JAMES P. GRASSI

James P. Grassi of Association Management Corporation (AMC), a Springfield-based association management firm, has earned the Certified Association Executive (CAE) designation from the American Society of Association Executives, AMC President Peter Allen has announced.

Grassi, a resident of Middletown Township, has 10 years of association management experience and serves as executive director of the New Jersey Federation of Planning Officials, the Council for Accreditation in Occupational Hearing Conservation and the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Contractors Association of New Jersey.

EUGENE KREDATUS

Eugene G. Kredatus of Union has been appointed an assistant vice president and loan officer of the Montclair Savings Bank.

Prior to joining Montclair Savings Bank, Kredatus served as an assistant vice president and loan officer for the North Jersey Savings and Loan Association.

A graduate of the College of The Holy Cross with a bachelor's degree in political science, he is a member of the New Jersey Mortgage Bankers Association, and a past president of the Holy Cross Club of Northern New Jersey and a Holy Cross alumni admissions representative.

Media firm expands

Hercky Pasqua Herman has been selected to join the International Chain of Industrial and Technical Advertising Agencies (ICITA). As a member, the advertising agency will offer international marketing and advertising services to its clients via the organization's affiliates in over 30 countries, including the Soviet Union.

Established in 1968, ICITA is an organization of advertising agencies which provide local marketing and promotional services to the clients of member agencies. Hercky Pasqua Herman clients who market products internationally will now be able to obtain strategic marketing, media planning and creative talents on a country-by-country basis.

"With economic globalization and the opening of East European markets, our membership in ICITA presents a solid opportunity for the agency and its client," states Peter Hercky, a principal of the agency. "It's foolish to think that by simply translating U.S. advertising copy into French or German, that the ad will work as well in France and Germany. Even using American English in Britain could be risky," added Michael Pasqua, co-founder of Hercky Pasqua Herman. "In each country there are different competitors, economic situations and cultures. As part of the ICITA organizations, we will offer our clients the sensitivity to these differences and the savvy with which to address them effectively."

Hercky Pasqua Herman is a full-service, marketing-communications firm offering advertising, public relations, direct mail, sales promotion and market research services. The company is located at 323 Chestnut St., Roselle Park.

High Speed printer opens new facility

High Speed, a complete source for printing, copying and signs, opened yesterday at 24 Echo Plaza on Route 22 West in Springfield.

Russell and Mitchell Evans, the business communications experts who own High Speed Copying and Quick Printing Center of Kenilworth and Budget Instant Print Center and Instant Signs Unlimited of Westfield, have come to Springfield to open their new business in the former location of Automated Printing.

High Speed will be managed by Lori S. McSorley, who has five years of experience in all phases of the quick printing industry with Budget Print Center, McSorley, a graduate of Montclair State University with a bachelor's degree in art, began her career at Budget Print as a layout artist. While account manager in charge of the Art Department, she became thoroughly knowledgeable about the wide range of printing, copying, binding, mailing, and sign-making products and services. High Speed in Echo Plaza will offer:

Using state-of-the-art equipment, a new Kodak 300 high speed copier, High Speed can make copies of all printed materials, in standard sizes or oversized, in standard printing or full-color, singly or in high volume. The new High Speed store also offers printing of manuals, brochures, business cards, labels, and stationery to meet every personal and business requirement. High Speed sells banners, displays, window and truck lettering, and signs of many materials and sizes.

"High Speed in Echo Plaza offers customers the same high quality, low cost, and speedy service that we have developed in our other stores," stated Russell Evans. "Particularly during our grand opening period in September we invite customers to visit 24 Echo Plaza to see for themselves the wide variety of products and services available and to meet our capable new store manager."

High Speed is open for business Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

Local sewage turned into useful fertilizers

By DAVE WISE
The Rahway Valley Sewerage Authority (RVSA), which services over 250,000 residents and 3,500 commercial customers in Union County, has become the first New Jersey sewerage authority to dispose of its sludge through a land-based recycling system.

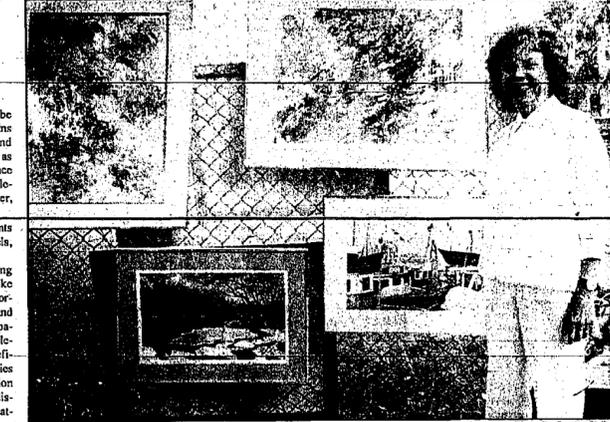

Rahway Valley treats sewage for several municipalities, including Springfield, Roselle Park, Mountaineer, Winfield Park, Kenilworth and Clark. In order to comply with a state law that outlaws ocean dumping by March 17, 1991, the sewerage authority initiated a contract with a private firm last March to recycle its sludge.

"RVSA has entered into agreement with Enviro-Gro, a sludge management firm based in Maryland, to remove the RVSA sludge and sell it for reuse," said Richard Tokarski, executive director of Rahway Valley.

Sludge, the byproduct of wastewater, has been dumped into the ocean for years. But the federal government mandated an end to the dumping by December 1991, contending that the practice was detrimental to the marine environment and, by extension, to the food chain. The New Jersey legislature then rescheduled the cutoff date to March.

The five-year contract that Rahway Valley signed with Enviro-Gro Technologies allows the firm to haul up to 60 wet tons of sludge per day to a facility in Lancaster, Pa., where Enviro-Gro transforms the sludge into fertilizer. At the facility the sludge is being composted and reused for agricultural and horticultural purposes.

Enviro-Gro began hauling sludge from RVSA early in June at the rate of 15 tons per week. Under the contract terms, the amount was to increase to

AN ARTISTIC FLAIR — Helen Geller of Springfield, a professional artist who also teaches art at Union College, displays some of the works she entered in the Kenilworth Art Association's 23rd annual Outdoor Art Show and Sale, held in Kenilworth last Sunday. Geller won the first-place Da Vinci Paint Co. gift certificate and S. Seltzer construction award in the professional watercolor category.

Student creates program airing on cable network

By DAVE WISE
Mike Silverman, a Springfield resident and communications major at Kean College, is producing and directing a cable show called "Summer Nights" on TV-32. The program, which premiered in July, focuses on entertainment and current events and will run until the end of September.

Silverman is actually a part of a creative team that produced the six summer shows, in conjunction with the Kean College Communications Department. Silverman, aided by Jim Einmott and Jan Schwartz — all Kean College seniors — conducted inter-

Teacher to leave school system after long tenure

By DAVE WISE
Dr. Martin Siegel, an educator for almost 40 years, including 22 years of teaching in the Springfield school district, is retiring this month.

Recognized for his many accomplishments, Siegel will leave his position as director of curriculum in Union County Regional High School District 1. Since assuming this post, Siegel has been responsible for developing the curriculum of the four regional high schools.

The director meets with other District 1 teachers on a monthly basis to discuss ways for improving the curriculum.

"Our goal is to keep everyone informed," said Siegel.

Siegel will also surrender his duties as director of the Gifted and Talented Program when he officially retires on Sept. 27. The Gifted program identifies students who display exceptional intellectual and artistic abilities through a battery of tests and interviews. These students are given the option of enrolling in an accelerated academic program once they are identified as gifted and/or talented.

The program starts in a student's junior year, although similar programs are begun in elementary grades in other school districts, said Siegel. In the regional district, there are approximately 50 students taking advanced courses in the Gifted and Talented program.

"The ranking controversy was one of the most career experiences," acknowledged Siegel.

About 1970, "everything was being done publicly," said Siegel. "Parents had trouble understanding the ranking system."

"Board meetings during this period were not a bed of roses," said the curriculum director.

"Board meetings are now a lot more pleasant," he said. "I have very positive feelings."

"The school district is a very fine district and provides a very good environment for change," said Siegel, who is moving his family to Schenectady to help his ailing mother.

Siegel, a holder of degrees from Harvard and Columbia College, said he might return to teaching either on the public school or university level. For now, he plans to travel to Baltimore, Washington and Florida on a vacation following his retirement.

Siegel will then settle in Schenectady, where there are a "lot of colleges and cultural activities."

Several suspects are arrested and charged in four incidents

By DAVE WISE
Springfield police had a busy night on Sept. 9, arresting several people on various charges, including possession of drugs and prohibited weapons, said Police Chief William Chisholm.

The first incident involved three Elizabeth residents riding in a car while consuming alcoholic beverages. At about 4 p.m., Officer John Rowley stopped a car on Route 22 in Springfield when he observed the occupants drinking alcohol. Upon questioning the suspects, Rowley also noticed that dagger-like knives were attached to their jeans.

Rowley arrested Chris Slavini, 18; Robert Foti, 20; and James Marolla, 19, and charged them with illegal possession of alcohol and carrying prohibited weapons.

The suspects were released pending arraignment and charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Robert Ruggeri, 26, of Toms River, was arrested and released pending his appearance in Municipal Court.

The next arrest came at 9:30 p.m. when Officer James Fine stopped a car on Meisel Avenue, at which point he observed the occupants tossing objects out of a car window.

Chisholm said the substance thrown from the car is believed to be cocaine.

Fine arrested Jason Dolomiro, 19; Michael Elton, 19; and Jemel Powell, 18, all of whom reside in Springfield. The suspects were charged with possession of cocaine and released pending action by a grand jury.

These arrests followed one on Sept. 7, when Springfield police arrested a man for stealing electronics equipment from a local business.

The suspect escaped with $600 worth of electronics from a Springfield business on Edison Avenue after being chased by several of the company's employees. The suspect,

Speedy Car Wash outshines the rest
It's located in an industrial area on Lehigh Avenue — not exactly the kind of place you might expect to find a car wash, but somehow the Speedy Car Wash has managed to do quite nicely over the past 17 years. "The thing that's been interesting is that there's no other car wash on the street," said owner Gene Rooney, "but there are people who go far out of their way to come to us."
At Speedy Car Wash, an exterior wash goes for about $1 less than the average car wash, a competitive price in a business where customers can be charged over $5 simply for an exterior wash, not to mention amenities such as hot wax.
Rooney, though, at his totally "brushless" operation, provides more than just a lower price, while providing personalized service in what can be a very impersonal, high volume business.
In addition, the Speedy Car Wash offers free, self-service mat-washing equipment, — something many other car washes dispense only for an extra charge, as well as coin-operated, self-service vacuum cleaners. "There's no equipment in the world that will do an absolutely perfect wash," he explained, adding, how-

New schedule for the center

The Springfield Recreation Department announced its new fall schedule for the Teen Center, located in the Children's Community Center. Teen Center will be open on Wednesday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. and on Friday nights from 7 to 10 p.m., starting Sept. 12. More information is available from the Recreation Department at 912-2226.

Student show airs on cable

"We worked well together," remarked Silverman, adding that "it was a good learning experience for everyone."

A 1983 graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Silverman attended Glassboro State College before coming to Kean. Silverman said he wants to enter any field where writing is required, like public relations, journalism or advertising.

The best part about producing "Summer Nights," said the communications major, was "coming up with your idea and trying to get a finished product out of your vision."

All in all, creating the show was very satisfying, said Silverman, "despite its ups and downs."

Hospital adds new mobile care unit

A new Mobile Intensive Care Unit (MICU), new life-saving equipment and the placement of the ambulance on bay will highlight the 15th anniversary of Overlook's MICU during Emergency Medical Service Week, from Sept. 16 to 22.

The new MICU vehicle and demonstrations of new equipment will be on display at an open-house on Sept. 22, from 1-5 p.m., at 52 Beaver Ave. in Summit. Area police officers, firefighters, and first aid personnel are also invited to attend.

The new life-saving equipment, the Life-Pak 10, is a monitor defibrillator attached to an external pacemaker which takes over the patient's heart in a cardiac emergency.

Police Department gives its annual ball this week

Springfield Police will hold the 61st annual Policemen's Ball this Friday, from 7-11 p.m., at the Holiday Inn on Route 22 in Springfield. Previously planned for Sept. 28, the ball is now rescheduled.

There will be an awards dinner, open bar and door prizes at the ball.

Local center helps students succeed

The Myra G. Wasserman Educational Center of Mountaineer and Springfield, a professional association providing interdisciplinary, diagnostic, therapeutic and enrichment services to children and adults, has announced a new program designed to help students succeed academically.

"Each student can be successful; more successful than he or she is now," Wasserman remarked. "Each student possesses abilities that can be exercised, strengthened and developed."

"The key to this growth is an accessible curriculum; therefore, education of the 90s must integrate innovative computer technology and traditional tools, such as texts and paper and pencil in the curriculum," she continued.

"Current computer technology has been designed to provide scaffolds which promote access to new knowledge and cognitive growth," she said. "Learning 'how-to-learn' strategies, in concert with technology, will enable our students to gather, organize, analyze, interpret, and communicate information."

The Wasserman center promotes integrated use of computer technology. "Learn how to learn" techniques encourage students to control their learning environment and replace failure with educational success, according to the center.

Students at the center are encouraged to seek out, organize and use information for multiple purposes. The center's staff of licensed and certified professionals provide students with alternative teaching techniques and a carefully constructed blend of technology.

The staff specializes in assessment and remediation of learning disabilities; tutoring for students in kindergarten through the college level; pre-school evaluations and PSAT and SAT programs, including group and individual instruction and achievement test review.

They also provide parent and employee training programs; learning "how-to-learn" programs and computer technology for learning.

Wasserman is co-author of "The SAT For The Underachiever" which will soon be released by Simon and Schuster. She is also a founder of the Association of Learning Consultants and is currently on the board of directors of the New Jersey Orton Dyslexia Society.

In addition, Wasserman is a member of the Inland Empire Conference Committee of Union County and an adjunct professor at Seton Hall University in South Orange.

Additional information and the fall PSAT and SAT information can be obtained by calling 654-7227; the fax number is 654-7229.

LUCKY GUESS — Christina Florio was recently named the winner of two goldfish in a contest sponsored by the Children's Department of the Springfield Public Library. One of the many activities held at the library during the Reading Pleasures, Deep Sea Treasures' Summer Reading Club, the contest was titled "Guess How Many Fish Crackers Are in the Fish Bowl?" Christina guessed 923, the exact number in the bowl.

District BOE issues graduation analysis

The Board of Education of Union County Regional High School District 1 recently issued a report concerning the high school graduation requirements law pertaining to the 1989-90 graduating class.

The district includes Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, David Brentley Regional High School in Kenilworth, Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School in Clark, and Governor Livingston Regional High School in Berkeley Heights.

Dr. Francis Kenny, director of Pupil Personnel Services for the district, reported that a total of 613 students in grade 12 were enrolled in the regional district's four high schools as of the last day in June of the 1989-90 school year.

The 613 students included regular education students, special education students and limited-English proficient students. Of this group, 590 received a state-authorized high school diploma, including those who graduated in June and those who completed their necessary requirements through summer school.

The 23 students who did not receive diplomas were special education students. Dr. Kenny explained that the reason these students did not receive diplomas was not because they had failed any part of their curriculum, but because they would be continuing their education during the 1990-91 school year.

Dr. Kenny's report also stated that all 531 regular-education students who received diplomas this year had passed the reading, writing and mathematics sections of the High School Proficiency Test, which is required for graduation.

Of the 56 special education students who received diplomas, 11 passed their HSPTs, while the remaining 45 were exempt from taking the test. All three limited-English proficient students passed their HSPTs as well.

Seniors win at softball

Kenilworth residents Joe Fuertes, Mike Vitale and Al Henney led the senior citizens to a 2-1 win in the third annual softball game last Saturday, Sept. 8, between local senior citizens and Kenilworth Borough High officials and employees at the Little League ballpark on 14th Street.

Approximately 50 spectators were on hand for what was later described as a "hilarious morning of cheering and boating."

Winning pitcher Joe Tripodi survived several Borough Hall rallies to post the victory in this five-inning game. Frank Amirano's inside-the-park homer further sparked the seniors' win. Borough Councilman Al Testa pitched for his team for four of the five innings.

Borough Councilman Joseph Rego, manager of the borough team, commended the seniors on their win — their third — but also gave much credit to his team for their performance. "We'll get them next year, you can be sure of that," he remarked, after the game.

In addition to Chief David and Councilmen Rego and Testa and Jeffrey Corcione, the Borough Hall team consisted of Robert Schenff, Bill Moran, Sam Caballero and Superintendent of Public Works Frank Plummer.

In addition to Tripodi, Vitale, Henney and Amirano, the senior team consisted of Joseph Fuertes, Tony Bukowsky, Nick Kaminsky, Joe Angen, and Mike Iazzetta.

Weight programs slated

The Department of Health Education of Overlook Hospital in Summit will be starting two weight control programs for adolescents on Monday, Sept. 17, to be held at the Summit YMCA, located on Maple Avenue in Summit.

The first one, called "Body Shop," is a weight control program for children ages 9 to 12, and will be held at 5:45 p.m. The 10-week program gives children a personalized eating guide to teach them new eating behaviors.

Exercise is done to increase endurance, coordination and muscle tone. In their support group, the young people will have an opportunity to build new self images, share feelings and learn to take responsibility for their own behavior.

Children participating in the program will have an opportunity to take an additional, age-appropriate exercise class at the YMCA during the program's duration.

The second 10-week program, called Shapedown, will be held at 8 p.m. and promotes changes in exercise and food habits, aids self-esteem and weight loss. Dieting is not part of the program.

Participants in the program will be able to attend an extra YMCA exercise class at no additional fee during the program's duration. Parents are invited to attend support meetings.

One can call Overlook Hospital's Department of Health Education at 322-2963 for registration information. The fee for both programs is $165. One can call the Department of Health Education for registration information at 322-2963.

You are chewing vigorously and your teeth clamp on a hard object that shouldn't be in your food. The irresistible force defeated the immovable object. A tooth breaks.
Don't panic. And don't assume the tooth is a goner until you've had final word from your dentist: You may discover that the tooth can be saved.
If so, your dentist will likely propose a procedure that will go through several stages. In the first — a root canal, your dentist, by hand and with microscopic precision, will clean out the full length of the nerve channel and carefully prepare it for the next step.
In the cleared channel your dentist will then cement a metal post. Why the post? A crown must be placed on that fractured tooth, and there's not enough of it left to hold the crown securely in place. The post is like the vertical beam that supports the roof of a building.
In the final stage of the procedure your dentist changes hats and works like an artist. The crown has to be shaped so it conforms precisely to the natural contours of your teeth — a form of sculpture. Then, as in painting, the crown has to be colored so it matches the teeth surrounding it.
Your teeth will be compared to subtle color charts and selection made. But in the final analysis, the right choice depends on the sensitivity of your dentist's eye.
The final test of this complex effort comes when you look in the mirror. Chances are, if you do not know which tooth had been damaged you will be unable to pick it out.

Beautiful child adds trophies to collections

By BEA SMITH

There is something very special about Veronica Lee Pasterczyk of Mountaineer. In the first place, she is one of the most beautiful children that we have ever seen. In fact, she looks like one of those perfectly adorned, delicate dolls one sees on shelves in toy stores.

However, this doll, who has just turned 8, is real...and really beautiful. Not surprisingly, her mother, Debra Lee Pasterczyk, who resides in Maplewood before her marriage, is a former model, former winner of beauty pageants, and former runner-up for Miss Playboy. She is now a school teacher in East Orange, and still lovely. Her father is Edward "Jukebox" Pasterczyk, a former recording artist, who also starred in the 1988 Jerry Lewis Telethon benefit for muscular dystrophy, and who is serving his 18th year as an Irvington police officer. He performs rap songs under the pseudonym in Crackon Rapper. Blond, blue-eyed, "he is still handsome."

Veronica also has a pretty little sister, Kristin Jessica, 3, who also enters pageants, and is known as a Pee Wee New Jersey Shore Beauty Model.

The whole family visited this newspaper recently to talk about Veronica Lee, whose perfect blonde hair sparkles along with her perfect smile that can melt a person's heart with no effort at all. Last month, Veronica became Little Miss Hemisphere Ambassador at the 27th Annual International Finals of the Hemisphere Pageant held at the Fontainebleau Hilton Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla. She will be on the inside cover of the 1991 Pageant book as Ambassador winner. Earlier, she won the 1990 All American Girl & Boy Pageant title. And this past weekend, Veronica participated in a costume parade called Mardi Gras in Seaside Heights and won first prize — a $200 savings bond. Her sister, Kristin, won a third-place prize — a $75 savings bond — in her age group.

Veronica, who received a tuition scholarship to the Philadelphia Academy of Theatrical Arts from the 1990 Miss Hemisphere Inc. Competition as the 1990 International Finalist for the "Most Original Costume Competition," will attend the school next summer. She will study theatrical arts, television commercials, photographic modeling and television modeling.

Currently, she is in the third grade at Deerfield School in Mountaineer. And all her accomplishments are "kept in low key," says her father. "I'm just a student in the school," says Veronica. "I have a lot of friends and everybody treats me as a friend. Nothing special."

But, she says, she likes what she is doing. "I like the costumes and the nice colors and the nice people I meet wherever I go. And I like to enter pageants."

So does her mother. "I entered pageants for many years," says Debra Lee. "I started when I was 11, as a

LIKE MOTHER, LIKE DAUGHTER — Veronica poses with mother, Debra Pasterczyk, who has won many pageants, too. She even was a runner up at one time for the Miss Playtoy title. Veronica's father, Edward Pasterczyk, an Irvington Police officer, also has appeared in show business.

"We are going to see that Donald Trump personally gets to see this costume," says Veronica's father.

Veronica says she would like to be a pop singer when she grows up. "Laura Brantigan is one of my favorite singers," she says.

Her parents' aspirations are "to provide her with a good education and if she so desires," says her father, "to pursue a career in the arts...and should she have the ability, the basic exposures in the arts. She's one of the youngest in her age group. She has three years to go to the top. And if she wants to pursue this kind of career, who knows? She may someday take that walk on the runway in Atlantic City."

"Miss America?" says Veronica gleefully. "That would be nice!"

Initial meetings set

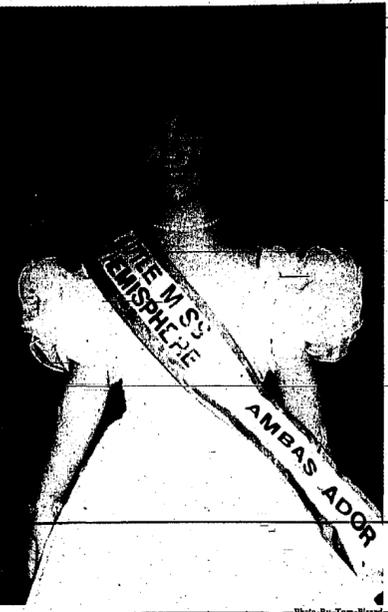

The Clio Club of Roselle will hold its annual rummage sale at the clubhouse, 128 E. Fifth Ave., Roselle, Wednesday, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Clothing for men, women and children, toys, household items, books, records, jewelry and "white elephants" will be featured.

THE LINDEN GARDEN Circle, sponsored by the Linden Recreation Department, will hold its first meeting of the 1990-1991 season today at 1 p.m. at the Sunnyside Recreation Center, Melrose Terrace.

Julia Maggs will instruct the members in a flower craft project. Hostesses will be Babette Dutsch and Marie Olters.

THE LINDEN WOMAN'S SOCIETY Club, sponsored by the City's Recreation Department, will hold its first meeting of the season Sept. 26 at 1 p.m. at the Sunnyside Recreation Center, Melrose Terrace.

As a result, Veronica was "voiced into the top 10."

OH, YOU BEAUTIFUL DOLL — She's perfectly adorned, and Veronica's dream is to someday walk down the aisle in Atlantic City representing Miss New Jersey in the pageant of all pageants.

'Maxx Is Back'

By MILT HAMMER

Good Listening: The "Maxx Is Back," by Klymaxx, MCA Records.

There's nothing like being confident, but when you're a group like audacious...boundary-busting...Klymaxx, you can afford to be a little cocky. After all, Klymaxx is the Los Angeles-based all-girl band that's been proving for the past 10 years that funk-rock music — to steal a popular phrase from James Brown — is not just a "man's, man's, man's world."

With spunky, attitude-laden smash singles like "Meeting in the Ladies Room," "The Men All Pause," "Divas Need Love Too," "I Miss You," "I'd Still Say Yes" and "Man-Sized Love" to their credit, Klymaxx has convinced all of the skeptics and naysayers that they're more than just a tongue-in-cheek novelty. And after a 1½-year hiatus, the trio has resurfaced with a highly anticipated 10-track collection that says it all: "The Maxx Is Back."

"We're back with a purpose, you could say," observes Lorena "Lunge" Hardin, the group's petite lead singer. "Just call us the 'new and improved' Klymaxx."

The group is sporting three members after having contained as many as eight at one time, and guitarist Cheryl Cooley says, "We're down to the real nucleus of the group now that Bernadette Cooper, Joyce Irby and Lynn Malaby have left the group to pursue their individual solo careers."

If they sound lighthearted, it's probably because they know that they have a noteworthy piece of product on their hands with "The Maxx Is Back."

New director slated for Cantorum group

The New Jersey Schola Cantorum has announced the selection of its new musical director, James S. Little of Plainfield. Little succeeds Louis Hooker, founder of the Schola Cantorum in 1962 and its musical director until his retirement at the end of the 1989-90 season.

Little teaches choral music at Pingry School in Marlinton and serves as organist/choir director at the Community Presbyterian Church in Mountaineer. He has done choral work in concert with both Robert Shaw and Sir David Willcocks and also has performed as accompanist on organ, piano and harpsichord for many area choral groups. Little's select group from Pingry has toured Europe several times, singing in such places as Chartres Cathedral and Notre Dame in Paris, France, and has performed on CBS television.

The New Jersey Schola Cantorum was founded as a volunteer community chorus then called the Plainfield Choral Society, which answered a need for quality music in the Union County area. The organization grew to a regional group that has performed throughout North-Central New Jersey.

"We feel very fortunate to have Jim Little as musical director of the Schola," said Julie Mesinger, chairman of the group. "His enthusiasm and skill will bring to area singers an exciting experience for the audience."

Wildlife exhibition at Mill

An exhibition of wildlife art is being presented by the Renee Fossaner Art Gallery at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, now through Oct. 21.

The exhibit showcases the work of 15 artists from New Jersey and around the country. The artists work in oils, acrylics, watercolors, pen and ink, sculpture and wood sculpture.

Following in the tradition of John Audubon, wildlife artists "must have a thorough knowledge of animal and avian anatomy, botany and geology, as well as skillful mastery of the use of light, form, color and composition."

OPINION

Step By Step

With so much bad news rampant about waste disposal and the environment, legitimate good news is a welcome and significant event. The Rahway Valley Sewerage Authority (RVSA) has concluded a deal to sell its dewatered sewage, or sludge, to a Maryland-based company that will process the sludge for use as fertilizer. This is a step in the right environmental direction.

The initial correct move in dealing with this particular socio-environmental dilemma was the federal law mandating cessation of all ocean dumping of sludge by the end of 1991. It was also a progressive step when the New Jersey legislature rescheduled the cut-off date for March 17 of next year. The sooner we stop fouling the food chain the better. Yet, as is often the case, one solution created another problem: What to do with the landlocked sludge?

The two immediate answers were to either dump it in landfills or incinerate it, and both solutions are costly — each roughly tripling the price tag on ocean dumping. The increases fall on resident taxpayers. Of the sewerage authorities dealing with Union County only the RVSA — servicing Springfield, Roselle Park, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Winfield Park, among other county municipalities — chose this third alternative of recycling.

The process of converting dewatered sewage to useable fertilizer is significantly cheaper than dumping or burning, because sludge becomes a marketable commodity. The cost to those serviced by RVSA will also rise — only doubling, not tripling like those of non-RVSA clients. It is also better for the environment to use the sludge, rather than simply adding pollutants to ocean, soil, aquifers and air. The RVSA is to be commended for seeking out such a process and, thus, clearly displaying industrial and business attitudes in tune with the demands of the 21st century.

This is not, however, to condemn the Joint Meeting for choosing incineration, or the Linden-Roselle Sewerage Authority for contracting a firm to haul their sludge to Pennsylvania fills. Both these authorities deal with more industrialized areas of the county than does the RVSA, which means that greater quantities of heavy metals appear in their sewage. The higher the level of metals the more difficult it is to render the stuff acceptable for conversion to fertilizer.

The action taken by the RVSA has, nonetheless, pointed the way. Sewerage authorities in the region, as well as throughout the state and nation, are continuing to conduct studies into the practical recycling of sludge.

We believe that ways of reducing heavy metals can be found, especially if Americans — through their universities and their governments — do not give up on research and development. It is a point made in this space before, yet one that bears repeating: We must, as a people, continue to foster research and development.

What is significantly new and different about the sludge conversion process being practiced by the Maryland-based company, Enviro-Gro Technologies, is that the fertilizer produced is pure enough to use on crops intended for human consumption. It is a process still in its infancy and, naturally, it merits the monitoring that governmental agencies and environmental groups are giving it. But it appears to be another step forward, a step that is taking place because of keen minds intelligently supported in their work.

If scientists and researchers can come up with and implement such innovative technology in waste recycling, then we are surely in the ballpark in believing that technology can be developed for decreasing sludge's heavy metal contents. That is, we can believe as long as we are willing to support proper research and development.

This does not mean merely intellectual or sentimental support for some abstract concept or faraway laboratory project — not in this case. Many of us are the clients of the Joint Meeting and the Linden-Roselle authority. Our municipal taxes support them and our municipal officials serve as liaisons to them. We should be letting our elected officials know what we want from our sewerage authorities. We should encourage and support continuing studies into making fish heavy metal sludge convertible. If we do not pressure our officials, if we become apathetic about the matter, then there is the real danger that the studies will also grow lax, and the more readily accessible — yet more expensive and more environmentally perilous — methods of burning and dumping will prevail.

An old Chinese proverb says: Hope without work is mere hallucination. If we want to attain a renewed prosperity and a cleaner environment, if we want to hear more legitimate good news, we must do more than hope, or complain.

GOP distortions

I could not let pass without comment the most recent example of the Republican majority putting themselves on the back. As usual, their version falls somewhat short of the truth.

I was present at last week's Township Committee meeting, where Marc Marshall made his self-serving remarks, which were printed almost verbatim, and without question by your paper. The subject was assignment of community service by the Municipal Court.

I must question Marshall's remarks that this program is "in its infancy." In fact, the state legislature has included community service as a required punishment for certain motor vehicle offenses for many years. Also, the use of community service as an alternative to short jail terms has been available to municipal courts for just as long.

I further find it objectionable that Marshall implies the community service idea was his own, and that he singlehandedly worked to have the idea put into motion. As above, community service is a punishment allowed and required by state statute. The way Marshall explained the program was calculated to bring undeserved credit upon himself.

I have always thought of local government as a way to serve the public, and not for the purpose of seeking self-aggrandizement. On the other hand, the Republican members of the government seem to seek out or create ever-increasing ways to congratulate themselves.

I want a local government that cares about the people, not about publicity. How about you?

BRUCE H. BERGEN, CHAIRMAN
Springfield Democratic Party

Editor's note: Bergen is currently the Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives from District 7.

Senior issue

The saying "Charity begins at home" should be looked into at this crucial time. At the moment the news media is filled with the Middle East crisis, and rightly so, but something closer to home is the "Noch" problem which affects all persons between the birth years 1917 and 1925. Rep. James Saxton, R-N.J., states that this is not a partisan problem because both Democratic and Republican seniors are involved.

It has been "in committee" and several solutions have been proposed, but it has not been released for a vote. Dan Rostenkowski — remember him from his views on the "Catastrophe law" and what we seniors did — is the "person responsible for keeping it from a vote."

National Advisory Council member Albert DeVito of New York stressed the importance of drafting a letter encouraging all representatives to sign Rep. Barney Frank's petition to discharge the Notch legislation.

Again we seniors must inundate our representatives with mail and tell them we want this all important legislation to be voted upon. To seniors on a fixed income, any extra money will be gratefully received.

Our representatives should also remember that an election is coming up shortly.

Not with my money

I would like to take issue with the entitled "new censorship" which appeared in your paper two weeks ago.

I will start with the quote from David Bonanno, with which you seem to agree: "Obscenity is on nearly every newspaper in the United States. Yet, government officials still believe that people need to be protected from it."

Even though I personally would like obscene literature removed completely from newspapers, that is not the issue here. The issue is "should taxpayers' money fund it?" The magazines on the newsstands are printed by private enterprises and I am not forced to pay for them if I choose to ignore them.

What I cannot and will not ignore is the fact that I am paying for, through my tax dollar, works of "art" that malign the fundamentals of my religion. I should not have to support "art" that defames my religious freedom. Unhindered freedom of religion is a part of the Bill of Rights which seems to be getting trampled by government officials who do not recognize this right, which is known as initiative and referendum.

Only the Legislature can place binding questions on the ballot for the voters' consideration, and it has the final say. If the Legislature doesn't want to submit a proposition to the voters, there is nothing the people can do directly to force its hand.

The people of New Jersey are absolutely livid about the outrageous $2.3 billion tax plan Gov. Florio and the Democrats just approved — and the additional tax proposals the Democrats are even now considering, such as a new statewide payroll tax. But the people have no recourse.

It's time for a change. I believe government officials would be more responsive to their constituents and more careful how they spend tax dollars if they knew the people could act with or without their blessing.

I sponsored and pressed for initiative and referendum legislation during my tenure as Speaker of the New Jersey Assembly from 1986-89. Republicans in the Assembly again have introduced legislation that would give voters the right to initiative and referendum. The package includes an amendment to the state constitution, which would have to be ratified by the voters, and legislation spelling out the way New Jersey residents could get qualified questions on the ballot.

Sadly, it appears this legislation stands even less of a chance than it did four years ago, when it was approved by the Senate by Democrats. The new governor and Democratic leaders of both houses do not favor initiative and referendum. So the prognosis is not good.

The Trenton Times, in a recent editorial endorsing initiative and referendum, said politicians who "reject the concept out-of-hand are telling voters they can't be trusted to do the right thing. And the voters are right to resent that." I couldn't agree more.

Hardwick, a Republican and resident of Westfield, is state Assemblyman from the 21st District.

By DAVID F. MOORE
If you are a fish living in Delaware Bay, you may rejoice at a recent decision by Judith Yaskin, commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). If you're a bird, you may not.

Yaskin's action appears slated to force Public Service Electric and Gas Company to build a pair of huge water-cooling towers. Its Salem nuclear plant and two coal power-structure cooking of fish babies. But cooling towers are bound to eliminate a fair number of wetland areas, breeding grounds and stopover places for many avian critters.

If you are a human in or near New Jersey, you may rejoice that years of destruction of the Delaware Bay aquatic life may be nearing its end. I say "may" because PSE&G isn't happy about spending hundreds of millions of dollars on cooling towers, and may drag out the argument for years more in court, given that there are lots of environmental problems associated with dealing with hot water by either the once-through cooling or the cooling tower method.

The last I heard, they were predicting a cost in excess of $500 million for the towers.

Nuclear power plants need 50 percent more cooling water, per generated watt, than a fossil-fueled generating plant. The Salem twin 1,000-megawatt nuclear reactors on Artificial Island, Lower Alloways Creek Township, demand 2 billion gallons of cooling water per day. It comes from the bay and returns to it hotter than it was when it began.

Yaskin is, a Maryland consulting firm, recommended to the DEP in 1986 and again in 1989 that it require cooling towers at Salem. The Yaskin experts, in the DEP-ordered studies, said huge quantities of small fish and fish eggs perish daily when sucked into the plant's once-through cooling system. Unless aquatic life is filtered out or shunted away at the intake, going through the plant's piping is sure to kill it.

PSE&G, on the other hand, argues that there's no proof of bay marine population destruction. Environmentalists retort that extinction is too high a price for proof of damaged fish. The central issue is how to deal with incremental damage. Although freedom of expression. I think our founding fathers would be appalled at the obscenities they unwittingly protected.

The government in the U.S.A. is supposed to be "of the people, for the people and by the people." I think by restricting the NEA's funding, the congress is paying attention to "the people" and for a change it is the long too-silent majority: the tax-paying, hard-working, family-oriented middle class.

As far as the art is concerned, there are far better ways of evoking emotion, and far better emotions to be evoked, than the disgust and anger that has accompanied the national tour of Robert Mapplethorpe and others like him.

If he wants to photograph filth, let him — just let him pay for it himself. Don't expect tax money for it. I think the NEA needs to be a bit more careful about where it puts "our money" or it might not have any more to be careful with.

Say no to bias

One of the uglier aspects of the impact that the Persian Gulf crisis is having on America is increasing reports of bias — even including death threats and other serious forms of harassment — against Americans of Arab descent.

The American Jewish Committee strongly deplores any such instance of bias. There is simply no place in our country for such hateful methods and tactics. Difference of views must be expressed in an atmosphere devoid of violence or the threat of violence and without resort to group stereotyping or name-calling.

Whatever our differences with Arab Americans on issues of concern to both communities in the Middle East, The American Jewish Committee will continue to oppose as vigorously as possible any and all manifestations of bias against Americans of Arab descent, just as we have done in the past. In fact, we testified in Congress on July 16, 1986, on this very subject shortly after the tragic murder of Alex Odch, an Arab-American activist in California.

As victims ourselves of hate mail and threats of violence over the years, we well understand the trauma of the Arab-American community in today's highly charged atmosphere. There ought to be no sanction of such name-calling.

Don't toy around

I would like to congratulate the federal government for its recent action on toy safety. The Justice Department and the Consumer Product Safety Commission recently filed suit against major toy companies that have been importing dangerous toys and selling them to unsuspecting consumers.

One of the companies, Toys "R" Us, is located in New Jersey. Although the company claims their safety record is "excellent," the facts show that too many unsafe toys are reaching consumers. In 1988, approximately 142,000 toys were treated for toy-related injuries. 85 percent were children under age 15. Of the 22 toy-related deaths, most were caused by choking on toys or toy parts.

Interestingly, Toys "R" Us has been quite active in Trenton, linking arms with the Retail Merchants Association to oppose consumer efforts to strengthen toy safety labelling laws. The New Jersey Public Interest Research Group (NJPIRG) supports A-3138, sponsored by Assemblymen David Kronick (D-Hudson) and Neil Cohen (D-Union). The bill would require toys with small parts to be labeled "Warning: Small Parts Pose Choke Hazard for Children Under 3." Unfortunately, this common sense bill has been stymied in the Assembly because of aggressive lobbying on behalf of the toy industry.

If toy manufacturers and dealers were truly concerned about the safety of the products they are offering their customers, they would be actively scrutinizing toy imports, and would not be opposing strong toy safety laws. Until then, consumers should be wary of their toy purchases and urge the state to adopt state toy safety laws.

Drug crooks will pay, according to new bill

Counties and municipalities where drug offenses are committed and adjudicated, would be the beneficiaries of new revenue generated by additional fines imposed on drug offenders, under the terms of legislation approved by the Assembly Drug and Alcohol Abuse Policy Committee on Sept. 10.

The legislation, A-3596, sponsored by Assemblyman Neil Cohen, D-Union, and Joseph Mecca, D-Bergen/Essex, would impose a mandatory $300 fine on all persons convicted of drug-related offenses.

"The price of fighting the war against drugs is astronomical," Cohen said. "However, the price of failure is far more serious."

"In order for us to be successful, we need to make a larger investment in the most active-battle ground — our municipalities and counties," Mecca said.

The legislation provides that the mandatory $300 fine would be in addition to any other authorized disposition including any other penalty imposed for drug-related offenses.

Assemblyman Cohen, who first proposed the Tunding idea when he served on the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, said the penalty would be evenly divided with one half paid to the county in which the offense occurred, and the other half paid to the municipality in which the offense was committed.

"This new revenue, under our bill, would be dedicated to county and municipal drug enforcement programs," Mecca noted. "It would be used to put more cops on the streets and more prosecutors in the courts."

Cohen emphasized that, for the first time, violators would carry some of the burden of the enormous costs associated with prosecuting themselves through the criminal justice system.

"This new revenue source can help offset the expenses absorbed by counties and municipalities for law enforcement, court and corrections costs. By doing so, it can also yield property tax savings for New Jersey citizens. In addition, the legislation would create new revenues to fund narcotics task forces and other anti-drug crime efforts."

The legislation now advances to the full Assembly for further consideration.

GOP freeholder hopefuls introduced

Republican freeholder candidates, Alan Augustine, Linda-Lee Kelly, and Louis Santagata, will be the guest speakers at the Sept. 14 meeting of the GOP Women of Union County. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the First Atlantic Savings Bank on South Avenue in Fairwood. All county residents are invited to attend and meet the candidates.

Alan Augustine, deputy mayor of Scotch Plains, is a former Union County freeholder, having served two terms including president. Augustine began his elected service career as a councilman in Scotch Plains. He has served the township as mayor and as a councilman for 14 years.

Santagata was appointed by the Freeholder Board to the Union County Utilities Authority and served three years, including one year as chairman. Linda-Lee Kelly, a former science teacher, is currently an attorney with Robert O. Thelander. She is engaged in general civil and criminal practice.

Louis Santagata, a former two-term mayor of Hillside, also served on the Township Committee for nine years.

Drivers denied insurance coverage could file appeal, states proposal

Another step in implementing Governor Jim Florio's automobile insurance reform was taken today as the Department of Insurance proposed a new rule giving drivers the right to appeal to the Insurance Department if they are denied coverage by an insurance company.

The proposal sets out the procedures agents and insurers must follow when they refuse to insure an applicant, and the procedures drivers must follow if they believe they have been denied coverage illegally.

The proposed rule enforces the "good driver protection" plan established by the Fair Automobile Insurance Reform (FAIR) Act — under which any driver meeting an objective "good driver" definition will have the right to buy insurance from the company of his choice. Under the proposal, insurers or agents who illegally deny coverage can have their licenses revoked and can be fined up to $5,000 per violation.

In addition, the regulation requires insurance producers to provide consumers with premium quotations for all the companies requested by the agent or broker. Producers would not be permitted to "channel" a consumer away from a particular insurer or insurance coverage.

"Consumers have the right to buy their auto insurance at the lowest appropriate premium and to contest incorrect rating decisions made by insurance companies," said Insurance Commissioner Samuel F. Fortunato. Under the regulation, consumers who are denied insurance coverage, or who are denied coverage under the lowest standard rate category, have the right to a written explanation from the insurer.

The insurance company has 10 days to provide the explanation. If the consumer is not satisfied, he or she would have the right to appeal within 90 days.

Appeals would first be heard by the insurance company's consumer with contested decisions appealed to the office of administrative law.

Cases in which an insurance producer does not offer consumers a full range of insurance coverages from each of the companies he or she may request would be subject to a $2,000 fine for the first offense and up to $5,000 for each additional violation.

Public comment on the proposal will be accepted until Sept. 19 by writing Assistant Commissioner Veronica M. Mason, Department of Insurance, Division of Legislative and Regulatory Affairs, CN 325, Trenton, N.J. 08625.

The Franklin School of Hair and Cosmetology, 1210 Grand St., Elizabeth, will hold a cut-a-thon Sept. 15 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A limited variety of services including haircuts will be available to interested customers at a reduced price.

The proceeds from the event will benefit the 1990 graduating class. The students will graduate on Oct. 19 at the Gateway Hilton Hotel, Newark.

DMV director reminds motorists of school bus law

With New Jersey's schools reopening, Col. Clinton L. Pagano, Director of the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles, wants to remind all motorists that they must stop for school buses when they are loading or unloading children.

If you are approaching a school bus from either the front or the rear, and it stops to discharge or pick up children, you must come to a stop at least 25 feet from the bus," Col. Pagano said, "and remain stopped until all the children are safely across the road and the bus has resumed movement."

"Under the law, the owners of any vehicle seen passing a stopped school bus can be charged with a violation, whether the owner was actually driving the vehicle or not," Col. Pagano said.

During 1989, 2,061 motorists were reported for passing a stopped school bus.

"That is both a shocking and frightening figure and one that must be reduced," Pagano said. "Young lives are too valuable to endanger so callously."

Motorists found guilty of passing a stopped school bus are subject to a fine of not less than $100 and possible imprisonment or community service for 15 days. The fine for a second or subsequent offense is not less than $250. They also have five motor vehicle points added to their driving records. A total of 12 or more points on a record can result in the suspension of all driving privileges for a period of time ranging from 30 days to six months.

"Once an individual loses his or her license, that is it. There is no conditional or special work license allowed in New Jersey," Col. Pagano said. "If you lose your license for excessive point violations, or any other reason, you cannot drive for any purpose until the period of suspension comes to an end."

School buses are equipped with amber and red flashing lights to alert motorists when the buses are preparing to stop and are stopped. The amber lights go on 300 feet before the bus stops, followed by red flashing lights when it is stopped.

However, Col. Pagano said, the warning lights do occasionally fail. If you are approaching a stopped school bus and see no flashing lights, use caution. Stop short of the bus, check for children, and then proceed with care to pass the bus at a slow rate of speed.

If you are on a dual highway with a safety island or raised median separating you from the stopped school bus, you may pass the bus, but at speed of no more than 10 miles per hour.

"So become conscious that school buses are back on the road and drive safely. That way you will protect our children and keep New Jersey one of the safest highway states in the nation," Col. Pagano said.

Insurance group supports bike helmet law for N.J.

Schoolchildren in New Jersey are returning to school. Riding a bike to school is a popular form of transportation. There are almost 88 million cyclists nationwide, and many of these cyclists are children.

Unfortunately, the increase in bicycle riding has been accompanied by a large number of deaths and injuries. "In the United States, 1,200 people die each year as a result of bicycle accidents," said Pat Joyce, president of the New Jersey Insurance News Service, located in Union.

According to Col. Clinton Pagano, director of New Jersey's Division of Motor Vehicles, 18 cyclists died in motor vehicle-related accidents last year in New Jersey.

Forty-nine percent of all bicyclist deaths occur among children ages 16 or younger. The death rate rises rapidly beginning at about age 5 and is highest among 10-13-year-olds. More children are killed and injured on bicycles than on skateboards, roller skates, "big wheels" and scooters combined.

According to the U.S. Department of Transportation's Fatal Accident Reporting System, each year 400 child cyclists die in collisions with motor vehicles, and about 37,000 child cyclists are injured in collisions with motor vehicles. Moreover, 380,000 children are injured in bike-related incidents each year.

In bike-related accidents, 75 percent of all cyclist deaths involve head injuries, and nearly 70 percent of all hospitalized cyclists are treated for head trauma. "All bicycle riders should wear a helmet, regardless of their age," recommends Joyce. "The use of bike helmets could prevent hundreds of fatalities a year and reduce the severity of thousands of serious head injuries."

According to the New England Journal of Medicine, bike helmets have been shown to reduce the risk of head injury by 85 percent and the risk of brain injury by almost 90 percent. Nevertheless, fewer than 2 percent of school-age children wear bike helmets.

Currently, there is a bill before the Assembly Judiciary, Law and Public Safety Committee, sponsored by Assemblyman John V. Kelly, that would require children under 5 years old to wear safety helmets while riding bicycles.

Joyce recommends that cyclists purchase helmets approved by the Snell Memorial Foundation, an independent testing center with very strict standards. "The fit of a helmet is very important. The straps should be adjusted so that the helmet will not come off no matter how hard it's pulled," she says.

Transit advises youngsters about trains and buses

With the arrival of September and a new school year, NJ Transit officials are reminding youngsters to obey safety rules around trains and buses.

"Remember marks the beginning of a new school year," said George Warren, Acting Executive Director of NJ Transit. "Children walking to and from school or to afterschool activities may be coming near our rail lines and bus routes. We want them to know the basic safety rules that will ensure a safe school year."

Among the safety rules are:

- Children are advised not to walk along railroad tracks or on railroad bridges.
- Tracks should only be crossed at signal crossings or at pedestrian overpasses and underpasses.
- If a crossing gate is down, the tracks should not be crossed until the gate is raised.
- Rocks and other debris should not be placed on the tracks.
- As trains approach station platforms, people should stand behind the yellow line near the edge of the platform.

- On electrified rail lines, overhead wires should be avoided.
- Stand back from the curb as a bus approaches.
- Wait until a bus pulls away before crossing the street.
- Never walk in front of or in back of a bus to cross the street.

NJ Transit personnel staff a Rail Safety Education Program that is shown in hundreds of schools across the state each year. The program lasts approximately 45 minutes and introduces students to NJ Transit by briefly touching on its history, describing the types of trains and the variety of structures, i.e., signals and bridges, that comprise the railroad and explaining the type and scope of service provided and the benefits of using trains as a mode of transportation. The program then focuses on the respect students need to give the rail system for their own safety. Inherent dangers of the rail system are emphasized when students learn about the speed of trains, stopping distances, quietness of electric equipment, unexpected train movement and the high voltage contained in the overhead electrical wires.

The program includes the dramatic film, "Chicken on the Tracks." Educators interested in bringing the Rail Safety Education Program to their school can contact Dan Sedaris at 201-714-2702.

NJ Transit also sponsors a Public Transit Education Program in schools throughout the state. The program, which began in 1985, was developed with the cooperation of state educators to teach students about public transportation.

Educators interested in the Public Transit Education Program should call Myra Morris of NJ Transit at 201-643-7182.

Let them arrive there safely.

COUNTY LEADER NEWSPAPERS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1990 SECTION B

Bears, Farmers look to continue '89 success

By MARK YABLONSKY

You know summer's over when everyone goes back to school, but when football and soccer get underway it becomes even more obvious.

In taking a look at local boys' high school soccer within the County Leader coverage area, it appears as though Brearley Regional of Kenilworth — 15-3-3 last fall, and the state's Group 1 runner-up champion to Bernards — should be the team to watch out for this year once again.

With some luck, Union could be a contender in always-tough Watchung Conference and North Jersey Group 4, Section 2 fields, while growing pains appear to be in store for teams such as Dayton, Linden, Roselle Park and Roselle.

So strong were the Bears defensively that a team record 16 shutouts were recorded, and in all, Brearley outscored its foes by the collective margin of 64-9, with only two opponents — Arthur L. Johnson Regional and Westfield — able to score two or more goals in the same game.

And despite the loss of last year's tri-captains, Brian Moleen, Chris Jordan and Mike Napolitano, it seems as though Brearley has enough remaining talent to make good things happen this fall, too.

"Well, we always shoot to be better," explained veteran Brad skipper Al Czaya, who is now in his 22nd season in charge of the Brearley soccer program — and loving every minute of it. "That's our top priority. We never take one step back; we like to take two steps forward."

"The kids have had a good summer and a real good pre-season," Czaya continued, "and their work ethic is just unbelievable. So we're excited about it."

And, apparently, with good reason. For opponents, it would be difficult to discuss the prospects of Brearley's upcoming season without first discussing talented junior forward Matt O'Donnell, whose speedy, smart play up front last year led to 23 goals, following 22 the season before. Other key returners include senior goalie Luan Ahmetaj, a 6-3, 195-pounder who was on hand in goal to record each and every one of those 16 shutouts, and senior stopper-back Paul Pelusio, who is now healthy following a broken leg in last year's Group 1 semifinal game with Midland Park, won by Roselle, 1-0, in a shootout.

At midfield, Czaya has two fine returning players in seniors Vic Varro and Anthony Galdi, while junior Chris Hogan may be ready to step in at stopper.

Still, there's the matter of replacing the Moleen-Jordan-Napolitano triumvirate.

"The quality of the caliber of those guys is never easy to replace," Czaya conceded. "But there's always a sun shining over Brearley."

As straight from the sun of Florida is Argentine native Charlie Camara, who appears ready to replace Jar-

BREARLEY

After years of success and near-misses at sectional titles, the Bears finally broke through with first-ever sectional and North Jersey Group 1 titles last fall, before dropping a heartbreaking 1-0 decision to Bernards in the overall Group 1 title game in Ewing Township on Nov. 16.

don at the center-midfield spot for the Bears.

"He's a perfect gentleman and he's well-liked by everybody," Czaya said. "Moving the puzzle pieces around, he's certainly fit right into that right-center/midfield spot."

"Other people up for grabs," Czaya said, include seniors Mark Patterson and Mike DeRosa, junior Mike Toth and sophomore Mike Micciche.

ROSELLE

The Rams of Abraham Clark High in Roselle are another team in the CLN coverage area that will be looking to improve in 1990. Actually, that had been the case toward the tail end of last season, too, when the Rams began giving up a lot less goals than they had at the start of the schedule.

And, like a lot of other teams, many youthful underclassmen will be breaking into the varsity lineup as well for second-year coach Bob Giannotti.

"I'm optimistic," said Giannotti, whose team, after earning a tie with Dayton in the final game of the '89 campaign, settled for a 3-1-1 record. "Very optimistic. I think we'll score a lot more goals than we did last year."

"We look for a winning season."

Of those youthful faces, three — left halfback Gerardo Diaz, outside left wing James Nividal, and inside forward Juan Carlos Cuevas — are freshmen. Sophomore John Avadia will play at right wing, and juniors Nestor Cuevas and Michael Toscano will play at halfback as well.

Another junior, Michael Thomas, will be a center-halfback; and senior Kimo Miao will be at right fullback. Senior Luis Mejia will start at forward.

YOUNG LIONS — Rusty Calocchio, left, Pete Calocchio and Ruben Gonzalez are three of the mainstays ready to guide this year's Roselle Catholic High boys' soccer team. Both members of the Union Lancers, the two Calocchio cousins are the team's two best midfielders and play well within R.C.'s 4-4-2 defensive alignment.

LINDEN

Only three short years ago, Andrew Eng took over a girl's basketball program that had just come off of a season of dormancy at Linden High, and turned it into one of the school's finest athletic programs. And now, as the affable, personable Eng begins his first year in charge of the Linden boys' soccer program, you might say he's got his work cut out for him here, too.

"We're in a similar situation," explained Eng, who inherits a team that won two games last fall. "Our major problem is learning the game strategically. And my guess is that it will take us one month to learn how to attack correctly."

"I see there is a light at the end of the tunnel," Eng continued. "My goal is to be better than last year."

If nothing else, the Tigers will have some strength in goaltending. Senior Brian Figueroa, better known for his baseball accomplishments, is out for soccer again for the first time in two years, and Eng, recognizing his athletic prowess, feels that Figueroa's powerful, downfield kicks will be a big plus for Linden in clearing the ball out of Linden's territory.

Another plus is the return of the team's leading scorer from a year ago, winger Frank Jomez, whose hat trick against Union Catholic gave the Tigers one of their two victories. Sophomore Alfredo Caceres will play at wing as well.

Other names to look at include junior midfielder Jesse Holfrich,

Card and coin shows slated

Two separate events pertaining to the field of sports and coin collecting will be held on successive Sundays throughout the remainder of this month, beginning this Sunday, Sept. 16.

The same event will be held once again on Sept. 30.

In between, the Central Jersey Stamp, Coin and Card Exchange has a show set for next Sunday, Sept. 23, at the Budget Motor Lodge, located at 350 Route 9 North in Woodbridge. The show will run from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

There, a wide range of choice United States and worldwide stamps, coins, postcards and covers will be on display and offered for sale. In addition, there will be extensive stocks of sports cards for sale.

Dealers on hand will include those who are members of the American and New Jersey Stamp Dealers Associations.

In both cases, further information is available by calling 247-1093.

Lynch new Kean coach

Joe Lynch, a former All-American designated hitter for Rutgers University, was named as the new head coach for the Kean College baseball team, replacing Paul Schwendel who had resigned recently.

Lynch is originally from Pequannock but now lives in Bloomfield. Kean was 18-20-1 this past spring.

Stallions, Bears tie, 1-1

The Union Soccer League opened its sixth season of play this past weekend with opening day ceremonies and a full slate of games.

The league fields 37 teams in five divisions this fall, along with three traveling squads. Over 600 township youths are registered to play. New this year is the formation of an all-girls league.

The following are the results of this past week's games:

STALLIONS 1, BEARS 1
The Ryder Insurance Agency Stallions and the Union Soccer League Bears opened their season with an exciting 1-1 tie. Kathleen Hanelmann scored for the Bears, and Jason Shapiro, off of an assist from Melissa Burke, tallied for the Stallions.

COBRAS 5, MUSTANGS 0
A strong offensive surge led the Stacy Printing Cobras to a 5-0 win over the Mustangs, as Kyle Cook enjoyed a hat trick for the winning side. Anthony Stacy scored the other two Cobras goals, and Kristin Theresa and David Fackel lent further contributions to the team's attack.

STEELERS 1, KNIGHTS 0
In a tightly-played contest, the Garden State Printing Steelers, behind an early goal by David DiGiorgio, edged the Union Soccer League Knights, 1-0. Justin Salton, was credited with an assist on the play, while teammates Michael Zezas and Sean Hoop played solid games at fullback for the Knights. John Damato and Nicholas Derasmo also "aided the winning side's effort to support the goalending of Anthony Stacy.

PANTHERS 3, CYCLONES 0
The Tom Swick Plumbing Panthers, on goals from Adam Guaraci, Scott Dinardo and Justin Kucuk, outlasted the Galloping Hill Cyclones, 3-0. Jim Bace led the Panther defense, BACK HOME — Boxing coach Don Givens, left, of Linden was recently coaching overseas, in both the U.S.A.-Yugoslavia and U.S.A.-Hungary bouts as part of the United States of America Amateur Boxing Federation's activities. Givens, who will soon turn 56, has been a coach for more than 25 years, and is himself a former New Jersey Golden Gloves Novice champion (1953). At center is one of Givens's pupils, Rodney Price of Elizabeth, who participated in last year's U.S. Olympic Boxing Festival in Oklahoma City; and coach George Howard, also of Elizabeth.

WHO'S ON FIRST

Who's on 1st?

This week's question: Twenty years ago, beautiful Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh opened its doors, only a few weeks after Forbes Field was closed. Do you know who hit the first home run at this new park? A clue: This super hitter managed to drive in 90 runs or more for eleven straight years, and is today a coach on the same team he played for at the time of that home run.

Last week's answer: The first Met player ever to hit three home runs in one game was outfielder Jim Hickman, who did it on September 3, 1965 in a 6-3 win against the St. Louis Cardinals at the old Busch Stadium, known earlier as Sportsman's Park.

All the great of Hickman's homers were long drives off of losing Card hurler Ray Sadecki, who had been a 20-game winner for the defuncting World Champions the year before. The win went to 21-year-old Dick Selma, then making his first-ever big league start.

Hickman, who was dealt along with Ron Hunt from the Mets to the Dodgers after the 1966 season — in exchange for Tommy Davis — was an original member of the Mets in 1962. Selected from the Cardinals prior to the 1961 N.L. expansion draft, Hickman hit only 60 homers in five full seasons for New York. He later went to the Cubs, and after a stint back in the minors, returned to the big leagues for good in 1968. Overall, his best year by far was in 1970 when he belted 32 homers and drove in 115 runs while hitting .315 for Chicago in 149 games.

Four other Mets later joined Hickman by hitting three round-trippers in one game: Dave Kingman vs. the L.A. Dodgers on June 4, 1976, Claudio Washington vs. the Dodgers on June 22, 1980, Darryl Strawberry vs. the Cubs on August 5, 1985, and Gary Carter vs. the San Diego Padres on Sept. 2, 1985. Interestingly, all of the above occurred on the road; no Met has ever hit three over the fence in a game at Shea Stadium.

Although Kingman did hit three homers at Shea in a 1979 game, he did it as a member of the Chicago Cubs.

And our congratulations go to Henry Haseup of Ledl, who has won his first $5 certificate to a local sporting goods store.

Please have your responses in our Union offices — at 1291 Stuyvesant Ave. — by no later than noon each Monday.

And please send us only one answer per week.

ROYALS 6, WIZARDS 2
The Multi Chevrolet Royals overcame an early deficit to defeat the Diamond Importers of America Wizards, 6-2. David McCaffrey and Jason Klotzer scored two goals each, with Danny Rzegocki and Scott Tavarez adding the final two scores. Doc Burkhard, and Chris Sileo, also played well for the winning side. The Wizards had jumped to a 2-1 lead at half-time on goals from Brian Shama-han and Chris Soney. Matt Brady hustled on defense, while Wizard goalie Steven Viana turned back many Royal shots.

SHARKS 8, ISLANDERS 0
The N.J. Tool & Die Sharks began their season by beating the Inter-Community Bank Islanders, 8-0. Ian Byonnan led the Sharks with five goals, while Scott Olson added two, and Jason Bellantoni, Joe Gagliardo and Elliot-DeSanto-joined in solid games for the Sharks, and the Islanders were led by the efforts of Jason Esteves, David Carlo and Justin Hahn.

Refs sought
The Springfield Recreation Department is presently seeking referees for its fall youth soccer program. Candidates must be at least 16 years of age, and own soccer experience. Referees will be paid $10 per game. Further information is available by calling 912-2226.

Good tourney

The St. Joseph's boy's baseball team of Roselle did well in three tournaments this summer, first rolling to the title in Clark, then battling on into the Roselle Park and Ford tournaments, although not quite as successfully.

In the Clark tournament, Rosello won the title in three straight games, by scores of 12-3, 11-6 and 3-1, as Tim Benoit and Jamar Wise, respectively, won trophies for offensive and defensive heroics.

Moving on to the R.P. tournament, Rosello won its opener by a 9-0 score, before dropping a thrilling 3-2 decision to Berkeley Heights, the eventual champion. Then in a contest with Park, the host team, a triple in extra innings decided it.

Rosello won its first two games in the Ford tournament, but two fourth defeats to the eventual second- and third-place finishers ended Roselle's stay.

Team members included Benoit, Wise, Craig Howlett, Chris Trolan, Brian Edmonson, Sean McGarry, Brian Tedesco, John Miller, Chris Forest, Steve Catone, Chris Myers, Robert Beck and Andrew Biddulph.

THE MVP — Linden basketball standout Wally Dixon holds both his Most Valuable Player trophy, as well as his team championship trophy, following Linden's recent 61-54 win over Weequahic that kept the Linden Summer High School Basketball League championship at home. Dixon scored a total of 71 points in the three playoff games to win the MVP award.

WHERE TO DINE

A Guide to Find the Finest Dining In New Jersey

Restaurant review

By EARL MOORE

If authentic Slavic food and entertainment is your passion, then The Wallington Exchange, located at 365 Main Ave. in Wallington, is the place for you. Stepping into The Wallington Exchange, a Slavic cabaret restaurant just minutes from Garden State Parkway, Exit 153, is like stepping into another country. The restaurant is steeped in Slavic and Hungarian culture, and the perfect combination of authentic food and lively entertainment makes dinner at The Wallington Exchange a true dining experience.

My companion and I were pleasantly surprised when we walked into the restaurant for the first time. The dining room was spacious and simple, but a small stage at the top of the room shimmered with Slavic cabaret decor. Stretched across the wall to our left was a long, clear bar, at which we were quickly seated for a cocktail.

New and interesting liquors from halfway around the world stocked the shelves, but I decided to make a selection from the array of imported and domestic beers offered. The decision was difficult — should I begin with a German weiss beer? A Grolsch from Holland? Or perhaps a Czechoslovakian pilsner? Finally, the choice was made, not by myself, but by the bartender, and I started off with a tall, tasty bottle of Ruzkovec Lager, imported directly from Russia.

After a few minutes, with the evening's show about to begin, we were seated at our table with neatly arranged silverware and plates, and a crisply folded napkin. A basket of fresh pumpernickel and yeast bread and a bowl of butter was brought to our table immediately.

Our waitress, a charming and experienced server with a distinctly Slavic accent, recommended my choice — the Slavic Food Festival for $20. This choice was a complete 10-course meal with an after-dinner policy attached to each generously Eastern European delicacy. My companion ordered the Potato Pierogi dinner with sautéed onions and sour cream for $16.95. We began our meal with fresh fruit cup, followed by a steaming cup of Zary Dnia — a beef and barley soup with potatoes, carrots and light spices. My first entree plate came with two plump, deliciously seasoned Chicken Paprikas, with Nokedli dumplings and gravy to the side. I also was presented with a bowl of Bigos — juicy cubes of beef and veal smothered with zesty cabbage and onion sautéed to perfection. Meanwhile, the evening's entertainment took the stage. Three young women, the rest of September, Dimitri Rogal performs as a delightful singing personality, accompanied by an authentic Slavic band and, on occasion, by an Egyptian belly dancer who tantalizes the audience with an act of her own.

As I finished my first course, our waitress brought on the second helping dish. This time, tender, thinly sliced Brisket of Beef with gravy wrapped around a pair of pierogies — tulip-shaped parcels of dough overfilled with creamy potato filling and topped with browned onions. My companion's dish came with six. I was also presented with a stuffed cabbage swimming in its own tasty sauce.

We ended our meal sharing a platter of Apple Strudel, Espynsky Studud and Cruchickis — Polish bread-shaped cookies lightly fried and sprinkled with powdered sugar. My companion ordered an espresso, which I enjoyed a Polish Coffee made with Cracovia — a spicy, aromatic honey liqueur whose recipe dates back hundreds of years.

We thoroughly enjoyed our evening of dining and entertainment at The Wallington Exchange. NEXT time, we will order something from the la carte menu, which boasts a number of fresh fish, veal, beef and other dishes with prices ranging from $16.95 to $26.95.

Open Thursday through Saturday from 5 p.m. Sunday from 1 p.m. Any other day, by special arrangement. Entertainment is provided every night, with a cabaret charge on Friday and Saturday nights. Major credit cards accepted.

Homebuyers not 'typical'

A study of New Jersey homebuyers of newly built homes commissioned by Public Service Electric and Gas Company (PSE&G), reveals that commonly held beliefs about "typical" homebuyers that may have been true five years ago no longer apply today.

The image of a young married couple with two children is giving way to more single homebuyers. More than half the purchasers with incomes under $41,000 were single. Also, one out of four women who looked at new homes was making the decision to buy on her own.

Energy-related features for homes, which can save money and increase comfort for these single homebuyers, are the focus of Energy Thrift Home (ETH), a program designed by PSE&G, to assure energy-efficient heating, cooling and water heating systems; additional insulation; automatic set-back thermostats in participating ETH communities.

NAIOP to meet

Benefits to be derived from the current real estate credit crisis and actions developers can take to protect themselves will be addressed by a panel of banking, institutional lending and regulatory experts at the New Jersey Chapter, National Association of Industrial and Office Parks (NAIOP) general membership meeting today at Mayfair Farms, West Orange.

The meeting will begin with a cocktail hour at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner.

NAIOP is an organization of more than 7,000 professionals involved in development, master planning, design, construction, financing and management of industrial and office park properties.

Sellers must price realistically

Realistic pricing is the key to a successful sale in today's real estate market.

That fact, seemingly simple, seems anything but simple to many sellers. They recall wistfully the highs of the market of three years ago.

To help sellers overcome the psychological hump and maximize today's opportunities, Burgdorff Realtors developed "The Sellers Seminar," a presentation which they say is as strong in sensitivity and understanding for the seller's situation as it is in market analysis.

"Pricing was always important. In this market it's crucial," says Peter Burgdorff.

"We are nowhere near the peak of 1987. Reality could not sustain those prices." Today, Burgdorff advises, it is wisest to establish a realistic and competitive price when a house first comes on the market. The main activity from prospective buyers and real estate professionals will occur in the first two or three weeks.

Moving can be difficult for children

If you've recently relocated your family to a new community, or are concerned about how buying a new home will affect your children, they usually adapt well to new environments and school systems, according to relocation experts at Weichen, Realtors.

Psychologist Dr. Ruth Alterman, director of Special Education for the Port Chester, N.Y., School System said, "People are more mobile now, and moving from one community to another is not the crisis it used to be."
