"Quality Is Remembered After Price Is Long Forgotten." This is a simple statement that is so important in today's world. How many times in your life do you buy a "cheap" item and are not happy with it weeks later? How many times do you have to get just what you wanted because they were "out of stock" at the store?

Senior Center

Experts on the needs and concerns of older persons will provide programs of special interest during the week-long Summer Institute for Retired Persons taking place at Montclair State College June 24 through 29.

In addition to the daily afternoon programs, participants will be able to choose from more than 20 college classes in a variety of subjects including art, history, religion, philosophy and literature. All facilities of the college will be available to participants, who will be housed in Montclair State's newest dormitory, Blanton Hall.

On June 25, Dr. Ricard Taubald of Montclair State's Center for Continuing Education will discuss "Sandwich Generation." Later that afternoon, Dr. Rob Gilbert and Esther Lampert of the college's Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Leisure Studies will explain "Physical Fitness." Finally, that evening, Michael Bennett of the Social Security Administration will outline the latest developments in Social Security.

Dr. Robert Fruchtbaum will begin the programs for June 26 with his lecture entitled "You Are Your Best Doctor." He is connected with Community Mental Health Services in Bloomfield, Belleville, Glen Ridge and Nutley, and specializes in health issues of older persons. The afternoon events will continue with Sidney Austin's and Angela Soucy's presentation of Tai-Chi-Chuan, the Chinese exercise system. Austin and Soucy will be presented under the auspices of the Essex County Department of Parks and Recreation. In the evening, participants are invited to attend the opening night performance of "Amadeus," a Summerfun Theater production on campus.

A library tour and reception at Sprague Library will begin the afternoon activities on June 27. Blanche W. Haller, director of the Montclair State's Library, will conduct the tour. Austin and Soucy will again present Tai-Chi-Chuan, and in the evening Barbershop Chorus On The Green, an ensemble from Bloomfield, will perform.

On June 28, "Human Sexuality" will be discussed by Dr. John Redd, a professor in the Department of Health Professions at Montclair State. Dr. Robert Williams will ask "How're We Doing?" Later in the afternoon and following dinner, Martin Littman of Millburn will conduct "Dancing — Line, Folk, Square." Littman is a former principal of schools in Newark and South Orange, and he has developed a group dancing program for organizations throughout the Metropolitan area.

The institute will conclude on June 29, when participants will be encouraged to share their experiences of the week and evaluate them.

Because only 50 people can be accommodated, registration will be accepted on a first come basis.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Montclair State College, Summer Institute for Retired Persons, 860 Valley Road, Upper Montclair 07043, 893-4355.

MOTORING TO THE MUSIC

The Union County Department of Parks and Recreation is offering free transportation to and from the 1984 Summer Arts Festival concerts in Echo Lake Park, Mountainside, for eligible county seniors and handicapped citizens.

The Union County Para-Transit Unit will supply the vehicles and the Union Township Callman's Emergency Unit I will provide volunteer drivers. Seating capacity in the vans is 10 people in seats and two in wheelchairs.

SUMMER DAY PROGRAM

The 1984 Senior Summer Day Program sponsored by the Jewish Community Center of Central New Jersey will take place in the Jewish Community Center, Martine Building, 1391 Martine Ave., Scotch Plains.

Esther Singer, director of senior programs at the Jewish Community Center, Martine Building, said, "This should be another fun and exciting summer for everyone involved with the program. We have scheduled six weeks of activities from June 26 to Aug. 2, three days a week (Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday)." The program includes lunch, door-to-door transportation, six day trips and craft projects.

Early sign-up is suggested due to limited registration. Further information is available from Esther Singer, 888-3800.

RECEIVES AWARD

Evelyn Frank, president of the Senior Citizens Council of Union County, was among senior citizens who received the Governor's Award at a luncheon held recently in Princeton.

A plaque commending her as the county's outstanding senior citizen was presented to her by Gov. Thomas Kean.

Frank, a resident of Union, was nominated for the award by Peter Shields, director of the Union County Division on Aging.

Bicycling handbook issued by state DOT

The New Jersey Department of Transportation has issued a bicycle information handbook designed for anyone who uses a bicycle, whether for recreation or daily commuting to and from work or school.

The booklet lists bicycling publications and organizations; bicycle routes; sources for county maps and bicycling literature; and tips on using bikes for touring and commuting.

The free publication can be obtained by writing William Feldman, bicycle/pedestrian advocate, DOT, Room 156, 1035 Parkway Avenue, Trenton 08625.

H.O.P.E. chapter organized in Union County

Questions and requests for services from those who have lost a friend or loved one are often asked at the Union County surrogate's office, the office that handles wills and estates for county residents.

To answer the needs of the public, a chapter of H.O.P.E. (Helping Other People Evolve) has been established in Union County, according to Ann Conti, Union County surrogate. The emotional support and referral agency already exists in Mercer, Camden and Cape May Counties, and bi-monthly seminars are now being planned in Union County.

"Our program here in Union County is unique because we attempt to respond to citizen needs on three levels," Conti said. She explained that setting up lectures and seminars offering guidance in the emotional aspects of grief, financial matters and related topics would be followed by "networking," to link grieving persons to others who have had similar experiences through H.O.P.E. The third aspect would be a referral system of existing support groups and agencies in Union County that can assist with day-to-day problems and questions.

Conti learned about H.O.P.E. by visiting other counties, then attending a seminar of professionals who deal with surviving friends and relatives, such as religious leaders, insurance companies, senior citizen groups and hospitals.

"As a result, Union County established an Advisory Board to H.O.P.E. to bring the best aspects of the program here," Conti said. Members of the board include: the Rev. Edward Reischmann, Evelyn Frank, Rabbi Jacob Rubenstein, Rose Merletti, Margaret Costello and Peter M. Shields, director of the Union County Division on Aging of the Department of Human Resources.

In April, $500 was raised at a testimonial dinner given by the Ann Conti Surrogate Committee and donated to the Union County Chapter of H.O.P.E.

A Project H.O.P.E. seminar is being planned for 2:30 p.m. today at the Senior Citizen Housing Complex, Boynton Avenue, Westfield.

Harris to direct new Special Services Bureau

Specialized law enforcement techniques handled by the Union County sheriff's office have been combined into a new Special Services Bureau, according to Ralph Froehlich, Union County sheriff.

The bureau, which will be under the direction of Sgt. Charles Harris, will encompass all aspects of missing persons, fingerprinting, K-9 search and rescue and other "special assignments," Froehlich said.

At the same time, some 20,000 new brochures, designed to enlighten parents to the benefits of having their youngsters fingerprinted as a preventive measure, are being made available to county residents through the bureau.

The free brochure, available by calling or visiting the sheriff's office at the Courthouse Complex in Elizabethtown, details 12 ways to protect one's family from crime and abduction. The Union County sheriff's office, at Harris's suggestion, became one of the first agencies to fingerprint children in the country in January 1983. To date, some 33,000 youngsters in Union County have had their fingerprints taken. In the event a child turns up missing, the parents have the file card in their possession to assist police in locating the child.

There are about 45,000 school age youngsters registered in Union County and Froehlich said all are expected to be fingerprinted by the end of this school year.

"In September, we will start all over again with those entering kindergarten," Froehlich said. "Now that the bulk of the children have been printed, it will be much simpler to print every new class entering the school system, much like the manner in which children receive inoculations."

Layout and design of the brochure, entitled "Protect Your Children," were donated by students at Kean College in Union and the pamphlet was printed in the Union County Print Shop.

Harris will work with two sheriff's officers in the Special Services Bureau, one of whom is a K-9 handler. Other duties of the bureau will include in-service training of other law enforcement agencies.

Festival applications accepted

Applications are now being accepted from exhibitors who want to display their works at the 11th annual Festival on the Green, to be held in Union on Sept. 22 (rain date Sept. 29).

The outdoor arts, crafts and photography show, held on the grounds of the Municipal Building at Union Center, is sponsored by the Union Township Chamber of Commerce.

Applications, accompanied by a check of $15 to cover the entry fee for artists, craftspeople and photographers and $5 for juniors under the age of 18, must be submitted by July 13. They should be sent to the Union Township Chamber of Commerce, Festival on the Green, 2165 Morris Ave., Union 07083.

In the crafts category, Chamber officials reported, all entries will be screened prior to acceptance.

Notices of acceptance will be mailed to exhibitors by Aug. 15.

Tomatoes will thrive on 'tender, loving care'

Tomatoes aren't too demanding. All they ask is a little love and understanding, and a few basic necessities. Tender loving care can be a hard thing to judge, but the necessities for successful tomato growing are pretty straightforward.

According to the Ortho book, "All About Tomatoes," there are six critical factors involved in growing good tomatoes. Here's a look at those factors and some advice on each:

Water — Water is an obvious necessity, but it can be difficult to judge whether you're giving the plant too much or too little.

With too much water the roots will drown, especially if the soil is too heavy. With too little, tomato production will stop altogether. The key to successful growth is a continuous and uniform supply of water.

If your plants are in shallow, sandy soil, you may need to water as often as twice a week. If the soil is heavy, once a week or less may do the trick.

Regardless of your soil type, there are two things you should do: water at regular intervals, and water deeply and thoroughly each time.

Sporadic watering is often the cause of tomato disease — blossom end rot, for example. Thorough, even waterings, however, encourage the plant to build a deep root base for strength against disease and drought.

Nutrients — Tomatoes can also be fed with fertilizers. Because soil types vary greatly all over the country, it is difficult to give any one prescription for fertilizing.

One factor that remains fairly constant regardless of location, however, is the need of young plants for phosphorus.

When you set out plants, apply phosphorus (P) in one of three ways — mix the fertilizer in with the soil before planting, side-dress the transplants with fertilizer after planting, or water the new plants with a starter solution containing phosphorus.

In addition to applying phosphorus, you may need to alter the soil's chemistry with some amount of potassium (K) and nitrogen (N). The best advice is to read the fertilizer's package for directions.

Check the label for the percentages of each fertilizer (always listed in the order N, P, K) and don't try to out-guess the manufacturer.

Air — Air may be the most important factor in the growth of a tomato plant. If roots don't receive enough air, the plant will wilt. Insufficient air is usually attributable to the heavy clay soil in which a great many tomato plants are grown.

To change the composition of heavy clay soil, add organic material such as peat moss, sawdust, ground bark, compost, or manure. Organic material will open up dense clay soils, improving drainage and allowing air to move throughout more easily.

When making your soil mix, remember that a dab of peat moss here and there won't be any help. To really change the soil's structure, it is necessary to work in the organic matter to a depth of six inches. Your final soil mix should be at least one-third organic matter.

Sunlight — Like almost all plants, tomatoes need good sunlight for good growth. The ideal amount of sunlight for tomatoes is eight continuous hours a day.

When necessary, however, tomatoes can get by on less. Six or seven hours a day sometimes does the trick, as does eight interrupted hours — it really depends on the time of the year and the quality of your sunlight.

A common misunderstanding is that you need direct sunlight in order for fruit to ripen. Not so. At the right temperature, tomatoes will ripen in the shade or even in the dark.

In fact, direct sunlight can often cause sunscald or yellowing of the fruit, so some cover by foliage is beneficial, especially at the height of the summer.

Temperatures — Tomatoes are happy within a fairly wide range of temperatures during the day, but at night the range for a successful fruit set narrows to 55 to 75 degrees.

If temperatures at night drop below 55 degrees, fruit does not set because the blossoms drop off before they can be fertilized.

Blossom drop and a poor fruit setting also occur when temperatures climb above 75 at night. If erratic night temperatures are a problem in your area, you might try some of the temperature-resistant tomato varieties developed by plant breeders.

Protection — Tomatoes are subject to a number of evils, including extreme temperature change, strong winds, hungry birds and animals.

Garden has cash value

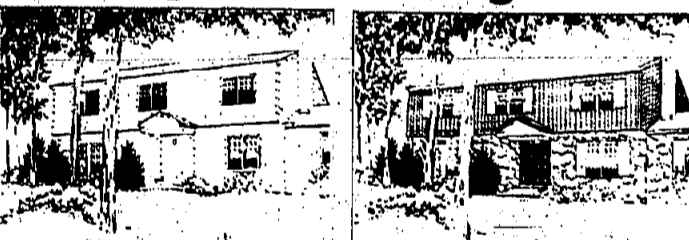

A typical garden planted with the most popular vegetables — tomatoes, beans, onions, cucumbers, radishes, lettuce, carrots, squash, beets and a variety of greens — probably produces an average dollar yield of $14, according to experts at Union Carbide.

They report that the total retail dollar value of gardens planted this summer will come to more than $16 billion.

Give Your Home A Lift!

Variety is the spice of good summer gardens

Good gardeners know that variety adds spice to the garden.

Just as plants of all the same height tend to be boring, the same color, used in very large masses, can be cloying.

Instead, these thoughtful gardeners survey the planting area they have and plan for some artful surprises. They'll go to great lengths to revitalize a landscape — even in a small space — creating unified garden effects with rocks, berms and other topographical features which provide variation in planting possibilities.

But you don't have to go to such lengths to add this drama and surprise to your summer garden. You can do it more simply through an artful choice of summer-flowering plants...and some imaginative staging.

First of all, use shapes to work for you. Vertical — such as the spires of 'Blue Springs' delphinium, 'Rocket' snapdragons, or Salvia farinacea 'Victoria'.

Mounding — such as 'Super Elfin' impatiens, 'Bonanza' marigolds, or 'Prelude' begonias. Trailing or draping — such as 'Magic Carpet' vincas or 'Showtime' verbenas. Edging — such as alyssum or 'Jewel Mix' portulaca.

Use other tricks to vary the landscape, with no basic modifications. Plant hanging baskets and suspend them from porch overhangs or posts. Even put hanging baskets on post tops. Do plant with varieties exuberantly effective in baskets and containers — 'Cascade' petunias, ivy geraniums, lobelia, 'Showstopper' impatiens.

Scatter containers through living areas — on decks, by front doors, on porches, or balconies — any place where color would add zest to the summer. Plant these containers for variety, too.

Lawn tells tale when it's thirsty

Water. Your lawn needs it to stay attractive, healthy and green throughout the growing season. Under ideal conditions, a gentle rainfall every few days would provide the necessary moisture. But, because you can't always count on rain when your lawn needs it, a regular watering program will help to protect the important investment you've made.

If you know what to look for, your lawn will actually show you when it's thirsty.

- Telltale color: Your lawn's green color will turn a blue-gray shade, either in patches or all over. This is also called "wilting."

- Footprinting: When grass wilts, it loses its resiliency. When stepped on, it can't bounce back, so footprints remain visible much longer than when the lawn has adequate moisture.

- Dry soil: With a trowel or sharp knife, cut out a sod plug 3 to 4 inches deep. Unless the soil feels moist when you rub it across your fingers, it needs water. Be sure to replace and step on the sod plug!

As a general rule, whether your soil is sand, clay or a combination of both, your lawn needs 1 to 1½ inches of water a week throughout the growing season to stay vigorous and green. Applications of more than ½ inch at a time, however, are generally unnecessary and wasteful. Unless the rains do it for you, this can mean watering every two to three days.

If you're reseeding your lawn, proper watering is especially important. Failure to keep a new lawn moist after the seed has germinated is one of the most common reasons for unsuccessful seeding. After the seed germinates and the young plants send up their first shoots, the roots probe into the ground seeking moisture. This is a critical period when watering practices can make or break a newly seeded lawn. As agronomists explain, the top inch of ground must be kept moist — but not flooded — if the new grass plants are to survive.

Whether you're reseeding your lawn or just want your existing lawn to be green, vigorous and healthy, a proper watering program will help you get off to a good start this year.

SHOULDERS GUIDE TO ENTERTAINING

Disc 'n' Data

By MILT HAMMER

Pick of the LPs, "You Broke My Heart In 17 Places," by Tracy Ullman (MCA/Stiff Records).

There is nobody like Tracy Ullman. "Our Trace," as she affectionately known in her British homeland, has conquered the United Kingdom and the European continent with three straight chart-topping singles, a gold album, a hit comedy series on BBC, a featured role in Paul McCartney's new film, Give My Regards To Broadstreet, Britain's Variety Club's "T.V. Personality of the Year" for 1983, and the London Daily Mirror/BBC 1983 "Best Female Artist."

Her effervescent personality and abundance of talent penetrate everything she does, instantly making her records, videos, television and stage appearances special events. Even before her first album, "You Broke My Heart In 17 Places," was released in the U.S., copies of her British videos and television show appearances brought her an unprecedented invitation by MTV to be a Guest Fill-In V.J. for an entire week and an appearance on "The Tonight Show." This is a unique talent.

For that matter, her entire recording career came about in a unique fashion. At the beginning of last year, Tracey bumped into Rosemary Robinson, wife of Stiff Records' Supreme Dave, at their local hairdressers. The fateful meeting led Tracy to record a debut single, "Breakaway," which established her on the pop charts all over Europe, penetrating the top five in England. Her second European single, the Kirsty MacColl penned "They Don't Know" (the first issued from MCA Records U.S. release of the album) took her to number two in England, and the accompanying video, featuring a cameo appearance by Paul McCartney, became one of the most popular throughout Europe. The subsequent release of her first album and her rendition of "Move Over Darling," the song made famous by Doris Day in the film, "Pillow Talk," clinched her position at the top of the British pop pantheon.

As with her recording career, a chance opportunity launched her entire show business career. Born in Bucks, England, Tracy actually won a scholarship to the Italia Conti Stage School at the ripe age of 12. But the unusual pressures of a stage education eventually only made her intent on becoming a travel agent. However, just prior to committing to a position as a travel agent, a chance audition took her to Berlin to appear in a ballet production of "Gigi." A two-year stint with the Second Generation Dance Group followed before Tracy branched out into acting.

Tracy Ullman starred with legendary British Rocker Shakin' Stevens in England's production of the "Elvis" musical, and appeared in the United Kingdom stage version of "Grease" and "The Rocky Horror Show." Her first serious role saw her cast as the lead in Victoria Wood's critically acclaimed British play "Talent," and she went on to appear in the BBC-TV series, "MacKenzie."

In 1980, Tracy scored her greatest acting success to date as Beverly in the Royal Court Theater's production of "Four In A Million." The show's success led to numerous offers including the opportunity to move into comedy.

Tracy took up the offer of a regular spot on the "Klok Up the Eighties" BBC-TV series. So impressed were the BBC bigwigs that they asked her to star in a new comedy series, "Three Of A Kind." However, reluctant to be cast in the stereotypical role of a comedienne, Tracy passed on "Three" until she was offered complete freedom to choose the writers, scripts, and costumes for the shows. Of course, "Three Of A Kind" became and is currently an enormously popular show in England.

Now the Tracy Ullman explosion is beginning here in the United States. "You Broke My Heart in 17 Places" contains the British hits as well as inimitable Tracy renditions of such tunes as "Girl Group sound" classic "Bobby's Girl" (originally a hit for Marcie Blaine) and the Dells' great R and B oldie "Oh, What A Night." The album is a marvelous pop confection, with even a touch of Ullman's wonderful sense of humor.

'Iguana' runs on weekends

The New Jersey Public Theater's production of Tennessee Williams' "The Night of the Iguana" will continue to run on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 through June 23.

Bill Toddie, executive director of NJPT, and Linda Herman, are starring. Featured are Nancy Hubley, Ray Burns, Eddy Thomas, Russell Gallo, Dianne Fannell, Robert Desiato, Roy Petkovyat Jr., Chipper Cataenact, Bobbi Keenig, and Joseph Mulholland.

"Iguana" is directed by David Christopher, director of the Acting Studio in Cranford. Reservations can be made by calling 272-5704.

The NJPT's next production will be Neil Simon's comedy, "I Ought To Be In Pictures," which will run from June 29 through July 28.

Rehearsals set for summer

The Ironbound Theater, a permanent resident theater company in Newark, has announced that rehearsals have begun for its second annual season of one-act plays for the summer. This year, the Ironbound will present "The Bear" by Anton Chekhov June 22 to 23, "Bird-bath" by Leonard Melfi, June 29 and 30, "The Dumb Waiter" by Harold Pinter Aug. 10 and 11 and "The Bald Soprano" by Eugene Ionesco Aug. 17 and 18.

The Ironbound Theater, now in its second season, works in conjunction with The Ferry Street Foundation, a non-profit community service organization associated with The New Jersey Institute of Technology.

The theater also is assisted in part by Newark's Independence High School. The plays will be presented at Wolff Memorial Church, Ann Street and Wilson Avenue, Newark. At 8 p.m. a 2 p.m. performance June 30.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 792-3524.

Movie making courses slated for youngsters

The Middlesex County College Division of Community Education, Edison, will offer youngsters an opportunity to learn the skills of filmmaking and creative dramatists this summer during special courses for students in grades four through 12.

All classes will be held on the Edison campus under the direction of Robert Festinger, a playwright, actor, film writer and director.

During the "Let's Make a Movie!" course, students will learn about the process of filmmaking, from the original idea.

For further information and registration details, contact the Division of Community Education, Middlesex County College, at 548-6000, ext. 350, Monday through Thursday, between 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Summer group starts season

Seton Hall University's Summer Theater-in-the-Round, South Orange, has announced its 18th season of plays.

"The Fantasticks," celebrating its silver anniversary as the world's longest running musical, will be staged June 28, 29, 30, July 5, 6, 7, 12, 13, 14.

"The Hasty Heart" by John Patrick will be staged July 19, 20, 21, 26, 27, 28.

"The Mousetrap" by Agatha Christie, suspense-thriller celebrating its 32nd anniversary, is the longest continuously running drama in the world.

Additional information can be obtained by calling Daniel Bello or Gilbert Rathbun at 761-8527.

A new season set for Drew

The New Jersey Shakespeare Festival's 1984 season in residence at Drew University, Madison, will present a line-up of plays from comedy and tragedy to satire and contemporary drama.

Playing in a nightly rotating repertory from June 27 through Sept. 23 will be Shakespeare's "Othello" and "The Merchant of Venice" and Brinsley Sheridan's "The School for Scandal."

From Sept. 26 through Nov. 25, three plays, Tad Mosel's "All the Way Home," Neil Simon's "The Sunshine Boys" and Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" will run for three straight weeks.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 377-4487.

Doctor Dirty

John Valby, known as Dr. Dirty, will appear at the Club Bene's Dinner Theater Rt. 35, Sayreville, July 7 at 9 p.m. Additional information can be obtained by calling 727-3000.

To Publicity Clinicians:

Would you like some help in preparing newspaper releases? Write to this newspaper and ask for our "Tips on Submitting News Releases."

AMERICAN BALALAIKA CO. will be featured at the 12th annual Jewish Festival of the Arts July 1 at 3 p.m. and the Jewish-Israeli Expo at 11:30 a.m. at the Garden State Arts Center, Holmdel. Also starring for the Garden State Cultural Center Fund and the Jewish Community of New Jersey will be Alla Kashi, Charles Alberston, Gadi Elon and Emil Cohen.

Open auditions set for 'Itch'

The New Jersey Public Theatre will hold open auditions for George Axelrod's comedy, "The Seven Year Itch," Saturday at 1 p.m. at 118 South Ave. E., Cranford. The play will be directed by Robert Vaccaro, the new artistic director of NJPT, and will run from Aug. 3 through Sept. 1 with performances every Friday and Saturday evenings (and some Sunday performances).

Additional information can be obtained by calling 272-3704.

It was announced that the theatre also needs volunteers for backstage work. Anyone interested in volunteering may call the theatre or stop by on Saturday.

Review slated of Bard plays on Kean stage

Singing readings and a film will highlight a review of Shakespeare's comedies between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. July 16 in a free event open to the public on the campus of Kean College of New Jersey, Union.

Dr. Eileen Kennedy of Union, chairman, who also is a professor of English, is co-ordinator for the master of arts in liberal studies program.

The Madrigal Singers of the Shakespeare Festival at Drew University, Madison, will perform at 9 a.m. It will be followed by readings of Shakespeare by Kean College faculty members and students. In the event of rain, the events will be held in the Zella Fry Theater in Vaughn-Eames Hall.

At 10:30 a.m. and again at 5:30 p.m. the film, "Twelfth Night," will be screened in the O'Meara Auditorium (J-100) Hutchinson Hall. At 12:30 p.m., following a brown bag lunch, Dr. William Evans of Union, an associate professor of English, will present a slide illustrated talk on Shakespeare festivals in the United States, Canada and England.

Mel Torme to star

Singer, composer, drummer Mel Torme will appear in concert at the Club Bene Dinner Theater, Rt. 35, Sayreville, June 29 at 7:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Additional information can be obtained by calling 727-3000.

Bring Dad to Benihana this Sunday, and we'll not only make him a great meal of sizzling, tender steak, shrimp, lobster, or chicken, prepared hibachi style, right at the table.

We'll also make Dad an honorary chef by taking his picture wearing a Benihana chef's hat. So come join us, and make this Father's Day a day to remember.
