Stemming a fatal teen trend

'My kid said he wished he wasn't born, but I didn't take him seriously. This is an all-too-familiar lament heard by Dr. Rosalie Greenberg, adult nd child psychiatrist, who counsels teen-agers who have attempted su When problems are mounted and solutions are scarce, suicide can seem like an appealing idea. "All people think of it," Greenberg said, "at least

Greenberg finds that most people who welcome the idea of suicide are suffering from depression or suicide idealism.

In the past 30 years, the suicide rate among teen-agers has tripled. According to statistics, about 400,000 suicide attempts are reported each year nation-wide, and about 5,000 of those attempts are successfu

According to Greenberg, the statistical breakdown indicates that for every one teen ager who does not attempt suicide: 30 to 100 do. Attempts are more common by females; about three of every four attempts are made by girls, however, three out of every four attempts made by teen age boys are suc-

According to Greenberg, statistics are generally underestimated because many suicide attempts are not reported as such. The attached social stigma moves many parents to beg family physicians to report their child's suicide Greenberg, a graduate of Columbia University's College of Physicians and

Surgeons, is currently enrolled on the faculty there as an instructor in Suicide follows automobile accidents as the leading cause of death for misdiagnosed because of their resemblance to adolescent "growing pains Greenberg advises, however, that if blue, down-in-the-dumps, irritable moods persist for any length of time, "you have something more there." The psychiatrist said physical cues usually accompany moody behavior These may include changes in sleep patterns or a drop or increase in weight.

Verbal cues are usually the most forthright, but because of their sometimes dramatic delivery, people tend to shrug them off — statements like, "I won't be around for that," or, "I wish I wasn't born." Greenberg said many times a teen ager contemplating suicide will begin to give away his or her possessions.
"You have to listen and watch your child. Listen, not tell. First you have to listen, although they may make it hard to hear," she emphasized.

If parents do suspect their child may be thinking of suicide, it is better to tish the panic button and seek help, than to wait for a "stage" to pass, she advised.

Some teen agers are more prone to suicide than others. Family history and family affrictive play integral parts in behavior. Greenberg explained.

Teen agers with a history of suicide in their families have greaten suicide learnings, then those who do not. Greenberg, said a number of theories at learning their why children amulate the act, including assessment to join sometime in the family. Taking action

In the tradition of past demonstrations calling for peace in Vietnam and civil rights reform, a coalition of national groups supporting peace and social justice are organizing a four-day protest in Washington, D.C. this month. It will be the first opportunity that citizens will have since the president's re-election in November to "vote with their feet" on four issues bound together by a common thread — fairness and humanity.

The mobilization, organized under the banner of April Actions for Peace, Jobs and Justice, will take place April 19 to 22, with the main demonstration scheduled for Saturday, April 20.

The April Actions offer an opportunity to protest four areas: U.S. intervention in Central America. the size of the military budget, the continuing arms race and apartheid in South Africa.

Events in the last several days have made the demonstration very timely. Late last week, President Ronald Reagan called for a cease-fire and negotiations in Nicaragua and warned that he would seek a resumption of U.S. aid to rebel forces if the Nicaraguan government does not agree to a settlement within 60 days after negotiations begin. A Nicaraguan leader characterized the president's move as "Drop dead, or I will kill you.

Late last month, both the Senate and the House approved $1.5 billion for 21 MX missles — money that critics say would be better spent creating jobs

Sunday, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev accepted the president's invitation for a summit meeting and called for a freeze on missile deployments in Europe. The administration's initial response is that such a moratorium would only act to preserve the Soviets' 10-1 advantage in land-based nuclear weapons in Europe.

And, in what has become almost a daily report of misery in dispatches from South Africa, Friday police fired tear gas and rubber bullets into a crowd of 15,000 blacks marching from a funeral for riot victims who were killed in Port Elizabeth townships.

Each of these areas begs a similar question. Is it fair and humane for the United States to try to impose a form of government on a tiny nation in Central America? Is it fair and humane for the administration to ask Congress to continue to spend billions on instruments of destruction of questionable strategic advantage while it seeks cuts in aid to farmers, states and cities and freezes in cost of living adjustments for Social Security recipients? Is it fair and humane for the two superpowers to continue on a mad course toward global nuclear destruction? Is it fair and humane for the U.S. to provide economic aid to support a racist regime in South Africa?

These questions are ones that are important, not only to each and every individual, but ultimately to the entire future of the world. For those who answer these questions in the negative, the choice of action is clear: attend the demonstrations, write letters to your congressional representatives and get involved. In an age in which the entire human race is faced daily, with the threat of potential destruction, no issues could be more important or demanding of our attention. For if we do not respond to the challenge now, there may not be any choice left in the future — if there is a future.

Reader hopeful for 'new beginning' There is a widely held belief that the people of Springfield are concerned about the children, the school system, and the expenditure of their tax dollars. The Board of Education election proved that belief to be somewhat

However, a town in which only 15 percent of its eligible voters vote in a board of education election certainly isn't too concerned about its school system — and that's unfortunate. A town that allows the expenditure of $5 million to educate fewer than a thousand children certainly isn't terribly

However, the politicians have crept into places where they don't belong and spent my tax dollars on lawyers, parking lots and buildings, not on curriculum development, teaching materials, or instruction: The board has criticized the superintendent without giving him specific objectives and goals to achieve. There have been discipline problems in our classrooms and not enough was being done to eliminate them. Hopefully, Mrs. Wasserman will be successful in beginning the de-politicization of the board and refocusing its efforts on education.

Quality education and excellence in our schools is attainable if we all remember that the children are our primary concern. The problems that exist must be faced with conviction and fortifude. They will not disappear by themselves and ignoring them will foster erosion of our school district.

The following letter has been written to the mayor and members of the governing body of your community and to the other communities within Union County. This is a matter of grave consequences.

On March 28, by a 5-4 majority vote of the Union County Board of Chosen olders, a resolution was adopted to establish a task force "to seek alternate methods of housing for minimum security immates housed in the Union Conty Jail and other inmates incarcerated for less than acts of

We opposed this ill-conceived resolution for a number of salient reasons, We opposed this in-conceived some of which are highlighted below:

1) We do not believe that our county jail inmate population should be arrivaled about the county.

WE'VE GOT A PLAN TO LOWER YOUR GAS BILL:

355-8400

Working with the New Jersey Board of Public Utilities and Department of Energy, we've developed a plan to make it easy and affordable to install practical conservation measures. The plan is called "Conserve & $ave" and includes:

LOW-COST HOME ENERGY AUDITS

These audits, valued at $70 each, are part of the New Jersey Department of Energy's Home Energy Savings Program, and cost you only $15. It is free to Lifeline recipients.

A specially trained auditor will inspect your home for energy wasting conditions, and issue a detailed report on how to correct the problems and reduce your energy cost

A free weatherization kit is included. Free literature and do-it-yourself audit instructions are also available. This program is available for gas heating customers residing in one- to four-family dwellings.

NO INTEREST/ LOW INTEREST LOANS 'If you own and live in a gas-heated one- to four-family dwelling, you may be able to pay for qualifying conservation measures with a no-interest or low-interest loan from a participating bank, provided you have an approved HESP audit:

No-interest loans are available to homeowners with family incomes under $30,000. Those with family incomes over $30,000 are eligible for loans at half the current consumer loan rate. Loans will range from $500 to $4000, for terms of four to six years, subject to credit approval by the lending institution and determination of the costeffectiveness of the improvements.

ASSISTANCE TO LOW-INCOME HOUSEHOLDS*

Working through selected social service agencies, we're providing low-income gas-heated households with free weatherization kits and free installation of cost-effective weatherization measures.

*Low-tocome households are defined as those not exceeding the following aucome limits, family size in parentheses (1) 574 (0, (2) $10,080, (3) $12,690, [4] $15,300, [5] $17,910, [6] $20,520 Add $2,610 per family for each person

Once More A Season Upon Us

Every few year, a small group here in Irrington get out their old banners, their old slogans, and their old habs. A fouch of spring may be in the air and their longings turn once more to fantasy and the world of makebelleve. And so they reason, there is an election upon us, let's cajole. some politicians into joining us in singing the old tune called "Rent Control". Never mind the rrington enacted and has benefitted from ery fair ordinance for the past years. Now is t time get more.

Now, not all our Town Fathers are fooled.

Now, not all our Town Fathers are fooled.

Nost know of the faults and enils of rent control. But, they are looking to you for guidance.

Since you don't call them and let your feelings you want everyone to pay a fair share of the cost of government and that includes senters as well as everyone. Being a renter does not entitle anyone to shirk their part of the burden. Now we want senters in or town and the mix of papie that results from having a balanced population. However, including a homeowners insist this everyone pay that fair share. When rend control takes, over we middle models owners now. everyone pay their fair share. When rent control takes, over, we middle people, owning our homes, often and up paying or subsidizing others. Now, there is nothing fair about that? Resident of senior citizens or low-income housing are not effected in anyway by local rent control. Yhus, cancelling our rent control will not hurt any deserving person. It will make the cost of local government more aqually shared.

Call that councilperson-write that letter-go to that meeting and let mur wicher he hopen. This limit meeting and let mur wicher he hopen. that meeting and let your wishes be known. This is America and this is the way we grew an became a great nation.

Homeowners Protect Yourselves

are our greatest asset. When demands are made for the enactment or increasing of rent con icoma properties, taxes are based on rent pward to help pay for the costs of local gover ment. Who takes up the slack? For the most part it is the "man-in-the-middle", Mr. Average mabuser, Mr. Good Guy.

When your taxes keep increasing, the attrac-tiveness of your property is in danger and cor-tainly not as easily sold as it might have been. High taxes discourage buyers. Your insisting, you, the individual homeowner, that the cost of local government be equally shared-not dis-counted for ranters because they appear to be organized and ready to speak out. Keep yo taxes in time, keep your local services comi support your town because it supports you make your wishes know to your councilperso ne more rent control, no hardening the application of rent control no handouts for renters who may or may not be here townsyour.

a clean, prograssive, nice-place-te-live. Let the bear from you. And always remember, local recountries do not apply to senior citizen or lew in come houseing. You will not hunt any beserving person by seking that rent control be curbed of eliminated. Call Town Itali, tell your represent tatives what you want.

Surcharge bills going out

Motorists who were caught driving without insurance or while suspended in 1984 will begin eceiving insurance surcharge bills this month, Clifford W: Snedeker, director of the New Jersey Division

Motor Vehicles, has warned. Motorists guilty of those violations will have to pay $250 a year for three years or face indefinite suspension of their driving priviledges in New Jersey. The surchages will be imposed for any violations occurring n or after March 19, 1984, the effective date of the surcharge

More than 18,000 motorists will be billed a total of $24.5 million during the course of 1985, with the first wave of bills going out around the middle of April, Snedeker advised.

These surcharges are in addition . to those already mandated for motor vehicle point violations and drunk driving convictions under the New Automobile Insurance Reform Act of 1982.

The regulatory surcharges were first imposed on motorists guilty of those violations in 1983. However, the effective date of the regulatory

1983 violations is currently being

Anyone suspended by a court of DMV for the following violations committed after March 19, 1984 is subject to the following surcharges: unlicensed driver, $100 for three years; suspended driver, $250 for three years; driving with no insurance, $250 for three years and uninsured moped, $100 for three

A total of 73,321 motorists will be surcharged for operating a motor vehicle without insurance. Another 18,270 will be surcharged for driving while under suspension, 16,332 will receive $100 surcharge bills for driving without a valid license and 391 will be surcharged $100 for operating a moped without in-

Motorists assessed surcharges will have 30 days from the date of billing to pay or their driving priviledges will be suspended. Only those who can prove indigence will be allowed additional time to pay.

March 19, 1984 and the $1.2 million initially collected as a result of those surcharge sytem goes to the Joint Underwriting Association (JUA), the organization which insures New Jersey motorists who cannot secure insurance on the voluntary market. The money is intended to cover the JUA's expected loses due to insuring high risk drivers. The remaining 20 percent is kept by DMV to cover

Bracken went on to vaudeville. After school, he'd go to the theater and sit in the audience. The performers would call out. "We under stand there's a boy in the audience who can sing." Bracken would pretend innocence and sheepishly come up on stage where he would proceed to belt out songs like "Cross My Heart." "Mother, I Love You" and "I Wonder What Became of Sally. He also did Buster Brown newspaper ads and played the poor little rich boy in the original silent "Our Gang" comedies. He then went on to appear in the first kiddy talk movies. "The Kiddy Troopers." now the Actors' Studio in New York.

Though his acting career was on its way, Bracken said he almost traded it for the life of a fighter. The turning point came in 1935 when George Abbot gave him a part in "Brother Rat" and then cast him in "What a Life." Abbot's plays turned more than Bracken's professional life around

"Name the people, know them...Lionel and John Barrymore. Groucho, Alan Ladd, Barry Sullivan...Name the town, I've seen it; name the city, I've seen it change."

Eddie Bracken

Upon returning from the national tour of "Brother Rat," Bracken went to see the play's New York production. There he saw actress Connie Nickerson on stage for the first time. They went on to tour together in "What a Life" where Bracken says he tried hard to convince her that "all the good-looking guys in the play didn't really have t" and that he was "the one." County updating directory

The Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs, Department of Parks and Recreation, is in the process of updating its directory of cultural and heritage organizations.

Deadline for being included in the directory is Monday, according to Debra Judd, arts coordinator, who urges county groups in the following categories to fill out a survey form: art, choral, cultural and ethnic groups, dance, historical societies, literature, media arts, multidisciplinary, museums, music and theater.

The directory will be available free to presenters, sponsors and other groups interested in utilizing the services of Union County's cultural historical resources. Organizations and groups interested in being included in the directory should contact Judd at the county offices, 300 North Avenue, East, Westfield, 233-7906.

The first warm Saturday this spring is a good time to preserve the appearance and value of your car, and rejuvenate it from the ravages of winter.

You can perform the following maintenance right in your own driveway:

1. A thorough two-step washing is necessary after winter driving. The first wash with cold spray water will remove the dirt build-up and road salf without scratching the paint finish.

The second wash with a mild detergent will complete the job. Don't doi if in the hot sun, and he sure you we rinsed off all the detergent.

Brakes can be checked simply by removing the wheel. If the lining is unusually worn, it could indicate a dragging brake. If the load the car is Overheating is perhaps the most common cooling system problem.

Your first indication of overheating is when the HOT light on the dashboard flasties, or when the necedle on the temperature gauge rises above its normal position. Another obvious sign is steam rising from under the hood of the car.

There are two ways an engine can overheat: Mechanical failure that interferes with the flow of coolant, or a greater build-up of heat than the cooling system can handle.

VACATION INFLATION-Motorists can gain up to 30 extra miles per 1,000 miles traveled with correctly inflated tires.

in the cylinder. Usually this occurs just before the piston has reached the top of the cylinder. If firing occurs after the piston has reached the top of the cylinder, the engine may begin to overheat. Timing should be checked and adjusted by a mechanic.

4. Faulty radiator cap or thermostat is a reached the top of the cololing system properly. Lack of cap pressure will reduce the boiling point of the coolant. If a radiator cap has cracked seals or corroded metal parts, it peeds to be replaced.

A thermostat that is not opening and closing properly can also cause overheating. If you or your mechanic believe your thermostat is not working properly, replace it. Thermostats are not expensive and a new unit could save on costly future repair bills.

5. Loose or broken fan belf—If the fan/water pump belt breaks while you're driving, it won't be long before you'll be forced to pull over to the side of the road.

If it is loose, you can tighten it by adjusting the pulleys and tensioning the drive. If in doubt about the condition of the belts, or if the car is four years old, replace, all the belts immediately.

6. Dragging brakes or too-heavy load—Both of these situations produce the same result: they put too much strain on the engine which, in turn, puts more strain on the cooling system.

Checking brakes

Brakes can be checked simply by removing the wheel. If the lining is unusually worn, it could indicate a dragging brake. If the load the car is Gourheating is perhaps the most common cooling system problem.

make sure coolant has been added to the system once the radiator has cooled. Remember, though, not to handle the radiator cap or any engine part until the car engine has been turned off for a while.

FROM

You've finally gotten through the winter with yoursen and you an anappear, and had been careful to have your cooling system checked and serviced back in October. You put your snow tires on before the snow was piled too deep for you to go out of the house. You even made sure you used winter strength windshield solvent. Indeed, you'did everything by the book.

Now that spring is coming, you figure you can sit back and congratulate yourself.

Right?

Well, congratulations might be in order, but you'd better not ignore your car. While it is true that winter driving demands the most from your car, hot weather makes its own

And while a breakdown in the dead of winter is potentially more dangerous than stalling out during a summer's drive, why neglect your car at all?

Proper and timely car maintenance will probably save you money in the long run, by preventing more costly repairs that arise from prolonged neglect.

Spring car care involves three major steps: Repairing problems caused by win-ter driving; preparing for the warm weather driving ahead; and finding a good automobile technician to do the jobs that and potholes, your car is bound to need some sprucing up. Any problems that you failed to repair last fall will probably be worse now, after a hard season of driving.

But the first thing you will notice is your car's overall appearance. A good spring cleaning, inside and out, is in order. Your car's finish has been dulled by road chemicals and harsh weather; the inside of your car is likely to resemi closet, with gloves, ice scrapers, cups and other items strewn about.

Thoroughly washing, waxing and vaciuming your car is a very good starting point. You not only see immediate results (always satisfying in this age of 20-year subway projects and 30-year mortgages), you actually decrease your chances of being involved in an accident.

Studies have shown that a dirty windshield is distracting: Our eyes tend to focus automatically on the flecks and streaks on the windshield, instead of looking far ahead to soot potentially dangerous road

And you do not need any studies to tell ou how distracting a cluttered dashboard you how distracting a cluttered dashboard and floorboard can be — just try stopping your car with a soda bottle lodged between the brake pedal and floor, or cigarettes, gloves and loose change sliding around the

But the greatest benefit of starting your spring car care with a general spring cleaning is probably, psychological. You cross the threshold from passivity into action; you have taken that first step. Subsequent projects should be easier to do.

Winter driving has probably been difficult on your car's battery. You should recover the cooling that the radiator cap securely.

cures for car sickness, an additional pre-ventive measure can be taken. It's a matter of vehicle maintenance, says Car Care

The most serious form of car sickness results from carbon monoxide poisoning. An odorless, colorless and invisible gas, carbon monoxide is in the exhaust that caroon monoxide is in the exhaust that comes out of the vehicle's tail pipe. Keep windows at least partly open on a car with leaking exhaust, the Council recommends, and replace leaking parts as soon as possible.

Car stekness also can be brought about by a floating or bobbing ride, caused by worn shock absorbers. This motion becomes exaggerated by weaving or zigzagging due to loose steering parts.

Says Car Care Council, "Your car is an extension of yourself. For driving safety and comfort, keep your car in shape and it

Oil-thirsty auto? Here's why Do you think your car may be using too much oil? One sign an engine is burning oil is blue smoke coming from the exhaus: pipe. There can be several reasons for this condition, says Car Care Council, the most common being worn valve guide seals. Here's why: The valves in a typical engine to burn oil prematurely are caused seals. Here's why: The valves in a typical by wehicle neglect. One example of this is the combustion cham-

There can be several reasons for this condition, says Car Care Council, the most common being worn valve guide seals. Here's why: The valves in a typical engine may open and close as often as 100,000 times per hour at highway speeds.

The stem of the valve, sliding up and down in a guide, is fitted with a special seal designed to permit only a limited or otherwise fail. That's when oil burning begins.

Many of the conditions which cause an engine to burn oil premainrely are caused by vehicle neglect. One example of this is worn piston rings, which can wear out premainrely because of failure to change oil and filter regularly.

Once the rings become excessively worn, an expensive "ring job" is the only atmosphere as smoke.

If you have to pump the accelerator to keep the engine from stalling, you may be pumping raw gasoline into the crank case. This situation can be avoided by keeping the engine in tune.

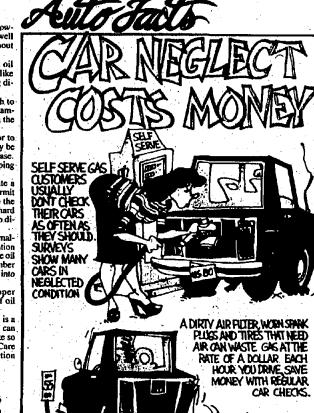

Misfiring spark plugs can aggravate a situation such as this because they permit raw, unburned gasoline to wash into the crank case. Not only does this create hard starting, it also accelerates wear due to diluted engine oil.

Another factor in oil burning is a malfunctioning positive crank case ventilation (PCV) valve, which is intended to route oil vapors through the combustion chamber rather than permitting them to escape into the atmosphere.

rather than permitting them to escape into the atmosphere.

If the PCV system is not in proper working order, it can be the cause of oil burning.

Remember: Excessive oil burning is a condition that gradually worsens and can affect other aspects of the engine. Like so many other car troubles, says Car Care Council, early detection and correction are besential.
