Garage operations annoying residents

By JOHN A. GAVIN

When Tooker Avenue residents huddle later this month at Township Hall to hear the Board of Adjustment's decision on Schaible Oil Company, they won't be the only Springfielders concerned about unwanted trucks in the neighborhood. Home owners from Salter and Keeler streets will also be keeping a watchful eye on the meeting.

Unlike Tooker Avenue residents, however, their main concern won't be how many unlicensed and unregistered trucks Schaible keeps on his property. They will be thinking about the trucks lined along the quiet, tree-lined streets next to Springfield Garage.

Last month, some of those residents attended the adjustment meeting to complain about the trucks that are being sold and serviced by the Morris Avenue garage. Some of those home owners say that so many trucks park on the block that they can't enter their own driveways during business hours.

Also, they say that garage mechanics often make test runs on the residential streets creating a safety hazard.

"They crank up trucks out there," said Frank Fulton, a Salter Street resident who attended last week's meeting. "They run them down the street for a brake test in front of houses. I can show you skid marks that were made this morning. They are a minimum, 13 feet long."

"They back into my street and come around the other way," he continued. "There are kids running around out there and they are revving up those trucks 30-miles-an-hour to test brakes."

For Fulton, a husky, mustached man, the frustration of the situation built up when Albert Parsonnet, an attorney representing the garage owners, got a postponement on the hearing. "Although Board Chairman Dr. Donald Watter explained to the audience that all of the appropriate people had not been notified about the hearing, many in the audience still voiced anger and displeasure.

"We've been delayed, delayed, delayed — pushed, pushed, pushed, and we're tired of it," shouted Fulton, voicing his frustration as about 75 local residents looked on. "He's here. We're here. He's their representation... Who's left? He's their representation."

As people in the audience openly voiced agreement, the hearing room briefly turned into chaos. As Watter banged his gavel from the dais trying to restore order, board member Raymond Forbes sternly told the crowd why the cancellation was necessary.

"By law, certain people have to be notified legally in the mail — people who are interested," said Forbes. "If that is not done, we cannot act on it because if we decide for and against, the thing would be thrown out of court."

As the exchange continued, Parsonnet quickly rushed out of the room with the next hearing date marked on his calendar. Parsonnet declined to comment about the case or the allegations. He only said that he was representing George and Bruce Briggs, the co-owners of the garage.

Although Springfield Garage has been in existence since the 1930s, local residents say they have not had to complain about the business until a few years ago. Those residents claim that once Interstate 78 neared completion in the 1980s, the garage purchased lots adjacent to the truck sales and repair shop.

In addition, they contend that those lots and recently repurposed Salter Street provided extra parking space for the expanding garage. Originally, Salter Street used to intersect into Morris Avenue.

Now, as a result of the completed "missing link" on the interstate, it curves around parallel to Morris Avenue and connects Keeler Street — right at the service end of the garage.

"It got bad in 1983, the year after they bought the lot," said Leonard DiGiovanni, a resident who owns a home at the bend. "That business has just over-expanded."

Like the Schaible case, Keeler and Salter streets residents say they are concerned with the number of trucks in the neighborhood and charge that it violates the town's residential-commercial zoning laws. In addition, some are fearful for the safety of school children traveling through the neighborhood.

Brown case gets postponed

By JOE LOGIUDICE

The court case against a former Springfield music teacher indicted on child abuse charges has been postponed, the Board of Education attorney said Monday night.

During the special meeting Board Counsel Yale Greenspoon said the hearing for Ron Brown, whose indictment has been pending since 1986, was scheduled for last Monday. Greenspoon did not know when it would be rescheduled.

Brown was indicted by a Union County grand jury based on an investigation conducted by the Union County Prosecutor's Office. In addition, a suit has been filed by the Springfield Board of Education with the Office of Administrative Law in Trenton in an attempt to strip Brown of his tenure.

The attorney said the board is waiting to see if Brown is convicted, which would result in automatic dismissal of tenure.

In the event of his acquittal, said Greenspoon, the board will go ahead and pursue its complaint on the state level.

In other business the board accepted the resignation of board member Dr. David B. Stein.

After more than a year on the board, Stein is resigning because he plans to run for Township Council, and feels it would be in his best interests to devote more time to his campaign, according to schools superintendent Dr. Gary Friedland.

The superintendent said Stein was a major asset to the board during his time.

"Dr. Stein was a member of the board who contributed significantly to board deliberations on matters that affect education in the district," said Friedland.

"From his expertise in the field as a psychologist, and understanding as a member of the community and a parent in the school system, he had an expectation for student learning of the highest caliber," added the superintendent.

Friedland said the board is advertising in newspapers for candidates to fill Stein's seat.

He said the board will conduct public interviews of individuals who submit applications, and appoint someone to the seat until the next election. So far the board has received six applications, said Friedland.

The board also approved payment of $485,699.06 for salaries, expenses and labor costs incurred during the month of March.

It accepted a bid for $27,485 from Institutional Systems Corporation of Waldwick for electrical repairs to the fire alarm, clock, and intercom and emergency lighting system, and a bid for $18,100 from A & R Glass and Aluminum for the replacement of approximately 240 windows at the Walton School on Mountain Avenue.

Friedland said that although the latest date to finish the work is Aug. 1, he hopes it will be completed by June 30.

The school is being leased to the Summit Child Care Center, which takes occupancy Aug. 1, said Friedland.

The board accepted a bid for $26,944.42 from J. L. Hammitt, Inc. of Union for instructional and office supplies for the 1988-1989 school year.

It also approved the acceptance of $3,000 in funds from the state Department of Education awarded under the governor's Teacher Recognition Program.

The program allows school officials from districts that participated to select teachers to receive a $1,000 grant from the state to be used in the school system, said Friedland.

He said the teachers select what special project, curriculum or activities they want to use the money on.

Nominated were: Elaine Cladek, a fifth grade teacher at Gaudinier School on South Springfield Avenue; Ottawanna Anderson, a second grade teacher at the Thelma Sandmeier School on Meisel Avenue; and Blanche Trelor, a first grade teacher at the James Caldwell School on Caldwell.

No charity too small for Springfield's Spirit

By JOHN A. GAVIN

Local residents who don't have enough spare time to join volunteer services like the Springfield First Aid Squad and the Springfield Police Reserve now have another way to show their involvement in the community. Spirit of Springfield Inc., a booster club, has been organized, and is soliciting members and ideas for fund-raising.

According to Barbara Wall, the club's organizer and liaison, the organization's purpose will be to aid all the smaller groups in town like the first aid squad, Fire Department, Police Department and the recreation department. She says that through donations and fund-raising events, the club will be able to donate equipment and supplies to those smaller organizations.

"We're covering all bases that the township needs so that nobody's left out," says Wall, about the non-profit, non-sectarian and non-partisan organization. "If there is a need for something within the township, we have a legal means within our by-laws to help out."

"For example, if the first aid squad needed, hypothetically, an oxygen tank, we could buy it for them," she continues. "The purpose wouldn't be to donate money to them. It would be to buy it for them."

Wall, a permanent substitute teacher at the Gaudinier Middle School, says she came up with the idea for an overall booster club after noticing that some Springfielders weren't getting involved in any areas of civic participation. Wall, who grew up in Springfield, left, and moved back to raise her own family as an adult, says she didn't see the same civic pride as in earlier years. She says something was missing.

"I guess I took a look around the town, and I was somewhat distressed to see the apathy that was spreading all over," she explains. "I just saw something that didn't seem right and that was a lack of spirit. And I thought that maybe, just maybe, starting this non-profit organization will make participation in the community contagious."

The booster club is a registered non-profit organization and has a board of directors and by-laws. She adds that the club will raise money through donations, fund-raising activities and sponsors.

The club's first fund-raising activity will take place on May 29 when the local police department plays the New York Giants in a benefit softball game. Wall says she's hoping that the event will generate an excitement that's been missing in town for a long time. In addition, the event will give Springfield a chance to capitalize on such benefits the way other towns have in the past.

One of Wall's major supporters in establishing the booster organization is her husband, Richard. He says that she was determined to help Springfield regain the civic pride it had in the past.

"I think what really got Barbara motivated was seeing other towns around Springfield doing things, and Springfield not being unified as a town," says Richard Wall, a native New Yorker who was eventually persuaded to move to Springfield by his wife. "I think seeing a lot of things happen in Union, Millburn and Westfield — towns that are very similar to Springfield — having fund-raising events, attracting big turnouts from town members, and Springfield maybe supporting those other towns but perhaps not doing something for itself... I think she just wanted to establish more pride in Springfield."

Wall says she realizes that people in town have various responsibilities and might not be able to devote as much time to civic activities as she does.

"Time is a precious commodity," she says, acknowledging that there are many single-parent families and families where both parents are working. "Nor can everybody afford to volunteer."

However, she says that participating in a 'booster organization' like Spirit of Springfield wouldn't take too much time from such a schedule. Also, she says that such involvement would create a fulfillment that is well worth the time.

"To me, getting involved is important," she says. "When it comes to the children, we should give them the proper activities they need... Volunteering just an hour a week would be great, too."

Seniors can hurdle 'spring slump'

By LEE FOULKES

The Union County Regional High School District has unanimously approved a proposal that will allow some high school seniors to bypass final examinations at the end of the school year.

The Board of Education approved a one-year trial plan for seniors graduating in 1988-89 to be exempt from final exams in June 1989 if they achieve a cumulative average of 3.5 or greater during the third and fourth marking periods and submit all of their assignments on time during the semester.

The aim is to motivate seniors at the four regional high schools to avoid the senior slump referred to as "senioritis" and continue to study during the last semester of their senior year.

"Traditionally, high school seniors have been subject to senioritis, with a letdown in motivation to study once college acceptance is obtained," reported Superintendent Donald Merachnik. The trial plan will be evaluated during the summer of 1989, at which time the continuance of the program will be discussed.

In other action at Tuesday's session, the following was reported:

□ Alice Ko and Geoffrey Kostal, students at Governor Livingston High School, will participate in the National Future Business Leaders of America Convention held in Cincinnati, Ohio, June 25-30.

The pair earned the right to represent the state of New Jersey at the convention by virtue of winning the state competition at a recent state conference. Ko came in first in the business English competition, while Kostal came in first in the public-speaking event.

Ruth Perry, business education teacher at Governor Livingston, will accompany both students. The cost of the trip will be $3,167 per person, for a total cost to the district of $9,500. Funds are available in the budget to pay for the expenses.

□ David Van Hart was selected as the regional district teacher of the year by the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education. Van Hart, a mathematics/computer science teacher at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, was selected via a district-wide process and by the administrative advisory council. He will become a nominee for designation as the Union County Teacher of the Year.

□ Dr. Roger Maitland, psychologist, and Karen Vinacour, social worker, will visit two residential schools in Massachusetts and Rhode Island on Monday and Tuesday. The two members of the Arthur L. Johnson study team will visit the schools to explore the possibility of enrolling a district special education student.

□ Major roof repairs to David Brearley and Jonathan Dayton high schools are expected to be completed this summer. The firm of Michael Disko Associates will be employed as consulting engineer. The cost to the school district will be about $100,000 for Jonathan Dayton-High School, and $60,000 for David Brearley High School.

□ Steve Cicciotelli has resigned his position as assistant lacrosse coach at Arthur L. Johnson High School.

Local officials blow off steam in Trenton

By KENNETH SCHANKLER
Municipal officials and employees from throughout the state got a chance to blow off steam in the direction of Governor Kean and the state Legislature this week at a rally staged Monday in Trenton by the New Jersey State League of Municipalities.

Later that day, the Senate did pass a $150 million aid package intended to alleviate some local woes; with Assembly approval expected to follow. Legislative leaders from both houses, however, said they expected Kean to veto the aid package.

Also along for the ride was Roselle Park Mayor Helen Ryan. The rally, which was preceded by a march of hundreds of employees and officials from the War Memorial Auditorium to the State House, focused on issues ranging from aid to the homeless to municipal layoffs in some of the state's larger cities.

"I think if we got in to see the individual assemblymen and senators, we would have accomplished more."

A number of officials, including Newark Mayor Shempe James, West Orange Mayor Samuel Spina and Trenton Mayor Arthur Holland, addressed the crowd.

The demonstration was plagued by a poor sound system that had many

Even those closest to the portable stage had a hard time hearing speakers as they came over loudspeakers turned inward toward the stage.

What brought the Union County officials to Trenton for the most part was the garbage situation that has raised local property taxes by an average of several hundred dollars per home owner in most towns.

Union officials were seeking the reopening of closed landfills that state officials have indicated are still capable of accepting trash for several more years.

Even those towns not directly affected by state orders sending New Jersey trash to Pennsylvania and beyond have been plagued with other problems.

Linden, for example, is coping with the increased truck traffic and the unpleasantness of having an increased tonnage of garbage passing through the Automated Modular Systems trash transfer station on Lower Road.

"I spoke to a senior citizen this morning who had just paid his tax bill," said veteran Union Township Committeeman E. James Roberts on the bus to the Trenton rally. "He was just wondering how long he can afford to stay. How do you explain it to someone who's on a limited income, fixed income, really?"

Roberts was hoping Monday's rally would finally reach the ears of Governor Kean and the Legislature with a message that would convince them to reopen the old landfills.

Ryan, though, thought the message might have gotten through if it had been transmitted differently.

"I think if we got in to see the individual assemblymen and senators, we would have accomplished more," Ryan remarked.

Union Township Committeeman Greg Muller maintained that the rally might have been more effective if its focus had been less broad.

As the demonstration assembled behind a long line of garbage trucks, street sweepers, water trucks and other public works vehicles, most of them belonging to the city of Trenton, it was clear that a broad spectrum of interests was being represented.

On the steps outside the auditorium, for example, a group of New Brunswick firefighters carried signs seeking expansion of their 40-member department while other signs from a number of towns sought state aid to offset municipal layoffs.

Union Mayor Anthony Russo said the demonstration's main benefit would be to ease a lot of the frustration that has built up over a perceived lack of state action in solving the multitude of problems.

"It made a lot of people feel good," he said.

"It got a lot of people out of work for the day," noted another official.

"A municipal official from Randolph in Morris County wondered how much was spent bringing in all the heavy equipment for the rally.

What message did the rally send to the state? "If I were the governor, I would take fast action," said Ryan. "We'll find out," Strapp said.

Adult student named an 'outstanding learner'

When Virginia Perez-Santalla came to the United States with her family in 1960, she did so for the same reasons that prompted so many people before and since to make this bold move — most notably, the desire to live and raise a family in a free country and to have the opportunity to strive for a better way of life.

Twenty-eight years later, Perez-Santalla has attained many of the goals upon which she set her sights when she emigrated here from Cuba. But just recently, the personable Mountainside resident earned something which she had wanted since coming to America — a high school diploma. Virginia did so by enrolling in the Adult High School program of the Union County Regional Adult Learning Center in September 1987, and working through a rigorous schedule that enabled her to accumulate

Students will test math skills

The students from the schools of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 will have an opportunity to show their mathematical knowledge when the 25th annual Joseph J. Scott Mathematics Day is held on Saturday at 9 a.m. at the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield.

Students from the Governor Livingston, David Brealey, Arthur L. Johnson and Jonathan Dayton regional high schools who have completed at least two years of study in mathematics will be participating in this contest.

There will be two levels of competition — one for students with two years of mathematics study and the other for those youngsters who have completed three years of math — and awards will be presented to the contestants from each of the four schools who attain the highest scores in each level of competition.

The Regional District Mathematics Day is named for Joseph J. Scott, the highly respected educator who served the Regional District for over 40 years as a mathematics teacher, department coordinator and supervisor.

all the necessary credits for graduation by March 1988. All this while she continued in her successful career as a free-lance Spanish/English language translator.

For her determined efforts and her dedication to reaching a long sought-after goal, Perez-Santalla was recently honored by the New Jersey Association for Lifelong Learning as the "Outstanding Adult Learner" in Union County for 1988. She was commended as one of 20 "Outstanding Adult Learners" from throughout the state, one representing each participating county, at the NJALL annual awards luncheon held in Woodbridge. At this affair, Virginia was presented with a resolution from the state Legislature and the office of state Senator Donald DiFrancesco, R-22nd District, noting her achievements as an exemplary adult education student.

The road from Virginia's childhood in Havana, Cuba, to her recent attainment status of "high school graduate" was a long one indeed. In November 1960, with the rise to power of Fidel Castro's Communist regime completed, Virginia and her husband, Jesus, believed that living conditions in their homeland were bound to deteriorate. So, Jesus Perez-Santalla left for the freedom of Miami, Florida, in search of a job.

One month later, in December 1960, Virginia and her 15-month old son, Javier, arrived in Miami with nothing but an American $100 bill hidden in a tube of toothpaste. Jesus Perez-Santalla worked in various jobs in Miami to support his wife and infant son, but with the prospect of better employment existing in the cities of the north, he left for New York City a few months later.

By August 1962, Virginia and Javier had rejoined Jesus in New York. It became apparent that the Perez-Santalla family had found a home and a better way of life in America. Their family continued to grow, and in 1970 they moved from Queens, N.Y., to their current home in Mountainside.

"I attended a bilingual school, in which they taught in Spanish and English, while I was growing up in Cuba," said Virginia, who has six children — four boys and two girls, ranging in age from 28 to 11 — and two grandchildren.

"I got as far as the 10th grade in Cuba before I had to leave school. Once we got to America, it was a question of building a new life and settling down. My husband and I raised our family and we worked. There were times through the years when I thought about going back to get my high school diploma, but I just couldn't find the time. Plus, I wanted to go to college.

"Finally, I figured that the years were passing by and that I wasn't getting any younger," she continued. "I knew that I had to do something about it. So I started going to classes at the Regional Adult Learning Center. Although I hadn't been in school in years, I didn't have any problems getting back into the swing of things — I guess I took it right to it."

Carolee Berris, director of the Kenilworth-based Union County Regional Adult Learning Center, had this to say about the 1988 "Outstanding Adult Learner" in Union County: "From the day Virginia enrolled in our Adult High School program, she impressed us as a charming, intelligent and vivacious woman who was not going to stop short of achieving her goals. Even with a career and her family taking up much of her time, she was truly determined to put in the extensive time and effort which would assure her graduation. This determination and her outstanding ability enabled Virginia to complete all of the necessary credits and earn her diploma in a relatively short period of time."

"A sense of pride brought me back to school," reflected Perez-Santalla. "With three of our children married and out on their own, I had a little more time on my hands. But I had an empty feeling of sorts, like I had missed out on something, because I had never graduated from high school. That's when I decided to go back to school.

"Attending classes at the Regional Adult Learning Center was very enjoyable and the teachers and counselors were all extremely helpful," she continued. "I got a great deal out of all the courses I took, but I especially loved history and English. The environment at the Adult Learning Center is very conducive to successful learning — the students are there because they have a great desire to learn, not because they have to be there."

Virginia says that she is already looking forward to next September, when she plans to start attending college. She has expressed interest in the field of neuropsychology, a field in which she first became interested when she worked as a translator for an individual who suffered from brain trauma.

Occupational and physical therapy are two other career options that Virginia might pursue. Whatever path she chooses, it is clear that Perez-Santalla is now on her way to a bigger and better future, both in an intellectual and career sense, because she has earned her high school diploma.

"If you don't have your high school diploma, you get it now — don't wait any longer," she implores. "You can do it — I only wish that I had done it many years ago."

A bad scene

Perhaps one Springfield township official put it best recently by describing the ongoing Schable Oil controversy as "a bad situation." It most certainly is.

For the better part of the last two years, residents living near—and, in one case, adjacent to the Mountain Avenue firm—have complained bitterly that Schable is making their lives miserable. Among their chief complaints is the very nature of Schable's business: selling and storing lubricants, some of which can be quite dangerous if they should ever be exposed to fire.

Worrying that the 50-year-old firm has been in a "runaway expansion mode" in recent years, these neighbors have charged that Schable is polluting the local area, both with unpleasant fumes emanating from company trucks, and from storm water runoff into a stream located across the back of the property.

Their complaints seem to be legitimate, to say the least. Three years ago, the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection issued Schable a permit allowing the company to "discharge treated stormwater runoff" into nearby Morses Creek, provided that certain conditions were met, among them the construction of four ground-water monitoring wells that would, in some way, ensure that Schable was complying with state environmental safeguards. But the DEP, some 18 months later, issued a "rating of unacceptable" for five reasons, the first of which charged that Schable had "not completed" the wells.

At about the same time, William Gras, the township's fire inspector, toured the company grounds and issued 24 fire safety violations, one of which noted a "lack of fire resistant walls" in some of the property's older wooden structures. Roughly a year-and-a-half later, at least some of these concerns, among others, have still not reached a satisfactory conclusion.

Why? One reason could be that every time the company is cited for a violation—or is asked to abide by environmental regulations, it continues to exercise its legal right to appeal—either to township or county regulatory bodies that have the authority to make decisions in these instances. The company is protected by something known as "non-conforming use," which applies to the facility and many of its buildings that were in existence prior to township ordinances that would make some of the company's methods of operation illegal today.

The town also has ordinances that either limit or prohibit the parking of unlicensed, inoperable vehicles, which reportedly are used by Schable to store large amounts of lubricants above ground. That, too, falls under the limits of a town ordinance. A local resident labeled this as the "most obnoxious part" of the company's operation, a practice that many feel is outside of the law.

Another reason may well be that the DEP has not put its money where its mouth is—namely, it has not bothered to enforce the regulations on Schable that it said it would, first telling the company it must comply with environmental regulations and then letting them off the hook when they apparently didn't.

Mayor Jeffrey Katz pulls no punches when he labels the DEP as one of the state's "biggest do-nothing agencies," one that "picks and chooses the battles they want to fight."

Perhaps Schable, as many have claimed, has reached the point where its day-to-day operation is simply too large and/or complex for its present location.

Nearly a year ago, the firm indicated it was planning to relocate its entire business as of September 1988, possibly to places as far away as Chester or Flender. To date, the company has contacted Mount Olive and is awaiting preliminary site approval from that community's planning board.

Schable has the right to earn a living and to make a profit, as does any other legitimate firm. But when its method of operation causes so much concern and possible harm to a surrounding community, then it is time to "solve the problem."

The call for a charter study commission that would review and evaluate the various forms of county government is being heard once again, and again we say it should be done.

There are options to the county manager form of government, which, having come under attack throughout the state in the last 15 years, continues to survive only in Union County.

Putting a referendum question on the ballot would give the voting public the chance to say whether the various options should be studied. It does not necessarily mean that the form of government would change. It simply puts our options on the table for all to see.

If the commission recommends a particular option for serious consideration, it would be put up for a public vote again. The right of the citizenry to choose its representation is strangled when a referendum question is kept in the closet.

The current leaders in this county would lose an enormous amount of power if, or when, the form of government changes. Is it possible that change is what Union County needs most?

Nostalgic look at years gone by

By MILTON S. KESHEN

The 50th anniversary of the first graduating class of 1938 at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, recalled memories of early history affecting the school which I'd like to share with your readers.

To mark the dedication ceremony of the school at its opening in September 1937, after two years in construction, a souvenir booklet, "Regional School Journal" was published by myself and brother, Albert, in cooperation with the Regional Board of Education.

From the Journal, which contained a detailed history of the project, descriptive material on the six communities of the Regional School District, numerous photographs of the interior and exterior before the school actually opened, and biographical data on those responsible for its existence, came the basis of most of the facts in this article.

The Union-County Regional School District No. 1 was the first of its kind in New Jersey provided by an Act of the Legislature. There had been communities elsewhere combined such as Scotch Plains-Fanwood and South Orange-Maplewood, but these were only for both elementary and high schools.

Nothing had been attempted in secondary education on such a scale for the municipalities of Mountainside, Garwood, Berkeley Heights, Kenilworth, Clark and Springfield. In fact, New Providence Borough had seriously considered joining but dropped out of consideration and continued to send its high school students to Summit until it later built its own high school.

On the original Board of Education were Joseph F. Mulholland of Berkeley Heights, president; James Duguid and John Potts of Springfield, Edward Frey of Mountainside, Earl Pollack of Kenilworth, Kate Shapiro of Clark, John Dushanek of Garwood and others. The first secretary was Anton C. Swenson of Berkeley Heights. Years later he was succeeded by Mrs. Helen Ruben Smith of Springfield, a long-time community leader who served with distinction. She was the aunt of the present owners of Geiger's Restaurant, off Echo Lake Park, Westfield.

The motivating influence in creation of the Regional School district was Dr. Arthur L. Johnson, county superintendent of schools, who selected the name of a New Jersey signer of the Declaration of Independence, Jonathan Dayton, for the new school. The city of Dayton, Ohio, is also named after the same historical figure.

Several influential county public officials, including Henry G. Nulton, county clerk; Norbert T. Burko, Elizabeth attorney and former Mayor; Peter H. Meisch, likewise helped in successfully launching the school project.

Frederick A. Elsassor of Union, well-known school designer in the area, was selected as the architect. Springfield also was accepted as site of the new school building, partly due to the cooperation of the Union County Park Commission and its executive director, W. Richmond Tracy of Summit. The package of park property and land from the Flower Nursery were major factors in the location decision. Also, being the largest municipality in the district helped in making the selection for Springfield.

A few years earlier, Springfield school voters rejected a plan to erect its own high school, with a capacity of about 250 pupils by a 3-2 margin during the 1934 election.

The outcome being reversed, the entire picture of a Regional School district might have been adversely affected. During World War I before 1920, the Chemical Company of America operated a dyestuff factory, with a crew of several hundred employees, a valuable war-time need. One building remains from the original property, which today serves as a field house on the westerly end of the football field.

When the Public Works Administration financed the school project during the Great Depression, the grant of $550,000 paid for the entire cost of 24 classrooms, gymnasium, auditorium, cafeteria, library, workshop classes and print shop.

Warren W. Halsley, Garwood school head, was named supervising principal of Regional High and endeared himself to the students. Tall in stature, white-haired and a whimsical outlook, he was known as the "Great white father." On numerous occasions, after athletic events, the band and students marched down Flower avenue, now Mountain avenue, with Mr. Halsley leading the procession, win, draw or lose. Mr. Halsley's widow and son still reside in Springfield.

Dayton's traditional Thanksgiving football rivalry with Rahway developed from the start. In 1938, the first encounter was a disaster, losing by a 25-0 score. Coach Bill Brown's Bulls dogs were engaged in keen competition with their rivals for many years.

Brown, the first Regional high athletic director, was a tough disciplinarian and developed many sports figures who went on to excel in college.

One such was a Springfield boy, John Bunnell, star of the 1941 Turkey day classic in which Rahway was defeated, 9-7. Bunnell, first team All-State Group 3 end, played for Princeton and won All-American honorable mention. He was the son of Dorothy and Dick Bunnell.

In his first year, Regional's basketball team won the Union County Conference championship in a thriller with Cranford, 38-37. From start to finish, not more than three points separated the teams and Coach Walter Hohn's quintet consisted of Herbert "Red" Croe, Bill Gleywold, George Ganser, Tony English and Johnny Wanza.

Another of the early athletic stars was Lester "Babe" Pughman of Garwood, who excelled in football and basketball. He later played for Albright College. He and his wife, Mary Ann, a classmate at Regional, lived in Springfield for many years and now reside in Short Hills.

For many years, two keen followers of Dayton Regional High sports were Ed Ruby and Ed Hoffer, both of Springfield. Although not employed by the Board of Education in any capacity, they assisted the athletic department in many chores. Ruby, who later became recreation director of Springfield Township, was a star with Batlin High School's football team in Elizabethtown in the 1920s; and later went to Syracuse earning All-American honorable mention in the college field.

The location of the Colonial-styled building in an attractive setting of wooded area and country park, added a charm to the Regional High School, rich in a heritage of historic Springfield.

Keshen was editor and publisher of the Springfield Sun, when it appeared Sept. 29, 1929. Eight years later, a stationery and printing department was added under the same name as the paper. The newspaper was sold in 1946 and the other business remained as Beacon Hill Co. under Keshen's management. His wife, Betty, was a partner in both the newspaper and stationery store. The Keshens, who are married 52 years, now reside at Aruba Way, Wynmoor Village, Coconut Creek, Fla. 33066.

Legislation aimed at homelessness

BY CHUCK HARDWICK
Assembly Speaker

I am firmly committed to the idea that unless the possibility exists for all citizens to experience the opportunity to enjoy basic human necessities, experiencing the chance to work and grow, then the quality-of-life in our state is unacceptable and demands improving.

It is out of this belief that I have decided to initiate a series of comprehensive, far-reaching measures to help improve life for those caught within the throes of homelessness.

Early this week, I introduced a $13.7 million package to help break the cycle of homelessness that is eating away at the fabric of the state's inner cities and spilling over into suburban areas.

The timing of this program is critical as current estimates indicate funding for the state's ongoing programs to help the homeless will run out of money next month. Meanwhile, population in New Jersey's shelters has reached a choking point, with many needy mothers and children left out on the streets in the cold.

The legislative package I am proposing, in cooperation with Assemblyman Bob Franks, R-Essex, Union, would provide $5.65 million to the Department of Community Affairs to help keep impoverished individuals threatened with evictions from being forced out of their homes. This funding would also be used to boost non-profit board home construction and provide improvements to shelters.

The second block of funds, totaling $8.05 million, would be allocated to the Department of Human Services for emergency-services-specialized needs of the homeless, including operating shelters, counseling, training, day care, and job placement.

I patented this program directly upon what I witnessed to be the biggest needs of homeless people in my visits to shelters earlier this year.

Many of the homeless I spoke with had previously received or were currently being assisted by programs funded by the DHS Comprehensive Emergency Assistance Systems. CEAS provides state funding for emergency shelter, emergency food and support services for homeless individuals and families.

Under the Hardwick-Franks plan, CEAS would receive a total of $7 million for the current fiscal year, some $2.4 million more than that originally proposed by the Administration for the next fiscal year that begins July 1.

The package I am proposing differs from one recently introduced in the Senate due to the fact that both the Department of Human Services and Community Affairs have already introduced their complete support.

Part of the program also calls for assistance to families that are in imminent danger of losing their homes due to factors not completely within their control — such as job layoffs, a family break-up, or serious illness.

As I reflect upon my visits to shelters in Jersey City, Plainfield, and the Edison area, I had a chance to speak personally with homeless men, women and children — all with different, unique stories to tell.

But one thing was clear: most of them are much like you and me. They have a dream of living in a comfortable home, of working productively and earning a living, and of being able to enjoy the fruits of their labor with their friends and family. Unfortunately, so long as they remain without a permanent place to live, they suffer from a deprivation that is nearly as difficult to tolerate as that endured during periods when they go without food or water — the loss of their dignity.

Merachnik to be keynote speaker

Dr. Donald Merachnik, the superintendent of schools for the Union County Regional High School District No. 1, will serve as the keynote speaker during a workshop titled "Future Directions in Vocational Education for Special Needs Students" to be held May 9 at Jersey City State College.

Merachnik, who has been the regional district superintendent of schools for the past 17 years, will be speaking on vocational education and special education teachers, explained study team members and administrators about the importance of providing quality vocational education programs that address the needs of special students and help prepare them for the workplace. After his formal presentation, Merachnik will conduct a dialogue session with the regional district participants.

"There is a very serious need to prepare special education students for the world of work," explained Merachnik, who has written extensively on matters relating to vocational and special education. "And vocational education and special education teachers must collaborate in training students for the job market. These teachers must be aware of the jobs that will be available to special students; the role of community agencies in the transition process from high school to work, and the importance of a vocational assessment for the student in preparing for a job within the student's capabilities."

The Union County Regional High School District No. 1 provides secondary education for over 2,600 students from the communities of Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside, and Springfield.

The Kenilworth Board of Health will hold a free blood pressure screening on May 11 from 3 to 7 p.m. in the Recreation Building, 575 Boulevard, for Kenilworth residents only.

"It is well known that people with untested high blood pressure are at greater risk of stroke, heart attack, heart failure and kidney failure than Kenilworth, Jazetta announced.

The American Cancer Society reports that people with cancer of the colon and rectum can be treated satisfactorily in almost 75 percent of the cases when the disease is found in its early stages.

A simple, painless, do-it-yourself-at-home procedure, the guaiac or hemoccult, is used for screening purposes. Participants are given a special instruction sheet and diet enclosed in the kit. The slide will then be returned to the local Health Department. Positive results require a visit to the family physician for a follow-up examination.

Jazetta noted, "Screenings are not a diagnosis and should never take the place of periodic checkups by your physician."

Kits may be picked up at the Health office, 575 Boulevard, from May 9 to May 20. They must be returned to the Health office by May 27.

She was fined a total of $450 and was ordered to pay a $100 surcharge with a six-month suspension of her license. The judge also fined her $20 for failing to wear a seat belt. All the charges amounted to $60 in court costs.

Thomas E. Henderson, 23, of Newark, pleaded guilty to driving without insurance. He was fined $100 and had his license suspended for six months. In addition, he was ordered to pay $25 in court costs.

On Monday, a Springfield judge ordered her to repay the $90 plus another $90 for failure to appear in court at that time. Overall, she was fined $160 and was ordered to pay $130 in contempt of court charges. She also had to pay $40 in court costs.

Animal rights group protests at Schering-Plough

The Schering-Plough annual stockholders meeting April 26 was prefaced by an anti-animal testing protest by the New Jersey Animal Rights Alliance demonstrating its opposition to the use of animals in product testing.

About 35 demonstrators stood at the entrance of the Schering-Plough plant on Galloping Hill Road in Kenilworth and tried to solicit the attention of the stockholders as they drove by to attend the meeting.

The animal rights alliance is "dedicated to fighting animal abuse and exploitation. We're for progressive methods of research," said Alan Metler, Jersey Animal Rights Alliance. The alliance is based in Woodbridge and claims 15,000 members statewide. One of the group's most vehement objections is directed at the Draize test.

Developed in 1944, the test checks substances which stand a high probability of getting into the human eye. The test is used on cosmetics, and toiletries such as hair spray and shampoo.

"In the Draize test they put albino rabbits in headlocks, use clips to keep their eyelids open, and drop chemicals into their eyes," explained Stacy Stempier, an animal rights activist and member of the New Jersey Animal Rights Alliance.

"The rabbits remain in the headlocks for hours, days, and even weeks," Stempier said. "They sometimes break their necks and backs and actually howl trying to escape the bondage. Most people have never heard a rabbit howl, but under these conditions they do."

"Schering-Plough uses the Draize test for Maybelline cosmetic products," Metler said. "The Draize test is one of the most heinous animal tests around, and it is not even an accurate measure of eye or skin irritation."

"We have written to Schering-Plough extensively and get the same form letter back," Metler said.

Schering-Plough was contacted, and a prepared statement was read by Steve Galpin, manager of public information.

"Schering-Plough believes this test is necessary for the development of information essential to research and marketing of products which are safe for patient and consumer use. An acceptable alternative non-animal test is not available and Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Frank Young has so stated," the statement read.

The FDA acknowledges the validity of these alternative methods, but said they have not yet been formally proven to be equivalent to the existing Draize test. "Scientists must pursue through the normal channels of medical literature that these new testing methods are equivalent to the Draize test," said Joan Lytle, consumer affairs officer of the FDA office in West Orange.

The alliance is also pushing to eliminate the LD-50 test, the "LD" meaning lethal dose, and the "50" designating that doses of chemicals are administered to animals in progressive quantities until 50 percent of the animals in the test die. "No animal ever leaves the lab alive," Metler said.

Guinea pigs and monkeys are included in Schering-Plough's testing, which involves administering pain or distress to animals without the use of anesthetics or tranquilizers.

A vote on a resolution to require Schering-Plough to report annually on its progress in eliminating animal testing was rejected by the shareholders overwhelmingly. Only 5.8 percent of the shareholders voted in favor of the company divulging the information. Since the vote exceeded the 3 percent minimum requirement, the alliance will be allowed to return to next year's meeting of shareholders and introduce the resolution again.

According to Chief Executive Robert Luciano, Schering-Plough netted a record $316 million in 1987 on gross sales of $2.7 billion. Luciano said he expects brisk sales again this year, due to the introduction of several new pharmaceutical products by the company.

"The alliance is also pursuing legislative avenues for cutting back on animal testing for products."

A bill passed the New Jersey State Senate by a vote of 32-0 in February to ban the Draize test in New Jersey; it is now in the state assembly.

Metler said the Draize test has never been formally validated. "It's only been allowed because of the 'grandfather clause,'" Metler said.

The alliance suggested several alternatives to animal testing of chemicals.

"In this age of computer technology, we have many test methods that are superior to subjecting animals to antiquated tests developed in the 1920s and '40s," the alliance reported. "Human and accurate methods include: tissue and cell cultures, organ cultures, mathematical and computer models, egg membranes, along with other invitro, or test-tube, methods."

One egg-membrane method, Eyetest, has a 96-percent positive correlation rate with Draize test results. Metler added that slaughterhouse eyes could be used as another alternative.

Other than the cruelty aspect, many medical authorities say progressive methods of testing are economically and functionally sensible.

GET THE LEAD OUT!!!

New Jersey-American Water Company Awareness Program

EPA Presses Lead Controls
The Environmental Protection Agency has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. The Agency (EPA) and our company are taking steps to minimize your exposure to this widespread metal. You probably are aware that the use of lead in interior paints was banned years ago, and the use of lead as an anti-knock additive in gasoline is being phased out to eliminate lead from car exhaust fumes.

Today's Target: Lead in Plumbing
The latest step in the effort to control exposure to lead occurred last year when Congress banned the use of lead solder, flux and pipe in household plumbing. This ban was imposed because these plumbing materials can release invisible, tasteless traces of lead into water they touch, particularly if the water is corrosive, the solder is relatively new, or the water stands in contact with the lead solder or pipe for several hours.

Most water is naturally corrosive to varying degrees but we treat yours as needed to reduce its corrosiveness.

Lead is Used Widely
Lead is still used widely in the United States, mostly in batteries, ammunition, molten brass and bronze products, cable sheathing, caulking, bearings and for insulating against noise and x-rays. Americans are exposed to traces of it in the air and in food as well as in water.

The main source of lead in drinking water is contact with lead pipes, lead solder and molten metal fixtures in household plumbing.

You Can Guard Your Family
The EPA recently imposed a regulation requiring public water suppliers to notify all their customers of the potential health effects of lead in household plumbing. By this notice, we are complying, even though our water, which we test at random taps after running it, is in violation of the current standard. This notice is to inform you of lead's potential health effects and to tell you about steps that are being taken by us—and things you can do—to reduce your family's exposure.

Simple Precautions Minimize Risk
Even if your service line or pipes are lead or lead-soldered there's no need to consider replacing them or buying bottled water because we treat your water, if necessary, to reduce its corrosiveness. But we suggest the following precautions for all our customers:

1. Let water from an unused faucet run before drinking it. If the water in the house has been used, as for flushing, showers or doing laundry, 30 seconds' flushing is fine. If not, let the water run for a minute or two before drinking.
2. Use only cold water for drinking, cooking and preparing baby formula. Hot water is more apt to dissolve lead.
3. Insist that your plumber use only lead-free materials in any repairs or improvements.

Lead, Copper Are Easy To Identify
You can determine the type of plumbing used in your home simply by looking at it:

- Lead pipe is gray and relatively soft. (It can be scratched with a key or coin.)
- It is most likely to have been used in the line entering an older home.
- Iron pipe is usually black. If galvanized it could look gray but it is very hard.
- Copper pipe has a characteristic copper color. Until last year, virtually all copper pipe was joined with solder containing lead.

Soldered pipes over five years old usually don't give off much lead because over time a film forms inside pipes that separates the water from the metal.

EPA Cites Health Effects
The EPA sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm), based on new health information. EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

- If your house or water system has lead pipes, or

Testing Probably Isn't Necessary
In our opinion, it is not necessary for you to test your water if you follow these guidelines because we control its corrosiveness and test periodically at points in your community. However, if you wish to have your water tested by a commercial laboratory, make sure the lab is certified to analyze drinking water. The test may cost from $20 to $75.

Where To Call
If you have any questions about this notice, please contact our office at: (201) 376-9520 or the EPA Lead Hot Line, 1-800-426-4791.

DRUG-FREE ZONES—The map above outlines the areas in Springfield which are within 1,000 feet of school property. According to local police, the new anti-drug law in New Jersey gives a mandatory 3-year jail sentence to anyone selling drugs within that distance of a school. The law, which went into effect in July 1987, covers all drugs including marijuana.

Alleged auto thieves nabbed

A routine investigation of a minor traffic violation by a Springfield police officer led to the arrest of a Newark man allegedly driving a stolen car.

On May 2, police arrested Igor Kichuk, 25, of Newark, and charged him with two counts of receiving stolen property. The arrest came after Patrolman William Wrisley spotted the suspect making an improper turn at Morris and Meisel avenues. After stopping the suspect, Wrisley said he noticed that matching tips had been placed over the inspection sticker and that the steering column had been broken. He said he became suspicious and did a computer check.

"I did the check just to be sure," said Wrisley, who has been on the force 17 years and a half. "A lot of times, having a damaged steering column doesn't mean that the person has stolen the car. Sometimes the car has been returned in that condition and the owner is driving it."

However, a check revealed that the 1986 Chevrolet Camaro had been stolen from a Railway dealership on April 30.

In another stolen car incident, Springfield police have made strides in solving another case. On April 28, formal charges were brought against Earl Cook, 21, of Newark.

Cable show targets caregivers of aged

Union County's cable television show for seniors, "Vintage Views," will feature during May services for caregivers of the elderly, titled "Eldercare — As Parents Age," announced William H. Eldridge, Union County freeholder and liaison to the Advisory Council on Aging.

In Union County, the "eldercare" concept is implemented under the acronym PIE, Program of Information and Education for Caregivers of the Elderly, according to the Division on Aging of the Department of Human Services, which produces the television series.

"PIE provides eldercare education during lunch-hour sessions at the location of cooperating companies to current and potential working caregivers," Eldridge said. "A nurse educator and a gerontologist provide information regarding the aging

Fulcomer: let voters decide

By DONNA SCHUSTER
Union County Freeholder James Fulcomer says he wants the people to decide on the best form of county government, and to that end has proposed that a referendum question be placed on November's ballot asking voters whether a Charter Study Commission should be authorized to review the options.

Fulcomer said this week that he is urging the freeholder board to allow the referendum that, if approved by the voters, would initiate the study of the Optional County Charter Act. Fulcomer proposes that either the county executive form of government or the freeholder board president option would better serve Union County. The freeholder contends that the current county manager system doesn't work.

"Since the departure of George Albanese as county manager to take a job with Gov. Thomas Kean's administration, we have had three different county managers, and looking for a fourth, and have had four different acting county managers," Fulcomer said.

The freeholder contends that as political parties gain control, the county managers change — a practice, said Fulcomer, that "runs counter to the early conception of a stable administration."

DOT to connect Rt. 24 Freeway

Transportation Commissioner Howard Pease-Gluck has announced that the Department of Transportation will receive bids on May 26 for the first of two contracts to build the Route 24 Freeway in Morris, Essex and Union counties.

The initial contract will extend 5.8 miles from east of Park Avenue in Hanover Township to the vicinity of River Road in Millburn and Summit, stated Commissioner Gluck. "Work on this project will be completed by June 1992."

"When completed, the Route 24 Freeway will provide relief by taking through traffic off State Route 24 between Chatham and Morrisstown," Gluck said.

The four-lane freeway will improve travel time, especially during rush hour, and existing Route 24 will cease to function in a dual role of main street for the central business districts of Chatham, Madison and Morrisstown and as a conduit for east-west commuter traffic when the freeway opens, the commissioner noted.

The initial contract calls for the construction of four new bridges. The bridges are: Route 24 Freeway over Black Brook, West Branch; Route 24 Freeway over Black Brook, East Branch; relocated Greenwood Avenue over Route 24 Freeway; and Route 24 Freeway over Spring Garden Brook.

A second contract to construct the freeway 2.3 miles from I-287 to east of the Columbia Turnpike in Hanover and Morris townships and Florham Park could go to construction in the summer of 1989, depending on the availability of funds.

The department is committed in the Environmental Impact Statement to not open any portion of the freeway until it is completed to the interchange with I-287 in Hanover Township.

The first contract is funded 100 percent by the state through the Transportation Trust Fund. All bids will be reviewed before a contract is awarded. The Department is an Equal Opportunity Employer and contractors are required to conform to applicable civil rights regulations.

Prioleau was selected on the basis of her demonstrated success in completing the transition from an institutional setting to a community environment.

Although she has physical handicaps and must use a wheelchair, she strives toward her goals of achieving independence with a cheerful and optimistic attitude.

But Freeholder Chairman Michael Lapolla countered Fulcomer's proposal — it is true, Lapolla said, that when county managers leave government, some employees follow. But when a county executive's term is up, hundreds of county employees leave their jobs, too, resulting in a much higher level of instability. The county executive plan, said Lapolla, "is much more political by nature than the county manager."

Lapolla called Fulcomer's request for a referendum a political ploy. "He's on the ballot this year. He's just trying to make political hay," said the chairman, who added that the selection committee for the current county manager search process is getting closer to filling the position of former county manager Donald Anderson who resigned April 8.

Anderson, who has served as county manager since July 1986, originally resigned in January but said he intended to stay on the job until a replacement was hired. But in early April he told Lapolla that his job search would make it impractical to continue in the manager's position.

Republican members of the freeholder board contend Anderson was ousted because he would not conform to the majority party's directives concerning the operation of the county.

The current make-up of the board is 6-3, Democrats.

Fulcomer said the county executive plan "offers administrative stability and direct, clear responsibility for administrative performance to the people because the executive is elected."

The board president plan, he said, would "minimize wasteful power struggles," and make the freeholder majority clearly responsible for administrative competence.

But Chairman Lapolla said it would be impossible for a part-time freeholder to assume the full administrative duties of a manager or administrator.

Lapolla said he would not support the referendum question for those reasons, and also because he does not want to jeopardize the selection of a new county manager.

"We are in the process of selecting a new manager. The committee has spent many many hours. We have our first meeting this week to narrow down the field of candidates, and I will not have the process thrown into an uproar because of Freeholder Fulcomer," the chairman said.

Freeholder Brian Fahay agreed with Lapolla and called the proposal inappropriate.

"We are just a few weeks away from asking someone to step into the manager's job. It's a commitment on our part and on the job candidate's part," said Fahay, adding, "We are going through the process of selecting the truly, qualified person who will give us all a chance to salvage what is supposed to be the best form of government — the county manager."

Fulcomer said the referendum would translate to a "public debate and would permit the people to decide on the question of whether serious action should be taken."

Fahay, in his announcement of the proposal, did not indicate whether the referendum question would be binding or non-binding. According to County Clerk Walter Halpin, there are major differences between the two.

"A non-binding referendum will reflect the pulse of the people but other than that it's a waste of time, a cop-out," Halpin said. "The freeholders would approve a resolution, forward it to the clerk within 74 days of the election, and it would appear on the ballot."

A binding referendum, the clerk said, requires introducing an ordinance that would include public hearings giving citizens the chance to speak. If the freeholders adopt the ordinance, the question appears on the ballot. A citizen petition can also serve as a forum for placing the question. Halpin said the binding option is a more complicated, but in the end a more effective, means to actually create change.

Freeholder Joe Suliga responded to Fulcomer's proposal with one of his own.

"I've only been in county government four months so it's difficult for me to analyze the pros and cons of it, but one alternative may be changing to the election of district freeholders," Suliga said, noting that when elected officials are representing one specific district, as on the state level, there is a tendency to "get along better."

SHE'S GOT HIS VOTE — U.S. Senator Bill Bradley gave his endorsement to Union County Registrar of Deeds Joanne Rajoppi during a recent reception in Summit. Rajoppi is seeking to win a second five-year term in November.

Painter takes the prize in Rinaldo art contest

Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo, R-N.J., has announced the selection of a painting by Christopher DiMaggio of New Providence High School as the winning entry in the 7th Congressional District art competition for high school students.

DiMaggio's "3-D painting on wood, titled 'Forbidden Fruit,' will be taken to Washington for display in the U.S. Capitol complex along with prize-winning art work of high school students from other congressional districts across the nation.

"DiMaggio will be Congressman Rinaldo's guest at the June 28 ceremony opening the national exhibit. Television personality Willard Scott will be the master of ceremonies.

The work of 45 young high school artists is on display at Schering-Plough, which was the host for the reception as part of the fifth annual congressional Arts Caucus competition sponsored by Rinaldo to encourage young artists.

Exhibitors sought

Trailside Nature and Science Center, located on Coles Avenue and New Providence Road in Mountainside, is seeking quality displays for its Visitor Center's changing exhibit area.

Artists, naturalists or photographers interested in displaying quality nature-related work for several months at a nature center visited by many school groups and families, should contact Doug Schiller at 232-5930, Mondays and Wednesdays through Fridays.

UCUA sues seven haulers

By DONNA SCHUSTER
Seven trash haulers who were charged with illegal dumping by the Union County Utilities Authority on April 26 are expected to file their responses in Superior Court today.

UCUA attorney David Rubin said he filed the complaint that prompted Union County Superior Court Judge Frederick Kentz Jr. to schedule a hearing for May 13. Answers to the complaint are due in court eight days before the hearing, the attorney said.

Rubin said the authority, which is charged with overseeing the county's solid waste disposal operation, will appeal to the judge to execute a preliminary injunction against the haulers. The injunction would order the firms to obey the state and county waste flow directives that the trash be dumped at the Automated Modular Systems Inc. transfer station in Linden.

The complaint charges that the firms have bypassed the Linden station, which charges haulers $137 per ton to redirect the trash to out-of-state landfills. It is the highest tipping fee charged at any transfer station in the state.

But UCUA Executive Director Joe Kazar contends, as does the complaint, that some of the firms are charging their customers that same rate, while dumping at other transfer stations or hauling the trash themselves to landfill sites in Pennsylvania.

The firms listed in the complaint are: Anchor Caring Corp., Jersey Caring Inc., Reliable Disposal Service, Forgiorno Caring, Juzefyk Excavating Co., Big Top Landscape Contractors, and Impartico's Inc.

Juzefyk is the only hauler based in Union County. The others are headquartered in Hunterdon, Essex, Bergen, Middlesex, and Somerset counties. But all seven have Union County contracts to dispose of refuse generated here and were directed by the UCUA and the state Department of Environmental Protection to utilize the Linden station.

UCUA Chairman Louis Santagata said that AMS, which is supposed to receive 900 tons of waste per day under a contractual agreement with the authority, has been receiving an average of only 700 tons. This lower-than-anticipated volume, said the chairman, coupled with the noticeable absence of several firms at the Lower Road station, prompted the investigation which led to the complaint.

The UCUA has been gathering evidence against suspected waste flow violators during recent weeks. It was our intention to take the strongest legal action possible against those haulers who are violating waste flow orders and defrauding customers," Santagata said.

Rubin said the haulers will be directed by Judge Kentz to "show cause why they should not be required to obey" the waste flow directives. The injunction, he said, will force the firms to utilize the Linden transfer station while the court case continues.

The complaint charges that some haulers were dumping commercial and landscaping waste in Newark and Edison, while others dumped directly out of state.

Kazar said it is imperative that the daily estimate of 900 tons of waste be adhered to. The UCUA's contract with the Linden station stipulates that the fee may increase if tonnage falls below the anticipated figure.

Kazar said that the waste estimates from the seven haulers named in the complaint were incorporated into the anticipated trash flow when the authority signed the contract with the transfer station.

Rubin said the extent of the court proceedings will depend on "how much energy the haulers put into contesting the charges."

Project will protect parks

By DONNA SCHUSTER
A campaign to combat illegal garbage dumping in county parks would increase fines from $200 to $25,000 and would utilize undercover county police in apprehending violators, said Freeholder Neil Cohen, who is spearheading the initiative with the help of County Police Chief Richard Mannix and Public Safety Director William Tisdall.

The dumping of trash in county parks has increased 25 percent this year, according to the county department of parks and the county police, who monitor the amount of refuse found on county property.

"This 35 percent includes, for example, the people who dump one or two bags of household trash and the people who dump loads of construction material," said Cohen, who asked Mannix and Tisdall to prepare a project draft for a county-wide training and publicity campaign.

"Public awareness will be at the heart of this entire program. I have already received drafts of posters that will be distributed all over the county, and a letter we will send to citizens who live near county parks," Cohen said.

"It has been increasingly apparent that due to the state-imposed high cost of garbage removal, an incentive now exists for residents in this state and garbage haulers to utilize our parks as their private and free-of-charge landfill," said the freeholder.

The cost of solid waste disposal has more than tripled in Union County since the Edgboro landfill in East Brunswick closed last year. Residents are paying now for out-of-state dumping.

"Cohen has the intent to take preventative measures now to avoid catastrophe, as previously existed with the toxic waste dumping era of a few years ago."

And residents in neighboring counties are experiencing the same dilemma, Cohen cited Essex County residents as an example.

"In counties like Essex, where people are surcharged individually for trash pickup, there's a temptation to dump here. Midnight dumping is likely to happen and we have to act now to prevent a crisis," he said.

Cohen wants to make the penalties so harsh that violators won't take the risk. "If we are able to confiscate vehicles, a hauler may think twice about doing it. If the monetary penalties are enormous, maybe they won't take the chance of getting caught."

The Union County Police Force will commit as many undercover officers as possible to the project, and a hot line number will be set up for citizens to call with suspicions. The names of convicted violators will be forwarded to the Board of Public Utilities, the Department of Environmental Protection, and the appropriate prosecuting agencies.

Cohen has requested county counsel to research a change in the public safety ordinance that would permit seizure of vehicles and imposition of $25,000 fines. A conviction on a first offense of illegal dumping is currently $200.

Educating police officers and county citizens will play a big role in the campaign, said Cohen.

Freeholder Chairman Michael Lapolla pledged his support to the program and to the increased penalties for violators.

"We don't have a lot of open space here, and if someone contaminates a lake in one of our parks or dumps garbage, it is a big deal. We are fighting this on a daily basis. Our parks department employees have to clean up the trash and that costs us money," said Lapolla.

Believe it or not, this is your new hospital.

It's the new Irvington General Hospital. But the last thing it looks, feels, or tastes like is a hospital. The new atrium lobby and pastel-colored patient rooms look more like a hotel. The new Emergency Room feels more like your private doctor's office. And, the food tastes more like the food you expect to eat in a good restaurant.

But we didn't build a new hospital just to keep up appearances. The new Irvington General Hospital is here for a much more important reason—to keep people healthy.

At Irvington General Hospital, our whole approach to health care has always been personalized, not institutionalized. That's why you'll find friendly smiles and personal feelings of warmth and encouragement from our professional staff.

So now, you not only have a hospital that's better to look at—it's better equipped, better to work in, and a much better place to be a patient.

MVS extends offices for disabled

As part of the efforts by Motor Vehicle Services to provide more convenient and efficient services to the motoring public, Attorney General Cary Edwards announced that MVS is now issuing applications for handicapped license plates, placards and identification cards for disabled persons at 19 Department of Labor vocational rehabilitation offices.

Until now, the applications were only available at local motor vehicle agencies or by mail from the Motor Vehicle's central office in Trenton, Edwards explained. However, in order to increase accessibility, the MVS is distributing applications at other facilities that assist many disabled individuals. This may save many people from making unnecessary trips to local motor vehicle agencies, he added.

"As a first step in providing improved services to mobility impaired citizens of New Jersey, the MVS has employed the assistance of the State Department of Labor's Division of Vocational Rehabilitation Services (DVRS)," said Edwards.

According to Labor Commissioner Charles Serrano, the DVRS provides services that enable disabled persons to become or remain employed.

"We are happy to have this opportunity to work with the MVS in providing further assistance to mobility impaired individuals," he said.

UCC honor students set for graduation

Four students enrolled in Union County College's Honors Program will be graduating on May 26 with honors of their own—this time with plaudits for outstanding performance within the honors program itself.

The honors program, which will graduate its first students this year, is a concentration of four accelerated humanities courses designed to intensify a gifted student's college experience through critical thinking and writing. A host of issues are dealt with from both philosophical and political perspectives. Selected students must have proven performances of excellence in their academic histories in order to be eligible.

Dr. Timothy McCracken, director of the Honors Program, said that four students have been selected to graduate with honors from his program, a distinction from other students who are honor graduates. Of McCracken's students, the following area residents have attained special recognition.

Frank Tortorello of Mountainside and Leslie Daly of Roselle, who will be called "scholars," attained a grade-point average of 3.5 or better in all four Honors Program courses, and served 36 hours in extra credit projects in other courses.

COAH sets new housing limits

The New Jersey Council on Affordable Housing (COAH) recently approved new income limits for people to qualify for low and moderate income housing. The eligibility figures are based on the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) estimates. Family size adjustments were made by the New Jersey Housing and Mortgage Finance Agency (HMFA) using HUD uncappegged figures.

Under the Fair Housing Act of July 2, 1985, which established COAH, low income housing is defined as that which is affordable to households with a gross household income equal to 50 percent or less of the median gross income for households of the same size within the housing region.

Moderate income housing means housing affordable to people with a gross household income equal to more than 50 percent but less than 80 percent of the median income.

The new eligibility figures show an increase of approximately $1,000-$4,000 depending on the number of people in a household and the housing region. For example, in Mercer County, a couple with one child (three-person household) earning between $17,326 and $27,720 would qualify for moderate income housing; previously the limit had been $25,704.

In Somerset, Hunterdon and Middlesex counties, the limit for a three-person household to be eligible for moderate income housing also went up more than $2,000, from $29,016 to $31,032.

In Hudson County, an eight-person household now can earn up to $29,999 to qualify for moderate and up to $18,187 for low income housing. In Middlesex County, the moderate limit is $43,100 for an eight-person household and $26,937 for the low income limit. In Cumberland County the limits are $27,937 for a moderate and $17,062 for a low income household of eight persons.

Under COAH's substantive guidelines, after a downpayment of 10 percent, the monthly principal, interest, taxes, insurance and condominium fees of low and moderate income for-sale units, cannot exceed 28 percent of an eligible gross monthly income. For rental housing units, the rents, excluding utilities, are not to exceed 30 percent of the gross monthly income for the appropriate household size.

For more information or to receive a copy of the income limits, contact the Council on Affordable Housing, 11 C Princess Road, CN 813, Trenton, N.J. 08625.

Bears top New Prov., 5-3; await Hillside in tourney

By MARK YABLONSKY
Although Mike Chalenski finally was scored on, that was about it as far as bad news is concerned for the Brearley Regional baseball team, which added two more wins this past week, including a 5-3 victory over New Providence last Thursday afternoon.

This time, it was somewhat tougher, even though Chalenski struck out eight and did not walk a single batter. After setting down the Pioneers in order in the first inning, Big Cheeto made a noticeable mistake the following inning in scoring a hanging off-speed pitch to Glenn Mellusi, who belted it far down the left-field line for a two-run homer. The hit also helped his team defeat one of Brearley's arch foes in both Mountain Valley Conference and North Jersey, Group 1, Section 2 play.

The Bears, who are 10-3 and counting, have played to smile about these days. In addition to their lofty record, they have a lofty number four seeding in Union County Tournament play to be happy about.

And because of such an honor, the Bears were able to skip the preliminary round of the UCT this past weekend, while others around them could not. Instead, the Bears will face Hillside in a first-round game this Saturday, two days hence, in Kenilworth at 2 p.m.

One inning later, Alan Kohler doubled to left and scored two outs later when catcher Dennis Lonergan dropped a hard single into center. And so, after three innings, everyone present — and that included a mini-convocation of scouts from numerous major league organizations — had seen the Pioneers stake themselves to a 3-0 lead by scoring the first runs of the year off of Brearley's prized right-hander. But they would not score again.

Chalenski's last was the only hit he had off of Brearley's pitcher. "I thought we had a good shot," said New Providence's coach of 29 years, Paul Miller, when asked about his team's effort against Chalenski. "We had faced him before. We knew he was very fast. But our kids hung in there pretty good with him."

"I think it's being recognized now," said Brearley coach Ralph LaConte about his team's growing reputation, especially in the form of Chalenski. "It's nice to be among the top five seeded teams in the Union County Tournament. We worked for it and we finally achieved that respectability. To maintain it is something else."

Chalenski was tough enough when he had to be, and on a few occasions, the scouts clocked his pitch at 85 miles-per-hour on their radar guns. In the meantime, the Bears finally broke through against New Providence starter Brian Raphaelian, who, despite three walks, had managed to hold Brearley hitless over the first three innings with an assortment of off-speed and breaking pitches that held the fastball-loving gradates at bay.

Big Cheeto started things off in the fourth by drawing a leadoff walk on a 3-2 pitch. After advancing to second base on a grounder to deep third by Vito Castaldo, Chalenski reached the hot corner on a wild pitch and then held his ground as Ken Kinney drew another walk. Up to the plate then came Brian Chalenski, who sent his older brother home with a sacrifice fly to fairly deep center field. The Bears then tied the score when Pat Olenick belted a two-run homer deep to left-center field, a play that some considered to be a triple and error on the relay from the outfield.

And so it is. But take the kind of hitting that Brearley has shown, put the ball in Chalenski's hand, and one never knows what can happen. For sure, that seemed to be the case with New Providence.

The Pioneers, who have had one of the best programs in their group and area for several years now, were no strangers to Big Cheeto's power. They knew them well enough, too, Chalenski, who is now 4-0 on the season, had beaten New Providence four times during all the way back to his freshman year, and in each of those games, the Pioneers were held to a total of one run. Now, make it five wins for Chalenski over the green-and-gold clad Pioneers, whose uniforms have a strong resemblance to the ones worn by the Oakland A's throughout most of the 1970's.

Major League play kicked off with a 4-3 come-from-behind victory by the Blue Stars over the Mets. The Mets broke to an early 3-0 third-inning lead on a triple by Bob McSilla, a single by Jamie Kuperman and back-to-back doubles by Jim Forker and A.J. Kennedy. The Blue Stars got one back in the fourth thanks to heads-up base running by Carlos Lucyk, and then won the game in their final at-bat on singles by Manlio Carrelli-RBI-doubles by Lucyk and Brent Rusche, and a game-winning single up the from Jordan Matthews.

Yanks top Astros, Angels to start '88

The opening day of the 35th season of the Mountaintide Little League baseball season witnessed a mixture of fine fielding, power hitting and power pitching in all age divisions.

Russo added two singles apiece in a losing effort.

The Dodgers battled back from an early four-run deficit to overtake the Indians, 6-4. The Indians started off quickly with Chester King, Dominic Marietta, Jodi Mastellone, E.J. Mattioli and John Bruschi hitting consecutive singles. Thanks to fine fielding by third baseman Ken Fisher, the tribe held off the Dodgers until the late innings. But the Dodgers' late rally was a well-balanced affair as Mary and Sandra Okerson, Zach Orenzek, Christine Szymczak and Katrina Katoleski each had key hits. Centerfielder Josh Kalpa cut down a runner in the final inning to preserve the win for Robbie Giannotti, who struck out five in his two-inning relief stint.

In American League play, two long home runs by Shaun Fahrion and a diving bases-loaded, third-out, backhanded stab by second baseman Christine Klaskin paced the Yankees to a 6-1 triumph over the Astros. Christopher Klaskin's RBI single pitched Mike Soellios-Bret Oberhanser, Robbie Forgas, Mark Hony and Ben Jacobs provided the offense for the Astros.

Lucyk went the distance for the win, with centerfielder Blake Haggerty coming up with a nice running catch on a sharp line drive by Lee Beasley to bail the Blue Stars out of a late-inning jam.

LEADING THE WAY — And the Bears will be hoping that Mike Chalenski, seen here ripping a hit in a recent game, will be able to do that when Brearley begins Union County Tournament this Saturday at 2 p.m. After skipping preliminary-round play, the fourth-seeded Bears will play Hillside at Ward Field.

LeDonne sees hope for team

By MARK YABLONSKY
This is the first time that John LeDonne has ever coached in track. And while his team has managed no better than a 2-4 start so far, LeDonne can't be too disappointed, knowing that at least one of his team's losses, a 66-63 setback to Roselle on April 5, almost went the other way.

In fact, the Bulldogs actually were holding a slim 63-61 lead heading into the day's final event, which was the mile relay. Unfortunately, the Roselle mile-relay team was anchored by none other than Sean Baldwin, who is about as spectacular in track as he is in football. Needless to say, all five points went to the Rams, and so much for an opening-day win.

"You know, overall we're not having an outstanding year, but for the silent we have, we're having a good year," said LeDonne, who is also Dayton's head varsity football coach and the school's freshman basketball coach. "We only have 29 boys that are really strong actively as a team. We're lacking on the track, the sprint events. We have decent distance people. On the field, we have better-than-average weightmen."

"You know, overall we're not having an outstanding year, but for the silent we have, we're having a good year," said LeDonne, who is also Dayton's head varsity football coach and the school's freshman basketball coach. "We only have 29 boys that are really strong actively as a team. We're lacking on the track, the sprint events. We have decent distance people. On the field, we have better-than-average weightmen."

LeDonne's team was anchored by none other than Sean Baldwin, who is about as spectacular in track as he is in football. Needless to say, all five points went to the Rams, and so much for an opening-day win.

In fact, the Bulldogs actually were holding a slim 63-61 lead heading into the day's final event, which was the mile relay. Unfortunately, the Roselle mile-relay team was anchored by none other than Sean Baldwin, who is about as spectacular in track as he is in football. Needless to say, all five points went to the Rams, and so much for an opening-day win.

"You know, overall we're not having an outstanding year, but for the silent we have, we're having a good year," said LeDonne, who is also Dayton's head varsity football coach and the school's freshman basketball coach. "We only have 29 boys that are really strong actively as a team. We're lacking on the track, the sprint events. We have decent distance people. On the field, we have better-than-average weightmen."

Insurance Center wins opener, 14-12

In the start of Springfield Junior Baseball League play this week, America's Insurance Center beat Ricco Electric, 14-12, with the play of both clubs being highlighted by good hitting and pitching.

America's Insurance was led by the strong hitting of Pete Singano, Ryan Kravetz, Ralph Saracino and Jeff Hagenbush, and Brian Graber and Paul Garber chipped in by hitting home runs. Andy Stier's homer and double sparked Ricco, which also got three hits from Chris Klein. Teammate Gregory Marx added two hits, and Jeffrey Schwartz socked a double.

Kravetz came on to throw two shutout innings to seal the win.

In Major League action, Peter Kucharski and Alex Colatruglio combined for a six-hitter as Carter Bolt beat Amico, 11-3. Peter Kay went 3-for-3 with a walk, Colatruglio hit two homers, and both John Fiechi and Jay McCanlis added two hits each in solid team effort.

In all, the entire league opened its 36th year of play this past Saturday with a full slate of games. Some highlights for the upcoming season include the Memorial Day Parade and AHSU games on May 30, the Major and Minor League championship games on June 18, and the family picnic on June 12.

The league this season consists of 13 T-Ball teams; six Minor League teams, five Major-League teams; and three Pony League squads. Rosters will follow next week.

Dayton, Park, Union all advance in UCT

By MARK YABLONSKY
Some day soon, spring as we know it, replete with blossoming flowers, trees fully covered with leaves and most importantly of all, warm, spring-like temperatures, is going to arrive on an everyday basis. And according to recent forecasts, that may happen even before the ink on this page is fully dry.

However, in spite of the chilly, rainy weather conditions that have plagued the area, it was time nevertheless to begin an annual event that each and every baseball and softball fan looks forward to each spring — the Union County Tournament.

With Elizabeth and Roselle Park having received the top seeds in baseball and softball competition, respectively, the rest of the field in both sports began play this past weekend — or at least, in some cases, anyway. In local baseball play, Union, Roselle Park and Dayton all won their preliminary-round games.

Two of the games, in fact, carried identical scores: Union topped Roselle, 3-1, at old Roselle Park in its game with Roselle.

Brearley Regional and Linden, of course, had the fortune of being able to skip the preliminary round, having drawn the number four and six seeds, respectively. The Bears will now face Hillside — which upset Government at 2 p.m. The Tigers will receive a visit from none other than Union on Saturday as well.

ROSELLE PARK 3, ROSELLE 1
This, without question, was an interesting preliminary-round contest. Roselle Park, a team that has almost lost at least two games because of errors, this time played errorless ball and, in fact, came up big twice in the field when it absolutely had to. The first such instance occurred in the third inning when, with one out and two runs on base, shortstop R.J. Kuterka made a nifty grab of Eric Leiter's sharp hopper up the middle, before stepping on second and firing to teammate Robert Baker at first to complete the double play. The second such instance came with everything on the line.

Trailing by a 3-1 count, the 18th-seeded Rams quickly loaded the bases in the top of the seventh inning, via a hit batsman, Kevin Spier's fourth hit of the day, a wild pitch, and a walk to Steven Williams. At this point, Panther bullpen ace Jim Freeman, who had replaced starter Charlie Smith one batter earlier, was in an obviously tough situation. Once again, Jeter hit a sharp grounder, this time to third baseman Mike Erickson, who had but one play, and that was to come home for a force.

Erickson's peg was low and slightly off-line, but senior catcher John Cunningham, one of two remaining starters from last year's Group 1 championship club, acted very much like a first baseman in making the scoop and then stepping on the plate to erase Lonnie Stevenson just in time. Stevenson, as a pinch-hitter, had led off the inning by taking first after being hit by Smith's first offering. The rest was easy, as Freeman reached back to whiff both Craig Martin and Eugene Brown to end the game.

In a sixth-inning move that had some Panther players on the sidelines curious, the Rams, with runners on the corners and only one out, called for a suicide squeeze play with Greg Sekac at the plate, and with an 0-2 count. Sekac missed the bunt attempt, thus making him a strikeout victim. Catcher Mike Massaro then ended the inning by flying to center, an inning in which Craig Fuller had singled home Martin earlier, with what turned out to be Roselle's only run of the day.

For Roselle Park, the tournament's number 15 seed, the deciding inning was the fourth. "Doc" Williams, who had just replaced "Murr" Martin, walked Joe Stier, who then reached second base when a pitch sailed away from Massaro, an incident in which coach Stan Kokie felt that the ball had hit Smith's bat, although that did not appear to be the case. Smith then singled and stole second, and walks to Cunningham and Doug Place produced the game's first run. After Kuterka struck out, centerfielder Tom Megles lofted a sacrifice fly to center, plating Smith for a 2-0 Panther lead.

Megles later came through again by scoring Cunningham with a hard two-out single to right in the sixth for a big insurance run.

"We weren't getting it done with the sticks, but we hung tough defensively," said a relieved, smiling Panther coach Jack Shaw, whose team will now travel to Rahway for a first-round UCT game on Saturday.

Shaw, whose team returned to Roselle, N.J., 3-0, a few hours later under the lights, courtesy of a strong one-hitter by Peter Auisiello, admitted he had been "surprised" when Kokie called for that squeeze play in the sixth. But Shaw, who played in Cunningham's crucial seventh-inning putout, also credited Kokie for going with "a real gutsy play."

Kokie later admitted that he hadn't been fully aware of the count at the time, figuring instead that the first pitch to Sekac had been out of the strike zone.

"I was going at that point to tie the game, but if I had known the count was two strikes, I wouldn't have done it," explained Kokie. "I thought the first pitch was a ball."

Icono, whose 6-7 team still has a fighting chance to qualify for state tournament playoff action, made two moves in the bottom of the fourth inning this past Sunday afternoon at Ruby Field that resulted in four runs for his team, and thus, the end of any tournament advancement hopes for a young, youth-oriented Celtic squad. With two out and runners on first and second, Icono called back left fielder Eric Incaudola, the team's number eight hitter, and sent Greg Graziano to the plate instead, in strictly a "re-entry" role — which, in other words, meant that Incaudola, under current high school rules, would resume his place in the lineup the following inning.

Graziano responded by getting a "hit," all right, but the hit came as the result of Greg Thomas' first pitch making contact with Graziano's body, not his bat. With the bases now loaded, Incaudola looked up and down his bench second time, thought it over for a few seconds, and then told Hart to grab a bat and hit for Mike Mancuso, again in strictly a re-entry move.

And again, contact was made on Thomas' very first pitch, but this time the ball traveled on a straight, rapid-line, well over the head of centerfielder Kevin Campbell for a bases-clearing, three-run pinch double by Mr. Hart. When David Lissy followed that up by lacing a run-scoring triple to right, the 12th-seeded Bulldogs found themselves up by a 5-1 count.

David's older brother, Dan, then did the rest, in scattering just two more hits over the final three innings. Throw in a run-scoring single from Chris Nabors in the bottom of the fifth, and you have Dayton's final 6-1 victory, which has earned them a first-round trip to Scotch Plains on Saturday.

"He seems to be a quiet competitor," said Incaudola about Hart, who had but two hits in six trips to the plate prior to his big double. "The kids have come through for us. The other day, Danny LaFargues came through with a three-run homer against Hillside (in an 11-0 win) for us. Today, Billy came through for us."

Game of Saturday, April 30 (At Roselle Park):
Roselle 000010-1 9 1
R. Park 000001X-3 4 0
2B-Brown, Martin, Williams and Messaro; Smith, Freeman and Cunningham. WP-Smith (3-0). LP-Williams (2-3).

SAFEL — But not by much, as this Ridge pitcher beats the pickoff throw to Roselle Park first baseman Robert Baker last Friday night in Roselle Park, where the soaked Panthers lost, 9-3, on a chilly, rainy evening.

The Panthers, who beat Roselle the following day in Union County Tournament play, will travel to Flatway this Saturday to continue with UCT play.

Giants — Skins

A benefit basketball game between members of the New York/New Jersey — Giants — and Washington Redskins football teams will be held at the Dunn Sports Center in Elizabeth on Sunday, May 15, at 1:30 p.m. All proceeds will go to benefit the work of the New Jersey Narcotics Law Enforcement Officers Association's Defenders Against-Drugs program.
 The game will, of course, feature the two most recent Super Bowl champions, with the Redskins having won the title this past January 31. Spectators will have the opportunity to win various prizes, and the players will be holding an autograph session as well.
 Tickets are available. Further information may be obtained by calling either 647-3568 or 467-3636 before 5 p.m. After that time, the numbers to call are 467-3710 or 467-3711.
 In addition to the NNLEOA, the fundraiser is also being sponsored by the Pan Am Stadium, the Professional Marketing and Management Team, and the Task Group Corporation.

Mother's Day is 'family' celebration

By BEA SMITH

"As a mother, what does Mother's Day mean to you?"

This question was presented to the mothers employed by County Leader Newspapers this week and surprisingly many of the mothers, who are so family-oriented, exulted in the old-fashioned methods of celebration...love, family, togetherness...and a vast appreciation of one's own mother.

Receptionist Sally McGuinness, who has a son, Dan, 29, and a daughter, Sally Ann Smith, 25, declares that "to me, it means being glad that I am a mother...happy to be a mother. It makes me appreciate what my mother did for me. I think of it in two ways: Being a mother, and reflecting on what my mother means to me."

And how does she celebrate Mother's Day? "My children usually take me out to dinner," she beams.

Rae Hutton, executive editor, who has a son, Tom, 13, and a daughter, Stacy, 10, says, "I see Mother's Day as a time when the tables are turned. The kids enjoy waiting on me for a change, and that special effort makes motherhood even more special to me. Mother's Day also makes me reflect on my own mother and her influence in my life."

"How will I spend the day? As a daughter — visiting my mother and mother-in-law!"

Ann Delker, copy editor, who has two daughters, Natalie, 20, and Laura, 18, says "it is a nice occasion when you can be close to your children. And," she smiles, "they usually cook dinner for me."

Ethel Bivins of the classified department, who has a daughter, Constance Perkins, and a stepson, Julian Bivins, says that the occasion of Mother's Day "reminds me of the love and understanding I received from my mother as I was growing up. I thank God for that. Also, the same love and understanding that I received from my children, I thank God for that, too."

"We celebrate the holiday by having dinner at home or we go to my mother's house...and sometimes, we have dinner out...but it's always with the family."

Eileen DeMedici, bookkeeper, who has a daughter, Maria, 14, and a son, Peter, 10, explains that Mother's Day "is a day that my husband and my children honor me. I'm not looking for presents. I honor them because if it wasn't for them, I wouldn't be a mother."

"We order takeout food for Mother's Day dinner, and we have a relaxing day at home."

Fran Getchies, circulation coordinator, who has a son, Louis, 17, and a daughter, Connie, 16, states that "Mother's Day is a celebration of the greatest honor in the world — motherhood."

"On this day, I call my mother in Florida, and my children take me out for breakfast, and we do something all day — as a family."

Lee Wollenberg, executive office assistant, who has a daughter, Jennifer, 11, and a son, Jason, 8½, explains that Mother's Day, "to me means that my family does things for me," she muses. "And I appreciate—my—own—mother—more — being a mother, myself."

"We usually do try to do something on that day that will include my mother and my mother-in-law."

Teddy Russo, who is in the advertising department, and who has a son, Peter and a daughter, Norma, explains that "as a mother, Mother's Day recalls to me warm thoughts and feelings for my own mother and the realization that my children feel the same for me...and the knowledge that it all didn't happen overnight!"

"We celebrate the holiday with a Mother's Day barbecue."

Dorothy Gorlin, who is in the display advertising department, and who has a son, Jan Richard, 26, says Mother's Day "means family, love and togetherness. We have mutual respect and love for each other, and that is so important. We look up to each other, and I am extremely grateful for his consideration."

"I usually go out to dinner with my son and perhaps to a movie. We might even watch a ball game on television...As long as we're together."

Lynn Sirota, who also is in the display advertising department, and who has a son, Dr. Jan Kaplan, 28, and a daughter, Callan Ruppert, 25, explains that "Mother's Day is a time to reflect with the whole family being together. It's nice to have the whole family together — to reflect over all the years — like it was only yesterday when they were children, and here they are — all grown."

"I don't know if we'll be going out to dinner, but whatever we do, it will be something with all of us together."

Maryann Olivo, who is in the circulation department, and who has two daughters, Laura, 19, and Dana, 17, laughs: "Mother's Day means cooking! I make dinner for the family and for my mother."

Books for mother can make excellent gifts

Mother's Day gifts have fallen into a predictable pattern in the past several years. But this Mother's Day, there's a unique new gift-giving service that will appeal to Mom's common sense, and last for many Mother's Days to come.

The Books By Wire service, an innovative new gift-giving program, has a gift that fits — whatever Mom's hobby. There are books on gardens and gardening, cooking and desserts, and family remembrances.

"Books are not often thought of as a gift item, they're mostly read by the person who purchases them," says John L. Bodette, president of BBW International Inc., which operates the Books By Wire service. "But a book is a thoughtful, permanent gift that is suitable for many occasions."

Bodette, who was responsible for the introduction of the Books By Wire service this past spring, is the former chief operating officer of Florists' Transworld Delivery, LTD, and former chief executive officer of Teleflora, USA and Teleflora, Canada.

Through the Books By Wire service, it's possible to send a gift-wrapped book, with a personalized message, anywhere in the country.

Most gifts arrive within two business days, depending on the time of day an order is placed and its destination.

The Books By Wire service is initially available through a toll-free number, 1-800-52BOOKS. There are a number of suggested titles appropriate for Mother's Day.

The two-volume set, "Encyclopedia of Gardening," offers practical advice on how to grow more than 900 houseplants and garden flowers. The inspirational "Visions of Paradise" shows an array of the most magnificent gardens in the world, while "Landscape of America" is a photographic tour of the United States. "The Creative Cooking Course" offers more than 1,200 recipes, with more than 2,500 color photographs, and after-dinner, there's Leo Bailey's "Country Desserts."

A popular gift collection is the "Grandmother Remembers Gift Set," a two-volume ledger for grandmother, or mother, to record her favorite recipes, or to record significant events in the family history.

"There are so many titles that it's possible to select a book for just about any hobby or reading interest," Bodette says.

Sending a Books By Wire selection is as simple as sending flowers or other gift items. Customers merely call the toll-free number 1-800-52BOOKS, and select from either the Books By Wire selected titles, or just about any book available. The customer provides the name and address of the recipient, a personalized message, and credit card information, and the book is on its way. Depending on availability, some special orders may require up to four or five business days for delivery.

Books By Wire selections are delivered, gift-wrapped, and include the message of the sender.

Career in nursing requires dedication

Nursing recently has captured headlines all across the country. The issues generating these headlines are many and complex, and concern the fact that America is facing a major challenge of its nursing staff. It is particularly significant with the celebration of National Nurses Day tomorrow.

One of these issues, perhaps the most perplexing, according to health care officials, is the question of where tomorrow's nurses are going to come from as most of today's high school students who are entering the health care field are leaning away from nursing as a career.

Leo Hayser and Brenda Hanlon, nurses at Union Hospital, which is located at 1000 Galloping Hill Road, Union, may be a key to different answers to this problem.

A resident of Roselle Park, Hayser has been working as a registered nurse at Union Hospital since 1986. He is working in that facility's emergency room and is well aware of the stereotyping that is applied to nursing as a career.

"Naturally I understand that nursing traditionally has been a career that has attracted mostly women, but I can't allow that to deter my interest," Hayser says. "I enjoy working with and helping people."

"There is nothing feminine or masculine in nursing," he adds. "It is a job that requires dedication and the desire to help people when they need or are sick. Both men and women can offer that help if they have the special talent to do so."

Hayser became interested in a career in nursing while caring for a family member who suffered from a long-term injury. He began his career as an LPN, working in New Jersey and later Colorado, before graduating as a registered nurse from the Career Ladder Program of the Charles E. Gregory School of Nursing, Raritan Bay Medical Center, Perth-Amboy.

"Nursing has opened up a lot of opportunities for me," Hayser says. "One thing about nursing is that once you have that license, you can go and practice wherever you want. If you like to travel, you can do so and you'll always find a job.

"Personally, nursing gives me a sense of accomplishment. There is this instant gratification, particularly in working in an emergency room, where you can see immediate results from helping people. I always go home feeling good about myself."

And "feeling good" is something both men and women can do equally.

Hanlon is the head nurse for the A-1 unit at Union Hospital, but as recently as the early 1980s, she was a full-time housewife taking care of two small children.

A graduate of the St. Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing, Hanlon worked at St. Elizabeth Hospital for several years before taking time off for maternity leave. That time eventually turned out to be four years.

"I decided to have my family and spend time with them," Hanlon says. However, as her children got older, the need returned to do something strictly for herself.

Protect your pet

Dear Stanley A. Dog: My four legged friends tell me that there have been a lot of advances made toward protecting a pet's health. Would you please review the most important ones so that my owners will be able to protect me? Sincerely, Lhaso Apso.

Leukemia in the form of a vaccine, which is a major breakthrough.

Feline Leukemia is the first form of cancer to be prevented by a vaccine. Maybe our human friends will be just as lucky one day. This modern-day miracle is available from your veterinarian.

PETiculars

Dear Lhaso: It's my pleasure to relay some of the latest preventive medicine for pets. You know, of course, that heartworm outbreaks, once rare, now can be found in every one of the continental United States.

To protect you from this dread parasite, your vet now has once-a-month pills, much easier for your owners to give you than the one-a-day type. But, if your taste buds prefer, the effective one-a-days are still popular, too.

For our feline friends, there's now protection from feline

Another breakthrough is the creation of the 11-month flea collar, which keeps killing fleas for a full 11 months. It was created by the Sulfodene/Scratch Pet Skin Care Center.

Did you know that fleas and ticks carry all kinds of nasty bugs, such as tapeworm and even Lyme Disease, caught from deer tick?

The most important protection that your people can offer you is to make sure that you have a yearly veterinary checkup and that all of your shots are current.

P.S. Are you sure that you are spelling your name correctly?

Mothers talk to mothers

With a new baby in the house, what one mother needs is another mother to talk to, and Overlook Hospital's Mothers' Exchange in Summit does just that. Led by a nurse educator, eight to 10 mothers and their infants get together to discuss sleep schedules, feeding patterns and problems, growth and development, toys, plus other topics. A dietitian discusses childhood and mothers' nutrition. The group also learns CPR and obstructed airway techniques for infants and toddlers.

There will be five morning classes, held from 10 a.m. to noon. The next series will begin June 3.

Further information or registration can be obtained by calling Overlook's Department of Health Education at 522-2963.

The deadline for all Focus and entertainment news is noon Friday.

Pageant set for judging

Applications are being accepted for the Miss New Jersey Teen All American Pageant to be staged Aug. 6 and 7 at the Mount Laurel Hilton. The 1988 New Jersey event is the official preliminary to Miss Teen All American — now in its 11th year — and staged annually at the Sheraton Bal Harbour Resort in Miami Beach, Fla.

It was reported that all judging is on the basis of poise, personality and beauty of face and figure. Applicants who qualify must be at least 13 years of age and under 19 years of age as of Dec. 31, 1988. For entry information can send a photo, name, address and telephone number to 1988 Miss New Jersey Teen All American, Dept. 3, 40 Central Park South, Suite 2H, New York, N. Y., 10019.

Among her many prizes, Miss New Jersey Teen All American 1988 will receive an expense-paid trip to Florida, where she will compete in the 11th annual Miss Teen All American pageant. She will compete for a $20,000 prize package including a personal appearance contract, jewelry and a fur. In addition, each state winner will be interviewed by a Hollywood casting director and New York modeling agency. She also will be awarded such prizes as cash, luggage and a fur jacket.

"I'd always missed nursing," she says. "My leaving had nothing to do with nursing but with raising my family. While I was away, however, I really began to realize just how much nursing meant to me."

While searching for a hospital to work with, Hanlon discovered the per diem program, which allows you to work when you want as long as your desires correlate with the hospital's needs.

"I started back as a per diem nurse, working one day a week," she says. "Eventually, when both my children were in school, I was able to work out a schedule where I was working every day but only during school hours: 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. That allowed me to get my children ready and off to school and be there for them when they got home at the end of the day."

As her children got older, Hanlon went to work full time and has since worked her way up to the position of head nurse on one of the hospital's busiest units.

"Nursing has schedules that can suit any lifestyle," Hanlon says. "There are the per diem programs, such as I was in, where you basically create your own schedule, and there are other innovative programs such as Union Hospital's TOPS program."

TOPS, the Twin Option Professional Staffing program is Union Hospital's weekend work program where nurses can work 12-hour shifts on either Friday/Saturday from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. or Saturday/Sunday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. or 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. The total work period is 24 hours, for which the nurses are paid a weekend premium rate and receive full benefits including paid vacation, tuition reimbursement and health insurance.

"Union Hospital is well-aware of the demands that today's society puts on mothers and homemakers and has adjusted its career opportunities to meet those demands," says Evelyn Gousman, Union

Hospital director of patient care services. "Their TOPS program has been very well-received, especially by nurses who now find that they can raise a family and still pursue a nursing career. And Union Hospital is constantly upgrading its nursing opportunities in response to the ever-changing and challenging conditions of today's society."

"I can't picture doing anything else with my life," Hanlon says. "There is an immense satisfaction in being able to help someone."

"There is also the challenge of nursing which makes it so interesting. The field is always evolving. There are always new procedures and new techniques to learn and utilize. It is an incredibly exciting field to work in."

Union Hospital has openings on its nursing staff. To apply or for other information on hospital nursing opportunities one can call 687-1900.

"There is something in knowing that you can make the difference in someone's life," Hanlon says. "You can never replace that feeling."

Mother's Day

"We enjoy sitting around the table talking, and just spending a leisurely day at home."

Ela Valdivia, a bookkeeper, who has a daughter, Pamela, 7, explains that Mother's Day to her "means love and being very happy and proud. It is very special to me because my daughter was born on Mother's Day."

"We usually go out to dinner and have fun!"

Sheila Stewart, advertising salesperson, who has two daughters, Tamara, 14, and Titia, 9, proudly states that Mother's Day "is truly a reflection of love...the caring, the nurturing, the molding of one's character. And I would say it would be as soft and tender and gentle as a rose with its fragrance, and yet, in the same token, firm and strong."

"I share Mother's Day with my family," she says. "We usually have dinner at my aunt's house because my mother is deceased. Then we go to visit my grandparents; I'm very close to them. Actually, we're a close-knit family, which is exactly what Mother's Day is all about."

Linda DeMas, who is in the circulation department, and who has a daughter, Melissa Renee; 15, and James, 14, says that the special day means "having a wonderful mother and mother-in-law to love and being so fortunate to have two such wonderful children as my daughter and son."

"As on every Mother's Day," she explains, "we have a family gathering at my brother and sister-in-law's house."

Knights' album

By MYLT HAMMER
 Pick of the LP: "All Our Love." By Gladys Knight and The Pips, MCA Records.

After an amazing 35 years in music together, the group has earned their status as a truly legendary foursome. Styles have come and gone, but their timeless vocal blend and feel for strong producers add to "All Our Love's" excellence. Howie Rice, Reggie Calloway, Nick Martinelli and Sam Dees, writer of such hits as "One in a Million You" and "Love All the Hurt Away," are among the studio wizards participating. An especially notable event is the reunion of Gladys Knight and The Pips with Burt material has kept their appeal intact.

LEE HORSLEY — Television actor will portray Mack Sennett in "Mack and Mable" at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, May 18 through June 26. His costar will be Janet Metz. More information can be obtained by calling 376-4343.

With several Grammy awards and an impressive list of hits behind them, Gladys Knight and The Pips continue to showcase their sound in new, highly contemporary ways. "All Our Love," their debut LP release for MCA, presents the group as they are today: rooted in a classic R&B/pop approach while adding excitingly modern touches.

"I'm proud of this album," says Knight. "The whole sound is fresh. One of the things that we've always strived to do is to be flexible and grow, but still remain ourselves. I think this album gives our fans what they've come to expect from us, like great ballads. At the same time, I think it will capture a brand new audience as well."

"Love Overboard," "All Our Love's" first single, sets a passionate keynote for the album. The song's forceful vocals and driving rhythm track grab the listener immediately. "Lovin' on Next to Nothin'" and "Say What You Mean" are just as energized, spiced by Latin percussion grooves. On the LP's ballads, Gladys Knight and The Pips demonstrate that their soulful touch remains as compelling as ever. "Overnight Success" and "Let Me Be the One" are achingly romantic numbers that give the group room to show their full singing talents.

Limit risks of attacks

Heart attacks are the number-one cause of premature death in the U.S.

High cholesterol intake, high blood pressure, stress, excess weight, smoking, and lack of exercise are all linked to heart attacks.

How can you limit your risk of suffering from a heart attack?

"People need to be more aware of the things that can increase their risk or limit it. Most importantly, they should have their hearts checked regularly," says Arthur P. Fisch, M.D., of Morristown Cardiology Associates.

"Regular check-ups combined with good health habits will help people avoid heart attacks and heart disease."

Dr. Fisch is a participating physician with Blue Cross and Blue Shield of New Jersey.

According to Dr. John Gregory, president of the American Heart Association, New Jersey Affiliate, you must commit yourself to having a healthy heart. "People must examine their lifestyles and adapt them to decrease their risk of heart attack."

Dr. Gregory says there are several ways:

Diet and nutrition. Eat less fatty foods, salt, sugar, processed foods, and whole dairy products. Eat more fish, lean meat, poultry, fresh fruits, vegetables, skim dairy products, and whole grains like wheat. This will lower your cholesterol and fat intake, and help you lose weight.

Exercise. Your heart is a muscle. Like all muscles, you must exercise it to keep it strong. It's also a great way to relieve stress. Try cardiovascular/aerobic exercises like walking, swimming or jogging. They should make you breathe deeper and your heart beat faster. Don't overexert yourself.

Kick the habit. Smoking constricts blood vessels and decreases the amount of oxygen your blood can carry. By cutting out cigarettes, your stamina will improve. Your blood, lungs and heart will be healthier.

Relax. Stress is a problem for most of us. Learning to relax and control stress is important. Combined with diet and exercise, this will help control high blood pressure.

Heart attacks claim thousands of lives each year. "Many of those deaths occur because the victims refused to acknowledge, or didn't know the symptoms of a heart attack," says Dr. Fisch.

He explains that the common warning sign of a heart attack is a heavy, squeezing pain in the chest that lasts two minutes or more. "Stabbing pains are not usually a sign of a heart attack. The pain can also reach the arms, upper abdomen, left shoulder, jaw, neck or between the shoulder blades."

Chest pain may also be accompanied by shortness of breath, nausea, vomiting, sweating, fainting, dizziness, numbness, or anxiety, says Dr. Fisch.

Step-by-step guide makes moving easier

The mere mention of the word "moving" conjures up an entire range of human emotion — excitement, fear, anxiety, dread. If you're terribly organized and super-efficient, you're five steps ahead of the game. But if, like most of us, just the idea of moving paralyzes that side of the brain dictating composure, you could use some help.

Here is a step-by-step guide to moving, courtesy of Burgdorf Realtors, one of New Jersey's leading real estate firms headquartered in Summit. Pin it up on your wall and follow each step. You'll find yourself in a more peaceful state of mind.

Six-eight weeks before moving:

- Select a mover. Word-of-mouth or the recommendation of friends or neighbors can often be the best method of choosing a reliable moving company. Local movers may be just as good as the larger, more widely-advertised ones. Check around.
- Inform the mover of your moving date and arrange a time for them to come to your home and survey your household goods.
- Do a personal walk-through of your house. Decide what you want to keep and what you want to discard.
- Once you have decided on the items you no longer have use for, arrange to either donate them or have a garage sale. Keep receipts for tax purposes.
- Determine whether or not you will be doing your own packing or leaving it to the moving company. There is a greater cost for the company to pack, but it is often worth it in terms of time and bother.

- When the moving representative comes to your house, go over all of the items to be moved. Ask for a binding estimate. This will specify the exact cost of moving, including all additional services required. Make sure you understand the agreement clearly, before signing, especially liability in case of damage or loss. If you require storage, be certain that your property is insured both to, from, and in the warehouse.
- Inform the post office of your moving date and new address. Mail may be held until released by written instruction, if needed. First class mail is forwarded free of charge for one year, magazines and newspapers for 90 days, and parcel post for one year. Change of address notices are required for each family member.
- Prepare a list of friends, relatives, businesses, publications, etc. who are to be notified of your move and send change of address cards as soon as possible.
- Arrange for the closing or transfer of all charge accounts to your new address. Without notification, bills will continue to be sent to your present address and may cause credit complications.
- Contact the school your children will be attending. Inquire about the transference of records and credentials, requirements, important calendar dates, etc.

- Gather family medical and dental records and obtain recommendations for medical personnel in your new hometown.
- Check to see if city or county taxes are due; notify federal and state tax authorities of new address if you anticipate a refund check. Notify the State Motor Vehicle Bureau of your change of address.
- Check insurance policies for moving coverage. Transfer fire, theft, and other personal property insurance to assure coverage at your new address.
- Arrange to have utilities and telephones connected before or at the time of your arrival.
- If you are doing your own packing, start collecting suitable boxes, containers, etc. Food markets that do not use compactors are good sources and will often agree to save packing boxes for you.

Three weeks before moving day:

- If you are moving a long distance, reserve hotel accommodations for your family. Have your car checked by a good mechanic for the trip.
- Start packing. Have rugs and drapes cleaned and leave them rolled or wrapped from the cleaner. Number your boxes and label them with an exact list of contents. Keep an additional inventory list for cross-reference. Clearly label fragile boxes or those to be loaded last for your own convenience once you arrive at your new destination.
- Make arrangements to have your appliances prepared for shipment, most favorably the day before moving, and reconnected in your new location.
- Make sure pets are properly inoculated and have proper identification, especially if moving out-of-state. Arrange for their transportation.

Three days before moving:

- Launder all soiled clothing before appliances are disconnected. Drain water from steam irons.
- The refrigerator and freezer should be given 24 hours to dry before moving to avoid mildew, mold, and odor.
- Pack a "carry-on" box with items you will need right away at your location. These may include cleaning aids, toiletries, paper and plastic eating utensils, snacks, small, useful tools, and items to occupy small children.
- Pack suitcases for the trip.
- Check all drawers and cabinets. Remove breakable objects. Soft goods may be left in drawers for moving.
- Unplug television sets. They should be moved at room temperature. Retained heat during moving can cause internal damage.
- Do a thorough check of the house to make sure you have not left anything behind.
- Make sure you have put aside foods for your family to have a nice hearty breakfast to start...

Do a thorough check of the house to make sure you have not left anything behind.

National award for Degnan-Boyle

Degnan Boyle, Realtors, one of New Jersey's leading independent residential real estate firms, was honored as "Company of the Year" at the national Associates TRANSLO Idea Fair in San Francisco, last month, according to Dorothy Degnan Hunt, senior vice president and director of Relocation for Degnan Boyle.

The Idea Fair, attended by Joan Wislowski, assistant director of Relocation, is an annual convention of relocation professionals who are members of Associates TRANSLO, a national referral network.

Wislowski accepted the "Company of the Year" award on behalf of Degnan Boyle in recognition of the Company's number of out-going referrals and the highest sales volume from outgoing/incoming closed sales as related to company size.

In addition, Degnan Boyle was honored as "Sales Volume Leader" in the $5 Million and Over category, and received a plaque for Outstanding Performance in 1987.

"This is a proud time for our Relocation Department," Hunt commented. "We've worked hard to establish an aggressive and efficient operation, and we've earned the recognition of our colleagues around the country. We appreciate the on-going support of Associates TRANSLO, and we look forward to continued success as a member of this fine organization."

In addition to representing Degnan Boyle at the awards ceremony, Wislowski participated in a panel discussion on "Working with Third Party Companies," focusing her remarks on how to handle the transferred home buyer.

Degnan-Boyle's Relocation Department, headquartered in Livingston, operates in conjunction with the Company's 14 offices throughout Essex, Morris and Union counties.

DEGNAN BOYLE REALTORS was named 'Company of the Year' for outstanding Relocation activity at the national Translo Idea Fair in San Francisco. Displaying the awards are Joan Wislowski, left, assistant director of Relocation, and Dorothy Degnan Hunt, director of Relocation for Degnan Boyle.

Moving day

On the big day!

☐ Accompany the mover through the house as he inspects and tags furniture and records its condition. Remain until all items are loaded on the van.

☐ Read over the inventory, bill of lading, and freight bill statements carefully before signing.

☐ Be certain that the driver has the correct destination.

☐ Lock the house and leave keys with a neighbor or in a predetermined location.

☐ Look around — see if the water, furnace, and lights are turned off. Make sure all utilities are disconnected, the windows are closed and the doors are locked.

☐ Okay, you're off! Take a big breath. The only thing certain in life is change, and you've faced this change with courage, conviction and efficiency. Getting ready to move may not have been a snap, but it wasn't as difficult as you imagined, because you were prepared. So be proud of yourself. You've done a big job, a tough job, and a great job!

Realty group cites Burgdorff

Burgdorff Realtors was honored by The Travelers Realty Network with the 1987 Outgoing Referral Award. The honor was bestowed at the 1988 annual conference in Naples, Fla.

Burgdorff, winning for the second successive year, was judged against member firms nationwide with 200 or more associates. Burgdorff averaged four referrals per salesperson as opposed to the network average of one per salesperson.

"What this means to the public," Anna Mae Garb, Burgdorff's Outgoing Referral Coordinator, said, "is that we have the capability, the experience and the track record of helping people make the long-distance connections they need to move. Whether they are moving out of New Jersey, from Texas to Michigan, or abroad, we can set up the process and the network that will ease their relocation."

"We establish their personality and lifestyle needs so that the right person is at the receiving end and the best information sent to them. They begin what might otherwise be a traumatic process with a sensitive, informed salesperson."

Garb said Burgdorff is increasingly helping calls and referrals as well as corporate relocations.

Outgoing referral coordination is but one of several specialized services provided by Burgdorff's Relocation Division. The Division has 17 specialists who coordinate the relocation process from the initial phone call through move-in day. Pioneers in NJ relocation, Burgdorff has assisted hundreds of corporations throughout the nation.

Burgdorff Realtors has 34 offices and 450 salespeople serving northcentral NJ, Ocean and Monmouth counties, and Lehigh Valley, Pa. Travelers Realty Network is the country's largest third-party affiliated real estate brokerage network. Nearly 350 member firms serve 4,500 communities across the U.S.

"We establish their personality and lifestyle needs so that the right person is at the receiving end and the best information sent to them. They begin what might otherwise be a traumatic process with a sensitive, informed salesperson."

MSC offers courses

As today's comparatively moderate mortgage interest rates combine with the traditional spring boom in housing sales, the Montclair State College Center for Continuing Education is prepared to help real estate salesmen and brokers maximize their efforts and income by offering four timely courses.

Designed for the benefit of professional realtors and first time investors, the courses will be taught by professional brokers, accountants and attorneys who have been seasoned by years of active experience in the field.

The first course offering, "Investment Principles and Strategies," will meet Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"Condos and Co-ops," one of the fastest growing segments of the residential real estate market, will be explored in detail May 14, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For two days, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on May 16 and May 18, participants will learn about the "inside track" on "Listings: The Key to Your Success."

Rounding out the course schedule for May will be a review of "Market Value Analysis," meeting May 23 and 25, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

These courses, which are of particular value to those preparing to sit for the state licensing exams, are offered at $75 each. Coen in concert

The Westfield Symphony Orchestra with Brad Keimach, music director and conductor, will perform the second act of Wagner's "Tristan Und Isolde" as concert opera Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church in Westfield, 140 Mountain Ave. The performance is sponsored by AT&T.

Soprano Judith Coen, who was on the roster of the Metropolitan Opera, will sing Isolde. Coen has appeared twice before with the Westfield Symphony as Leonore in the orchestra's premiere concert in 1983 and as Isolde.

Tristan will be sung by tenor Daniel Tomaselli. Born in Newark, Tomaselli has performed leading Wagnerian roles including Tristan, which he sang at Lisbon's Teatro S. Carlo.

Mezzo-soprano Lucille Beer, who made her debut with the Metropolitan Opera in 1983 in Ravel's "Enfant Et Les Sortilèges," will sing Brangäne.

Bass-baritone Herbert Eckoff, who made his debut with the Metropolitan Opera this past fall in "La Traviata" will sing King Marke. Tenor Robert Van Valkenburgh, who was born in Chatham, will sing Melot.

A highlight of the performance will be an introduction by

JUDITH COEN

Maestro Keimach with orchestral demonstration.

It was reported that the Westfield Symphony was the first in the state to do concert opera as a regular part of the subscription series.

A pre-concert "dessert and discussion" and the symphony's annual "Renewal Night" will begin at 7 p.m. May 7 in Westminster Hall, adjacent to the church. The doors will open at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend the "Renewal Night."

Benefit set

The Overlook Musical Theater, OMT, in cooperation with the Summit Hotel, is co-sponsoring a "Bon Voyage party" May 20 from 8 p.m. to midnight in the hotel's Grand Ballroom to launch the theater group's 1988 production of "Anything Goes." Proceeds from the production will benefit the Overlook Hospital Kidney Center. Performance dates are scheduled for November. Auditions will begin in June.

The party will bring together performers from theater groups throughout the state. Featured will be an evening of Cole Porter music, the era of "Anything Goes," a brief show, sing-alongs and dance music.

The Overlook Musical Theater was established in 1949 to raise monies to assist the Overlook Hospital Auxiliary. Reservations for the party should be made by May 10. Additional information can be obtained by calling 226-3265 or 267-4667.

Oratorio set by Choral Society

The story of the prophet Elijah will unfold when members of the Choral Art Society of New Jersey present Felix Mendelssohn's oratorio May 14 at 8 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church in Westfield.

Elm Eley, three-time winner of the Metropolitan Opera Council auditions, will star in the title role. Featured will be Thomas Faracco, tenor; Deborah Ford, soprano; Sandra Rains West, mezzo soprano; and Karen Zippler.

Tickets are available for purchase at the door or by calling 381-8906.

Salads have changed over the years

It's interesting to note how the meaning of culinary terms can change over time, often rather quickly. For example, if you look for a recipe for steak in an 18th or 19th century English or American cookbook, you will be surprised to find that it was baked in the oven for hours, then served in a gravy.

Salads, too, have changed, but not so much in their preparation as in their ingredients. A salad means essentially the same thing as it did hundreds of years ago: a mixture of greens served raw with a dressing.

When an Italian author wrote the first book on salads, tomatoes were not yet known. But today, just after the greens, they, along with cucumbers and radishes, are considered customary ingredients. Ten years ago, no salad recipe or produce department contained radicchio or enoki mushrooms. And although one of the most important ingredients of any salad dressing has always been some kind of vinegar, until 1980 we scarcely heard of balsamic vinegar.

The point is, salad ingredients are always changing, and new salads and new dressings are always being born. Here's one that I have never seen before, and it's delicious.

Spring Vegetable Salad
For the salad:

1/2 pound fresh asparagus, 5 to 12 stalks, depending on thickness and length.
1 bunch watercress
8 ounces fresh leaf spinach
4 ounces fresh snow peas
4 to 6 pencil-thin spring carrots, sold with tops on, about 5 inches long.

For the dressing:
1/2 cup salad oil
1/2 cup Japanese rice vinegar or other good-quality vinegar such as balsamic or sherry vinegar
1/4 cup water
1/4 cup watercress stems, chopped
1/4 cup spinach stems, chopped
1 small bunch fresh tarragon or fresh basil, or a mixture of any two or three of the following: flat-leaf parsley, tarragon, basil, chives, or scallion greens, chopped, about 2 to 3 tablespoons

2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 cup mayonnaise
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Method:
Wash, shake dry, and chill all salad ingredients. Peel asparagus and cut at sharp angle into ovals about 1/2-inch thick. Discard end pieces, but chop bottom 1/2 inch or so of each stalk and reserve for dressing. Snip off ends of snow peas and discard. Depending on size, leave snow peas whole or cut diagonally into a few pieces. Reserve carrots.

Add all dressing ingredients to blender except mayonnaise, salt, sugar, and pepper. Blend at high speed to a frothy green liquid with flecks of green in it. Transfer to a bowl and with a wire whisk, slowly fold in mayonnaise, salt, sugar, and pepper. Taste and correct seasoning. Dressing should be pale green. Don't mix vigorously or dressing will be unappealing. Arrange salad ingredients on individual plates and spoon on dressing generously. Peel and grate carrots on largest hole of four-sided grater and sprinkle on top. Serves 8.

Buy mom a 'bauble, bangle or bead'

Baubles, bangles and beads! Bracelets, earrings and brooches! Since the dawn of recorded history, and—most likely—long before, women have adorned themselves with all sorts of ornaments, that, today, we lump together as jewelry.

Platinum, gold and silver! Bone, wood, ceramic and more!

No mother has ever had too much finery, and, if it's the real thing, the size can never be too big!

One of the very favorite gift options, according to survey after survey, is jewelry in just about every—and any—form. And no mother has ever complained that she has too many rings, earrings, necklaces or pins.

Geraniums range from average to regal

Fischer provides a total of 58 varieties of geraniums of all kinds - ranging from ivies and Cascades through zonal varieties to the spectacular regal pelargoniums.

CASCADE GERANIUMS
The classic European window box plants, Cascade geraniums are effective in containers of all kinds. The Cascade varieties are especially good where their heat tolerance is appreciated. They also make good ground cover plants for beds in full sun.

There are five different Cascades with red, pink and lilac flowers.

"Sofie Cascade" is the bright pink variety, preferred most of all by many people.

"Bright Cascade" is a vigorous red variety, while "Red-Mini Cascade" has a very compact habit with floods of flowers.

Of the two lilac-colored Cascade varieties, "Lila-Compact Cascade" is the vigorous form, while "Lila-Mini Cascade" stays small and is covered with masses of flowers.

"Bright," "Lila Compact" and "Sofie" all have light colored stems, a beautiful contrast to the leaves and flowers.

IVY GERANIUMS
Ivy geraniums are mostly semi-double flowered, especially good for growing in window boxes, hanging baskets and other containers. They'll perform at their best under high light conditions such as an Eastern exposure. Under extremely hot conditions, they prefer some afternoon shade, especially if planted in a south or western exposure.

Three outstanding new ivy geranium varieties for 1988 bring the total to 10.

"Romy" is a true geranium red with no tendency to bluing as with older red ivy geranium varieties. Growth habit is compact and the foliage makes a splendid contrast with the many flowers.

"Solidor" is a stunning salmon rose semi-double flowered variety with a compact growth habit which makes very full hanging baskets, window boxes or other containers.

"Amiral Bouvet" is a light brick red in color which contrasts nicely with the zoned ivy-shaped leaves. A heavy bloomer, it's also especially good because of its compact growth habit.

"Rigi," named for a Swiss mountain, is another outstanding ivy geranium variety with dark rose semi-double blossoms.

"Snow Queen" bears many white flowers, each one attractively marked with small magenta markings in the flower throat.

Five other good varieties range from the bright red or "Tavira" to the purple flowers of "Amethyst."

ZONAL GERANIUMS
Plant zonals for outstanding color in sunny locations, in the ground or in containers of all kinds. They also combine well with other flowers to make mixed gardens outstanding for summer-long color.

"Gloria" is a new salmon-orange variety with enormous flower heads full of semi-double blossoms.

"Alba" is a new white semi-double geranium with good dark foliage - making an outstanding contrast between flowers and leaves.

Favorite Fischer varieties also include:

"Mars," considered the best red geranium of all by many, blooms heavily all summer long. Plants are stocky and self-branching.

"Polka" is a stunning carmine red with a purple cast, a real eye catcher wherever it's grown.

"Schone Helena" has salmon flowers centered with a deep rose color for outstanding display. A major award winner.

Geraniums

 "Disco" contrasts carmine and purple in every flower to give a glowing effect every place it grows.

"Blues" bear enchanting pink flowers with rose markings in each petal. A unique color, it's a medal winner from major flower competitions.

These are just a few of the 23 different zonal varieties, each with specific characteristics which makes them beautiful in the garden.

REGAL PELARGONIUMS

The outstanding new regal varieties are pot plants to be enjoyed for weeks with their large brightly colored flowers.

Where summer nights are quite cool, under 60 degrees F., they make attractive outdoor plants.

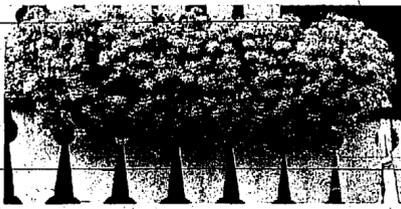

They also are known as "Martha Washington" or "Lady Washington" pelargoniums.

Ten different varieties, range from the strong Christmas or Valentine red of "Shirley," to the pure white of "Mary." Between these pure colors, there are many color variants. Several have bi-colored flowers with brilliant markings.

Look for the regals wherever you buy potted flowering plants.

'Breakfast in bed' doesn't have to be bedlam

Each year dad and the little ones team up to prepare that most famous of all Mother's Day treats — breakfast in bed.

Often, this act of genuine love results in breakfast all over the stove, on the floor and sometimes even on the bedspread.

Mom, as always, is called upon to save the day, and the annual Mother's Day feast is put to rest for yet another year.

However, all is not lost. With a little planning and teamwork, this most special of breakfasts can be a pleasant and rewarding experience for everyone.

The folks at St. Regis non-alcoholic wines offer the following hints to help make mom's day relaxing and memorable.

Let mom sleep late. Don't pop into her room at the crack of dawn to ask her if she is sleeping. Moms are great at sleeping late all by themselves — they don't need to be told to do so.

Assign breakfast-making tasks to each family member, according to his or her ability.

Little ones feel grown-up, pouring cereal, or placing bread or instant waffles into the toaster. The toast isn't "cooking!" Dad should check to make sure the toaster is plugged in — it will work much more quickly this way.

Older brothers and sisters might make eggs, French toast or, if they're really ambitious, pancakes or muffins. When preparing one of the more complicated main dishes, they should be sure to read the package directions — carefully — before starting to cook.

Mixing two eggs in the batter does not mean throwing in the egg shells; two tablespoons of butter is not equal to a full stick of margarine.

In addition to general supervision, which should be done quietly so as not to wake up mom, dad can be in charge of special beverage treats for mom.

He can brew a pot of that special coffee or tea which she loves, and make a pitcher of Sunshine Sparklers — her favorite morning fruit juice, mixed with equal parts of St. Regis Non-Alcoholic California Champagne.

Everyone should be assigned to cleanup. If things are put away as soon as they are used, the kitchen won't turn into a disaster area, and mom won't turn into a basket case when she sees it.

Serve breakfast at the table — not on the bed. In the movies and on television, breakfast in bed looks marvelous, but in real life it's usually a messy affair.

Mom would rather come downstairs to eat than spend days trying to remove egg and jam stains from bedspread and carpeting. Also, this way, everyone can enjoy the results of their morning in the kitchen.

Is everything ready? Is the kitchen back in order and the table set? Send the littlest member of the family upstairs to wake up mom "gently," and bring her downstairs. For her, big surprise — the best Mother's Day breakfast ever!
