Insurance discussed

By DAVE WISE
At a special Springfield Township Committee meeting on Monday, governing body members listened to proposals to upgrade the township's insurance coverage policies.

Daniel Kalem, an agent of the KRA Insurance Company, asked the committee to consider having a new appraisal performed on all municipal buildings. Kalem said an appraisal has not been done since his agency started to represent insurance coverage policies.

Daniel Kalem, an agent of the KRA Insurance Company, asked the committee to consider having a new appraisal performed on all municipal buildings. Kalem said an appraisal has not been done since his agency started to represent the township.

"There has not been a professional appraisal of the town's buildings in 14 years," said Kalem.

Kalem said a new appraisal of municipal buildings would provide better liability protection for the township. The appraisal, he said, would reveal a more accurate assessment of the town's property and provide better replacement cost estimates.

Several committee members, including Jeffrey Katz, asked Kalem the cost of performing the appraisal. The insurance agent said the appraisal would cost "approximately $5,000."

Kalem told the committee that an undated appraisal could increase the township's insurance rates, if municipal buildings are assessed at higher property values.

Kalem also recommended that insurance coverage be increased to protect Springfield against a possible large liability settlement. The insurance agent mentioned the recent situation in Kenilworth, where a court levied a $8.4 million judgment against the borough for negligence.

The case is now on appeal in federal court, and it may become a huge financial burden for Kenilworth, which had insufficient insurance coverage when the negligence claim was filed.

Furthermore, Kalem told the committee that "Springfield's liability rating is excellent," although there was a "general liability rate increase of 8 percent in New Jersey" during the past year.

After the meeting, several committee members said an appraisal may be conducted if the project cost is reasonable.

When asked whether the township should increase its liability coverage, Eisen was concerned about the cost of raising the limit as well.

"Seeing what happened in Kenilworth, we should look into this seriously," Eisen said. "And if the figures are worth it, the committee should decide."

WATCHING THE SEAGULLS — Lisa, left, and Carly Sanders of Marlboro, who were visiting an aunt and uncle in Springfield Saturday, enjoyed the mild weekend weather at Briant Park, where they fed a flock of seagulls. The birds, who often find slim pickings during the winter months, eagerly ate the bread which the girls brought especially for them.

Mayor seeking to revive police narcotics unit

By DAVE WISE
When Springfield Mayor Philip Kurnos gave his inauguration speech last month, he spoke of starting a "crusade" against drug abuse, a problem which continues to plague the city.

"We must launch an attack from the local level as well if we're going to make a realistic effort to thwart this scourge to mankind," Kurnos declared.

Kurnos announced that "if we don't do something to halt its progress, it (drugs) will consume us."

The mayor also said that drug abuse, if nothing is done to cure the problem, "can eventually cripple the America we know and love."

Kurnos' campaign against illicit drugs is an admittedly difficult task, given Springfield's tight municipal budget and the lack of federal funds.

In March of last year, budgetary constraints forced the police department to disband its two-man narcotics bureau, which had formerly been an effective part of Springfield's drug enforcement program.

This two-man squad, in conjunction with a four-man detective bureau, arrested and charged 80 suspects with drug violations in 1988. But in 1989, after the two narcotics officers were returned to the patrol division, the number of drug arrests dropped to 68.

Kurnos recognizes the need for a drug enforcement division in the police department.

"Springfield needs a minimum of two police officers dedicated to narcotics (enforcement)," Kurnos said.

"It's so important to attack this problem on the municipal level."

According to Kurnos, Springfield can combat the drug problem "without raising taxes."

Unfortunately, there is a law which limits the amount of money Kurnos may use to strengthen his drug enforcement program. The Local Government Cap Law, enacted in 1976, doesn't allow a municipality to spend more than five percent over the previous year's budget.

"The law," said Kurnos, "was supposed to curtail property taxes. But obviously, it isn't accomplishing that goal."

Kurnos called some parts of the cap law "absolutely ridiculous," like the section which permits certain types of spending.

"If we have the money, we can go out and buy 100 police cars," said Kurnos, "because that is outside the cap. But we can't put on one extra policeman if there is no room for his salary under the cap, no matter how much money the township has."

Kurnos believes the cap law interferes with Springfield's efforts to fight in the drug war. He is therefore trying to find legal solutions to the problem.

Kurnos is "talking to every legislator who will listen, to get them to enact legislation that would allow municipalities to establish a dedicated drug task force outside the cap." He vows not to "stop the crusade until I've accomplished my goal."

Despite the unveiling of President George Bush's $10.6 billion anti-drug program, Kurnos doesn't expect any aid from the federal government.

Like most mayors, Kurnos is skeptical about the billions of dollars which are earmarked for heavy drug traffic areas like New York, along with Essex and Union counties.

"We need it," Kurnos said of the federal funds. But he added that "before the money gets down to the municipalities, it disappears."

Furthermore, Kurnos said he doesn't have the authority to assign police officers to a drug abuse task force. Police Chief William Chisholm is the person responsible for assigning such duties, said Kurnos.

The hiring of five police officers last week appeared to be the chance to enhance the mayor's drug abuse strategy. Kurnos, however, said the additional officers are actually replacing three others who have recently left the force.

Chisholm said he hopes to reinstate the narcotics division of the police department. But the police chief doesn't know how many officers he can assign to drug enforcement until the five recruits return from the police academy.

If the police chief has enough manpower, some returning recruits may receive additional training at the Elizabeth Police Department Narcotics Bureau.

Meanwhile, Kurnos continues to request aid for his drug abuse program.

"I need the help of the people," Kurnos said. "It's a state problem."

"We have to fight from the bottom up," he disclosed. "We need this cap relief, specifically for drug relief."

Gaudineer students shine in lively 'Bye Bye Birdie'

By DAVE WISE
The Florence M. Gaudineer School in Springfield presented a revival of the popular musical "Bye Bye Birdie," which was performed on Jan. 24, 25 and 26.

For three nights, hundreds of Springfield residents clapped and cheered as the energetic cast, composed of junior high school students, sang and danced in well-rehearsed production numbers.

The humorous play, originally based on Elvis Presley's army induction, depicts the chaos that ensues in a small town when a local rock star is about to be drafted.

"This is the fourth year this play is being put on," said School Board President Ruth Brinen. "It's an after-school activity that teachers volunteer to run."

Although "Bye Bye Birdie" is normally performed in high school, Brinen said a play of this caliber gives younger children an earlier exposure to theater.

"This play is fantastic," said Brinen, whose son, Aaron, played a leading role.

"These children are doing an exceptional job," she added. "They rehearsed about eight weeks. It's a cast that works very well together."

There were many proud parents, including Springfield Township Committeeman Jeffrey Katz, who viewed at least one of the shows.

"My daughter's (Stacey) been involved in it for a number of years," said Katz. "She's doing a great job."

Katz's daughter was part of the supporting cast, playing the role of Ursula Merkle.

The show was a huge success, and much of the credit goes to the choreographer and director, Bruce Hanson, who earned a masters degree in ceramics at City College of New York.

Even though the idea of performing "Bye Bye Birdie" came from school Principal Ken Bernabe, the play later became Hanson's pet project.

"I was in 'Bye Bye Birdie' when I was a kid," said Hanson, who attended Hunter College as an undergraduate. "It's one of the most popular high school and junior high school plays. It's being done somewhere each week."

Local police save baby

A 10-day old Springfield infant was recently saved as a result of quick rescue efforts by the Springfield Police Department. Police Chief William Chisholm confirmed this week.

Officers Edward McNany and William Sedak, responding to a call at 6:40 p.m., rushed to a home on South Springfield Ave. Jan. 11 to administer first aid to an infant who had stopped breathing.

According to Chisholm, the infant was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by Officer McNany before the arrival of the first aid squad.

After the first aid squad arrived, the infant was taken to Overlook Hospital in Summit where he was hospitalized for five days.

The infant's mother, who wished to remain anonymous, later thanked the Springfield police and first aid squad for arriving "within less than a minute."

Boy killed in crash

A five-year-old boy was killed last Friday after his mother's station wagon collided with a van in the 100 block of Morris Ave. in Springfield, said Captain James Hietala.

Ellen Coless, 32, of Union, was heading west on Morris Ave. when her station wagon collided with a 1983 GMC step-van which was travelling east. The driver of the van, which was registered to Jaeger Lumber of Union, was a 27-year-old Roselle Park man.

Coless' five-year-old son, Daniel, who was riding in the station wagon along with his three-year-old sister, Katherine, suffered multiple injuries. He was taken to University Hospital in Newark where he was pronounced dead at 11:10 p.m.

Coless and her daughter, as well as the van driver, were not injured, according to Hietala.

The cause of the accident is being investigated by Detective Jeffrey Vessland who will later forward a report to the Union County Prosecutor's Office.

Dayton teacher selected for recognition program

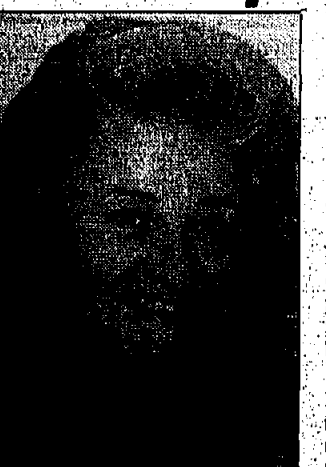

By SUZETTE STALKER
Jonathan Dayton Regional High School teacher Ruth Townsend, who has taught many Mountaineer students during the course of her long career, is among those educators who will be participating in the 1990 Governor's Teacher Recognition Program.

Townsend, who lives in Springfield, is one of four distinguished faculty members who will represent Union County Regional High School District 1 in the program. The district includes Jonathan Dayton in Springfield and David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth.

A native of Ocean City, Townsend graduated from Ocean City High School in 1964. She earned a bachelor of arts degree in health and physical education from Trenton State College in 1968, and received her master's degree in school administration from Kean College in 1982.

Townsend did student teaching at Jonathan Dayton while still a college senior at Trenton State, and in September 1968, she was hired as a full-time physical education teacher at the high school. She is currently a teacher of physical education, driver education and health at the school.

In 1973, Townsend founded the Girls' Varsity Basketball Program at Dayton, serving as the team's head coach until 1981. She was also a cheerleading adviser for four years. The school states that she believes the quality of physical education in schools has improved dramatically over the past two decades.

RUTH TOWNSEND
"Physical education is probably more important to youngsters today than it ever has been," she explains. "Our curriculum has changed quite a bit over the years. Today, we are emphasizing the importance of health and physical fitness, and we try to teach our students how to make a fitness program a part of their lives."

"In many ways," she continues, "we've gotten away from the simple playing of games, working instead toward teaching kids something more practical — how to lead happier and healthier lives."

Townsend was chosen as Dayton's outstanding teacher for 1989-90, according to school officials, based specifically on her "use of effective instructional techniques and methods," as well as her "development of feelings of self-worth and love of learning in her students."

"In physical education, I try to expose my students to pleasant, fun methods of keeping fit," Townsend added. "And, I try to make them realize that being in good physical shape will improve their lives in so many ways."

"Teaching family life in health classes presents a whole new set of challenges, so I try to meet them by providing my students with as much factual, useful information as possible," Townsend said.

"It is so important that students learn in these classes, so I attempt to reach out to each individual and give them the help and knowledge that they, as teenagers, really need."

For her participation in the Teacher Recognition Program, Townsend will receive a Certificate of Commendation from Governor James Florio at a special convocation on excellence in teaching, to be held May 10 at Princeton University.

The regional district will also be awarded a $1,000 grant in Townsend's name, to be used toward improving education programs at Jonathan Dayton. Townsend will have the honor of deciding how the funds will be utilized.

One of the three other teachers from the regional district who were selected to participate in the program are Vincent Albano, a science teacher at Brearley, Albano taught at Jonathan Dayton from 1957 to 1968, and served as assistant football coach at both Dayton and Brearley.

The program will include works by Rossini, Schubert and Mahler. Admission is free.

The New Jersey Youth Symphony is in its 11th season, and has been led by music director and conductor George Mariner, Maui since its inception. Maui has led the orchestra in performances at Carnegie Hall, on Channel 13 and on four European tours.

Funding for the symphony has been made available in part by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, Department of State.

Aid is offered

The Mountainside branch of the American Association of University Women is offering its annual scholarship award for the 1990-91 school year.

Applicants must be female, attending college or graduate school, and must be 18 years of age or older.

The course includes vocabulary and stresses conversational English in the beginner and intermediate levels.

Advanced students receive English grammar, develop better conversational skills, and improve their listening and writing skills through homework assignments. Workbooks and texts are available for all students at the YWCA front desk.

Life support courses are announced

A four-part Basic Cardiac Life Support Course, open to anyone over the age of 14, will be held at Overlook Hospital in Summit on Feb. 6, 8, 12 and 13, from 7 to 10:30 p.m. each night.

Participants will learn one- and two-man cardiopulmonary resuscitation and obstructed airway techniques for both adults and children. Those who successfully complete the course will receive an American Heart Association card. There is a $40 fee for the general public, and the cost to members of a rescue squad, police or fire department is $30.

A 3 1/2 hour CPR course will also be held on Tuesday, Feb. 20, from 7:10-10:30 p.m. in Overlook's Wallace Auditorium. This class is open to the public, and anyone over the age of 14 is encouraged to attend this class to learn the life-saving technique of CPR.

Those individuals who attend the course will receive a review booklet and a course completion card. This class is limited to the first 25 registrants. There is a $15 registration fee to cover operating costs.

A microfilmed will be provided to all students to use with the mannequin in the above classes for an additional $6. After class, the shield can be carried in a purse or pocket just in case there is a need.

In addition, Overlook will offer a two-session American Heart Association certification course, "Little Heart Saver," involving infant and child resuscitation, which will be held on Feb. 12 and 14 from 7 to 10:30 p.m., and is an off-shoot of the Adult Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation course.

The course is especially helpful for parents, babysitters and child-care professionals, and is approved by the American Academy of Pediatrics. The fee is $25.

To register or for further information, one can call 232-2365.

FUTURE FIREMAN

Four-year-old Joseph Nicastro was one of 25 children from the Mountainside Newcomers Club Mommy and Me group who visited the Westfield Firehouse on Jan. 19. The children watched the firemen slide down the fire pole and saw the fire trucks and equipment. A few children got to try on the firemen's coats, boots, hats and masks. The morning was both educational and entertaining.

LIFESTYLES

Unusual artist has fragments of art shown

By BEA SMITH

Paul Thimou, of Union, whose interesting and unusual exhibition of artworks and photography will be shown at the Les Malamut Art Gallery beginning Sunday, is himself an unusual and interesting human being.

A reception will be held for him Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the gallery, which is located in this Union Public Library, and his showing of assemblages, collages, acrylics, prints and photographs is scheduled through March 24.

Thimou, who speaks with a slight but charming accent derived from his native Asturias, a small village on the mountainside north of Leobos, Greece, stopped by the office recently to talk about the satisfaction he derives from his life as an artist.

"I like to make things," he says modestly. "It gives me pleasure to make them and to give them."

Thimou explains that the reason his exhibition, "Fragments," is unusual is "because all of the work is made out of pieces of different materials, and that led me to think of the beginning of my life in fragments of time. It's a mixture of materials and emotions."

He says, "They represent, first of all, the time when I was growing up in Leobos. The times were very austere. I would find pieces of broken sticks with a little color in them, candy wrappers, and go on play with them, arrange them in some sort of order. And I found myself doing the same fragment of emotion and time with this work by trying to arrange them and revitalize them. It makes me feel that the past is not alienated and strange...that by using things and redefining them, I try to keep the continuity."

Thimou, who studied art and design in Athens, says he came to New York City in 1964 and studied at the New York Institute of Photography, the New School for Social Research and the Fashion Institute of Technology, where I now teach screen printing, image assemblage and fabric manipulation. He also worked as a sculptor on two sculptures, Greis Schuler, and Helga Meyer. In 1987, he returned to Greece for a one-man exhibit in the Theophilus Museum in Leobos.

"When I work," he explains, "I never do preliminary sketches or layouts. I start with a concept and as I work on it, I see the work take on a life of its own. I like surprises along the way...the freedom and emotional involvement...this approach allows me to repeat and reuse materials and ideas. This reflects my strong belief in recycling and the universal truth of conservation and the universal truth of recycling collage. Therefore it is often incorporated in my work because of that and also because it expressed the passage of time."

"I like layers of colors, textures and images overlapping each other. Compelling for attention, trying to work to be part of the whole and yet standing out...the endless conflict of modern man and woman. Perfection is intimidating, and I don't seek it as an end. I like my work to have the chance to become something else."

Thimou points to a picture of "a box, nested on a cube, which was turned into a table," and is called "Where Lies My Part," will be shown along with other work at the Les Malamut Art Gallery in Union beginning Sunday.

English courses offered at the YWCA

The Summit YWCA is offering a full complement of English As A Second Language classes for foreign-born adults at the YWCA at 79 Myrtle Street. Classes meet every day, Monday through Thursday, from 9 to 11 a.m. and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

All levels are offered, from Beginner to Advanced, with emphasis on speaking and understanding some English in order to enroll.

All new students must be evaluated for correct class placement by the ESL instructors on Thursday, Feb. 8, and Monday, Feb. 12, from 8:30 to 9 a.m., for the classes beginning Feb. 9, the start of the Late Winter Term. Evening students will be evaluated Thursday, Feb. 8, from 7 to 7:30 p.m. prior to their first class.

A special registration time for ESL students who may need assistance with the form or information about available scholarships will be held Wednesday, Feb. 7, from 9 a.m. to noon and from 7 to 8 p.m. For more information about the ESL program, one can call the YWCA at 273-4242.

The course includes vocabulary and stresses conversational English in the beginner and intermediate levels. Advanced students receive English grammar, develop better conversational skills, and improve their listening and writing skills through homework assignments. Workbooks and texts are available for all students at the YWCA front desk.

To obtain a registration packet or for more information, one can call the central office at 273-7017. Summit Child Care Centers, Inc. is a non-profit organization and a United Way member agency.

Individuals who are job-hunting and would like to improve their interviewing confidence and skills are encouraged to register for a two-session workshop to be held at the Resource Center for Women in Summit tonight, Feb. 1, and Thursday, Feb. 8, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The Resource Center for Women is located in Calvary Episcopal Church, on the corner of Woodland and DeForest avenues in Summit. The workshop fee is $25 for center members and $35 for others. For information, one can call 273-7253.

Led by Michele Miller, MA, career counselor, this workshop will include an interview "do's and don'ts," as well as a chance to role-play interview situations. Child centers to accept registrations

Registration packets for summer and fall 1990 programs at the Summit Child Care Centers will be accepted beginning Monday, Feb. 5, for currently registered families, and Feb. 20 for new families.

Parents can choose morning, afternoon or full-day sessions for children ages six months to five years at the Summit Child Care Centers in five communities.

The 1990 programs represent an exciting innovation in nursery school programming. Our commitment has always been to deliver programs of the highest quality to meet the needs of children and families," comments Dr. Florence Nelson, Education Director in an in-depth study of our families' scheduling requirements, we have developed Early Enrichment and Best Times. These new programs include all the features of nursery school programs, with the additional advantages of a flexible schedule to accommodate today's parents.

"Early Enrichment and Best Times offer half day sessions with a lunch option."

The Summit Child Care Centers base their curriculum on the principle that children are natural seekers of knowledge.

"Teachers create a warm, emotionally secure environment and provide a variety of age-appropriate experiences and materials which stimulate intellectual and social growth," continued Dr. Nelson.

Program goals for the children include numerous opportunities to participate in language, reading readiness, math readiness, art, music and science activities; to take field trips in the community; and to meet interesting visitors who provide expertise in special program areas.

Interested families are invited to visit the Summit Child Care Centers in Springfield, Summit, Chatham, New Providence, or Millburn/Short Hills. Most centers are open 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., with extended care to 7 p.m. available at several locations.

To obtain a registration packet or for more information, one can call the central office at 273-7017. Summit Child Care Centers, Inc. is a non-profit organization and a United Way member agency.

Scotti's most recent works combine geometry and color into closely inter-connected roles in drawings and paintings. There is a sense of increased light and air moving through her works, heightening the luxuriousness in the role of color.

Gallery hours are 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Mondays through Saturdays, and again from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Mondays through Thursdays.

Choir rehearsal

Plans are under way to form a chamber orchestra at Seton Hall University, South Orange, according to Jeannette T. Hill, director of the University choir and a professor of music. She will hold an organizational rehearsal Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Music Center in Corrigan Hall. Musicians who can play strings, oboe, bassoon and clarinet should bring instruments to the rehearsal.

Information can be obtained by calling Hill at 761-9417.

Stanwyck was a 'lady' to millions of fans

By BEA SMITH

Barbara Stanwyck. They called her a great lady, on screen and off, and because of it all those who knew her personally, and to her millions of fans, over a span of more than half a century.

And she was my friend. She would have been 83 on July 16, but she died on screen on Feb. 19, 1990, leaving a legacy on film and in personal relationships to her friends...

Mrs. Stanwyck was known to many, will be missed, but will never be forgotten by people of every generation, from those in Connecticut who knew her personally, and to her millions of fans, over a span of more than half a century.

SELF-PORTRAIT — Paul Thimou of Union, artist and photographer, posed for his own picture some years ago then deliberately distorted it in the darkroom for special effect.

MIXED MEDIA ASSEMBLAGE — Thimou's picture of a box, seated on a cube, which was turned into a table, and is called "Where Lies My Part," will be shown along with other work at the Les Malamut Art Gallery in Union beginning Sunday.

to teach. I love teaching...I love to see the expressions in students' faces when something creative is happening or when a problem is solved creatively.

The artist had his first exhibition in Central Park in 1973. "I used to live in New York for the time, and I did a series of photographs about the park. I took my pictures and hung them from the trees. I just did it," he grins. "I was having a love affair with Central Park."

"I also photograph my own work. I use photography as a combination. I combine photography with other media to achieve what I am after...I have my own darkroom at home. I even have an old-fashioned camera where you look in the back and see the image upside-down."

"Also, Thimou was 'moved by' his backyard from a plane tree that fell in his backyard after a storm. I immediately saw the concept of the scene, and I named it 'After the Storm.' The plane tree has a beautiful bark with wonderful shapes. To me, they resemble the human figure, not as Michelangelo would see, but nevertheless...the human figure."

Thimou says he likes to "experiment with things. I'm the first one to break the rules. And my ones," he encourages my students to break all the rules. "It's the only way you can do something different."

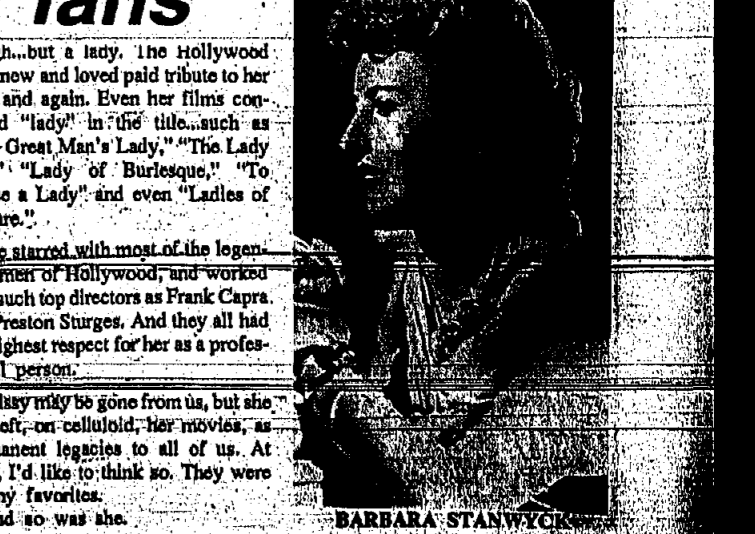

Thimou started teaching in 1981. "It also gives me tremendous pleasure to see my students...I love to see the expressions in students' faces when something creative is happening or when a problem is solved creatively.

He says that most times his materials "don't cost me anything, and I believe that art should not be expensive. It should be available to everyone. I'd like someone to have my work and enjoy it rather than have it sitting in my studio collecting dust. I like to share my work, my knowledge."

"I also love to make things, such as a pot out of clay, which to me, is brilliant...or paper and fold it to create a bag...to me that's brilliant. I like to see that spark in people's eyes. What I value the most is the concept of all this. And when things go your way, it's the greatest reward an artist can have. And when things you work on start to become what you want them to be...to me, that's ecstasy to an artist."

A graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design, which he earned both bachelor's and master's degrees,

OPINION

The shoe drops

So the Union County freeholders finally got what they wanted Monday.

County Manager Joseph Martin, an eminently qualified and respected administrator, resigned the county's highest appointive post, effective at the end of the month.

Political interference has made the lives of the last four county managers miserable. Martin's resignation after just 18 months on the job simply underlines that fact.

The county manager is supposed to run the day-to-day operations of the county with relative independence. Yet it seems that no matter who's on the freeholder board or which party is in control, the freeholders view the county manager as simply an obstacle to putting their election supporters in county jobs — and they treat whoever is the county manager with commensurate hostility.

That's why Martin, an Essex County resident, was ordered by the board to move into Union County, even though the same board has routinely waived its residency requirement for lower-level county employees. That's why Martin was told to uproot his family, even as the freeholders left his employment status in limbo by dragging their feet on a job performance evaluation Martin had requested.

Furthermore, with the present one-party stranglehold on the freeholder seats, it's doubtful that the board's relationship with the county manager will improve soon.

As things stand now, we think that nobody who knows the history of the county manager position would want it. There are easier ways to make $95,000 a year.

It's now obvious to us that the county manager form of government, which is unique among New Jersey's 21 counties, doesn't work. The best course of action for the county to take now is not to try to replace a government appointee, but to replace that government's faulty framework with one that has proven to be effective elsewhere.

Money Management

How to calculate your debt limit

All the holiday purchases you joyfully charged in December are about to come back and haunt you in the form of your monthly charge-account statements.

If the bottom line on your credit card bills makes sweat break out on your brow, you're not alone. The average American owes approximately $1,600 in unpaid revolving debt. For many consumers, that amount is simply too high.

How much debt can you handle? According to the New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants (CPAs), you can determine how much debt you can carry safely by dividing the amount owed on your credit cards by your annual take-home pay. Multiply the result by 100 to get a percentage.

The number you arrive at should be no higher than 15 to 20 percent of your annual salary.

For example, Bob's annual take-home pay is $15,000. He owes $3,500 on various credit cards. By dividing his debt, $3,500, by his take-home pay, $15,000, we arrive at .23, or 23 percent. In other words, Bob is over his head in debt.

Even if your current level of debt is hovering below the danger zone, you may be headed for credit trouble. Here are some warning signs to watch out for:

- You take cash advances on credit cards to meet current bills.
- You ignore your credit limits.
- You charge daily expenses, such as groceries or gasoline.
- When you eat out with friends, you ask them for cash and pay with your credit card.
- You buy items on impulse.
- You can't meet the minimum payments on your cards.

Kids need to control cholesterol

By KAREN E. MONDRONE

About 30 percent of children 2 to 18 years of age already have high cholesterol levels, according to the American Heart Foundation, a non-profit research organization.

Should we be concerned for the kids of the next generation? Well, it seems like we should start looking at health habits at a very early age. Some children may carry heart disease risks with them as they "grow" older, but experts disagree as to whether every child and teen should get their cholesterol tested.

Some physicians and pediatricians are calling for cholesterol screening of all children over the age of 2. Some doctors say that kids with high levels of fat in their blood, caused by poor eating and exercise changes, to help them avert possible future problems.

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP), however, recommends regular testing for those children two years of age or older who have a family history of elevated cholesterol levels or heart disease.

Specifically, the group recommends regular testing for children who have:

- Male relatives who had a heart attack before age 50 or female kin who had a coronary before age 60, or
- A parent, sibling, grandparent, uncle or aunt with high serum cholesterol levels.

Parents should not worry if a single reading is high, since cholesterol levels vary from day to day and even seasonally. The AAP recommends testing over several months to identify kids who have persistently high levels.

Should all children be tested routinely? The AAP does not favor mass testing of children for several reasons. Some tests are not very accurate. Children who run high levels themselves, but have no family history of heart disease, may change their dietary habits and end up with severe and possibly unnecessary dietary changes or drug control that could harm growth and development.

So, what should kids do? Eat a normal, healthy diet with lots of low-fat dairy foods, lean meats, fish and poultry, plenty of whole grain breads and cereals, and lots of fresh fruits, juices and vegetables. Kids should limit their intake of deep-fried foods, fast foods, sugary desserts and other foods that are not nutritious.

By starting to eat healthy foods from early on, most children will be able to keep their fat levels to a moderate level, which is the very best advice for raising healthy kids.

Intersection needs No Right Turn sign

To Police Chief William E. Chialolino:

Re: The No Right Turn sign on the south corner of Shunpike Road and Mountain Avenue.

In reference to your letter dated Jan. 12, which measure does the Union County Department of Engineering and Planning evaluate "cost" when the commodity involved is life or injury?

As stated in our Sept. 26, 1989, petition, signed by 50 residents and licensed drivers of Kew Drive, there is an urgent need for a No Right Turn sign on the south corner of Shunpike Road and Mountain Avenue. As our petition outlined, we do not want a modification of the present traffic light — just a No Turn sign, with or without restricted hours, for a high turn.

The complications of "modification and expense" involved thereto are irrelevant to the need and implementation. Lives are at stake, not semantics. Chief, we of Kew Drive thank you for your prompt follow-up, and would expect your further persistence and pressure on the powers that be.

All homeowners should pay fair taxes

You read where a lower New Jersey court decision was overruled in the case of how "Mt. Laurel" homes are assessed and taxed.

The lower court had ruled these affordable-housing units are to be taxed on market value. The appeals court, however, said that would negate the state plan to assist low- and moderate-income people to own homes.

What about the owners of existing homes in a low-income bracket? They are assessed and taxed on market value. I suggest that local governments take the case to a higher court. Taxes should be levied equally.

Pappas: Hire Dunn

By SHARON CATES

Hours after Union County Manager Joseph A. Martin announced his resignation on Monday, Harry Pappas, acting director of the county's Department of Central Services, said that he asked the county freeholders to consider appointing Elizabeth's Democratic mayor, Thomas G. Dunn, as Martin's successor.

Martin, who is expected to leave the $95,000-per-year position late this month, is the county's fifth manager since the county manager form of government was adopted in 1976.

Pappas' recommendation may carry some weight. He has long been active in Democratic Party political circles, and presently all nine of the freeholders are Democrats.

Pappas claimed that Dunn's government experience — including more than a quarter-century at the helm of the county's largest municipality — makes him a prime candidate for the position.

"What is needed, in my opinion," Pappas said, "is to appoint a county manager who has a proven professional background and record in government, and who is politically independent."

"He must be the type of person who will not be intimidated running a $200 million public corporation and someone who will not be deterred from his public or private duties as a result of his residency," Pappas said.

"I believe Dunn, with his malaise credentials — 26 years as the mayor of Elizabeth, the fourth largest city in New Jersey, and a former state senator and freeholder — will amply serve Union County government in the taxpayers' best interest in the 1990s," Pappas added.

Dunn, who has recently returned from vacation, was unavailable for comment.

County manager resigns

By SHARON CATES

Embattled Union County Manager Joseph A. Martin announced his resignation Monday after 18 months at the head of Union County's government.

Martin noted that he will be leaving the $95,000-per-year position with the county by the end of February to become a management consultant for the Roseland-based Arthur Andersen & Co. Martin explained that in his new job, he will be providing productivity improvements, cost containment and strategy studies to state and local governments and public authorities.

"The prolonged residency issue certainly caused me to reassess my position," Martin said. "It was obviously prudent to explore other employment opportunities. It was a coincidence, however, that I met with Arthur Andersen."

As county manager, Martin was responsible for the daily operations of county government.

Martin, who assumed his position with the county in August 1988, is the fifth person to be county manager since Union County adopted the county manager form of government in 1976.

"Martin's stormy tenure was marked by rumors of a possible charter change to another form of government and delays in granting him a requested job evaluation, mixed with controversy over his out-of-county residence. Martin lives in West Caldwell in Essex County with his wife and three school-age children."

"Reflecting on his tenure with the county, Martin noted that he feels that he has successfully performed his duties.

"The past 18 months has had its difficult moments. But I feel that the quality of services and efforts to contain costs has improved," Martin said.

"I regret that so much of my time was diverted from the day-to-day operations and consumed by a series of disagreements with the freeholders," Martin added. "I was appointed unanimously by the nine-member elected Board of Freeholders, and I believe I did the job I was hired to do."

"I am leaving Union County with good feelings. I appreciate all of the support I received from county employees and municipal officers, and I think I have re-established the independence of the office of the county manager," Martin said.

"I hope that my successor realizes that politics and government will always be intertwined, and an objective and non-partisan county manager is essential," he concluded.

Prior to becoming county manager, Martin served as the first director of the Hudson River Waterfront Transportation Office and as Essex County administrator. Earlier, he worked as a management consultant with two private firms and as an urban development and public transportation planner for Arlington County in Virginia and Catonsville County in New York. A veteran of the Vietnam War, he is currently a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve.

Alzheimer's disease show's topic

In February, "Vintage Views" — a community education program for seniors, will discuss Alzheimer's disease and the means available to lighten the burden it imposes on families.

The program will deal with Alzheimer's disease as it is understood today, and the benefits of supervised planning and other services for caregivers. It will feature a presentation by Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, and Judy Gallagher, director of day-care services of Summit Area Gerontological Services.

"Vintage Views" can be seen in Springfield on cable channel 36 on Tuesdays at 1 p.m. and Fridays at 6 p.m., and in most other Union County towns on cable channel 32 on Thursdays at 7:05 p.m.

Coviello welcomes comments and suggestions on programming. He may be reached at 327-4372.

Ski lessons slated to begin

The Trailside Nature and Science Center, located at Coles Avenue and New Providence Road in Mountain- side, is offering cross-country ski lessons to beginners and intermediate skiers, beginning this weekend.
Beginners can choose from Saturday morning sessions offered on Feb. 3 or Feb. 10, from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.
An intermediate lesson will be offered on Saturday, Feb. 10, from 1 to 2:30 p.m.
The outdoor program will consist of a lecture covering topics such as clothing, waxing and equipment, and the award-winning film, "If You Can Walk."
If there is enough snow, an outdoor lesson will give beginners an opportunity to learn the basics in the natural setting of the Watchung Reservation.
An additional $10 fee will be payable at class time if an outdoor lesson is given.
Intermediate-level skiers will get a chance to try their hands — or feet — at more advanced maneuvers like stem, parallel and telemark turns. Snowplow, parallel and other methods of stopping and cross-country techniques will be explored.
Also included will be a supervision videotape on the spot.
For the intermediate lessons, participants may register in person a week in advance, if there is sufficient snow cover.
In-person registration for the beginners' program is being held at Trailside Nature and Science Center every day from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Registration for both beginner and intermediate outdoor lessons are limited to 25 participants for each session. There is no limit for all indoor programs.
All participants must provide their own equipment.
Further information is available by calling Trailside at 789-3670, Monday-through-Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

B-Ball duo nominated

Two local basketball players within the County Leader coverage area, Craig Martin of Abraham Clark High in Roselle and Tariq Saunders of Linden, are among seven Union County high school seniors to be nominated as candidates for the 1990 McDonald's All-American High School Basketball Team. As nominees, all are in the running to be one of the 25 members selected to the final team.
The 13th annual McDonald's All-American Game is scheduled to take place on Sunday, April 15 at Market Square Arena in Indianapolis. The game will be broadcast live in its entirety by ABC Sports.

Clinic slated

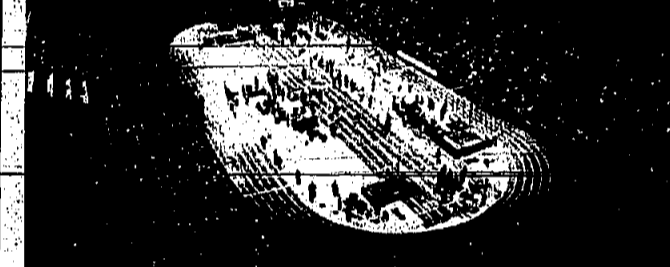

Mountainside resident Jeff Torjorg, the current manager of the Chicago White Sox, will be guest lecturer at a baseball clinic at Linden High School this Sunday, Feb. 4, from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.
There is no admission charge, and the clinic is open to all.

IS THAT RIGHT? — Well, not completely. While the score is indeed accurate, there is no 400-pound-weight class as this clock from last week's Union-Linden wrestling match ended accidentally — and humorously — convey. Mistake or not, however, there is nothing funny about the way in which the Union High wrestling team has been winning matches this season — usually by comfortable margins.

Ender leading

Amy Ender of Roselle Park, a freshman guard on the Moravian College women's basketball team, is among the Middle Atlantic Conference Southern Division's offensive leaders.
Ender leads the MAC's Southern Division in three-point field goals per game with 1.8, and is fifth in the nation among Div. 3 players in three-point field goal percentage at .50. Also, Ender is eighth in the MAC South in scoring at 15.3 points per game, and ninth in free throw percentage (.742).

Built for Speed.

Six world records. Five American records. Two domestic records. All at a track built in 1982. Meadowlands Arena's six lane 1/4 mile track is indeed built for speed. And the 1990 Vitall/Meadowlands Invitational Track & Field Meet promises to be faster than ever.

horoscope

For week of Feb. 4-Feb. 10
ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You are indispensible at the office and it is the week to let them know it. Superiors will see you shine and it could pay off in the form of a raise or promotion in the coming months.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Establish personal financial security this week, but look for ways that allow you to be flexible with your money. Avoid investments that will tie up your cash.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) If you are planning something special, a Sagittarius pal has some good advice. Also spend time with friends who see the signs.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You cannot please all of the people all of the time. Be yourself and do not make promises you cannot keep. Your two friends will understand and support you.
LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Do not hesitate to leap into challenging projects with both feet. Working on a tough deadline will pay off in big dividends next month.
VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Take time to figure out what is really bothering you. It is time to confront your fears and defeat them. Ask for advice from a close relative.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do not be afraid to let down your hair and allow workmates to see the real you. Exposure

'Mrs. America'

The Mrs. New Jersey America Pageant will be staged at the Renaissance Towers Hotel at Newark Airport March 25. The winner will receive such prizes as round-trip tickets to Las Vegas via American Airlines to compete "in the only nationally televised pageant for married women on ABC networks."
The deadline date for entry is Feb. 15. To enter one can mail a photo and biography along with a self-addressed stamped envelope to Area Director Antonia Tarabocchia, P.O. Box 7312, East Rutherford, 07073.
The requirements are that one must be "a United States citizen, New Jersey resident and married for at least six months." No performing talent is required. The contestants are judged on interview, swim wear and evening gown.
The Mrs. New Jersey America Pageant "focuses the attention on a well-rounded married woman, someone who is not only attractive, but possesses a good moral character and has the ability to speak in public."

Valentine's Day section titled 'Sweetheart'. It features a large heart graphic with the word 'Sweetheart' written inside. Below it is a section for 'This Valentine's Day say it in the LOVE LINES' with a grid for writing messages. It also includes a 'Mrs. America' contest announcement and a 'Sweetheart' logo.
