New meeting schedule set

New board members sworn in

By VICKI VREELAND

The swearing in of the three newly elected members of the Springfield Board of Education was greeted by a thunderous round of applause from more than 100 smiling residents at the board's reorganization meeting April 11. In other matters, the board elected new officers and set a new meeting schedule.

With the three new members—Kenneth Faigenbaum, Dr. Richard Luciani, and Lee Eisen—C.A.R.E., which supported the three, now holds the board majority. C.A.U.S.E.-affiliated board members George Gomez, Pietro Petino, Laula Monney, and Joseph Pepe, now in the minority, lost formerly-alligned board member Elizabeth Simpson-Fritzen when she was unsuccessful in her attempt for reelection. Eisen, Luciani, and Faigenbaum are joined by fellow C.A.R.E.-oriented members Barbara Adler and Stuart Applebaum.

The first order of business at the meeting was the election of board officers. Adler, in her seventh year of service, was elected president in a 2-1 vote. She was opposed by Petino and Monney. Pepe abstained from voting. Applebaum, who came on the board last year, was elected vice president 5-3. Petino, Pepe, and Monney opposed the vote, while Gomez abstained.

The board passed a unanimous resolution, at the outset of the meeting, to dispel rumors that any additional schools would be closed. The resolution stated, "This board of education resolves to keep open all of its remaining schools." Adler concluded, "We are unanimous to maintain all schools."

The two outgoing members of the board, Eileen Dahmen and Simpson-Fritzen, were awarded plaques of appreciation for their years of service on the board.

"Sitting on this board is a very arduous task," Adler commented. "These plaques represent many, many hours of service of free time." Simpson-Fritzen was not on hand to receive her plaque, however, Dahmen said, "I am absolutely delighted to see you all here. I want to thank you for all the support you've given me over the past year because it would have been a lot rougher without you."

In renewing its bylaws and policies for the 1984-85 term, the board set a new meeting schedule. Conference meetings, which were formerly held on the second Wednesday of the month, will be held the first Wednesday of each month, followed by the regular business meeting on the second Wednesday. Regular sessions had been held the third Monday of the month.

The board voted 8-1 to designate the Springfield Leader as the official newspaper for the district's legal advertising. Last year, the board designated another newspaper as its official newspaper. Casting the lone dissenting vote was Petino.

A temporary board attorney, William Jeremiah of a Westfield law firm, was appointed 5-4 to serve as counsel until an ad hoc committee appointed by Adler could interview interested parties. Jeremiah currently represents two other school boards, Watchung Hills and Ho-Ho-Kus.

Furthermore, Jeremiah was authorized to inform Giblin and Giblin, the board's former counsel, that the firm's services would no longer be required. The effect of Giblin's termination on various pending legal actions in Superior Court is not yet known.

Retirement greeted with mixed feelings

By VICKI VREELAND

Retirement is usually thought of as the "Golden Years," but sometimes, when your life has been your work, closing that final chapter can be a bit sad. Howard Thompson, a detective/sergeant who is retiring after 25 years on the Springfield Police Department, has those ambivalent feelings.

In a recent interview, Thompson said he looks forward to the additional time he will have for his family and hobbies, but at the same time, he will miss his fellow officers and his work as a detective.

Thompson joined the squad as a patrolman in 1958. He had previously worked in a chemical laboratory that practiced unsafe working conditions. "I saw two people die needlessly," Thompson said.

On vacation one summer in 1968, he stopped by police headquarters and picked up an application. "My wife was a deputy warden in the Union County Jail," he had some law enforcement background all my life," he explained.

Thompson qualified and was assigned to the patrol division. He worked traffic duty and patrol cars for nine years and then was assigned to the detective bureau.

The duty of a detective was far removed from that of a patrolman. "As a patrolman, I had enjoyed the contact I had with the townspeople," he said. As a detective, Thompson was isolated. His job was investigative and full of details. He investigated cases of fraud, larceny, embezzlement, robberies, and even murders.

Thompson's job included examining and photographing crime scenes for physical evidence. In his years on the force, there were five murders in town. He also studied to become a trained fingerprint identifier and solved many cases through that method. "I felt a big sense of achievement on those jobs," Thompson said.

Looking back on the past 25 years, Thompson recalled changes in police philosophy. "When I first went on the job, we were told to keep the peace and try to settle things. There doesn't always have to be an arrest. Police work isn't all strictly enforcement, you also have to be human," he said.

On the other hand, Thompson said, a suburban police officer can no longer assume he will only meet up with local people. "With major highways cutting through towns, you meet a different class of people. You can meet anyone anywhere. We now get a sample of city crime. It is not the same as it was 25 years ago."

Thompson's wife, Barbara, always worried about her husband's career, but could remember only one time when her heart was in her mouth.

It was in 1966. A police officer was involved in a high-speed chase with a vehicle on Route 22. In those days, Thompson said, the police cars "had monstrous motors that could really go." Thompson remembers chases when his vehicle exceeded 140 mph.

The officer radioed in that he was in pursuit of a vehicle, and then the radio went dead. A few minutes later, calls from residents flooded the police station reporting an accident with a police car wrapped around a tree. It

Township gets $10,000, to be used for senior bus

Assemblyman Edward K. Gill (R-21st district) has announced that Springfield has been awarded $10,000 by the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs. This grant is to be used to provide bus transportation to shopping areas, medical services and other functions for senior citizens who cannot afford commercial means of transportation.

"Some of our senior citizens," Gill said, "feel trapped in their homes because they're reluctant to continually ask friends and relatives for rides, yet they can not afford taxis and, in some cases, even the bus fares they find extravagant on their meager incomes."

Gill pointed out that Springfield has an ongoing busing program for senior citizens, but the township is in need of a new vehicle.

Visiting students from Germany find that cultural exchange is no shock at Dayton

By VICKI VREELAND

Foodtown, a city? A panky haircut? These slips are pretty understandable when you're only been in the United States a week. Nineteen Bavarian students on a regional district exchange program arrived in the states April 3 for a crash course in the "strange ways of Americans."

The exchange students were hooked-up with regional students who volunteered to act as "hosts." Three exchange students are attending Arthur I. Johnson High School, Clark, for the three-week period, and six were placed in Governor Livingston High School, Berkeley Heights.

In Barbara Oberding's fourth- and fifth-year German class at Jonathan Dayton, 10 students are acting as hosts to the German visitors. The class planned typical all-American activities for the students such as a square dance and a pool party. They also visited "The Big Apple" and Washington, D.C. Sixteen-year-old Gunda's host family, eagerly took her to New York City for two other occasions.

Gunda has been able to adjust to her classes in an American high school, although she remarked, "It is quite different from the German school system. Students do not respect teachers as much and the teachers are not as strict."

EXCHANGING IDEAS—German students on an educational exchange program congregate around the sign that welcomed them to Jonathan Dayton Regional High School. The students are on a three-week visit to the states.

Double trouble

Voters who participated in the April 3 school elections may still be scratching their heads trying to figure out why they had to sign two polling books, stand in two lines and enter two polling booths in order to participate in both the local and Union County regional district balloting.

By MSGR. RAYMOND POLLARD Our Lady of Lourdes Church

The Easter greeting of Jesus was "Peace be with you!" Not once, but twice, but three times Jesus said "Peace be with you!"

We should have known that after preaching a gospel of peace for all the world to hear during the years of His public ministry that Jesus would greet the world on the first Easter with the words, "Peace be with you!"

In giving us His peace He assures us that peace is possible—even in the midst of turmoil and suffering. In spite of war, famine, terrorism and hatred, peace can be a reality. If we are to appreciate the Lord's gift of peace and be peacemakers ourselves, we must look inward.

Candy chicks fine gifts..but not live ones

By ELIZABETH SEP
Giving a live chick or bunny to a loved one for Easter? It's usually not a good idea, according to area pet shelters, who are asking people to stick with chocolate bunnies and stuffed animals.

Even though pet stores do give special care instructions, most people are not able to take adequate care of these animals. This is especially true of children, who are often the ones to receive them from well-meaning relatives.

A few months after the animals are purchased and have become domesticated, they are apt to be abandoned or set free to join others of their kind. Nina Austenberg, regional director of the Humane Society of the United States, said.

But since the animals are domesticated, they more than likely will not be able to make it on their own, she said.
Austenberg cited a report in January from a woman who wrote about the death of a little white duck in her area that had been abandoned.

The woman said that the duck apparently was the victim of malicious juveniles; it had been

For consumers: Handy hints will be distributed in conjunction with Consumers Week.

CUTE AND CUDDLY—Seventeen-month-old Michele Frankshun of Union is surrounded by a whole menagerie of Easter 'pets' of the best kind. Humane Society and animal shelter officials strongly urge that adults give stuffed or candy animals for Easter, not live rabbits or baby chicks, which are apt to die.

Bar association to hear talk by Fred Graham

The Union County Bar Association will feature CBS News law correspondent Fred Graham on Thursday, April 25, at the Coachman Inn, Cranford. Graham's topic will be "The Law Beat in Washington ... and other crimes."

Born in Little Rock, Ark., Graham graduated from Yale University and received law degrees from Vanderbilt University and Oxford University.

The law correspondent for CBS News, based in Washington, D.C., he is the recipient of three Emmy awards — for coverage of Watergate and the Agnew case — and a Peabody award. He has been law correspondent for The New York Times, assistant to Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, and chief counsel of the Constitutional Amendments Subcommittee of the U.S. Senate. Graham is the only TV journalist listed in the Dictionary of American Scholars. His first book, "The Self-Inflicted Wound," was a study of the Supreme Court in the Warren years.

Graham reports regularly on the "Law" segment on "The CBS Morning

News" with Bill Kurtis and Diane Sawyer, and anchors "The Law and You" each weekend on the CBS radio network. He is substitute moderator of the CBS News broadcast "Face the Nation."

clubbed or stoned to death. She wrote, "The duck was probably sent out in the springtime and was joined by wild geese and wild ducks in the summer and fall. Winter approached and the wild geese and ducks flew to warmer climates but the domestic duck remained."

Food became scarce as the colder weather and snow came and I fed the duck each day. Before long the pond began to freeze and there was only a small opening on the edge of the pond where swimming was possible. The duck became very vulnerable to stone-throwing juveniles," the woman said.

Austenber noted that "many of those live Easter gifts will have the same fate as the little white duck and will be abandoned at local parks and ponds."

Joanne Astalos, president of the Pet Adoption Waiting Station (PAWS) in Linden, said that requests for chicks and ducklings — animals that the shelter does not have — seem to have dropped off over the years in this area.

"I don't think many pet stores are carrying them any more. Maybe people are getting wiser," she said.

Astalos has received few phone calls inquiring whether the pet shelter has chicks or ducklings available for adoption.

"Let them buy a marshmallow or plush chick. You are teaching your children a humane lesson that way," she said.

Years before she opened the shelter, Astalos said that someone gave her a half-grown chicken.

"It was pathetic. The poor thing was scrawny and it had no feathers. We kept it for five days and then called Kindness Kennels. They got in touch with a man that takes in wayward animals and he took it," she said.

The shelter does not carry rabbits but has received inquiries about them. "Rabbits are easier to take care of — if you create the right climate for them. But chicks have to be fed special food and they need their mother a lot longer. They flock together like puppies," she said.

"It's best just to leave live animals alone for Easter," Astalos said.

According to Dom Caggiano, manager of Kindness Kennels in Rahway, state law prohibits the sale of chicks or ducklings that are less than two months old. The law also prohibits dyeing chicks, which was a practice of pet shops who wanted to make them more festive for Easter.

"In past experience we have found that kids have the chick for one week and then either hurt it or end up looking for a place to bring it," he said.

Henderson set for Drew group

A performance by the New York Pops with guest conductor Skitch Henderson featuring works by Gershwin and Rachmaninoff will highlight the "Drews Promenade '84" a gathering for friends of the university, May 11 at 8 p.m. in Carnegie Hall, New York City. The concert will be preceded by dinner in the Grand Tier Restaurant at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Special guest will be pianist Ruth Larado.

'R. E. Cycle' is coming

Mr. R. E. Cycle, New Jersey's "recycling magician," will make his first appearance in Union County at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday when he visits the Trailside Nature and Science Center, Coles Avenue and New Providence Road, Mountainside.

Sponsored by the New Jersey Department of Energy's Office of Recycling, Mr. R. E. Cycle serves as a symbol of the statewide recycling movement.

His program, "The Magic Is Recycling Pays," is designed to illustrate how recycling pays off, not just in money but also in a cleaner environment and reduced amount of land required for landfill.

His visit to Trailside is being sponsored by the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation and the Union County Environmental Resource Center. Admission is free.

Consumer Week planned

Representatives of the Union County Division of Consumer Affairs will visit central locations in municipalities throughout the county next week to distribute handbooks and information packets.

The project is being undertaken in observance of National Consumers Week, which starts Monday, according to Ellen Bloom, division director.

The literature to be distributed, supplied by the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission, will include the "Consumer's Resource Handbook" and product safety information, she said.

Division of Consumer Affairs also will be mailing copies of the handbook to schools, libraries and organizations throughout the county.

The division mediates consumer complaints and attempts to keep both consumers and retailers informed on issues of importance to both, Bloom said.

Since its founding in 1977, it has saved consumers more than $4.5 million through refunds, exchanges and contracts voided or completed, she reported. Last year — its busiest year ever — it recorded more than $1 million in savings, she said.

Concord group plans concert

The Concord Singers will present a concert of choral and instrumental music April 29 at 8 p.m. in St. John's Lutheran Church, Summit. Two choruses, under the direction of Jane Bender, will share the program, assisted by soloists and strings of the New Jersey Youth Symphony.

The Motet singers will offer Haydn's "Mass Brevis St. Joannis de Deo," also known as the "Little Organ Mass," with Wayne Dietterick, organist, and Ann Gamble, soprano. A second featured work, in combination with the Women's Chorus, will be Brahms' "Liedeslieder Waltzes, Op. 52."

The Mass was written at the height of the composer's creative power.

The Concord singers are members of the New Jersey Symphony, a Summit-based orchestra of gifted young musicians chosen by statewide audition.

Orchestra will dedicate a concert to Monument

The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will dedicate its April 28 concert at Newark Symphony Hall to the Liberty Park Monument, to be erected at Liberty State Park in Jersey City in 1985. In order to help raise funds for construction of the monument, called "Liberation," the NJSO has donated a block of tickets to the Liberty Park Monument Committee, which will keep all the proceeds from the sale of tickets.

The performance will feature the 105-member New Jersey Symphony Orchestra under the baton of guest conductor Jorge Mester in Gustav Mahler's "Symphony No. 1, The Titan," Zoltan

Disc & Data

By MILT HAMMER

Pick Of The LPs, "Headpins" (MCA Records).

The Headpins have made a lot of noise in their short history. In one recording year, their status changed from a part-time "fun" band to one of Canada's premier rock attractions. With the release of "Turn It Loud" in July, 1982, Headpins took its number one homeland by storm with a number one position, and with sales surpassing double platinum, they rival previous standards for sales of a Canadian debut album. By year's end, they had amassed awards and nominations.

Headpins story begins with controversy. In late 1979, Brian MacLeod and Ab Bryant, as members of Chilliwack, were prevented from performing by record company litigation. Both essentially "live" players, together with Matt Frenette (Loverboy) and Denise McCann (R&B All Stars), they formed Headpins—a temporary club act that toured the Vancouver circuit.

Headpins generated standing-room-only crowds and received the B.C. Caras award for "Best Club Act" in 1981. Matt left Headpins to resume touring commitments with Loverboy, and was replaced by Bernie Aubin, also a Loverboy drummer, and co-writer of "The Kid Is Hot Tonight." Denise McCann bowed out to Darby Mills, on tour with a nine-piece rhythm and blues show band. Her decision to join Headpins was not an easy one. She was aware of the temporary nature of the project, but proved proved to be the catalyst in the Headpins chemistry. She became the Headpins centerpiece. Darby developed her own unique, charismatic vocal style.

In the summer of 1981, Headpins were included on "Vancouver Seeds Two," a compilation of local talent produced and distributed by a major Canadian FM rock station.

Headpins went in to the studio to record for Solid Gold Records under the direction of Brian MacLeod. "Turn It Loud" was released in July, 1982, while Chilliwack was in the studio recording "Opus X." Although Brian and Ab were the writers and musicians of "Turn It Loud," they were listed only in the production credits, as both were obliged to redirect their energies to Chilliwack. Thus, Darby Mills became known throughout the country as Headpins.

Darby embarked on a 40-date cross-country tour with labelmates Toronto. The tour, which augmented "Turn It Loud's" already impressive sales and airplay, gave Darby a feel for the larger stage. She teamed her adrognous vocal dynamics with an athletic mastery of the stage (practiced by way of 12 years as a figure skater), and dominated performance after performance. By the end of the tour, "Turn It Loud" had achieved platinum status (100,000 units). Darby Mills was labelled as an "unbridled songstress," and Headpins were heralded as "Vancouver's Next Big Success Story."

By the spring of 1983, while founding members MacLeod and Bryant toured with Chilliwack, Headpins went on the road as headliners.

Award season in Canada found both bands highly honored. Chilliwack swept the West Coast Music Awards by winning in six categories. At the Shure Rock Music Awards, Mills was voted the country's Top Female Vocalist, and Headpins won Top New Group. Juno nominations followed for Headpins in the Album of the Year and Most Promising Group categories, and MacLeod and Bill Henderson took a Juno for Producer of the Year.

One week after the Junos, Brian and Ab had amicably left Chilliwack to join Headpins.

Headpins entered the studio in the summer of 1983. With the release of "Line of Fire," their second album for Solid Gold Records, they can proudly proclaim to the rest of the world just who and what Headpins really are.
