Man shot following half-hour chase

Town and county cops' pursuit ranges from Scotch Plains to Springfield

By VICKI VREELAND

A Scotch Plains man was shot by a Springfield police officer when he allegedly attempted to run down two patrolmen on Briar Hills Circle early Friday morning, according to police reports. The officers had joined in an extensive county chase that began in Scotch Plains and continued through side streets in Springfield, police said.

According to reports, the incident began about 2:20 a.m. when Scotch Plains police attempted to stop Paul Myska, 20, who was "staggering" out of a tavern from entering his vehicle.

Scotch Plains Police Captain Blagio Mineo said the officer who observed Myska "had knowledge" that Myska's license was suspended and tried to prevent him from driving.

Instead, Myska got in his car and sped off, with the Scotch Plains police in pursuit. According to Springfield Detective James Hietala, as Myska headed along Route 22 East, Mountainside and Union County Police joined the chase. Hietala said Myska drove along curbs and through parking lots while he was being pursued.

Mountainside Patrolman Todd Turner forced Myska into the parking lot of the Tower Steak House, according to Mountainside Police Chief William Alder, but Myska drove out of the lot heading west in the eastbound lanes of the highway, where he was pursued by Turner and the county police.

Myska turned around and headed east one tenth. When he entered Springfield on Mountain Avenue, he turned right and followed the street across the highway to Briar Hills Circle.

According to Hietala, Springfield Patrolmen John Shapow and Jeffrey Vreeland were in a third block on Briar Hills Circle when Myska had driven around the circumference.

The officers reported that they left their patrol car as Myska's car headed toward it. Hietala said Myska "momentarily" stopped and before the patrol car, and then "lurched" forward and swerved in the direction of one officer and then the other.

Police then discovered Myska had attempted to open the passenger door, but found it locked, police said.

Vreeland positioned himself at the right corner of the front of the patrol car, with his revolver drawn, and ordered Myska to stop and exit his vehicle.

According to police, Myska ignored the command and swerved in Vreeland's direction, continuing to accelerate. As the car came towards Vreeland, he fired one shot that skimmed the roof of the car. Vreeland then jumped back against the patrol car as Myska continued driving toward him.

Police said Vreeland gave a second command to stop, which again was ignored. When he was nearly pinned against the patrol car by Myska's car, Vreeland jumped out from the two vehicles and fired four shots into the passenger side of the car, police said.

Myska skirted around the patrol car by driving up the curb, according to the scenario provided by police. He continued around the circle into Possum Pass, and then on to Charles Street, Mountainside, and up Rolling Rock Road.

Vreeland and Shapow pursued him, along with a Springfield backup unit, and Mountainside and county police who once again targeted the repeat.

From Rolling Rock Road, Myska turned to Bristol Drive and then Darby Lane, where he lost control of the car and struck a house, according to police. At that point, police said Myska still attempted to drive away, but his vehicle failed to operate.

Myska jumped out of his car and fled on foot, according to the report.

After a brief chase, he was wrestled to the ground by Springfield Lt. Richard Bromberg, Turner and Union County Police Officer Robert Klimco, who arrested Myska and ended the half-hour chase.

Police then discovered Myska had been shot in the area of the left shoulder and transported him to Overlook Hospital, Summit.

In the emergency room, police said it took three officers and five hospital staff members to restrain Myska while he was treated.

A police officer administered a blood test for alcohol content, which registered .23, according to Detective Robert Mason. Police will have to subpoena hospital records if they want the results of a drug screening, Mason said.

Myska was admitted to the hospital where he is listed in satisfactory condition as of Tuesday. He remains under 24-hour police surveillance.

Mason said all reports of the incident were sent to the Union County Prosecutor's office Monday, "for their evaluation." He added that municipal police departments are required to file a report with the county each time an officer's gun is fired.

According to Springfield Police Chief George Parsell, if someone is injured by a policeman's weapon, "it entails a further investigation."

Vreeland "won't be taken off his regular service," while the investigation is pending, Parsell said.

Assistant Prosecutor Howard Wiener said the investigation is "standard procedure."

In Springfield, Myska was charged with "reckless driving, aggravated assault of a police officer, slugging police, reckless driving, possession of a controlled dangerous substance, driving while under the influence of alcohol and driving while suspended."

Other complaints were signed against Myska in Scotch Plains and

Mountainside:

In Scotch Plains, Capt. Mineo said Monday that complaints were still pending and they will "probably" be for motor vehicle violations.

In Mountainside, according to Chief Alder, Myska was charged with speeding, reckless driving, driving while suspended, failure to yield to an emergency vehicle, going the wrong way on a one-way street, and leaving the scene of an accident.

Bromberg signed an additional aggravated assault complaint against Myska in Mountainside, along with a charge of resisting arrest.

Alder said the residence at 359 Darby Lane received damages of about $500 to $1,000. He said the car knocked out heliium-block curbing, made ruts in the lawn, bent the railing of the front stoop and damaged the masonry.

Myska was arraigned in the hospital Friday by Springfield Municipal Court Judge Malcolm Bohrod. According to Springfield Court Clerk Olga Murnane, the case has been referred to the Union County grand jury.

Judge rules for board

By VICKI VREELAND

Seven former and present Board of Adjustment members who were recently subpoenaed to testify in a lawsuit filed by resident Nikolai Agathis will not be required to appear in court, but may be asked to testify, depending on the evidence that is presented in the upcoming trial.

Union County Superior Court Judge Milton Feller ruled Friday in favor of a motion made by the board's attorney, Yale Greenspoon, to quash the subpoenas. Feller said he did not want to "inconveniences" the members who serve voluntarily.

According to Greenspoon, Feller also said the members would not have to testify until he sees the evidence.

"There has to be a basis to subpoena them," Greenspoon said.

He added that the applicant's attorneys did not contact the subpoenaed members to ascertain what they could testify to.

The members were served the subpoenas over the Thanksgiving holiday, Greenspoon said, which was "quite inconvenient." The case was to have been heard Nov. 20, but has been postponed until Monday.

Those served were Alan Siegel, chairman of the board; David Ross, former chairman; Joyce Gary, a former member; Gail Montanari, a former alternate; Dr. Howard Watter, Edward Olesky, and William Halpin.

Agathis brought suit against the board in February after it denied him a variance to allow an existing pool and deck at his Ashwood Road home, which is in violation of a number of zoning ordinances.

According to Building Department reports, the above-ground pool and deck occupy 22 percent of the yard, while the zoning ordinance limits the coverage of the rear yard by any pool and accessories to 10 percent.

The board ruled twice that Agathis' pool was illegal and would have to be removed, according to Secretary Matt Clapperton.

The suit alleges the board's action was "arbitrary and capricious," based on a hostility towards the owner of Agathis' home, Frank Neffens of Greensprings Estates, in Springfield, and/or for political reasons.

Greenspoon said that "at no point" in the record was a reason given for a vendetta, except that Greensprings, the registered property owners at the time, never applied for a building permit or an occupancy certificate until after the pool and deck "were substantially completed."

The suit also charges the board violated the Open Public Meetings Act by holding a private caucus on Agathis' application and challenges the constitutionality of the municipal zoning ordinance. It asks for the impeachment of all board members, and for the appointment of a receiver to assume the board's operations until a new board can be appointed.

Greenspoon said the board members, who are appointed by the Township Committee, can only be discharged for certain reasons.

Meal program delayed

A problem with the heating system in the Raymond Chisholm School has further delayed the opening of the hot lunch program for Springfield senior citizens.

According to Maureen Meixner, coordinator of the nutrition program, got a late start because of the ongoing renovations in the school, which was purchased by the Township Committee earlier this year.

The program was expected to begin the first week in January.

We really want to have it in the school. We were going to start under the worst conditions, but they just got worse," Meixner said.

The Girl Scouts will gather around the Christmas tree and sing holiday carols as the lights go on. Linda Cassini, head of the Springfield Girl Scouts, said all residents are invited to attend the ceremony, which will be followed by hot chocolate and cookies at the Girl Scout house on Caldwell Place.

The Scouts will begin their day by caroling for senior citizens at 2 p.m. at the Independence Way complex. For the rest of the afternoon, they will deliver tins of home-baked cookies to selected families in town, Cassini said.

The Cadette Scouts will bring cookies to the Police and Fire Departments, she added.

It's not Rockefeller Center, but Springfield will have its own tree-lighting ceremony on the lawn of the Municipal Building Sunday, at 4:15 p.m.

The approximately 30-foot balsam tree was donated by a township resident who requested to remain anonymous. It has decorated the grounds since Nov. 28 when it was cut down at the residence by the Road Department.

Walter Kozub, township engineer, said the department "did a fine job" when they cut, moved, and set up the tree. "It's the biggest one we've had in 30 years," he added.

Rajoppi group aids children

Joan Kennelly of Westfield, president of the Joanne Rajoppi Civic Association, has announced a donation to Barbara Brander, Union County director for Catholic Community Services, Linden, to be dedicated to abused and neglected children.

Steeple is stalled, will arrive Dec. 20

The arrival of the new steeple for the First Presbyterian Church at Morris Avenue and Church Hall has been delayed again, this time until Dec. 20.

If all goes well, the congregation has been assured that the two flatbed trucks which will carry the steeple from Kentucky, will arrive in Springfield two weeks.

The Rev. Jeffrey Curtis said he has warned local police that the mounting of the steeple on Dec. 20 and 21, will surely slow up traffic at the busy intersection.

According to Kennelly, the Kennelly said, "The Joanne Rajoppi Civic Association contributes to worthwhile charitable organizations throughout Union County and we are pleased to make a contribution to the Catholic Community Services which has a long-standing commitment to provide service to those in need."

In making the presentation to Brander, a Cranford resident, Rajoppi said, "I am pleased that the association chose Catholic Community Services as a recipient. I am well acquainted with this organization of its effectiveness in serving our county residents."

Brander said, "In this time of enormous family pressures and stresses, we're very grateful to your association for its help in the area of child care." Brander added that the contribution will be dedicated to Catholic Community Services' program for abused and neglected children.

According to Kennelly, the association, which is named for its standard-bearer Joanne Rajoppi, Union County Register and former Springfield mayor, Union County freeholder, and N.J. assistant secretary of state, has made several contributions in its two-year history, including a complete Texas Instruments solid state home video computer to the Union County Bureau of Children's Shelters.

The officers of the association include Kennelly, president; Ann Conti of Mountainside, vice president; Angela Perun of Plainfield, vice president; Rebecca Perkins of Fanwood, press secretary; Irv Rosen of Springfield, treasurer and James V. Spagnoli of Elizabeth, counsel.

Overlook seeks OK for heart surgery unit

By TIMOTHY OWENS
In a step toward what hospital officials believe will mean significant savings for New Jersey health care payers and a benefit to patients, Overlook Hospital, a teaching affiliate of the state Department of Health for a certificate of need to establish a cardiovascular surgical unit.

If approved, Overlook's would be the only open heart surgery facility in the suburban communities of Union, Essex, Morris, Warren and Somerset. The state has 110 days to respond to Overlook's application, which was filed in mid-November.

According to Overlook officials, because of the limited number of New Jersey hospitals providing cardiac surgery, about half of the state's cardiac surgery patients, primarily from Morris, are referred to out-of-state programs as far as Georgia and Texas. In the suburban communities of Union County, some 65 percent of all patients go out of state for cardiac surgery.

By far the leading cause of death and disability in the state, coronary heart disease occurs much more frequently in the suburbs than in New Jersey than in its cities, according to hospital officials.

A press briefing last week on the hospital's application to the state, Overlook staff members discussed several aspects of the issue, financial, social and medical.

Based on comparisons with the nearest out-of-state metropolitan center, in New York City, Overlook's projected cost per case for cardiac surgery ranges from $5,400 less than the low-cost New York open heart cent to more than $18,000 less than the most expensive, according to the officials. The hospital could implement its cardiac surgery program "quickly, effectively and with a minimal capital investment of approximately $16 million," they said.

All told, hospital officials say, New Jersey patients needing cardiac surgery could save $3 to $4 million a year cumulatively by getting treatment at Overlook rather than going out of state.

"There is no reason why this form of surgery cannot be given here," said Thomas J. Foley, Overlook's president and chief executive officer. "We have the staff and facilities to do this."

Robin Bernack of Mountainside, vice president of corporate planning for Overlook, said the public views cardiac surgery as "an exotic, sophisticated kind of surgery," but in reality, "now in the U.S., hundreds of physicians are capable of performing this procedure." In 1983, according to Bernack, Overlook referred 310 cardiac surgical cases to other medical facilities.

At the closest cardiac surgery facility, New Beth Israel Medical Center, there can be "two, three, four, five to six-week wait" for bed space, he said. "There are absolutely emergency patients — flicking time bombs. They have hours, not weeks."

"Good cardiovascular programs in New Jersey have proven that most patients, given the choice, prefer to have such procedures done in their own state," added Foley. "It's vital that we look at cardiovascular surgery not only as the highly-specialized form of surgery that it is, but also as a type of surgery that binds a family closely and emotionally together for an intense period of time."

"To go to Texas for surgery, it's impossible without an on-site cardiac surgery service would be under the direction of Victor Parsonnet, M.D., and his associates in the Newark Cardiovascular and Thoracic Surgery Group.

The officials also provided case histories of past Overlook patients. In one case, Jerry Zimmerman, a 60-year-old resident of Union, had a heart problem while his husband was in intensive care at New York's Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital recovering from aortic valve replacement surgery. Mrs. Zimmerman was admitted to Overlook and placed in intensive care. She faces the prospect of angioplasty or bypass surgery, which is part of the $30-million hospital-wide cardiac and modernization currently underway.

Overlook is ready to handle such surgery, said Gregory. "We have 22 cardiologists on our medical staff, of whom 18 — an extremely high percentage — are board-certified in cardiovascular disease. With the completion of our new Critical Care Unit in mid-November, which is part of the $30-million hospital-wide cardiac and modernization currently underway, our facilities will be even further enhanced."

One reason for improving the availability of cardiac surgery is to help patients avoid the procedure. John J. Gregory, M.D., director of Overlook's Cardiopulmonary Department, explained:

"Major advances are occurring in the diagnosis and treatment of patient suffering from heart disease. One such advance is angioplasty which can effectively reduce, at least temporarily, the need for elective coronary surgery."

In this procedure, a balloon-tipped catheter is put inside the coronary artery that is blocked by an obstruction. By inflating the balloon, the obstruction is alleviated and the vessel is opened.

"But this can only be done with cardiac surgery available on a semi-emergency standby basis," said Gregory.

"The growing trend in cardiovascular surgery at Overlook, according to Dr. John J. Gregory, director of Overlook's Cardiopulmonary Department, is that his patients are absolutely emergency patients — flicking time bombs. They have hours, not weeks."

"To make matters worse, six months later she's having severe chest pain and I have to return to Atlanta. Fortunately I didn't need another angioplasty."

The trips to Atlanta, the hotel bills and other expenses amounted to "several thousand dollars," Mrs. Zimmerman said.

Should Overlook receive the go-ahead from the state, the cardiovascular surgery service would be under the direction of Victor Parsonnet, M.D., and his associates in the Newark Cardiovascular and Thoracic Surgery Group.

Library to display gift books

MOUNTAINSIDE—A display of memorial and gift books will be featured at the Free Public Library of Mountainside today through Dec. 13.

The Mountainside Garden Club has donated three books to the library's collection. "The Dictionary of Indoor Plants," by Roy Hay, covers all aspects of plants growing in the home conservatory, or greenhouse. It also moves 500 full-color illustrations. S. Miller Gault's "Dictionary of Shrubs," also illustrated in full color, is a complete guide to the remarkable range of availability in easy-to-manage gardens. The advice in "Gardening for the Home," by Robert Adams, presents a comprehensive record of the diverse creatures that exist in the world today.

Mr. and Mrs. Weeks have also given the library a copy of "Landscaping England" in memory of Susan Collier. Written by Robert Adams, this book conveys the entire sweep of English history. Many little-known but significant particulars enliven the general history, with an annotated bibliography also included.

Other additional books in memory of Collier include "Landscaping the Garden" by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Murray. "The Oxford Illustrated History of Britain," edited by Kenneth O. Morgan, tells the story of Britain and her people over 200 years.

The dramatic narrative of developments throughout the British Isles is taken up in turn by leading historians, who offer the fruits of the work as the crumpling of an era.

Two books have been donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ted Weeks in memory of their daughter, Lindsay. "Dolphins and Porpoises," by Gordon Brook-Shepherd, is a comprehensive account of the 43 species, in which the author captures the essence of the small cetaceans of the world in the general history, with an annotated bibliography also included.

Shopping safety tips

SPRINGFIELD—Holiday shopping is the target of the Springfield Police Department's tip for December. The unit offers the following advice to help shoppers know how to keep shopping safe:

Walk and park only in well lighted areas. Walk confidently and be aware of people around you.

Don't carry large sums of cash. Carry only what you will need to purchase the articles. If you must carry a large sum of money, place the cash between your purse, pocket and wallet.

Don't carry excess credit cards. Carry only those cards for the stores that you intend to shop in. In addition, make sure that you have recorded at home the account numbers for each of the credit cards you own. Pay with check or credit card when you can, and don't "cash out" when you do.

Don't put packages on the rear seat of your car and leave them unattended, even for a moment. Place all packages in the trunk and secure the trunk is locked.

Teach your children if they get separated from you in a shopping mall, they should go to a cashier and not to the store clerk according to the court clerk's records. Murray received a $158 suspended fine for the amount of the damage, on the condition that he makes a $158 restitution payment to the contractors. Murray was also fined $25 to go to the Violent Victim's Compensation Fund.

Don't wait until you have put your packages down inside before you lock your front door. Lock the front door immediately upon entering the home.

Always lock your car doors after entering or leaving your car.

Have your car and house keys in hand so you don't have to linger before entering your car or home. Check the back seat and under the car before you get in.

A tip for men—don't place your wallet in your rear trouser pocket, carry it in the breast pocket of your jacket.

Certain confidence games increase during this time of year. Bargains such as expensive perfumes or clothing at a fraction of the real cost are notorious frauds during the holiday season.

Patients must file statement

Union County residents applying for admission to John E. Runnels Hospital, Berkeley Heights, will now be required to submit a confidential statement of their assets to obtain a Medicaid number prior to admission, according to a resolution adopted by the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

The new policy, which takes effect Jan. 1, will help ensure that Medicaid eligibility is granted to the patient and reimbursement is made to the county effective upon admission, according to County Manager Louis J. Colletti.

He said that while the new policy will be required of all applicants, no patient will be denied admission because the review process has not been completed.

"The important thing to keep in mind is that income will not be a criterion for admission," he said. "Also the potential for additional income to the hospital administration will help relieve the taxpayers.

The program continues throughout the 1984 model sales year. The top 50 Dodge sales personnel will win a trip to a three-day national sales conference.

Youths get introduced to basics of nutrition

MOUNTAINSIDE—Scouts and other area youth groups are being introduced to basic nutrition through a unique program offered by Children's Specialized Hospital for elementary school children in the greater New Jersey area.

Using special teaching aids designed for young students, the one-month sessions focus on the importance of good nutrition for feeling happy and having the necessary energy for school work and play.

According to Dietary Director Marlene Konner, R.D., "The young children learn about good basic nutrition, the better off they are. The programs in school begin at the junior high school level are good, but we feel it is important for children to learn the importance of eating healthy."

Open to students in grades one through six, the classes are divided into grade levels. First- and second-graders will learn and learn to distinguish between the different food groups by using hand puppets.

The film for third- and fourth-

Library column

A tormented artist and evolution's rise

BY ROSE P. SIMON
The following are reviews of books currently available at the Springfield Public Library.

A TORMENTED ARTIST
"Diana Arbus," by Patricia Bosworth.

As a child, the beautiful Diana Nemover was surrounded by affluence, was reared by nannies, educated in private schools, and afforded ample opportunities to nurture her talents. But like her brother, Howard (now a noted poet), and her younger sister, Renee, her childhood was not filled with parental warmth and love. Mr. and Mrs. Nemover, the owners of the house's full firm, was occupied with the materialities of her station life; never seemed to understand their children.

AN IDEA THAT GREW
"Evolution," by Peter J. Bowler.

Although this is not a popularized history of the theory of evolution, it is intended to be an introduction to someone with no background in either biology or history, and who is seriously interested in the theory of evolution and its implications.

It is also meant to bridge the gap between the evolution of the earth and man.

Bowler, of Queen's University in Belfast, reviews the early theory of the earth (Genesis, Galileo, Descartes, Newton), the impact of the Enlightenment (new theories, Chain of Being, the Materialists, and David and Leibniz), the changing view of man and nature in France, Britain and Germany.

Preceding the chapters on Charles Darwin and his theories is a background of geology and natural history (1800-1850). There follow chapters on the development of ideas from the time of Galileo to the present day.

Group eases grieving of pain of youngsters

A 6-year-old boy visits his grandmother in the hospital, where he has been staying since his mother died.

Hospices go back to medieval times when they were established for the care of the sick and wounded. Hospice today has come to mean a way of helping the terminally ill live each day to the fullest — and helping families through this trying time with professional guidance and support.

Ovelock offers two types of groups for young people ages 9 to 17. The Support Group is directed to children or teens whose close relative is critically ill. The Bereavement Group is designed for young people whose family member has died. With the help of trained counselors, the group helps them deal with the loss of a loved one and how grief and death affect their lives and how to handle the resulting stress.

Further information on these meetings, held at Overlook every Wednesday for six weeks, is available from Overlook's Hospice Home Care Department, 522-2848.

Springfield teen fulfills long-time goal

Ever since 16-year-old Scott L. Black of Springfield started running long distances back in 1978, he has had a dream — to become a sub-three-hour marathoner. And his dreams came true at the Salomon Schenck School, Cranford, where his dream came true Nov. 25.

Over a challenging 26.2-mile course beginning on the Amber Campus of Temple University and finishing at Philadelphia's Independence Hall, Scott completed in a time of 2:53:49, the third fastest in the Philadelphia's Independence Marathon. This new personal record for Scott bested his previous marathon mark established last year, also at Philadelphia by almost 17 minutes.

Scott runs only one marathon a year, but tries to compete as often as possible at the 13.1-half-marathon distance. His digital stopwatch ceased working well over a year ago. His high school has no track team. He does no track work. At 5 feet 1 inch, he weighs less than 100 pounds soaking wet. Moreover, even when preparing for a marathon, Scott rarely goes to bed earlier than four times a week and holds to a total of approximately 40 miles.

How then does he account for his success? First, although many people still consider him young to be running marathons, Scott has been at it for a long time. This year's race at Philadelphia represents the second consecutive year that the teen-ager has completed the distance.

Second, Scott spends much of his practice time accumulating mileage up and down Union County's Watchung Mountains. For example, on the hot humid day on which the New York City Marathon was run, he ran a 20-mile practice starting at Pottersville in Somerset County and ending up in New Providence. Scott would have liked to compete in the New York City Marathon again this year, but he was the youngest finisher in 1978, but has to wait another two years to reach the now minimum age of 18.

Third, the ninth-grader tries to keep his running in perspective. He is a straight-A student in school and attends synagogue services regularly. A member of the Jewish Community Center, Scott is building up his collection of classic rock cassettes featuring a number of favorites by Bruce Springsteen.

you see a slight figure winding its way through Westfield, Springfield or Mountaintop one winter evening, there's a good chance that it's Scott Black preparing for his next challenge.

His road to success led to Hollywood

By PETER GAVIGAN

To say Henry C. Rogers knows something about success is like saying Julia Child knows something about cooking.

Rogers — alias Henry Rogosin — was born in 1914 in a house at 41 Lincoln Place, Irvington. He left Irvington 50 years ago, when the Great Depression had ravaged his family's business and they sought a better life in California. He has since established one of the largest public relations firms in the country, handling Paul Newman, Robert Redford, Paul McCartney, Julio Iglesias and the Ford Motor Co., to name a few. This year, at age 70, he published a book on how to succeed — "Rogers' Rules for Success" — which now is in its fourth printing, having sold more than 25,000 copies.

"One of my first recollections is of my mother and father running a very dingy store in Irvington Center during the early and mid '20s," he recalled during a recent interview.

His father, Maurice, later built the Rogosin Building which still stands in the Center and which housed the Rogosin Department Store on the first floor and insurance offices and the Masonic Lodge auditorium on the second.

Rogers said as a child he never had any worries concerning what he was going to do in life. He began working in his parents' store when he was 9 years old and felt "destined to take over the business."

He freely admits that his remembrances of Irvington probably seem like "ancient history" to some. But he maintains that "at this point in my life, I feel like I may be approaching middle age."

"I remember standing on a hill at the corner of Stuyvesant and Springfield Avenue, watching soldiers parading up Springfield, coming back from World War I," he said. "I remember Lemmerman's Milk Farm and the big discussion over what was better, raw milk or pasteurized milk. The world has long since forgotten raw milk."

"I went to Chancellor Avenue School and one time got into a fight with a kid and didn't go to school for three days. I was really afraid of fist fights."

At Irvington High School, he was on the tennis team and was manager of the cross country team. "I really wanted to wear that big 'I' on my sweater."

"I was always in love in high school and I always went to a drug store on Clinton Avenue and had chocolate sundaes with walnuts, my favorite dish for years and years, until I went on a diet. I also remember ice skating at Irvington Park."

He recalls his parents as being "a truly remarkable breed of people."

Maurice and Molly Rogosin were Russian Jewish immigrants with practically no education. They spoke with heavy accents but worked day and night to make their store one of the most successful in town. Maurice was on the board of directors at People's National Bank and was one of the founding members of Temple Israel.

The success of the Rogosin business and Rogers' rather unremarkable childhood in Irvington ended in 1934 during the Great Depression.

Rogers had been a student at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce in Pennsylvania — part of the grooming process to help him run the business in Irvington — when he was called home to help out at the family store, which had fallen on hard times. He worked at the store for the next six months, commuting at night to courses at New York University. When the bottom fell out in the summer of 1934, his father decided to move the family to Los Angeles, where Rogers' sister lived with her attorney husband.

Success in Hollywood came slowly for Rogers. After losing a job as an office boy for a "one-woman publicity business," he decided to go into business on his own.

"I never thought of it as a bold and a courageous step or as an irrational move," he wrote. "I simply had no choice. I couldn't get a job doing what I wanted to do, so there was only one alternative: become self-employed. I never bothered to think that I literally had no experience. I had met a few people by this time who were in or on the sidelines of the movie business. Would they help open up some doors for me? I didn't know, but I could ask."

Rogers details his early years in the Hollywood publicity business in the book. He was later joined by a partner, Warren Cowen, and by 1950 the firm of Rogers and Cowen was established as the largest and most successful publicity firm in tinseltown.

But he was not satisfied

Bookviews

By ALAN CARUBA

The Christmas season is upon us again and, of course books make wonderful gifts that can be selected specifically for the interests of the recipient.

To get into the Christmas mood, there are two books that are just perfect. "A Christmas Treasury" illustrated by Greg Hildebrandt, renowned for his work on the "Star Wars" poster, and J.R. Tolkien's "Lord of the Rings," is available from the Unicorn Publishing House ($8.95) in top book store chains such as B. Dalton, Waldenbooks and other fine stores. The illustrations are just marvelous and the production values are first class. You'll find all the major Christmas stories and carols between its covers at an affordable price. For a bit more, Reader's Digest is offering "A Family Christmas" ($19.95) that is a real treasure of "brief" stories, poems, recipes and other fare. Both books are impressive in their own way.

KID STUFF

Christmas and Hanukkah, its Jewish counterpart which occurs at the same time, are for children, so let's look at some of the interesting books available for them.

I particularly like Clifton

Fadiman's "Wally the Wordworm" ($10.95, Stemmer House Publishers, Inc., 2827 Cave Rd., Owings Mills, Md. 21117) because it is not only entertaining, but it is designed to stimulate children's interest in learning new, big words instead of the little, easy ones most children's books use. In addition, a parent can also purchase a cassette for $8.95 or both book and cassette for $19.90. Postage costs will be $1 for the book and $2.50 for both.

The parent who wants to help his youngster learn about the world of business can give either "Duke Discovering Excellence" by Lewis Lazarus ($8.95, Mervis & Co., 105 W. Michigan St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53202) and a cassette too has been produced by Audio Source of America, Inc., Northbrook, Ill. This is one of those rare books that don't present the world of business as filled with corrupt, evil folk.

GROWNUPT GIFT BOOKS

Another illustrator, Boris Vallejo, and his wife, Doris, have a picture book out along with stories written by Doris. This one, however, is strictly for adults. Both stories and pictures have an erotic theme. "Beneathwater" ($30-$14.95, Ballantine Books, hard and soft-cover) is the gift you give your lover. Hot stuff, for sure.

"Marilyn In Art" ($16.95, Salem House/Merriam-Publishers' Circle Dist.) celebrates the impact of the legendary Marilyn Monroe on artists that include the famed De Kooning and Andy Warhol, among many others. For those of us who are young at heart, "The Duke Storybook" ($6.95, Putnam) will prove a popular gift for kids at the elementary school level.

"Dune," the movie, will be out all over the country, simulating in theater and VHS formats. "The Duke Storybook" ($6.95, Putnam) will be a sumptuous delight. A splendid gift.

"Imaginary Birds of the World" ($24.95, Apple-Wood Books) features the extraordinary woodcuts of David Frampton and text by Joe Nigg devoted to the Firebird, the Phoenix, and many more such winged creatures. For anyone who loves fantasy and the art, this book is a winner!

Road led to Hollywood

(Continued from page 1) with the success of that business. "I found out that the climb to the top of the mountain was much more exciting than the view from the top," he said.

The author feels he now has a winner on his hands. He has appeared on the "Today" show, "Live at Five" and many other programs, mixing his promotional appearances in direct contact with his business schedule at Rogers and Cowen.

"The thing that intrigues me about coming back to Irvington after 50 years is that somehow the number 70 is supposed to relate to old age and I am not afraid of what the future holds," he said, smiling. "I really believe the answer is that I'm in a young business, dealing with young beautiful people. I also have so many diverse interests outside of business."

He is on the board of directors of nearly a dozen arts councils around the country and gives a series of lectures every year at UCLA.

"People are old when they stop stretching themselves," he said. "When you think of retirement, it's the first step towards death. How many times a week can you play golf or gin rummy? You should keep dynamically moving until you drop dead."

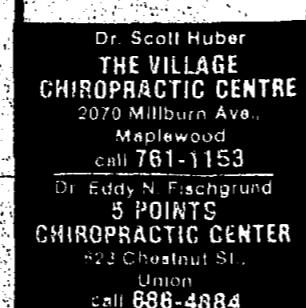

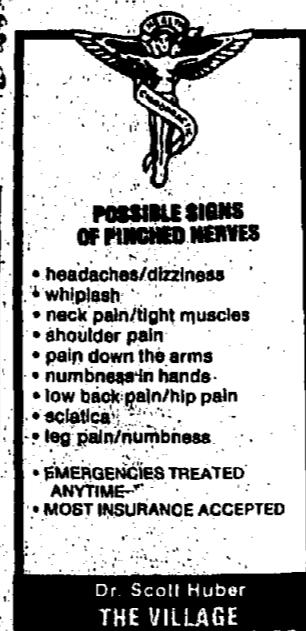

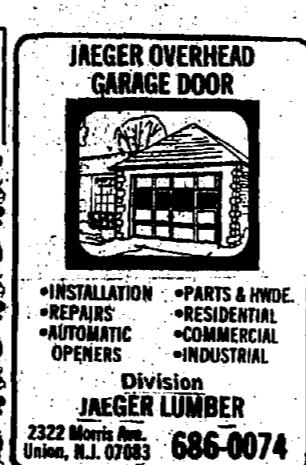

"Rogers' Rules for Success" is published by St. Martin's/Marek and is available at local bookstores.

Union County's Nutrition Program for the elderly is now operating out of its recently acquired home on Pennsylvania Avenue in Linden.

The $165,000 building was purchased with federal Older American Act grants and with money raised from the daily operation of the program itself, according to County Manager John J. Colletti.

It provides a central headquarters housing a kitchen, warehouse and office space for the nutrition program, which feeds approximately 1,500 elderly each day, five days a week. There are 16 nutrition sites throughout the county, and more than three-fourth of the meals are home-delivered.

"Now they won't have to move around like gypsies anymore," said Peter Shields, director of the Union County Division on Aging, in speaking of the nutrition program.

Shields, who is retiring from his post this month, added, "They are now in a building that has the finest

Rebecca's forecast

DEC. 6-13

ARIES (3/21-4/20) — Communications, local and everyday dealings are under a cloud this week. Postpone travel, if possible, and avoid ill-fated commitments. Later, expect discord on the home front. Financial problems grow, despite your care with loved ones and holiday plans may be off till the last minute.

Taurus (4/21-5/20) — This may be a somewhat trying week for many. Dealings with financial matters are intensified and a cooperative spirit may be hard to come by. Later in the week, keep your objectives clear. An important date is secured. Sorting through the events of this mixed-up week may take some time!

GEMINI (5/22-6/21) — Expect to be doing a lot of coming and going. Accomplishments, however, may be few and far between. Avoid overextending or overestimating yourself financially, especially if another's assets are involved. Later, keep plans simple as changes are likely and avoid provoking unnecessary conflicts.

CANCER

(6/22-7/21)

— Private or personal dilemmas escalate early in the week. Job or health demands infringe on your plans. Expect changes in meetings or appointments. Later, the financial theme is intensified. Avoid silly squabbles. It may be best to shelf requests for the time being; misunderstandings are likely.

LEO

— Family responsibilities place extra demands on you early in the week. Unusual or unexpected events surround friendships. Keeping your mind on the task at hand may be difficult. Later in the week, stressful home conditions prevail. Be cautious in travel. A change of living arrangements is likely.

VIRGO (8/24-9/23) — You may fare better this week by keeping a low profile and avoiding the tried and true. Avoid pushing too hard in career or community matters. Later, an unexpected disappointment is indicated. Compromise on plans so all will benefit and tone down aggressive or outlandish behavior. Finish up odds and ends.

LIBRA (9/24-10/23) — This promises to be a hectic and stressful conflicting period. Money matters, family, career and dealings with those in authority are indicated. Later, draw the line on holiday spending. You may have to cut back this year. Creative pursuits blossom. Make extra time for a special someone.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22) — Tax, insurance and all joint financial decisions highlight the week. Pay attention to a partner's suggestions. A disappointment may turn out profitable in the long run. Later, people, places or issues at a distance could provide problems on the home front. Make sure you do your share.

SAGITTARIUS (11/22-12/21) — You're likely to be feeling somewhat anxious or nervous as the week begins. Don't waste a lot of energy on things you can't control. Later, explosions are likely in intimate relationships; someone may drop an unexpected bomb! Personal stress may spill into the work area.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/20) — An unexpected upset early in this week may involve job, health or dependents' interests. Soft-pedal arguments. Others agree more readily and new money-making ideas are on the horizon. Later, you take a step forward, to everyone's amazement, even your own! Plan a short trip soon.

AQUARIUS (1/21-2/19) — Avoid sensitive or controversial topics for most of this week. You may happen across someone with an ax to grind. Think twice before you speak as a good rule for this period. Later, property decisions are made. Attend seminars or meetings and encourage a family member to see a physician.

PISCES (2/20-3/20) — The turning point in a family or property matter is likely this week. Pay attention to your inner feelings and postpone recreational or social outings till you're in a better frame of mind. Later, respect another's shared secret. Job or health matters are troublesome. Avoid dangerous situations.

Free bus ride for aides of handicapped

December 6, 1984
Person who accompany handicapped people as aides can ride free on NJ Transit buses and trains under a new policy that became effective Dec. 1.

"We are proud to announce the expansion of our guide policy to embrace all riders who need assistance when traveling on our buses and trains," said Jerome C. Premo, executive director of NJ Transit.

Under the existing guide policy, only aides traveling with a visually-impaired person can ride NJ Transit buses and trains free at any time.

Eligibility under the new guide policy calls for certification by a physician that a handicapped rider would be unable to travel to NJ Transit along with the regular reduced fare application. The handicapped rider's reduced fare identification card would be appropriately validated to permit free fare for an aide.

The new policy allows aides to travel at no charge, but the service is available only on NJ Transit operated bus and rail lines. However, the reduced fare for handicapped riders is in effect only during off-peak hours. At other times, handicapped persons must pay full fare.

Reduced fare applications may be obtained by writing Reduced Fare Program, NJ Transit Bus Operations, 180 Boyden Ave., Maplewood, 07040, or by calling 761-8327.

Kean College library 'on-line'

Kean College of New Jersey faculty, administrators and graduate students are using a large-scale computerized research system in the reference department of the college's Nancy Thompson Library.

The library is connected through a modem (telephone connection) with Dialog Information Retrieval Service, Palo Alto, Calif. That service gives Kean reference librarians access to more than 75 data bases with more than 80 million records.

Rene Rogge of Millburn, coordinator of the reference department, said about 30 searches in the areas of biology, business, chemistry, current affairs, education, law and government, and social sciences including psychology, have been run at Kean College since September and funds are available to cover more.

Rogge explained that the Dialog system locates information by author, title and source with great speed.

"The significant way in which on-line differs from hard copy paper indexes is its speed," Rogge said. "It does what you want very fast."

With the assistance of the reference librarians at Kean, researchers waste very little time searching thousands of records for exactly what they need, Rogge said.

Rogge explained that Dialog is a bibliographic retrieval service and will provide the researcher with

'Nutcracker' Ballet to return to Ritz as Garden State's Christmas event

Garden State Ballet's 50-member Christmas spectacle, "The Nutcracker," will return for its fourth consecutive year to the Ritz Theater, Elizabeth, Dec. 16 at 3 p.m.

As one of the state's major professional ballet companies, director Fred Donald's Newark-based troupe will bring the Tchaikovsky ballet to more than 30,000 children and adults as it travels to six cities covering five counties for 22 performances. It will mark the company's 11th statewide tour of the holiday classic. The tour is partially funded by a grant from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts.

The ballet will feature Mariko and Mikifumi Nagata sharing the principal roles of Sugar Plum Fairy and Cavalier with Katie Langan and Patrick Cen. Marty Bent will appear in the title role of "The Nutcracker."

The Christmas ballet was choreographed by Peter Anastos, who had choreographed "Cinderella" with Mikhail Barishnikov for the American Ballet Theater. The Garden State Ballet's "Nutcracker" has been staged by Steven Dalton, who recently was appointed to the post of associate director of the ballet company founded by his father.

More than 20 youngsters will join the professional cast for the statewide journey.

Following the performance at the Ritz Theater, the ballet will be performed at matinees at 3 o'clock Dec. 22, 23, 29 and 30.

By MILT HAMMER
Pick of The LPs: "The Nobodys" (Capitol Records).

"Not long ago, Safeway Goya said to Alex Blane, 'Let's find some dark horses and make a group,' and when Eric Garcia shook their hands the earth trembled and the group was formed."

Safeway figured out the group was downtown because it had no name, so they called it The Nobodys. "It just makes sense," said people who didn't know them. "No it doesn't," said people who did. And the controversy began. "What kind of music do you play?" reporters asked all at once. "We don't know," replied Alex, "you tell us." Speculation set in: New West called it "extremist duds"; L.A. Weekly called it "extremely professional dramatic pop"; BAM called it "it's not new wave"; "It's nobody's music but our own," said Safeway.

Many fans later, Safeway, Eric, Timex, Ken an Alex were having lunch on the veranda when a homing pigeon brought a message: "Have you no bio?" it read. "Where are we from?" The Nobodys asked themselves. "And what's my favorite color?" The pigeons scribbled and brought in. Fingerprints, identification, birth certificates and passports were examined. Doctors took X-rays and blood samples and The Nobodys finished lunch. "Let's make a long photo shot," said Eric, "so the pigeon can carry it." They agreed, and that's how this became The Nobodys' official bio.

The show features 16 Frank Loesser hits including "Take Back Your Mink," "A Bushel and a Peck," "Luck Be a Lady Tonight," "If I Were a Bell" and "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat."

A Fiesta!

By Teddi Russo
Attention food lovers! How would you enjoy traveling to different eating establishments where you were assured of being served an outstanding meal? Most of us eat out on the recommendation of family or friends. How would you like having a wider circle to choose from, one almost guaranteed to be outstanding, simply because the recommendation is coming from people with same tastes and appreciation of fine food as yourself? There is an organization operating herein the New Jersey, New York area known as the Restaurant Review Club. This club was formed in 1980 by gourmets, would-be gourmets and people who like to eat out but had grown tired of wasting money in unsatisfactory restaurants.

They felt the need for an organization where information could be pooled. The word spread and soon they were publishing Restaurant Raves, a quarterly newsletter based on 400 members' opinions of over 2,000 restaurants representing good value in the New Jersey, New York area. The members also have access to Restaurant Hotline for live daily advice on where to dine, attend gourmet dinners, scouting expeditions, gourmet yacht trips, week-long gourmet tours, and gourmet music cruise.

This is how it works: Club scouts visit the restaurant recommended by the members to check it out for the Restaurant Raves. Their visits are unannounced and meals are paid for by each club scout. Restaurant Review Club has no connection with the restaurants, thereby assuring unbiased opinions. The restaurants are rated on a scale of 1 to 5 according to food, service, decor, cleanliness and value. The restaurants run the gamut from the least expensive to the most expensive.

Reactions from members have been diverse. Some just enjoy reading Restaurant Raves. Others have become staff writers and are composing their own reviews. Still others regard Restaurant Raves as their forum and feel less powerless as a result.

Frequently, Restaurant Review Club sponsors moderately priced Gourmet Dinners, where the food is succulent, creative and abundant, including a cooking demonstration. They find this a delightful way to spend a lazy Sunday afternoon amid people of good cheer, intending to eat their way around the world in this fashion.

Such an occasion arose recently and the restaurant chosen was right here in Union, Costa Del Sol. The club called it a "Fiesta" and indeed it was! The meal comprised 2 appetizers, soup, salad, 2 entrees, one fish and one chicken, and 4 desserts and included a cooking demonstration by Tony, one of the owners. In attendance were residents of Staten Is., Brooklyn, New Hope, Eatontown, Heightstown as well as people more locally situated. The general consensus was that this restaurant rated a 5!

Plans are in the making for a singles group called Dining Anywhere? This will be an opportunity to meet people with food and sociability in mind, meeting once a month for dinner tastings which will allow more mobility than the usual sit-down type of meal. Foods will be displayed and discussed, lively cooking demonstrations and talks will be given and music provided. You may join Restaurant Review Club as a single membership for $18.75 per year or $25.00 for a couple per year. This is the package plan which includes Restaurant Raves, Restaurant Hotline, scouting parties and reduced prices for all dinners and trips. It is advisable to take the package plan, as the savings you make on the reduced member prices, add up to hundreds of dollars. If there are any questions, please do not hesitate to call 201-233-6173.
