Recycling pilot project under way in county

Some Union County employees are no longer throwing away waste paper; they're saving it. In a pilot office recycling program.

As part of the regular office routine, each has been given a desk-top container to store recyclable white office paper, according to Arthur J. Grist, Union County manager.

"At the end of the day, employees will take the waste paper and deposit it in conveniently located bins," Grist said. "Maintenance personnel will collect the paper and pack it in boxes for shipment to a waste dealer."

"The program is underway in the form of a three-month pilot project on the sixth floor of the Union County Administration Building," said Charlotte DeFilippo, chairman of the Board of Freeholders. DeFilippo and Freeholder Edward J. Slomkowski proposed the idea to recycle paper in the county. After this "test period," the program will be reviewed on June 30 to determine how to best expand it to all departments.

"We had been investigating the possibility of using recycled paper for our county stationery and are currently looking at cost and bidding procedures," DeFilippo added. "This was a logical follow-up to our environmental concerns."

"Recycling of paper, metal and glass is going to help all Union County residents," Slomkowski said. "We are not only saving money on solid waste removal, but we're also helping the environment. We on the sixth floor hope to set an example for our fellow workers." Slomkowski added that in New Jersey today, about 75 percent of landfills opened in 1970 have already been closed, making recycling a necessity.

According to Joe Buhendorf, the county's recycling coordinator, some 43 percent of office waste is recyclable paper. Her office, the Union County Environmental Resource Center in Westfield, oversees such projects under the auspices of the Division of Environmental Engineering.

Initially, the recycling program will be for white ledger paper only, including letterheads, stationery, typing paper, table sheets and others. This type of paper brings a higher market price. Plans are to eventually expand the program to include other types of paper.

Job appears to be tailor made for new school board member

By VICKI VREELAND

There are a number of diverse and complicated motives for wanting to sit on an elected governing body—power, experience, recognition, but, there are also some simple ones.

Frederick Soos of Kenilworth ran for the Regional Board of Education for one of those simple reasons: He likes kids.

Soos has kept up with today's youth for the past 10 years, through his three sons and the constant circle of friends they bring home.

When Charles Vitale, a 12-year regional board member, declined to run for another term this past April, an open position existed for a Kenilworth representative. Soos decided to run. On April 3, Soos was elected to the board in an unopposed election.

"I know the majority of kids at David Brearley and I have a good rapport with them. I think I can be beneficial. We have to keep up with the kids, the times change, and we have to adopt with them. We hear a lot about bad kids, but there are a lot more good kids out there," he said.

Although recently Brearley rated the lowest in comparison to other regional schools in SAT scores, Soos affirms that, "there is a quality of education to be had," at the high school.

New elective courses in preparation for SAT's were developed in the Brearley curriculum for the 1984-85 school year.

Soos believes the students' "lack of pride" in their school is a more serious and subtle problem.

"It's not just our school, it's happening in all schools. Everyone in town should support the school, not just the kids. It should come from the teachers, the principals, and the elected officials."

Soos said he liked the kind of attendance he found at a regional board meeting about a month ago. "I was very impressed. They were very well-spoken and did an excellent job, and it worked," Soos said. The board decided to hold graduation on a Friday evening.

Although Soos is still getting his feet wet in board business, he is eager to hear a governing body work. He served as a Borough Councilman from 1970 to 1972, and he has been the borough delegate to the Rahway Valley Sewage Authority since 1979, serving as president last year.

He serves on the Board Teacher Committee, the Transportation Committee, and the Personnel Committee for the regional board. Soos is a construction superintendent for Wade Contractors, Linden.

Soos was a Little League manager and officer for 13 years, but found this year his new position on the board would demand more time. He still is a member of the Brearley Athletic Boosters, and if any time is left over, he likes to play golf.

His wife, Annette, is just as active. She is the vice president for the PTA at Brearley and a PTA member at Harding School.

Soos has lived on Epping Drive with his wife and three sons for the past 28 years. His oldest son, Michael, is a freshman at St. John's University, New York. His middle son, Fred Jr., is a junior at Brearley, and his youngest Brian, attends Harding School.

Soos finds his position as a board member "exciting" and looks forward to the rest of his term.

Another lawsuit is filed in Walton School issue

By VICKI VREELAND

The sale of Walton School continues to have legal ramifications.

The Springfield Planning Board has been served with a complaint filed by Dr. Barry Maltzman of Springfield that contains three major allegations including charging a board member with conflict of interest.

The suit also names Greensprings Estates, Inc., who were awarded a $1,053,000 contract by the Springfield Board of Education for the Edward Walton School.

Maltzman's attorney, William Exaras, said the complaint was filed April 30. It charges that a planning board member, Angelo Martino, had a conflict of interest that should have been disclosed at a January board meeting, prior to voting.

At that meeting, Frank Racioppi, a land developer and builder, and president of Greensprings, was awarded a minor subdivision for the Walton property. Martino voted to approve the subdivision, without divulging that he and Racioppi had worked together on past contracts.

The information was offered in a letter that followed the meeting from Madeline Zamara to the board president. Zamara requested the board to delay taking any action. After being advised of the state statute by Gary Falkin, planning board attorney, Martino voted for the majority or on resolution to approve the subdivision at the February meeting.

The state statute reads, "No member of the planning board shall be permitted to act in any matter which has any direct or indirect interest, personal or financial interests." According to Falkin, the case law has been interpreted many times and in many ways.

"It basically is a personal decision by a board member and if a member of the planning board votes, 'No member of the planning board shall be permitted to act in any matter which has any direct or indirect interest, personal or financial interests.' According to Exaras, since the school grounds are public property, in order to be granted a minor subdivision, a builder must show that the development will not conflict with the designated use of the land." (Continued on page 3)

The suit also claims the board did not hear sufficient evidence before granting the subdivision. According to Exaras, since the school grounds are public property, in order to be granted a minor subdivision, a builder must show that the development will not conflict with the designated use of the land.

Legal issues set off meeting's fireworks

By VICKI VREELAND

Two issues regarding legal matters, the payment of lawyer's fees and the possibility of further litigation, ignited a round of verbal fireworks between opposing majority and minority board members at the Springfield Board of Education meeting May 9.

The board approved a motion for the payment of monthly bills, with the exception of a bill from Giblin and Giblin, the board's former attorney, for $86,648 for the period of January through March.

Kenneth Faigenbaum, finance chairperson, recommended that the bill be submitted to Warren Kaps, board attorney, for review. "Bills of professionals should be reviewed by the board attorney. I do not have the legal expertise to see if the charges are in order and I do not think it is the duty of the finance chairman," Faigenbaum said.

"It appears to be some grapes," said Pietro Felino, board member, "we paid the bills of the attorney before Giblin, Seymour Margules, at his word, and now you're putting the screws to Giblin. The new majority of the board is giving it to the old majority of the board."

Stuart Applebaum stated, "The old majority ramrodded the checks through every month without checking them. Now we have an opportunity to do it."

Dr. Richard Luciani, a newly-elected board member added, "We're supposed" (Continued on page 3)

Students air gripes about teacher's shift

By VICKI VREELAND

Parents and students turned out on Tuesday's Regional Board of Education meeting to object to a proposed transfer of a foreign language teacher at the Arthur L. Johnson High School in Clark. Concerns were also again raised about the graduation date for the regional high schools.

The transfer of Giovanni Gaglione, which appears in the controversy, is one of eight personnel shifts recommended by the district's administration. Gaglione, who has taught Italian at Johnson for about 12 years, was recommended to be transferred to David Brearley High School, Kenilworth.

A Clark resident attended the meeting with a petition signed by parents and students protesting the move, but did not pass it on to the board. He stated that the Johnson teacher was well-received by the students, many of whom took Italian to have Gaglione for a teacher.

Charles Bauman, assistant superintendent, explained that annual teacher transfers are a common practice. "It is necessary each year that we experience declining" (Continued on page 3)

C.A.R.E. won't appeal ruling on Walton sale

By VICKI VREELAND

One legal case filed against the Springfield Board of Education has been resolved, but other matters of litigation still hover in the background.

Administrative Law Judge Stephen G. Weiss decided April 23 that the case brought by the Civic Association For Responsible Education (C.A.R.E.) against the board for its June 6, 1983 sale of the Walton School, should be dismissed. C.A.R.E. spokesman said conflict work that the decision will not be appealed.

The litigation, which took up almost an entire year, divided not only the school board, but a large segment of the township's population, an issue Judge Weiss referred to repeatedly.

Olympic official says Soviets play 'disrupt' game

By TIMOTHY OWENS

A township resident doesn't think the Soviet Union will stick by its decision not to send its athletes to Los Angeles for the Olympic Games this summer.

Before you dismiss this as purely wishful thinking, consider that the holder of this opinion has been closely connected with the Olympic movement for 18 years and was involved in the decision by the United States to boycott the 1980 Games in Moscow.

"I think they (the Russians) will change their mind," said David Brown last week in the wake of the Soviet announcement that it would not send its athletes to the Olympics because of what it charged was the failure of the U.S. to guarantee their safety. "I just think that they are trying to disrupt things."

Brown is the New Jersey chairman of the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) and has been for 16 years, the longest term of any USOC chairman. He has been a member of the National Executive Board of the committee since 1968. Brown is the president of one life — that of athletes. Don't talk about it in the press. Don't give anybody any ideas."

He is convinced that the Soviets will compete in Los Angeles this summer, partly on the basis of an experience he had while officiating at an international meet in the Meadowlands. After the event was over, one of the Soviet athletes approached him and said, "Mr. Brown, I really enjoyed your officiating. See you in LA."

"To pull off the world scale event called the Olympics, a state of organizing committees exists in addition to the USOC. These include the International Olympic Committee (IOC) and the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee (LAOOC).

"The USOC executive board is made up of six 'at large' representatives, such as Brown, and representatives of each sporting event to be held during the games. There are another eight members who represent other organizations, including the Armed Forces, the YMCA, the YWCA, the CVO, Explorers, National High School Association, the NCAA and handicapped athletes. There are 16 athletes on the board who have competed in the Olympics in the last 10 years. Former U.S. Secretary of the Treasury William Simon is the USOC president. The committee's responsibilities include fund-raising efforts on behalf of the U.S. team and logistical organization.

The International Olympic Committee, on the other hand, is made up of representatives of each nation that is an Olympic participant. The president of the IOC appoints members who are usually recommended by each nation's Olympic Committee. The IOC governs the general conduct of the Olympics, including the selection of a host city.

The LAOOC is responsible for staging the event — a mammoth responsibility that includes housing the athletes, ticket distribution, arranging the opening and closing ceremonies, etc.

officials if they planned to have any representatives at the meet prior to the vote in case any committee members had any last minute questions. The response was no, however, that Saturday then Vice President Walter Mondale attended the USOC meeting.

"I have to think that Mondale came because of the question asked," said Brown.

The Olympic official doesn't believe that the Soviet announcement is in retaliation for the U.S. boycott, and places the blame elsewhere.

"I was listening to a radio talk show the other day (before the Soviet announcement) and they were talking about the group which has promised to picket at the Games. Why devote prime radio time to them? All it takes is someone with a Jewish family member who is being held in the Soviet Union to toss a grenade into a group of Soviet athletes. Don't talk about it in the press. Don't give anybody any ideas."

He is convinced that the Soviets will compete in Los Angeles this summer, partly on the basis of an experience he had while officiating at an international meet in the Meadowlands. After the event was over, one of the Soviet athletes approached him and said, "Mr. Brown, I really enjoyed your officiating. See you in LA."

The LAOOC is responsible for staging the event — a mammoth responsibility that includes housing the athletes, ticket distribution, arranging the opening and closing ceremonies, etc.

The USOC, after years when American cities bailed out each other by voting to become the 1984 Olympic site, chose Los Angeles for the '84 selection process. Brown explained that in the past, whenever it came time for site selection, three U.S. cities would be in the competition against every other city in the world for the honor of being the Olympic host. The U.S. vote on the IOC would be split, and a foreign city would inevitably be chosen. While the ultimate choice remained with the IOC, the process was changed for the '84 games. Instead of U.S. cities competing against each other for the IOC's nod, the USOC would choose a single U.S. city as the Olympic site nominee.

Los Angeles was the choice of the USOC eight years ago, against a strong challenge from New York. The city which Brown preferred then and still prefers now as an Olympic site.

Brown's complaints about the LAOC stem from just after the IOC decision to grant Los Angeles the '84 games.

"The Los Angeles city government said that no public funds would be used (for the Games). Gov. Jerry Brown had almost promised that no state funds would be available. The LAOOC came to the USOC and asked that it co-sponsor the '84 Olympics which was not legally possible under the by-laws of the IOC. We were afraid that it could bankrupt the USOC." The by-laws were subsequently changed. Brown fears that if the Soviet Union doesn't come to LA, some of the corporate sponsors of the Games might pull out and "the LAOOC may be hurting."

Brown's concerns about the LAOOC go beyond the question of who would sponsor the Games. He calls the distribution of Olympic tickets "very, very disturbing."

According to the Olympic official, 65 percent of all tickets for the Games have gone to people in Southern California with the remaining 35 percent to be distributed to the rest of the country. He related a conversation he had with Peter Ueberroth, president of the LAOOC as the plans for the distribution of tickets were laid.

"I asked him to his face, 'What is going to happen with the tickets?' with the two committees co-sponsoring the event." "He told me, 'You're part of the Olympic family. Don't worry about it.'"

Once the ticket system was initiated, however, members of the USOC, including Brown, were told that they would have to send in applications for the ticket lottery just as everyone else. Brown applied for tickets to 17 events. He received four. Brown has subsequently written to Ueberroth and Simon, but said with only four tickets, it would "not pay to go to the Games."

Brown won't let these problems interfere with his plans for the Olympics, he is too busy. On Saturday he participated in the cross-country relay journey of the Olympic torch by carrying it into the Morristown Square. He has also been planning activities for the Gold Medal Club — an organization that honors past Olympic medalists.

The club started with a bang in 1979 when Brown organized a fund-raiser in Atlantic City that featured the largest collection of Olympic gold medalists ever assembled — 153. The three-day event featured a black-tie dinner, an exhibition including boxing, gymnastics and track and field events.

Brown is busy attempting to top the 1979 event with a gathering of 350 gold medalists for this summer's Games. The plan calls for the medalists and their spouses to be flown to Las Vegas where they will stay for two days before flying on to Los Angeles to participate in the Olympics closing ceremonies. After the Olympics end, the medalists will be flown back to Las Vegas the following day for a parade and dinner.

Brown, who somehow finds time for his Olympic related activities despite his position as a principal staff engineer with Public Service Electric & Gas in Plainfield, is very proud of his work with the club. "It is a chance for the medalists to be with their peers again," he noted.

"In the early days of the Olympics back in the 1920s, the old opening and closing ceremonies were not much. (By participating in this year's ceremonies) medalists who might have competed in front of maybe 15,000 people back then, will be marching in front of 100,000 in the LA Coliseum."

Brown believes that this is the true spirit of the Olympics and why the future of the Games must be ensured. He questions calls for a permanent home for the Olympics such as Greece because the Greek government "is not stable."

"The Olympic athletes are truly children of the world," said Brown. "After the athletes are finished competing, you often see them swap suits with one another. You might see a lovely blonde that you know is Swedish wearing a uniform of the team from Kenya. Friendships develop even though many of the athletes may never see each other again. I say that the Games will continue."

To further illustrate the true meaning of the Olympic spirit, Brown related a story about the 1979 event in Atlantic City. The three members of the 1984 400-meter relay team hadn't seen each other since. One of the women had subsequently suffered a stroke and was confined to a wheelchair.

"During the buffet dinner the first night, I heard a scream in the hallway," remembered Brown. "The three saw each other for the first time. The other two were so happy that they picked up the third from the wheelchair. That whole week-end they were inseparable. That kind of spirit this event is."

Official says DOT must account for silt pollution at Reservation

By PHILIP GIMSON

MOUNTAINSIDE - A county official said Tuesday that contrary to comments made by Department of Transportation officials, the state could have prevented silt pollution problems at Lake Surprise and two ponds at Wachung Reservation.

Ken Marsh, the county's director of environmental engineering, charged that as a result of DOT construction of Interstate Highway 78, the reservoir and silt is clouded and muddy and suffering from depleted levels of dissolved oxygen that could pose lethal harm to the reservation's fish population. In addition to Lake Surprise, county officials have charged the state with polluting Sayer and Bryant Ponds.

The DOT is responsible for protecting the reservation waters from silt pollution caused by the construction under an agreement between the county and state approved by the Union County Board of Freeholders on Sept. 16, 1982.

"While the DOT took some preventive erosion measures in the beginning, as the project progressed they began to fall short in ensuring that the necessary controls were implemented," Marsh stated. "To date, the state hasn't instituted some of the protective measures we've been requesting all along."

Marsh also challenged published statements made by DOT spokesman Debbie Lawler that regardless of what erosion control measures were taken, silt would still have resulted due to this year's record rainfall. DOT officials could not be reached for comment late Tuesday.

"Granted that the large quantity of rainfall has aggravated the situation," Marsh said, "but taking the proper preventive measures would have helped quite a bit because these controls are specifically designed to cope with heavy rainfalls."

Marsh explained that such controls include sediment basins, hay bale filters and silt fences and other man-made devices that collect silt and prevent it from running off into surface and ground water.

According to Marsh, the DOT completely uprooted an agreement with the county to install two of the basins and gradually dropped other controls that left some drainage inlets virtually unprotected from silt penetration.

Marsh said that in regular monthly meetings between the county and state, "the state wasn't really responding to our comments," and claimed that several times he sent the DOT lengthy letters complaining about the situation, without obtaining satisfaction.

Marsh said that the county will not be able to determine the full impact of the silt pollution to the reservation's fish life until the summer months, when the dissolved oxygen content typically drops to the lowest levels of the year.

Essex County brothers charged in motel robbery

KENILWORTH - Two brothers from Essex County were arrested last Thursday on charges of robbing an outdoor cafe in the parking lot at the Holiday Inn, on So. 31st Street and the Boulevard.

Charles Pierce, 24, of Valley Road, Chelsea Ave., East Orange, was arrested before Municipal Court Judge Aldan Markson and each charged with a first-degree robbery.

The brothers were then placed in the custody of county police authorities and jailed on Friday after Union County Superior Court Judge Curtis Davidson set their bail at $20,000 apiece.

Detective William Dowd said that the two brothers were arrested separately, shortly after the robbery occurred at approximately 10 p.m. Dowd explained that he apprehended Mark Pierce in the Holiday Inn parking lot, where he was "crouching behind a van, and then caught Charles Pierce about half an hour later using the pay phone inside the motel lobby."

In other police news this week, a Kenilworth man was arrested on Saturday morning on assault and disorderly conduct charges following an apparent fight with an employee at Michael's Tavern, 104 No. 10th St.

Michael Fitzgerald, 26, who lives directly above the tavern, was charged with five counts of assault, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct in connection with the incident. Police made the arrest at 1:45 a.m. after Fitzgerald reportedly pushed officers Jacob Davis and Henry Moll, who were on special duty. Both officers were taken to Memorial General Hospital and released with slight injuries.

The fire department also reported an incident late Sunday night, in which the Kenilworth Coin Laundry, 630 Boulevard, sustained minor damage. The volunteer squad was able to extinguish the fire at 11:25 p.m., shortly after it had spread from a dryer to a woodstove.

Deadline approaching for DYDEE applications

SPRINGFIELD - The deadline is May 31 for applications for the DYDEE program, which provides for kindergarten children to attend kindergarten in the DYDEE Project at the Thelma L. Sandmeier School in September.

The prekindergarten is part of the nationally publicized DYDEE (Deaf Youngster Deserve Early Education) Project that is completing its ninth year.

There will be five openings this fall for non-handicapped children who will be age 3 on or before Dec. 1. Each application should be made by letter including the child's name, address, address and telephone number. The letter must be received at Sandmeier School no later than 3 p.m. on May 31. Parents should send two copies of this letter by the deadline. A public drawing by lots will be held at 10 a.m. on June 1, at the school.

After the names are drawn, the five children will be professionally screened for prekindergarten readiness.

DYDEE is a model program in early education for communication-impaired children in this area. At age 3 and 4, the communication-handicapped children are integrated into a "mainstreamed" class with non-handicapped youngsters of the same age. After selection at age 3, the non-handicapped children from Springfield may remain in the project two years.

The DYDEE Project is recognized by the New Jersey State Department of Education as a model program in integrated education of handicapped and non-handicapped children.

Man, 68, fined by court judge

SPRINGFIELD - A 68-year-old Plainfield man was sentenced to 30 days of community service in Municipal Court Monday night.

The man, William Goetz, was found guilty of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Judge Matilco Bohrod also fined Goetz $15 and revoked his license for two years.

Willye Wilburn, 24, of Union, was fined $120 on violations of careless driving and driving an unregistered vehicle.

Bernard Jones, 30, of Somerville, was fined $815 when he pleaded guilty to driving while his license was suspended. Jones also received an additional six-month suspension.

Eugene Holden, 22, of Orange, pleaded guilty to having an open container of alcohol in a motor vehicle. He was fined $215.

Emilio Ramirez, 37, of Newark, pleaded guilty to having an unexpired license of alcohol in his car. He was fined $80 and received a six-month license revocation.

'84 summer program will provide 102 jobs

There are 102 jobs available for eligible youths this summer through the Summer Youth Employment Program. According to Frank DeStefano of the Union Township Community Action Organization, the jobs are open to youths residing in Union, Springfield, Kenilworth, Hillside, Clark, and Winfield Park whose families fall under specific income guidelines.

Eighteen jobs are available for young adults from ages 16 to 21 who have dropped out of school. These students are trained in the hope that they can be placed in regular jobs at the end of the summer, DeStefano said.

Out-of-school students will work from June 28 to Aug. 31. They have a 40-hour work week and receive $4 per hour. The remaining 84 jobs are for those students who are going to school and are between the ages of 14 and 21. However, DeStefano noted that fewer jobs are available for the younger students. Priority is given to those who are at least 16 years old, he said.

Students who can work a maximum of 25 hours per week, will receive $3.30 per hour.

Most of the jobs will be in Union. The types of jobs usually available include hospital work, clerical and maintenance work for municipalities, and some county jobs.

Other programs offered by the center include the Targeted Job Tax Credit Program, in which businesses who hire young adults receive a tax credit for 1984 of 85 percent of the salary they pay them up to $3,000.

There is also a program for non-profit agencies who receive summer help but cannot afford to pay the students.

A JOB WELL DONE—The Alper Civic Association recently presented its 1984 Community Service Awards to three township residents. The honorees are from left, Harry Weinerman of the Springfield Recreation Department, Beck Seal, Senior Citizens coordinator; and former Mayor William Cleri, a member of the Springfield Township Committee. Behind the honorees are the association's standard standard-bearer, Michael Alper. Union County Freeholders Walter Boright and Mayor Phillip Feinstein. The award is given by the association to individuals who by their efforts have contributed to the growth and well-being of the community.

Springfield police taking aim at town's BB-gun toting teens

SPRINGFIELD - After a month during which several of the vulnerable spots are the neck, the temple, face and eyes. "They can kill a rabbit or squirrel at a distance of 200 feet," Kisch said, "that's pretty powerful."

Kisch also said that a juvenile caught with a BB-gun on school grounds is committing a second-degree felony.

SPRINGFIELD - Four persons in a vehicle on Route 24 were arrested Sunday morning, three of whom Springfield police said are members of the Pagans Motorcycle Club.

Steven Soderling, 23, and William Colletta, 24, both of Short Hills, Deborah Reed, 22, of Roselle Park, and Joseph Zeghl, 25, of Brooklyn, N.Y., were all charged with weapons and narcotics violations by Patrolmen Ivan Shapov and John L. Sweeney. Soderling was also charged with resisting arrest.

Police said the passengers were in possession of assorted car, ring and hunting knives, billy clubs, drugs, and narcotics paraphernalia and identified the three men as suspected gang members.

A break-in was discovered at the Springfield Board of Education office in the Florence Gaudinier School about 1:30 a.m. Monday. Police said the intruders broke a window and disrupted the office. A telephone was also thrown out the window.

A Newark man was injured in an head-on collision on South Springfield Avenue about 1 a.m. Saturday. George Leonard, 67, was transported by the Springfield Rescue Squad to Overlook Hospital, Summit, where he was treated and discharged a short time later.

Police said this vehicle was struck by Joseph Gull, 45, of Middletown, who was issued a summons for driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Joseph Lenhart, 61, of Union, was charged with driving while intoxicated about 1 a.m. Sunday on Route 22.

SPD tape sent to prosecutor

SPRINGFIELD - An audio tape of incoming and outgoing calls to the Springfield Police Department has been forwarded to the Union County Prosecutor's office for a possible investigation.

According to Mayor Phillip Feinstein, in late April, an anonymous caller suggested he should listen to the police tape.

Feinstein said that he and other township committee members heard the tape with a superior police officer present, and then decided it should be forwarded to the prosecutor.

The mayor and other township officials declined to elaborate about the contents of the tape.

Four nabbed on drug and weapons charges

SPRINGFIELD - Township resident Irving Starr, a violinist, will play as a member of the Metropolitan V Orchestra during its spring concert Sunday at 3 p.m. at the YM-YWHA of Metropolitan New Jersey, West Orange.

More information is from the Y at 738-2200.

Chesley earns list

SPRINGFIELD - William J. Chesley of Springfield was named to the dean's list at Skidmore College, N.Y., for the fall term. Chesley is a pre-law student. He is also a broadcaster for the college radio station.

N.J. Network gets big boost from local firm

SPRINGFIELD - Volunteers from Keyes Martin Advertising in Springfield made a house call to the Kenilworth, N.J. office of the New Jersey Network, during what one NJN employee called a "fantastic" fund-raising campaign.

The volunteers called on viewers pleading contributions toward the acquisition and production of programming. NJN's fund-raising goal was $100,000, which it reported was 90 percent realized.

"We at Keyes Martin really support and enjoy the type of programming we find here," commented Executive Vice President John Carlinio. "This is our third volunteer effort recently, and we're quite caught up in the momentum." The firm was recently involved in a March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon.

Art Director Marvin Skalkin said that he had an added bonus in the best volunteerism. "I wanted to be seen on TV - so that's how they got me here!"

Weiss ruling won't be appealed bearings the unfortunate divisiveness which seems to have developed in Springfield because of the events giving rise to this case sometimes surfaced. It is hoped that the parties will strive to submerge those considerations and join with each other in moving Springfield forward with regard to the provision of the best possible system of public education that can be obtained for the deserving students in the district," Weiss wrote to sell the school board other than an underlying educational basis.

A number of residents testified to comments they heard from majority board members during summer meetings of 1983. Allison Horowitz stated that during a conversation with board member Joseph Pepe, he said to her, "You tried to do it in and now we are going to do it to you."

In response Weiss wrote, "In the heat of the moment persons sometimes say and do things that they do not mean and may later regret."

Judge Weiss based 11 of his 22 findings of fact on the Rissetto Report. The board hired Professor Henry J. Rissetto of Columbia University, during the 1980-81 school year, to conduct a study of the school faculty needs.

His report concluded that the Walton School could be "withdrawn from service," because of the projected decline in enrollment in the local and regional district. A school population study by William W. Ramsey, a consultant, was also used as evidence by the respondent.

"I cannot say that the petitioners demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the board's decision to withdraw the school by way of a sale would so hamper the board's flexibility as to rise to a level sufficient to justify a determination that the proposed sale be interdicted. Whether future growth and/or program needs will be unduly limited because of the loss of flexibility through sale of the school is a subject of pure conjecture only. For the present, and for the next few years at least, the enrollment in Springfield will even continue to decline," Weiss said.

"I cannot and will not substitute my own independent judgment for that of the board. We petitioners alone should not necessarily decide an issue such as the one at hand, they do play a major role. In this case, in particular, they are glaringly against the petitioner's position. The thrust of Racipoli stated that he did not know what the property would be used for, according to the transcript of the meeting. However, the subdivision allows for the school to be located and the grounds divided into approximately 14 individual lots.

Also alleged in the complaint is that the school board did not express consent for Greensprings to apply for the subdivision, which Exarso said is another prerequisite for obtaining a subdivision.

Warren Kaps, attorney for the Springfield Board of Education, reported last week that the school board was contacted by Greensprings to turn over deeds so that the subdivision granted by the Planning Board could be carried out.

Student takes to airwaves for Anderson

SPRINGFIELD - A township resident is sending his talents over the airwaves.

Art Leak of Meekes Street, Springfield, has been chosen to be the new director for WRWN radio at Anderson College for the 1984-85 school year. As a student manager, Leak will gather local and campus news, coordinate the news crew and oversee the international and national Associated Press news releases.

A senior, Leak is a graduate of Pinebrook Junior College and is a member of the Black Student Union and the Adelpheis men's club.

to be done about what's right for the town and the children. It seems ludicrous to me that we stay up here and fight with each other over the payment of a bill. If the bills in order, it will be paid, if it isn't, it will be adjusted."

The board voted 5-2 with one abstention to have Giblin's bill reviewed. A special closed meeting will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. to discuss legal strategy for the proceedings in Superior Court.

Board member Lee Eisen introduced a motion to remove any extraneous claims against the board that are pending in Superior Court. The motion was tabled since Kaps said he needed more time to review the case.

A special closed meeting will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. to discuss legal strategy for the proceedings in Superior Court.

A number of residents commented on the board's actions during the meeting. Joanne Philippone, Hillside Avenue, said in regard to the discussion of Giblin's bill, "I am appalled at the lack of professionalism on the board of education. An investigation of Giblin's bill will not hurt anyone. If it is in order, it will be paid. If there is a mistake, an adjustment can be made."

Sidney Schwartz stated, "This is the same divisiveness I've ever seen show of war. There are too many egos getting in the way of education."

In another issue, resident Dale Gordon pressed "the constipation of parents of pre-school children" about the proposal to change the birthday cut-off date for kindergarten registration from August 1, back to Sept. 1.

Gordon said that she had not spoken to one parent who favored the change.

Dr. Fred Baruchin, superintendent, said that a change could only be accomplished by the board of education through a policy change and that parents views would be included in discussion. "We are only in the very preliminary stages of the study."

Monaco added, "The judge has kindergarten graduation having it in the afternoon.

Another mother added, "We're all concerned about drinking and driving, and having graduation on a Friday, you have given the kids an excellent opportunity to have a party weekend."

The parents all said they were upset to learn that the board voted on the date when the survey cards did not mention individual department responses.

The board approved the attendance of two students at the National State Business Leaders of America Conference in Atlanta, Ga., from June 30 to July 6. The two students will represent the state in the national competition.

A teacher workshop will be held at the Brenarley High School Saturday to acquaint teachers with new materials that will be used for teaching an S.A.T. elective preparation course during the 1984-85 school year.

The course will be offered during the school day at Brenarley, and before school in the other three high schools.

The firm of Johnstone, Skok, Loughlin and Lane was re-appointed to serve as the board's legal counsel for the 1984-85 school year.

The board reserved vote on the approval of transportation contracts on a suggestion from board member Harold Luchman. Donaldson said he could see no reason for the contractors to seek a 10 percent increase when labor and fuel costs underwent no substantial increases in the past year.

Watch the clock

We feel compelled once again to admonish the Springfield Board of Education on its conduct at board meetings, and specifically its performance of May 9.

A two-page agenda consisting of six proposed motions was planned for the meeting. However, an hour-long private session, two "five-minute" recesses that each lasted 20 minutes and drawn-out and inappropriate comments stretched the meeting to well past midnight.

When a lengthy discussion is anticipated at the majority of municipal meetings, an 11 p.m. curfew is designated at the start of the meeting. This shows consideration for residents who like to attend public sessions, but who also have to employ baby-sitters for the evening. Most people can also use a full night's sleep before a workday.

Springfield board meetings don't usually get to the meat of their agenda until about 11 p.m. This is not to say that a public board with serious issues on hand should rush through its business, but a little organization would make the time at hand much more productive.

For some hard-to-understand reason, the Springfield school board members seem to enjoy their extended meetings. Maybe it's the coffee they have access to on breaks. They even laugh amongst themselves when one board member gets in a particularly witty retort.

Well that's fine, board members, but save the chit-chat for your own time. The public's business should be conducted in an efficient and professional manner.

Flickering light

The Olympic torch has begun its cross-country journey to Los Angeles, but it is not burning as bright as when it was ignited in Athens last week.

The announcement by the Soviets that their athletes will not compete in Los Angeles this summer has diminished the flame, but not snuffed it out. The Games will take place in 1984 just as they did in Moscow in 1980 after the U.S.-led boycott by 53 nations. Much less certain, however, is the future of the Olympics in the long term.

Opinions on the future of the Games have ranged from holding them at a neutral site to squelch nationalistic squabbling - Athens has been suggested - to letting them die out entirely.

We hope they don't. The Olympics, above all, should belong to the athletes. The ideals of peaceful competition among athletes from all over are too great to be allowed to die.

The problem isn't the Olympics. It is nations. The Olympic torch is a tiny flicker in the darkness of the current state of world affairs. We must keep it aglow so it may eventually light the way toward peace.

Greenhouse effect: a global warming trend

It's been that way with the energy situation, the loss of productive agricultural land, and recently with predictions of a rising sea level because of what has been dubbed the "greenhouse effect."

Better off

President Reagan's economic recovery plan, set in motion less than four years ago, rolls on with incredible strength. The last two years of the Carter/Mondale Administration, inflation was 13.3 percent and 12.4 percent respectively. The prices of necessities which reflect inflation - food, housing, energy, and medical care - dropped from a high of 37.4 percent in 1979, to 3.4 percent in 1982.

'Appalled'

I attended the conference meeting of the Board of Education on May 2, 1984, and was appalled at the continued bad behavior of some of the present minority board members. Their actions made it very difficult for the board to complete the business they should be doing, thus creating a place of cooperation.

Dental Dialogue
EXPLORER AIDS DISCOVERY
Q. Why does my dentist use that metal pick all the time? It gives me the creeps.
A. The "metal pick" is a very essential instrument. When examining your teeth a dentist must make use of all his senses. This instrument, known as a dental explorer, is used to "feel" for hidden dental problems not always visible to the naked eye. A good example is simple decay which like an iceberg is mostly hidden beneath the surface. Remember the Titanic, and allow your dentist to explore for all the possible dental dangers.

Mochary proposes alternative to Bradley plan for tax reform

Mary V. Mochary, mayor of Montclair and candidate for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate, has called for the adoption of the "Fair and Simple Tax" (F.A.S.T.), known in New Jersey as the Kemp-Mochary plan, as an alternative to the Bradley-Gephardt proposal put forth by Sen. Bill Bradley.

"Besides simplifying the tax code, the leading characteristics of the Kemp-Mochary plan are that it is much fairer for families and small businesses than either current law or Bradley-Gephardt," Mochary said.

"Our plan is more equitable and simpler than the most similar congressional tax reform proposal," the Bradley-Gephardt bill," Mochary continued. "While both broaden the tax base, reduce tax rates, and avoid significant changes in the tax burden, the F.A.S.T. plan lowers the top rate further than Bradley-Gephardt. It's much simpler for individual taxpayers, replacing three graduated steps with a single rate and has more generous breaks for the poor. We keep indexing for fairness so that the federal government continues to have an inflation-adjusted tax rate."

Additional benefits of F.A.S.T. are that it keeps indexing to prevent automatic tax increases from inflation. Capital gains are indexed for the first time, stopping the Treasury from taxing gains due just to inflation from the sale of assets like homes and stocks.

"Not the least of this tax code's advantages is its single-page form. It's easier to figure than the current Form 1040A short form. When people understand how their taxes are calculated, compliance improves and taxpayers' confidence in the system rises. This should result in additional tax revenues being collected, and in reducing IRS time and expense spent in analyzing returns and investigating taxpayers," Mochary said.

"On the business side, F.A.S.T. eliminates most of the tax credits and preferences in use today. The top corporate tax rate is cut to 30 percent from 46 percent. Small businesses are only subject to a 15 percent rate up to $50,000, and they are able to deduct expenses up to $10,000 of business investment annually. The business capital gains tax is reduced from 28 percent to 20 percent. This plan retains the percent (1981) depreciation schedules and the foreign income tax credit," she said.

"Congressman Kemp and I are convinced that this proposal is an enormous improvement over the current unfair and incentive-discouraging tax code."

Legislative study urged

Assemblyman Chuck Hardwick (R-21st District) and three of his current colleagues want the state Legislature improved, and another cosponsor of the measure, Assemblyman Edward Gill (R-21st District), called the commission proposal a "step in the right direction."

"People are fed up with the ineffectiveness of the future legislative process," said Hardwick, sponsor of the measure (ACR-111) to create the study commission. "New Jersey has the highest rates in the nation, a crisis in education, soaring costs of government, and an array of problems we can't seem to solve," he said.

"Only a thorough examination of the present legislative process will bring us toward the fundamental reforms we need," said Assemblyman Edward Gill (R-21st District), a cosponsor of the measure. "The increasing complexity of the issues facing the Legislature requires a complete review of the legislative process, which has grown out of step with our modern society."

Hardwick noted that it holds hearings for input has been more than a decade since a similar commission was created, involve the people of New Jersey in this so legislators can be told how best to represent them."

Another cosponsor of the measure is Assemblyman Richard Zimmer (R-Hunterdon/Morris).

This exclusion is phased out gradually above about $40,000, disappearing at about $100,000.

"Additional benefits of F.A.S.T. are that it keeps indexing to prevent automatic tax increases from inflation. Capital gains are indexed for the first time, stopping the Treasury from taxing gains due just to inflation from the sale of assets like homes and stocks.

"Not the least of this tax code's advantages is its single-page form. It's easier to figure than the current Form 1040A short form. When people understand how their taxes are calculated, compliance improves and taxpayers' confidence in the system rises. This should result in additional tax revenues being collected, and in reducing IRS time and expense spent in analyzing returns and investigating taxpayers," Mochary said.

"On the business side, F.A.S.T. eliminates most of the tax credits and preferences in use today. The top corporate tax rate is cut to 30 percent from 46 percent. Small businesses are only subject to a 15 percent rate up to $50,000, and they are able to deduct expenses up to $10,000 of business investment annually. The business capital gains tax is reduced from 28 percent to 20 percent. This plan retains the percent (1981) depreciation schedules and the foreign income tax credit," she said.

"Congressman Kemp and I are convinced that this proposal is an enormous improvement over the current unfair and incentive-discouraging tax code."

Morris raps Bradley and Mochary on ERA

Robert Morris, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, has charged Sen. Bradley's bill to toughen laws governing child support payments would be unconstitutional if the senator succeeds in his effort to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

"If the ERA should be ratified," Morris said, "the traditional relationship of the father of the family being responsible for child support would become unconstitutional. Under the ERA, the obligation would shift from him and become equally the responsibility of the wife or mother. And child custody laws now based on the father's responsibility, would become unconstitutional. This is but one other disadvantage flowing to women if the unisex amendment should be ratified."

"The Supreme Court has stretched the 14th Amendment so liberally that it now forbids an unconstitutional, unisex amendment between the sexes. The ERA would force the court to prohibit reasonable discrimination between the sexes. God and nature have fashioned differences between man and women which self themselves with respect to child-bearing, child-rearing, and homemaking and they should not be eliminated by wooden edict," he said.

"Some other disadvantages to women from the ratification of the ERA include: it would impose on the traditional homemaker-the wife-the burden of paying for household expenses equally with the husband. It would take away from them the

Crimestoppers off to ringing start

By ADAM SOMMERS
 Crimestoppers is still in its infancy. But, according to Clifford Peake, president of the Union County Chamber of Commerce, the phones are already ringing with people eager to do just what the name of the group implies—stop crime.

Crimestoppers is a county-wide organization that will pay from $25 to $500 to people who provide information leading to the arrest and conviction of criminals, with the amount of the reward depending on the circumstances. It establishes a 24-hour hotline—645-TIPS—for informants to call with information. All information will remain confidential; the persons making the phone calls need not identify themselves.

County Prosecutor John Stamler and Peake have been working for two years on "getting the program off the ground," the county Chamber president said. "The phones are already ringing," he said. "A lot of people aren't even interested in the reward."

He added that the program was made possible largely by financial support from the business community, which has donated money for rewards. "There is already enough money to get the ball rolling, but more is needed," said Peake. He speculated that donations will increase once the organization wins approval for its non-profit, tax-exempt status. Money donated so far is being kept in a bank account overseen by a 10-member board of trustees made up of "concerned citizens," Peake said.

Eyes on the sky: Members of Amateur Astronomers Inc. will head for Topping, Va., to get the best possible view of an eclipse on May 30. In the meantime, authorities are issuing warnings on how to watch the sky spectacular in safety. page 2

When a call comes in, the caller is given an identification number, the information is taken down and the informant is told to call back. The information is then checked out, with the board determining how much of a reward is to be paid. When the informant calls back, he or she is told whether a reward has been approved. If it has, the informant will be able to pick up the cash at the bank, with no questions asked.

Stamler said that once the program gets into full swing, it will publicize, through local police departments, a "crime of the week" of which citizens will be asked to take special note. There will also be a "tip of the week," which Stamler said he hopes to have publicized through the media as a way of calling attention to the Crimestoppers program. With the cooperation of all the citizens, he said, "there could be a noticeable reduction of crime in the county."

Eclipse chase takes astronomers to Topping

Members of Amateur Astronomers, Inc., will be in Topping, Va., at the end of this month. That, they say, is where observers will get the best view of the partial solar eclipse that will occur on May 30.

AAI, the astronomy group based at the Sperry Observatory on Union County College's Cranford campus, has among its members a number of veteran "eclipse chasers" who have viewed numerous partial and total eclipses from various parts of the globe. They are looking forward to the annual eclipse of May 30.

"An annular eclipse," according to Roger Tuthill of Mountaintop, the group's eclipse expert, "occurs when the moon's apparent size is too small to obscure the whole sun at any one time." It occurs rarely enough to make it worthwhile to travel miles to see it, he said.

The amateur astronomers have decided on the Hummel Airport in Topping as the ideal place to view this event. They chose the site after analyzing factors including accessibility, freedom from smoke and haze and wide open spaces. In addition, at this location the duration of the annular phase will be the shortest, with the least amount of the sun visible at the time of mid-eclipse, according to Donald Kruse of West New York, president of AAI.

"From our selected site on the shores of the Rappahannock River," Kruse said, "this eclipse will provide the most spectacular views along the path of annularity, since the solar disc will be more nearly covered there than anywhere else in the country."

The three-hour event will take place during midday on May 30, with the annular phase lasting a mere seven seconds at about 12:45 p.m., Tuthill said.

"This annular eclipse will be one of the most interesting to view, since the moon matches the sun in size so closely that only small pieces of the sun will be visible in a narrow band less than three miles wide at this location," the past president of AAI noted.

Persons located east or west of the path of annularity will see a crescent-shaped sun which will give a unique view, but not as memorable as being directly under the moon's shadow, Tuthill added.

For this reason, it is expected that thousands of viewers with telescopes will converge on the Hummel Airport site, and some schools in the area will be closed so that children will have an opportunity for a life-science lesson, Tuthill reported.

Members of AAI will supply a number of telescopes so that the public may look close-up at the sun, where they can expect to see sun spots and solar flares becoming obscured as the moon moves slowly across the face of the sun. They will also supply free instruction at Hummel Airport describing safe methods of viewing the eclipse as well as how to avoid damage to the eyes while permitting the full spectacular event to be seen.

In the New Jersey area, free information on safely viewing the eclipse may be obtained by calling 201-232-1786 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and merely saying, "Solar Eclipse," Tuthill said.

For New Jersey watchers, the eclipse will begin at 11:21 a.m., when the moon will begin to move in front of the sun. The moon's disk will have covered 93 percent of the sun by 12:52 p.m. — the maximum for this area. The moon will gradually move away from the sun, and the eclipse will end at 2:26 p.m. During the eclipse, the sky will appear to be in early twilight.

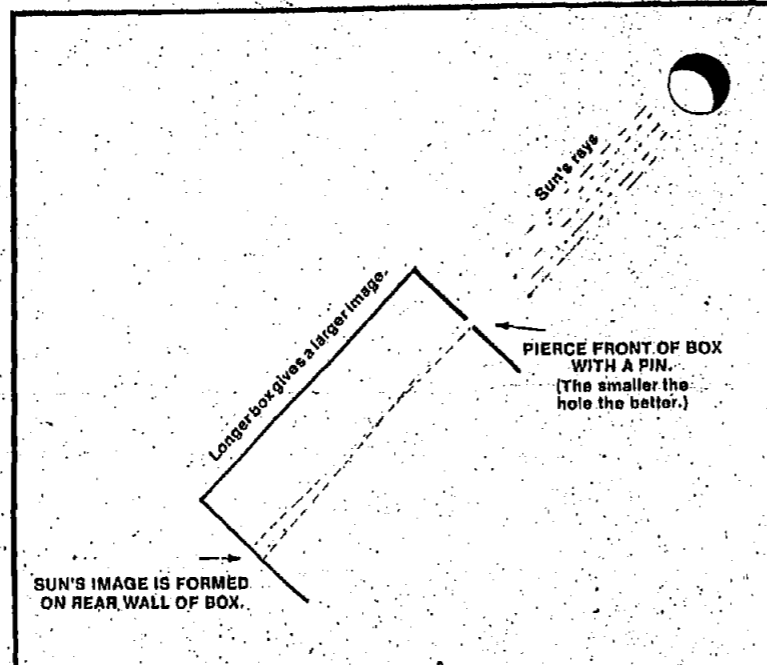

Looking at an eclipse without proper precautions can be dangerous, Richard

D. Peery, planetarium advisor at the New Jersey State Museum, warned this week.

"The sun should never be observed directly with the eye," he said. Telescopes or even binoculars can be used to project the sun's image onto a cardboard screen for indirect observation.

Another simple technique is to pierce one side of a large box with a pin. By pointing the pinhole toward the sun, one can see its projected image on the opposite side of the box, Peery said.

The New Jersey State Museum planetarium has two free information sheets about the eclipse, one discussing the circumstances and ways of observing it and the other explaining how to photograph it. They are available by writing to Eclipse, New Jersey State Museum Planetarium, 205 West State St., CN 630, Trenton 08625. Those interested should specify which sheet they want.

Matejic, specialist in family resource management, Cook College.

On June 7, "A Will of Your Own" will be presented by John Wood Goldsack of King, King & Goldsack, attorneys.

The program for June 14 will be "Insurance for the Over 50-Age Group," presented by Robert J. Pekarsky of Provident Mutual, and "Social Security for People Over 50," presented by Bob Vitolo, field representative of the Social Security Administration.

Legion, Auxiliary schedule convention

Plans are being completed for the annual convention of the Union County American Legion and Auxiliary, according to County Commander Joseph Rybak. He announced that Clark Post and Unit 328 will be the host.

The convention, to be held May 31, June 1 and June 2, will open with the annual flag retirement ceremony. Rybak said this ceremony provides for the proper disposal of American flags that are in such condition that they are no longer fitting emblems for display.

The public is requested to bring worn or outdated flags to local American Legion Posts for proper disposal, Rybak said. He also invited the general public to attend the county flag retirement ceremony.

The program will be held on the grounds of Clark American Legion Post 328, Westfield and Liberty Avenues, Clark, at 7 p.m., May 31.

Participating in the ceremony will be Rybak; Vice Commanders John Stanier of Connecticut Farms Post 35 of Union, Gordon E. Fugee of Roselle Park Post 60 and Joseph Gettys of Johnson-Jeter Post 219 of Plainfield; and James Roberts, county sergeant-at-arms, of James E. Mackle Post 498, Rahway.

Guest speaker for the program will be Past State Commander Frank Ricciardi. Also appearing on the rostrum will be Union County Auxiliary President Ruth Simmons, National Executive Committee member Warren E. Davies and Department Executive Committeeman Douglas E. Barrow. The invocation will be given by County Legion Chaplain Laura Sharpe and Clark Mayor B. Yurasavage. A marching and playing exhibition will be given by the Clark High School Band and the Cranford Patriots Drum and Bugle Corps.

Simmons said that plans have been completed for the Auxiliary-convention session to be held Friday, June 1, at the Valley Road School, Clark. Plans are now being formulated for the annual dinner-dance honoring her and Rybak at the Elks Club, Union, June 2.

Poster contest open to children

Area youngsters, seven and under, have been invited to participate in a poster contest for National Better Speech and Hearing Month, which is being observed in May.

Lynn Angevine, clinical audiologist at Alexian Brothers Hospital, Elizabeth, said announcements have gone out to all area schools to announce the competition. Prizes have been donated by local merchants.

No limits have been placed on the size of the posters or media used, Angevine said. The poster must depict a speech or hearing theme. Entries must be submitted to the Audiology Department at the hospital by May 21. Judging will take place on May 24 and entries will be displayed in the hospital.

The competition, according to Angevine, endeavors to heighten the public's awareness of the prevalence of communication problems and the professional services available for identification and remediation.

Communication disorders constitute this nation's number one handicapping disability, she explained. An estimated 22 million Americans have some form of speech, language and/or hearing impairment which may seriously limit their productiveness in society.

The poster contest, she pointed out, is geared to young people because one American out of 20 exhibits of five and 21. Three million school age children have some degree of hearing impairment. Further information about the contest or the services of the Alexian Brothers Hospital Audiology Department may be obtained by calling 351-9000.

Two walking tours slated in New York

The Jewish Community Center of Central New Jersey at Green Lane, in conjunction with the 82nd St. YM-YWHA in New York City, will offer two walking tours.

The first, "Jewish Williamsburg," will take place on Sunday, June 3, to the South Street Seaport Museum/Rouse Complex. Further information is available from Jean Zimmer at 289-8112.

DR. DEREK N. NUNNEY, now president of Joliet, Ill., Junior College, has been named president of Union County College effective July 1. A graduate of the University of British Columbia, Canada, with a master's degree and doctorate from the University of California at Los Angeles, he was formerly with the U.S. Office of Education in Washington, D.C., and Oakland, Mich., Community College. He succeeds the late Dr. Saul Orkin at UCC.

Bell taxes top $6.03 million

New Jersey Bell paid $6,031,430 in real estate and personal property taxes in Union County last year, according to Bill McKinlay, the company's local community relations manager.

The company also is one of the state's largest taxpayers, said McKinlay, having paid more than $157 million in taxes throughout New Jersey in 1983. The total includes some $48.8 million in franchise and gross receipts taxes paid directly to the state.

"In many of the communities we serve, we are the single largest taxpayer," McKinlay said.

Taxes paid by New Jersey Bell municipalities in Union County include: Kenilworth, $33,678; Linden, $246,240; Mountaintop, $35,400; Roselle, $258,732; Roselle Park, $43,384; Springfield, $94,524; and Union, $601,703.

Senior Center

Elderhostel, the national program for senior citizens that combines educational and cultural offerings with the concept of "hosteling" on a university campus, will take place at Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken this summer for the fourth consecutive year.

Participants can enjoy a variety of courses and cultural activities while living at Stevens or commuting to the campus. Stevens is making special provisions this year to accommodate larger numbers of commuters living in nearby communities who wish to participate in the courses and cultural features offered.

The program at Stevens runs from July 8 to 14. Hostellers will have courses in such subjects as the New York cultural scene, the American presidency, popular astronomy, the literary hero in the 20th century, and problems of the criminal justice system. There is no formal educational requirement; not even a high school diploma is necessary.

Hosteling, the idea of living simply and economically in a dormitory-like environment while touring, began with youth hostels in Europe. The Elderhostel program has expanded the concept to accommodate senior citizens interested in an intellectually stimulating environment, on a limited budget. More than 700 educational institutions in the United States and abroad participate in the Elderhostel program.

Participants must be 60 years of age or older. The resident program fee for July 8-14 is $190, which includes the courses, lodging on campus, meals in the Stevens dining hall, as well as course related tour guidance and cultural and social offerings. The cost for commuters, covering courses and all other activities except for lodging and meals, is $75.

All participants will have the run of the entire campus, including the swimming pool, tennis courts, gym, lightfield, library, and lounges, on the same basis as regular campus residents. Commuters will be able to use the same campus facilities, in addition to attending classes. In an effort to accommodate its neighbors, Stevens is allocating many more places this year for commuting participants than it has in the past.

The Elderhostel program is under the direction of Dr. Norman J. Horing, professor of physics and engineering physics at Stevens. Those wishing to register for the resident program can contact Elderhostel, Inc., 160 Boylston St., Boston, Mass. 02116 or telephone (617) 426-9856. Commuters can contact Leonard Frisco, business manager, Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, 07030 or telephone 426-5126.

The courses to be offered are:

SESSION A
 New York, New York: The Culture Scene—A discussion guide to today's world of culture and the arts in Manhattan, Broadway and off-Broadway theaters; films; concerts; dance; museums; art exhibitions; antique and auction galleries; fashion centers; shopping; architectural history; ethnic neighborhoods.

American Presidents: Franklin D. Roosevelt to Ronald Reagan—An analysis of presidential politics and personalities from Franklin D. Roosevelt to Ronald Reagan, 1932-1965.

SESSION B
 Astronomy for the Masses—Non-technical survey of the historical development and current status of astronomy (solar system, stars and galaxies, quasars, pulsars, and black holes). Live telescope observations and slide shows of astronomical events.

SESSION C
 New York, New York: The Culture Scene.

The Role of the Hero in the 20th Century—A brief look at the ancient Greek and Medieval heroes will serve as the basis of comparison with the modern-day literary and cultural hero/anti-hero.

Problems in the Administration of Criminal Justice—An overview of the criminal justice system, focusing on such problems as police discretion, corruption, violence, the processing of offenders, the courts, plea-bargaining, the functions of imprisonment, and alternatives to incarceration.

Disc 'n' Data

BY MILT HAMMER
Pick Of The LPs, "Hardchoir" (Backstreet Records)
Hardchoir formed in 1980 when drummer Pat Marochok and bassist Steve Hess began working on the concept of a three-piece band that would sound more like 10 pieces, with heavy emphasis on vocals. The sound truly cohered when Mark Easterling, a lead guitarist who had just moved to Los Angeles, joined the band.
They then played a gig at Madam Wong's with Ronin, a group, led by the legendary Los Angeles guitarist Waddy Wachtel.
"I went up to Waddy and asked him if he'd hang around and listen to us," Pat relates, "and he was really impressed—enough to say, 'I'd really like to do something with you.' Since we met Waddy everything has fallen into place."
Mark picks up the story, "Waddy gave us a 4-track, and we rehearsed in Pat's garage constantly. By the time we went in to record, we were really tight. We all had day jobs, so we'd get to Pat's around 8 p.m. We could only play in the garage until about 10 because of the neighbors. In that two hours, we crammed to get it all together, four or five times a week and on weekends."
Wachtel then produced Hardchoir's demo and shopped it around town with no initial success. Then he accidentally locked himself out of his car following a soundcheck for a Linda Ronstadt concert at the Universal Amphitheater. When he went upstairs to Backstreet's offices to use their telephone (to call Triple-A), Waddy took advantage of the circumstance and played the demo for those in the office. Halfway through the second song, a record deal was sealed with a handshake.

The most immediately impressive element of "Hardchoir" is its three-vocal attack and the amount of sound-textures created with only three instruments. "We always had the idea of making a lot of sound with less people," states Pat. "This is the first trio that I've ever played in," adds Mark, "and I've found that with Pat and Steve I have more expression. I'm free to do almost anything I want to on guitar. A lot of people think that three instruments would be limited as far as sound, but we tend to use the vocals as another instrument. A lot of times when I'm playing a lead, the other guys are singing, doing some kind of vocal thing, which is kind of unique. It really adds a lot. I was really shocked when they explained that concept to me."
"Most of the stuff on the album is just three pieces," Pat points out. "Some of Steve's solos were overdubbed. But on some cuts, he soloed live and left out the rhythm guitar, like it would be on stage. "Fooling You" is completely live, for example."
The trio's vocal harmonies are, in Pat's words, "definitely identifiable. Not many three-piece bands can sing like us. When Mark joined Steve and me, his voice fit immediately, as did his ideas, his writing, his way of playing. He was headed in the same direction as us."

Steve agrees, "It was just a freak coincidence that Mark's voice blended with ours so well."
The boys' distinctive vocal blend has already landed them one prestigious recording session. They are featured on background vocals on three songs from Ringo Starr's upcoming album which was produced by Joe Walsh. (This in fact, was their first official recording session as a group.)
One listen to "Hardchoir's" debut album reveals why Wachtel agreed to produce them and why Peter Asher Management took them on as clients. Composed entirely of original tunes, the group's debut LP displays a remarkable degree of maturity and an uncanny knack for coming up with hook-filled melodic rock 'n' roll—ranging in mood from the new wave tinged "Shella" (written by Mark) to the delicate ballad, "Girl I Need You" (penning by Pat), to heavy rockers like Pat's "Fallout Shelter" and "All Right" (a product of his association with songwriting partner Pat Robinson). In Wachtel's words, "If you had the vocal harmonies of the Eagles and the Beach Boys combined with more of a gut-level rock trio, you'd have a rough idea of how great these guys are."
