Dems announce new ticket in contest for Assembly, Senate in 21st district

By David Brown
Managing Editor

The Democratic committees of Essex and Union counties have announced replacements for two of their Assembly candidates in the 21st Legislative District.

Frank Covello and Elly Manov will join incumbent Assemblyman Neil Cohen on the Democratic ticket, filling positions vacated by Kathy Mills and Gary Nissenbaum, who left the race citing professional and personal time constraints.

Covello will join Cohen in the Assembly race against incumbent Republican Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden and her running mate, Monroe Lustbader, an Essex County freeholder. Manov will be the Democratic challenger to incumbent Republican Senator C. Louis Bassano.

Nissenbaum, a Springfield resident, said, "I consider it an honor to have been nominated for the New Jersey Assembly by the people of the 21st district. However, because of increasing demands being placed upon my professional schedule, as well as an unanticipated personal commitment due to the birth of my first child, I find myself unable to commit the time necessary to effectively participate in the upcoming campaign."

Nissenbaum said he intended to "continue to be involved in service to my community" and was "confident that Elly Manov, Neil Cohen and Frank Covello will enjoy great success in the November election."

"The issues facing this state and this area are far too important to be left in the hands of those who caused many of these problems in the first place," said Union County Democratic Party Chairman John Malone, in a statement released Friday. "Elly and Frank have the abilities to join with Neil Cohen in giving us a strong and focused voice in the state, and can begin the process of finding fair and equitable solutions to these issues."

"Working families are falling further behind every day," Manov said in a prepared statement. She could not be reached for comment this week.

"Child care is inadequate. And the basic necessities of life are becoming luxuries. We need to address these issues — the needs are immediate," she said.

Manov, a Livingston resident, is senior vice president of VEP Associates, a civil engineering firm.

Covello, who served on the Verona Township Council from 1980 to 1983, and as its president in 1981, cited his experience as the owner of a small consulting firm in his assessment of the "difficult situation small businesses and working families are incurring, due to national and state neglect of our economy over the last 10 years."

Now completing his first term in the Assembly, Cohen, like Manov and Covello, is facing a revamped constituency. Legislative redistricting earlier this year resulted in a significantly revised 21st District, which now includes Caldwell, Essex Fells, Cedar Grove, Livingston, Millburn, North Caldwell, Roseland and Verona in Essex County, and Kenilworth, Roselle Park, Springfield, Summit and Union Township in Union County.

Of the 13 municipalities included in the district, only Kenilworth, Roselle Park, Springfield and Union were untouched in the redistricting.

Schools ready to open

Books for bikes, chalk boards for diving boards, the history of Marco Polo for the swimming pool game bearing his name. And so another school year begins.

At the beginning of the week, teachers, administrators and, even students were in the schools, preparing for the 1991-92 school year.

"I think we're all eagerly looking forward to the new year," said Angela Cupo, a reading and language arts teacher at the Florence M. Gaudinier School in Springfield. "There are new challenges and new horizons. We hope the children are as eager to return as we are," said Cupo, as maintenance personnel and other teachers worked in the hallways, sorting books and cleaning lockers in preparation for the growing student body.

According to Superintendent of Springfield Schools Dr. Gary Friedland, enrollment has increased in the district over last year's significantly. "Enrollment is up about 5 percent from last year," said Friedland, attributing the increase to several factors. "I think the increase is due in part to development of Princes Farms and the immigration of many students from private schools. This year we expect to have about 45 non-resident students coming into the district, which is a significant increase over last September," said Friedland, adding the enrollment figure also takes into account students who have just recently moved into the district.

Employees' contracts settled

"All contracts are ratified and in place," said Friedland. "I think our staff is enthused to come back as well as the administration." The contracts, which expired at the end of June and are effective for the next two years, experienced a range of increases from 4.5 percent for administrators, and a threshold of 7.5 for teachers.

Gaudinier Principal Kenneth Burnaby agreed. "Every year is a different year," he said, hustling down the hall from one meeting to the next. "The summer is a time of family and friends, a time when you can catch your breath, but we must adhere to the demands of the calendar."

Additions to staff

To compensate for the growth of the student body, Friedland said, 13 new people were added to the staff, in addition to filling positions vacated for maternity leave and retirements.

The growth of the academic population, according to Friedland, necessitated the creation of an extra

The township's Master Track and Field Official

By David Brown
Managing Editor

Olympic champions and their world records capture the minds of the young and old alike, from Seoul, Korea and Athens, Greece, to Los Angeles and New York. "Carl Lewis sets world record in the 100 meter dash!" read the youngsters in the morning sports section. But a world record according to whom?

According to the officials judging those sprints, jumps and throws — according to people like David H. Brown of Springfield — Master Official.

Wladyslaw Kozakiewicz, left, 1980 Olympic gold medalist from Poland, confers with pole vault official David Brown and NCAA pole vaulter David Kenworthy from University of Southern California.

Like many of those lean men and women who have dedicated their lives to athletic perfection, Brown has spent most of his life calling it like he sees it. "My father was always into sports, which got me interested initially," Brown said, relaxing in his sitting room after a long weekend at the New York Games on Randall's Island, which featured Carl Lewis and other world-class track and field competitors.

His father's interest in track and field sports was apparently contagious, setting Brown on a course leading to his present-day characterization as one of the most highly qualified pole vault officials in the world.

"My first exposure to Olympic competition was on an Atlantic City beach in 1956 when I bumped into Jimmy Crockett, then a member of the American Olympic soccer team. I saw him wearing a U.S.A. sweatshirt, which at that time nobody wore unless they had earned it," Brown said in a recollective manner — like an official. That experience led to his venture into the world of track and field officiating, eventually founding the Springfield Junior Olympics 25 years ago. Today, Brown also wears a uniform he earned from years of dedication and hard work.

Brown is the co-chairman for the United States Olympic Committee, vice president of the Garden State Games, and a Master Track and Field Official. He was a member of the Olympic Selection Committee — that chose Los Angeles as its site for the games in 1984. Before Brown, that seat had been held Jesse Owens. Upon Brown's departure, the seat was assumed by George Steinbrener.

"I like working with the athletes to see they get a fair judgment," Brown said, "so they're all treated the same." On one wall of his sitting room hangs a collection of memorabilia and awards, including photographs of him and a host of world class athletes, like Jesse Owens, and stars including Frank Sinatra.

"I also enjoy the camaraderie between officials and athletes. None of the officials get paid. Unlike the NFL and NBA pros, we have to pay our own way. It's our hobby," he said, speaking of the intricacies of the pole vault — the correct positioning of the pit, time allowances and defaults, often referring to similar conditions in other sports such as ice hockey and basketball.

Brown's "hobby" has taken him around the world. He's been to the Olympic Games in Mexico in 1968, the Munich Games in 1972, the Montreal Games in 1976, the Lake Placid Games in 1980, and the Los Angeles and Seoul Games in 1984 and 1988.

"I'm hoping to be one of the pole vault officials in 1996," Brown said, explaining that in track and field competition, the host country supplies all the officials.

Next time you read those headlines hailing the new national or world record in pole vaulting, remember: that's probably according to David Brown, Master Track and Field Official.

Dayton Regional ready for 1991-92 school year

Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield will open for Freshman and New Student Orientation on Sept. 3, from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Bus transportation will be available for all eligible students. The first day of classes for all students, grades 9 through 12, will be Sept. 4, starting at 8:20 a.m. Cafeteria and regular bus transportation services will be provided. Classes will be dismissed at 2:45 p.m. on Sept. 4, the normal school closing time.

Five hundred seventy students, including 153 freshmen, are anticipated for the opening of school at Jonathan Dayton this year. The total number of students enrolled at the school will be approximately 15 more during the 1990/91 school year.

While the students of Jonathan Dayton are getting back to their school routine on Sept. 3 and 4, their teachers will be preparing for the 1991/92 school year as well. On Sept. 3, all staff members at Dayton will attend an orientation meeting with Judith Wickline, the school's principal. Later that afternoon, all teachers in the Union County Regional High School district's four schools will report to the David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth for their districtwide department meetings.

"I am really looking forward to the start of the 1991/92 school year," said Wickline, who will begin her second full school year as principal on Sept. 3. "We are fortunate to have an outstanding senior class this year, a group which is bright, energetic and versatile — we have many seniors who excel academically, athletically and in the arts. When a school has a senior class as talented as this year's, one which can provide strong leadership, it sets the tone for a great school year. I am also looking for some outstanding things from our Student Council, which really began to come into its own last year."

Wickline has high expectations for the entire student body at Jonathan Dayton this year, both inside and outside the classroom.

"Academically, we will continue our emphasis on homework and parental involvement," she explained. "Our teachers are assigning homework which is greater in quantity and quality, and we fully expect that our students will be equal to this challenge. We will also continue our emphasis on writing and critical thinking skills. The Writing Center was a tremendous addition to our school program last year, but we want our students and teachers to make an even greater use of it during 1991/92. We also want the parents of our students to realize the important role they play in the education of their child. We encourage them to become more involved in every aspect of their youngster's schooling."

Some new faces will greet the students of Jonathan Dayton this year. With the recent retirement of Julia Latzer, long-time English teacher and supervisor, Douglas Felter will become the school's new English department supervisor, while Deborah Neely is the new teacher of English as a Second Language. In addition, Tony Maglione is the new head football coach at Jonathan Dayton.

At Jonathan Dayton, as in the other three Regional High Schools, students will be evaluated using a revised grading system. Approved by the Regional Board of Education for implementation in September, this system will continue to utilize letter grades on report cards, with A plus signifying the highest level of achievement and F representing failure in a particular course. However, a new letter designation, E, has been added to the grading system. Like F, this letter will represent failure in a course, but the student will receive a numerical grade of 0.5 when a grade-point average is being determined — unlike the 0.0 which is assigned to the F grade. In addition, the numerical scale which corresponds with the letter grades will now run from 0.0, lowest, to 4.5, highest, meaning that the highest attainable grade-point average will now be 4.5, rather than 4.0.

The academic standard which must be met by students in order to be considered for membership in the National Honor Society has also been changed. In the past, Jonathan Dayton and all other Regional District students needed a grade-point average of at least 3.5, out of a possible 4.0, to be considered for membership in the National Honor Society. Starting this year, youngsters with a grade-point average of 3.75 or better, out of a possible 4.5, will meet the scholarship criterion for membership.

School activities scheduled at Jonathan Dayton during the fall months include Back-To-School night on Oct. 3, the School Play on Oct. 24 and 25; the Fall Vocal Concert on Nov. 3; the annual Fall Festival from Oct. 18 through Oct. 23; Eighth-Grade Orientation on Dec. 4; the Fall Sports Awards program on Dec. 11, and the annual Alumni Messiah Concert on Dec. 20.

Proposal sparks debate

By David Brown
Managing Editor

Township Committee members Marcia Forman and Philip Kurnos engaged in a somewhat heated, though quick-witted debate, over Forman's proposal to require prospective members of the planning and zoning boards to acquire some form of formal education before sitting on those boards.

Though not on the agenda of the committee's hour-long work session before its regular public meeting, Forman introduced the idea informally for discussion.

"Why didn't you propose this before?" Kurnos asked Forman. "All your years on the planning board and you just thought of this now? I'll be frank. I think you're posturing."

Forman continued her discussion of the proposal, which if accepted, would take the form of an ordinance. "This is something that has been bothering me for a long time," she said. "Sometimes it takes an outside perspective to recognize possible improvements."

"I've been in this town for 30 years," Kurnos said. "This town is developed. To pass an ordinance like this one is like closing the stable doors after the horses have already left."

Committee member Jeffrey Katz questioned the legality of such an ordinance, which, he said, might be unlawful to restrict the ability of the mayor to appoint members to the board. He also suggested that a modification in the proposal to exempt the mayor and one committee member, who are automatically appointed to the boards, would be "incongruous" when requiring all other members to complete the educational requirements.

"Though terminated in the executive session, the debate continued when the public was given the floor at the end of the regular meeting. Republican Township Committee candidate Harry Pappas questioned Forman on a statement made during the executive session. "Did you say you've attended many Zoning Board meetings?" asked Pappas, himself a member of the board. "I've only seen you at one meeting."

"My point is that this is a basic deficiency that should be remedied," Forman said, adding that she was not specifically referring to this year's zoning board.

Water rates to increase 12.9 percent

By Glenn Fannick
Staff Writer

Because of increases in operating costs as well as new construction, water rates will increase by 12.9 percent throughout Union County, according to state officials. The increase is higher than the state average of 9.9 percent.

The increase will generate $14.5 million for New Jersey-American Water Company to allow for higher expenses in water supply costs as well as the operation of sewer collection systems if it is approved by the state Board of Regulatory Commissioners — formally the Board of Public Utilities.

The increase will most likely not be approved until the beginning of 1992, according to John Cornick, community relations manager at the water company, which services parts of six communities in Union County — Berkeley Heights, part of Hillsdale, New Providence, Springfield, Summit, and part of Union. They serve 10,500 customers throughout the county, which is part of the northern section of the municipalities that the company serves.

"They may not approve the amount we asked for," also said. "As a matter of fact, it is rare that they approve the amount requested." Cornick said that increases do not occur on any regular basis, but they are requested whenever the company needs funding. NJ-AWC is currently working on a rate increase from February 1991. That request was mailed to the state commission in the fall of 1990.

The money will be used for three major things: The Tri-County Water Supply Project in Burlington, Camden and Gloucester counties; The Water Sources Project in Essex, Morris and Somerset counties; and the Groundwater Sources Project, which is being used to treat new wells throughout the state.

In the Northern Division, which is made up of parts of seven counties, NJ-AWC gets 29 percent of its water from wells, 24 percent from their own reservoirs, and the remaining 47 percent is purchased from private sources such as Elizabethtown Water Company, Passaic Valley Water Authority, and the Montclair Water Authority. Those companies get the water from reservoirs, rivers and wells throughout the state.

For residents using 21,000 gallons of water per quarter — the state average — the rate hike will cause an average increase of $8.37 per bill. The costs — on average — will jump from $69.92 to $78.29 per quarter, according to officials' estimates.

Officials with the NJ-AWC filed a request for the rate increase last week to the state board. They are seeking ways to offset $38.1 million for things such as purchased water, chemicals, power, waste disposal, depreciation and taxes.

The company also has to offset the cost of main replacements which have been incurred in virtually all of the 14 counties they serve — Atlantic, Burlington, Camden, Cape May, Essex, Hunterdon, Middlesex, Monmouth, Morris, Ocean, Passaic, Somerset, Union and Warren. Each county has different needs, but officials in all counties have filed their request for a rate increase jointly.

The requests will be reviewed by the state Board of Regulatory Commissioners, who will make the final decision on the proposed rate increase, officials said.

Pumping rates for the summer are slightly less this year than last year at this time, Cornick said. Last summer they had pumped $1.227 million by this point in the summer.

The New Jersey-American Water Company serves more than 300,000 customers through more than 100 municipalities.

Fire charges Rates for water supplied to fire departments are also being upped. An increase of 5 percent for public fire protection charges will be incurred throughout all municipalities. Public fire protection includes fire hydrants which are maintained by the company.

An increase of 10.5 percent for private fire protection charges is being suggested for Essex, Morris, Passaic, Somerset, and Union counties. Private fire protection includes such things as sprinkler systems in office buildings.

Safety tips for cyclers

Toward summer's end, many people will be spending much of their time out of the house, either working on the yard or enjoying some form of recreational activity. For those who are bikers, the Police Department is offering the following tips to area residents to keep their bikes safe from crime:

Register all bicycles with the Police Department. This can be done by contacting the Crime Prevention Unit at the department. You can also etch your driver's license number on the frame of all your family's bicycles or other valuables. This will make it identifiable to any police agency. Etching devices are also available simply by phoning the Crime Prevention Unit. Report all thefts of bicycles to the Police Department immediately.

Don't leave bicycles on the lawn, on the porch or in an unlocked garage, especially at night. If a bicycle must be left unattended anywhere, it should be secured to a solidly fixed rack or tree with a good quality chain and lock, in a busy and well-lit area. The chain should not be locked just through the wheel, but through the frame also.

Remind your children regularly that just as bicycle safety rules will reduce the chances of their being hurt in an accident, crime safety practices will reduce the chance that their bikes will be stolen. Remember: Lock it, watch it or lose it!

Hug-a-bears benefit victims

The Springfield Police Department and the Springfield First Aid Squad now carry teddy bears in their vehicles. The bears are not there for companionship, but rather to help comfort children who are involved in frightening situations.

These cuddly toys, dubbed hug-a-bears, were made and donated by members of the Frank B. Jewett Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

At a recent ceremony at police headquarters, David Bixler, administrator of the Jewett Chapter at AT&T Bell Laboratories in Short Hills, and Lucio Episcopo, a Springfield resident and Pioneer staff member, presented several dozen bears. Cpl. Daniel Maudling of the Crime Prevention Unit accepted for the Police Department and 1st Lt. Jocelyne Roth and 2nd Lt. Gloria Simpson for the first aid squad.

The Telephone Pioneers of America, with more than 800,000 members in the United States and Canada, is an organization of telephone industry employees and retirees who volunteer their spare time to help people in need. The Frank B. Jewett Chapter is made up primarily of employees and retirees of AT&T Bell Laboratories at New Jersey locations.

Bixler explained that the hug-a-bears program is an effort of the Telephone Pioneer chapters across the United States and Canada to supply the toys to agencies that encounter children in traumatizing situations. The children are given the bears to hug during stressful experiences and to take home when the emergency has passed.

Police in other communities who have received bears from the Pioneers report that the toys have been extremely helpful in comforting children in such cases as family violence or parental arrest. And first aid personnel note that the bears are effective in calming not only children who are themselves hurt in accidents, but also those who see a parent being taken to a hospital.

The addition of the loan reserves, Carteret would have reserves of $313 million and problem assets of $505 million. "We recognized we needed to take some steps," Reinhard said. "We are very optimistic," he said.

In addition to the Springfield office, the bank's parent, AmBase Corp., for $65 million. Carteret bought IFF from AmBase in 1988. The sale is still subject to regulatory approval, Reinhard said.

The restructuring is being implemented by Richard A. Bianco, the bank's new chief executive officer, who is working with regulators and Price Waterhouse, its newly appointed auditors.

Bianco, a former investment banker, became CEO May 22, having previously been a major shareholder and director, and having intensively reviewed assets for a month. He succeeded Robert B. O'Brien.

The other new member of the top management team, J. Wayne Moor, formerly of AmeriFirst Bank in Florida, has been working as executive vice president and chief workout officer for the past six weeks, Reinhard said.

Four new directors have been appointed or nominated. Ronald J. Burns, founder and president of Anagnostis Asset Management Inc., an independent investment firm, is serving as a director.

Burns, like Bianco and Kramer, is a major shareholder in AmBase, based in New York. Collectively, they own about 2 million shares. All three have served on the AmBase board since January.

The addition to the loan loss reserve means the bank will report a pre-tax loss of $149 million in the second quarter and will increase its total provision for loan losses to $313 million, Reinhard said.

Carteret has incurred a pre-tax loss

Recruitment meeting slated for next week

The Mansion Hotel at 295 South Ave., Fairwood, will be the site of Spaulding for Children's Volunteer Auxiliary Recruitment Meeting, Sept. 11 at 7:30 p.m. The Volunteer Auxiliary is both a service and fund-raising adjunct of the free adoption agency for older and disabled youngsters of all races. The auxiliary is actively seeking volunteers with interest and various skills to join them.

Spaulding draws volunteers from Westfield, Fairwood, Scotch Plains, Berkeley Heights, Clark, Rahway, Springfield, Summit, Elizabeth, Woodbridge, Roselle, Plainfield, Cranford and Mountainside, to name but a few of the surrounding communities. The volunteers have been responsible for writing and mailing the Spaulding Special Newsletter; conceiving and arranging numerous events, including annual wine tastings, strido-a-thons, concerts — classical jazz and big band, selling entertainment books, auctions, recycling garage sales, etc. They have been creative, worked hard, had a good time together and maintained a remarkable esprit de corps.

The meeting will introduce prospective volunteers to the aims and achievements of Spaulding, which will be celebrating its 20th anniversary in November. Phyllis Gold, executive director, will present an overview of the adoption scene from the perspective of the agency, which has seen numerous changes regarding the search for families for the special-needs children who are Spaulding's primary focus.

The Spaulding volunteers are open and welcoming to new ideas, questions and suggestions. Everyone who might be interested is invited to attend the new-member meeting Sept. 11. Further information can be obtained by calling (908) 233-2282.

Carteret to layoff 120 in restructuring

By Kathleen M. Carson
Staff Writer

A new management team at the troubled Carteret Savings Bank, which has branched into Springfield, is increasing its loan loss reserves and executing 120 layoffs as part of a restructuring effort.

The Morris-town-based financial institution is bolstering reserves by $150 million and letting 10 percent of its workforce go in an effort to recapture profitability, Donald Reinhard, senior vice president, said Monday. Carteret, the state's largest thrift with 1,200 employees at 50 branches in New Jersey and Florida, is concentrating the workforce reductions in its Morris-town and Parsippany-Troy Hills offices.

"They should not impact whatsoever" on the Springfield branch, Reinhard said.

Further cost-cutting moves will be the closing of two offices, a retail branch in Hackettstown and a mortgage origination office in Orlando, Fla.

Also, Imperial Premium Finance Inc. of Sherman Oaks, Calif., the thrift's new chief executive officer, which should remain unaffected by changes are located in South Orange, Bloomfield, East Orange, Fairfield, Livingston, Verona, Caldwell, Newark and Montclair.

The restructuring is being implemented by Richard A. Bianco, the bank's new chief executive officer, who is working with regulators and Price Waterhouse, its newly appointed auditors.

Bianco, a former investment banker, became CEO May 22, having previously been a major shareholder and director, and having intensively reviewed assets for a month. He succeeded Robert B. O'Brien.

The other new member of the top management team, J. Wayne Moor, formerly of AmeriFirst Bank in Florida, has been working as executive vice president and chief workout officer for the past six weeks, Reinhard said.

Four new directors have been appointed or nominated. Ronald J. Burns, founder and president of Anagnostis Asset Management Inc., an independent investment firm, is serving as a director.

Burns, like Bianco and Kramer, is a major shareholder in AmBase, based in New York. Collectively, they own about 2 million shares. All three have served on the AmBase board since January.

The addition to the loan loss reserve means the bank will report a pre-tax loss of $149 million in the second quarter and will increase its total provision for loan losses to $313 million, Reinhard said.

Stone elected officer of insurance company

Robert E. Stone, Springfield general agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., Milwaukee, has been elected second vice president of the company's Chartered Life Underwriters Association.

The election was held in Milwaukee during Northwestern Mutual's 111th annual meeting of its overall Association of Agents, July 21 to 24. The Association of Agents encompasses five smaller associations, including the CLU Association. The CLU Association has 1,800 members.

Strulowitz to hold optometry lecture

Dr. Leonard Strulowitz, a Millburn optometrist, will lecture to area eye doctors on Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, Millford, Conn.

A recognized authority on contact lenses, Strulowitz will speak on "The Advancement and Methodologies for Fitting Astigmatic Soft Contact Lenses." According to Strulowitz, these lenses no longer have to be heavily weighted to hold their position. Many of the newer lenses are as thin and lightweight as regular soft lenses. Vision is crisp and the lenses are extremely comfortable.

A resident of Springfield, Strulowitz is a frequent lecturer whose commentaries have appeared in national and professional magazines, and on television and radio. He is a fellow of the American Academy of Optometry, president of the State Board of Optometry, past president of the Union County Optometric Society, past chairman of the Contact Lens Committee of the New Jersey Optometric Association, and a charter member of the Contact Lens Section of the American Optometric Association. He has received numerous awards and citations for his work in contact lenses.

The CNBC/FNN and USA Today National Investment Challenge is produced and managed by Wall Street Games, a Dedham, Mass., company organized along the lines of a stock brokerage firm. The Challenge allows individual investors to test their market savvy within a realistic environment without risking real money.

Every aspect of The Challenge simulates actual trading on Wall Street and although it is only play money, the market experience is real along with the $100,000 in cash and prizes.

Players are given a fictional $500,000 money market account but maintain purchasing power of $1 million as they can borrow an additional $500,000 on margin.

By allowing both the serious and casual investor an opportunity to test their market skills, the National Investment Challenge is a proven winner among viewers," said Caroline Vanderlip, CNBC's vice president, Affiliate Relations. "As one of the leading providers of business news, CNBC is pleased to join USA Today in co-sponsoring Wall Street Games unique competition."

Orientation begins Tuesday at Brearley

David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth will open for Freshman and New Student Orientation on Tuesday, Sept. 3, from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Bus transportation will be available for Garwood students. The first day of classes for all students, grades 9 through 12, will be Wednesday, Sept. 4, starting at 8:20 a.m. Cafeteria and regular bus transportation services will be provided. Classes will be dismissed at 2:48 p.m. on Sept. 4, the normal school closing time.

Four hundred thirty students, including 103 freshmen, are anticipated for the opening of school at David Brearley this year. These totals reflect very little change in enrollment from the 1990-91 school year.

While the students of David Brearley are getting back to their school routine on Sept. 3 and 4, their teachers will be preparing for the 1991-92 school year as well. On Sept. 3, all staff members at Brearley will attend a meeting with Dr. Linda Palumbo, the school's principal. Later that afternoon, all teachers in the Union County Regional High School District's four schools will report to David Brearley for their districtwide department meetings.

"My first year here at David Brearley was excellent, so you can easily understand why I am looking forward to the new school year," explained Palumbo, who became principal of David Brearley in July 1990. "Now that I have a greater knowledge of the students, staff members and community, I feel that we can move on and address some of the important matters at hand. We have a very close-knit school community and students who enjoy coming to school. I expect this to continue as we collectively strive for the goal of academic excellence at David Brearley."

Last month, Palumbo sent a letter to each David Brearley student, encouraging them to prepare academically for the coming school year and reminding them of the various school-related tasks that lie ahead — such as preparation for the Scholastic Aptitude Test and the college application process. The Brearley principal will also be meeting with students from all four grades during the first two weeks of school to discuss academic expectations for the coming school year.

"I am eager to really open up the lines of communication," explained Palumbo. "We want our students to know exactly what is expected of them and we want to inform them about all the academic opportunities available here at David Brearley. I believe that these meetings will help to make a good school even better."

In order to increase communication among the staff at David Brearley, Palumbo has established the Principal's Advisory Committee, which will meet once a month beginning in September. This committee, to consist of a representative from each of the school's departments, will meet to discuss school-related issues and concerns with the David Brearley administration.

In addition to William Jones, who will be starting his first full school year as assistant principal, there will be a few personnel changes for 1991-92 at David Brearley. Three new teachers have been transferred from other schools in the Union County Regional High School District to David Brearley — Inez Grosso; English; Paula Burkhardt, Special Education; and Louis Reda, instrumental music. And, Bob Taylor, long-time teacher of physical education and health at David Brearley, will serve this year as the school's acting supervisor of health, physical education and athletics while Thomas Santaguida is on sabbatical leave.

At David Brearley, as in the other three Regional High Schools, students will be evaluated using a revised grading system. Approved by the Regional Board of Education for implementation in September 1991, this system will continue to utilize letter grades on report cards, with A+ signifying the highest level of achievement and F representing failure in a particular course. However, a new letter designation, E, has been added to the grading system. Like F, this letter will represent failure in a course, but the student will receive a numerical grade of 0.5 when a grade-point average is being determined — unlike the 0.0 which is assigned to the F grade. In addition, the numerical scale which corresponds with the letter grades will now run from 0.0, lowest, to 4.5, highest, meaning that the highest attainable grade-point average will now be 4.5, rather than 4.0.

The academic standards which must be met by students in order to be considered for membership in the National Honor Society have also been changed. In the past, David Brearley and all other Regional District students needed a grade-point average of at least 3.5, out of a possible 4.0, to be considered for membership in the National Honor Society. Starting this year, youngsters with a grade-point average of 3.75 or better, out of a possible 4.5, will meet the scholarship criterion for membership.

School activities scheduled at David Brearley during the fall months include Back To School Night on Thursday, Sept. 26; Eighth Grade Orientation on Wednesday, Dec. 4; the School Play, tentatively set for Thursday and Friday, Nov. 14 and 15; the Homecoming Game and Ceremonies on Thursday, Nov. 28; the Fall Sports Awards program on Wednesday, Dec. 11; and the first Choral Concert of the school year on Thursday, Dec. 19.

Free lecture is slated

The Cardiac Rehabilitation Center of Overlook Hospital will sponsor a free lecture titled "Why Diabetics Have a Higher Risk for Heart Disease," on Sept. 4, from 8-9 p.m. in the Center for Community Health, sixth floor, Room 2 A/B. The class is open to the public, but seats are limited. Anyone interested in reserving a seat can call (908) 522-2945.

Dr. Robert Fuhrman, an Overlook endocrinologist, will present the lecture. He is a member of the American Medical Association and the American Society of Internal Medicine. Fuhrman received his bachelor's degree from Clark University, Massachusetts, and his medical degree from the University of Chicago Medical School.

Dean honors Zalinski

Traci Zalinski, daughter of Michael and Diane Zalinski of Kenilworth, was recently named to the Dean's high honor's list for the spring semester at Boston College, Chestnut Hill, Mass.

A 1989 graduate of David Brearley Regional High School, she is majoring in pre-law.

Library nets 60-volume set

The Springfield Public Library has been awarded a 60-volume set of The Library of America, the series that American Heritage magazine called "the most ambitious effort ever undertaken to put the best of American literature into the hands of the general reader."

The library is receiving the award after submitting an application to The Library of America and obtaining a pledge of $700 from The Friends of the Library. The Springfield Library is one of more than 2,000 across the country that have already acquired this important collection of American literature with funds from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and supplementary funds pledged in their local communities.

Each $700 raised locally is being augmented by $500 from the Mellon foundation grant as part of a national program to help libraries acquire The Library of America series.

The Library will receive approximately 20 volumes of The Library of America in its first shipment — over 30,000 pages of the best writing our country has produced. Thereafter, remaining volumes will be sent in regular shipments until all 60 volumes have been received. The Springfield Library will receive an award certificate for display that acknowledges the generosity of the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and The Friends of the Library. Bookplates will also be sent to the library for use in each volume.

"Arizona" exhibit featured

During the month of September, the Springfield Public Library, at 66 Mountain Ave., will feature an exhibit of paintings and photographs titled "Arizona," by Adrienne and Colleen Burke.

Adrienne Burke, a Springfield resident and prosecutor in Essex County, has contributed the oil paintings to this show. She has dedicated her work to the plight of the Native Americans in the southwestern state.

Her sister, Colleen, is the photographer and an account executive for an advertising agency in Morris Plains. Her 15 color photographs are being shown for the first time.

The public is invited to this unique display, which will hang in the meeting room for the entire month.

FAX available in Mountainside Library

Mountainside residents will be able to use the Mountainside Public Library's FAX machine as a fee-based service.

This service will also be available to all Mountainside library card holders. Fees for messages sent in New Jersey are $2 the first page and $1 for each additional page. Within the continental United States, the charge is $3 for the first page and $2 for each additional page. The FAX machine, however, cannot be used for receipt of messages.

Mountainside Library Schedule

Mountainside Public Library will be closed from Aug. 19 to 31 for installation of new carpeting. The library will also be closed Sept. 2 in observance of Labor Day. Regular hours will resume on Tuesday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 7 the library will be open Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A special meeting of the board of trustees for review of the personnel manual will be held at the library on Sept. 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Amnesty week at Mountainside Public Library

Amnesty on overdue books and other library materials will be in effect at the Mountainside Public Library when it re-opens Tuesday at 10 a.m. No fines will be collected on any overdue items between Sept. 3-14, regardless of the due date. Mountainside residents are encouraged to bring books and other long-lost but recently found materials to the library during the amnesty period. Regular fine rates of 10 cents a day for adult books and 5 cents a day for children's books resume on Monday, Sept. 16. Please call the library at 233-0115 with any questions.

Parents without Partners group slates dance

The Mid-Jersey Chapter 236 Parents Without Partners has scheduled a dance Sept. 15 to benefit Children's Specialized Hospital.

The dance, which is open to the public, will be held at the Holiday Inn in Kenilworth, Edison, 8 p.m. to midnight. Music will be provided by DJ's. Tickets are $6 for members of Parents Without Partners and $8 for guests. Refreshments will be available.

Parents Without Partners is an international self-help group for single parents which also conducts events for children. "Parents Without Partners always emphasizes children and children's benefits," said Rich Catanzaro, a board member of the 1,200-member mid-Jersey chapter.

"Through our dance, our PWP chapter will present a fun evening while helping the young patients of Children's Specialized Hospital," he said.

Tickets will be available at the door. Further information may be obtained by calling (908) 819-9576.

Children's Specialized Hospital, celebrating its centennial this year, is the state's only comprehensive pediatric rehabilitation hospital with outpatient and community services provided at its outpatient center in Fairwood. A Children's Specialized 30-bed inpatient unit is under construction in Ocean County.

Keep him on

Five years ago, the Union County Utilities Authority hired Executive Director Joseph Kazar to do a job — one that lately has come under fire by Union County elected officials and residents.

Union County Freeholder Walter Boright has called for Kazar's resignation, as have most members of county environmental groups.

What these people fail to realize is that Kazar is doing his job. He is not the person who drafted the county's Solid Waste Management Plan in 1979. He is not the person who decided where the county's incinerator or recycling center will be built. And he is not the person who decided where the ash from the incinerator will go. He is simply doing his job on directives from the UCUA commissioners and following the county's Solid Waste Management Plan, which was approved by the Freeholder Board 12 years ago — seven years before Kazar was hired.

Calling for Kazar's resignation is pointless. He should not become the scapegoat for this controversial situation.

Kazar acts as he is told and has little authority to make the final decisions, which are the responsibility of the appointed commissioners of the UCUA and the freeholders.

In fact, freeholders such as Boright have the responsibility to accept or reject the UCUA's amendments to the Solid Waste Management Plan. If the freeholders do not want an incinerator in Rahway, they have the power to reject it, move it to another municipality or try to cancel the plans, break their contractual agreement and seek a regional partner.

If angry residents are casting blame on Kazar for the proposed incinerator, the recycling center or the disposal of ash, they are blaming the wrong man.

If these people want to cast blame, they should point to the original members of the UCUA — James Fulcomer, Lou Santagata, Blanche Banasiak, Kenneth McRichey, John E. Buecheler, Richard Hatfield, Frank P. Capone, Joseph Hartnett and Harvey Williams.

Granted, none of these former commissioners are with the UCUA any longer — Santagata is now a freeholder — but, they were some of the original planners who helped formulate the amendments to the county's Solid Waste Management Plan that Kazar is now attempting to implement.

The members of the 1979 Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders should also take some of the blame for the county's solid waste plan.

Others that can be included on the "Blame List" are the current UCUA commissioners and freeholders. Although they weren't directly responsible for formulating the county's solid waste plan, they are the ones who now have the power to change it, not Kazar.

Some freeholders sit snugly in their comfortable cushioned chairs during Thursday night freeholder meetings, barely listening to citizens as they voice their concerns.

The current freeholders and commissioners are guilty of failing to listen to, or even entertaining a discussion on, alternatives to incineration.

If Kazar resigns under pressure or is terminated, the next person to fill his shoes will do exactly the same thing — the job asked of him.

Hopes for Middle East peace

To the Editor:
History convinces us that direct negotiations represent the only true path to peace between antagonists. And this is notably true in the Middle East, where the Camp David accords between Israel and Egypt are probably the only bright spot in the Arab-Israeli conflicts of the past four decades.

This is why we are hopeful over what is now happening in the wake of the recent visit to the area of Secretary of State James Baker. As with Camp David, the U.S. again is acting as a middle man to help enable the opposing parties to come together. For Israel, direct negotiations are something that it has had as its primary goal for all the years of its existence. Certainly there is no reason to fear any change in that today.

We are not so sure about the Arabs, though. Up to this point they are reluctant to say in public that they favor direct negotiations. Instead, they hide behind such euphemisms as a "comprehensive solution," but resist answering the questions reporters ask about their readiness for direct talks. When a Syrian official was given the opportunity to appear with an Israeli representative on a recent "Nightline" program, the Syrian refused. The explanation given is that they are fearful of antagonizing their own hardliners.

If direct negotiations are indeed to be the outcome of the current jockeying about, then all we can say is Godspeed and go to it. Perhaps we are about to see a really substantial move toward peace in the Middle East. The world certainly has waited a long time for this to come about.

Don't cut VA medical researchers

To the Editor:
As the New Jersey state commander of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States, the oldest active veterans group in the United States, I am very upset with the Administration's proposed cut of nearly 9,000 full-time Veterans Administration medical and research employees. This proposed reduction was presented during a period when veterans are being turned away from VA medical facilities and entire wards are being shut down because of staffing shortages. This proposal would seriously undermine the entire VA health-care system, as medical research is a crucial part of health care delivery. Along with the membership of the state JWV, I am concerned about medical research, especially as it relates to the disabled veteran.

The Department of Veterans Affairs Medical and Prosthetic Research program is of the highest special interest to our membership. We believe quality medical care includes clinical care, medical education and research. The three functions are interdependent — research programs cannot be allowed to deteriorate. The present and the future quality of health-care and rehabilitation depends on the Department of Veterans Affairs budget being adequately funded for medical research, a great deal of which is basic research that benefits all mankind, not only veterans.

I strongly support increased research into Alzheimer's disease and care for Alzheimer's patients as well as other related diseases, and I support treatment of all conditions and an increase in the number of outpatient services available to patients with specialized needs.

I ask Congress to remain committed to the pursuit of medical research in general and to research that will benefit disabled veterans in particular. In conclusion, I remind you that research must receive adequate funding to be effective.

Decries Florio's wetlands policy

To the Editor:
Is the Florio administration now quietly violating the state's Freshwater Wetlands Protection Act since its earlier attempts to accomplish same via an attorney general opinion failed? It appears that New Jersey's freshwater wetlands are again being targeted for destruction.

When the administration attempted in December to dismantle the state's nationally acclaimed Freshwater Wetlands Protection Act of 1987, the public outcry was heard far and wide. Attorney General Robert Del Tufo had issued Formal Opinion No. 3, which exempted most of the state's wetlands from the very law which had been drafted to protect them. What is the point of having a strong law that no longer applies to most of the freshwater wetlands? The developers, exercising extraordinary clout within the Florio Administration, were essentially given license to destroy this critically important natural resource.

Thankfully, the public's anger and the press exposure of the issue became impossible for the administration to ignore and resulted in the issuance of a Revised Opinion, which appeared to declare that the law as originally drafted would prevail, since the attorney general's opinion had been "misunderstood." The opinion was not misunderstood — it was for what it was — a wetlands destruction maneuver. Environmentalists then wrote the governor urging him to revoke all wetlands development permits issued between December, when Formal Opinion No. 3 had been released, and the release of the Revised Opinion, since the first opinion no longer had standing. The administration followed by announcing that most of the projects in question would have their permits revoked.

At this point, I thought this battle to save the wetlands had been won. In fact, this was the prevailing thought among those who had joined in the fight to halt the administration's betrayal of the public trust, an administration that all along has claimed to care deeply about New Jersey's environment. However, I have come to find out that the war against the wetlands is still being waged. Many of the permit revocations, so well publicized, have now been lifted so the projects approved between the initial and revised attorney general opinions are now moving forward after all.

Even more far-reaching is the DEP's intention to exempt large subdivisions from the Wetlands Act, which is completely contrary to the original intent of the law and everyone's understanding of the Revised Opinion. It seems Formal Opinion No. 3 lives, after all. Powerful developer interests are prevailing over the 1987 statutory mandate and over the will of the citizens of New Jersey, who time and time again have expressed their support for environmental protection. If the agency charged with wetlands protection — the DEP — is quietly subverting the law at the direction of the Florio administration, how can this invaluable resource survive?

I have written to DEP Commissioner Scott Weiner to ask for an explanation and clarification of these actions and anxiously await his response. Last spring, I wrote to Governor Florio asking for his support of A-4778 and ACR-156, legislation which would make crystal clear the intent of the 1987 law so it is not vulnerable to the type of erosion attempts exercised since last December. The governor has not responded to my plea.

The energies of all those who have shown their concern in the past are needed again. The battle is not over. It's a deplorable state of affairs when a landmark law, being considered for adoption by other states, is being repealed "de facto" by an administration that claims to be a champion of the environment. Actions speak louder than words. Freshwater wetlands must be a legacy for future generations; they cannot be put up for sale and destruction by our own generation.

Check out home health aides

To the Editor:
I am writing to alert your readers to a recent event which points out a serious consumer protection issue facing frail elderly and disabled citizens of New Jersey. An article appearing in the Courier News on June 18 reports that a home health aide hired through a newspaper ad was charged with first degree armed robbery. The event took place in the patient's home.

New Jersey state law now requires that all home health aides/nurses/aides who work in people's homes be employed by a home care services agency and supervised by a registered professional nurse. Unfortunately, there are currently several thousand certified home health aides/nurses/aides and countless other individuals who are working as "independent contractors" without the required professional supervision and employment affiliation. According to local police departments, these "independent contractors" are responsible for a significant number of the patient abuse and robbery cases which they investigate.

Recognizing this serious problem, the home care industry actively supported the law under the Nurse Practice Act, which mandates that all home health aides/nurses/aides be supervised by professional registered nurses. The State Board of Nursing is responsible for enforcing this law. Unfortunately, the board has not been able to fulfill this responsibility.

As a result, every day, thousands of frail elderly and disabled residents are put at risk of abuse, robbery and fraud by unsupervised home health aides/nurses/aides. I strongly recommend that before your readers hire home health aides/nurses/aides and allow them into their homes, they call the board of nursing at (201) 648-2570 to confirm whether the aide is board certified and working legally for a home care services agency.

The Board of Nursing should be urged to maintain a data base that will help identify aides with a record of abuse or robbery. The home care industry wants to put an end to these problems. The Board of Nursing should be there to help.

Calls for felon ID system

To the Editor:
I believe the Congress has an opportunity right now to do something to improve our community safety by protecting the rights of honest Americans beset by violent rampages from career felons. Congress should defeat the semi-automatic rifle ban provisions contained in pending crime bills, along with other restrictive proposals contained in these bills, and instead work toward passage of an Instant Check Felon Identification System, like the one currently working in Virginia and two other states, as well as other effective anti-crime measures against criminals.

Gun bans have failed to reduce crime. Washington, D.C., and California are prime examples of the failure of these laws as effective anti-crime tools. Our nation's capital remains a leader in criminal violence despite a virtual gun prohibition enacted some 15 years ago.

There is a better way. The Instant Check system, like the one working in Virginia, Florida and Delaware, makes criminal background checks mandatory, quick and fair. The Instant Check system works like a credit card check. Merchants call a toll-free hotline and discover from a database of convicted felons if the potential handgun buyer is eligible to take possession of a firearm or not. The whole process takes just a few minutes.

My job can become a little easier with the Instant Check system installed nationwide. It will do a better job curtailing convicted felons from buying handguns through dealers than the dangerously flawed alternatives in the crime bills now being considered. My job would be made a lot easier if our elected officials would dedicate more time, money and effort toward developing anti-crime tools which legislate against the criminal, not law-abiding citizens.

Law ensures cleaner, greener New Jersey

Nearly everyone knows Poor Richard's adage in this climate — "A stitch in time saves nine."

That's a common sense idea that makes just as much sense when it comes to our fight for clean water and good, healthy air.

Fortunately, times change, and so do attitudes. In New Jersey, the result of those changes is the Pollution Prevention Act of 1991, which will stand as a landmark law in our state's history and is sure to serve as a national model. I was proud to sign it Aug. 1.

The law is based on a simple premise. If companies cut down on, or don't use, toxic materials, they won't produce toxic waste. Less garbage in means less garbage out.

For New Jersey, it will mean a 50 percent reduction in the amount of hazardous materials used by industry over the next five years.

According to figures from the New Jersey Public Interest Research Group, New Jersey uses and produces more than 7 billion pounds of toxic chemicals a year. And of that amount, we release nearly 175 million pounds of those materials into our air, land and water.

To do nothing would be suicidal over the long-term because without clean water to drink and fresh air to breathe, our future — and that of our children — is at stake.

For the first time, we'll be stopping pollution at the source instead of spending millions of dollars to clean up the effects of pollution. In my televised address, I said that means we'll not only clean up the mistakes of yesterday, but prevent the mistakes of tomorrow.

In addition, the Pollution Prevention Act will cut through the red tape that often frustrated our businesses and industries. In some instances, they had to apply for multiple permits — sometimes up to 50. Now they'll only need one.

This kind of partnership is moving New Jersey to the forefront in fighting for clean water. And this new law is proof that such a partnership can have positive, long-term results.

Too often, when we talk about pollution and taking steps against it, the focus is on large companies and industries. They make an easy target, but we ignore the small business owners who have limited resources but also must deal with toxic materials.

Whether it's a local dry cleaning establishment or billion-dollar pharmaceutical industry, both have responsibilities when it comes to

From The Governor's Desk

By Gov. Jim Florio

the disposal of hazardous materials. The new law is designed to help our small business owners deal with the problems they face in this regard. The goal is to have everyone cut down on waste and producing hazardous materials, not just a few.

This was not a case where environmentalists were pitted against industries. Instead, everyone came together and forged a good law that preserves our air and water, and allows businesses to save money and prosper without the other.

It used to be that people thought they had to choose between protecting the environment or preserving jobs and a strong economy. Time has laid that argument to rest because we now know you can't have one without the other.

The Jersey Shore is an excellent example.

For millions of people, the Shore is a wonderful place for recreation and relaxation. A day at the beach is a tradition in New Jersey that goes back more than 100 years.

But for thousands of other families, the Shore is more than recreation. It's a business that depends on clean beaches and safe water. Without them, our tourism industry would suffer a devastating blow — as we all saw in the summer of 1988.

That's just one example of how clean water and safe air provide opportunities for growth and development. We've struck the right balance with this law, and it's going to benefit our state and greener New Jersey, as well as a strong and growing economy.

The biggest challenge in preventing pollution has been attitude, and it's encouraging to see that the old ways of thinking are giving way to new ideas and solutions. That process of innovation and creativity has a long history in New Jersey and it will continue to help us in our fight to preserve our most precious resources.

I believe New Jersey will be a better place because of the efforts of all of us — working together — to protect what we have.

"From the Governor's Desk" is a monthly column written and submitted by Gov. Jim Florio.

State should consider school regionalization

Screening New Jersey

By Steve Aduabato

Admit it, we all complain about "bloated" bureaucracies and ask why government operations can't be "consolidated" or "merged."

But in spite of all this empty rhetoric about our desire for increased government efficiency, most folks aren't prepared to back up their words with action. Especially when it's close to home and involves their kids.

The case of school district proliferation in New Jersey is revealing. The state currently has 619 separate school districts. We have only 567 municipalities. Almost one-third of these school districts have fewer than 500 kids enrolled. Some only have one school. Few rational people would argue that this situation isn't wasteful, inefficient and simply doesn't make sense. But the debate over school "regionalization" is anything but rational.

For almost 100 years, people have talked about merging school districts. But that's all there has been — talk. Virtually every time the state has attempted either to encourage or mandate school district consolidation, those efforts were thwarted.

You see, while most folks say they want more streamlined public sector operations, there are other much higher priorities, like home rule, neighborhood schools and an intense desire to remain separate from neighboring communities, especially when their racial and socio-economic makeup is different.

Once again, regionalization of schools is back in the news. For reasons that have less to do with increased government efficiency and more to do with lambasting the state's "de facto segregated" schools, Public Advocate Wilfredo Caraballo boldly stated, "The day of the local school is over." He said his office was planning to "attack the underpinnings of local education for racial reasons."

Predictably, Caraballo's comments have touched off a storm of controversy and knee-jerk reactions. Gov. Jim Florio, the man who appointed Caraballo, had this to say: "This administration has no plans to force regionalization of schools for any reason."

Clearly concerned over further alienating angry suburban voters, Florio added, "While it is the goal of the administration to foster voluntary regionalization to save money and to provide our children with a quality education, it is not state policy to coerce districts into regionalizing."

As if he doesn't have enough political problems, the governor is once again thrust onto a precarious tightrope. Predictably, the Republicans are once again pandering to voters who believe "home rule" is some sort of birthright.

In a scathing attack on Caraballo, Congressman Marge Roukema stated, "I just can't believe that anyone can seriously recommend this to the state of New Jersey. I am astounded." Republican Assemblyman Gerald Zecker of Clifton added that the Public Advocate "doesn't have the mental fiber necessary for the position. His credibility is shot now. The honorable thing for him to do is resign."

Real statemen, those Republicans. And not content with lambasting Caraballo, Roukema said that Florio's response to the public advocate's recommendation to force school mergers was "remarkably tepid."

Publicly, opponents of school district consolidation argue that smaller school districts offer special advantages, such as a greater intimacy between parents and school administrators as well as smaller student-teacher ratios, less red tape and faster and more responsive decision-making.

But these things come at a hefty price. The fastest growing piece of the property tax pie has been paying for local schools. And with state aid being shifted from suburban communities to more needy urban districts, local school board budgets will continue to rise, all this making adamant and unbending opposition to school district consolidation efforts less plausible.

Beyond the issue of racial equity, proponents of regionalization argue that smaller districts can get more "bang for their buck" by merging with other school districts. One centralized effort costs a lot less than a lot of little ones. Consider this: With more students, schools would be able to offer a more diverse menu of courses at a fraction of the cost. But the question is, for these and other tangible benefits, are parents willing to have their children travel by bus to school and/or mix with kids from other communities?

Wilfredo Caraballo has done New Jersey a big favor. He has stimulated dialogue on an issue that we must finally face head on. He is making a lot of people uncomfortable, including his boss, Jim Florio, but maybe that's the job of a public advocate, to act sort of like the "conscience" of state government, especially when everyone else is looking out for themselves or the often narrow interests of their constituents.

It's easy to blame our increased tax bills on generic government inefficiency. It's a lot tougher to look at our own responsibility in fostering such inefficiencies and inequities when it comes to "neighborhood schools."

Regardless of what the GOP says, ridiculing the governor and making Wilfredo Caraballo resign won't make this difficult issue go away. The price tag for "home rule," when it comes to education in New Jersey, is one we simply can no longer afford. A serious and substantive debate on school regionalization must begin now.

Detailed information will be sought for SS

Social Security

By George W. Dearness

The Social Security Administration will seek more detailed information about children who apply for Supplemental Security Income disability benefits under a revised standard for determining childhood disability. Information about the child's daily activities will be collected to help SSA determine if a child is disabled under a new regulation that became effective in February.

The new regulation changes the criteria SSA uses to determine whether a child is disabled for SSI purposes. Under the new procedures, SSA will evaluate the extent to which a child's disability keeps him or her from doing things children of the same age can do. Under previous rules, only children who met specific medical criteria were found eligible for SSI purposes. It is expected that the new rules will result in SSI eligibility for thousands of children whose claims may have been denied for medical reasons under the old rules.

Physicians and other individuals familiar with the child's capabilities will be asked to provide information about the child's ability to perform age-appropriate activities, such as caring for him or herself, functioning in a school setting and handling peer relations. This information will supplement the medical information SSA already requests from treating physicians. Schools will be asked to provide information about academic performance, psychological evaluations, attendance, behavior, and speech and language therapy. The child's teacher or counselor also may be asked to provide information about ways in which the child's disability limits his or her ability to function in an age-appropriate fashion.

In mid-July, SSA sent notices to about half a million children who can request re-evaluations of their claims under the Sullivan vs. Zebby court order.

The agency will work with national educational organizations to assure that they are aware of the change and that SSA will be asking for their cooperation in providing prompt, complete reports. All information provided by external sources is confidential under the provisions of the Federal Privacy Act.

The SSI program makes monthly cash payments to disabled children from families with limited income and resources. Children who receive SSI also are usually eligible for medical assistance and various other social services.

George W. Dearness is Social Security manager in Elizabeth.

More regulation needed for true gun control

Personal Viewpoint

By Mark Yablonsky
Staff Writer

"A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed."

The above's brief, to the point and as American as apple pie. It is the Second Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and the Second Amendment is often referred to and clung to by gun-lobby groups and supporters — who view any kind of attempt toward gun control as illegal and unconstitutional.

But is it? Gun control, despite the claims of many, is merely an attempt to regulate and record the amount of firearms that are purchased yearly in the United States. Some states, such as New Jersey, have strict gun laws, while others, such as Wyoming, do not.

What happens is that without any kind of federal legislation, people simply travel to states that have more lenient gun laws. Those people, some of whom may be criminals or mentally deranged, can then return to their home state with their weapon, free perhaps to do whatever they please with it. Mark David Chapman, the assassin of John Lennon, and John David Hinckley, who tried to assassinate President Reagan a decade ago, clearly had no right owning or even possessing a gun. But at least one of them got his firearm from another state before committing his act of terror.

Gun control advocates, meanwhile, have pleaded for years for stricter gun laws, not to take guns away from mentally and legally competent, law-abiding citizens, but rather, to keep firearms out of the wrong hands — such as the Chapmans and the Hinckleys.

That is basically the logic behind gun control. Yet every time attempts are made to better regulate guns, the gun lobby tries to invoke the Second Amendment and insinuate that anyone advocating gun control is subversive. Nonsense.

First of all, the Second Amendment was enacted more than two centuries ago at a time when a larger percentage of this country's male population was involved in military duty. Since the militia was at that time largely in the business of protecting the borders of the United States from foreign attack, the Second Amendment was there for a reason.

Make no mistake, I won't attempt to play Supreme Court judge in this instance. The amendment seems vague and even the American Civil Liberties Union has been unable to form a clear consensus as to the Second Amendment's true definition. Is the Second Amendment outdated? Or does it mean you have the absolute right to bear arms? Again, it's not totally clear, at least not to me — or to the ACLU or to others. Nor is it wise to advocate doing away with the Second Amendment.

The answer clearly is better regulation — for as one prominent ACLU member explained, "Just the act of regulating doesn't make it unconstitutional."

Regardless of wisdom and/or fact, though, the National Rifle Association, arguably the most powerful lobbying group in the country, has repeatedly used its money and influence throughout the years to bully and pressure legislators who even look as though they might go against the gun lobby.

Yet in recent times, even the NRA seems to have lost some clout. Argued Los Angeles, an eight-term congressman from Oregon who always used to side with the NRA: "If New Jersey's mandatory background check for handgun purchases has caught 10,000 convicted felons trying to buy handguns, how could I honestly tell myself that gun control isn't crime control?"

Exactly. But does that mean law-abiding citizens who may have a genuine need for a gun — such as someone living in a crime-plagued area — should be denied legal access to a gun? Absolutely not.

Just let them go through the proper background check and if all works out, fine. They will be registered and legally able to own a gun. They should be able to buy a gun, provided they will keep it well out of the reach of children and others who might be hurt accidentally. Any kind of act toward banning handguns altogether — or to the ACLU or to others. Nor is it wise to advocate doing away with the Second Amendment.

The answer clearly is better regulation — for as one prominent ACLU member explained, "Just the act of regulating doesn't make it unconstitutional."

Authority planning another suit

By Sharon Cates Staff Writer

It seems that the Union County Utilities Authority is planning to sue Rayway once again. This time, just as with the last lawsuit that was filed in June, the controversy is over a referendum the City Council is attempting to place on the ballot in November.

Assistant City Attorney Louis Rainone noted that he received notification on Aug. 23 that the UCUA was intending to sue the city over an incinerator-related referendum.

Due to time constraints because of the election, the UCUA must make their decision by Friday. The referendum in question, which was unanimously approved by the City Council on Aug. 12, questions the city's participation as a member of the Union County Utilities Authority.

The first resolution, which was sponsored by Councilwoman Katherine Falcomer, questioned the siting of the incinerator, something that Beglin said the city does not have authority over.

In early July, when he handed down his decision to prohibit the first referendum from being placed on the ballot, the court issued a different referendum — questioning something that the city has jurisdiction over — could be placed on the ballot.

Falcomer noted that on Beglin's advice, she sponsored the second resolution, which reads: "Whenever making its designation of a member of the Union County Utilities Authority, should the mayor and the council of Rayway designate an opponent to the operation of Union County's Resource Recovery Facility (waste-to-energy incinerator) as a member of the Union County Utilities Authority?"

Rainone noted that he was surprised to learn that the UCUA was considering suing the city. "We all knew we were going to be sued last time," Rainone said. "I didn't think that they would consider suing us this time."

"The second referendum, as drafted, specifically addresses Judge Beglin's concerns," Rainone added. "The judge said that the first referendum was too broad, but the City Council has the authority over this referendum."

Rainone noted that Beglin has filed the UCUA that if they were going to file a complaint against the city, they must do so before Friday because of the time constraints involved.

UCUA Chairman Angelo Bonanno admitted that the UCUA was contemplating suing the city over the referendum; however, "no official action has been taken."

"The attorney is reviewing it and he will report back to the utilities authority and appropriate action will be taken," Bonanno said.

Bonanno noted that he could not comment on the details surrounding the issue, since there was the possibility of litigation. He did note that the UCUA would make their determination known by Friday.

The cost factor During the legal battle over the first resolution, the City Council allocated $15,000 to fight the UCUA. Of that, approximately $3,500 was spent, according to Rainone.

Rainone also questioned the UCUA's finances regarding the lawsuit. "They are apparently ready to spend a lot of money," Rainone said. "Since this is a non-binding referendum, one should ask why are they willing to spend the money and is it a proper public expenditure?"

If the UCUA sues the city the hearing will be held in Elizabeth on Sept. 19. For more information or for enrollment remains open for September for Grace Lutheran Nursery School as it begins its second year of service to the community.

Rabbi Price to officiate at High Holy Day events

Rabbi Ronald D. Price, dean of the Institute of Traditional Judaism, will officiate at the High Holy Day services in Congregation Beth Shalom, Union.

High Holy Day services will begin with a pre-Selichot service Saturday at 10 p.m. and Selichot services at midnight. Beginning at 10 p.m., there will be a speaker from the Midwest News Watch, a newly-formed media watch group, who will refocus the local struggle against anti-Israel media bias, by emphasizing education and grassroots activism.

The organization also will work closely with the large media camps in the nation's media capital, being in holding journalists accountable for their reports on Israel and the mid-east and in educating them in these areas."

Congregation Beth Shalom will have a social gathering at 11 p.m. with refreshments before Selichot services at midnight. Cantor Harold Gottesman will lead the services.

Rosh Hashana services, marking the Jewish new year, 5752, will be held Sept. 8 at 6:45 p.m.; Sept. 9 at 8:30 a.m. with Tashlich at 5:30 p.m. and Mincha at 6:45 p.m., and Sept. 10 at 9 a.m., with Mincha at 6:45 p.m. Yom Kippur will be observed from Sept. 17 from 6:30 p.m. with Kol Nidre services, and Sept. 18 at 9 a.m. Yizkor will be conducted after the Torah Reading.

Price, who resides in Teaneck with his wife and two daughters, has served as the first executive vice president of the Union for Traditional Judaism since 1985. Born in Washington, D.C., he was graduated from the University of Maryland and received a master of arts degree in Hebrew literature from the Jewish Theological Seminary, where he was ordained in 1977.

He has lectured and published articles on subjects such as pluralism in the Jewish community, treating traditional communities, the realignment of religious Judaism and the risks and benefits of Outreach to the Interfaith.

Congregation Beth Shalom has announced that tickets for the High Holy Days are available and more information can be obtained by calling the synagogue office at 908-686-6773.

Assistant coaching jobs given to Cusic, Housel

Joselin Cusic has been hired as the new assistant women's soccer coach while Suzi Housel has been named the assistant coach for field hockey at Kean College.

Kean College

Cusic comes to the Cougars after a very successful playing career at Springfield College in Massachusetts.

A two-time captain, Cusic helped lead Springfield to two conference championships and one Eastern College Athletic Conference Tournament appearance in her four years. The squad boasted a 34-28-8 record over her career.

Cusic, a four-year starter, was named All-Northeast as a sophomore and senior. In her senior year she led the squad in scoring with 10 goals and two assists. For her career she boasted 23 goals and eight assists for 34 points.

Joselin Cusic will be a very important addition to our staff," head coach Lenny Armuth said. "She has a wealth of knowledge about the game and relates to the players extremely well."

Two-time All-American Housel is a two-time All-American field hockey player for Trenton State. Housel is a welcome addition to coach Renee Clarke's staff. She led the Lions to the 1988 Division 3 national championship and to a second-place finish in 1989.

"I am extremely excited at the prospect of having someone with Suzi's credentials on my staff," Clarke said. "She has so much talent and experience and can really help the players a lot."

For the past five years, Housel has and programs will be offered to those running, free of charge.

Runners will need heart and sole

Union County runners are invited to sign up for JFK Medical Center's annual Heart & Sole Race, a 10-kilometer run through Edison on Sunday, Oct. 20 at 9:30 a.m.

The race will begin across the street from the medical center at the JFK Fitness & Conference Center on James Street. It will wind through suburban township streets before finishing at the same site.

For those wishing to participate, but at a more leisurely pace, a one-mile walk-run will precede the 10K at 9 a.m.

Walkers, runners and wheelchair athletes of all ages are eligible for either event. Approximately 800 people completed in the two events last year and a large number of entrants are again expected.

The first-place male and female finishers in the 10K will each receive prizes valued at $300. Additionally, there will be trophies for the first three men and women in each of the nine different age categories in the race.

Trophies will also go to the youngest male and female finishers in the one-mile and the oldest finisher in the 10K will receive a special prize.

The first 1,000 race applicants will receive a commemorative long-sleeve T-shirt and gifts will go to all finishers.

Heart & Sole applications are available from JFK's Cardiopulmonary Rehabilitation Department, which will benefit from the race's proceeds.

Pre-entry application forms must be received by Oct. 15 with a $7 registration fee for the one-mile and a $10 fee for the 10K.

Post entries will be accepted from Wednesday, Oct. 16 until 8:30 a.m. race day, with a fee of $8 for the mile and $11 for the 10K.

Ten-kilometer race participants will run a well-marked, mostly flat course. Traffic will be controlled and splits and three water stops will be provided. The course is certified by The Athletics Congress.

Sponsors will provide food and beverages for runners and their families at the finish line and additional sponsors and the JFK medical-dental staff have pledged their support of the race.

As in previous years, race clinics

The pre-race clinic on running mechanics and techniques will take place on Tuesday, Sept. 24 from 3 to 7 p.m. at JFK. Evaluations will be conducted by the Sports Medicine Department. Appointments are mandatory and, to register, individuals must call 908-321-7757.

On Tuesday, Oct. 22, a post-race sports medicine clinic will be held from 3 to 7 p.m. at JFK. Appointments must be made on race day.

For more information on the race or clinics, call 908-321-7725.

Union musician immerses himself in his life-long passion

By Ben Smith Lifestyle Editor

Steve Melvin of Union, whose whole life revolves around music, can't remember a time when music wasn't his favorite topic.

From age 7, he was playing the piano. Today, at 27, he has his own three-piece band, B4 I GO; his own production studio, Simplicity Productions; is working on his second record album in his first, "B4 I GO," sold more than 1,000 albums — and teaches music locally.

"I started playing the piano when I was 7," he said. "I took lessons," the tall young man recalled as he pushed back his long hair and stretched his long legs, clad in tight faded jeans. "Then I played the guitar at age 13. I studied classical guitar with violinist Leonid Boloutine in Manhattan for about four years. I studied jazz with Harry Laboy, who has since passed away. I also studied jazz with Joe Cindarella and pop style with Mike Kucak."

Melvin, who was born and raised in Carteret, came to Union with his mother, Lois Melvin, and brother, John. They are all partners in a day business, Snyvesant Deli, on Snyvesant Avenue in Union.

The musician said that "I've been teaching music since I was 18, and I've served as consultant at the Milburn Music Center, where I've also given lessons in piano, guitar and bass. I also taught at Muscara's Music, which became Spinosa's Music in Belleville."

Melvin grinned and said modestly, "I must have given thousands and thousands of lessons to people. I teach music at Farbrook School in Short Hills. It's a private school... a beautiful school. And I also give lessons in my own studio, 'Simplicity Productions,' which I opened in 1988. It's a multi-track audio production facility in Union. That's where I produce and engineer music for local bands as well as my own band, which I also formed in 1988."

The other members of Melvin's band are David Lantini, a bass player, and Meryl Skitt, a singer. Both are from West Orange. "I play the guitar and keyboard with the band," Melvin said. "In addition, I produce and write songs for the band. Our first album was independently released last year, and we're now working on our second album, which we hope to release by Christmas. The album, which has lyrics that concern the environment, pollution and some religion, can be found at Scotty's Records in Millburn and Summit among other record shops."

The music has been described as '60s new wave, rock and roll combined with folk music of the '60s and '70s."

Melvin's band has appeared in a number of clubs, including Live Tonight in Hoboken, The Dirt Club in Bloomfield, The Cove on the border-line of Union and Roselle, and Keny's Castaways on Bleeker Street in Greenwich Village, New York City.

And if that isn't enough, Melvin has given free solo classical guitar recitals at Madison Library for a few years, at other local libraries, and at such churches as the Mountaineers Gospel Chapel and the First Presbyterian Church in Perth Amboy. "There, I play classical music or something church-y," he said. "I do it because I love to do it. And the folks like to hear it."

"I also play solo and classical guitar and special music for weddings and private parties. And since I've been teaching in Millburn and Short Hills, when some of the people there throw a party, they think it's elegant to have a classical guitarist play at their parties."

"Actually," Melvin said, "I like all kinds of music, and I like to write my own music." Among the 11 songs on his album were his own "Wait Til Morning," "I Can Fly," "Waiting Way" and "Big (Compared to You)," which received significant air play.

"And I expect to write 11 more songs for our new, yet untitled, album. I write a lot of instrumental stuff, classical guitar as well as popular idioms, like fusion, jazz... On my album, I did all the drums, which were programmed, of course. Using a synthesizer, I do a lot of drum programming," Melvin explained. "Now that I have my own studio, I do my own music, and I produce their work."

"What are his future plans?" "I want to continue writing and recording music, my own and producing other people's music, as well as teaching. I can better myself on guitar and special music."

"That's what I've been doing," he sighed. "And I try to do my best." For such a busy and talented young man, the future certainly seems to promise much success.

Steve Melvin of Union concentrates on an original melody for his new album.

Art exhibits scheduled

A schedule of seven art exhibitions covering 10 months has been announced by Viola Meakin, chairwoman of the Les Malmut Art Gallery in the Union Public Library, Union.

First known as the Wheelchair Gallery, the exhibition was opened in February 1988 showing work of Union artist Hella Ballin and the late sculptor Eugene Gauss. In the past four years, there have been 26 exhibitions.

The 27th exhibit, Sept. 15 to Oct. 18, will be by Lucie Maragni of Maplewood, who has shown in New York and New Jersey galleries. Maragni works in both oils and watercolors. She studied at Pratt Institute in New York and instructed at Jersey City State College, Atlanta Junior College and Warren County Community College.

Joseph E. Huxen, a Union resident for 30 years, will show from Oct. 20 to Nov. 21. Jay Gehring Smith, a photographer from Hillside, is scheduled Nov. 24 to Jan. 10, 1992. Tom Picard of Rahway, Jan. 12 to Feb. 21, works in commercial illustration, design, mural paintings and sculpture.

Edmund Spiro, Feb. 23 to April 3, is a sculptor and painter and has appeared in more than 20 exhibitions. He lives in East Brunswick. Pam Hasegawa, photographer from Morristown, will appear from April 5 to May-15. Terrance Bell of Vauxhall is scheduled May 15 to June 26.

Registration is under way

The Academy of Dance and Performing Arts will be having pre-registration sign-up on Sept. 5 and 6 from 4 to 7 p.m. and on Sept. 7 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the studio, which is located at 1292 Snyvesant Ave., Union. The academy is under the direction of Connie Belcher, director of the Franklin School Players of Union.

The academy offers classes for children ages 3 and up in tap, jazz and ballet. Children's drama classes are also available. The talents of the dancing students and the drama students are combined at the end of the year to perform a musical production. The children received a standing ovation for their performance of this year's production, "School Daze."

Adult classes are also available in tap and jazz, and previous training is not required.

The academy offers limited class sizes which allows more individual attention and encouragement for each student. Early enrollment is recommended to ensure class availability.

RESTAURANT GUIDE

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

BIG STASH'S

A popular, informal spot to dine, offering hearty and satisfying Polish and Italian food. Daily specials and super special weekend prices.

By Debbie Sacharoff

Big Stash's Restaurant, at 1020 S. Wood Ave., in Linden, is a great place to eat, to relax, to bring the family or celebrate with friends. It's one of those rare restaurants with an informal atmosphere, where a variety of foods is offered, including Polish and Italian specialties, full dinner, smaller meals and snacks. It's a place where one can hold a banquet for a special celebration, have a party, go out with friends, or bring one's family.

Owners Stanley and Kris Ravrysz carry a 22-year tradition of genuine hospitality.

One order homemade soups, hot or cold sandwiches, kibbles plates, soft shell crab, or a variety of dinner entrees, such as prime rib, baked ham, stuffed peppers or stuffed cabbage, depending on one's appetite.

"Bigos" is one especially delicious Polish dish, offered as a main dish or an appetizer at Big Stash's. A combination of sauerkraut, kielbasa and small pieces of spareribs, it is served piping hot with slices of fresh rye bread and butter on the side. This dish is a must, and eaten with mustard, is out of this world! It could easily become an addiction.

My partner and I started with two appetizers, shrimp cocktail and bigos. Five very large shrimp were served in the shell, with a particularly picante horseradish cocktail sauce. I really enjoyed. We were completely sold on the bigos, as mentioned earlier, and plan to return, next time ordering it as a main dish.

Our entrees were prime rib and broiled scallops, which came with two types of salads. The cole slaw was very creamy smooth and fresh. The vegetable salad, consisting of cucumber, finely chopped cabbage and carrots, with oil and vinegar was delicate, with a light flavor, not overly filling. The prime rib was thick, flavorful and juicy; and the scallops, broiled lightly and served in butter, were done just right. They were sweet and tender, cooked to perfection, an art many chefs cannot master.

A glass of chilled Zoller Schwarzkatz, a German white wine, accompanied the meal, and was just the right flavor, not too sweet nor too dry.

For dessert, the open-face apple pie, topped with whipped cream, not too sweet, was the perfect way to end a really satisfying meal.

Some of Big Stash's most popular dishes include fresh ham, stuffed peppers, stuffed cabbage, and the super special complete weekend entree meals reasonably priced at $8.25. Luncheon specials are $5.25 and include main dishes like barbeued ribs or Salisbury steak. Sandwiches range from $1.25. Dinner prices start at $6.95 for many dishes, such as chicken, stuffed cabbage, veal cutlet, to king crab legs at $15.95. Most diners are offered over $10, and include salad, potato, vegetable, roll and butter.

Mary Gurry, our waitress, who has worked there for 18 years, was very warm and solicitous and offered excellent service.

There's a good reason why this restaurant is always busy, and why people from miles around come to enjoy the atmosphere and cuisine. The food is great, offering special homemade soups and sauces, daily specials, reasonable prices, and a place so comfortable that it beckons its guests to return again and again.

Big Stash's is open seven days a week, from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Wednesday; until midnight Thursday through Saturday; and from noon until 9 p.m. on Sunday. The restaurant is closed on major holidays.

5 concerts scheduled for symphony's 41st year

The Colonial Symphony's 41st season will feature five concerts. Opening on Oct. 11 at 8:30 p.m., at the auditorium at the Madison Junior School, Rt. 24, Madison, the first concert will offer Byron Adams' East Coast premiere performance of "Capriccio Concertante," "Dances of Galatia," by Zoltan Kodaly, and the "Violin Concerto in D Major," Opus 77, by Johannes Brahms, with Pamela Frank as a soloist.

Pamela Frank, the American soloist and winner of the Avery Fisher Career Grant in 1988, is a performer with an active schedule of engagements. In April 1990, she made her New York recital debut on Lincoln Center's "Great Performances" series with a concert at Alice Tully Hall. In May of that year, she performed Brahms' "Double Concerto" with Yo-Yo Ma and the Baltimore Symphony. She has also performed with the Cleveland Orchestra and the Montreal Symphony and other major music societies.

Sixteen-year-old Ariel Kemp of Fair Lawn will be the guest artist on Dec. 7, when he performs the "Suite for Recorder and Strings," by George Philipp Telemann. Also on the program will be the "Sinfonia Concertante in C Major," by Johann Christian Bach the "Symphony No. 1 in B Flat," by William Boyce and "Concerto Grosso," by Arcangelo Corelli.

In 1988, Kemp won the second prize in the New Jersey

Symphony Orchestra's Young Artists' Audition, and in 1990, he won first prize in that competition. He was featured in January 1989 in the McCraw-Hill Showcase for young musicians on WQXR. Kemp has also performed in four concerts with the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra this past March and was a guest soloist with the Strawberry Creek Festival in Los Angeles, under the direction of Yehuda Gilad.

On Feb. 7, 1992, Peter Retjo, cellist, will be featured in the Cello No. 1 by Dmitri Shostakovich, Maurice Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin," and Felix Mendelssohn's "Symphony No. 4 in A Major," Opus 90, will complete the program.

One of this country's leading cellists, Retjo has appeared throughout the U.S. and abroad in hundreds of recitals and concerto performances. His international tours have taken him to England, Switzerland, Italy, Venezuela, Hong Kong, and Bulgaria, where he became the first cellist to perform. He has appeared at music festivals here and abroad. Equally lauded as soloist, chamber musician and teacher, Retjo is professor of cello at the University of Arizona.

On April 10, 1992, the Colonial Symphony will present "Sinfonia," Opus 1, by Benjamin Britten, "Serenade" for

George Street Playhouse earns grant from foundation

George Street Playhouse has been awarded a $100,000 grant by the Blanche and Irving Laurie Foundation supporting the playhouse's upcoming production of "Anna Christie," and "I Ought to Be in Pictures."

Irving and Blanche Laurie, lifelong residents of New Brunswick, established the foundation to continue a family legacy of giving that began with Israel Laurie, one of New Brunswick's early philanthropists and the father of Irving Laurie.

Gene R. Korf, a tax partner with the law firm of Hancock Weisman and executive director and trustee of the Laurie Foundation, said that "This grant represents our evaluation of the quality of works created at the George Street Playhouse and our commitment to the activities of the New Brunswick Cultural Center."

In the past, the Laurie Foundation has also funded arts organizations such as Rutgers University's Summerfest program, Manhattan's Circle-

In-The-Square Theater and Brundis University's Barbara Laurie Experimental Theater.

"The Blanche and Irving Laurie Foundation is unique in its significant funding to the arts," said Gregory S. Hurst, GSP's producing artistic director. "What is especially exciting to the George Street Playhouse, is to have a foundation whose benefactors made New Brunswick their home. The trustees of this foundation approach philanthropy to theater with vision, understanding and involvement. Their sensitivity to our artistic vision and their desire to nurture what they recognize as a theater making a national impact are especially gratifying to myself and the playhouse's board of trustees. Gene Korf's guidance has been invaluable."

Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie" will be the first production to be sponsored by the Laurie Foundation. Directed by Kevin Dowling, director of the Off-Broadway hit, "The Sum of Us," "Anna Christie" runs Oct. 26 to Nov. 17. Immediately following will be Neil Simon's "I Ought to Be in Pictures," directed by GSP's producing artistic director, Gregory S. Hurst. This second production, sponsored by the Laurie Foundation, runs Nov. 25 to Dec. 22.

The remainder of GSP's 1992-93 season includes three world premieres: Richard Venter's "The Engagement," "The Prince and the Pauper," by March Elliott, Richard Holland and Judd Waldin, Marsha Norman's "Sarah and Abraham," the American premiere of "Separation" by Tom Kempinski, and the Off-Broadway hit, "Other People's Money," by Jerry Sterner.

At a time when arts organizations are faced with reduced government funding, the support of private funding sources, such as the Blanche and Irving Laurie Foundation, is crucial to the growth of the George Street Playhouse, Hurst said.

Studio's new season begins

The Westminster Dance Studio, official school of the Westminster Dance Theater, begins its fall season on Sept. 7. An extensive children's program will be offered in ballet, tap, jazz and acrobatics. Special teen and adult classes are available for the beginner student as well as the professional dancer. Performance workshops for company members and gifted students will be for those who qualify.

Under the direction of Maryann Battoli and Karen Silva, Westminster has achieved success in providing the highest caliber of dance training in the Union County Area. Through its professional training students have been accepted into the School of American Ballet, Joffrey II Dancers, Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater and Yale Drama School.

The Westminster Dance Theater is a non-profit cultural and educational organization that provides community services to handicapped individuals and senior citizens. In-person registration will be from 3-7 p.m. Sept. 4-6. For more information or to register by mail, call or write to Westminster Dance Studio, 969 Stuyvesant Avenue, Union, 07083. Call 1-908-686-7676.

GRACEFUL MOVES — "Story Ballet Class," a pre-school dance program, is now registering for the fall season. Pictured is Anne Krohley, director of the New Jersey Dance Center, who created the program. For further information, call 762-3033.

Exhibition honors 12 artists

Excellence in any field merits recognition from peers. The Printmaking Council of New Jersey is honored to present New Jersey Print Masters, opening Sept. 6 at the council headquarters, the Ralph T. Reeve Cultural Center, located at the intersection of Station and River Roads, North Branch Station. The exhibition will continue through Oct. 12. The general public is welcome to attend the opening reception from 7 to 9 p.m. on Sept. 6. Admission and parking are free.

New Jersey, dominated by the north in New York and in the south by Philadelphia, has produced artists who choose to live and work in the Garden State. This exhibition salutes them.

Chosen for their contributions to art over the years, the 12 artists in the show are at the forefront of their profession.

Richard Anuszkiewicz is an abstract artist known for his Op Art paintings and prints. Murals at Rutgers University, Newark Airport, and the New Jersey Transportation Department are among his many commissions.

Judith Brodsky, a printmaker and educator, heads the Rutgers Center for Innovative Printmaking, New Brunswick and has been a force in the graphic arts.

Clarence Carter has enjoyed a long and distinguished career, garnering many honors. In 1989, he was awarded the Governor's Art Award, given for a lifetime of achievement. He was included on the Honorary Committee of Walt Whitman recipients and finalists on July 31 at the New Jersey State Museum, Trenton. Artists were recognized by Gov. Jim Florio, the Honorable Joan Haber, Secretary of State, and the New Jersey State Council on the Arts (N.J.S.C.A.) staff and members. At this 25th anniversary, both New Jersey organizations and artists, representing New Jersey's arts community, were celebrated.

Edmond Cassarella is an internationally-respected abstract printmaker, painter and sculptor. His cardboard prints have received high praise.

John DePol is one of the premier wood engravers and teachers whose engravings have graced many books.

The work of Riva Helfond, an honored painter and printmaker, evolved from social realism of the 1930s to today's abstraction.

Jacob Landau's career has brought recognition in advertising, publishing and the fine arts. His work, used for illustrations and stained glass windows, is represented in major museum collections.

Hughie Lee-Smith is a painter, educator and printmaker. Among his mural commissions are those in the New Jersey State Commerce Building and the New Jersey State Council on the Arts.

Ann Steele Marsh comes by her art skills naturally. Her late father, Frederick Dorr Steele, was the illustrator of the American editions of the Sherlock Holmes stories. Marsh, a wood engraver, was a founding member of the Hunterdon Art Center and has been a source of advice and inspiration.

Stefan Martin, also a noted wood engraver, has illustrated books and exhibited internationally. His engraving of the Printmaking Council adorns much of the organization's literature.

Bernarda Bryson Shami is a painter, book illustrator and printmaker. She has taught etching and lithography and has executed murals for the Bronx Post Office and the Roosevelt Community Building.

George Tice photographs the New Jersey urban scene. Called an "urban romantic," he has published books of photos on Paterson, New Jersey hometowns and President Abraham Lincoln.

The Printmaking Council was created in 1973 by a group of artists to stimulate interest and provide facilities in printmaking throughout New Jersey. The facility, provided by the Somerset County Parks Commission, also known as the Ralph T. Reeve Cultural Center, houses a gallery, fully equipped studios for printmaking and papermaking, a darkroom, a library and an administrative office. The council is located at 440 River Road, North Branch Station. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Tuesday through Friday, and Saturday, from 1 to 4 p.m. Studio space with presses is available on an hourly or daily basis, while classes and workshops are offered each spring and fall. Call 1-908-725-2110 for more information.

Studios enter the picture with new movie releases

Last week we spoke about film releases by Paramount and Tri Star studios between Labor Day and New Years. I won't go over what was written last week as I am sure that all of you saved that column as you will surely save this column.

Fox begins the post Labor Day festivities on Oct. 4 with "Super" starring Joe Pesci and Vincent Gardenia. Pesci is one of the hottest properties in Hollywood after his academy award performance in "Good Fellas." Fox has high hopes for this film which is about a stamford who is sentenced to live in one of his own tenements. Scheduled for Nov. 8 is "Shining Through" starring Michael Douglas and Melanie Griffith. This spy story is set during WWII with Melanie as an American spy in Nazi Germany and Douglas as her love interest. It will be interesting to see how the chemistry between them works. On Dec. 6 Fox breaks "For The Boys" starring Bette Midler and James Caan. This musical comedy is about a song and dance team that tours for the USO during WWII, Korea and Vietnam. Midler ages 50 years during the film and does a lot of singing and dancing. On Dec. 13 Fox opens two films, "Memoirs of an Invisible Man" and "Grand Canyon." "Memoirs" stars Chevy Chase and Daryl Hannah. This is an updated Invisible Man plot, with Chevy invisible and Daryl the love interest. Funny, I thought she was dating one of the Kennedys. "Grand Canyon" stars Danny Glover, Kevin Kline and Steve Martin. It is billed as a comedy/drama centering on the interaction between white and black friends.

Moving right along to Disney, we start with "Pardners" on Sept. 20 starring Melanie Griffith and Don Johnson, a very interesting pair. This drama is about how a couple copes with the loss of their child. On Sept. 27 we have "Deceived" starring Goldie Hawn. This is a suspense story which will probably be promoted as a Hitchcock-type thriller. I, for one, am curious as to how Goldie performs in a dramatic setting. "Ernest Scared Stupid," opening Oct. 11 and starring you-know-who is the fourth in the Ernest series. This time Ernest battles an evil Troll. If you or your kids like Ernest you will probably love this film. On Nov. 22, Disney opens its big film for the Thanksgiving-Christmas period, the animated spectacular "Beauty and the Beast." This is a must for children and parents.

"Father of the Bride" opens Dec. 13 and stars Steve Martin and Diane Keaton. This is a remake of the 1950 film about a nervous father of the bride. In the 1950 original film Elizabeth Taylor starred as the bride. We have a new contest! Here is the deal, the first 25 people with the right answer get a pair of tickets to my absolute favorite theater in Union County, the five screened New Park Cinema in Roselle Park. There are famous comedy teams where one or more members have gone on to directing fame. Name four people who fit the category. Some clues on teams: a man and a woman team on Ed Sullivan a lot, both have directed. If you name them both count that as two answers. A clue: the woman's first name is Elaine. The next team, the fellow who has directed is very popular in France and is famous for his charity work. A third pair, both men teamed up on a record album, the "2,000 Year Old Man," both worked on the "Show of Shows," one as a writer and one as a comedian. Both have directed successfully and one has a son that is a famous director/actor.

If you think you have the answer, call that good looking manager, Stephen, who by the way is still single, at 908-241-2603. See you at the movies. "A Taste of Hollywood" is a weekly column by Larry Haber.

Bard's 'Twelfth Night' is staged by NJ Shakespeare festival

The New Jersey Shakespeare Festival presents "Twelfth Night" by William Shakespeare, through Sept. 21. Bonnie J. Monte, artistic director, directs this final season offering.

One of Shakespeare's most popular plays, "Twelfth Night" takes place in Illyria, a world of beauty and romance, where characters high-born and low provide comedy. The play is known for its duality of tone and kaleidoscopic range of methods. "Twelfth Night" is an intricate web not only of plot, but of emotional hues, fun, bittersweet romance, melancholy and celebration. NJSP's production is set in the middle of the 18th century during the time of Mozart, rococo and the heights of extravagance. Illyria is placed on the coast of Yugoslavia, where the warm winds of the Adriatic temper the opulence and affections of the aristocracy and allow love to emerge.

Edward Herrmann, who plays Malvolio, won a Tony Award for his performance on Broadway in "Mrs. Warren's Profession" with Ruth Gordon and Lynn Redgrave. Other Broadway credits include "The Philadelphia Story," with Blythe Danner and "Plenty," with Kate Nelligan, for which he received a Theater Guild Medal and a Tony Award nomination. In London, he played T.S. Eliot in "Tom and Viv" at the Royal Court Theater and played in the recent West End production of "A Walk In The Woods." Herrmann played Cassius, opposite Martin Sheen's Brutus, at the Public Theater. Regional credits include eight seasons at the Williamson Theater Festival, Television credits include "ER" in "Eleanor and Franklin: The White House Years" with Jane Alexander (TV Critics' Circle Award and two Emmy nominations), Lou Gehrig in "A Love Affair: The Eleanor and Lou Gehrig Story," with Blythe Danner, "The Sorrows of Girl," with Sigourney Weaver, "Dear Liza," with Jane Alexander, "Candice," with Blythe Danner, "The Electric Grandmother," with Maureen Stapleton, and the Emmy-winning "Concealed Enemies." Herrmann appeared in many films, including "The Paper Chase," "The Day Of The Dolphin," "The Betsy," "Reds," "Annie," "A Little Sex," "The Purple Rose Of Cairo," "Mrs. Soffel," "The Man With One Red Shoe," "The Compromising Positions," "The Last Boy In The Class," "Overboard" and "Big Business." Elizabeth McGovern, who plays Viola, appeared in the films "The Handmaid's Tale," "Raging With The Moon," "She's Having A Baby,"

"Once Upon A Time In America," and "Ordinary People." Lalla Robins portrays Olivia after appearing this past season with James Earl Jones on ABC's "Clayton's Fear." Other films include "Roxie Carmichael," "An Innocent Man," and "Planes, Trains and Automobiles," as Steve Martin's wife, Robins, who received an M.P.A. from the Yale School of Drama, has played Annie on Broadway in "The Real Thing," directed by Mike Nichols, Alina in "Summer And Smoke," and Sarah in "Major Barbara," at the Yale Repertory Theater, Tracy Lord in the Arena Stage's production of "The Philadelphia Story," and the stepdaughter in "Six Characters In Search Of An Author," at the American Repertory Theater, as well as many roles at the Williamson Theater Festival.

Patrick Tull comes to the role of Sir Toby Belch after appearing in the Broadway revival of "Getting Married" and "The Asstrachan Chalk." James Michael Kelly returns to NJSP, after appearing this season in "The Tempest," and "The Skin Of Our Teeth," for the role of Sir Andrew Aguecheek. Paul Mullins portrays Feste after appearing as Flute/Thoby in NJSP's production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Mark Wilson plays Duke Orsino and has appeared previously at the Hudson Guild Theater in New York, Baltimore's Center Stage, as well as closer to home in New Jersey at Opera at Florham. Graham Winston, as Sebastian, has appeared extensively in New York and regionally and is a graduate of Juillard.

AUTO MARKET

How to choose the right grade of oil
The motor oils available for today's passenger cars provide a wide choice of viscosity grades. Motorists must choose between heavier viscosity motor oils, such as SAE 5W-30 and SAE 10W-30, and higher viscosity oils, such as SAE 20W-50. Choosing the proper grade depends to a large degree on your local seasonal temperature range and on the particular engine you own.

CLASSIFIED ADS
PAY OFF!
Since 1975, under government
Corporate Average Fuel Economy
(C.S.F.E.) requirements, automobile manufacturers must meet minimum fuel economy limits or face heavy fines and penalties. Lighter viscosity oils, which are classified as Energy
Conserving II (ECII), are frequently recommended because they can provide incremental increases in fuel economy.

Weichert has new associate

James M. Weichert, president, recently announced that Kenneth G. Egbert has joined Weichert, Realtors' Union office as a full-time sales associate. Egbert, a long-time resident of Union, has been a licensed real estate professional for eight years. He brings 30 years of mortgage finance experience to Weichert. "I joined Weichert to continue serving the community through real estate, and the exposure Weichert offers is more beneficial to me and my customers and clients," Egbert said. He holds a degree in finance from Rutgers University. Married, with four children and seven grandchildren, Egbert has been active in the community. He is a past president of the local rent board, a past district governor of Lions International, secretary of the

Auditions are set

The Union County Education Association announces open auditions for its annual musical production, "Me and My Girl," Sept. 11 and Sept. 12, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Union County Arts Center, Main Street in Rahway.

The UCEA production, winner of eight AVY nominations and three AVY awards for its 1990 production of "A Chorus Line," will be directed by Marsha Watson. Music direction is by Ruby Robertson and choreography by Alison Brunton-Dooley.

Production dates are Nov. 15, 16 and 17, with rehearsals beginning Sept. 16.

"Me and My Girl" requires the lead roles to sing, dance and have comedic timing. There are several mature character roles and a large singing/dancing chorus. All those who are auditioning must come with a prepared song with sheet music in the correct key and dressed for dancing. Pictures and resumes are encouraged.

The UCEA is also looking for musicians and production staff volunteers. Questions about auditions, volunteering, or ticket information can be made to the UCEA office at 276-3643.

Golfing plans set

Plans for the third annual golf outing to benefit the Association for Retarded Citizens of Union County are under way. The outing will take place on Sept. 16 at Echo Lake Country Club in Westfield.

Westfield Mayor Richard H. Bagger is honorary chairman of the event, and Calvin Sprung, Scotch Plains resident and member of ARC's board of directors, is chairman. Other members of the golf committee include Frank X. Caragher, ARC executive director, Patty Haines, Eileen Hammar, Barbara Heymann, Mike Iovino, John Redmond, Robert Staffaro and Andrew Staffen.

The all-day program will include a buffet lunch, shotgun golf, cocktail hour and dinner with awards and prizes. A Mercedes Benz will be awarded for the first hole-in-one on the 17th hole. The automobile will be supplied by Cumming Motors of Elizabeth.

Proceeds from the outing will help support the programs and services sponsored by ARC for children and adults with developmental disabilities. Infant, pre-school, recreation, residential, vocational and family support programs are among those available through ARC's offices.

For more information on the golf outing or on other ways to support the event, one can contact ARC at (908) 754-5910.

Free courses offered

The Evening Division at the Union County Vocational-Technical Schools received a grant that will allow a series of English As a Second Language courses to be offered free to area residents.

John Dolinaj, supervisor of adult education at the Vo-Tech Schools, announced that the funding for this project was provided by the New Jersey State Department of Education's Division of Adult Education.

The classes will be held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the Scotch Plains campus beginning Sept. 12. Although there are no costs, Dolinaj explained, students must still formally register.

There are limitations on the number of participants so interested persons should call the Evening Division at the schools as soon as possible. The number is (908) 889-2000, ext. 212.

Cable kids honored

Union County recently honored a group of "average" youngsters who are dedicated to preventing drug abuse through acting and their mentor, Kathy Renna of Springfield, according to Union County Freeholder Casimir Kowalczyk.

"These youngsters, 'Kathy's Cable Kids,' put on educational shows and live performances designed to fight drug abuse, and they are being honored for presenting a program to the Union County Commission on the Status of Women," said Kowalczyk, freeholder liaison to the commission.

The non-profit, anti-drug cable television series, "Feeling Good," is broadcast throughout the nation on local cable stations, and the live educational programs are designed for all ages.

"The series is educational but not boring, and the live programs have the players interacting with the audience," said Union County Freeholder Vice Chairman Elmer Ertl. "I think this is a tremendous way to educate young and old alike to the dangers of drug abuse."

For more information on "Kathy's Cable Kids," one can call Renna at (201) 376-2111.

Women's rights noted

Monday was declared "Women's Equality Day in Union County by the Board of Chosen Freeholders, announced Freeholder Casimir Kowalczyk, liaison to the Commission on the Status of Women in Union County.

"On behalf of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, I acknowledge the outstanding contributions women have made to our history, and the struggle they endured to earn the right to vote, which took place on Aug. 26, 1920,"

Kowalczyk said. "We join with the Kean College Professional Women's Association to celebrate this historic occasion."

Kowalczyk also said that it was a New Jersey woman, Alice Paul, who was among those that championed the cause of women's suffrage.

"Alice Paul was instrumental in the battle to obtain passage of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which gave women the right to vote," he said.

Crusade is slated

The Clark Alliance Church is sponsoring bus transportation to the Billy Graham Crusade at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford from Sept. 3 to 7 at 8 p.m.

Anyone interested in going with the group can call (908) 338-1272 for information. The buses will be leaving the church on Denman Ave. in Clark at 6 p.m.

Van donated to county

A new $16,000 van was donated to Union County's Nutrition Program for the Elderly by Meals On Wheels, according to Freeholder Chairman James Connelly Welsh.

M.O.W. is a private, not-for-profit agency that works out of the county's nutrition program kitchen on Pennsylvania Avenue in Linden, preparing and delivering hot, nutritious meals to the homebound elderly and to the various county nutrition sites located in 12 of the county's municipalities.

"This van is a welcome addition to our nutrition program, which is federally funded and operated by our Division on Aging, Department of Human Services," Welsh said. "The homebound elderly can receive hot, nutritious meals daily, and at our nutrition sites, recipients also receive other benefits, such as social interaction, access to supportive services and emotional satisfaction, especially for those who eat alone."

John Surmay, chairman of the board of directors of M.O.W., said the organization realized that tight budget constraints are hampering the county, so it donated the van through fund raising.

"The vans were getting older and spending a lot of time being repaired," Surmay said. "This new van donation actually kicks off our fund-raising campaign, 'Wheels for Meals.' We plan to have a dinner cruise around Manhattan Island as part of the fund raising."

Other activities include Tuesday and Wednesday fund-raising dinners during October at the Roselle Pub, according to Joseph La Placa, executive director of M.O.W. Interested people can call him at 486-5100 for tickets.

Red Cross sets lunch

The Eastern Union County Chapter American Red Cross annual meeting luncheon will be Sept. 19 at noon at the Westwood Restaurant in Garwood.

The chapter serves Clark, Cranford, Elizabeth, Garwood, Hillside, Kenilworth, Linden, Rahway, Roselle, Roselle Park, Union and Winfield.

The guest speaker will be Jim Bobb from American Red Cross National Headquarters, on the subject of Disaster Services of Red Cross.

Awards and citations will be presented to volunteers. For further information regarding the luncheon, one can call Maryann Hill at 353-2500. No reservations will be taken at the door.

County nets refund

Union County will receive a refund of $738,092 from Medicaid for patients at Rummells Specialized Hospital.

Freeholder Chairman James Connelly Welsh, Finance Chairman Freeholder Gerald B. Green, and Freeholder Walter E. Boright, liaison to the Rummells Hospital Advisory Board of Managers, announced that the county has been victorious in the legal action taken to recoup what the county maintained was a deficient reimbursement.

"Through our persistence, beginning back in the fall of 1988, we were able to prove that the Division of Medical Assistance and Health Services in the state's Department of Human Services had been in error in setting our reimbursement level," Welsh said. "Part of the Medicaid reimbursement level includes an allowance for the depreciation of the facility's physical plant. The state had overlooked various renovations and improvements made at our old location which, over the years, resulted in increased value and, therefore, increased depreciation."

According to Boright, "From 1977 through 1983, the county made various renovations at the former site including those to the power plant, and the sewer beds and treatment areas. The cost came to approximately

$2.3 million and should have resulted in raising the amount used by the division to calculate how much Union County could claim as depreciation. Because the state had skipped these items, the state had not reimbursed Union County adequately since the late 1970s."

Green explained that the county notified the state of the improvements, but the state failed to reassess the value of Rummells and upgrade the depreciation figure.

Financial classes

Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Union County is offering several financial classes during the fall.

A Tax Planning class is offered on Sept. 10, from 1 to 3 p.m. and repeated on Sept. 12, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Financial Planning for the Recently Single will be offered on Sept. 26, from 7 to 9 p.m. and repeated on Oct. 2, from 1 to 3 p.m. All classes are free and open to the public but registration is required. Participants can call (908) 654-9854 to register for these classes.
