Profiling presidential figures; character versus media blitz

By Gail Sheehy (Bantam paperback, $5.95) In the current political climate, readers might find interesting a book written during the 1968 presidential primaries. Gail Sheehy's "Character: America's Search for Leadership" is a collection of articles originally written for the magazine, Vanity Fair, "Character" profiles the men running for office by examining their backgrounds and styles, rather than their strategies; and intersperses their personal histories with moments from their campaigns for the White House. Sheehy's attempt is to reveal each man's character which is often hidden behind the media coverage and publicity blitz surrounding them. Much of the book is still topical, especially the chapters on George Bush and Albert Gore, both again in the race this year. President Bush is portrayed as thoughtful and desirous of avoiding confrontation at all costs, but trying too hard to please all people. Senator Gore, who tried, but failed, to win the Democratic nomination in 1988, comes across as a crafty mix of country boy and gentleman farmer. Other political figures profiled are Gary Hart, Jesse Jackson, Bob Dole, Michael Dukakis and a final chapter on Ronald Reagan and his legacy. Even though some of the names and faces have changed, "Character" will still light on the current political process. Personal anecdotes, conversations between the author and the candidates and bits of gossip make "Character" a compelling read. This week's Summer Reading Review was submitted by Miriam Bels, director of the Mountainside Public Library.

AGM Architecture And Design Helps Local Residents & Businesses

Most people do not realize how important an architect is to the overall success of any building design or renovation project. When an individual wants a custom designed home or addition, a local business renovates or expands its facilities, or a corporation consolidates its existing operation or erects a new office building, they should seek the help of an architect. A local firm with increasing presence in our surroundings is AGM Architecture And Design, who's work was recently featured on the cover of New Jersey Monthly Magazine. Kenneth Gruskin and Michael Markovitz, both architects and professional planners, founded AGM in 1984 after graduating from Harvard University. "Our background and experience gives us the ability to provide excellence in design while creating a building or space in accordance with our clients needs, building codes and industry standards," says Markovitz.

What should an individual look for when selecting an architectural firm? "Ideally, the firm should be creative yet have the expertise to complete each project with skill, accuracy and a sensitivity to the client's budget," notes Gruskin. Concerns such as creativity, local architectural tradition, economy, construction time and materials are addressed by firms like AGM with every design project. They invite your inquiries at their office located at 1235 Morris Avenue in Union, phone (908) 688-8666.

Local Perot supporters shocked by withdrawal

By Glenn Fannick Staff Writer Millions of Ross Perot supporters were shocked at hearing the news of the billionaire's decision not to run in the presidential race, but none were more affected by the bombshell than the voters on the front lines of the battle—the petition drive organizers. Local reaction was similar to that felt around the nation upon hearing the news July 16 of the termination of the grassroots campaign which started with a hope for change and ended with an abrupt announcement by Perot who said that he had no hope of winning against the "big boys" in November. "At first I was stunned, but now I just feel betrayed," said Union County petition organizer Cliff Bekkedahl. "There was a sense that things were not going well, but not to the extent that he'd bail out of the race."

The Westfield management consultant said that he joined forces with other local idealists because he felt that America needed a change and he truly believed that Perot was the man for the job, but last week's news took him to the wind out of his sails. "We got the feeling that all the work we did in the last few months wasn't appreciated," he said of the betrayal he feels now. "A lot of my people have been calling me asking if I knew anything before it happened, but I didn't."

John Turney, the Union County coordinator of the New Jersey Committee to Elect Ross Perot, said that the unpredictable move by Perot will shake up the political horizon for a while. "No one was expecting it. It was a complete shock to hear that he had dropped out so soon. We saw his drop in ratings from the polls, and after the Democratic Convention we were hoping it would go back and pick up. It was a major disappointment."

Turney said the Union County Elect Perot organization will be meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at the Roselle Veterans of Foreign Wars to determine "where to go from here."

A lot of the people in the Perot campaign have never worked in politics before, but now they want to effect some serious change. "I'm sure that a lot of people have the feeling that some people have

people in the news

Sun joins St. Barnabas

Dr. Shyan C. Sun of Mountainside has been appointed director of neonatology in the Department of Pediatrics at St. Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston, as of July 1, announced Ronald J. Del Mauro, president and chief executive officer of St. Barnabas. A nationally renowned neonatologist, Sun has established many unprecedented programs and services for critically ill and high-risk newborns in the state of New Jersey. "St. Barnabas Medical Center has one of the finest obstetric and gynecology services in the state," Sun said. "My goal is to continue to develop and expand the capabilities of the professional staff and the state-of-the-art equipment and services of the Newborn Intensive Care Unit."

In addition to his new position at St. Barnabas, Sun also is executive director of the Division of Neonatology at Children's Hospital of New Jersey and University Hospital in Newark. He also is a professor of clinical pediatrics at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey. Sun is board-certified in pediatric and neonatal-perinatal medicine.

Sun received his medical degree in Taiwan and his post-graduate education at the Institute of Child Health in London, England, where he received the Diploma of Child Health from the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons.

He did further post graduate studies in neonatal-perinatal medicine at Hammanstein Hospital in London, England, and later at Long Island Jewish Medical Center in Long Island.

In 1972, as director of neonatology at Children's Hospital in Newark, he built and developed a regional newborn intensive care unit.

"A two-man race will focus voters' attention increasingly on the failure of President Bush's economic policy. Bill Clinton is an agent of real change and real progress, whereas George Bush has done virtually nothing for the American middle class in his four-year presidency," he stated.

Horn photography displayed by Springfield resident Rozalyn Horn will be on display in the meeting room of the Springfield Public Library through Sept. 15.

Horn, the daughter of Herbert and Marilyn Horn of Lynn Drive, created the collection in fulfillment of her senior project as a fine arts major at Stockton State College.

The library is located at 66 Mountain Ave., and is closed weekends during July and August.

Prelude works exhibited The Donald B. Palmer Museum of the Springfield Public Library is exhibiting the sculpture, paintings and drawings of Al Piccolo in a show called "Percolating The Hot Flavor From The Soul."

Piccolo, of Jersey City, is an instructor in the Jersey City Museum, where he conducts workshops in ceramics and moldmaking. He also teaches classes at the Newark Museum in mixed media sculpture and leads teacher in-service workshops.

He taught extensively in California before moving to New Jersey and directed several mural projects in the San Jose area. His exhibit may be summed up in the artist's own words: "Emotive, intuitive and transient aspirations are at the heart of the pieces." The show will run through July and August, with a public reception Aug. 6 from 6 to 9 p.m.

The library is closed weekends during the summer. For further information, call the artist at (201) 333-6112 or the library at 376-9530.

"My mother can't remember her own address, and she's lived in the same house for 53 years. Isn't someone doing something about Alzheimer's disease?"

We are. American pharmaceutical companies are investing tens of millions of dollars in research for this mysterious, heartbreaking illness, and have 13 promising new drugs in test. Alzheimer's affects more than 4-million people and costs our nation over $88 billion every single year. Think of the benefit in lives and costs that just one drug breakthrough would mean.

UCUA recovery facility to tap mercury abatement technology

By Chaz Repak
Staff Writer

The Union County resource recovery facility under construction in Rahway will become the first incinerator in the state to boast the latest mercury abatement technology, Union County Utilities Authority Chairman Angelo Bonanno announced Friday.

The authority has also made plans to monitor air and water in the vicinity of the incinerator, what Bonanno described as an ongoing effort to ensure that the 1,440-ton-per-day trash burner does not adversely affect the environment.

Need for mercury controls

The authority chairman and officials of Ogdin Martin Systems of Union Inc. — the firm contracted to build the incinerator — emphasized that the mercury controls are being added to the incinerator voluntarily, as the State Department of Environmental Protection and Energy is not expected to mandate mercury emission limits until the end of the year.

Bonanno said the state already has taken steps to control the amount of mercury that gets into the waste stream. State law, he said, requires that manufacturers of batteries — one of the largest sources of mercury — eventually phase out use of mercury by 1995.

Callahan added that the county's 60 percent recycling plan calls for the better waste is recycled, landfilled, incinerated or composted, because it is included in products that are discarded in the waste stream.

"The facility is already designed with modern pollution control equipment to ensure that mercury emissions will fall below the standards set by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the DEP," he said. "We are taking it further to ensure every possible step has been taken to protect the health and well-being of the citizens of the community."

UCUA Executive Director Jeffrey Callahan said the authority has considered mercury controls for several months. "When public expenditures and public health are involved, we can't make decisions quickly or lightly."

Rahway, the host community for the facility, has also indicated interest in the installation of mercury controls. The Concerned Citizens of Union County, based in the city, have called for such controls, when not calling for stoppage of construction. The city council passed a resolution in May recommending such controls. Surrounding communities, including Clark, have expressed similar wishes in recent months.

How it works

Robert Graham, incinerator project manager for Ogdin Martin, said the firm tested an EPA pilot program designed to test the effectiveness of mercury control equipment on its

the nature of the device within six months, and will have the device installed within a year.

The cost of mercury controls is not yet known, said Bonanno, because the technology is so new no market price has been set.

Whatever the final cost turns out to be, it probably will not add to the price tag of the facility, estimated at $157 million.

Further safety measures

UCUA General Counsel Jonathan Williams said that the authority may utilize a project contingency fund for the purchase and installation of the technology without adding to the cost of delaying construction.

Bonanno pointed out that the decision to provide mercury controls is a voluntary one, along the lines of the authority's 1989 decision to add nitrogen oxide controls to the burner design in advance of the promulgation of emissions limits on that gas.

As a further step, he said, the authority has hired a firm to monitor soil, water and air quality. "We want to make an environmental assessment as well as a health assessment," he said.

Warren-based consulting engineers Peutas, Sokolowski and Sorter will run tests on the ambient air quality of the neighborhood surrounding the incinerator, starting one year prior to facility operation and running until two years after operation begins.

As the facility is slated to commence construction in late 1993, Bonanno said testing will begin in the fall.

"We are already testing water quality in the area of the resource recovery facility, beginning a year before operations commence and continuing throughout the life of the facility."

Callahan explained that the intent of the monitoring "is to develop a baseline of mercury in the area, to see if there is any change in environmental conditions. The purpose is not only to test air, water, soil and crops in the area. We want to know the data now to see if there is any change in environmental conditions."

"We are very cognizant of the problem faced by the Warren Facility," Bonanno said.

The Warren County trash incinerator operated by Ogdin Martin recently became the focus of criticism, as extremely high mercury levels were measured in the surrounding environment.

Bonanno suggested that a zinc smelting mine within 30 miles of the incinerator could be the cause of mercury contamination.

Channel One debuting

The controversy surrounding the use of Channel One in area schools will be discussed on Suburban Cablevision's "Local Issues: Live," on TV-3, tonight at 8:30. Viewers' calls will be taken in the studio at (908) 636-5333.

The Channel One television program, produced by the Knoxville-based White Communications, provides up to 100,000 hours of television and video equipment for the school's use.

Debate has continued among educators, school boards and parents over children's exposure to White's television commercials in an educational setting. The state teachers' union, the New Jersey Education Association, has strongly opposed the presentation and of television commercials in the classroom, asserting students are a captive audience. Channel One proponents maintain commercials are already a part of students' lives and have little negative effect.

Deadline for scholarship applications in Aug. 1. Applicants are available through the college's School of Business, Government and Technology, 115 Townsend Hall.

Family day care registration is the business of a much larger child care structure," explained Ms. Menutti, a master's degree. She also had a certificate in special education.

Surviving are her husband, Alfred; a son, Jeremy, a sister, Nina; two daughters, Jane Purcell and Kathleen McGrath, 23 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Bertha Niemasz, 60, of Mountain-side died July 10 in St. Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston.

Born in Bradford, Conn.; she lived in Hillside before moving to Mountain-side 25 years ago. Mrs. Niemasz was a member of the Rosary Society of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Mountain-side.

Surviving are her husband, Walter; a daughter, Lorraine Chronos; two sons, John and Walter; three sisters, Martha and Josephine Falls and Helen DeCastro, 12 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

C. Joseph Aragona, 75, a former board of education member and community leader in Kenilworth, died Friday in Union Hospital.

Born in New York City, he moved to Kenilworth 38 years ago. He had been a salesman for the Lafayette Crane and Hoist Co., Newark, for 25 years before his retirement seven years ago. Mr. Aragona served on the Kenilworth Board of Education from 1970 to 1972 and was a member of the Father McLaughlin Council 4186 of the Knights of Columbus in Kenilworth. He also had been president of the Kenilworth Homeowners Association and a volunteer with the Senior Citizens Medical Exams Advisory of Union Hospital.

Surviving are his wife, Margaret; three sons, John, Robert V. and James A.; a sister, Mary O'Connell, 10; and grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Picnic Day in Park
Jewish learning at a Picnic Day in the Park will be sponsored by Temple She'arey Shalom, Springfield, Sunday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Chislon Park, corner of Shunko and So. Springfield avenues, Springfield.

It was announced that everyone is invited to participate in two study sessions from 10 a.m. to noon. A variety of topics will be presented for the beginner, intermediate and advanced Jewish learner of all ages, beginner to senior adult. Topics will include Jewish history, short stories in Hebrew literature, in translation, sacred Jewish texts, current affairs, raising Jewish children and preparing for the High Holy Days.

Teachers include Sandy Schlager, Rabbi Alan Yuter, Dr. Richard Wagner and Rabbi Bruce Dollin representing various perspectives in Judaism. "Fun, outdoor activities for children of all ages will be offered concurrently with the study sessions. Families should bring their own picnic lunches and favorite recreational equipment." The day is free of charge and is presented in cooperation with Temple She'arey Shalom, Temple Beth Aym and Congregation Israel. In case of rain, the program will take place at Temple She'arey Shalom.

For more information, or to pre-register, one can call Tammy Dollin at (201)-228-7400, ext. 307.

Summer service set
Summer Union services, with First Baptist and First Presbyterian participation, will be held in the sanctuary of the First Presbyterian Church, Chestnut Street and Fifth Avenue, Roselle, during the months of July and August and the first Sunday in September. Services will begin at 10 a.m. on the first Sunday of each month.

The Rev. George Harkless will preach during July. Dr. Max Creswell will occupy the pulpit during August.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated on Aug. 2, 1983. Church hours will be 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. on Sunday and a fellowship hour will follow each service.

Bible School slated
Joe Krason of Union, chairman of Mountain-side Gospel Chapel's free Daily Vacation Bible School, has announced that there are "only two" and a half weeks left until the start of the program, which will be held Monday through Friday, Aug. 3-7, from 9 a.m. until noon, for a year-old through 5th grade. The chapel, at 1180 Spruce Drive, has suggested that participants "try to arrive by 8:45 a.m. on the first day."

The daily activities will include original puppet-style action shows, written and directed by Hal Olszewski of Roselle; Bible stories, recreation and skills led by Rod Brown; song time, led by Sandy Wagner of Mountain-side and Carrie Jean Grant of Union; refreshments with Muriel Pickett in charge; and a mission walk to be taught by young missionaries in the congregation.

Teachers this year are Nancy Bontempo, Linda Clark and Jane Hanjorganger, all of Mountain-side; June Burgegger and Chris-Ellen Taylor; Claire Byrne, Joe Krason and the secretary of the First Presbyterian Church of Roselle, Eileen Quintan of Clark, Brenda Ayres, Linda Staudt, Judy Weber, Garry Light, Peter Dein and Ruthann Dein, both of Springfield, and Linda McDermott and Lynn Brooks.

Classes are conducted for 4-year-olds through entering 8th grade. A special ladies class is conducted at the same time, including a "Want a Great Antiquity?" Bible study, led by Florence Eganhardt of Hackensack, formerly of Mountain-side. The ladies class also will have a craft time taught by Pam Clark. A nursery for children under age 4 will be provided "only for those attending the ladies class or who are on staff," it was announced.

Those planning to attend the Junior High program, which is for those entering 6th through 8th grades, will meet at the chapel from 7 until 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday. One all-day trip will be included. A non-credit-permission ship, signed by a parent or guardian, must be returned, if it was announced. A nursery will be available at the chapel on Monday and Tuesday nights.

Pre-registration is requested and can be made by calling the chapel at 232-3456 or Sandy Wilson at 654-5818.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) This is a very good time for making progress with your relationships with others, and for starting some new ones. Don't get involved in any long term commitments that are going to demand more from you than you can provide. This is particularly important when money is concerned.

Taurus (April 21 to May 21) This is a time to be on top and down out of luck for you. Good news is on the way, connected with a recent meeting that involved some leisure plans. But there's some tension in your dealings with friends and colleagues. Try to be a bit less assertive than you normally are — and don't speak out when it would be better to let arguments ride.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) You're going to find a surprise development in some rather complicated preparations you've been making. It will involve making a major change in your arrangements, and you may feel somewhat distressed to see the project through to the end. Don't lose your cool — anything undertaken around this time is bound to succeed.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) There are a couple of big surprises in store for you this week. The first concerns a close friend or relative you haven't seen for some time. It looks like you could meet with them unexpectedly. The second surprise involves a purchase you made recently. As it turns out, it's not what it seemed to be — and that's not necessarily bad news.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) There is a busy time ahead for you — and you're going to be very much involved in family matters. Life could get quite hectic if you don't do your best to resist unnecessary claims on your time. That's the tough news. The good news is that Wednesday's a lucky day — a good time for taking a little gamble.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Life gets a bit complicated in the next day or two. A dispute with a close friend is likely — try to control your temper. There's an unexpected invitation later on that'll cheer you up — it could open the way to an opportunity you've been seeking for quite a long time.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Relations with some of your close colleagues become rather strained in the next few days. Keeping to yourself is a possible solution. Midweek, things will calm down and a fun-filled weekend is in store. A romantic relationship that seemed to be going nowhere takes a serious turn. Finance looks good.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) You're going to be moving around a lot during the next day or so, and it could lead to a permanent change for you. Make sure no hasty decisions are taken that you might regret. Try to be more sensitive to others; you could be offending people without even realizing it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24 to Dec. 23) It's a time you organized your affairs a bit more carefully, especially since you know there are several little chores you've been ignoring lately. So get started on those tasks right away. Financial matters don't look too good at the moment. You're going to have to be patient and wait for this difficult period to pass.

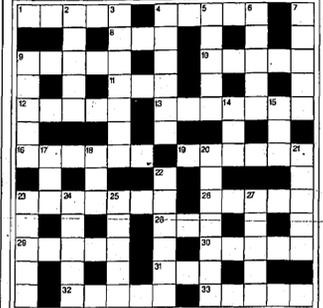

CAPRICORN (Dec. 24 to Jan. 20) Things are going smoothly for you right now, so you can't get too far ahead to a pretty relaxed time. You'll be asked to act as a go-between to help friends with a problem, and you'll be judged the situation very carefully and be absolutely impartial in your advice. A family member will look to you for support.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Some problems will crop up that you'll want to solve immediately, but with a little patience, you'll find you get your own way in the end. Your social life is going to look up towards the end of the week when you get to know an acquaintance much better.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) You are going to make good progress with a rather ambitious plan you've been working on. Two things to remember: keep your own intuition when you've got to make difficult decisions, and don't let business with pleasure, leave yourself plenty of time.

Your birthday this week this year will hold both good news for you. Fortunately, there will be no bad news. But when the news is good, keep it in mind, "out of every bad comes a good." This will certainly hold true for you. Sometime in October, an Aquarius of the opposite sex will enter your life and give it new meaning. Just make sure you're completely honest with him or her.
