Kids reach out to the hungry

By DOMINICK CRINCOLI JR.
Youngsters from Gaudineer Middle School will be reaching out to the homeless and hungry this week as the third annual student council-sponsored food drive collection gets under way.

The collection started yesterday, continues tomorrow and culminates on Saturday when students will bring the food to the Newark-based Community Food Bank of New Jersey and the St. Joseph's Social Center, a soup kitchen for the homeless in Elizabeth. About 20 students will help transport the food, which was donated by children in every grade at Gaudineer.

Overall, during the past two years, Gaudineer students collected 3,000 food items, according to social studies teacher and student council adviser Merle Murphy.

The contest originated as a way for the students to become personally involved in World Food Day on Oct. 16.

"I recall about three years ago one of our gifted and talented classes here decided to stage a play depicting the plight of the hungry around the world," said Murphy, who served as the adult coordinator to the students this year.

Students gathered a lot of information to use in the play, much of it grim, about the world's starving masses, and one concerned student was affected by the passivity of it all.

A comment she made inspired Murphy to sponsor the food drive.

"Why," she asked, "are you telling me all this if there's nothing we can do about it?" Murphy recalled her saying.

And so the students advanced from classroom theorizing to practical solutions for an age-old problem.

"A problem that has worsened considerably in recent years because of President Reagan's cuts in social programs — so that many of the borderline poor in New Jersey have been pushed into the ranks of the homeless," Murphy said.

The student council became the sponsor of a World Food Day Challenge with the goal of acquiring 1,300 food items. To complete the project, the five elected student council officials, along with those individuals who brought in more items than anyone else in their respective homerooms, will deliver the food directly to the food bank and social center.

During the visit to the food bank Murphy and students will participate in the packing process for distribution. Information about the food distribution program at the Community Food Bank and a tour of the facility will be part of their work. In 1985, according to a food bank spokesman, over $9,000,000 worth of food was handled through this agency.

As part of their effort to reach out to the needy, the student council also supports a foster child from Sudan, Africa.

"Students need to understand the scope of hunger worldwide and in New Jersey," Murphy said.

"Schools that provide hands-on experiences and actual ways to help are benefiting not just the needy, but are helping themselves by building responsible citizens for the future." The adoption of our foster child and third recent food collection drive are examples of how schools can provide opportunities for meaningful involvement.

First aid squad appeal

Captain: town may face dire consequences

By DONNA SCHUSTER

The Springfield First Aid Squad is in desperate need of volunteers and is calling upon the town's citizens to consider joining up. Squad Capt. Liz Fritzen announced there will be two Open Houses at the squad headquarters next week where interested persons will learn about what is involved in becoming a trained volunteer.

Open Houses are set for next Wednesday and Thursday nights, Oct. 19 and 20, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The captain, along with a few other squad members, will be present at the headquarters, which is located at 10 N. Trivet Ave. Fritzen said she is prepared to stay as late as she has to in order to meet with all those who stop by.

"We will explain everything that a potential squad member needs to know, such as time commitments and training requirements. All training courses, uniforms and necessary equipment are paid for by the squad," said the captain.

Tours of the squad headquarters will be given and equipment and medical apparatus will be explained. Refreshments will be served.

Fritzen said the squad responds to about 1,500 calls each year, which translates to roughly 75-80 calls per month. On any given day, she said, the squad could be called to 10 emergencies, or just a few. But what is most important, the captain added, is that if and when a call comes in, there is someone there to answer it.

The squad now consists of 25 members; just six are available during the day. The captain said there should be 60 members in all, and at least several more available to cover the daytime shifts. The dangerously low number of trained squad members forced Fritzen to address the Township Committee recently. The captain said that Springfield residents may have to rely on emergency personnel from neighboring towns if additional volunteers do not sign up.

"It may come down to having to interrupt our daytime shifts. If people in Springfield have to call some other community's squad, response time would surely increase and that could mean the difference between life and death," said the captain.

Fritzen said that membership has been dropping steadily for the last two years. "We lose people when they move out of the area, or they take full-time day jobs. We lost a couple of excellent squad members because they became pregnant and have full-time responsibilities at home."

Squad members must be 18 years old, but the Springfield organization also trains cadets, who must be at least 16. They do not drive emergency vehicles and they must be in the presence of two squad members when answering a call, but they play an important role in the overall program.

"Of course, we always hope the cadets will stay with us for two years and become a squad member," said Fritzen.

And what is the reward for being a volunteer squad member? What do people get out of it?
"Satisfaction that you have helped to save someone's life," said the captain.

Committee opposes incinerator

By DOMINICK CRINCOLI JR.

The Township Committee voted unanimously Tuesday to support Linden's fight against the possible construction of a toxic waste incinerator in that city.

By resolution, the five-member panel pledged to favor any legislation concerned with blocking the proposed incinerator. The state's Hazardous Waste Citing Commission has dubbed Linden a "potential host candidate" for the incinerator. Legislation that would make the city eligible to be a host community is now under consideration in the state Assembly.

The Township Committee's resolution indicates that the location of an incinerator in Union County would be a health risk and traffic burden, given the dense population of the area.

"The placement of this incinerator in Linden would require an evacuation procedure so expensive that residents in parts of New York would be forced to flee in the event of an emergency," Committeewoman JoAnn Pieper said.

"What if there was a motor vehicle collision with one of these trucks carrying toxic material on one of our roadways, and consider the pollution and traffic burden — right in our own backyard," she added.

Representatives for GAF, a manufacturing corporation located in Linden, has indicated its willingness to house the facility on its property which, according to Pieper, is located near an elementary school.

A copy of the resolution was forwarded to the City of Linden, the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, the Legislative Delegation of Union County, the Hazardous Waste Siting Committee, and all municipalities in Union County.

In other business, the Township Committee acknowledged receipt of an anonymous donation in the amount of $5,000, given in an effort to "restore community pride in Springfield."

The unknown donor stipulated that the money be spent on painting the outside of the Town Hall.

The appointments of Kathleen DiLanno, as full-time police dispatcher, and Lowell Hardy as a Class II Special Police Officer were also approved at the meeting.

DiLanno will earn an annual salary of $15,000 and Hardy will be paid an estimated hourly fee of $11 to $14.

Fire chief offers prevention safety

Fire Prevention Week was first proclaimed by President Warren G. Harding in 1922. The observance, which is this week, commemorates the Great Chicago Fire of 1871 in which 250,000 persons were killed, 100,000 were left homeless and more than 17,400 buildings were destroyed.

The National Fire Protection Association is sponsoring Fire Prevention Week with the support of the fire service, schools and civic organizations across the United States, drawing public attention to the devastating effects of fire and the continued importance of fire prevention activities.

"The theme of Fire Prevention Week 1988 — A Sound You Can Live With...Test Your Smoke Detector! — emphasizes one of the easiest steps you can take to protect your family," said Springfield's Deputy Fire Chief Gerry Richtlof, who posed the following questions and guidelines that focus on the use of smoke detectors:

□ Do you know when your last changed the batteries in your battery-operated smoke detectors?
□ Do you test your smoke detectors regularly, according to the manufacturer's instructions?
□ Without looking, do you know the location and number of smoke detectors in your home?
□ Do you recognize the sound your smoke detector makes? Can you hear it, even with doors closed?
□ Are smoke detectors located outside all the sleeping areas in your home, and on every story of your home or apartment?

If you answered yes to all these questions, congratulations! You're taking some important steps to keep your home and family fire safe.
But if you answered no to one or more of these questions, you have some work to do on home fire safety.

Debate is live on TV-3

A debate between the four candidates for Township Committee will be telecast live on Wednesday, Oct. 19, 9 p.m. on TV-3, announced Arnold Gerst, debate moderator and regular host of Eye On Springfield.
Democrats Bob DiCarlo and David Stein will debate opposite Republicans Jeff Katz and Marc Marshall. A panel of journalists, including Kenneth Schenkler, associate editor of the Springfield Leader, will pose questions to each candidate. Afterward, viewers will have the opportunity to call the station and ask additional questions of the candidates. The number to call is 277-6310.

This is the fourth year that TV-3 has sponsored such a debate. Two seats are open on the committee this year.

And your Springfield Fire Department can help.

"The more we can do to make our homes more fire safe," said Richtlof, "the more we can reduce the tragedy fire causes each year across the United States." There were about 565,500 fires in our nation's homes during 1986, and 4,655 civilians died as a result. The majority of fatal fires occur at night, when people are asleep.

Here are some simple steps you can take to make sure your smoke detectors protect you — during Fire Prevention Week and all throughout the year:

Purchase smoke detectors for your home. Most smoke detectors cost between $10 and $30 each and are a wise investment for home fire safety. In some states, they actually may be required by law, even in older houses. Be sure the detector has a label from a respected testing laboratory. Read the instructions carefully and follow the manufacturer's directions for installation and maintenance.

If you sleep with your bedroom door closed, make sure smoke detectors are placed so they can be heard. It might not even be a bad idea to install detectors in bedrooms, where a good number of fires start. In addition, you may want to contact the Springfield Fire Department to see what they recommend or require for numbers and placement of home smoke detectors.
Locate and install your smoke detectors properly. Don't put a detector near an airflow area such as a heat register or air conditioner, because that could prevent your detection from sensing smoke from a fire. Manufacturers have recommendations for correct placement on ceiling and walls for your smoke detectors. If you have doubts, ask a Fire Department inspector to come to your home to show you exactly where your detectors should be placed before installing them.

Next — maintenance and testing are the most important steps to keep a smoke detector ready to protect you. Change the batteries in your smoke detector regularly. Look to see if the detector "ready" light is on. If it isn't, it may be time to change the batteries. If your detector's low battery signal activates, replace the batteries immediately.

Test your smoke detector — and test it regularly! You won't know if your detector is working unless you test it. The NFPA recommends you test a smoke detector according to manufacturer's directions, or at least once a week for battery-operated smoke detectors, and at least once a month for AC-powered smoke detectors. Try to "key" your test to another regular activity.

Smoke detectors are most beneficial when accompanied by a home fire escape plan. The early warning the smoke detector gives in a fire won't help unless you know how to escape your home.

District gets ready for state evaluators

By DOMINICK CRINCOLI

The state Department of Education will conduct its regular five-year evaluation of the Springfield school district next year, according to the superintendent of schools. The evaluation, which the district failed last time, leads to state certification.

"We are taking a year to study and prepare," said Superintendent Dr. Gary Friedland.

The superintendent said he has already completed a comprehensive "needs assessment" in the four district schools — Gaudineer, Sandmeier, Caldwell and Walton. Last year, he said, he updated and revised curriculum, adjusted the tenure evaluation process, and started an intensive basic skills training program within the schools and at the evening tutorial center.

The evaluators from the Department of Education base certification on 10 criteria: planning; school and community relations; comprehensive curriculum and instruction; pupil attendance; facilities; staff; mandated programs such as special education; basic skills testing; equal educational opportunity/affirmative action; and financial.

There are three possible levels of evaluation. In level one, the evaluators assess the district's method of instruction and submit their evaluation and recommendation to the state. If the district passes, there is no further monitoring.

If a district fails it is evaluated again at level two. At this level a local "self-study" group composed of teachers, parents, administrators and Board of Education members makes recommendations and prepares a management plan. The state then returns to certify the district.

This is what happened in the Springfield district four years ago. Problems existed in the area of staffing because some teachers in the system were teaching substitutes in which they were not certified.

Problems existed in the area of special education regarding certain program services, reporting and record keeping.

There were also complications with the teaching facilities at the Caldwell School. Some of the basement classrooms needed better ventilation and better access to the outdoors.

All of the items mentioned above have been eradicated, said Friedland.

NEW TEACHER LUNCHEON—The Board of Education and Administration of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 recently welcomed six of its new staff members during the annual New Teacher and Orientation Luncheon. From left are Roger Larson, payroll supervisor, Regional District central office; Barbara Huresky, teacher of special education; Sharen Yeadon and Monica Butler, teachers of hearing impaired students; Barbara Horne, teacher of instrumental music and band director; and Bruce Ellein, teacher of social studies.

Early diagnosis is topic

Throughout the United States this month, conferences are being held to educate professionals and parents on the importance of the early diagnosis of learning disabilities in children.

Myra G. Wasserman, an educational therapist, learning consultant, author, inventor, and lecturer in private practice in Springfield and Mountaintop, will be the keynote speaker for the New Jersey Montessori Administrators Council on Oct. 15 at the Village School for Children, Ridgewood.

Wasserman's topic, Diagnosis and Treatment of Learning Disabilities, will enlighten teachers on benefits of early diagnosis of pre-school children. Common warning signs will be discussed with methods for dealing with pre-schoolers and their parents.

In addition, Wasserman will be chairing a workshop on Language Development and Disabilities at William Paterson College, Continuing Education Conference, on Oct. 14 at Wayne. The topic for the conference is Dyslexia - 1988 Update on Medical, Legal and Psycho-Educational Issues. Interested parties can contact Wasserman at 654-7227.

Wasserman is educational director of the Myra G. Wasserman Educational Center, the SCAT Institute, Pre-School Evaluation Services, Professional Resources Organization

B.G. Fields is new name, apple pies still the same

By PAUL PEYTON

Union County pie-lovers, have no fear! The famous Geiger Bakery and Deli on Springfield Avenue in Westfield is still in the business of selling fresh, homemade apple and pumpkin pies, fancy cakes and donuts. Geiger's Restaurant, however, has been sold and is now called B.G. Fields.

B.G. Fields officially opened for business Aug. 10, according to one of its owners, Bill Delfino. The new restaurant, which has undergone significant renovation, caters to families as well as business people and senior citizens.

The name — B.G. Fields — Delfino said, comes from the names of the three partners in the business and from the surrounding communities. The first initial, B, stands for Bill Delfino and Brian Fitzpatrick. The second, G, stands for Gary Ochowski. Fields comes from the town of Westfield, where it is actually located, and Springfield, a bordering community.

"We're not a chain. We've taken an old Westfield landmark and created a fresh, airy, casual environment that will appeal to all ages," said Fitzpatrick.

Delfino, whose family owned the Coach and Four Restaurant in Cranford for 38 years, chose Geiger's because of its location and large parking lot. The bakery in the rear of the business was simply an added bonus which has enhanced the restaurant.

The menu includes roasts, seafood, steaks, chops and poultry. Also, desserts are purchased from Geiger's Bakery.

The restaurant's competent chef, Richard Varish, has degrees from the Culinary Institute of America and Florida International University. The kitchen is further strengthened by Robert Donnelly, an 11-year veteran of local restaurants; and Mark Kramp, from Iselin, further solidifies the entire management of the operation.

Silipigni honored by state opera

On Oct. 16 from 3-6 p.m. the Summit Area Chapter of the New Jersey State Opera Guild, together with the opera's board of governors, will honor General Director and Principal Conductor Alfredo Silipigni at a champagne reception. Performers and supporters of the State Opera will gather in the ballroom of the majestic Vanderbilt-Twombly mansion on the Madison campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University to salute the man responsible for the past, present and future of the New Jersey State Opera. All proceeds will contribute to the guild's support of New Jersey State Opera and its education and vocal competition programs.

The general committee is chaired by Mrs. Attilio Bizio of Mountaintop. Also serving on the committee are Mr. and Mrs. Boles Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce B. Dickson, Mrs. Margo Henderson, all of Mountaintop, and Mrs. Homa Pejman and Mrs. Lawrence Landau of Springfield.

Reservations are $25 per person and are tax deductible. More information can be obtained by calling Louise Baab at 912-0011.

Pumpkins benefit choir

The Jonathan Dayton High School Choir will hold its annual pumpkin sale, Saturday, Oct. 22. Students will be driving through Springfield and Mountaintop with cars filled with pumpkins of all sizes to help raise money to defray the cost of traveling to national competitions.

In the past Dayton's choir has received numerous national awards for their excellence in music.

Back to school at Sandmeier

GETTING READY to start the school day can mean a few anxious moments on the playground before the bell rings.

Springfield School Principal Michael Antolino walks inside the school for the youngsters to arrive.

Five cashiers arrested at local supermarket

Four adults and a juvenile were arrested last week for allegedly stealing cash from the Morris Turnpike supermarket that employed them, Springfield police said.

Charged on Oct. 6 were: Betty Dagner, 18, of Summit; Nichol Morano, 19, of Newark; Carl Thompson, 23, of Newark; and Carolina Mentore, 18, of Irvington. The identity of the juvenile was not released.

The women are suspected of stealing money from the company, authorities said.

Detectives said LeVinson and Robert Moore, with the help of the supermarket security staff, cracked the case after a month-long investigation.

"These cashiers would ring up, coupon credits on customer food orders, and then remove the corresponding amount of cash from the cash register," Police Chief William E. Chisholm said.

According to police report estimates, the employees stole hundreds of dollars.

Gaudineer craft fair Oct. 22

The Florence M. Gaudineer School PTA will sponsor a Craft Fair at the Springfield Avenue school on Oct. 22, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Among the crafts for sale will be crocheted and ceramic items, jewelry, and woodworking.

Society book, bake sale on Saturday

The Springfield Historical Society will hold its Annual Book, Bake, and Mini-Flea Market this Saturday, Oct. 15, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Historic Cannon Ball House, 126 Morris Avenue, Springfield.

In addition to many books featuring fiction, non-fiction, academic books, and textbooks in various categories, there will be some vendor tables with antique plants and other objects, household goods, office supplies, curtains, dishes and still treasures.

Also offered will be homemade pies, cakes, and cookies featuring the favorite recipes of the organization's members.

CAMPAIGN '88

Bob DiCarlo and Dave Stein, Democratic candidates for Township Committee, submitted the following article for this week's Campaign Corner.

Springfield is a town in transition. Families whose children are grown are selling their houses to younger couples with small children and more on the way. Some are people who grew up in Springfield and are returning as we did. Others have moved to Springfield, attracted by its reputation as a good place to live.

We have made inquiries and conclude that the fault for the day-to-day facilities problems must be placed with the recreation commission, Phil Kurnos, and the staff with the programs as a whole, with the Republican majority on the Township Committee, Mayor Katz, Jo Ann Pieper and Phil Kurnos.

The Springfield budget contains a $5,000 item for repair and replacement of recreational equipment. Mr. Kurnos hasn't spent one penny of that money to date. No wonder the swings are rusty and the backboards falling apart.

We blame the Republican majority for the overall program deficiencies. They fired our professionally trained recreation director, Kathy Zetts, at the beginning of the year in an act of political blood-letting and then set out to hire a better director.

At the same Springfield supermarket, a New Providence man was arrested Oct. 6 and charged with cashing bad checks.

Robert DePasquale, 36, was detained by store security until the arrival of Patrolman Rodney Podersen of the Springfield Police Department.

Dennis Crow, 20, of Jersey City was arrested and charged with issuing a bad check in the amount of $214.07 to a Springfield company on Oct. 5.

Crow's check returned for insufficient funds.

According to police reports, after the company's repeated attempts to collect from Crow, he refused to make restitution.

Subsequent to a Detective Bureau follow-up, Crow was arrested with a court date pending in Springfield Municipal Court.

Raymond Wall Jr., 23, of Newark was arrested on Oct. 5 when he failed to use a left turn signal in his motor vehicle.

A computer check conducted by Patrolman Jack Thrampier revealed that Wall was driving with a suspended driver's license.

In a letter to Chirgotis, Vice President Bush said, "I am honored and delighted that you have accepted my invitation to serve as National Chairman."

"As an American of Greek descent, I am honored and very proud to endorse the candidacy of Vice President George Bush for the presidency of the United States," said Chirgotis.

We think recreation is too important in a town with large numbers of senior citizens and growing numbers of children to be treated as a political football and budgetary stepchild.

Republican candidates for Township Committee, Jeff Katz and Marc Marshall, submitted the following article.

One of the most rewarding things about walking around Springfield and talking with our neighbors is learning what's really on their minds. A theme that we often hear is "What can be done about the center of town?"

The center of town is often the first impression a visitor or potential new resident gets of the community. For too many years now, Springfield's center has been allowed to decay.

Imagine being able to stroll along wide pedestrian walkways filled with enticing shops, planners, and plenty of off-street parking.

Springfield has the proud distinction of being home to the largest percentage of senior citizens in Union County. The number of resident seniors who want to live at the Springfield Senior Citizen housing complex, Independence Way, has resulted in a waiting list of about nine months.

Our program doesn't end there. The stores in the central business district currently provide two levels of rental housing above them.

And there's an added benefit. A redeveloped center would help to shift the tax burden back to the commercial sector, while not costing the taxpayer 1 cent.

Both of us grew up in this town and we know the spirit that once existed here. We also know that by continuing the high level of care this year, we can create Springfield a model community, a community where all of the residents will be proud to say, "I'm from Springfield."

This is not a dream. In fact, the first steps have been taken to reverse years of neglect and decay. Steps which will restore us to the proud community we were.

It can only continue if more people get involved in the partnership.

Bush appoints Chirgotis

Vice President and Republican Presidential nominee George Bush has appointed architect-philanthropist William G. Chirgotis of Springfield as National Chairman of the Hellenic-American Division of the Coalition of American Nationalities.

In a letter to Chirgotis, Vice President Bush said, "I am honored and delighted that you have accepted my invitation to serve as National Chairman."

"As an American of Greek descent, I am honored and very proud to endorse the candidacy of Vice President George Bush for the presidency of the United States," said Chirgotis.

"Through the years, his many varied, distinguished and dedicated services to our country, certainly qualify him for active support in his bid for the presidency. He has always been very responsive to the ethnic concerns of Greek-Americans and the protection of minority rights for all people," said the Springfielder.

The Springfield Education Association invites parents and teachers to a meeting about assertive discipline.

Trudi Thornton, a staff member of the New Jersey Education Association, will discuss effective methods of disciplining children at 8 p.m., Oct. 20, in the Chisholm Gym.

Newly appointed police officers Edward and Mike McNary were listed in last week's paper as not being related to each other. They are actually brothers, contrary to what the Leader was originally told by a member of the police force.

Animal cruelty under attack in bill

The Senate Natural Resources and Agriculture Committee has released two bills that call for tougher penalties and more vigorous enforcement against animal fighting, baiting and other forms of excessive cruelty to animals.

"Animals bred to fight are known to attack their owners or passers-by without provocation," said Senator C. Louis Bassano, R-Union.

According to Bassano, sponsor of both bills, dogs used in fighting or baiting are extremely dangerous, responsible for several injuries to people and at least one death.

Bill S. 1718' would increase the penalty for animal fighting or baiting of animals. Offenses would be elevated from misdemeanors to fourth degree crimes, and violators would have to serve a minimum of four months in jail.

Under the bill, the amount that the New Jersey Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals could recover from offenders would be raised from $250 to $1,000.

Bassano's other bill, S. 2262, would make cruelty to animals, including deprivation of food, water, adequate shelter or medical care, a disorderly offense.

Legislation aimed at helping authorities find some New Jersey drivers who have violated the rules of the road has been released by the Senate Law and Public Safety Committee today.

The bill, sponsored by Bassano, would require New Jersey's drivers to provide their street address, as well as their mailing address when applying for vehicle registration.

Currently, the Division of Motor Vehicles can accept a post office box number or work address as a mailing address, making it difficult for authorities to locate some people," said Bassano.

By requiring a street address, it would be easier for enforcement officials to track down people who commit traffic violations, or who are delinquent in paying fines or surcharges.

The bill would require people whose home address does not currently appear on their registration to provide it along with their mailing address for registration renewal.

Bill A. 3702, sponsored by Hardwick, R-Union, and Assembly Majority Leader "Chuck" Hayalain, R-Warren, Sussex, restructures the JUA to make it self-sustaining by providing for automatic rate increases of 10 percent per year for four years for drivers with bad records.

Good drivers, whether they are in the JUA or not, have nothing to worry about," Hardwick said.

"The whole point of the public financing law is to lessen the financial impact that political action committees and other special interest groups have in the electoral process," Russo said.

But the spending limits contained in the 11-year-old public financing law are so outdated, it makes it impossible for most candidates to run an effective campaign," Russo said.

This second measure passed 41-35. The third bill, A. 3703, sponsored by Assemblyman Gerald Zecker, R-

Jewish center donation is for LIFE

The Jewish Community Center in Scotch Plains has contributed $450 to Union County College's Learning Is For Ever Center — LIFE — in its efforts to expand educational offerings for senior citizens.

The gift is specifically slated towards senior citizens studies courses, of which there are 28 offered at various locations throughout Union County.

The Jewish Community Center, located at 1391 South Marino Ave., Scotch Plains, will serve as the base for a course, Small Group Psychology, offered from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Thursdays. The class investigates the roles and behavior of people in small group settings. Topics include roles and norms, leadership, decision processes, interpersonal communication, membership, attraction, and group therapy. Participation in small group projects is emphasized.

Those interested in further information should call 709-7592 or 709-7590.

Formation of a 27-person committee at Union County College to work for passage of the $350 million Jobs, Education, and Competitiveness Bond Issue on the Nov. 8 ballot was announced today by Dr. Derek N. Nunney of Summit, UCC president.

The $350 million bond issue will provide $308 million for construction and renovation of buildings needed at the state's public and independent colleges and universities and $42 million for expansion of the state's network of advanced technology centers.

Nunney has appointed Roy Smith of Elizabeth, vice president for development, planning and public affairs, to serve as chairperson of the College's committee to promote the bond issue, and Thomas Kehoe of Cranford, a member of the Economics/Government/History Department, and Linda Leifer of Cranford, executive director for development and alumni affairs, to serve as co-vice chairpersons.

The bond issue earmarks $308 million for distribution by the Department of Higher Education, including $60 million to construct additional library space, $33 million for classrooms, $84 million for laboratory facilities, $34 million for administrative facilities, $45 million for renovation and rehabilitation of existing facilities and $45 million for projects to be determined at a later date.

Serving on the Union County College committee to promote the Jobs, Education and Competitiveness Bond Issue are: Theodore Austin of Palisades Park, vice president for administrative services and provost of the Scotch Plains Campus; Roseann Buciarfell of Garwood, director of continuing education; Shirley Cathie of Plainfield, director of the Plainfield Center; Veronica Clinton of Cranford, coordinator of publications; and Suzanne Coyne of Westfield, recording secretary of the UCC Alumni Association.

Also, Harry Davis of Elizabeth, shop steward, Local 11, Teamsters Union; Professor Patricia Delaney of Plainfield, a member of the Dental Technologies Department; Elizabeth Dorey of Springfield, editor of The Scroll, student newspaper; Everett Ellis of Plainfield, director of the Elizabeth Campus; and Professor Sandra Fishinger of Rahway, a member of the English/Fine Arts/Modern Languages Department.

Also, Brian Mumane of Berkeley Heights, president of the Student Government Association; Frederick Perry of Roselle Park, athletic director; I. Wynn Phillips of Ocean Township, dean of students; Ann Richards of Clark, director of the Speakers Bureau; William Sokol of Dunellen, shop steward, Local 11, Teamsters; Curtis Spillane of Union, president of the Senior Citizens Student Association; Professor Susan Stock of Westfield, coordinator of the Communications Program; and Professor Robert Yoskowitz of Somerville, a member of the English/Fine Arts/Modern Languages Department.

Union County College's Minorities in Engineering Project has received a $2,000 grant from AT&T geared towards assisting the College in preparing high school students for careers in engineering and science. "Our corporation deemed it necessary to support minority enrichment programs because we recognize the changing demographics in society and will have to draw qualified individuals from all sectors of the population," said Harry Baumgartner, an AT&T spokesman.

Students enrolled in the Minorities in Engineering program during the academic year are able to expand their background in mathematics, English, and science in classes taught by UCC professors. Students came from Elizabeth, Linden, Hillside, Plainfield, and Rahway public schools.

Selected students from these school districts were sent to Rutgers University for an introductory program in career development for minorities in technological fields.

SADD plans 'awareness'

The Union County College chapter of Students Against Drunk Driving will conduct an Alcohol Awareness Day on Oct. 19 to familiarize fellow students and the public on the dangers of drinking alcohol, especially while driving.

A set of brochures published by SADD will be distributed and offer information on the physiological and psychological effects of excessive drinking.

Those interested may come to the College's Cranford Campus between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. to gain a better insight into the problems of drinking, especially while driving.

Pieper: a debate would be boring

By DONNA SCHUSTER

The Republican candidate for Union County register has declined an invitation by the incumbent Democrat to debate.

Register Joanne Rajoppi last week asked County Leader Newspapers to sponsor and moderate a debate between the two in an effort to "evaluate the merits of each candidate." She said her opponent, Jo-Ann Steno Pieper, "has failed to make any positive suggestions on running the Office of Register" and lacks the management ability, experience and training to effectively operate the office.

Rajoppi said she called for the debate because Pieper has "misinformed the voters" about Rajoppi's record and has done so "in order to deflect focus from her own lack of experience and knowledge."

But Pieper said a debate between the two women would be "boring."

"It would be a waste of time. Who would watch it?" said the Republican. Pieper said there are no platform items to discuss and the "audience would probably be stacked with Democrats anyway."

The GOP candidate said the two will meet face to face during at least one of several "candidates nights" planned by civic groups throughout the county, but she has no interest in debating.

Friction between the two candidates came to a head last week when Pieper charged the register with altering the office time clock in order to log in more deeds on a particular day. Pieper said the deeds were time-stamped out of order to give the appearance of increased productivity. The GOP candidate said she is forwarding copies of the deeds, which show the discrepancy, to the state Attorney General's Office for investigation.

Rajoppi said she would welcome a review by the state's counsel and would gladly open her records for inspection.

"It is a sad commentary that an individual running for elective office would attempt to frighten the hard-working homeowners of Union County with full knowledge that all deeds and mortgages on file at this time or any other time during my tenure are valid. This is a cruel hoax and my opponent does a disservice to county residents, and attempts to demean the hardworking county employees," said Rajoppi.

The register filed a complaint against Pieper last month which charges that she distributed campaign material without a disclaimer printed on it. Pieper said the material Rajoppi referred to was an invitation to a dance that needed such disclaimer.

Grand jury transcripts sought

By DONNA SCHUSTER

The transcripts of a grand jury presentment, which—charged County Counsel Robert Foy with using partisan politics to protect Republican freeholders last year, must be obtained and reviewed by the freeholder board before a decision can be made to fire the attorney or let him continue in his post, Freeholder Neil Cohen said this week.

Cohen has requested the transcripts, which contain testimony from 22 witnesses, and exhibits, such as memos and letters, from Superior Court Judge Edward W. Beglin Jr. The freeholder hopes to receive the documents within two weeks.

"The freeholders serve on a quasi-judicial board and it is our responsibility to research the grand jury findings," said Cohen, who added he will not consider relieving Doherty of his post until he has reviewed the transcripts and given the attorney a hearing.

According to the grand jury, Doherty withheld insurance premium increases—from retired-county employees and instead let the county pick up the $100,000 tab. He did so, the jury said, to avoid a potentially damaging campaign issue during last year's election, when the GOP majority was at stake. Doherty had been appointed by the Republican board. The grand jury report also stated that the attorney allowed the insurance company to be paid without the consent of the freeholders.

Doherty has made no comment on the presentment since it was released to the public in late September.

But Freeholder Brian Fahey has already called for the county counsel to resign, or be removed by the freeholders, and sees no need to acquire transcripts or to hold a hearing.

"Obtaining the transcripts defeats the purpose of the grand jury, which is supposed to be cloaked in secrecy. Many people, including county employees, were asked their opinions about a lot of things by the grand jury. They answered honestly, thinking that they were safe from repercussions," said Fahey, who was the initiator of the grand jury proceeding. Freeholder Fahey said, too, that

Cohen has im't particularly interested in what county employees said to the jury. "The judge is free to excise whatever testimony he feels would be unnecessary for our purposes," said Cohen.

The two Democrat freeholders were at odds over Fahey's resolution to fire Doherty, at a recent freeholder meeting. Cohen moved to table the resolution, and was supported by a majority of the board.

calling for the transcripts to be released would be a "trap in the face" to the citizens who served on the grand jury and who came to specific conclusions based on what they heard under oath.

Freeholder Fahey said, too, that

Family division is calling for volunteers

The Superior Court, Family Division, is recruiting volunteers for several special programs serving parents and children involved in the judicial system in Union County. These court-appointed programs tap volunteer energy through citizen involvement.

Vacancies exist in the following programs: the Court Appointed Special Advocate Program, the Juvenile Conference Committees, and the Supervised Visitation Program.

The Court Appointed Special Advocate Program is comprised of citizen volunteers who are appointed by the presiding judge of the Family Court to advocate on behalf of abused and neglected children.

A CASA is a trained volunteer who is assigned to investigate a case by talking with the child, parent and other concerned parties, to learn about the child's history, as well as review the child's records, including school, medical and caseworker reports.

Anyone interested in volunteering for this program may contact Linda Jeter, CASA coordinator, at 527-4917.

Juvenile Conference Committees are citizen panels consisting of six to nine volunteers appointed by the presiding judge of the Family Court to hear matters involving first-time, minor juvenile delinquency complaints. The committees meet with the juvenile, parents and the victim of the crime and seek to develop dispositions that respond to the need of the community and the concerns raised by the parties present at this informal hearing.

Currently, there are 21 Juvenile Conference Committees in Union County.

Anyone interested in serving on a Juvenile Conference Committee may contact Nancy Spano Yurek, assistant Juvenile Conference Committee coordinator, at 527-4325.

The Supervised Visitation Program tries to keep divorced or separated parents in contact with their children by providing volunteers to supervise brief visits between the children and their non-custodial parents in a neutral setting, such as a YMCA.

The volunteer supervisor serves as a buffer between the two parents and provides the child the opportunity to establish a normal, healthy relationship with the non-custodial parent.

Concerned, sensitive volunteers with the ability to maintain neutrality are asked to contact Jane Frost Guzzo, visitation coordinator, at 527-4955.

Baran lauded by agency

Catholic Community Services' Union County Advisory Board will honor Ann Baran, acting deputy Union County manager, aboard the cruise ship Spirit of New York at their annual fund-raiser Oct. 16.

Baran receives the Human Services award in recognition of her "outstanding leadership in providing social services to those in need throughout Union County." In 1985 Baran came to Union County government as director of the Department of Human Services.

Baran has served as both Regional Administrator and Supervisor of the Metropolitan Region of the New Jersey Division of Youth and Family Services.

A graduate of Rider College's Graduate School of Public Administration, Baran also holds a bachelor of arts and master of arts in psychology from Fairleigh Dickinson University. She resides with her husband, Francis, and their two children in Milltown.

CAMPAIGN '88

The Republican team of freeholder candidates, James J. Fulcomer of Rahway, Diane Heslan of Union, and William Eldridge of Berkeley Heights, this week attacked Democrat "indecisiveness on important county problems" and pledged to act decisively to resolve the important problems facing Union County.

"When the Democrats took over the social services department, they didn't know what to do with the important question of moving out of the substandard facilities before the lease expires. The lease expires on Jan. 1, and the delay makes it obvious that the social services employees unfairly will be in the present location after Jan. 1," said Freeholder Fulcomer.

"The Social Services Board, which the Democrats eliminated, definitely would have resolved this problem in a timely manner. The only deadline the Democrats seem concerned about is their agenda for political patronage in the social services area," said Freeholder Eldridge.

Fulcomer said early this year the Union County Utilities Authority offered a plan to resolve all leaf disposal problems of the county. "Instead of approving a modified version of the plan, approving the plan, or immediately acting on an alternative, the Democrat majority dragged their feet. Because of this needless delay, many municipalities are receiving their leaves out of this county at a much higher cost to the property taxpayers this fall," said Fulcomer.

Fulcomer also criticized the Democrat delay in approving a traffic plan for resolving the garbage crisis. He said that the delay could cost the taxpayers $2 million.

"Months ago we received a report of inadequacies at Runnells Hospital, yet as of today we have received no report that they have been resolved satisfactorily. Likewise, we freeholders have received a long list of inadequacies from the Parks Advisory Board, but the Democrats also have left these problems unresolved," said Eldridge.

"The Democrats adopted their high-tax budget months later than the usual time. As a result, it was very difficult for our county administration to move speedily on new projects," said Fulcomer.

"The Democrats still have not adopted their salary ordinance for department heads. We Republicans believe this decision should be made at the beginning of the year, not at the end. What are they waiting for — an opportunity to surprise the people with an unpopular action after this election?" said freeholder candidate Heslan.

"While we cannot capture control of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, a stronger Republican minority can put pressure on the freeholders to resolve county problems sooner and to adopt budgetary matters when they should be adopted for more efficient government," concluded Fulcomer.

Union County Freeholder Walter E. Boright, a Democrat seeking re-election this year, has requested of Union County Manager Joseph Martin "a report to help determine the feasibility of establishing within existing budgetary constraints an office for women's affairs."

The fourth-term freeholder explained, "Women's issues are becoming ever more prominent in today's society. Be it need for day care, family counseling, sexual assault, needs of women as heads of single-parent families, general social services, job and educational opportunities counseling, issues of alcohol and drug abuse problems within the family structure, and the needs of the homeless, among others.

"The recent consolidation of the formerly autonomous Union County Board of Social Services and its more than 300 employees into the Union County Department of Human Services has put under one administrative roof more than 600 employees possessing a multitude of professional, social service skills."

"It is my belief," said Boright, "that a careful survey of the various talents and services being offered within this new agency and other county departments may reveal a substantial number of fragmented women's services being offered by the county. Some of these may be merely referrals to community agencies providing the services and others may be services directly offered by the county, such as aid to families with dependent children, rape crisis center, and alcohol and drug rehabilitation."

"Good government doesn't have to be expensive to be effective" is a motto I subscribe to," stated Boright. "I believe that we must try to improve upon the quality of services we now offer to residents within the existing financial structure."

"I see our ability to possibly establish an office or bureau of women's affairs within our present county government framework helping to meet a need that is overdue. The review by the county manager will also help the freeholder Board to prioritize the need of establishing an office on women's affairs for our 1989 budget. If it is entirely possible we can identify existing county staff presently performing different aspects of women-oriented services and bring them together into one unit. If the unit must be created with any new staff, I would ask the other freeholders to prioritize its funding in our upcoming fiscal year. With more than 2,500 county employees, we should be able to generate any minimal number of dollars needed through the attrition process," said the candidate.

Art groups can learn of funding sources

The Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs has scheduled an opportunity for artists, arts groups, and presenting organizations to learn about funding programs available from the county and from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts. It will take place Oct. 26, at 7:30 p.m., at the Cranford Campus of Union County College, 1033 Springfield Ave., Cranford.

The workshop will focus on NJSCA fellowships for individual artists and grants to organizations, and the Union County Arts Grant Program for county-based organizations.

Freeholder Chairman Michael J. Lapolla notes that those attending will receive an overview of grant guidelines and applications. "NJSCA and Cultural and Heritage Office staff will answer specific questions about deadlines and support materials," he stated. Application forms for all programs will be distributed that night.

Funding is available from the NJSCA to non-profit cultural organizations that demonstrate artistic excellence and leadership, sound business management and fiscal responsibility. NJSCA Fellowships are awarded to professional New Jersey artists for the creation of original works of art.

Political forum set in Westfield, Oct. 19

The Leagues of Women Voters of Union County are sponsoring a County Freeholder Candidates Forum on Oct. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the Westfield Town Hall, East Broad Street.

The candidates for register of deeds and mortgages will make short statements followed by questions from the six freeholder candidates. The freeholder candidates will then answer questions from the audience.

Running for three-year terms as freeholder are Democratic candidates: William Boright of Scotch Plains, Gerald B. Green of Plainfield, and James Walsh of Hillside. Republican candidates are William Eldridge of Berkeley Heights, James Fulcomer of Rahway, and Diane Heslan of Union.

Joann Senio Pieper, Republican, and Joanne Rajoppi, Democrat, are the candidates for the five-year term as register.

The meeting will be videotaped by Suburban Cablevision for rebroadcast.

Also, the Union League of Women Voters, in cooperation with the Union County Leagues of Women Voters, has again issued a "Know Your Candidates" sheet to acquaint the public with the candidates and the issues.

This year's publication provides information on Union County freeholder and register candidates, candidates for the U.S. Congress in districts which include Union County communities, and questions which will appear on the ballot on Nov. 8.

Freeholder candidates were asked to respond to questions on the county's control of hazardous waste and the county's role in dealing with the homeless. Congressional candidates were asked questions on the relationship of local district needs to those of the entire county, and the policies of international trade.

On the back page is information on local candidates running for Union Township Committee. Copies of "Know Your Candidates" can be obtained at banks, stores and supermarkets.

CDA flea market set

The Court of the Immaculate Heart of Mary 1360, Catholic Daughters of the Americas, CDA, will hold its annual flea market Oct. 22 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in St. Michael's school auditorium, Kelly Street, Union.

It was announced that the public is invited and that a wide variety of articles will be on sale. Refreshments also will be on sale. Tables are available, it also was announced. New season meeting

The Union B'nai B'rith will hold its first meeting of the 1988-1989 season Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in Congregation Beth Shalom, Vauxhall Road and Plane Street, Union.

It was announced that under the new leadership of Steven A. Edwards, president, the Union Lodge will welcome the public. Entertainment will be provided by the "Famous One-Man Band." Additional information can be obtained by calling Edwards at 686-8843.

CROP Walk Sunday

A 1988 CROP Walk will take place in Mountaintop on Sunday beginning at 2 p.m. CROP is a branch of Church World Service. The purpose of CROP, it was announced, is to help alleviate hunger both in the United States and overseas. "CROP fights hunger in a variety of ways including—teaching better farming techniques, irrigation, and by providing harder seed."

This year's CROP walk will be a joint effort led by the youth at the Community Presbyterian Church and the youth from Our Lady of Lourdes Church. The youth and "anyone who would like to walk with them," will meet at Our Lady of Lourdes at 2 p.m. on Sunday. "We will walk as a group to The Community Presbyterian Church where we will have a break for refreshments. We will then return to Our Lady of Lourdes by a slightly different route."

Golden anniversary

The First Baptist Church of Union will celebrate its golden anniversary Saturday and Sunday beginning with a banquet at the Galloping Hills Inn, Union, Saturday at 6 p.m. The minister, Dr. Robert A. Rasmussen, will preside at the Sunday morning service. His theme will be "Glorious in the House of God!" Special music will be provided by the Chancel Choir and the Adult Handbell Choir.

Dr. Robert C. Campbell of the Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary, will be guest speaker at the 3:30 p.m. 50th anniversary service. His topic will be "The Church, Facing God's Future!" The anniversary service will be followed by a reception in the church's fellowship hall.

On Oct. 16, 1938, Union residents forming the Union Baptist Fellowship affixed their names to a charter instituting the First Baptist Church of Union.

Summer is over

"Summer is over," says the Rev. Paul A. Burrows, pastor of St. Luke and All Saints Episcopal Church, 398 Chestnut St., Union, "and as we all return to the 'daily round' of the year do you feel that the year has somehow stalled? Listen think that the fall has that same "blah" feeling as that period of the afternoon around 4 p.m. A youth fellowship will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Sunday and the 30th says Dr. Christopher R. Belden of the Community Presbyterian Church and the Rev. Sam Monaco of Our Lady of Lourdes, organizers of this year's CROP Walk. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davenport of the Community Presbyterian Church will help with the arrangements.

Surpassed this year

Walkers can contact Belden or Monaco, who also have said, "If you would like to contribute you may make your check out to 'CROP' and send it care of the Presbyterian Church, Meeting House Lane, Mountaintop."

Rummage sale due

The Evening Group of the First Presbyterian Church in Springfield will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Final plans will be discussed for a rummage sale scheduled Oct. 20 in the Parish House on Church Hill from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Oct. 21 from 9:30 a.m. to noon.

There will be a brief business meeting led by the chairman, June DeFino, after which the group will continue sorting the rummage.

Articles suitable for a rummage sale can be delivered to the church office at 37 Church Hill any day during the week from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m., it was announced.

New members listed

New church members were recently received and welcomed into membership at Grace Lutheran Church, 2222 Vauxhall Road, Union. They are Hans and Elsie Bohnenberger.

The Rev. Donald L. Brund, pastor, leads a class on Sunday mornings at 9:30 in which the teachings of the Lutheran church are discussed. Worship services are held at 10:30 a.m.

Interfaith Council

The Interfaith Council of Roselle-Roselle Park recently held their first meeting of the 1988-1989 year. A schedule of events for the coming year was announced.

This month, there will be a Dollar-A-Month Appeal and the United Project. Next month, the Thanksgiving Eve Community service will be held.

In January 1989, the Council will observe the Week of Christian Unity. In March, Girl Scout Week will be observed, and the annual Crop Walk For Hunger will take place on Good Friday.

The Dollar-A-Month Fund helps and assists citizens in both communities, it is reported, and anyone may contribute to this fund by sending a contribution of $12 for one year to Herbert Jaffe, treasurer, 430 Locust St., Roselle, N.J. 07068.

The council also is involved in the Network for the Homeless of Union County.

Council officers are Lois Muller, president, the Rev. George W. Harkless, vice president; Nelson Ellis, treasurer; Helene Klisch, secretary; and Dorothy Lark, corresponding secretary.

Annual conference

"Reaching the World with the Word" is the theme of the 27th annual

A 'Harvest' bazaar

A "Harvest Time" bazaar will arrive at Saint Luke's Church, 210 East Fourth Ave., Roselle Oct. 22. At the annual event, the bazaar will offer crafts, baked goods, religious items and "elegant junkie." Food and beverages will be available all day. The bazaar will be open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Temple Israel choir

The Temple Israel choir, directed by Cantor Hillel Sadovitz, sang at the Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur services at Temple Israel of Union, this year. Members of the choir sang solo selections.

Sadovitz has been directing the Temple Israel High Holiday Choir for 25 years.

'Ben Franklin' event

"A Visit With Benjamin Franklin" will take place Sunday at 8 p.m. in the first congregational Church in Union, Burnet and Doris avenues, when Dr. William Meikle of Arlington, Mass., will conduct an 18th-century worship service in the words of Dr. Franklin. He will include recorded music of the period played on period instruments. There will be a dessert hour from 7 to 8 p.m. in Founder's Hall, where homemade desserts and beverages will be sold by the deaconesses. There also will be a baked goods table for take-home treats.

'Crystal Ball' dance

The Polish Cultural Foundation of New Jersey will sponsor its annual winter dance Oct. 23 at the West-Park, Garwood. Anthony Tabish and students to senior citizens.

Further information can be obtained by calling the church office at 688-4333 or by contacting the Rev. Nancy E. Fursberg, pastor of the church.

MERRY MARKET — Bea Hooper, left, and Lou Sakatos of Union make plans for Greek food preparations and special boulogues which will highlight the fourth Merry Market sponsored by the Ladies Philopochos of the Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church, 250 Gallows Hill Road, Westfield, today and tomorrow from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

25th anniversary set

The Rosary Altar Society of Holy Spirit Roman Catholic Church, Union, will celebrate its 25th anniversary Sunday at the 9:30 a.m. Mass with a Communion break to follow at 11 a.m. at the Kingston Restaurant, Union. The guest speaker will be the Rev. John M. Ballweg, professor of religious studies, at Seton Hall University, and weekend assistant at Holy Spirit Church for 25 years, since September 1963. Chairman for the brunch is Rose Moy; toastmistress, Lovetta Sanderson, and ticket chairman, Anne Klaus.

The concert will feature works of Eugene Gigout, J. S. Bach, Louis Vierne, W. A. Mozart, Louis-Nicolas Clerambault and Marcel Dupre. The public is invited to attend.

Pipe organ concert

A concert will be held Oct. 23 beginning at 3 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church of Roselle, 517 Avenue at Chestnut Street, to mark the dedication of the church's new pipe organ, which was installed two months ago.

The organ is a 27-rank instrument, with 38 individual stops and 1,434 separate pipes. It is unique in that it incorporates into its design a number of pipes from the church's original organ built nearly a century ago.

The artist for this dedicatory concert is George R. Lachauer. Lachauer began his musical studies on the piano with Harry Thurber and Raymond Young of Westfield. He became interested in the organ through recordings of Albert Schweitzer whose student, Ludwig Lenel, was to become his first organ and so the feast was reduced to one day, Sept. 14, Holy Cross Day.

For many, the answer to these blains if offered by a dual dedication, a consecration date and the unsuccessful experiment of Constantine. The Episcopal Church in Union has the double dedication of St. Luke and All Saints' day is Nov. 1.

This gives a neat two-week feast. Added to this, the present building was consecrated by Bishop Gardner on Oct. 18, 1952. To mark all this, two-week festival is going to be observed from Oct. 23 to Nov. 6 as an antidote to the liturgical bias and as a way of presenting ourselves to the local community.

"The highlight of the festival will be an 'Open Day' on Oct. 29 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with presentations and exhibits on the life of the church. If you have never heard of the Episcopal Church before or are in any way curious about what goes on in a church please come and visit." The next day at the 10 a.m. service, there will be the annual visit to Bishop Pettit for the Dedication Festival and Confirmation, and also welcome visitors to join us that day.

"There will be no time this year for the blains in Union!"

The public is invited to attend.

Sixtieth anniversary

St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, East Elm Street and Moore Place, Linden, will observe its 60th anniversary Oct. 23. There will be a service at 5 p.m. followed by a dinner and anniversary program at 6 p.m.

Sixty years ago, during the spring of 1928, about 20 families, primarily of German descent, began to form-plans for a Lutheran church in Linden. With the assistance of the New York Missionary, St. Paul's Church was organized in August 1928, but was not incorporated until Oct. 17 of that year.

The first services were held in Grace Episcopal Parish Hall, Linden, on Aug. 5. In September 1928 regular services in German and in English and regular Sunday School sessions were begun in the Craftsman's Club, Linden. Ten years later, on May 15, 1938, the cornerstone of the present church building was laid; and on Oct. 2, 1938, the church was dedicated.

The parsonage was purchased in July 1945. The cornerstone of the Parish House on Moore Place was laid on June 12, 1955 and the service of dedication was held Oct. 2, 1955. Sunday School sessions began in the Parish House on Oct. 9, 1955 and continue there to this day.

St. Paul's is currently without a pastor. It was reported, The Rev. Jeffrey P. Laussen, who was the pastor for the past five years, resigned on Sept. 30 to accept a position as pastor/developer in the mission field of Barneveld-Warstown. Plans are in progress to select a new minister. More information on the anniversary dinner can be obtained by contacting Barbara Morro at 486-4263.

CDA Daughters' Day

Court Patricia No. 1254, Catholic

Daughters of the Americas, CDA, will observe National Catholic Daughters' Day Sunday. Members, family and their friends, are invited to attend the 10:30 a.m. Mass in St. Joseph's Church, Prospect Street, Maplewood. The chaplain, the Rev. John T. Brown, OSB, will be the celebrant. Margaret Coetzee will serve as lector. Officers will wear their robes.

On the evening of Oct. 21 Court Patricia will sponsor its annual social benefit beginning at 7:30 p.m., in Bernard Hall at St. Joseph's Church. More information can be obtained by calling Catherine Patania, at 686-6936.

AWARD PRESENTED — Chuck Hardwick, third from left, Speaker of the Assembly of New Jersey, is presented with an International Citizenship and Volunteer Service award recently in Trenton, Westfield, by the Springfield and Westfield Mountsides Lodges of B'nai B'rith. The Torch of Freedom award depicts a replication of the original flag flown by the Continental Congress, and the B'nai B'rith award is given internationally and has been given to every president since Harry Truman. What changes in 60 years of TV?

By JOHN BARRAT
Smithsonian News Service

An attractive woman sits at a small wooden table smoking a cigarette, perspiration beading on her forehead. In the drupe-drawn room, a dark-haired man brandishes a pistol. Shots ring out. In a few homes scattered around Schenectady, people heard the shots and watched a flickering silhouette of the pistol on a postcard-size screen. Station W2XAD was broadcasting the very first television melodrama, "The Queen's Messenger."

With the fall television season here, the general themes of television programming seem to have changed little in the past 60 years. But the technology that made the first broadcasts a reality has changed radically. In the late 1920s and early 1930s, television was invented and then virtually reinvented by a handful of scientists and experimenters.

Today, however, the groundbreaking work of television's earliest innovators has been all but forgotten, says Elliot Sivovitch, a museum specialist in the Division of Electricity and Modern Physics at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C. "Many people mistakenly assume television was invented after World War II, when, in fact, television has a large pre-war history."

At the American History Museum, curators are planning an exhibition that will, in part, retrace the early development of television technology. The exhibition, set to open in 1990, will borrow extensively from the Smithsonian's collection of antique telegraphs, radios, computers and some of the first television created.

By and large, early television technology was an extension of radio technology, Sivovitch says. Radio — the "wireless telegraph" — was first demonstrated in 1895 by Italian inventor Guglielmo Marconi.

"Gradual improvements in the quality of radio transmission in the early 1900s were a necessary antecedent to the invention of television," Nat Pendleton, a historian also in the Electricity and Modern Physics Division, says. "At first, radio was only capable of sending dots and dashes, but by 1918 the more complex ranges of the human voice were being broadcast over a wider band of radio waves."

Scientists, intrigued by the prospect of sending visual images by radio, were challenged with breaking down those images into electrical impulses that could be transmitted by radio waves. A receiving set would have to reassemble the picture.

In 1925, after years of experimentation with film and television, Francis Jenkins, an independent and determined inventor, demonstrated just such a device for "radio vision" to federal officials in Washington, D.C. A tiny spinning windmill stationed across the Potomac River was broadcast to a screen in Jenkins' downtown laboratory.

For radio vision to work, the image of a brightly lit object was focused with a camera lens upon a specific area of a rapidly spinning disc. Holes in the disc rotated past the image to be televised. Bursts of light passed through the disc to strike a photo-sensitive radio tube. The tube converted the light beam into a series of electrical impulses which were then broadcast over radio-wave frequencies.

On Jenkins' receiver, an identical disc — spinning in synchronism with the transmitter disc — recreated the image, line by line, from a flickering signal plate in a glowing neon tube. These lines are known as "resolution lines." The spinning disc flashed out 15 still picture frames per second. This technology became known as "mechanical television," first devised by German inventor Paul Nipkow in the 1880s.

"Jenkins essentially married the technologies of film and radio," Sivovitch says. His familiarity with motion pictures made him aware that the human eye can be tricked into seeing motion in a fast-moving series of still pictures.

Incredibly, the principles of Jenkins' broadcasting system are basically the same as those of today's electronic television. Modern television uses an "electron gun," rather than a spinning disc, to scan an image and break it down into electrical impulses. The image is reproduced in the receiver by a second electron gun, which "sprays" electrons onto the back of the screen.

Jenkins' demonstration sparked scientists and amateurs to experiment with radio vision. British inventor John L. Baird demonstrated a similar television system that same year. "During the mid-1920s, Jenkins and Baird were neck and neck in the development of mechanical television," Sivovitch says. In 1929, Baird began the first regular television service through the British Broadcasting Corp. in London and later broadcast early color images; a man, sticking out his tongue, and a red and blue scarf.

The 1920s and 1930s saw the birth of an industry: Television kits came on the market; such companies as RCA, General Electric, Westinghouse and American Telephone and Telegraph pushed new developments, and broadcast stations using mechanical technology sprang up in dozens of cities across the United States. Other companies, including one started by Jenkins, began making and marketing receiver sets. Newspapers carried the first guides to an irregular schedule of radio movies, musical performances and skits.

Entertainers performing for this new broadcast medium were literally baked on the set by the intense lighting required to transmit a good picture. In fact, one of the first television "personalities" was a statue of Felix the Cat. "This situation did not improve until years after the development of electronic television," Sivovitch says.

"Mechanical television died about 1934," Pendleton says, "mainly because it could broadcast only shadows and silhouettes. Despite expensive and extensive efforts to improve it, picture resolution was bad. In addition, mechanical sets were bulky, noisy and difficult to arise in maintaining the synchronization of the picture.

The Depression played a role in the demise of mechanical television. Sets sold for $80 to $100 apiece, a price few people could afford. "Spinning-disc television sets were more of a curiosity than a true form of entertainment," Pendleton says.

Two inventors who early on realized the limitations of the spinning disc were Philo T. Farnsworth and Russian immigrant Vladimir Zworykin. While—Jenkins and Baird demonstrated their first sets, Farnsworth and Zworykin were independently experimenting with electron guns and vacuum tubes.

The gifted child of a large farm family, Farnsworth began applying electricity to a number of farm implements and soon became an ardent student of electronics journals. He first conceived a machine that could create images from a series of parallel lines, the story goes, after gazing at shadows caused by horizontal plow furrows in a field. In 1927, he demonstrated his first "image dissector" and a cathode-ray tube "vision box" made from a chemistry-lab flask.

Zworykin, on the other hand, was a highly trained communications specialist and television researcher. Working for Westinghouse, and then RCA, he developed similar equipment — the "iconoscope" camera in 1927 and the "kinescope" receiver in 1929. These innovations by Farnsworth and Zworykin represent the first completely electronic television systems and are the forerunners of

Genevieve P. DiVenuto of Union, chairman of the annual showtime luncheon event, on behalf of the Eastern Union County Chapter American Red Cross, has announced that the charitable event will be held Nov. 5 at the Town and Campus Restaurant, Union. "We will hold our annual fund raising event on behalf of our Chapter," she says. "Our events, over the years, have gained momentum and we are getting larger and larger crowds. Our supporters like the idea of an afternoon luncheon and entertainment. "All proceeds, from the charitable event, will be donated to the Eastern Union County Chapter to help it carry on its free mandated and volunteer programs throughout the 12 communities it serves. "Our chapter," she says, "is an extremely active one, aiding victims of disaster, the homeless, establishing an expanded blood program and rendering service to military men and women and their families keep our lobby filled to capacity most of the time. In addition, safety programs, braille programs, sewing and knitting for the veterans in veterans, hospitals, CPR classes and safety classes add to the activity and capacity." The Celebration Singers will provide the entertainment. The program will include "Great Melodies of Yesteryear," "A Salute to Fred Waring," and a sing a long. Reservations can be made by CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An unexpected financial opportunity comes your way this week, so be alert for it in order to take advantage. Energies expended above and beyond the norm will go for this week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A cooperative venture in which you're involved reaches a crossroad this week. Be assured that your final decision will be good since your intuition is right on the mark.
LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) A decision in the works this week possibly relating to a child. Co-workers and family members are in a cooperative mood this week, which will result in increased productivity for you.

'Interlude'

Music from the stages of grand opera, light opera and the American musical theater will be offered by Patricia Corbett, soprano, and James Clark, tenor, in "A Special Musical Interlude."

The free concert, part of the Sunday Music series, sponsored by the fine arts music department of Fairleigh Dickinson University, Rutherford, will be held this Sunday in Santmartino Hall at 3 p.m.

The concert is open to the public. More information can be obtained by calling 460-5043.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Be careful this week concerning money. You may be tempted to be somewhat extravagant and it is not a good time for this. Any change this week will be on the domestic end of your life.
LIDRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The beginning of the week is good for intellectual pursuits. The latter part of the week can be spent on fun and adventure. Try to find something different to do this weekend. Romance is favored on Saturday night.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take some time this week to look around your home and find out what can be improved. Financial matters are favored also this week, so take advantage of this.
PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Any problems you may have this week will be linked with financial matters. Give yourself time to catch up with tasks you've been neglecting. Domestic harmony will prevail this week.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Someone whom you had considered a friend will show his or her true colors this week, giving you pause for re-evaluation. Don't let this get you down. The situation will be resolved soon.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Although a close friend may approach you this week in order to borrow money, it wouldn't be a good time for you to comply. Short trips are favored for the weekend, as well as leisure activities.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) While you'd love to say, "I told you so," regarding a certain work matter, it would be wise to keep this to yourself for now. Bigwigs are not in the mood to hear this.

Fall factors enhance home purchase value

"This is an excellent time to be in the new home market," stated Robert Adamo, president of the Home Owners Warranty Corp. HOW, of New Jersey. "Traditionally, early fall has been a time when families choose to improve the quality of their lifestyle in a new home, and this year several factors enhance the value of a new home purchase."

Today's new homes, according to Adamo, are practical in value and emotionally gratifying. Not only is the average new home large in size, but most builders continue to respond to a sophisticated market with plans that accent living convenience.

"A quick glance through the real estate ads will show the degree of emphasis builders are placing on adding visual appeal to an already solid investment value. Regardless of the style a buyer prefers, or the price range being sought, he or she will discover that, from concept to detailed ornamentation, builders are pursuing architectural elegance with imagination," said Adamo.

In a more practical vein, new home buyers will see how technological advances have resulted in more energy-efficient homes: better insulated windows and doors with thermal-break frames, vapor barriers, improved wall and attic insulation, and a number of additional features, making interiors more comfortable and economical than ever before. Zoned heating and air-conditioning, "set-back" thermostats, and energy-efficient appliances further control the cost of comfort.

"Buyers in the market for a new home can often realize significant savings by purchasing a home in the "pre-construction" phase since pre-construction pricing is usually lower. By the time the home is finished, it is likely to have appreciated in value," explained Adamo.

"New home buyers also benefit from continually evolving standards of quality which enhance both enjoyment and value. To ensure that the builder subscribes to high standards of quality, buyers need only look for the HOW logo. The 1,300 New Jersey builders who have enrolled more than 140,000 new homes in the HOW program are carefully screened regarding their record of customer service, technical ability and financial stability. Upon acceptance, HOW-builders agree to adhere to the HOW Performance Standards which assure buyers of reliable quality."

Participating HOW builders carry insurance on a comprehensive 10-year protection plan which has served as the model for the State's Warranty Statute. In addition, HOW's one-step Expedited Dispute Settlement (EDS) procedure, which assures fast and effective complaint resolution, is one of the most successful, and proven systems of its kind.

More information about the HOW Program and HOW builders can be obtained by calling toll-free, 1-800-982-5538.
