AN EXTRA SET OF JAWS — Mayor Jeffrey Katz accepts a new Hurst tool, known as the 'jaws of life' from members of the Springfield Volunteer Fire Department. The tool is a back-up set to be used by members of the

Cable hook-up may change

By PAUL PEYTON

In an effort to improve the capability of the regional district's television programming, representatives from Suburban Cablevision Co. gave a brief presentation before the Union County Regional Board of Education Tuesday night.

The board wants six communities in the district to tie into one cable system. Bob Ritchie, vice-president of engineering, told the board that Berkeley Heights and Springfield are currently hooked up to the company's Summit hub, which is a multi-access channel. The problem the district faces is that Mountainside is hooked into the Scotch Plains hub and thus does not get to view programs about Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield.

Ritchie said if the programming were broadcast out of Governor Livingston High School in Berkeley Heights, it would be possible to hook the Summit and Scotch Plains hubs into the same system. If this project were done, Springfield, Mountainside and Berkeley Heights would be able to view the same live district programs.

Kenilworth and Garwood do not have any community access channels. However, Ritchie said plans are being discussed to hook Garwood into the Roselle hub. This would allow residents of Kenilworth and Garwood to view programs on David Brainer Regional High School.

Board member John Conlin explained that the district presently can broadcast a taped program at different times to the six communities.

The district, also, has the capability to broadcast a program to the entire suburban area. There is no charge, although, the district would have to reserve time in advance.

Ritchie said the cost to hook up Governor Livingston, Jonathan Dayton, David Brainer in Kenilworth and Arthur L. Johnson in Clark, into a closed circuit television channel would be $175,000.

Starting in September the district will begin television broadcasting and television production courses for students at the four high schools.

Other business student leaders at the four high schools presented the board with a proposal which would permit a student representative to sit on the board.

The proposal stated that the student representative would have "full speaking rights" all he would not be a voting member. The chosen student would also not be permitted to attend closed session meetings of the board.

Student representatives from each of the four schools be chosen by a selection committee. The committee would consist of personnel from each school in addition to student officers.

A student could also be chosen by faculty nominations submitted to the committee. Students could also apply for the post.

Only of the four representatives would actually sit on the board. The four, however, would meet before and after each meeting to discuss what topics they would like the board to address.

The matter was turned over to the Student Affairs Committee by Nattie Walz, board president. The committee consist of Margaret Hough, chairperson, Harold Donaldson and Virginia Muskus.

Fund drive nets 'jaws of life'

By JOHN A. GAVIN

Thanks to the donations of citizens in the annual Springfield Volunteer Fire Department Fund Drive and the purchasing efforts of volunteer firefighters, Springfielders can feel a little more safe.

On Feb. 23, members of the Springfield Volunteer Fire Department officially donated a brand new Hurst tool to the town. The tool, which is known as the "jaws of life," is shaped like two giant chisels wedged together and powered by a gasoline motor.

The machine is designed to groove an opening into any type of metal using 12,000 pounds of pressure per square inch. Whether a victim is trapped under the steering wheel of an automobile or lodged behind a jammed door, the tool can be used to shear a door open or cut the roof off a car. A special chain linked to the motor can even be used to lift a cargo trailer off another vehicle.

According to Marcel Campion, president of the local volunteer unit and a captain on the squad, the tool was "purchased at a discount" for $11,000. He said that those funds were raised as a result of last year's fund drive.

In accepting the new tool, Mayor Jeffrey Katz said, that the town will benefit from its availability in case the main "jaws of life" is at another location.

"We do have a 'jaws of life' tool which is assigned to the first engine," explained Katz. "That engine ordinarily will be the first at the scene of an emergency and quite often is tied up in the area of Route 124 and 78.

"Because it's taken out of town for long periods of time, that leaves us without a 'jaws of life' if we do have someone trapped in a vehicle. So we do need the extra 'jaws of life' tool in case that kind of emergency arises."

As about 15 volunteers gathered at a regular training session, after Katz and Deputy Mayor Jo-Ann Pleper officially accepted the tool, the main topic of conversation was the recent increase of traffic accidents on Route 22 and Interstate 78.

Just three weeks ago, a tractor trailer truck carrying toxic chemicals jackknifed on Route 22 snarling traffic for almost four hours.

According to fire officials, there have been many serious accidents recently on Interstate 78 due to the high rate of speed of the traffic.

In addition, Springfield's fire department and first aid squad have been receiving a sizable portion of the calls within the stretch of highway bordering Springfield and parts of Union and Millburn due to the logistics of the highway and ramp accessibility.

With the increased accident rate, local firefighters expressed delight in purchasing the new life-saving tool. However, as in years past, they stress that the unit is "in need of volunteers." The volunteer unit is seeking applicants between 18 and 40 years of age. Anyone interested in joining the volunteer fire unit can pick up an application at the fire station.

While the volunteer firefighters wait for additional volunteers, they at least have the comfort of knowing that their job will be a little easier, thanks to the new "jaws of life" tool.

"It now enables the Springfield Fire Department to have two sets of 'jaws' to better meet the emergency needs of the town," said Campion.

Condo trash fees are higher

By JOHN A. GAVIN

For Sue Schneiderman and about 20 other Springfield condominium owners, last year's garbage crisis didn't resolve itself when a judge ordered a Pennsylvania landfill to remain open to handle garbage from New Jersey. Like many other Union County residents, she has gotten used to the fact that her garbage is being sent to a local transfer station before being shipped to a Keystone State landfill. However, she and her neighbors are not happy having to pay those increased garbage costs.

Like all property owners, Schneiderman, who owns a unit in Evergreen Pines Condominiums, pays local property taxes, which include municipal garbage pickup services. However, she also pays a private disposal service in her monthly grounds maintenance fee. She and her condominium neighbors say they are "paying double" to have their garbage carted off to Pennsylvania.

"We have been paying for a garbage pickup in our taxes and also have been paying for a private scavenger," says Schneiderman. "I feel that as long as we're taxed, and there's not going to be a reduction in our taxes, that there's no reason that the township can't start picking up our garbage...We would be glad to put it out at curbside."

In fact, Evergreen residents have been paying double rates for garbage pickup ever since the complex converted into a condominium about 10 years ago.

However, that increased cost did not make a full impact on the residents until early this month when they received their disposal bill from Blue and White Disposal Service in Westfield.

With the January closing of the Edgeboro Disposal Company landfill in East Brunswick, Evergreen residents saw their garbage costs skyrocket when the disposal service started carting their trash to Pennsylvania.

At last Tuesday's Springfield township meeting, Schneiderman produced two monthly garbage bills showing the increased pickup costs from December 1987 to January 1988. In December, the bill was for $428.82. One month later, however, the bill jumped to $888.04.

Although the owners of the 20 condo units share the monthly garbage cost, they agree that such a bill is exorbitant and say that they should be given some kind of compensation or allowed to put garbage out at curbside for municipal pickup.

"I don't think we should be paying that kind of money," says Linda Mezo, the president of the condominium association. "In fact, I think we should get a rebate since the condominium has been paying a private scavenger for several years. We should not be taxed double."

Mezo and other owners are quick to point to other New Jersey towns where condominium owners have sued the townships to seek restitution for paying "double costs" on garbage collection.

For example, in Sayreville the borough council has agreed to partially reimburse homeowner associations in seven condominium developments for costs of garbage collection and street lighting.

However, local officials have been careful to review decisions in several towns before coming to a conclusion on how to solve the problem in Springfield. Making note of current cases in Mt. Laurel and Edison, Jay Kloud, the township attorney, says he is "waiting to receive a complete package of information on the subject before making a decision."

Although condominium groups have had success in Sayreville, Kloud says he has been monitoring the developments in an Edison court case. In that case, an apartment owner has sued the township for refusal to pick up trash from the complex. Kloud says that the town has won verdicts in superior and appellate court and the case is currently being heard on appeal in state supreme court.

"What has been apparently held is that municipal services are based not upon a need of service situation but taxes are imposed upon value of

Trash will be topic

The connection between garbage disposal and rising property taxes in Springfield will be explored at a public meeting to be held at the Municipal Building March 9, at 8 p.m. The discussion will be sponsored jointly by the Springfield League of Women Voters and Springfield Environmental Commission.

Thomas Delacruz, environmental specialist with the Union County Utilities Authority, will talk about the proposed county resource recovery facility, while members of the sponsoring groups will outline the reasons for the steep climb in garbage disposal rates over the past two years. The county recycling program and the roles of the freeholders and the Union County Utilities Authority will be considered as well.

The public is invited to attend the meeting, which will include a question and answer period. Additional information can be obtained by calling Bea Lovitow, 467-8278.

EXPENSIVE PROPOSITION — Sue Schneiderman, a condominium owner, throws a sack of garbage in a dumpster near her home. Like other Union County residents, she is paying to have it carted off to Pennsylvania. However, she pays 'double costs' for garbage service.

Court docket

Failure to adhere to local sanitation codes proved costly to owners of a local restaurant Monday night in Springfield Municipal Court.

Principals of Jimmy Woo's Chinese Restaurant pleaded guilty to six counts of health code violations which totaled $660 in fines. The restaurant, located on Morris Avenue, was cited for failure to store utensils in a clean location, failure to maintain clean floors, failure to protect stored food from contamination, failure to keep cooking surfaces clean, failure to maintain non-food contact surfaces clean and storage of food containers directly on the floor.

The restaurant owners were fined $50 and ordered to pay $10 in court costs for each infraction.

In other court hearings, three New Jersey men were cited for driving while intoxicated.

Michael Harris Jr., 46, Hackettstown, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of alcohol. He was fined $250 and ordered to pay a $100 surcharge and $15 in court costs. His driver's license was revoked for six months.

Johnny Payne, 37, Irvington, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of alcohol. He was fined $250 and ordered to pay a $100 surcharge and $15 in court costs. In addition, his driver's license was ordered to spend 12 hours in the Intoxicated Drivers Recovery Center.

Jonathan H. Tepper, 24, South Orange, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of alcohol. He was fined $250 and ordered to pay a $100 surcharge and $15 in court costs. Also, his driver's license was revoked for six months and he was ordered to spend 12 hours in IDRC.

In addition, Tepper also pleaded guilty to refusing to take a breathalyzer test. For that infraction he was ordered to pay a $250 fine and $15 in court costs. He also received another six month revocation of his license which will run concurrently with the other driving suspension.

Police blotter

Springfield police and members of the Union County Narcotics Strike Force arrested two men at a Temple Drive home and charged them with possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to sell.

On Feb. 25 at about 10 p.m., local police and the county narcotics agents raided the home of Daniel Roy Goldstein, 33, and charged him with possession of the illegal drug and four counts of intent to distribute the drug. Also named was Johnny Ray Baker, 35, Newark, who is also charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to sell.

Goldstein, who told police that he's unemployed, was arrested by officer Emilio Vantalis. Baker, a truck driver, was arrested by officer Peter Davis.

Upon making the arrest, Detective Sgt. Robert Mason said, "The Springfield Police Department is going to take a hard line on the drug abuse problem. We hope that this arrest will be the first of many to follow."

The suspects were turned over to the county jail.

On Feb. 29, Brian Darryl Scott, 24, Newark, was arrested for driving

Mayor proclaims Red Cross month

The mayors of Berkeley Heights, New Providence, Passaic Township, Springfield and Summit have signed a joint statement proclaiming March as Red Cross Month appealing to residents to support the Red Cross with their contributions of time, skills and money. This proclamation follows a similar one taped by President Ronald Reagan for national broadcast.

The local Red Cross Chapter carries on year-round programs for the collection of blood; lending sick-room equipment, brailing for the blind; conducting first-aid and CPR courses for the public; conducting courses in water safety; offering blood-pressure checks; conducting courses in preparation for parenthood; transporting the aged and infirm to doctors' offices, hospitals and clinics; and lending its facilities to the "Safe-Rider" program.

It also maintains a Disaster Service and a program for assistance to the military, veterans and members of their families as mandated by the Federal Government.

The Red Cross receives no financial assistance from any government source—federal, state, county or local. It depends solely on contributions from businesses and individuals. The results of the March fund drive control the extent to which these programs can be carried out.

According to a study made by Business Week magazine in November, 1986 the Red Cross operates more efficiently than any other of the similar organizations studied.

Prospective volunteers are invited to call Ellen Dupont, executive director of the Summit Area Chapter at 273-2076. Contributors may send checks to the American Red Cross, Summit Area Chapter at 695 Springfield Ave., Summit, 07901.

Worker recognition is town hall's aim

BY JOHN A. GAVIN

When municipal employees in town hall, the municipal garage or the Sarah Bailey Civic Center stop to glance at a flyer with a picture of an ice cream cone, they are not getting information on a new ice-cream parlor that's just opened in town. The white placard, cleverly entitled "Here's the Scoop!" is a new announcement advertising a new Employee Recognition Program.

The program, which was recently approved by members of the Springfield Township Committee, recognizes publicly municipal employees whose performance is "outstanding." According to Mayor Jeffrey Katz, outstanding performance is determined by "sustained performance" on the job and "consistency of high quality." He added that that performance and consistency must contribute significantly to the goal of achieving 100 percent customer satisfaction.

There is no limit to the number of employees who can be recognized. Also, there is no limit to the number of recognition awards which may be received by any employee.

property," Kloud says in theorizing the verdict so far in the Edison case. "And a prime example is school tax. Probably half the people in town do not take advantage of schools, but they pay school tax. There is no incumbrance upon the municipality to provide the services."

With that breakdown, Schneiderman is quick to point out that she is already contributing significantly to the $125 a ton the towns pays to cart its garbage to Western Pennsylvania.

Significantly, none of the 20 households at Evergreen has any children attending Springfield public schools or Jonathan Dayton Regional High School. A check of the residents found many parents like Schneiderman with adult children and others with no children at all.

Cops seize 'drug house'

By all appearances, the house at 1006 Gifford Court would fit very well into some young couple's version of the American Dream, but it is even more significant to the Union County Prosecutor's office.

The two-family structure, valued at $275,000, is the first seized by the county for its use in the commission of a crime. More importantly, according to Assistant Prosecutor Robert O'Leary, the house seizure is a show of force by the prosecutor's office against criminals.

"We wanted to show criminals that we're going to seize anything we can," O'Leary said. "It's a 'crime doesn't pay' sort of thing."

The prosecutor's office was given title to the two-family home, which authorities believe was the base of operations for "mid-level" drug dealer Orlando Pontiero, in a decision handed down by Superior Court Judge Edward Troy.

Pontiero's drugs were known for being wrapped in glossy paper from adult magazines. Each package contained approximately a half-gram of cocaine, valued at about $50, authorities said.

Pontiero is currently serving a 10-year prison term for his September 1986 conviction on charges of possession of cocaine and marijuana with intent to distribute. Pontiero has been ordered to serve at least five years of the term before becoming eligible for parole.

O'Leary said police investigations determined that Pontiero lived in a first-floor apartment in the house, renting out the rest of the home.

The assistant prosecutor noted that most drug operations are run out of rented homes and apartments, making this operation somewhat unique.

Authorities said the defendant modified his apartment, using a secret compartment in a vacant bedroom to hide drugs.

When the suspect was arrested in 1984, O'Leary said, police confiscated $28,000 in drugs and cash.

Authorities said they became suspicious of Pontiero because he had been unemployed since 1979 with "no visible means of support."

The house will be sold at auction, authorities said, after a $58,000 mortgage lien is satisfied. Money from the sale will be turned over to law enforcement agencies involved in the case.

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders has announced that the Union County Baseball Association, an affiliated group of the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation, is seeking sponsors for its 1988 Youth Baseball League.

Sponsorships are available in the following categories: Pee-Wee League, ages 8 & 9, $65 per team; Midget League, ages 10 & 11, $75 per team; Youth League, ages 12 & 13, $125 per team; and, Teen League, ages 14 & 15, $150 per team.

To make a donation, or for information on how to help the youth of Union County enjoy this summer activity, call the Parks Department Office at 527-4900.

Imaginary world created

The fourth-grade discovery class of James Caldwell School, under the leadership of teacher Sandy Manes Einhorn, is involved in a simulation unit called "Caravans."

The students have been grouped into three teams and are taking an imaginary trip around the world, stopping at little-known places, gathering artifacts, and encountering various hazards which deter their progress.

"Faie cards," which deliver good or bad luck to the teams, are drawn at the start of each day's activities.

"Fun and learning have combined to make 'Caravans' an exciting exploration," Einhorn said.

February birthdays celebrated

Kenilworth Seniors held a birthday party Feb. 16. President—Charles Vitale introduced the following 18 members with February birthdays: the birthday members, Ginny Laps and her refreshment committee served birthday cake and coffee, while Joe Aragona played violin solos. About 100 members attended.

At a recent executive board committee chairman meeting, Vitale had the various committees make or ask for suggestions for the betterment of their services. The Building and Clara Cherone and nine songsters led the assembly in singing. Ann Londino made red pin cushions for the birthday members. Ginny Laps and her refreshment committee served birthday cake and coffee, while Joe Aragona played violin solos. About 100 members attended.

The schedule of meetings of the Board of Trustees of the Free Public Library of Mountside is as follows: Feb. 22, March 21, April 18, May 16, June 18, Sept. 19, Oct. 17, Nov. 21, and Dec. 19.

All meetings will be held in the Emma-Weber Meeting Room at the library at 8 p.m.

Camp director is named

The YM-YWHA of Union County announces the appointment of Jan Kovacs of Springfield as Y-Ho-Ca Camp director. Kovacs has been on staff at the Y for over three years as the physical education and health director.

Other programs coming to the Y this year are Israeli dancing, drama, gymnastics, farming, horseback riding, golf, tennis, cooking and nutrition workshops.

There will still be the traditional Oneg Shabbat program, overnights, family barbecues, twice-a-day swim programs, carnivals, masquerades, and on-site entertainment.

School signups end tomorrow

Fashion

SPRING BLOOMS are always a welcome sight, especially Echo's delicate peony print skirt — a big square to toss over the shoulders and brighten a spring pantsuit. Belt it discreetly with a narrow embossed crocodile belt.

Men's spring line is 'typical'

Spring fashions will reflect the "typical" American male, the only problem is there's no defining the typical American male.

"The American breed is electric, a mixture of races, culture and traditions woven together in a diverse tapestry," said Joe Haggard III, president of Haggard Men's Wear. "This spring, fashion will show the same diversity, expressed in multiple styles, colors and textures."

The company features both American and European-style cuts in its suits, sport coats and slacks for spring. The Haggard line is designed to outfit both the conservative businessman and the avant-garde artist in styles suitable for both.

Casual wear fairly burst with garden colors — mint, rose, periwinkle. Even seemingly conservative attire betrays dashes of spring. Haggard weaves pastel blue, teal and burnt orange into suits, sport coats and slacks of gray, navy and beige.

Texture, this season, is as expressive as color in its variations. Wool, silk, cotton, linen and rayon blends produce fabrics now soft and sleek, now gritty and rugged.

So what is the "typical American" look for spring? "The Haggard spring lines respond by rephrasing the question," Mr. Haggard says. "It's not the American look we're expressing, but the American look."

Galley by Haggard offers slacks, sports coats and suits for the young, fitness-oriented man. Wool and

European styles affect fashions

Ever since Columbus stumbled across the undiscovered continent, American culture has borne a European stamp. The European influence manifests itself again this spring via Gallery International, a new line of men's fashions by Haggard Apparel Company.

"Gallery International expands our Gallery by Haggard line by introducing European styling to the fitness — and fashion-conscious young man," says Joe Haggard III, president of Haggard Men's Wear. "Gallery International offers the same trim fit for the active man, but with a decidedly international flair."

Gallery International features sport coats and slacks that can be combined for a business look or a more casual appearance. The slacks feature a high waist, deep double pleats, a button-front closure, bottom front pockets and 1/2-inch cuffs. Sport coats are single-breasted and ventless, with lower-placed buttons and wide shoulders. The coats feature besom pockets, angled inside pockets and soft interlinings with a natural feel.

"The European cut updates traditional styling and affords a sleek, contemporary silhouette," Mr. Haggard says. "Gallery International expresses the tastes of men at the forefront of fashion, those seeking a bold, even avant-garde image.

"Texture is as versatile and expressive as color in the Gallery International line."
Joe Haggard

Gallery International offers a variety of stripes and plaids in neutral beige, gray and navy. Rays of spring color, pastel blue, lavender and rose, spin through the fabrics.

Wool, silk, rayon and linen blends give the line a textural variety as well. A hooklike slack blending rayon and linen, for example, has a more rugged look and feel than a slack of rayon and silk in a linen weave. "Texture is as versatile and expressive as color in the Gallery International line," Haggard says.

Gallery International is the latest achievement in diversification of Haggard fashions. The company recently introduced EZ's and Gallery by Haggard Casuals, two lines of men's casual pants.

"The changes in the Haggard lines is not all that surprising when you consider the changing American male," Haggard says. "No single style will capture his many variations. The obvious answer is diversity."

Boright appointment upheld

By DONNA SCHUSTER

Controversy surrounding the recent appointment of a freeholder as a voting member of the Runnells Hospital Advisory Board of Managers came to light last week and continues to spark debate despite the county council's determination that the action was legal.

Advisory board member Luther Smythe charged last week that the appointment of Freeholder Walter Boright to the hospital board violated the board's by-laws. Smythe claimed that the Freeholders' own resolution prohibited the appointment of Boright as an officer and voting member. Boright previously served as Freeholder liaison to the hospital.

At issue too, was the validity of the January meeting of the Advisory Board when officer elections were held. The terms of two of the five members present had expired Dec. 31, 1987, and County Counsel Robert Doherty has ruled the meeting — and the election of officers which took place — illegal.

Doherty, in a written opinion requested by Freeholders Paul O'Keeffe and William Eldridge, stated that the Administrative Code of the County allows one freeholder to hold a voting position on each advisory board.

He also wrote that "the by-laws of the Runnells Advisory Board contain no prohibition against a Freeholder serving as an officer." Doherty said the Administrative Code is an ordinance and takes precedence over the resolution referred to by Smythe.

At the February meeting of the hospital board, Boright "look over the meeting and conducted the election of new officers," said Smythe. Boright told the members present that the January meeting was illegal and new officers were to be elected again, Smythe recalled.

Bush, Dawkins get GOP nod

Also Eldridge, Fulcomer, Shields

Union County Republicans gave the official nod this week to Pete Dawkins, candidate for United States Senate. Dawkins, who officially announced his candidacy on Monday, will go up against Senator Frank Lautenberg.

Governor Thomas H. Kean is serving as Dawkins' campaign chairman. The 49-year-old Rhodes Scholar, who resides in Rumson, is a graduate of West Point Academy, Princeton University, and Oxford University.

Dawkins is a retired brigadier general who served in the Vietnam War, and is a former deputy director of the Army's Office of Strategy, Plans and Policy. This is his first attempt to hold public office.

"Pete possesses the depth of knowledge and the breadth of experience which will serve the people of New Jersey and the people of the nation extraordinarily well," Kean stated at a Trenton press conference on Monday.

The county convention was held Saturday at Union High School and drew about 1,000 people.

Vice President George Bush got the go-ahead from Union

PETE DAWKINS
County residents during a presidential preference poll. U.S. Rep. Matthew Rinaldo was nominated for what will be his eighth congressional bid.

Locally, Freeholders William Eldridge and James Fulcomer maintained support to seek nomination in the Primary Election. Winfield Park's Peter Shields is the Republican nominee for the unexpired term of the seat now held by Democratic Freeholder Walter E. Boright.

Springfield Deputy Mayor JoAnn Pieper will seek election to the position of county Register of mortgages and deeds.

Houdaille Quarry worries SCOPE

By DONNA SCHUSTER

About a dozen Springfield and Summit residents descended on the freeholders last week to voice concern over what they call a lack of official information regarding the status of Houdaille Quarry, a 136-acre tract of land that sits between the two municipalities.

The members of SCOPE (Summit Citizens Organized to Protect the Environment) told the Board of Freeholders that they have contacted the state Department of Transportation, which owns most of the land, in an attempt to find out what the state intends to do with it.

The quarry was owned and operated by Houdaille Construction Materials, Inc. for many years before it sold the acreage to DOT. The land was used as a fill site during the construction of the missing link portion of Route 78.

The land owned by DOT surrounds 77 acres which is owned by Union County. It was given to the county by the state as compensation for parkland lost during highway construction.

SCOPE spokesperson Marilyn Schneider told the freeholders that her organization had hoped that the state would donate the surrounding 100 acres to the county. It would be maintained, she said, as part of the state's commitment to land preservation.

"We want to know what you — the county officials — know about all this," said Schneider, who added that a recent correspondence with

Counselors available

Funded through the New Jersey Division on Aging, SHIP provides counselors who work one-on-one with senior citizens. The counselors, who volunteer their services, will not sell, solicit or endorse any insurance policies, according to information provided by the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs.

The Senior Health Insurance Program can help senior citizens and family members acting on their behalf to fill out health insurance claims.

Seniors can call St. Elizabeth Hospital at 527-5136 to make an appointment with a SHIP counselor. Counselors are available for appointments on Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Travel hotline open

A new toll-free number, 1-800-JERSEY-7, or 537-7397, has been launched this month by the New Jersey Division of Travel and Tourism.

"We are very excited about our new 800 number," said Noreen G. Bodman, director of the state Department of Commerce and Economic Development's Division of Travel and Tourism. "The implementation of this service will act as a modern and efficient resource to consumers throughout the United States and Canada. New Jersey vacations are now just a phone call away."

The division expects this 800 number will provide new and valuable insights to aid in the planning of future marketing and promotional activities, as it will show from where literature requests come.

New Jersey's award-winning vacation guides, available Monday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to noon, and at Rahway Pool, Rahway, on Thursday evenings from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

Swimming times change

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders has announced that beginning this week the Department of Parks and Recreation will run a year-round recreational therapeutic swim program for the handicapped.

As part of the "Leisure: Independence for the Handicapped" program, the department's summer swim program has been expanded through the winter months, to include weekly swimming at the Fanwood-Scotts Plains YMCA.

Every Tuesday evening, from now through June 14, and Sept. 13 through Dec. 27, handicapped individuals ages 6 and up may swim at the YMCA, free of charge, from 8-8:45 p.m. The sessions are offered as an hour of open swimming, but lifeguards will be available to offer limited instructions when necessary. There is no pre-registration.

During the summer months, handicapped swim sessions will be held at Wheeler Pool, Linden, each Monday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to noon, and at Rahway Pool, Rahway, on Thursday evenings from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

This program has been funded through a grant from the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs, Handicapped Persons' Recreational Opportunities Act, and is run in cooperation with the Fanwood-Scotts Plains YMCA. For information call 527-4930.

Safety tags offered

As part of its program to promote child safety, the Elizabethtown Gas Company is offering free child identification tags to schools in its service area.

Sullivan noted, "For the past two years, Elizabethtown Gas has featured the photographs and descriptions of missing children on our monthly bill inserts, and has distributed child safety brochures at our bill-paying locations. In addition, our 'Radio Watch' program enlists children who've lost or in trouble to use Elizabethtown's radio-equipped vehicles to call for assistance. Our decision to offer these free child identification tags is a natural extension of this program."

The tags offer space to fill in the child's name, address and phone number, medical information; parent's phone number, and other identification which is vital in identifying and helping a child who may be lost or injured, Sullivan said. The tags are made of tear-resistant fiber and imprinted with indelible ink. They can be sewn into shirt collars, trouser waistbands, and other

Union gymnast has the 'Wright' stuff

By DAN BLACKWELL
It is seldom when a natural talent is discovered in someone at the innocent age of four. But Mary and Leo Wright of Union appear to have done just that. They believe that their daughter Rachel was born to be a gymnast.

Reading in the Vauxhall area of Union, the Wright family has the advantages of having Herbert F. Davis Park as their backyard. So they didn't have to worry about sending Rachel out to play in the streets, or wondering where in the neighborhood their daughter had drifted to.

They simply sent Rachel to the park where they could keep an eye on her from their porch overlooking the large facility.

"Rachel would stay at the park all day," recalled Mary Wright. "While looking after her, I began to notice that she had an unusual amount of energy for a four-year old. I also noticed that she was always running, jumping, and trying to do stunts that she would see the older kids doing on the apparatus in the park."

But when Rachel came home with a broken arm one day, Mary began to give serious thought to how her daughter could use her energy more constructively.

Rachel was back at the park as soon as the cast came off and Mary decided that it was time to enroll Rachel in the Kathleen Louise Tap and Ballet School. Rachel, of course, didn't know what she was in for, but managed to take it all in stride, attending the school for three years.

During those three years, Rachel participated in various activities and received many honors, including the "outstanding achievement" award in the summer gymnastics program at Union High School, and the "Certificate of merit" for her study skills, as well as various other ribbons.

She was also honored with performing the encore on the balance beam at the year-end show for the summer program.

"After a while, I got bored doing what I was doing," said Rachel in speaking of her activities at the Kathleen Louise studio. "I saw other kids doing more gymnastics than I was doing and wanted to do what they were doing."

Rachel would get her wish, but not until a year-and-a-half later, when she was occupied by attending computer classes and learning good study skills.

"She liked computer classes," Leo Wright said. "But she made sure she was at the park in her spare time, still trying different stunts."

Giving much thought to the situation, the Wrights agreed that Rachel should be enrolled into a gymnastics school. Feigley's School of Gymnastics, one of the top-ranked schools in the state and the home of the Bridgettes National Gymnastics Team, was their choice.

The South Plainfield school is owned by Kathy and Dave Feigley, a gymnastics coach at Bridgetowne East High School and a Doctor of Sports Psychology at Rutgers University, respectively.

has a reputation of being one of the finest-coached schools in the state, and it has the biggest-equipped gym in the state.

The Bridgettes boast a 100 percent scholarship record to all of their students who graduate from the school, and their Class III teams have been compulsory state champs for the past two years.

"We have girls who have received scholarships from colleges all over the country, such as the University of Florida, Alabama University, George Washington University and others," said Donna Turner, who is Rachel's coach. "We like to think our staff does a good job."

There are 750 gymnasts that make up the Bridgettes' classes. The ratio of gymnasts per coach is 6-1, and sometimes 8-1. Rachel was very excited about her parents' decision, but when the eight-year-old visited the school, she was immediately intimidated.

"I was scared when I first saw them," admitted Rachel, speaking for her parents as well as for herself. "They looked like professionals."

But Rachel stayed, and after a year had passed, her way of life changed. She practiced hard to prepare herself for the gymnastics season, which runs from September through January. But Rachel did not compete in her first competition until Nov. 7.

The meets are under the sanction of the United States Gymnastics Federation, and each participant strives to score a 29.00 or better in school-against-school competition in order to qualify for sectional meets.

There are four events: the vault, uneven bars, balance beam and floor exercise, in which a high of 10 points may be awarded per event.

In her second meet, Rachel qualified for sectional competition by scoring a 30.15 with separate marks of 8.40, 5.70, 7.95 and 8.10 in the vault, uneven bars, balance beam and floor exercise, respectively.

But going her last meet of the season, she had yet to qualify for state competition. With her back against the wall, Rachel scored an overall mark of 33.45, good for third place and enough to earn her a trip to state competition.

"Rachel made the state championships in her first year, which is a very good accomplishment," complimented Turner. "She should be proud of her accomplishments."

Rachel, along with the other students at Feigley's, sets her goals high. Although she didn't do as well as she would have liked in the state championship, she has reached the Class III level and will continue to practice four days a week, two hours a day. That includes an hour of dance for coordination to reach even higher goals — with the 1992 Olympic games being a possibility.

"All of our girls have that possibility at this point," Turner said. "Our girls strive for the ultimate goal and the Olympics, being four years away, is not out of the question. We've had girls reach the final step to the Olympic trials, but we still await our first competitor."

But the Bridgettes have had many who have established outstanding achievements. Besides their 100 percent scholarship record, the Bridgettes have traveled across the United States and abroad as well, performing their routine. Some have gone on to become instructors, some have appeared in Broadway shows, and just recently, one former school member accepted a role in the hit movie, "Raiders."

So for Wright, how does a girl of only 10 cope with a situation such as hers?

"It's fun for me," she replied. "I like what I'm doing and it doesn't bother me to perform in front of other people."

Rachel recalls a different type of performance. That came on a third-grade class trip to NBC, when she appeared on television.

"The weatherman asked for a volunteer," Wright remembered with a smile. "I was the only one to volunteer. He asked me to point to California on the map. But I didn't know where it was, and I pointed to the top of the United States. I was so embarrassed."

Wright is a talented young lady, and because of her gymnastics, she possesses an open-minded attitude, follows directions well, is conscientious, hard working, and in excellent health, too.

With a grade average in the A-B range, her favorite subjects are math and history. She likes to participate in all that she can and has been involved in tap-dance, jazz, twirling, band and the chorus throughout her five years at Franklin School.

Last year, Wright participated in the annual Union Township fifth grade track meet and won, the 200-yard dash. Roller skating is also a hobby of hers.

Wright will spend at least one year in Class III under the instruction of two additional coaches, Trish Sulphen and John Wojcik.

A BALANCED ACT — Union gymnast Rachel Wright shows the form on the balance beam that has earned her a past trip to statewide competition. Wright's parents and coaches feel that the energetic 10-year-old will reach higher levels of success as she grows older and gains more experience.

THE WINNING COACH — And that's Wilbur Alkins, who displays the winning trophy his Linden High boys' basketball team captured with a 50-45 win over Elizabeth last Saturday in the final round of the annual Union County Tournament.

Artist's birthday is observed

By FRANK J. KORN

This Sunday is the birthday of Michelangelo. Each year, on this occasion, it is fitting that we take time out to reflect awhile on his life, for surely it was one of the most productive ever lived. Here indeed was an extraordinary human life. Here indeed was a human being larger than life—in his words and deeds, in his plans and dreams. "La vita merita d'esser vissuta"—Life deserves to be lived, he was fond of saying. And live it he did! It is difficult to imagine anyone who lived his earthly days more fully than the enigmatic Florentine.

On March 6 of the year 1475 in the sleepy village of Caprese, outside of Florence, there was born to Ludovico and Francesca Buonarroti a son, whom they called Michelangelo. With the mother in fragile health, the infant was at once given over to nurse with a stonecutter's wife. Later in life he liked to jest that he drank in his sculpture skills with the milk of his nurse. His boyhood was not altogether a happy one.

Then, just 500 years ago, in 1483, at the age of 13, he set out on the road that would take him to immortality. The boy was always drawing—on stones, on garden walls, on the walls of his own house, on any surface he could find. For this he would be beaten again and again by his father who considered art a meaningless use of one's time. When he could not beat the desire to draw out of the young, untrained artist, the elder Buonarroti reluctantly took the lad into the great city of Florence to apprentice him to the famous painter Domenico Ghirlandajo. It wasn't long before the new student's work was surpassing that of his master's. And so he moved on, to a job of roughing out blocks of marble for the sculptor Bertoldo.

After a day's work young Michelangelo would carve small figures—from pieces of waste marble. One of these effigies caught the attention of the powerful Lorenzo de Medici who took the boy under his very roof. "You paint or carve or whatever it is you do," Lorenzo promised, "and I will tend to all your needs—a roof over your head, clothes on your back, food in your stomach." And so, liberated from the nuts and bolts of earning one's daily keep, Michelangelo toiled long, productive, and happy days away in the Medici garden, just as the flower of the Renaissance was coming into full bloom. It was an exciting time to be alive, and far more exhilarating to be in the vanguard of the creativity of the age. At the dinner table each evening young Buonarroti thrilled to the scintillating conversation and fascinating company of scholars, philosophers, poets, and fellow artists.

Frank J. Korn, a Kenilworth writer, has lived and studied in Italy off and on for the past 20 years. He is the author of five books and chairman of the foreign language department at Irvington High School.

'THE PIETA' by Michelangelo. This masterpiece was executed by the artist at the age of 24. The work shows the Virgin seated at the foot of the Cross holding the dead body of Christ.

This idyllic world of his, however, was soon to be shattered by the clash of arms. Civil war erupted among the Pazzi, the Medici, and other rival city factions, turning the cobblestone streets on the north bank of the Arno into rivers of blood. Horrified, Michelangelo fled—first to Bologna, eventually to Rome.

In the Eternal City in 1498, the 23-year-old Florentine refugee quickly became the talk of the fashionable dinner parties in villas on the Aventine Hill and along the Tiber with his exquisite carving of the Virgin Mary cradling her crucified son in her arms. At the unveiling of the Pieta, he overheard some visitors to St. Peter's attributing the carving to another sculptor. That night, having obtained the Pope's permission to enter the basilica after hours, he chiseled into the ash across the Virgin's bosom this terse statement: "I, Michelangelo of Florence, made this." It was the only work he ever signed.

In 1501 Michelangelo returned to Florence where the city fathers commissioned him to do a colossal sculpture out of a precious block of marble they possessed. Since the "block" had "a flaw," no other artist would dare accept the assignment. Working behind a lofty fence, Michelangelo worked feverishly for the next 2 1/2 years.

When the protective barriers were taken down and the colossus moved through the streets to the point reserved for it in the main square, the Florentines, as one, gasped. David was beyond all belief!

At this point, Pope Julius II summoned Michelangelo back to the ancient capital for the purpose of creating a papal tomb. A flame with ideas, the rugged sculptor roamed the mountains of Carrara seeking just the right type of marble. Then returning to Rome, he was inexplicably put off by the pope. After a brief estrangement, Michelangelo and the feisty Julius reconciled their differences, with the sculptor very reluctantly agreeing to adorn the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel with frescoes, an art with which he had little familiarity.

The next four years, 1508-1512, with Michelangelo in his mid-30s, were excruciating, physically and mentally, for him. Bent back in the painful position of a limbo dancer, he worked high-up on the scaffolding to splash across the vault of the pope's chapel the Book of Genesis. Here was God in all his fiery omnipotence separating the light from darkness, the land from water. In another panel

God busied himself with the creation of two great lamps to light the world, the sun by day, the moon by night. Next, Michelangelo showed the Almighty first creating man and woman, then expelling them from paradise. In time the ceiling was ablaze with gigantic and colorful figures, hundreds of them, that looked down from their high perch at the sacred mysteries being celebrated at the altar far below. When some of the cardinals condemned the work for so much nudity, the hot-tempered Michelangelo flew into a rage. He lectured the red-robed prelates on how the human form was the work of God himself and therefore could not be sinful to behold. The aged pontiff sided with his volatile artist and the cardinals grew still.

Before long Michelangelo was in his 40s and convinced that his life was nearly over. So he labored all the more frantically on dozens of painting and carving projects simultaneously, in Rome, in Florence, and elsewhere in Italy. In Tuscany, for example, he executed the splendid tombs of the Medici in San Lorenzo Church, where his statues of Night and Day, Dawn and Dusk caused a tremendous stir in art circles.

Then in his early 60s Michelangelo was called back to Rome by his boyhood friend, the Medici pope, Leo X, to paint a backdrop for the altar of the Sistine. From 1536 to 1541 he devoted most of his time and boundless energy to covering the wall with "The Last Judgment." At the unveiling on Oct. 31, onlookers thrilled and chilled to the terrifying beauty that Michelangelo had wrought. There in the eye of the storm of the last day of the world sat Christ, serenely determining which souls would be raised to sit beside him in paradise and which unworthy ones would be cast forever into the flaming abyss of which Dante had written. The scene bares out to the beholder. One can almost hear the bloodcurdling wails of the doomed and the deafening blast of the trumpets signaling the end of all things.

As Michelangelo approached 70, he thought for certain that his days were numbered. Amazingly, two prolifically productive decades were yet left to him. In 1547 he was named chief architect of the new St. Peter's Basilica. For this task, he drew ideas from his intense scrutiny of the majestic ruins of Imperial Rome. During this period he found the time and strength also to design the Piazza del Campidoglio, to turn the Baths of Diocletian into the church of Santa Maria degli Angeli, to design the Farmosa Palace, and to render the fabulous frescoes of the Pauline Chapel. In 1557 he constructed a wooden model for the cupola that would crown St. Peter's. In addition to his long triple career as painter, sculptor, and architect, Michelangelo also distinguished himself as a military strategist, a builder of fortifications, a poet, and a philosopher. He even designed the spectacular uniforms of the Swiss Guards.

He lived to create. Eighteen-hour work days were routine for him, twenty-hour days not all that infrequent. "All men must go," he would often note, "but art lives on. That is why I bind myself to my work." With the passion he brought to his colossal tasks, he had none left for such things as romance or marriage. "My work is my spouse," he explained.

Though wealthy, Michelangelo cared little for money or the material goods it could buy. His clothes were tattered. His table was frugal. He lived in a hovel not far from the Roman Forum. Despite his advancing years, he still enjoyed abundant raw physical strength. As an octogenarian he could still split a one pound block of marble with a single blow of his mallet. He scorned illness and refused any concession to it. In fact, at age 89, he grew angry one day over a persistent feeling of feebleness, and decided to simply drive it away with a vigorous horse-back ride through the damp, dark, narrow streets of old Rome. "I am so old," he lamented in his diary, "that death tugs at my sleeve." Fighting bouts of melancholia and delirium and bone-wracking fatigue, he labored on a few more months on what seemed to be a thousand and one projects. But on Friday, Feb. 18, 1564, feverish and weak and just days from his 90th birthday, Michelangelo slipped in and out of consciousness. "I am undone," he said in one moment of lucidity to the friends gathered round his deathbed. "Please don't leave me." His last request to the group was for one of them to read him aloud the "agony of Jesus." Before the night was out, Michelangelo Buonarroti, a titan who had walked among mere men, slipped into eternal sleep. His remains were placed in a magnificent tomb in Santa Croce Church in his beloved Florence.

But as he had hoped, his work lived on. "Ave longa, vita brevis." "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," the poet once wrote. Those of us who have stood among the awe and silent crowds in the Sistine Chapel, transfixed by the beauty above, or have seen St. Peter's dome floating in the distant sky while driving into Rome, or have stood in the Academy Gallery in Florence dwarfed by David, or have merely savored these masterpieces in books and films, those of us this fortunate owe Michelangelo an enormous debt of gratitude for joys beyond the power of words to describe.

Michelangelo, on the 513th anniversary of your entrance into this world, a world you singlehandedly beautified, we salute you. "Ave atque vale."

Films made for children

An 18-minute film, designed for children in grades 3-5, which outlines the solid waste crisis and its solutions, is available from the Hackensack Meadowlands Development Commission, HMDC. The film is "Out Of Space," it was announced by Leonard S. Coleman Jr., chairman of the commission.

The video is the second film produced by the HMDC. The first, "The Garbage Crisis: What Do We Do With It All?" was produced in 1986.

Deputy Executive Director Vincent P. Fox has announced that the film is being distributed to each school district in the state of New Jersey. All elementary school principals and libraries state-wide have been notified of the film's availability. A lesson plan created by the HMDC's educational staff is available to accompany the film. Anne Galli, director of environmental operations at the Environment Center, says "The film gives a broad view of the problems garbage creates and teaches children about the solutions available in an entertaining, educational manner."

Both films are available for purchase. Further information can be obtained by contacting Margaret Weckstein at 460-1700.

'Beauty' at Kean

"The Sleeping Beauty," a play by the Children's Theater Co. of Kean College of New Jersey, Union, will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at 8 and Saturday and Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Wilking Theater.

British farce offers a laugh a minute

By BEA SMITH

Every once in a while an audience likes to let down its hair, forget its troubles, abandon itself to the moment — and laugh, laugh, laugh! And British playwright Ray Cooney provides all the implements for such a moment, or to be exact, for two hours with a 15-minute break, in his newest laugh-a-minute farce, "Two Into One," now cracking up audiences at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn.

Theater review

Paper Mill audiences are familiar with Cooney's work, for two years ago, he had them practically rolling in the aisles with his hilarious comedy, "Run For Your Wife."

Now, with "Two Into One" rearing its comedic head on the Millburn stage, with Cooney himself serving as the play's director, and with veteran comedy actor Tony Randall excellent in one of the lead roles, and a superb cast who seem born to their roles, perfect timing in dialogue and movement, light and pleasant scenery and backdrops, the Paper Mill unquestionably has another winner. One feels the fun coming on when, before each act, the audience is treated to the catchy, piped-in music of "Love and Marriage."

Cooney has the audience in the palm of his hand from the moment the curtain rises and one is treated to the fairly busy front lobby of the luxurious Westminster Hotel in London on a spring day. The very first words uttered by Paxton Whitehead, who plays the Rt. Hon. Richard Willey, M.P., second most important man in Parliament, to his excited wife, Pamela, played by Millicent Martin, have the audience chuckling loudly.

And from then on, the fun begins — particularly when the highly proper, prudish Parliamentary representative George Pigden arrives, marvelously played by Randall, to provide information and pomographic data for an afternoon hearing to take place at the hotel. It seems Willey has implored Randall to obtain a room in the hotel for his new, married mistress, under a false name. And Randall, after much sputtering and protestation, arranges for the room, but not without awkward complications and mismanagement of correct names. The room turns out to be the one next to the Willeys', and somehow, Randall becomes physically involved with Willey's wife, Pamela.

With each moment, the play becomes more and more hilariously complicated, as did Cooney's "Run For Your Wife," with every line, every movement, every door closing and opening. It's been a while since this reviewer has experienced such great timing — it has the audience in stitches. There also are some good-natured jokes about Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, which goes to show that the British have a broader sense of humor than one imagines. After a while, however, the play begins to border on slapstick.

Randall, who has delighted the public for more than three decades, first in his movies for Universal, including three Rock Hudson-Doris Day comedies, and on television as Felix Unger in the long-running series, "The Odd Couple," has retained his comedic talents to bring them all in a marvelously swappable package to the Paper Mill Playhouse and to his role as George Pigden. He works very hard on the stage, is constantly on the move and covets to the point of exhaustion: One wonders how he can keep up the pace throughout the run of the play. It ends March 20.

The others in the cast complement each other and are a joy to listen to and watch, particularly Martin and Whitehead, Paddy Croft as the receptionist, Burt Edwards as the manager, Beulah Garrick as Lily Caterton, M.P., Toshio Sato as the waiter, Pamela Dillman as Jennifer Bristow, Davis Gaines as her husband, Edward, and Karen Shallo as Maria, the hotel maid.

Michael Anania, award-winning scenic designer, has provided a revolving stage of the hotel rooms, and has provided, as with "Run For Your Wife," two rooms, side by side, with action in and out-of rooms and on the telephones. The scenery is colorful, light and bright.

It appears that "Two Into One," which is having its New Jersey premiere in Millburn, may be readying itself for the Broadway stage. The major flaw in the really fine comedy, full of wonderful vignettes, is that it doesn't know when to end. Cooney has been unable to tie his situation comedy into a neat knot. And unless he can bring it all to a reasonable conclusion, "Two Into One" will continue to be divided into a multiplication of comedic scenes that run beyond the reach and control of its playwright.

IN BRITISH COMEDY — Tony Randall, right, has haphazard conversation with Millicent Martin, in separate rooms at Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, where "Two Into One," Ray Cooney's farce is being staged. The play will run through March 20.

Meetings, trips, benefits planned

The Union Chapter of Hadassah will meet Monday at 7 p.m. in Bardsy Hall, Congregation Beth Shalom, Union. The speaker for the evening will be Rabbi Howard Morrison, who will present a book review, "When All You've Ever Wanted Isn't Enough," by Rabbi Harold Kushner. Games, led by Frances Ostrosky, will be held after the program. An ad journal report will be given by fund-raising vice-president Ise Frank. The journal will be distributed at the June 8 donor dinner. Evelyn Gingei is chapter president. Hostess for the evening will be Rose Schwartz in honor of her parents' 65th anniversary.

THE BUSINESS & PROFESSIONAL Women's Division and the Young Women's Educational Division of the Jewish Federation of Central New Jersey will join in co-sponsoring an evening to explore the "Dilemma of Surrogate Motherhood" March 8 in Temple Israel, 1920 Cliffwood St., Scotch Plains. Dr. Betsy Aiget and Dr. Annette Tobia will present and discuss the legal ramifications of this issue.

The program schedule includes a Kosher dinner, dessert and speakers. Further information can be obtained by calling Nancy Kistin at 351-5060.

THE NORTHERN New Jersey Region of Hadassah will sponsor its sixth annual "Day on the Hill" trip to Washington, D.C., March 21 and March 22. Participants will travel by motor-coach, departing in the late afternoon for Washington, staying overnight at the new National Clarion Hotel. On the agenda are visits to the Israeli Embassy, the Pentagon, offices of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, AIPAC, and lunch on "The Hill" with senators and congressmen. Those interested in participating can call Linda Slucker, chairman, at 763-8794. The group will be host to a dinner meeting for cancer women on March 16 at the Saddlebrook Marriott Hotel. Participants will be treated to a review of Anne Roiphe's new book, "Loving Kindness," from editor and critic Edith Sobel at 7:30 p.m. Chairman Sally Goen Wovsaniker has announced that the evening "will provide an opportunity for networking, camaraderie and learning," beginning with a social hour at 5:30 p.m., dinner to follow at 6:30, and Mrs. Sobel's presentation at 7:30. Reservations can be made by contacting Sally Goen Wovsaniker, chairman, at 1215 Liberty Ave., Hillside, N.J. 07205. Funds contributed by this Hadassah Career Women's Group, explains region president Ruth Cole, "will be used to establish a scholarship for an Israeli woman student to pursue a professional career at Hadassah's Community College. New programs in computer technology and electro-optics at the college — the only one of its kind in Israel — help to prepare students for technological jobs in Israeli industry and medicine." More information is available by calling Wovsaniker at 923-6649.

THE CATHOLIC Women's Club of Elizabeth will hold its annual luncheon and fashion show Saturday at noon at the Coachman Inn, Cranford. Fashion shows will be presented by Sun Sommer of Stuyvesant Avenue, Union. Proceeds will be donated to the Center for Hope Hospice, which cares for the terminally ill residents of Union County. For week of March 3-March 10

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Highly-charged motivation and energy propel you toward success in the beginning of the week. Keep up the momentum at a steady pace instead of rushing around frantically.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Ventures undertaken with others are favored since the stars are smiling on partnerships this week. Socializing should be put on agenda for the weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You'll find yourself sticking pretty close to home this week since you're working on things with your loved one. However, you will still manage to accomplish much.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This is a somewhat lazy week for you, but that's okay: Nothing pressing will distract your attention. Feel free to indulge yourself in the pursuit of leisure.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) At long last, you'll reach the solution to something which has been nagging at you for weeks. As a result, there will be greater domestic harmony, as well as good news for relationships.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) If you're an artistic type, this is your week to shine. You will be inspired, as well as productive. At the end of the week, avoid being too critical of someone close to you who is trying to please you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You will be whirlwind of activity this week, trying to rearrange things on the domestic scene. However, by week's end, your hard work will pay off and you will be able to relax and enjoy your new surroundings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Everything's going your way this week, whether at home, work or in the romance department. This could be a good time for you to really push for what you want.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Although things go along very nicely for you this week, don't go around bragging about it. This will definitely put others off and may cause some problems in the long run. It's best to go quietly along and enjoy this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Group activities are favored — 88th as club projects, public speaking, etc. Others will be attracted to you and will want to hear what you have to say. The coming weeks look good for socializing and leisure time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) You've been waiting for some time for an idea of yours to take off regarding your career. Wait no longer. This is the week when everything seems to fall quite nicely into place for you. However, avoid being overly zealous. Approach each situation with tact and patience when dealing with others.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Although your intuition is generally good, this is not the week for you to be doling out advice to others. It could be held against you when all doesn't go as you see it. It would also be wise to keep confidences to yourself. It is best for all.

'Batteries' album

By MILT HAMMER
Pick Of the LPs: "Batteries Not Included."

The Matthew Robbins film, presented by Steven Spielberg, is a science fiction tale of heart and humanity. Starring Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy, it tells the story of embattled earthlings and the amazing space visitors who come to their aid. The film is enhanced by a subtle, musically adventurous score, now released as an MCA Records soundtrack LP album.

The score for "Batteries Not Included" is the work of James Horner, one of the finest film composers on the scene today. His credits include work on "Aliens," which earned him an Academy Award nomination, "An American Tale," which received Academy and Golden Globe nominations for the song "Somewhere Out There," "Cocoon," "Star Trek II and III," "48 Hours" and "The Name of the Rose." The soundtrack to the "Captain Eo" presentation at Disneyland also is his creation. For "Batteries Not Included," Horner came up with one of his most imaginative efforts to date.

The film's score ranges from delicate modern classical pieces to lively big band-style numbers. Such pieces as the main title theme and "Hamburger Rhumba" utilize jazz elements in particularly appealing ways. The mood shifts from the comic to the ominous along with the on-screen action. Horner's music has a timeless feel appropriate to the fable-like theme of the film.

"Batteries Not Included" is firmly within the Steven Spielberg tradition of dazzling family-oriented entertainment. Its soundtrack LP is a richly composed and orchestrated companion to this warm and winning motion picture.

By seeing the movie first, you will enjoy listening to the music that much more.

'Radio Hour' sets benefit

The Westfield Community Players' production of "The 1940s Radio Hour," written by Larry Jones and directed by Walter Jones, will be staged Saturday, March 11, 12, 13, 19, 25, and 26, all at 8 p.m. in Westfield. Following the opening night performance on Saturday, a reception at which the audience will be invited to meet the members of the cast will be held.

The March 11 performance is a benefit with proceeds going to the Make-A-Wish Foundation, an organization that grants favorite wishes to New Jersey children who are battling with a terminal illness. Tickets can be purchased by calling the box office at 232-1221.

IN STAGE MUSICAL — Edward J. Griffith of Springfield plays the role of Lt. Brannigan and Gene Zieliński is Nathan Detroit, two of the Damon Runyon characters in "Guys and Dolls," which is being performed tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. by the Strollers in Maplewood Middle School, Baker Street. Additional information can be obtained by calling 379-5280.

A showcase concert set

The New Jersey Youth Symphony will present an ensemble showcase concert, Sunday at 7 p.m. in the Maurice Levin Theater of the YM-YWHA of Metropolitan New Jersey, 760 Northfield Ave., West Orange. The concert is free and open to the public.

The program will include chamber works by Mozart, Mendelssohn, Hindemith, Johnston, Hutcheson and Davis, and performing groups, string quartets, Woodwind Quintet and Percussion Ensemble.

Among the Showcase students is Adina Labetkin of Springfield.

A concert on Sunday

The Summit Symphony Orchestra will present the third concert in a series celebrating its 50th anniversary Sunday at 3 p.m. at Summit Senior High School, Kent Place Boulevard. The orchestra will be under the baton of James Sadovwhite, music director.

The concert will feature Summit Choral Music under the leadership of music director and conductor Garyth Nair.

The audience is invited to a reception at the high school following the concert.

Jazz concert scheduled Sunday

The New Jersey Center for Visual Arts will present its fourth in a series of five jazz concerts Sunday at 68 Elm St., Summit. Making its first appearance at the center, the Ed Polcer Quintet will play from 4 to 6 p.m.

Polcer, who plays the cornet, has appeared in Europe, including

Monaco at Prince Rainier's wedding, and throughout the United States including the Newport Jazz festivals.

SHOWCASE OF HOMES

THIS CRIB 'N' BED is an economical way to move children easily from the crib to the bed.

Project of the week

Just as surely as they outgrow their clothes, children grow out of their furniture. Crib 'N' Bed is the practical idea for families who don't want to purchase more furniture when it's time to move from the crib to a bed.

Build the crib for use while the child is an infant. When the child is ready for a bed, remove the railings on both sides, unbolt the small block of drawers from the end of the crib, which will become a nightstand, and you will have a youth bed with two drawers for storage.

Our companion piece is a dresser/changing table measuring approximately 41 inches tall by 31 inches wide.

Both plans are complete with step-by-step instructions, photos, diagrams, materials lists and conform to safety suggestions set forth in consumer reports. To obtain Crib 'N' Bed, Plan 775, send—$4.95—Changing—Table/Dresser, Plan #776, is $4.50. Prices include postage and handling. Send check or money order to Steve Ellingson, c/o County Leader Newspapers, P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, CA 91409-2383.

SHOWCASE OF HOMES

Before buying, learn finance options

Millions of people will be moving this year and they will have to pay special attention to the many details involved in buying a home to assure that their decision is the right one. Buying a new home is one of the biggest investments that anyone could make, both financially and emotionally, stated Richard L. Schlott, president of Schlott Realtors.

Before buying, homeowners must know all their mortgage and finance options. "Now that interest rates are changing, the financing process for a home has become more difficult," said Schlott. "Buyers must evaluate their personal finances to determine what kind of mortgage they can qualify for."

Buyers need to determine their monthly income, including all assets and liabilities, to determine what they can afford in mortgage payments. "A homebuyer also needs to evaluate how much money they are going to use as a down payment," said Schlott. "There are many different mortgage packages available with a certain percentage of the purchase price used as a down payment."

Once you have decided on a financing plan that will suit your needs, you must decide on a home that will accommodate you as well, stated Norcor-Morrell, vice president of Relocation 1, a division of Schlott Realtors. In her work, Morrell has overseen the moves of thousands of corporate transferees and must be considered an authority on the subject of home search. "You must sit down with the members of your household and discuss what features you would prefer in a home," said Morrell.

For those who like to cook, a large and well-equipped kitchen is important. Others may settle for a smaller kitchen to provide extra space for a library, nursery or computer room. Some buyers look for large, open interiors while others opt for traditional walled-in spaces that allow more privacy. Some require a large yard for gardening or children and others will choose a condominium to avoid yard maintenance.

Deciding what type of home to live in is as important as where to live. Buyers need to weigh out the pros and cons of living in the city, the suburbs or the country. "Determining the accessibility of libraries, parks and cultural and recreational facilities, as well as finding out about the quality of your police, fire, and medical services in the area is also an important factor in the buying process," said Morrell.

Another consideration is the changing needs of your household.

If you are single, do you plan to be married soon. If you are married, do you plan to have children. If you are planning to add rooms on your home, you must first find out if you have enough room to expand and are permitted to by local laws.

For those highly individual people, who just can't seem to find the right home, there is always the option to have your home built "for you," stated Morrell. Before entering into such a project there are advantages and disadvantages to consider.

According to Morrell, construction costs for a custom-built home tend to be higher than costs for subdivision homes that are built with materials bought in bulk. "A custom-built home requires that you spend your spare time overseeing the job to assure that it is being done to your satisfaction," said Morrell.

However, the big advantage is that you will have a tailor-made home to fit your individual taste. Schlott Realtors offers the home buyer many options through its different services and divisions.

Mortgage sources

Mortgage bankers provided over 80 percent of FHIA and VA fixed-rate mortgages, and over one-half of conventional mortgage loans in early 1987. Commercial banks accounted for about 10 percent of conventional FRMs, but only 2 percent of FHIA FRMs. Thrifts provided over 15 percent of conventional FRMs and 5 percent of FHIA FRMs.
