Police said the driver of the vehicle, Harriet Morowitz, 46, of Short Hills, was taken to Saint Barnabas Medical Center, where she was treated for shock. Three other, William Ash of Springfield, who was walking outside the store, and two patrons, Lisset Lux and Arika Anarich, both living in Germany, were treated for minor injuries caused by flying glass.

"I had just come out to see what happened over on Morris Avenue," said John Hay, who was working at the drive-up Potomac at the time of the incident. "There was a fender bender over on Morris at about the same time the Mercedes went through window," he said.

Hay said he ran to the scene to help, but an officer had taken control of the situation. "I've never seen a police officer react that quickly. There was smoke from the car and sparks flying from the engine. Mercedes was on fire. I was in the car when it happened, but the officer didn't hesitate."

"We were called in because of the explosive limits of the alcohol," said Captain Jim Boyer of the Springfield Fire Department. Boyer said the spilled alcohol seeped through the floor of the liquor store, resulting in a build-up of fumes in the basement below. The Health Department ordered adjacent stores to be evacuated while firefighters set up fans to ventilate the building.

Florence Valley, who was in Norma's Salon located next door at the time of the crash, said she "thought the building was coming down." Valley and several others, who complained of irritated throats, were treated at the scene by first aid volunteers.

The owner of the liquor store, Jimmy Wallner, chatted with a small gathering of people as repairmen worked to clear the debris from the store.

"We'll be open for business as soon as possible," Wallner said, noting that the damage would be covered by insurance. Chisholm said he believed the storefront was securely boarded by 4 p.m. the same day.

Charges have not been filed against the driver of the vehicle.

Car crashes into local storefront

4 treated for minor injuries

By David Brown
Managing Editor

Four people were injured Monday when the driver of a Mercedes Benz swerved to avoid hitting a pedestrian and drove her vehicle through the front window of Milton Liquors, located at Springfield's General Greene Shopping Center.

Passerby and employees and patrons of Milton Liquors in the General Greene Shopping Center were fortunate to escape serious injury as a result of the accident, which also caused damage to hundreds of liquor bottles and resulted in the potential for an explosion because of the alcohol's fumes.

According to Police Chief William Chisholm, the cause of the accident is still under investigation. "The driver said only that she was driving around a pedestrian in the parking lot and the next thing she saw she had crashed into the store," he said.

According to one witness, police were on the scene within seconds of the 10 a.m. crash, and were followed by Springfield firefighters, first aid and health department personnel, members of the Hazardous Materials Response Team and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Police said the driver of the vehicle, Harriet Morowitz, 46, of Short Hills, was taken to Saint Barnabas Medical Center, where she was treated for shock. Three other, William Ash of Springfield, who was walking outside the store, and two patrons, Lisset Lux and Arika Anarich, both living in Germany, were treated for minor injuries caused by flying glass.

Lifeguards dive to the rescue

By Dennis Schaal
Staff Writer

Karin Ferraro, a three-year veteran of the lifeguard squad at the Springfield Community Pool, watched with a little apprehension as a group of day-campers lined up for some practice dives at the deep end of the pool.

Within moments, Ferraro, 18, a Union resident, took a dive of her own — but this one was not for practice. She leaped into the pool when she observed Rebecca Chambers panic in the water. The lifeguard grabbed the 6-year-old and pulled her to the side of the pool. Rebecca was fine after the incident.

"I couldn't explain to anyone how to rescue someone," Ferraro recalled last week following the July 23 rescue. "You just do it." Ferraro observed that she only got nervous following the incident.

Pool manager Bill Shaw disclosed last week that the rescue was one of two at the swimming facility within five days. Neither of the savas developed into an acute situation. But the two rescues in such a short timeframe were significant since all last year there were only two.

On July 28 Kristin McLeer, also 18 and in her third year on the lifeguard squad, jumped into the pool to rescue a guest, Steven Cooke, 8, of Staten Island. Cooke had also gone off the diving board despite admonitions by his father.

Shaw stated that the facility is "packed" this season. Weekday attendance this year, he said, compares to weekend participation last year. The two rescues took place during the July heat wave, a period when residents crowded the facility in an effort to beat the heat.

The pool manager contended that the facility is "legitimately crowded" this summer due to the implementation of a photo-badge system. Shaw said that contrary to previous years when people might have been able to sneak in without paying, this year, with the new identification system, there is no way around the $170 fee.

Police train through TV

By Dennis Schaal
Staff Writer

Springfield police officers have traditionally reported a half-hour early on the first day that they start a new shift rotation. Under the existing schedule of things, during these pre-shift intervals they regularly listen to a training lecture presented by a sergeant or a lieutenant.

But, according to Police Chief William Chisholm, this type of training lecture, while not being phased out, will be the immediate future frequent-ly toward police departments.

Chisholm said the department expects the company to install within several weeks a satellite dish and "three viewing points," namely television monitors, at police headquarters.

LATN is a product of the Dallas-based Wescott Communications Inc. In addition to police programming, Wescott also offers broadcasts tailored to the automotive industry, fire and emergency squads and professional security forces. Springfield will receive the police program only. It is aired 24 hours per day.

In addition to pre-shift viewing, police officers also will be able to see the shows during off-duty hours at the station.

Unlike WINS radio, "that gives you the world in 22 minutes," LATN offers eight-hour segments that are repeated three times daily. A typical sampling from the LATN Program Guide includes:

- Roll-Call, a show that covers law enforcement news, the workings of high-tech equipment and innovative tactics;
- Drug Crackdown, an offering that discusses narcotics investigations, undercover work and legal and safety issues;
- Street Beat, a program for patrol officers that covers techniques involved in high-risk street assignments, and;
- Crime Scene, a show geared for detectives on investigating a location where a crime took place.

Chisholm indicated that LATN will improve training techniques because the department cannot afford to send as many officers as it wants to seminars and school.

Previously, if Springfield officers wanted to view police-oriented programs, they had to travel to other municipalities that had the requisite satellite dishes. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, for instance, offers certain training documentaries that Springfield police sometimes watched in other communities.

Once the new equipment is installed in Springfield, the officers will be able to review the latest crime tips at headquarters before their shifts and after-hours.

Chisholm hopes the new LATN experiment will save the township money and provide police with more thorough-going training.

Don Tre, the driving professionals

Learning to drive on the heavily traveled roadways of the New York metropolitan area, such as Routes 22 and 78, the Garden State Parkway, and Morris Avenue takes a lot of practice.

More importantly, it requires an experienced teacher schooled in every aspect of driving — from the working of the car's instrument panel to navigating the busiest highways.

Don-Tre Driving School, the driving professionals, can offer teachers with experience that includes giving teen-age drivers their first taste of life behind the wheel.

The school is the idea of Don Carpenter, an assistant football coach and driver education instructor at New Providence High School.

"What prompted us to start the school is the fact that school systems have done away with driver education because of budget cuts," said Carpenter, who started the school about two years ago with his daughters, Carol and Nancy. Today, NPHS football coach Frank Botone also teaches at Don-Tre.

One dozen area high schools currently recommend Don-Tre to their students for behind-the-wheel education. In addition to Union, Roselle Park, Linden and Westfield high schools, Don-Tre has also been recognized and endorsed by AAA.

All teachers at Don-Tre are certified to teach driver education by the state Division of Motor Vehicles and the state Department of Education. To be certified by the DMV requires having a license for three years and passing a stringent road test and written exam.

"This is the only course in school that the kids have to apply in life that could be a life or death situation," Carpenter said.

Instruction at Don-Tre is not limited to first-time or young drivers. "We cater to all ages," is the company's motto.

Office hours for Don-Tre are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Weekend instruction is also available.

For expert training in driving technique, call Don-Tre School of Professional Driving at 376-8118.

Local ethics probes may go to state panel

By David Brown
Managing Editor
The answers to any questions of ethical propriety by local government officials will probably be sought in Trenton, according to members of the Township Committee.

Although a formal decision has not been announced, a majority of the committee members, with the exception of Martha Forman and Leo Eisen, said they will probably agree to deferring on cases involving ethical violations that may arise in the township to the state, in accordance with the recently enacted Local Government Ethics Law.

The ethics law, which was enacted by the state legislature in February, requires each municipality to adopt a common, statewide code of ethics for its elected officials and employees. Though they may establish their own state-designed judicial board to rule on any cases of ethical impropriety that may arise, members of the Springfield Township Committee said they would just assume let the state handle the job.

"The state makes the final decision anyhow," Mayor Mike Marshall said, referring to the appeal process that leads to the state's ethics board. "So I think we're going to let the state handle it."

Forman, however, said she wasn't in total agreement with the feelings expressed by her colleagues. "I don't know if it is in the best interest of the town to send cases involving ethical problems to the state. I think the issue deserves careful attention," she said. Committee member Leo Eisen was also undecided about the issue.

The law, which was the result of a 17 years of compromise and planning by Senator Paul Coniglio (D-Bergen), has been criticized by many municipal officials as further intervention by the state into municipal affairs. While many municipalities such as Springfield are expected to defer the judicial process of the ethics law to the state, others say they prefer to take their own cases of alleged violations of the law's 11 provisions. In addition to setting up their own review boards, municipalities may adopt an ethics code more stringent than the one enacted by the state. "We haven't had any problems regarding ethical behavior since I can remember," Committee member Philip Kurbus said, noting that he thought it would "difficult to legislate ethics. But we'll let the state judge any cases that might arise," he said.

"The township has had an ethics committee in place for years," Committee member Jeffrey Katz said, "but it just doesn't pay to have a local board."

Under the provisions of the ethics law, local government officers must also file an income disclosure form, listing the source, though not the amount, of gifts from a single source which exceed $400, honorariums from a single source exceeding $250, and income from a single source exceeding $2,000.

Two join UCC grads

Two Mountaineer residents, Geraldine Barzil and Joan Barone, are among 73 students who are graduates for diplomas in practical nursing from Union County College, Scotch Plains.

The graduates will officially be sworn in to their profession at a pinning ceremony at 7 p.m. Aug. 22 at the Roy W. Smith Theater on the Cranford campus.

The pinning ceremony marks the culmination of a one-year course of full-time study, or two years of part-time course work. Upon successful completion, students will be eligible to take the licensing examination qualifying them to practice their profession in New Jersey.

During the ceremony, students will receive their pins and nursing caps, and take the official pledge for the profession. A reception will follow.

This year marks the first time that persons completing the program through a weekend-only curriculum will also participate in the pinning ceremony. These students took the course work during a full-day program offered only on Saturdays for their employment of personal convenience.

The practical nursing program is a one-year diploma curriculum based on concepts from biological and physical sciences that underlie nursing measures and behavioral science concepts necessary to individualize care. It is a planned sequence of correlated theory, taught at the college's Scotch Plains campus, and clinical experience, taught at area hospitals and

Appointments announced

Kitten rescued from sewer

A joint operation by the Springfield Public Works Department and the Associated Humane Society resulted in the rescue a kitten from beneath the streets of the township.

According to Terry Clark, assistant director of the Associated Humane Society, the kitten's cries were heard by passersby who notified the Newark-based agency. "The kitten's cries must have echoed through the storm drainage system," Clark said, explaining that the animal "appeared too weak" to struggle out of a small pipe connecting two larger drains.

The kitten, described as white, about 4 months old with gray markings on its back, was finally coaxed out of the pipe by a mesh of water applied by Public Works Department employees.

The kitten, which had no license, was taken to Newark and treated for shock and exhaustion. Anyone with information regarding the kitten's home may call the Associated Humane Society at (908) 824-7080.

School lunches are reinstated

Springfield Board of Education Finance Chairman Keith Kurzer announced that the school lunch program would be reinstated, due to a $45,000 reduction in the program's cost over previous years.

The board is in a position to reinstate the program based on the cafeteria management service revenue-producing ideas that have trimmed costs from $46,000 in 1989-90 to approximately $3,500 for this year, Kurzer said. The program just about pays for itself, and to deny the children and the community this service when we could operate the program at no cost would be a counterproductive decision and an inappropriate use of resources and services.

Kurzer studied the lunch program services and costs with other members of the finance committee and when proposing the 1991-92 school budget, consideration was given to eliminating the service due to its high cost the previous year. In the fall of 1990, a change in the cafeteria management service and "tight control" by the committee enabled the district to reduce costs and offset losses by increasing revenue-generating food sales.

The Board of Education, under the recommendation of the finance committee, has renewed the contract with J-Co Food Service Cafeteria Management Company to operate the district's hot lunch program in each school with the exception of one school with the exception of one school.

Approximately 25 percent of the students who participate in the hot lunch program are from the district's poorest families. When questioned about the administrative commitment to run the lunch program, Superintendent of Schools Guy Friedland said, "The cost to operate the lunch program under J-Co's Administrative Cafeteria Service" was approximately $48,000, which was consuming resources that would otherwise be utilized for instruction, and it was a priority of the administration not to commit to the cafeteria program unless it could be self-supporting." Friedland said the school with the exception of one school with the exception of one school.

Low-cost milk available

St. James School, located at 41 S. Plainfield Ave., Springfield, announced that low-cost milk will be available to all children enrolled.

In the operation of child nutrition programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, national origin, age or handicap.

Parents may call Kathy Prandini, secretary, at (201) 376-5194 for further information on the program.

Services, programs for handicapped

The schools of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 — David Breauxley in Kenilworth, Jonathan Dayton in Springfield, Arthur L. Johnson in Clark and Governor Livingston in Berkeley Heights — maintain many programs and services for handicapped students in grades nine to 12.

The Regional District seeks handicapped youth not in school so that they may be made aware of the educational opportunities available to them.

Safety Tips

The following safety tips were offered by the Springfield Police Department.

Never leave your keys in an unattended car, even while running a quick errand, and always lock your car.

Never attach a tag with your name and address to a key ring. If keys are lost or stolen, the tag will lead the thief directly to your car, and your home. Leave only the ignition key with a parking attendant.

Always parking attendant may have access to your keys. If you are in a hurry, use the "Early Autumn" Spenser searches for the missing mother of his spiritual son Paul Gioacchini, and inevitably crosses paths with now familiar mobsters and their henchmen.

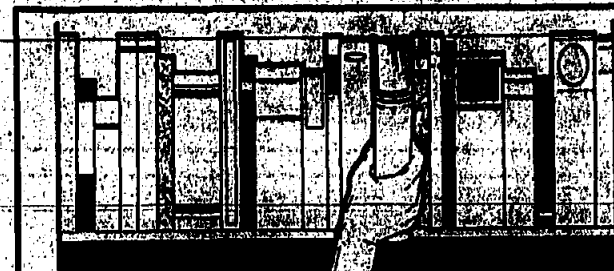

At night, park in well lighted areas with pedestrian traffic. Auto thieves do not like working in spots where they are clearly visible.

Whenever possible, turn wheels sharply toward the curb when parking, making it extra difficult for thieves to tow your car.

When you park for car, remove CB, tape deck, especially radar detectors and all other valuable possessions from the seat. These items tempt thieves and should be locked in the trunk. If possible, also remove the CB antenna and stow it in the trunk.

With an obsolete engraver, such as your operator's license number on CB's, tape decks, radar detectors and similar items. Consider engraving the same number in several places under the hood, on car doors, trunk lid or other conspicuous places so that a positive identification can be made of your vehicle if it is recovered after theft.

More summer reading suggestions

Spenser fans may rejoice at the arrival of Robert B. Parker's latest mystery about the Boston private investigator titled "Pastime." In this sequel to "Early Autumn," Spenser searches for the missing mother of his spiritual son Paul Gioacchini, and inevitably crosses paths with now familiar mobsters and their henchmen.

In Tom Clancy's latest techno-thriller "The Sum of All Fears," the world is because of one terrorist act. Jack Ryan and the FBI must find a swift solution to a volatile situation which is too late for humankind.

Anita Brookner's "Brief Lives" presents a haunting friendship between two very different women, one rich and glamorous, the other modest, timid and polite. This is well written and carefully cast. In "Rites of Passage," two local authors, Timothy Benford of Mountainside and James Johnson of Westfield, tell the bizarre true story of the John List family murders.

Library users are invited to stock up on extra summer reading books next week and to hold all library materials until Sept. 3, when an amnesty period will begin. No overdue fines will be assessed, regardless of their due date, for items returned between Sept. 3 and 14. Residents can take advantage of this fine-free period to return long overdue library materials without penalty.

Children's Specialized Hospital, New Jersey's only comprehensive pediatric rehabilitation hospital, is located in Mountainside and offers extensive outpatient services at its outpatient center in Fanwood. In addition, the hospital is building a 30-bed facility in Ocean County.

Founded in 1891, Children's Specialized is marking its centennial with a yearlong calendar of community events.

Muroski condemns killer's parole

Roselle Park Councilman Carlisle Muroski is strongly and vigorously condemning the recent decision of the New Jersey Parole Board to free convicted killer Neil Costanzo.

In 1978, Costanzo murdered 18-year-old Michelle DeMarzo of Cranford. He is due to be paroled next month.

Library users are invited to stock up on extra summer reading books next week and to hold all library materials until Sept. 3, when an amnesty period will begin. No overdue fines will be assessed, regardless of their due date, for items returned between Sept. 3 and 14.

Residents can take advantage of this fine-free period to return long overdue library materials without penalty.

"If the radical-liberals on the gutless parole board insist upon endangering our lives, then the time has come to consider abolition of the parole board. Their selection and parole should be drastically reduced. It is a pervasive institutional scandal."

Muroski is also planning to introduce a resolution before Borough Council, condemning the parole and requesting its rescission.

Mayor extends Saturday invite

Mayor Marc Marshall has set aside the second Saturday morning of each month from 9-11 to meet with the residents of Springfield. Aug. 10 will be the eighth Saturday Morning with the Mayor. The public is invited to meet with the mayor informally on a first come/first served basis to discuss any concerns that they might have.

Marshall said that the response to these informal meetings has been very positive and informative. "I established this program in January in order to make this office more accessible to the residents. I have found that a surprisingly large number of people have taken advantage of these meetings."

Home rule

The Board of Chosen Freeholders adopted the Union County Utilities Authority's 60-percent recycling plan Friday. A key motivation for passing the plan was to maintain home rule.

The UCUA plan is quite elaborate. It includes proposals to build three recycling facilities which will sort the waste stream. It also includes a monitoring process which will require additional manpower and additional money to implement. The UCUA cannot estimate the amount of manpower and money it will take, but the authority assures the public that the additional funding will be inversely proportional to a reduction in tipping fees.

We have a problem with the freeholders endorsing a plan such as this with a total disregard for financial implications. We also have a problem with the UCUA's failure to do all its homework.

If the plan had not been adopted, the county would have to comply with whatever regulations the state chose to institute. For obvious reasons, maintaining local control of programs is important. The county should, in many instances, try to maintain local control. Such control enables flexibility, and a personal approach which could not be maintained with control from the state level.

However, a balance must constantly be struck between financial expenditures and maintaining control. In this instance, if a balance had been struck, no one would know.

But that transcends the issue, albeit an important issue, of balance between home rule and spending. While the authority made cost-based decisions when choosing components of the plan, it did not analyze the total package for cheaper methods of enforcement. Union County has already achieved 44 percent recycling. How much work is really needed to spark a 16-percent increase? Is there a real need to collect quarterly reports from "places of employment"? Is there a real need to conduct annual audits?

These questions and the cost of implementing methods compared with other alternatives should have been addressed prior to jumping headlong into a recycling plan, even if it can be revised at a later date.

We understand a need for reducing the waste stream, and environmental hazards associated with failure to recycle, but the failure of the UCUA and the freeholders to do their homework is unacceptable.

We cannot afford to write blank checks. Even for our environment.

Eliminate the tolls

The New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection is considering adopting California's automobile emissions program. The program will attempt to reduce emission of volatile organic compounds and nitrogen oxide, two contributors to New Jersey's pollution problem.

The DEP has also circulated fliers asking New Jersey drivers to carpool and use their vehicles less in an attempt to reduce the amount of ozone emitted into the air.

These measures are for the sake of meeting the standards under the amendments to the federal Clean Air Act, which was passed last year. The state was classified as being in "severe non-attainment" of those standards.

State officials are blaming New Jersey drivers for the high levels of ozone the state is experiencing. Passing blame is nothing new, so we're sure to be blamed for the $2 million demonstration project the DEP is conducting to determine the feasibility of alternate, or cleaner-burning, fuel vehicles in state vehicle fleets, which DEP Commissioner Scott Weinert claims is key to the California emissions program.

An alternative that has yet to be announced by the DEP in its attempt to reduce the amount of pollution and smog in New Jersey and one that, at this time, seems to be most feasible, is to eliminate the tolls on the Garden State Parkway.

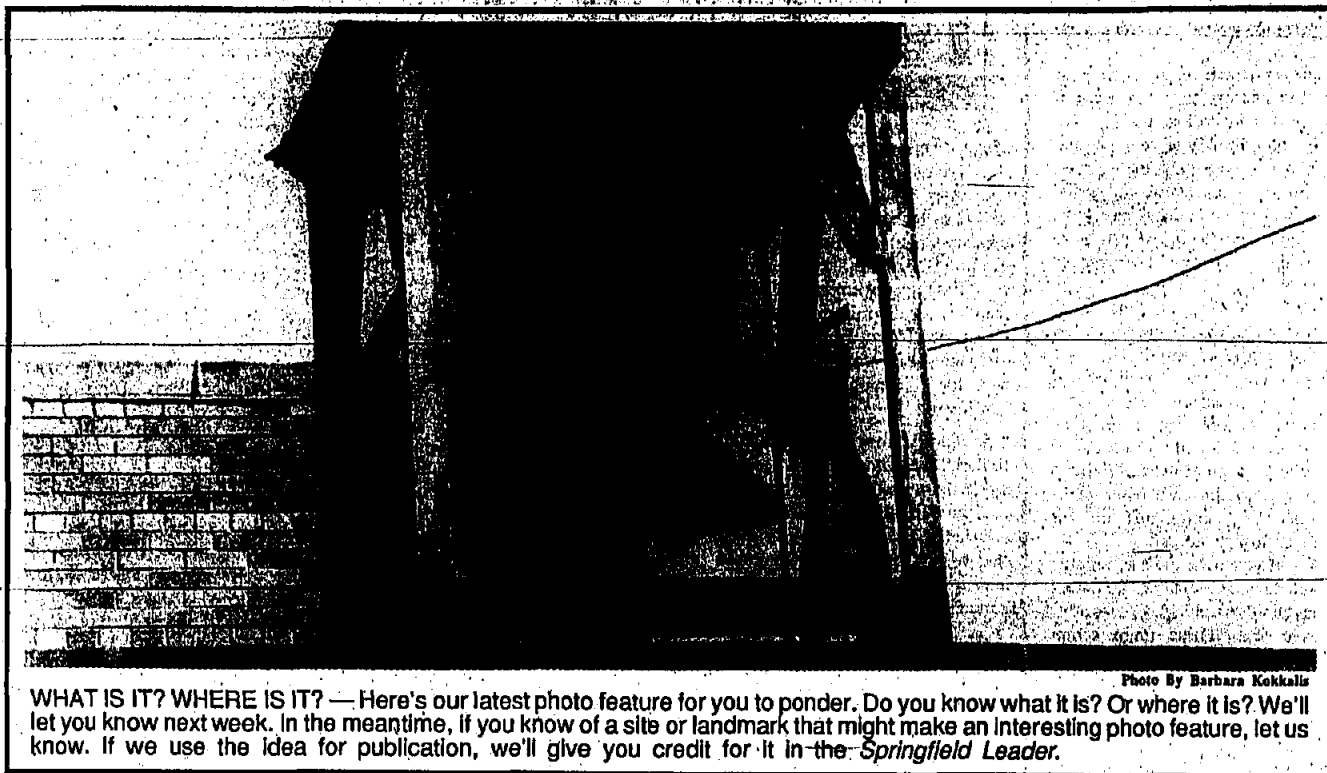

The stop-and-go traffic at each toll plaza in the state is certainly a heavy contributor to pollution and high levels of ozone. In addition, fuel is wasted with the deceleration and acceleration of vehicles at the tolls.

Besides, New Jersey residents for years have been asking for the elimination of the tolls to make their trips across the state and to the New Jersey Shore less of a burden.

Officials will argue that the money collected at the tolls is for highway repair and maintenance. A question the state should ask itself is how much of that money is allocated for the salaries of the extremely high paid toll collectors, some of whom make more than $12 an hour.

It's about time the state began listening to and acting on behalf of the people it serves.

Eliminate the tolls.

Convicted child abusers need to be tagged

The disappearance of 5-year-old Timothy Wilsey at a carnival in Sayreville has baffled authorities and pulled at the heart strings of New Jersey residents distressed by his unexplained disappearance. With no clues to go on, police are searching the files of convicted child molesters to learn if any of them might be connected to the case.

Their task is made even more difficult by the fact that child molesters often travel from state to state, and there is no central record-keeping system to track them. Of the 2.4 million reported cases of child abuse in 1989, some 380,000 involved sexual abuse. As high as these statistics are, child molestation is one of the most under-reported crimes; only 10 percent are ever disclosed.

The widespread tragedy of sexual abuse and child molestation is compounded by the fact that child sex molesters are often serial offenders with prior conviction records. A National Institute of Mental Health

Report From Washington

By Matthew Rinaldo

study found that the typical offender molests an average of 117 children, most of whom do not report the offense. Those who attack young boys molest an average of 281 children. A study of imprisoned offenders found that the behavior is compulsive, and that sex offenders against children often have the same personality traits as serial killers.

According to the Department of Justice, over 85 percent of non-family abductions involved force and over 75 percent of the offenders carried weapons. They move from state to state, leaving behind arrest records that local police in another jurisdiction may never discover.

There is no centralized national source through which law enforcement personnel can obtain data relating to persons who have committed crimes of child abuse. It allows child abusers to go from state to state undetected and even to apply for jobs that involve close contact and supervision of children.

These cases do not only involve child abductors, but adults who lure runaway teen-agers into drugs, child pornography and prostitution. The rapid growth of this compulsion, and the past decade during which drugs and pornography have flourished is a national disgrace.

The establishment of a national data center to keep files on convicted child molesters would give local and state police a means of checking on repeat offenders who travel from state to state. Under legislation that I am supporting, the Department of Justice would establish a central registry of all convicted child abusers and child sexual offenders. It would list the name, Social Security number, age, race, sex, legal residence and a brief description of the crimes committed by the convicted offenders.

The information would be available via computer hookups to the National Crime Information Center operated by the FBI. The attorney general would establish guidelines for reporting of child abuse information, and direct access to the data bank would be available only to state and federal law enforcement officials and to state health and human services divisions who need to check on the backgrounds of applicants for jobs dealing with children.

Response to questionnaire

To the Editor:
Four hundred residents in each of the communities of the Union County Regional High School District have received a questionnaire in the mail asking for an expression of their preference regarding cost containment measures in our high schools. May I urge all those who received this questionnaire to complete it and mail it back as requested. These responses are essential for the Board of Education to assess prevailing attitudes regarding cost containment.

And, to all residents, I would ask that they be on the lookout for the Regional Reviewer newsletter which will be mailed to all homes about the middle of August. This issue will contain the same complete questionnaire. All residents, except those who received the first questionnaire via mail, are asked to complete the survey and mail it as requested. In this way, all residents, not just those randomly selected, will be able to express their feelings and preferences about cost containment.

The Regional District Board of Education would like all residents to respond. Preferences of all residents are important to the board. And, these can best be expressed via this survey.

The assistance of all residents in this important assessment will be gratefully appreciated.

Donald Merachuk, Ph.D.
Superintendent
Regional High School District No. 1

Teach children by example

To the Editor:
Your excellent editorial on the issue of compulsory community service as a requirement for high school graduation is thorough and to the point. The Codey bill may indeed have good intentions but it is entirely inappropriate in this application to the "real world" of public schools as we now experience them and sends a troublesome message to impressionable youngsters.

Recently, a white collar criminal was sentenced to 200 hours of community service for fraud and embezzlement. Can we be completely confident that every high school student will understand the difference between the mandated service required under this bill and the mandate of a court in a criminal case? Although the differences are significant, the subtleties of the thought processes of the adolescent should not be underestimated.

At a time when we are being criticized for an alleged failure to prepare high school graduates for employment or higher education through the development of basic skills, we hardly have time to devote to an alternative activity like required community service. The time required to facilitate such a program would be better spent monitoring improved communication and computational skills.

At a time when the costs to operate schools is under constant scrutiny, we should not devote scarce resources to the institution and administration of such a program. The staff required to seek and approve volunteer service placement, for the crediting of the appropriate service time to each student and to provide at least some school-based oversight for such an activity would be better utilized in a science, mathematics or English classroom.

Volunteerism and community service can best be fostered as societal priorities in the same way that schooling and education should be fostered; through the example set by the adults who are in daily contact with children and adolescents. Schools have difficulty achieving the objectives set by society because society does not invest the resources that we need the most — its keen and committed interest. Too often parents are unwilling or unable to take an active role in their children's schooling due to a myriad of competing issues which far too frequently do not include community service or activities.

When will we realize that we cannot mandate or legislate the solutions to problems which are endemic to the culture we have created as we approach the end of this tumultuous century? While community service is laudable, important and should be encouraged among all citizens, this proposal clearly established a unique oxymoron: "Mandatory volunteer service."

Dismayed by mayor's remarks

To the Editor:
I read with great dismay Mayor Dunn's remarks concerning the siting of the Union County Utilities Authority's new recycling center in Linden. It is unfortunate that the people of Union County have been subjected to a statement that so distorts the facts.

Mayor Dunn knows, as well as I, that the establishment of the recycling center has taken place after literally months of thought, study, effort and expense. The Linden property was selected because it best met a number of important criteria: It is warehouse space in an industrial zone; it has ceilings higher than 20 feet; it involves a 100,000-square-foot building located on 6.7 acres of land; of all the sites investigated, this property provides the best access to the major highways that serve the areas covered by the authority's recycling operation.

Mayor Dunn is mistaken that the Union County Utilities Authority or Angelo Bonanno has "runned anything down the throats of Union County residents." Our efforts have been geared toward finding a site which is environmentally and economically in the best interests of Union County. In this era of NIMBY-ism, it is still easy to attack a site and suggest that we again refrain from taking action. The aggressive posture of the governor, the DEP and our own residents crying out for lower solid waste costs have eliminated the usual option of delay.

Umbrella Ball assists hospital

A prestigious panel of area business and community leaders, comprising the Advancement Committee, met recently to discuss the fourth annual Umbrella Ball, the bi-annual gala event to benefit Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountainside. The 1991 Umbrella Ball will be the culminating event of the Centennial Celebration of Children's Specialized Hospital. This year's formal dinner will be held on Oct. 19 at the Harborside Financial Center in Jersey City.

Chairing the 1991 Advancement Committee is Alexander Ghiselin, Ph.D., vice president of regulatory affairs for Schering-Plough Corporation in Kenilworth and a member of the hospital's board of trustees.

Charles J. Mattes of Westfield is co-chairman of the Advancement Committee. He is managing partner with Brunnequell & Mattes, located in Clark, and is a member of both the hospital and the foundation board of trustees.

Kenilworth art organization holds sale

The Kenilworth Art Association will hold its 24th annual Outdoor Show and Sale Sept. 8, at the Harding School ballfield at Kenilworth Boulevard and 14th Street. The following three Sundays will serve as raindates.

Paintings and photography are hung on the inside and outside of the anchor fence. "We have so many exhibitors each year displaying their art work," an organization spokesperson said, "that if you stood at the corner of 14th Street and the Boulevard as far as your eye could see, there would be art work!

"We stimulate interest in art every year with lectures, demonstrations and art lesson workshops and also trips to art museums."

All artists, professional and non-professional, are invited to join the organization. People who are not artists, but who are interested in art

Hospital staff meets airborne counterpart

A crowd of parents and children gathered with members of the Rahway Hospital Emergency Center staff and local rescue squads on a bright, breezy July afternoon to watch the New Jersey State Police Northstar helicopter land in Greenfields Park, opposite Rahway Hospital.

They were invited to join the hospital staff and rescue squad members in inspecting the inside of the helicopter and meeting the pilots and paramedics from the Northstar aeromedical emergency transport team, a part of an in-service training session by the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey Trauma Team for the Rahway Hospital Emergency Center staff.

James W. Henry, RN, BS, CEN, trauma nurse at the New Jersey Trauma Center, provided the hospital emergency center with in-service instruction necessary for the preparation of patients to be transported by the Northstar helicopter.

Northstar is used to transport trauma patients who are at a high risk of dying from multiple and severe injuries — to high-level trauma centers where multidisciplinary teams can give those patients the specialized care they require. The helicopter is also used for transporting organs for transplant operations.

Trauma is defined as an injury to living tissue caused by an outside agent. The life-saving measures taken 60 to 120 minutes after a trauma are most important in saving the life of a critically injured patient. Therefore, it is essential that emergency center staff, mobile intensive care units and ambulance squads be fully trained on trauma techniques and procedures so that trauma patients will receive the best possible care.

This system of preserving life was inspired by the MASH unit from Vietnam, according to Henry.

Aaron Fitzpatrick, center, gives a thumbs-up to the New Jersey State Police Northstar helicopter, which landed in Greenfields Park in Rahway to provide aeromedical emergency transport training for the Rahway Hospital emergency center staff. With him are State Police flight paramedic Lee McCammon, right, and Patricia Hussey, RN, of the Rahway Hospital emergency center.

Ninja turtle swimming cap did the trick

SPRINGFIELD — Anthony DeAngelo never thought it was "cool" to wear a swimming cap during a meet. That was until last Thursday when the 8-year-old Springfield swimmer purchased one, a ninja turtle design and all.

Whether or not the head gear had anything to do with DeAngelo improving his times at the North Jersey Summer Swim League championships is up to debate. What can be said is that it provided inspiration.

DeAngelo was inspired enough to finish sixth in the boys 8-and-under 25-meter breaststroke event with a personal-best time of 26.90. He entered the race seeded 12th among the field of 12 swimmers competing.

DeAngelo was also a member of Springfield's coed 8-and-under 100-meter freestyle relay team that finished fifth with a new pool record time of 1:32.28.

"HE WENT TO THE SWIM SHOP in the back and bought the rubber bathing cap right before the meet," Springfield coach Sissy McCullough said. "It must have done something, because he really swam well. The relay team came out of nowhere to finish fifth."

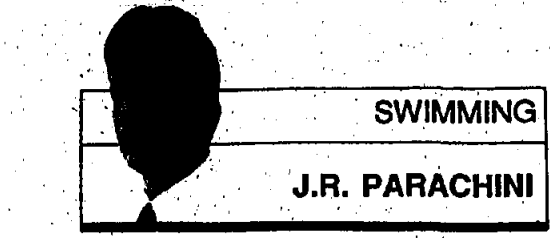

Springfield, which finished with a 6-2 record in Division 3 and Mountside, 4-4 in Division 4, were each well represented at the league championships. Springfield had seven individual first-place finishes and Mountside three. Mountside also won two relay events.

Mountside's coed 15-18 200-meter freestyle relay team of Joe Moran, Laura Leyrer, Sarah Leyer and Chris Klein were victorious. Mountside entered the event seeded third, having been previously bested by New Providence and Westfield during the qualifying divisional meet July 30.

Klein replaced Ben Schneider on the team for the league championships with Dave Hegna taking Klein's spot on the coed 13-18 200-meter medley relay team.

"DAVE WAS SICK AND COULD NOT SWIM for us during the divisional meet," Mountside coach Stephen Fowler said. "But that didn't prevent him from swimming in relay races during the league championships."

"So, I had Chris, because he's a little faster, swim on the freestyle team so that we would have a chance at winning both relays."

Mountside finished second in the coed 13-18 200-meter medley relay event with a time of 2:11.72. Westfield won the event in 2:10.39. But Mountside did capture its second relay event when it won the boys 12-and-under 100-meter medley relay in 1:19.59. Swimming for Mountside in that event were Matthew Grett, backstroke; Brian Shanahan, breaststroke; Alex Toner, butterfly and Patrick Collins, freestyle.

WESTFIELD ACTUALLY HAD A BETTER time, 1:15.80, but was disqualified because of a false start.

"I was surprised that Westfield was disqualified," Fowler said. "I didn't expect to come in first, but when we won it was nice to give out the gold medals."

Union resident Donna Restivo won two events for Mountside and sister Carol one.

Donna earned victories in the girls 13-14 50-meter freestyle and girls 13-14 50-meter backstroke events. The 14-year-old will be a sophomore at Union High School this fall.

"She's been my strong swimmer for the past couple of years," Fowler said.

Carol captured Mountside's other victory, a win in the girls 15-18 50-meter breaststroke.

"I think our swimmers did all right," Fowler said. "Most of our kids did close to their best times or their best times. That's good because that's what they're supposed to do."

NOT ONLY DID SPRINGFIELD SWIMMERS gain seven first-place finishes, but 19 personal-best times were recorded and seven pool records set.

"We did real well considering the competition was ridiculously tough," McCullough said. "A lot of our kids met the challenge."

Division 4 powerhouse Westfield, a program with more than 300 youngsters (Springfield had 106 this year), and division foe New Providence had more than their share of expected success.

"Normally our older kids are more consistent," McCullough said. "All pulled in with personal-best times."

Chris Straboy, who turned 13 last month, was a three-time winner for Springfield. She won the girls 12-and-under 100-meter individual medley, the girls 11-12 50-meter breaststroke and the girls 11-12 50-meter butterfly.

Other Springfield winners included Matt Rehels, Laura DiCosmo, Chris Johansen and Elizabeth Barford.

REHELS WON THE BOYS 9-10 25-meter breaststroke, DiCosmo captured the girls 11-12 50-meter freestyle, Johansen won the girls 11-12 50-meter backstroke and Barford took the girls 13-14 50-meter butterfly.

"There was a tremendous amount of improvement in stroke technique and times turned in," McCullough said.

Springfield had one second-place and four third-place finishes and three other swimmers, one fourth and two sixth, win ribbons.

Johannsen took second in the girls 11-12 50-meter breaststroke and DiCosmo, Shannon Farrell, John Catallo and Marty Visitation posted third-place finishes.

Theresa Quick, fourth in the girls 13-14 50-meter breaststroke, and Leah Demberger and DeAngelo, with sixth-place finishes, earned ribbons.

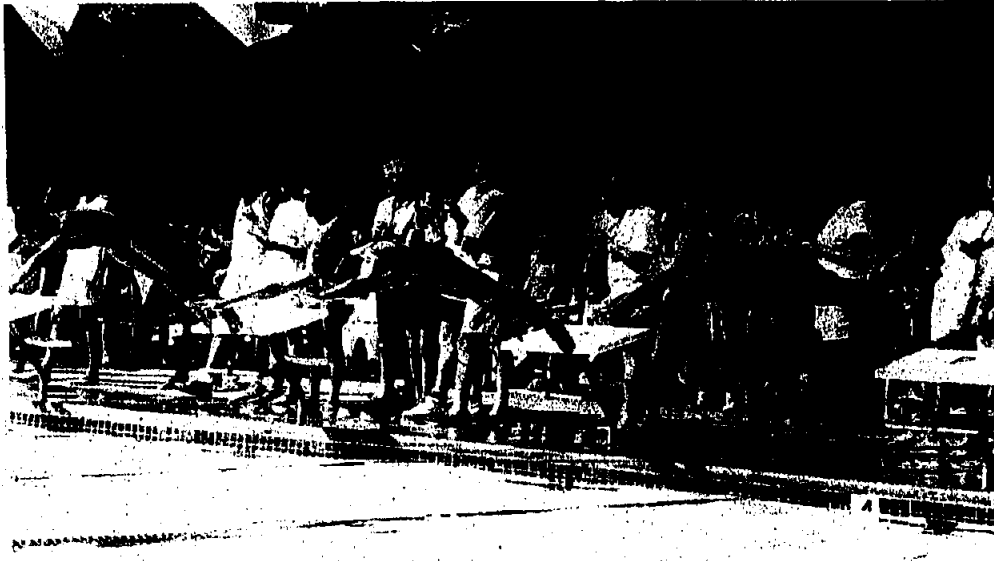

Laura Leyrer had two second-place finishes for Mountside and Carol Restivo and Klein each posted one third-place finish.

Leyrer and Restivo finished second and third, respectively, in the girls 15-18 50-meter butterfly event.

(J.R. Parachini is Worrall Community Newspapers' sports editor.)

AND THEY'RE OFF — Mountside swimmers Donna Restivo, middle, and Sarah Leyer, right, challenge New Providence' Alyson Kalavich in the girls 13-14 50-meter freestyle event at last Thursday's North Jersey Summer Swim League championships held at the Springfield Pool. Restivo won the event in a time of 30.53. Kalavich finished third and Leyer fourth.

UCC men's soccer to open at home

The Union County College men's soccer team will play 12 contests in 1991 in the Garden State Athletic Conference, one of the nation's strongest soccer leagues, according to a 1991 schedule announced by UCC athletic director Fred Perry.

Under head coach Ted Thamey, the Owls will play 17 matches overall, hoping to qualify for the Region 19, National Junior College Athletic Association Tournament on Nov. 6, 9 and 10.

Union will open its season at home against Bucks, Pa., Community College on Sept. 17 at 3:30 p.m. at Nomahegan Park.

The Owls will meet six Garden State Conference foes at home: Middlesex County College on Sept. 25 at 3:30, Ocean County College on Sept.

Rizzuto to host Celebrity Classic

Hillside resident and long-time New York Yankees broadcaster Phil Rizzuto will host The First Phil Rizzuto Celebrity Charity Golf Classic on Monday at the Rock Spring Club in West Orange. Proceeds from the golf tournament will benefit the St. Joseph's School for the Blind in Jersey City, the state's only school for the blind and visually-impaired.

Rizzuto will preside over all the day's events, including the tournament, an auction of sports memorabilia and, later, an awards dinner honoring the Classic's best golfer.

For nearly 40 years, Rizzuto has been actively supporting St. Joseph's School for the Blind.

"The Sisters of St. Joseph of Peace started the school over a century ago with just three students," Rizzuto said. "Today, the school is trying to build a residential facility to help hundreds of kids. The city of Jersey City has donated the land and I'm doing what I can to make this facility happen."

When opened, the residential facility will serve blind and visually-impaired children throughout the metropolitan area.

A limited number of corporate sponsorships are available for the event. To learn more about sponsorship, or for individual registration information, contact Elaine at 201-653-0578.

Those unable to attend the event are invited to "Buy A Brick" in the new facility in return for a $100 donation.

Classic play will be staged by Shakespeare festival

The New Jersey Shakespeare Festival presents "Dark of the Moon," by Howard Richardson and William Berney through Aug. 24. Jimmy Bohr directs this American folk classic which takes place in the Smokey Mountains. "Dark of the Moon" is an adaptation of the old American legend, "Barbara Allen," and tells the story of a witch-boy who longs to become mortal because of his love for a mortal girl, Barbara Allen. With the help of mountain conjur people, the witch-boy becomes human and weds Allen; however, the growing fears, superstitions and jealousies of the townspeople ultimately destroy their union and results in the tale's tragic conclusion. This production features a live score culled from the repertoires of dozens of tradition-based musicians from the southern mountains. It's roots are in ancient ballads, hymns and blue blues. Boynton J. Monte, the festival's artistic director, said, "We're extremely excited about this production. It's rarely produced professionally because of the huge cast and set requirements. We've found a way to literally build a mountain in our theater and the show is going to be a wonderful combination of visual, musical and dramatic elements."

Bohr is making his NJSF directorial debut. His debut, "Beirut," played in New York and L.A. (winner of six Dramatists awards) and he has directed extensively at Manhattan Class Company, the Kentucky Shakespeare Festival and the Wagon Wheel Playhouse.

Rob Odorisio and B. Christine McDowell design the period sets (early 1900s) and costumes respectively. Bill Lerner designs the lighting. Nick Plakias is musical director and Jeni Breen choreographer.

Tracy Swallows (Barbara Allen) most recently played "Sunshine" in the world premiere of "The Holy Terror," written and directed by Simon Gray. Earlier this season, she was seen on Broadway as "Marionette" in "The Mises" at Circle-in-the-Square. Other credits include "You Never Can Tell," also at Circle-in-the-Square and "Aristocrats" at Manhattan Theater Club. Lou Milione (Jim) recently originated the role of "Bubba" in Manhattan Theater Club's production of "Mi Vida Loca," written by Eric Overmyer.

Prior to that, he was "Greg," the blind Cub's fan, in Joe Mantegna's revival of "Beaches Bums" at the Organic Theater in Chicago.

Fran Anthony (Mrs. Allen) just completed "Pete and Pete" on Nickelodeon Cable TV and this past year, appeared in "J.B." as "Mrs. Murphy" at the Cathedral of St. John, The Divine. She has toured the U.S. in "Prisoner of Second Avenue," with Dick Smoother, and "The Sound of Music," with Theodore Bikel and in "Barfoot in the Park."

Tom Brennan (Preacher Haggler) has just completed two Broadway appearances this season as "The Old Man" in "Prelude to a Kiss" and in "The Mises" at Circle-in-the-Square. Other New York credits include "Our Town" and "The Front Page" at Lincoln Center, "Arms and the Man," directed by John Malkovich at Circle-in-the-Square and "Play Memory," directed by Hal Prince.

Charles Cragin (Conjur Man) began his acting career more than 20 years ago with the American Shakespeare Festival at Stratford and has since performed in every state in the country with such stage luminaries as Katherine Hepburn, Robert Ryan, Morris Carnovsky, Jack Albertson, Viveca Lindfors, Sam Levine and Roy Scheider. The cast also includes Gordon Sumner (Uncle Smeltzer), Mary Lou (Mrs. Summey) and Nick Plakias (Mr. Atkins).

"Dark of the Moon" will be performed through Aug. 24 at Bowtie Theater, Drew University, Rt. 24, Madison. Performances are Tuesday through Saturday at 8 p.m.; Sundays at 7 p.m.; Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. Ticket prices range from $14 to $30 and can be purchased by calling the NJSF box office at 377-4487, open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday, 11 to 8 p.m. Sundays. Student rush tickets are available for $5, 15 minutes before curtain — bring proper I.D. Group sales rates are also available.

Koenig resigns from museum post

Robert J. Koenig, director of the Montclair Art Museum since 1980, has announced that this next year will be his last at the museum. He said he has accomplished the goals he had set during his 11 years as director and wishes to seek new challenges. Koenig said his decision to embark on a career move was based on personal timing and is undertaken at a time in which the Montclair Art Museum is "in sound condition in terms of programs, staff and finances and well-prepared for a change in leadership."

James T. Mills, president of the museum board of trustees, said that the board understood his motivation, but accepted his decision with considerable regret because of "the high regard the trustees and the entire museum family have for Mr. Koenig's outstanding leadership qualities."

Mills also praised Koenig's deep commitment to the museum and the time flexibility his career goal announcement afforded the board. Both men said they were "confident that the museum will go through the transition period without difficulty."

Mills noted that a search committee, chaired by Sharon Gray, a vice president of the board of trustees, had been appointed to look for a successor. "I am confident they will find strong interest among many able candidates because of the high reputation of the museum, for which Bob Koenig deserves so much credit."

During Koenig's term as director, museum membership increased dramatically as a result of new leadership initiatives in educational programming and through diverse exhibitions and other programs of interest to the whole community. The museum's American art collection was augmented with contemporary and traditional works. Endowment funds were increased substantially and the physical plant improved with air conditioning and state-of-the-art storage facilities.

"The decision was a hard one for me, for many reasons," Koenig said. "I have a deep feeling for the Montclair Art Museum, developed over the last 15 years, and many wonderful personal ties as a result."

The Garden State Arts Center, designed by American architect Edward Durell Stone, is a circular amphitheater with more than 5,000 seats under the roof and additional lawn seating. The center is situated in the 400-acre Telegarth Hill Park in Hightstown, surrounded by natural woodlands crisscrossed with walking and fitness trails that are open year-round. To get to the Garden State Arts Center, take exit 116 on the Garden State Parkway. Ticket information for the NJSO concerts at the arts center can be obtained by calling 1-800-ALLGRO or 624-8203.

NJSO will have concerts at center

The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra's summer series at the Garden State Arts Center will conclude with four programs. Guest artists will include Marvin Hamlisch, Bobby McFerrin, Michael Feinstein and Shirley Bassey. NJSO assistant conductor Peter Rubardt leads three of those concerts.

On Monday at 8:30 p.m., Peter Rubardt leads a concert featuring Gershwin's overture to "Girl Crazy" and "An American in Paris," followed with selections by Hamlisch, which include music from "A Chorus Line," "Sophie's Choice," "Ice Castles" and "The Way We Were," among others. On Aug. 15 at 8:30 p.m., McFerrin will conduct works by Bizet, Fauré, Vivaldi, J.S. Bach, Gounod and Beethoven, and will perform a capella vocal selections. For the concert featuring Michael Feinstein on Wednesday, Aug. 21 at 8:30 p.m., and Shirley Bassey on Wednesday, Sept. 4 at 8:30 p.m., programs will be announced at a later date.

Poor eyesight can result in unnecessary auto accidents

Dr. Errol Rummel Jackson, consumer communication chairman of the New Jersey Optometric Association, warns that "falling sight with age is an important problem to consider when driving, since poor eyesight can cause auto accidents."

That is why the New Jersey Optometric Association suggests an annual eye examination by a doctor of optometry for all drivers, with particular emphasis on the visual skills needed for safe driving.

Sight driving involves these skills:

- Visual acuity: Your ability to clearly see stoplights, road signs and cars at a distance.
- Visual acuity declines with age due to cataracts, normal changes in eye-glass prescription and a variety of eye diseases.
- Peripheral awareness: Your ability to see cars from the side or to notice children running into the street while looking straight ahead.
- Peripheral vision problems can be caused by glaucoma or the smaller pupils that occur with age.
- Depth perception: Your ability to judge the distance between you and other cars and how fast approaching cars are coming.
- Depth perception is affected by eye coordination problems and by eye-glass prescriptions that may need to be changed.
- Night vision: Your ability to see roads, signs and other objects at night.
- Night vision ability tends to naturally decline with age and requires an up-to-date eye-glass prescription.
- Night vision may be better if you protect your daytime sight with prescription sunglasses.
- Glare resistance: Your ability to recover quickly from the blinding effects of headlights.
- Glare resistance gets worse with age and filtered eyeglasses may be needed.
- Eye coordination: Your ability to point and move both eyes together when scanning oncoming traffic.
- Crossed eyes can be caused by stroke and binocular vision may decline with age.
- Accommodation: Your ability to shift your eyes' focus from the road to the speedometer.
- Focusing ability declines with age.
- Color perception: Your ability to recognize the color difference in traffic signals or road signs.
- Age-related changes of the eyes effects color vision.
- For more information about the relationship between safe driving and vision problems, call or write the New Jersey Optometric Association, 88 Lakeland Drive, Lawrenceville, 08484 or 609-695-3456.
