COUNTY LEADER NEWSPAPERS

VOL.61 NO.11—SPRINGFIELD, N.J., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1989—2*

TWO SECTIONS — 50 CENTS

Recycling donation aids children fund

By DOMINICK CRINCOLI JR.

Stone Hill Road resident Norman Beim used the recyclables generated at his Union-based company to help children who were burn victims. The idea was sparked after reading a particular article in the Springfield Leader, he said.

The May 1988 story chronicled the endeavors of the Springfield Fire Department who, under the leadership of Chairman John Pyar and Wayne Masiello, launched a campaign to collect aluminum cans and use the refund money to help young burn victims being treated at the Saint Barnabas Burn Foundation in Livingston. Beim, who is the executive vice president of Peerless Beverage Company in Union, donated 2,810 pounds of scrap aluminum to the Springfield Fire Department recently.

The firefighters received $1,000 in return for Beim's contribution. To date, the local members of the Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association Local 57 have collected over $3,000 worth of aluminum for Saint Barnabas Burn Foundation through their ACBC program, which is an acronym for Aluminum Cans For Burned Children.

District explains high tab

By SUZETTE STALKER

The first New Jersey School Report Card, issued Nov. 17 by the state Department of Education, has revealed that Union County Regional High School District 1 spends the highest amount of money per pupil of all New Jersey academic high school districts.

The regional district includes Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, which enrolls students from Springfield and Mountainside, and David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth.

The state's report, which involved New Jersey's 366 high schools and 1,807 elementary schools, listed student achievement levels, district spending, attendance and drop-out rates, classroom time, and levels of college attendance and job acceptance following graduation.

District spokesman Thomas Long explained Tuesday that vocational and special education programs in the four high schools represented the bulk of the regional district's $9,396 cost per pupil.

He emphasized, however, that the cost was also higher than in other municipalities because the regional district is comprised of only high schools, whereas other area school districts are primarily comprised of elementary schools.

The cost per pupil is higher for high schools than elementary schools, he added, because high school students have a number of teachers each year; a more technical curriculum, often involving lab work and special equipment; guidance services, and vocational courses.

The regional district's cost per pupil was determined entirely by high school education standards, while other districts, which have mainly elementary schools, had a lower cost per pupil because the cost of elementary school education is less than that for high school.

"The state is also reporting only the expenditures for each district, but not the revenues," Long continued. "We take in revenues from state and federal aid, and from tuition paid by students who come in from outside the district, so taxpayers are not paying the whole amount."

The state report card also revealed that Dayton scored higher on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) in both the verbal and mathematics portions, while Brearley scored lower than the state average in the verbal section but higher in mathematics.

Long stated that the regional district had a higher percentage of students take the SATs than the state total, however, which caused the district's mean scores to be lower or close to the state average.

A class profile for 1989 indicated that 61.6 percent of New Jersey high school seniors took the SAT test. At Dayton, 80.5 percent of the senior class took the test, while 65.3 percent took the test at Brearley.

Dayton and Brearley also scored high in student attendance rates, with Brearley achieving 94.7 percent and Dayton garnering 93.4 percent — both higher than the state average of 91.3 percent.

The two high schools also had a low student dropout rate, according to the report, with Dayton's 1.6 percent and Brearley's .8 percent being significantly lower than the state average of 4.9 percent.

The state average for the number of students attending a four-year college after graduation from high school was 46 percent, the report stated. In the Class of 1989, 62.6 percent of Dayton's graduating seniors enrolled in a four-year college, with 38.9 percent of Brearley students choosing that option.

For college attendance at two-year schools, the state average was 18.6 percent. In the Class of 1989, 21.5 percent of Brearley students opted to attend a two-year college, while 14.8 percent of Dayton students selected that route.

According to Long, school districts shy away from making comparisons among member high schools with regards to SAT scores and college enrollment, since each of the schools is located in a different community and enrolls different students.

He added that classes each year

Test exemptions OK'd

By SUZETTE STALKER

The Board of Education of Union County Regional High School District 1 approved continuation of a final examination exemption policy for district high-school students graduating in 1990 who have achieved a 3.5 average or better during the second semester of their senior year.

The four high schools in the regional district include Jonathan Dayton in Springfield, which enrolls students from both Springfield and Mountainside; David Brearley, which serves Kenilworth; Arthur L. Johnson in Clark; and Governor Livingston in Berkeley Heights.

In 1988, student council representatives from the four high schools successfully petitioned the board to allow qualifying seniors in the following year's graduating class to be exempt from final exams, based on the theory that the program would motivate students to keep up their grades during their final semester — a time frequently referred to as "senior slump."

Senior exemptions, which debuted as a pilot program last June, had varying degrees of success among the four regional high schools in raising students' scores in 1989, with a 72 percent increase overall for the district. Jonathan Dayton students achieved a 33.3 percent increase.

The district's Administrative Advisory Council, which includes Superintendent of Schools Dr. Donald Merachnik, the principals of the four district high schools; Director of Curriculum Dr. Martin Siegel, and Dr. Frank Kenny, director of Pupil Personnel Services, have recommended to the board that the exemption program be continued for another year.

Board members are attempting to determine, however, if improvements in students' scores in 1989 were a direct result of the exemption policy, or whether this particular group of students was already motivated to do well on its own, before deciding whether to continue the program indefinitely.

"They want to see what will happen this year, to see whether there's a direct correlation between between exemption and student motivation," explained Media Coordinator Tom Long last week. "They want to see if there's still positive improvement after next year."

'Ten Little Indians' tomorrow at Dayton

The students of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School will present the play "Ten Little Indians" tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Halsey Hall auditorium at the high school on Mountain Avenue in Springfield.

The cast of "Ten Little Indians" includes Michael Lippman, Nancy Bolton, James Forker, Jeanne Minieri, Scott Boyd, Scott Kuperman and Andrew Arnold. Also playing major roles in the show are Vincent Costa, Jennifer Schaefer, Joshua Brinen and Mark Feinsold.

Joseph Trivinity, a teacher of English and drama at Dayton, is the director of the show.

Michelle Weinberg is serving as the student director for "Ten Little Indians," and Michael Adler is the stage manager.

Tickets for the show are $3. For ticket information, one can call the school at 376-6300.

Plumbing inspector of 29 years will be stepping down from post

By DOMINICK CRINCOLI JR.

Springfield's plumbing sub-code official for the last 29 years, Ben Davis, will be retiring on Dec. 1.

Davis, who is 84 years old, will be best remembered as a diplomat who was both professional and friendly, his co-workers said this week. Those who know him best referred to him in glowing terms.

"He absolutely elevated the level of dignity in the office," said his secretary, Peggy McCabe. "He was never late for an inspection, was always reliable and is a gentleman from top to bottom."

The Springfield Police Department's custodian of records, Gloria Simpson, who met Davis 23 years ago, said, "He is a perfect gentleman, and shows a lot of concern for people. He is a nice guy — I think they broke the mold with him. I can't say enough about him."

"When I moved into town 30 years ago, Ben Davis performed an inspection at my home. I still have the sticker he put there," said Township Engineer Leo Eckmann.

"He's always been a sweetheart," said Township Clerk Helen Maguire, who met Davis when she began working in Springfield 21 years ago. "He's really a gentleman."

Davis recalled the day he accepted the part-time position in 1960, more out of generosity than anything else.

"Mayor Vincent Bonadadi told me about the need of a plumbing inspector back then and convinced me to give it a try; 29 years later I'm still 'trying it,'" said Davis.

Davis had previously owned and operated his own plumbing and heating business from 1938 to 1960. He was 56 when he retired, and "didn't need the job" as plumbing inspector, since he already had enough money to live very comfortably for the rest of his life.

Davis, who resided on Milltown Road in Springfield for 35 years before moving to Cranbury, graduated from the Newark College of Engineering, and studied at Drow University, Essex County College and Rutgers University. He also served as president of the Master Plumbers Association for many years.

His wife persuaded him to retire early at age 56, he said.

"I remember after plumber association meetings, we used to sit at the dining table and talk about who was going to retire when," Davis recalled. "Within a year, the undertaker retired three or four of them, and a year later two more died. We had enough money and my wife demanded that I get out of the business," he said.

It was after his retirement that he began his stint for the township in 1960. He served as the Springfield's sanitarian for 10 years. In addition to his responsibilities as plumbing inspector.

As plumbing sub-code official, Davis was responsible for inspecting plumbing, swimming pool, and central air conditioning work done in town.

Davis said he enjoyed the work, enjoyed the people he worked with, and always tried to help in any way he could.

"Sometimes I would point out potential problems at residents' homes while doing an inspection. For example, sometimes I have seen flue pipes with cracks and have brought it to the resident's attention. If it was not fixed, carbon monoxide would have gone into the home," said Davis.

"Most of the residents are reasonable, some have been obstreperous. I generally believe that by reasoning with people, you can accomplish your point," he added.

"I never had to take anyone to court. I'm considered a diplomat. I'm not arrogant or abrasive," said Davis.

Davis said nothing too unusual ever happened during his years as plumbing sub-code official, but recalled an unusual occurrence that happened when he moved into his Cranbury home.

"I picked up the garden hose to water the backyard lawn and out came boiling water. When the plumber came over, he was going to tear down a wall near the washing machine to get to the cross connection. I was able to point out where the cross connection was located so that he could remedy the problem, and he was amazed that I knew this," he said.

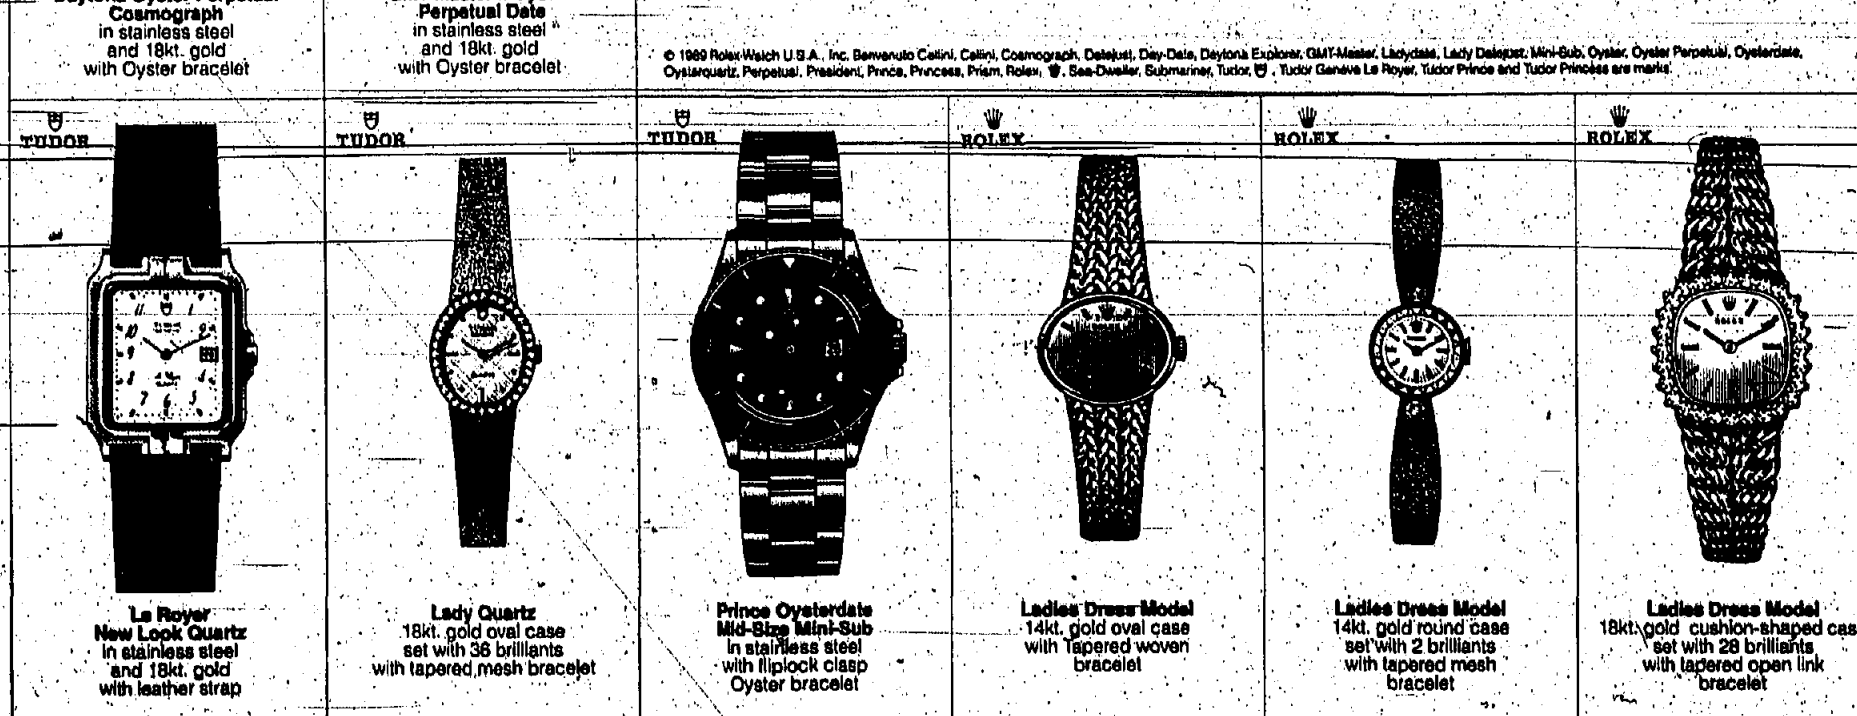

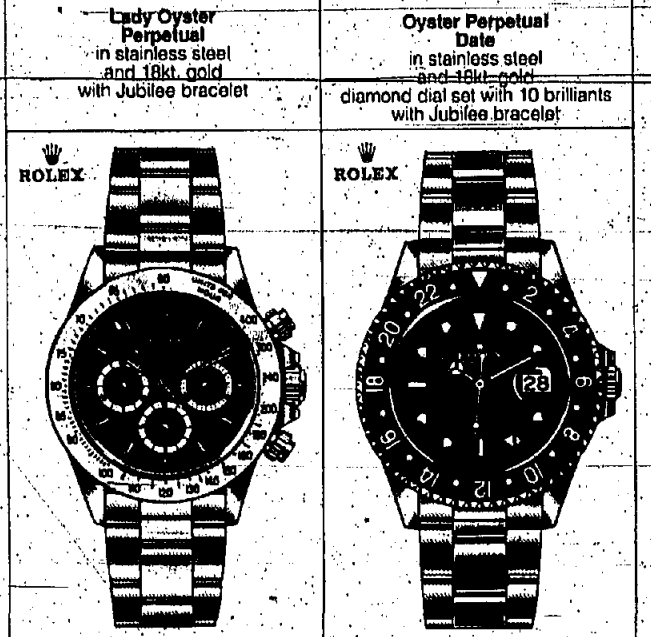

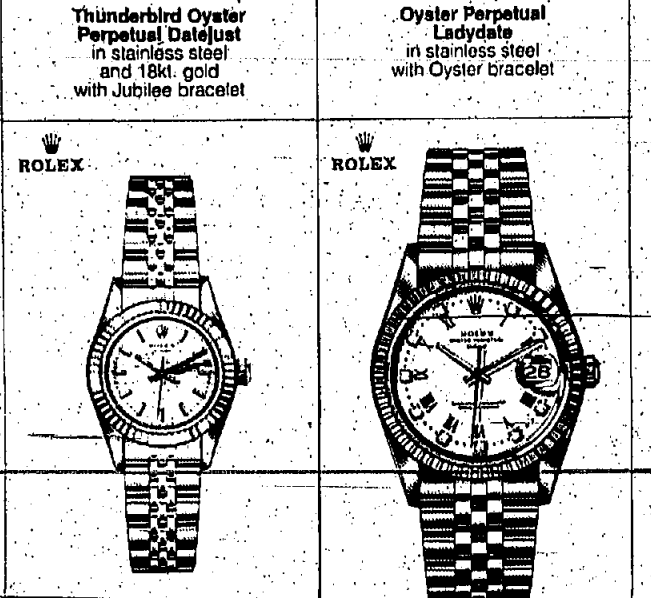

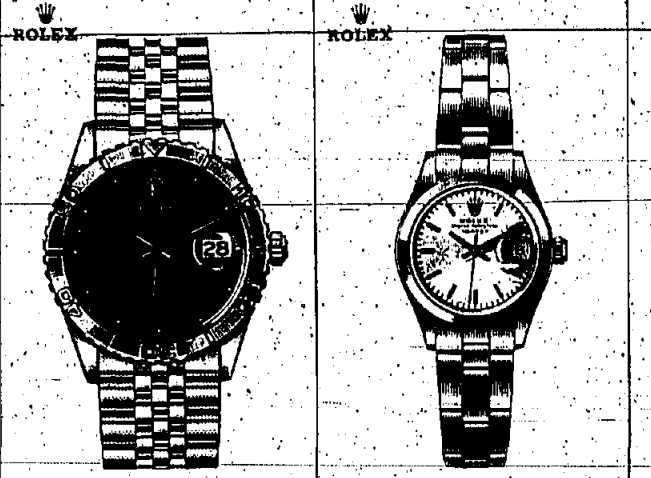

The plumbing expert concluded with his reason for retiring.

"My children have been telling me it's time to retire. I'll miss it — and what will transpire now, I have no idea."

SECTION B

Bears defeat Canucks 18-8, to wrap up '89

By MARK YABLONSKY
It was Brearley's first losing season in five years. But the Bears were still able to end a humbling 4-5 campaign with one of their traditional walks around the Boulevard, courtesy of an 18-8 win over visiting North Plainfield this past Saturday at Ward Field.

"We came out very positive. We lost the first four (games), but we made a commitment to work hard, and we made a real statement for the future, I think."

played two days late because of the snowstorm on early-Friday-morning, the Bears won their fifth straight Thanksgiving Day game by outtrusting the Canucks, 248-73, and outgaining them by a 289-177 count.

With as many as 14 underclassmen in the lineup, including Scott DeBeno, Ronnie Cagno, Bob Taylor Jr., Mark Scuderi and Jim McMenamin, the Bears may have endured some hard times this year, but they feel all of the above and others represent the key to a return to glory — one that Brearley supporters hope will begin next year.

"We came out very positive," said Brearley head coach Bob Taylor, who closed the book on his 16th year at the Brearley-helm-with-career win No. 102. "We lost the first four (games), but we made a commitment to work hard, and we made a real statement for the future, I think."

After a scoreless opening quarter, Brearley jumped in front against the Canucks when Mike Battle broke several tackles and scooted 38 yards on a draw play for the game's first touchdown. Initially, quarterback Sterling Williams had run for an apparent 28-yard score on the option play, but a holding call nullified that and also cost the Bears 10 yards. So technically, with Brearley having gotten the ball after forcing North Plainfield to punt from deep within its own territory, it was a one-play, 38-yard drive. Williams, who ran for 46 yards and passed for 41 more, added a two-point conversion to give the Bears an 8-0 lead. It didn't last long, though, because the Canucks answered back with a six-play, 75-yard advance that ended when receiver Greg Amon grabbed a 55-yard scoring pass up the middle from quarterback Joe Newsome. On the play, two Brearley defenders collided while going for the ball, leaving Amon all alone.

On something of a strange play, North Plainfield gained an 8-8 half-time tie, when senior running back Keith Wiegand fell on Newsome's conversion fumble in the end zone. The quarterback had attempted the conversion on an end sweep, but it was Wiegand who, made the play instead.

That's the way things stood until early in the final period, when Scuderi booted a 23-yard field goal to put the Bears in front for good. The kick capped an eight-play, 32-yard advance for Brearley, which got a second chance to kick the field goal when North Plainfield was penalized five yards for being offside on Scuderi's initial, unsuccessful 28-yard attempt.

Then, after the defense fielded the Canucks on the following series of downs, the Bears put it away when Williams capped an 11-play, 63-yard advance with a five-yard sneak up the middle. Scuderi added the PAT as Brearley supporters went home happy.

Bear Tracks — The last time Brearley lost on Thanksgiving Day was in 1984 when Dayton prevailed, 4-5, at Ward Field. Since then, the Bears have beaten Dayton four times, and now, of course, North Plainfield. And not counting 1987 and 1988, three of the games were actually played two days late, due to rain, wet grounds, and now snow. This year's 4-5 Brearley record marks the first below-.500 finish the team has had since 1984. The record that year was also 4-5. It turned out to be quite a year for junior fullback Mike Battle, who, in running for 175 yards in 28 carries against North Plainfield, finished 1989 with a total of 64 yards in 102 carries, an average of 6.3 yards a pop. That Turkey Day effort enabled him to jump from eighth to fourth place among rushing leaders in the CLN coverage area.

PUTTING IT AWAY — Brearley quarterback Sterling Williams nears the goal line on a five-yard touchdown run to seal Brearley's 18-8 win over North Plainfield at Ward Field this past Saturday. Williams closed out his high school career by rushing for 46 yards and passing for 41 more, as the Bears finished their 1989 season with a 4-5 record.

'Dawgs end up at 4-4-1

By MARK YABLONSKY
When you compete in a section as uneven — in terms of Group sizes — as North Jersey Group 2, Section 2, qualifying for football post-season play for two consecutive years is pretty darned tough to do, so the fact that Dayton Regional missed out on a return trip to the playoffs in 1989 is hardly cause for alarm.

In fact, the team's final record of 4-4-1, even after last Friday's 27-12 defeat to Governor Livingston, is not a bad one at all. For a team that had to do without head coach John LeDonne for the first three games of the schedule — which resulted in a tie and two narrow losses — things could have gone worse for the Bulldogs, who were, as LeDonne phrased it, in a year of "transition."

"It was probably a year of transition," said LeDonne, shortly before returning to the hospital for the second stage of intestinal surgery, the reason he had been sidelined at the start of the season to begin with. "We had the real good team last year, and a lot of these players played on it...I said the league would be tougher, and we didn't want to fall back."

"We didn't. We had a tough start, but we won four of the last six games, which was a positive. It was a tough year for me, not being there the first three games.

"But it was a pretty gratifying year for me. Healthwise, it wasn't a gratifying year, but we're looking to do better things on the field next year. I'm looking forward to next year with these kids."

Of course, the Thanksgiving Day game with G.L. was postponed because of snow on Thursday, as was the case with almost every school in the state. But unlike most teams, the two sister schools within the Union County Regional High School district went at it on Friday, as opposed to Saturday.

The final result was G.L., only three years removed from having cancelled its varsity football program, seizing control of the game early and then never really looking back in winning the Mountain Valley Conference's Mountain Division title.

The Highlanders, who will oppose New Providence this Saturday for the North Jersey, Group 1, Section 2 championship, got off to a quick 7-0 advantage by taking the opening kick and embarking on a successful 67-yard advance in 12 plays, capped by Matt Carlucci's two-yard scoring run up the middle. Jim Diesso added the first of two extra points, and G.L. was off and running. In the second period, the Highlanders, after getting the ball back, on downs, scored again when Rich Todesco fired a 25-yard touchdown pass to Matt Pappo. The latter grabbed the ball between two Dayton defenders, shook them both off and scooted away. The extra point attempt was unsuccessful.

The 'Dawgs made it a 13-6 game when Mike Montanari took the ensuing kickoff and raced 67 yards all the way to the G.L. four-yard-line, setting up a one-yard TD run by Greg Graziano three plays later. Dan LaMorgese saw his PAT attempt blocked.

But after an exchange of punts, G.L., with roughly a minute-and-a-half remaining before halftime, advanced to the Dayton 13. From there, Peter Gorski, a defensive back who figures to be the team's quarterback next season, took the snap front center on a fake field goal attempt, and instead located teammate Billy Williams for a 13-yard, shoring pass — the play that "really hurt us," in LeDonne's words.

Diesso added the PAT and it was a 20-6 game at the half. Both teams then traded second-half scores: G.L. on another two-yard run by Carlucci, and Dayton, on a four-yard run by Graziano, who picked up a total of 23 yards in six carries.

In all, G.L. had the advantage everywhere, including total yardage and rushing, by respective margins of 324-149 and 184-83.
