Cops await new guns

By VICTORIA VREELAND
The five- to 10-year life expectancy of the Springfield Police Department's 20-year-old guns may have passed, but any police officer will agree, the performance of a gun should not be subject to the test of time.

As a matter of fact, the Smith and Wesson model of the .38 revolver the officers now carry is no longer manufactured, according to Patrolman Judd Levenson.

Levenson, said Policemen's Benevolent Association Local 76 got working on plans to "upgrade" its weapons two years ago. Springfield Police Chief George Parsell authorized a survey to determine what type of handgun would be most suitable for the department's needs.

Along with Levenson, Patrolmen Peter Davis, Ivan Shapiro, and George Hillner, Lt. Donald Scherdi, and the department's firearm instructors did the comparison weapon study.

Levenson said the resulting 85-page survey took into account the shooting scores of the department, safety features, and what type of weapon neighboring police departments use.

Levenson, who headed the committee, investigated previous incidents in Union County when officers used their guns. He found in the majority of shootings, police were confronted by multiple adversaries.

In light of this finding, the committee decided the new weapons should have a high-round capacity. It selected a Smith and Wesson 9-millimeter with a 15-round capacity (double what the existing guns provide) for the patrol division and a 12-round model for the Detective Bureau.

The recommendation was forwarded to Parsell, who approved it and typed it over to the Township Committee for budget consideration. The governing body recently authorized advertising for the guns.

In addition to the increased bullet capacity, the 9-mm semi-automatic pistol is quicker to reload, not as "clumsy" to carry as a revolver, and has an external safety device, according to Levenson.

"If a gun was taken away from an officer by an assailant, it would not be able to be used immediately. It takes a couple of seconds to locate the safety and remove it, and those couple of seconds would be to the officer's advantage," Levenson explained.

He said the patrolmen's guns will be made of stainless steel, which will enable them to perform in all types of weather. "As opposed to the present guns which rust," Patrolman Jeffrey Vreeland also favors the new model. "It provides increased fire power, much quicker reloading, a much larger ammunition capacity, and it is a much more balanced weapon," Vreeland said.

The new model was a relatively unknown name. "We needed to fire their weapons, but as Levenson pointed out, circumstances cannot be predicted. In November, Patrolman Vreeland fired several shots at a Scott Plains man who was attempting to run him down."

Levenson called the 9-mm. pistol "the safest possible weapon on the market."

The department's shooting scores have been "more efficient" using 9-mm. pistols, he added.

Along with the new guns, the officers will need new holsters. The township budget has appropriated approximately $17,000 to outfit the department with new guns, holsters, and ammunition.

OSHA finds violations at police department

By VICTORIA VREELAND
Two inspectors from the state's Department of Labor Occupational Safety Hazard Administration responded to an anonymous call concerning poor working conditions in the Springfield Police Department Tuesday.

The inspectors noted a number of violations, all previous complaints of Springfield police officers in the last two years.

One of the department's chief complaints is the lack of heat and air conditioning in the station. Detective Robert Mason said the men are tired of the "whole deplorable condition of the building."

come through a vent in the department's old shooting range, which extends the length of the municipal building.

"Our contention is the state made them take out the asbestos in schools, lets get it out of here too," he said.

Last spring, after a series of rain storms, police, along with other municipal employees in the building, complained to the Springfield Township Committee of flooding in the basement. Mason said raw sewage filled the locker room, which created an odor that permeated the building for months.

Secretaries in the Record Room also had complaints, particularly of bugs. "I don't think this room has been cleaned in years," commented Andrea Erb. "The basement is in such bad condition, anything can come up from there," Gloria Simpson added.

Mayor Ed Fanning said conditions in the police department are a "primary concern" to the committee.

Since then, the committee has changed its direction. Fanning said it now plans to keep municipal offices in the building and build one or two wings to expand the police station.

According to Richard Bottelli, architect for the project, the remodeling is "not an easy situation."

Almost a year later, Bottelli said the committee is still "reviewing alternatives," and has yet to determine "the occupancy configuration" for the building, or, exactly what is going to go where.

As far as the Chisholm School, Bottelli said he has prepared plan for a new roof. Fanning said there isn't enough room in the building to house municipal offices and a township recreation facility, as was the original plan.

Bottelli projects that if the committee moves on plans for remodeling the municipal building, it will be another year before the project is actually completed.

The township purchased the Raymond Chisholm School from the Board of Education last July with intentions to relocate municipal offices in the school and expand the police department.

According to Bark, the OSHA report will be reviewed by the Department of Labor, with some portions expected to be forwarded to the Department of Health.

Four candidates announce

There will be no opposition to the Republican or Democrat parties in the June 3 primary to get on the candidates slate for Springfield Township Committee. There is also no opposition for county party committee, according to Helen Maguire, township clerk.

As a result of petitions filed last Thursday, four candidates (all entering their first election) will vie for two three-year terms on the township committee. Intumbent Republicans Philip Feintuch and Joanne Tedesco have each declined to seek re-election. Instead, the Republicans will run two new political faces, Jeffrey Katz, a former township prosecutor, and Jo Ann Pieper, a teacher in the Florence Gaudineer School.

Democrats Patricia Murphy and Michael Herzlinger will run on the their party's ticket. Murphy, a nurse, currently teaches, and Herzlinger, serves as chairman of the Rent Leveling Board.

The November election will provide the Democrats with an opportunity to control the committee unilaterally, while the Republicans will have a chance to maintain their current minority representation.

3 principals seek pact

The three principals in the Springfield school district are currently negotiating a contract with the Springfield Board of Education.

According to Dr. Robert Black,

Principal of the James Caldwell School, the principals, who have been working without a contract since June 1984, will attempt to negotiate a two-year agreement to cover the 1984-85 school year and the 1985-86 term.

Crimestoppers provide help in war on crime

By SHAWN EVANS
Across the nation, concerned citizens are becoming more and more assertive when it comes to aiding in the prevention of crime, statistics indicate.

Programs have sprouted up, snowballing from one state to the next, in an effort to detect criminal activities.

One such program is the Union County Crimestoppers, which just turned four years old.

According to Assistant Prosecutor Robert O'Leary, the non-profit organization is patterned after the Crimestoppers program in New Crimestoppers program rewards the callers based on information leading to arrest and indictment.

"Our program pays out the money based on the information that leads to arrest and indictment and the caller remains anonymous," O'Leary said.

To date, some 150 Union County citizens have claimed the special number, 1-800-333-3333, to give crime information without having to give their name or identity themselves in anyway, O'Leary said.

Elaboration of the particular procedure, O'Leary explained, that the caller must provide a name, address, telephone number, and a

DOT paves Rt. 22

The Department of Transportation has begun paving Route 22 at Fadem Road, Springfield. Paving work, which will stretch to Chestnut Street, Union, will get started after 10 p.m. and end before 6 a.m., Monday through Friday, the DOT said. One lane will be paved at a time, with the entire project expected to be completed in four months.

Responsibility for legal fees in assault case still in doubt

By VICTORIA VREELAND
Pending the outcome of a move to reinstate an assault complaint against two teachers in the Florence Gaudineer School, the Springfield Board of Education has been advised by its attorney to not pay legal fees submitted by the teachers' attorneys.

Yale Greenspoon, board attorney, said the school board is responsible for the teachers' legal costs only if they are found not guilty, or in the event the present status of the case remains the same and it is not reopened.

Both teachers pleaded not-guilty to the charge in Springfield Municipal Court before the case was transferred to Summit.

On April 15, the complaint filed against Joseph Blanda and Jo Ann Pieper for allegedly assaulting a sixth-grade student was dismissed in Summit Municipal Court for lack of prosecution. Judge Russell Hulsizer dismissed the case when Donald Rinaldo, attorney for Sue DiNorchio, the plaintiff, did not show up for the trial.

Richard Uslan, attorney for Blanda, who has called the complaint "groundless," told the court he was prepared to have as many as 15 witnesses testify. After approximately an hour's wait, Hulsizer dismissed the case.

Greenspoon asked the court for permission to impose sanctions on Rinaldo to help recover expenses of about $800 the board would incur for the day in court. According to Hulsizer, the amount included his fee, along with the cost of hiring substitutes to cover for the defendants and teachers who were scheduled to testify.

Hulsizer ruled the board would have to file a formal motion to impose sanctions. At this time, however, it has declined to do so, according to Board President Stuart Applebaum.

Later in the day of the trial, Rinaldo's office conveyed he was not in court because of a problem in communication between his office and the Summit court clerk's office. Rinaldo's secretary, Katherine Waldie, said she was asked to request an adjournment for Rinaldo who notified her he would be tied up in court for the morning. Waldie said she was assured by Summit Municipal officials the adjournment had been granted.

Rinaldo's office filed a motion last week for consideration to reinstate the trial. If accepted, a new trial will be scheduled. In the event it is rejected, the board will be responsible for the defendants' attorneys fees and Greenspoon will advise it to base the reimbursement only on "reasonable fees."

Oral arguments to determine whether or not the case will be reopened will be heard in Summit Monday morning.

Once the board decides, the individual is paid as soon as the criminal is arrested or indicted.

O'Leary said there is already more than $3,000 in the treasury, and rewards in excess of $500 have already been approved with additional recommendations on the way. The awards range from $25 to $500.

"But the majority of the people aren't even interested in collecting the money, they place the call out of civic-mindedness," O'Leary said.

Although a few of the calls may be pranks, he said that well over 90 percent of the calls are legitimate.

"Types of cases range from welfare fraud, official collections, the seizure of property, and the tracking of stolen property," O'Leary explained.

Investigators Association, the School Administrators of Union County and the Union County Juvenile Officers Association.

Although there are only a handful of Crimestoppers programs in New Jersey, O'Leary said, there are more than 420 programs in operation nationwide.

These programs, he said, have assisted in solving 50,637 felony cases and the recovery of $207,651,965 in stolen property and drug seizures.

For calls, O'Leary said there is someone at the phone 24-hours a day and the crimes may be reported from anywhere in Union County.

Anyone wishing more information about the county program may write to O'Leary, P.O. Box 500, 136 Jefferson Ave., Elizabeth, 07207.

Spring 'makeovers'
"Women automatically update their wardrobes season to season but often don't think to do the same with their hair and makeup," says Glemby hairstylist Paul Lyons. "And it doesn't necessarily have to be anything drastic," he adds. From May 13-15, women will have an opportunity to get a fresh, new look when Lyons, a makeover specialist, makes an exclusive appearance at Glemby's beauty salon in Abraham & Straus in Short Hills. During these three days, he will be doing hair makeovers by appointment only while a Glemby makeup artist helps each customer to make the most of her beauty potential. Lyons, whose hairstyling has been featured in top national magazines like Family Circle and Mademoiselle, begins each makeover with an in-depth consultation so that he understands the customer's lifestyle and needs. Other considerations that he takes into account are the women's dexterity with styling appliances and how much time she wants to spend on her hair. The basic makeover package includes a consultation, haircut, conditioner, blowdry, skin care and makeup analysis, makeup application and manicure. Optional services available are hair coloring (both, single process and dimension), a permanent wave and a European facial. Abraham & Straus' charge card can be used to pay for the makeover. Appointments with Paul Lyons can be made by calling 467-0800.

Hollywood's golden era The nice guy tells all

By BEA SMITH

What does the name Eddie Bracken mean to you? Well, if you're a patron of the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn, you'll say, "he's the star of 'Show Boat.'"

But if you're a movie buff, you'll say something like, "Betty Hutton, Paramount Pictures... Preston Sturges... 'Miracle of Morgan's Creek.'"

"Hey! How about the best of his 20 movies, 'Hail the Conquering Hero?'"

This reporter was halted by the "Conquering Hero" and nice guy of stage and films for more years than one wants to remember last week, and accompanied by Albertina Reilly, public relations gal over at the Paper Mill, gathered into his car and whisked off to the elegant restaurant, 40 Main Street, for lunch. Before we were out of the Paper Mill parking lot, that nice guy Bracken (perhaps being nice has been the secret of his success) was boasting about a new movie script that he had just finished writing. "You have the exclusive on it," Bracken said to this reporter. "It's called 'Reggie.' Originally, it was a play, optioned by Producer Alfredo Leone, who found the changes excellent. It has a wholesome look about it. It would be a vehicle for Christie Brinkley or Helen Turner. It's a mystery, and my wife and I didn't like it at all. But now she's excited about it. Then I presented it to National Lampoon and Matty Simmons, who produced my last movie, 'Vacations,' about a year ago, and he loved it, and within the next three or four months it should be made!"

Arriving at our destination, the veteran actor and straight comedy man opened the car door and said in a voice that cracked movie-goers up for more than 40 years, "You don't mind my being a male chauvinist pig? Do you?"

By the time we had wiped away our tears of laughter, we were seated in the restaurant and talking about Bracken's 10 years at Paramount Studios. "We were like one big family at Paramount," he recalled. "I came to that studio in 1939," Bracken said, "and the one person of all the people I felt closest to was Betty Hutton."

Bracken starred with Hutton, Paramount's blonde bombshell, in "The Fleet's In," "Star Spangled Rhythm," (both made in 1942), "Happy Go Lucky," (1943), the classic "Miracle of Morgan's Creek," (1944) and "Duffy's Tavern" (1945).

"I always loved her as a right guy, a buddy. We used to pitch around, between takes of our movies, a rough and tumble gal, all woman, but very boyish. We got along very well."

Bracken grinned, remembering how the studio kept adding scenes for Betty in "Miracle," and Eddie retaliating by BLONDE BOMBHELL—Betty Hutton overwhelms Eddie Bracken, above, in "The Fleet's In," a Paramount Picture made in 1942. Below, Bracken and Hutton in the classic, "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek," one of five movies in which the two co-starred.

"sneezing...and getting a lot of footage, or stuttering, for more footage, or moving my hands, upstaging Betty...My fight," he said, "was with the studio, not Betty. You know," Bracken laughed. "Danny Thomas has eight prints of 'Miracle' to make sure they don't wear out, and to this day, he considers it an education on what and how to upstage an actress."

Despite all that, Bracken considers Betty one of his dearest friends. "At Paramount, there really was no one around who could help her with her acting, and I did. After 'Miracle,' I never upstaged her again. Four years ago, I received an award in Washington, D. C. I wouldn't accept it without Betty Hutton there. I called her, promised to meet her at the plane. She came down there, and I never was so proud as at that moment to see her. You know, after all her troubles and problems, Betty truly did find her way. And she's wonderful!"

Bracken has had two pictures accepted for the archives in Washington. "I'm probably the only actor who has two pictures in there," he said.

One of Bracken's first movies he made at Paramount was (in February 1940) "Life With Henry," starring Jackie Cooper. Another one of the movies he remembers so well is "Young and Willing," with young hopefuls, Susan Hayward, William Holden, Barbara Britton, James Brown (the actor), and which also starred William Bendley and Mable Paige.

"What was Susan Hayward like back then?" asks Bracken. "Very strong, determined...a fiery redhead, who knew what she wanted, and went after it. We got along very well. She even mentioned me in her book."

"And Holden...he was on his way up. We were very close. It really was like a family back then. I never worked with Alan Ladd or Bob Preston, but we were very close. We used to have parties at the studio every night, with all the stars including Bob Hope and Bing Crosby...Bill Demarest. I remember, early on, I was having lunch at the studio with Hedda Hopper, who told me that Cecil B. DeMille was like God. So when C. B. walked into the commissary, I got on my knees and bowed. Ever since then, I had lunch with him practically every day. He treated me like I was his son. He was just an adorable man."

When Bracken was assigned to do "Out of This World," his role called for a crooning voice every time he caught a cold. "I didn't want to do it," he said, "and I went on suspension. That was because they wanted to use Buddy Clark's voice. One day, I went to NBC Studios, where Bing Crosby had his radio show, and I said to him, 'I want them to use your voice, not Clark's. It's a story about Frank Sinatra, and would you think about this?' And

Rebecca's forecast

For week of May 2 through May 9

ARIES (3/21-4/20) The only part of this period will intensify matters related to money, tax or insurance matters. Don't be afraid to examine new options that will increase your long-term security. Later, expect to be on the go. Travel will be on the agenda for many. Distant news is unsettling at best; friendships fly.

TAURUS (4/21-5/21) Your own personal ambitions will be extremely important during this period; key alliances assume importance; and continue to pay careful attention to confidential goings on in career matters. Later, financial news is uplifting; legal or credit matters are indicated; and those at a distance provoke concern.

GEMINI (5/22-6/21) This continues to be a somewhat stressful period for many in health, career or personal matters and additional restrictions or obligations are indicated. Later, steer clear of financial discussions; don't count on others; and matters related to children may be troublesome during this period.

CANCER (6/22-7/23) The spotlight is on romance early in this week; take advantage of the opportunities that are bound to come your way! This is a good time to air your opinions and ideas; they will be well received. Later, avoid your notorious meanness; give others the benefit of the doubt and lend your help.

LEO (7/24-8/23) This promises to be an important week for communications, correspondence and future planning. Domestic or property interests or arrangements assume importance and a change in residence or living arrangements is in store for some. Later, everyday encounters provoke friction for many.

VIRGO (8/24-9/23) You can reap the rewards financially if you're on your toes early in this period. Travel or social plans are subject to last minute changes and communications foul-ups may be the culprit. Later in this period, domestic matters are turbulent and intimate relationships feel the strain.

LIBRA (9/24-10/23) Spending is likely to revolve around home, family or property interests for many; sick to necessities as much as possible. Legal papers are indicated for some; a pleasant surprise may be in store. Be on the lookout for new romantic opportunities and a job offer could shock or surprise you.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/23) To make any headway during this period you will need another's help or co-operative spirit. All of your important alliances are interested in the weeks ahead. An unsettling disclosure may be in the offing. Later, everyday dealings tilt your spirits and opportunities from the past resurface.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21) This is a good time to tackle neglected chores or unfinished business. You may be feeling a bit introspective and some time alone may yield important answers regarding personal matters. Later, marital ties are touchy; important goings on are revealed; and health issues provoke concern.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/20) Career, family and outside interests via your attention early in this week; some longstanding ties may be re-activated; and learn to seek co-operation without an overbearing attitude.

AQUARIUS (1/21-2/19) You can expect a lot of activity in property and domestic matters in coming weeks; a career advancement may be in the works for some, and exciting encounters are in store for others.

PISCES (2/20-3/20) Matters related to local travel, communications or study will assume importance for many. Partnerships could be disappointing if you're not realistic and new beginnings are auspicious for many. Later, the social scene is activated; family gatherings are indicated; and a better financial picture emerges.

Craft show on tap for Sunday

Artists and craftsmen are invited to participate in the first annual Rahway Arts & Crafts Show scheduled for Sunday in the historic district.

The program will be coordinated with a re-enactment of the visit of the Marquis de Lafayette, on his triumphant tour of America after the revolution in 1824.

Vendors may begin setting up at 9 a.m. The show will run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The first in a series of events marking a program of cooperation between the city and the merchants in the Rahway Economic Development Committee, the all-day exhibition will include a minipageant with 13 girls from the Devaney School of Dance, portraying the 13 original states.

Artists, sculptors, photographers and craftspersons are invited to compete by Mike Freda, chairman of the economic development committee of the Rahway Merchants Association.

Anyone desiring to enter is asked to send $15 and an application to Freda at 1483 Main St., Rahway.

The big show will be kicked off with a lively re-enactment of the visit of the Marquis de Lafayette to Rahway as part of his ceremonial tour of the United States in 1824.

Mayor Daniel L. Martin invites all history buffs, antique lovers, bargain hunters and people who will enjoy a lively day of shopping to participate.

YOUTH AMBASSADOR—Darren Halliowski of Union, high youth ambassador for the American Lung Association of Central New Jersey, gives five-year-old Danny Vaupel of Rahway a few hints on 'better breathing' in preparation for 'Superstuff Saturday', a day-long program for children with asthma and their parents. The program will be held Saturday from 8:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside. Cheree M. Posch, center, is nurse educator at the hospital.

ALA plans a 'super' Saturday

Children's Specialized Hospital and the American Lung Association of Central New Jersey will hold "Superstuff Saturday," a day-long family education program for children with asthma and their parents Saturday.

According to the Cheree M. Posch, nurse educator at Children's Specialized Hospital and coordinator of the program, "Superstuff Saturday" is structured to meet the needs of the elementary school child, ages five and above. Planned activities include sessions with physicians, a family counselor and a respiratory therapist. Portions of the day will be devoted to breathing instruction and relaxation techniques as well as group discussions.

Each family will receive a copy of "Superstuff," a self-help program designed by the American Lung Association for children with asthma. The kit contains a fully illustrated 86-page book of activities which teach children about coping with asthma. The book utilizes games, riddles and puzzles, stories and art activities to help the child learn about the disease.

More than 120,000 children in New Jersey suffer from asthma. The disease accounts for about half of all chronic illnesses among children in the United States and is the number one cause of school absenteeism.

"Asthma can be a frightening experience for a child," says Posch, "but knowledge about it can help overcome that fear. 'Superstuff Saturday' is designed to teach children about asthma in a relaxed, fun-oriented environment. 'Our goal,' she adds, "is to provide them with the knowledge and skills they need to control the disease."

"Superstuff Saturday" will be held at Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountainside from 8:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. To register for the program, contact the Lung Association in Clark or Posch at Children's Specialized Hospital, 233-3720.
