantly throughout their life cycle, so it's a good idea to continue checking for standing water and periodically spray with pesticide until the fall.

Tools important ingredient in home repairs

Every year about this time preparations get underway to repair what time and weather have damaged.

For the more experienced do-it-yourselfer, development of project plans or designs and creating a list of materials needed for the work are the normal first steps.

Next comes estimating the cost, based on that list of materials. Finally, a timetable for doing the job is established.

For the less experienced, however, there's an important intermediary step: creating the list of tools needed for a project. Failure to do this can cost the do-it-yourselfer many hours of wasted time.

Experts suggest taking time during the planning stage of any project to "walk through" the work area with a pencil and paper.

Review in your mind all the steps involved in the project, writing down each step along the way, with the materials and tools needed for that portion of the job.

Let your imagination run free, the experts suggest, anticipating the worst situations that could develop, so you'll be sure to have the tools you need when and if there's a unpleasant surprise.

Remember, there's often a need for more tools than a simple description of the project contains.

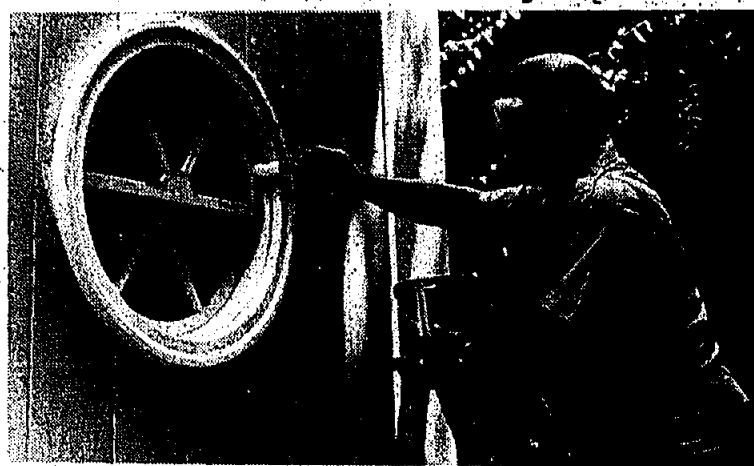

For instance, there's more to a basic painting project than the can or cans of paint, the brush or roller or spray.

If the surface needs any work, a wall scraper or putty knife will be necessary. Any holes found must be spackled or filled, which requires a putty knife, a sanding block, sandpaper and, on interior projects, a tack cloth to pick up sanding dust.

Painting window frames or interior woodwork also involves trim guards to keep paint off adjoining surfaces such as window glass and walls. Keep a razor scraper at hand to clean off whatever paint does get on windows.

If the painting involves use of a ladder, don't forget the paint can hook to hold the can securely against a ladder leg. And how many drop cloths are necessary to protect areas against splatters and drips?

Whether the project involves outdoor masonry, concrete work or interior remodeling or repair, home improvement consultants say that taking the time to "stroll" through the job to make a tools list will help the project go more smoothly with fewer frustrations and less wasted time.

THE RIGHT TOOLS—Inexperienced do-it-yourselfers sometimes forget the importance of having the right tools on hand before starting home repair and maintenance jobs. It's an omission that can be costly in terms of time and frustration. One example: safety glasses or goggles might well be a standard part of your painting equipment.

Container gardening is popular

Modern lifestyles often don't lend themselves to traditional gardens. When both husbands and wives work, there's less free time to care for plants. Smaller living spaces, particularly in urban areas, prohibit garden plots. And the frequent moves of modern life tend to discourage putting down roots, even for plants.

So it's easy to understand why container gardening has become increasingly popular in our mobile society. All a container gardener needs is adequate light and access for watering and fertilizing the plants.

Apartment dwellers in urban canyons can enjoy fall foliage, homegrown vegetables or cheerful flowers. The only limitation to highrise container gardening is weight. A newly watered container, especially a big one holding a small tree, may be too heavy for a balcony or for moving men to handle.

Track record vital for contractor

There is one major step that homeowners should take before starting remodeling: investigate the contractor before hiring him.

That advice comes from David Moore, chief operating officer of Garden State Brickface & Stucco, Roselle, who noted that there are stories every year of "shoddy workmanship and sometimes even devious ploys which cost homeowners money and many hours of anguish."

To avoid problems, Moore recommended the following steps:

• Determine what you want done. Think out the project beforehand so that you have a very good idea of what you need and do not need.

• Get references. Ask neighbors and friends if they have had work done, and by whom. Were they pleased? Did the contractor work within the budget?

• Check on the contractor. After you have had a contractor look at your project and give an estimate, call the Better Business Bureau. They can tell you what complaints have been filed. Remember, though, a complaint does not necessarily mean that the contractor isn't top-notch. The problem may have been minor, or merely a misunderstanding. The consumer should be on the lookout for contractors with a litany of complaints against them. That could spell trouble.

• Talk with the contractor. How long have they been in business? Do they have a headquarters or place of operation where they can be reached after the work is completed? Will they provide references? Do they carry workmen's compensation? (You could be sued if a workman is injured on your property.)

• Review the written contract. Get it in writing; ask about warranties; and be sure the contract includes lists of material and final costs.

ENERGY SAVER—Blanketing the basement ceiling with sheet or roll insulation is one way for homeowners to conserve energy — and save money — next winter. A staple gun helps get the job done right. The proper thickness of insulation is important.
