Forman, Holmes win election

Springfielders support Clinton, Conti, Froehlich; Franks keeps pace

By David Brown
Managing Editor

Democratic Township Committee candidates Marcia Forman and Jo Ann Holmes were swept into office this week in what could be considered a landslide victory over their Republican opponents, winning a majority in every voting district.

"We did it," said Holmes at the Democratic campaign headquarters minutes after the last unofficial tallies were reported. "I'm really excited."

Holmes, a newcomer to the political arena, garnered a total of 3,873 ballots cast in the township's 14 voting districts.

Springfielders returned Committee member Marcia Forman, an incumbent, with 3,944 votes.

The Republican ticket — Judith Blitzer and Harvey Fruchter — notched 2,836 and 2,780 votes respectively, not enough to win any district. "I hope this means we'll have a coalition government," said Holmes of the five-member Township Committee, which has been splintered and tangled in often bitter partisan debate. "I hope this means that five people will begin working together to guide Springfield effectively. I'm excited the people had this much faith in us."

Holmes said she hoped that "three years from now, Springfield will be a better place because of me."

Forman said she was "feeling pretty good. I think this means that Springfield voters were thinking for themselves. We'll do the best we can to deserve the support they've given us."

Holmes will join Forman, Republican Committee members Jeffrey Katz, Harry Pappas and GOP Mayor Philip Karnos on the Committee in January next year.

County and national Democrats joined their local party's sweep of Springfield support, with Bill Clinton and Al Gore tallying 3,656 votes. The Clinton/Gore ticket won overall in New Jersey.

The Bush/Quayle ticket tallied 2,968 votes in Springfield. The entire Democratic Froehlicher ticket won in Springfield: Casimir Kowalczyk tallied 3,276 votes; Walter McLeod won 3,352 votes; and Elmer Ent won 3,272.

Their opponents, Paul O'Keefe, Vic Trzaskowski and Linda DiGianni tallied 2,913, 2,741 and 2,844 local votes respectively. Union County Surrogate Ann Conti, who won her re-election bid, fought a tough campaign against Philip Gentile. Springfield supported Conti with 3,749, against Gentile's 2,559. The surrogate campaign was particularly rough at times, with each camp attacking the other with charges of improper fund-raising methods. Union County Sheriff Ralph Froehlich also won his re-election battle handily, tallying 3,974 votes in Springfield, against Republican candidate Steve Hunt's 2,935.

Only Republican Assemblyman Robert Franks was able to keep pace with the Democratic Party in Springfield, winning the township by a mere 5 votes. Franks beat Democrat Leo Sendelsky in the 7th Congressional District race. Franks resigned as head of the State Republican Committee to campaign for the congressional seat vacated by Matthew Rinaldo, who announced his retirement to pursue a career in the private sector.

Vandals hit Forman's residence

By David Brown
Managing Editor

As yet it is undetermined whether the projectiles which pierced the window of a local government official was a politically related act or the random target of vandals.

"We may never know," said Springfield Committee member Marcia Forman, who noticed a small hole in one of her front windows Tuesday afternoon. Forman believes the damage may have occurred Monday night while she was participating in the debate between the four candidates for Township Committee.

"It's a sad commentary," — Marcia Forman

While she said she hasn't recovered the "projectile," Forman said she believed it was caused by a BB-like shot. "I don't really know what to think. There's no way of pinning it on anyone."

Stating she prefers "not to make a fuss of it," Forman said she has been the target of apparently politically motivated vandalism in the past.

During the campaign involving Route 78 years ago, she said the tires of cars in her driveway were slashed, and the rear window of her daughter's vehicle was shattered — apparently shot out.

"But I don't think political passions this year have been aroused to this degree," said Forman, who appeared on the ballot for re-election Tuesday. "There were really no major issues. The debate has been more about principles than issues."

The projectile, she said, pierced one of two layers of glass in the upper portion of a picture window at the front of the house.

Forman acknowledged events such as this were hazards of public office. She said the potential for physical harm coming to a person disturbed her most. "It's a sad commentary," said Forman, of the possibility the vandalism was politically motivated. She said her neighbors have reported no similar incidents recently.

Forman said she has reported the event to the police and the damage to her insurance company.

Legislators intervene to keep Brearley Regional in operation

By Tom Camavan
Editor

The state legislators from the 21st District are hoping to get the opportunity to persuade the Regional Board of Education to reject the recommendation of Superintendent of Schools Donald Mrazichnik to close David Brearley Regional High School.

State Senator Curtis Barry and Assembly members Maureen Ogden and Monroe Lusbacher, in a joint letter to Regional Board President Burton Zitomer, have asked that the board retain David Brearley as one of its regional high schools and lease a portion of the school to private companies — companies in the field of education or job training — to help offset the issue of a lack of resources that is leading the district to close one of its schools.

In their letter, the legislators outlined a number of points for the board to consider as it reviews the superintendent's report.

• David Brearley is the most well-equipped, modern school facility in the entire regional district. "Brearley has air conditioning and is fully accessible to the handicapped, features that make it the only school facility capable of accommodating a lengthened academic year — one of the initiatives that may be necessary in the future to improve the level of education in New Jersey."

"The difference in property taxes. "Many residents in Kenilworth have noted that it would cost approximately $125 per household in additional taxes to keep Brearley operating, a cost that many borough residents said they would be willing to pay to keep the high school open. This amount might vary well be less than what it will cost residents in lost property values should Brearley be closed."

• Comparable facilities. "Compared to Brearley, Jonathan Dayton High School is a much older facility that will require much greater expense to operate and maintain, especially if an extended academic year is eventually implemented. All these costs should be fully explored and accounted for prior to moving hastily to close a well-run high school with superior plant facilities."

The legislators clarified that they See Legislators, Page 5

Police seek suspect in armed robberies

By Robert Walters
Staff Writer

The Springfield Police Department, in conjunction with the Union County Crime Stoppers program, is seeking information that will lead to the arrest of a man who committed two armed robberies at the Rich Plaza Shopping Center on Route 22 last month.

Police said the robberies occurred "within minutes of each other" at approximately 8:30 p.m. on Oct. 22. According to Springfield Police Chief William Chisholm, the first incident occurred when a Mountaintop woman was accosted by a man after she entered her vehicle, which was parked in the shopping center.

The suspect opened the driver's door and kept one hand in his jacket pocket, telling the victim he had a gun and would shoot if she did not give him money. The suspect also ordered the victim to drive him to the Hillside/Newark area.

After handling the suspect her money, the victim was able to put the car in gear and drive away from the suspect, police said.

Within moments of this occurrence, a second female victim, who is a Mountaintop resident, was exiting an automatic teller machine at the shopping center when the same suspect confronted her and demanded money.

After taking cash from the woman, the suspect ordered the victim to withdraw more cash from the ATM machine and threatened to shoot her if she did not comply. The suspect again demanded to be driven away from the scene but the victim began to scream and the suspect fled.

The suspect was described as a black male, approximately 30 to 35 years of age, about 6 feet tall, with a medium build, a mustache, and closely cropped black hair with a receding hairline.

The suspect was wearing eyeglasses, blue jeans and a maroon windbreaker with white stripes on the sleeves, police said.

Union County Crime Stoppers coordinator Lt. Leo Uebelien of the Union County Prosecutor's Office reminded citizens to "be aware of suspicious individuals" when entering or exiting ATM machines.

Uebelien said citizens may also call the Union County Crime Stoppers 24-hour hotline, (908) 654-TIPS.

Bestowers return in '92
Who are the Bestowers? We all are. A Bestower is anyone who joins with us to enjoy the spirit of the holiday season to get together with neighbors and friends and for giving to the needy. Last year was the revival of this wonderful tradition after a seven-year hiatus. It was a huge success. Over 150 Mountsiders attended a Sunday buffet at L'Alfaine.

Instead of gifts for the needy, everyone was asked to bring food in cans, cartons or jars. And enough food was brought to fill a pickup truck. Also, over 50 valuable prizes were used to realize $1,700. Both the food and the funds were distributed in time for the holidays to deserving families.

The Bestowers are back again this year - bigger and better. It's all happening on Dec. 13 at L'Alfaine, 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Everyone is invited.

County incumbents retain their seats

By Debbie Morton
Staff Writer

Union County's incumbent Democratic freightholders, sheriff and surrogate retained their seats in Tuesday's election, according to numbers released by the state Democratic chairman, but the Republicans claimed 10,000 absentee ballots had not been counted, 40 percent of which were from primarily conservative towns.

At press time, the county's election results had not been confirmed, but the Democrats assumed victory based on an unofficial vote count.

Incumbent Freightholders Casimir Kowalczyk, Walter McLeod and Elmer Eitl claimed victory over Republican challengers Paul O'Keefe, Vic Trzeniewski and Linde DiGiovanni based on unofficial results awarding McLeod 91,419, Kowalczyk 88,114, Eitl 87,333, O'Keefe 85,672, DiGiovanni 82,794 and Trzeniewski 79,188 votes.

With the exception of Trzeniewski, who admitted defeat, the Republicans refused to concede before finalizing out the results of 10,000 absentee ballots they said had not been tallied. Of those, 40 percent were believed to be from "The Ridge" comprising GOP-controlled Berkeley Heights, Summit and New Providence.

"This was my first time running in Union County," Trzeniewski said. "Given the circumstances nationally, this close race shows that people are able to distinguish issues. I will continue to remain active and will continue serving the people of Union County."

Frank's vows 'change' as new congressman

By Tom Canavan
Editor

Republican Assemblyman and former Republican State Chairman Robert Frank soundly defeated Democratic challenger Leonard Senselsky Tuesday to gain the 7th Congressional District seat vacated by Rep. Matthew Rinaldo.

At midnight Tuesday, before any final results could be tallied, Frank's campaign committee announced that he had beaten Senselsky by approximately 22,000 votes.

"Tonight, we beat the odds," Frank said during his acceptance speech at the Ramada Hotel in Clark. "We proved today that the people want a representative who not only talks about change, but who has a proven record of delivering it. "We showed that the people in the 7th District want a leader who will stand up to the special interests and put the taxpayers first."

"Tonight, the voters said they want a representative who is not afraid to make the tough choices needed to stop runaway government spending and someone who will restore fiscal sanity."

In his concession speech, Senselsky said he wished to congratulate Frank, but said he felt sorry for the constituents in the 7th District, who now will be represented by Frank. "The voters and I had about my position," he said, referring to the Frank camp.

and I certainly did not win with just the Democratic votes," Frohlich said. "People from both parties trust me."

He also attributed his win to successfully working as a team with Surrogate Ann Conti and to a negative, poorly run campaign on the part of the GOP.

"Ann and I are a good team, and the opposition did not run a good campaign," Frohlich said. "People don't like negative campaigns. Conti and I both have good records, and that is what we ran on. The voters realized that."

Conti attributed her victory to the service team of Democrats and to the votes rendered by her office.

"We had the most experience and were the best qualified," she said. "I feel terrific."

During her victory speech, Conti insisted that she is a full-time surrogate, despite allegations from her opponent, Republican Philip Genzile.

"I appreciate your confidence in my abilities," Conti said. "You have placed your confidence in my service to the county of Union."

Conti attributed her victory to the service team of Democrats and to the votes rendered by her office.

Legislators intervene to keep Brearley open

are not implying that Dayton be closed instead of Brearley. They want to see all four regional high schools remain open. Located in Springfield, Dayton also is a part of the 21st District.

"Has the regional board exhausted all avenues of remedy? There's the potential of leasing part of the space to a business training school, vocational program, educational training company or related business. The adult school at Brearley, since it's a separate building from the main high school, could be leased to a similar education training center, professional service-oriented business, or child care facility."

The impact on Kenilworth of closing a school. "Closing Brearley will have a devastating impact on property values in the borough of Kenilworth, where residents are already complaining of the damage the community has sustained due to a multi-million dollar judgment against the municipality. Because Kenilworth lacks sufficient liability insurance to pay this judgment, local property taxes are expected to soar and the borough's homeowners report that news of the jury verdict has already had a debilitating impact on property taxes."

The three legislators were expected to attend a demonstration last night at of residents of Kenilworth. "The letters are from people who think the Legislature has the power to stop this. The power rests with the board," he said.

Bassano said he is afraid the quality of education offered to students in the regional district might suffer if Brearley is closed. If that is the case, the state then could have input.

"This is clearly a vexing problem for Kenilworth," Lusabder said, "because of the effect it has on a community—in education and economics. This will reduce the quality of life in Kenilworth significantly."

Regional Board President Burton Zlotner said Tuesday that Bassano, Ogden and Lusabder "made a premature judgment" when they sent the letter. "I don't think the legislators were completely informed of the issues," he said.

Zlotner acknowledged that as of Tuesday he had not seen the letter, but had it read to him by several sources. "We would be happy to sit and meet with them," he said, responding to the legislators' call for a conference. "In the next day or two, I will try to arrange a meeting before the end of the month to answer any questions they have and to educate them into any of the background of the issue."

Asked whether or not the Regional Board of Education will consider any mitigating circumstances, such as the $16 million judgment recently decided against Kenilworth, when it reviews the superintendent's report, Zlotner said, "I feel very sympathetic toward the entire community, but I don't think one thing has to do with the other."

Professor talks with president at televised educational forum

Dr. Troy Grodner, a Springfield resident who teaches at Union County College, received two presidential compliments last week.

Grodner not only met President George Bush at an Oct. 22 "town meeting" program, "America Again," aired live by WWOR-TV Channel 9 at its Secaucus studio, but she received two special compliments from the chief executive during breaks from the hour-long broadcast.

Grodner was selected at random to represent the educational community at the forum, for which she was to prepare a question for the president and submit it into a pool of 175 such questions from the audience members. She asked about the effectiveness of the voucher system, as applied to elementary and secondary education. To her surprise, President Bush selected her question, among a few others, and the two spoke face-to-face.

President Bush, whom Grodner described as having "astute, character," responded by explaining that there would be no violation of such constitutional principles. He explained how the GI Bill of Rights following World War II employed the use of vouchers for veterans to attend the college of their choice, and that by applying them to the elementary and secondary levels, it would force the U.S. public educational system to improve in quality in order to compete with its private and parochial counterparts.

"Although I disagreed with his answer, I have too much respect for the man to get into an adversarial position," said Grodner. "He was articulate, and to be in the presence of the president of the U.S. is such an overwhelming experience."

Professor talks with president at televised educational forum

What topped off the evening, however, was that during two breaks from broadcasting, the president approached Grodner twice, thanking her for her well-thought-out question and complimenting her for its quality.

"He had this big smile on his face. I was astounded, he didn't have to do that," she said, noting the school's opportunity to get the president's autograph.

Grodner said she always incorporates into her classes discussions on the U.S. political structure, tying into her lectures the importance to vote and assisting students with voter registrations.

DELAYING HELP UNWISE

If your human nature is like most people's, you can find lots of reasons for not getting help from a doctor, even though you know deep down that you could benefit from help. Have you tried any of these reasons for putting it off?

Too busy. Why worry about something that's not serious? I don't like doctors. My father was almost 80 when he died. I come from strong stock. I don't need help. If I don't think about the complaint, it will probably go away. I'll wait until the condition gets worse, then see about it. Putting off helpful treatment when you need it won't save you time or money. And it won't cure the pain, which usually gets worse. Take back pain, for example. If your spine is out of alignment, the pain caused by this

Hands honors Franks

Assemblyman Bob Franks recently received a special award from Hands Across New Jersey for demonstrating "remarkable political courage and leadership" in leading the fight in the Legislature to give citizens of New Jersey the right of initiative and referendum.

In a resolution honoring Franks, Hands Across New Jersey stated that the assemblyman worked tirelessly for initiative and referendum, despite the fact that the legislation was opposed by "a coalition of 90 of the most powerful special interests in the state, not to mention members of his own political party."

In accepting the award, Franks said, "There is something terribly wrong with our government when standing up for the rights of the people we are elected to serve is viewed as an act of 'political courage.'"

"It underscores the urgent need for the people to reclaim their government through the power of initiative and referendum," said Franks, R-22. "The people have come to recognize that not only are the rich and powerful special interests an obstacle to change, but sometimes so are the politicians. That's why initiative and referendum is so important, because it will force the members of the Legislature to listen to the people."

Hands Across New Jersey is the grass-roots organization that led the revolt against Governor Florio's $2.8 billion tax increase.

"Hands Across New Jersey has proven that the people can shake up the establishment in Trenton," Franks said. "The members of Hands are people of integrity, spirit and commitment. They have devoted their time and energy to change the system and make government work for the people of our state."

Vets offered ID cards

In conjunction with Veterans' Day on Wednesday, Union County Register of Deeds and Mortgages Joanne Rajoppi announced a new public service for all Union County veterans. Beginning Monday, the Register of Deeds will provide wallet-size, personalized identification cards to veterans whose Certificate of Honorable Discharge and/or DD 214 Forms are recorded at the Register's Office. The card includes the veteran's name, location of recorded documents and date of recording. It will carry a raised seal certifying proof of recording.

"This service is free of charge for all Union County veterans," Rajoppi said, "and it's a convenient way to document proof of service in the armed services. Proof for veterans to receive certain tax, educational, health, license and death benefits."

"The distinctive red and blue cards also will be a reminder for veterans of where copies of these important documents are recorded," Rajoppi said, "in the event they need a certified copy of their document."

"A World Class education begins with a distinguished and committed faculty. 70% of our faculty hold Master's Degrees and 10% are Ph.D.'s."

Joseph Borio

We encourage our teachers to develop and grow professionally. This year two of our faculty members were awarded grants by the National Endowment for the Humanities to pursue advanced study in their fields. A member of the Foreign Language Department, who holds a doctoral degree, presented papers at two national and one international literature conferences.

The result? Teachers make a long term commitment here. 40%, in fact, have invested more than ten years of service.

Runnells seeks vols

Runnells Specialized Hospital of Union County, located at 40 Watchung Way in Berkeley Heights, has a need for volunteers in many areas, announced Freeholder Alan Augustine, voting member of the Runnells Specialized Hospital Board of Managers.

"Many of our volunteers are older and due to health problems, they can no longer help us," Augustine said. "We also would like to have some younger volunteers, and I know that is difficult due to school and jobs, but just a few hours a week of your time would help our patients immensely, and the emotional reward volunteers receive cannot be measured."

Volunteer shoppers are needed on Wednesdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., to shop for personal items such as safety pins, stockings and other items.

Volunteers are also needed to help residents enjoy the creations they make with their own hands in ceramics, from 9 to 11:30 a.m., Tuesdays for preparation and Thursdays with the patients. Volunteers escort wheelchair patients to and from the ceramics program.

In addition, the Beauty Shop needs help in transporting patients and assisting the licensed beautician. The hours are between 9 a.m. and noon, and between noon and 3 p.m., every day except Monday.

If interested, call the hospital at (908) 771-5847, Volunteer Services Office, weekdays 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., or leave a message on the machine evenings and weekends.

Holiday cards available

The American Cancer Society is offering a selection of holiday greeting cards for the 1992 holiday season. The cards read, "This card represents a gift to the American Cancer

Presented by: Lawrence Goldberg, M.D.

Over one third of Americans suffer at one time or another from a sleep disturbance. For most people, sleep brings rest and comfort. But for some, tossing, turning, or waking in the middle of the night can transform a restorative phase into a stressful experience.

- Do you lie in bed for hours, unable to sleep as thoughts run through your mind?
- Do you experience trouble falling back asleep once awakened?
- Do you wake up at the same time every night?
- Do you struggle to stay awake during the day?

If you have answered yes to one or more of these questions, you may want to consult a professional.

In his presentation, Dr. Goldberg will show why sleep disorders are often an indication of medical, psychiatric, or behavioral problems, drug-free ways to fall asleep quickly, and why sleeping pills, alcohol and other drugs may affect your sleep patterns. Lawrence Goldberg, M.D. is Staff Psychiatrist on Fair Oaks Hospital's adult treatment unit.

This program is free, but reservations are requested due to limited seating. Attendees will receive a free copy of the hard cover book "Overcoming Insomnia".

Take a step back

It should come as no surprise that the legislators of the 21st District — Sen. C. Louis Bassano and Assembly members Monroe Lustbader and Maureen Ogden — have inserted themselves into the furor over Regional High School District Superintendent Donald Merachnik's recommendation to close David Brearley High School in Kenilworth. They have pledged their support to those fighting to keep all of the regional schools open.

Some might say the legislators are merely acting out their proper role. Indeed, their involvement was surely sought by many of the thousands of Kenilworth residents who believe their interests are not being represented by the regional board. No doubt residents of other towns would react the same way, were their town's school targeted for closure.

We have gone on record supporting the board's position that a school be closed. The students are ill served by four high schools because they are prevented from achieving the fullest possible academic experience, as many advanced and specialized classes have too little student interest to justify offering them. Their parents are ill served by a district that can afford to continue running the four schools only by charging taxes at an unacceptably high level to the residents of Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield.

It is not wrong for the legislators to get involved. However, we caution residents of the regional district, especially in Kenilworth, not to get a false sense of security over their "Kangaroo entrance." As the legislators have acknowledged, they do not have the power to compel the regional district to do anything. But the Regional Board of Education certainly should listen to what the legislators have to say. They are obligated at least to listen to responsible alternatives to closing any of the schools.

Bassano, Lustbader and Ogden are respected public servants. Before they commit to a position, they should take a step back and survey the scene — and also take into account the good of the residents of the Regional District, not just what's good for the voters of their district.

We should expect to hear our legislators' specific proposals to solve an economic and educational problem. We offer them the opportunity to publish their solutions in our newspaper.

Support the chosen

The votes have been solicited, cast and counted. The election is over. Now it's time to get back to work.

The partisan politics of the election should be put to rest — ideally, for good — but at least until next November. Those elected have been named the stewards of Springfield for the coming term. They have been chosen by the majority of people because they were seen as the ones who could best serve. Whether or not individuals agree with their positions is of secondary concern. The elected leaders need the cooperation and support of all township residents.

The leaders-elect have been chosen to serve the whole. They must now reciprocate support to fulfill their duty. Their future decisions will affect their supporters and adversaries alike.

Like most conscientious residents, the Springfield Leader looks forward to following the progress of the new administration as it strives to lead the township as a united force through these still trying economic times.

Support the government officials that Springfield has empowered, and expect no less from them in working with their constituency.

Out of mouths of babes come wise words

Talking to kids can sometimes put the trivial nature of a presidential campaign into perspective.

A couple of days ago I visited Oakview School in Bloomfield. I was invited to lecture to the fourth-, fifth- and sixth-graders about the election to help them understand why it was so important to their lives, now and in the future.

Frankly, that's not what happened. For if these inquisitive, bright and caring children are representative of America's youth, we had better start lecturing less and listening more. Despite the irrelevant rhetoric and the negative personal attacks — developed by adults — that have characterized this campaign, these 9-, 10- and 11-year-olds had a solid grasp of why this election is so important.

I started by asking them, "What exactly does the president do?" They told me that was a matter who is elected to do it. "Should we help clean the environment," "hire more police to stop crooks from stealing cars" and "keep us safe." Who could disagree with such lofty goals, right?

But what really impressed me was what happened when I pressed them further on how a president might get these things done.

I asked my fifth-grader named Stephanie how she would go about cleaning the environment without raising taxes, putting certain "polluters" out of business or causing some "factory workers" to lose their jobs. She stood in front of 50 of her classmates — thinking! She hesitated and finally said, "I don't know."

Stephanie's candor was refreshing. After 18 months of this campaign, you can forget what candor sounds like. She knew she wanted to have a "clean environment," but she wasn't sure how to achieve it without creating other problems.

I asked the children if it was ever OK for a candidate to admit that he wasn't sure how to "fix a problem." Most said "yes" as long as he "tried his best."

Another 11-year-old named Shawn obviously had been thinking about the "pollution" problem and had some ideas for the Delaware River where it borders Mercer, Hunterdon and Warren counties. This section would mesh with the part of the river already having such status, from the Delaware Water Gap north to Port Jervis, N.Y.

To those who want to use rivers for dam and major water diversions are opposed to such designations. It subjects big water projects to extensive review.

Yet when recreation and natural resource-based commerce are so essential to our economy, you'd think that the despoilers would understand the long-term benefits of doing the best job of capitalizing on New Jersey's most scenic resources.

Killing the goose that lays the golden egg seems to be the objective of much of the opposition!

Yet another Bradley bill would authorize a study of doing the same thing for the Delaware River where it borders Mercer, Hunterdon and Warren counties. This section would mesh with the part of the river already having such status, from the Delaware Water Gap north to Port Jervis, N.Y.

had to sacrifice. Stephanie looked at me as if to say "yeah, so what." Then she added, "The president can't do anything. He needs our help."

That's the way the conversation went for about an hour. These kids, from a typical suburban elementary school in New Jersey, talked more about sacrifice, crime, AIDS, the homeless, getting medicine to sick people who were poor, animal testing and, of course, taxes. It was a complex, comprehensive, issue-oriented discussion, no quick fixes and no easy answers. The kind of discussion most politicians and media types say is not possible with most adults.

Most of these children agreed that the president had a "very tough job." One kid said he needed "Congress to help him." Others kept talking about "what people could do" to help the president solve these problems. All that most kids asked was that whoever wins, he should just "tell us the truth, even when it hurts, and try his best."

Kids say the darndest things, don't they?

County's teen art work displayed in November

The Union Public Library will show the Union County Teen Arts Exhibition for the month of November, it was announced by the Union County Office of Cultural Heritage Affairs, Division of Parks and Recreation.

The library, located in Friburger Park on Morris Avenue, will exhibit 18 pieces of art selected from the 430 works shown at the Union County Teen Arts Festival held in March.

Linda-Lee Kelly, vice chair of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders and liaison to the Cultural and Heritage Programs Advisory Board, said, "The county is very pleased to recognize these student artists and to give the community a wider opportunity to experience the excellence of the art work being done in our schools."

The tour will travel throughout the county until March, Kelly said. The additional sites will be announced at a later date.

Some of the students represented in the exhibit are: Michelle Gelsano of Clark, Beadstone High School; Tina Cicelli, Hillside High School; Joe Thompson, Linden High School; Philip Stevenson, Rahway High School; Steve Della Sala of Springfield, Jonathan Dayton Regional High School; and Hayley Magee of Union High School.

A dedication to service

The Inclusion Media Center at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield was recently dedicated to the memory of Natalie R. ### Book to aid in waste management

In an attempt to increase the amount of resources available to Union County residents on the subject of integrated solid waste management, the Union County Utilities Authority donated the book "Cans, Cans and Orange Peels...Where Does Your Garbage Go?" to every library in Union County.

The Authority has made a concerted effort to inform and educate county residents in this area and we county this through and concise book, which would at least be providing some information for citizens to read," Romano said.

Every public and school library in Union County was invited to attend the reception to pick-up their complimentary copy of the book. Books will be mailed to all those unable to attend.

"The problem is out of control, but the task force will use its mandate to find a realistic, workable solution for significantly reducing the high rate of auto theft," Lautsbader said.

Under the resolution, the task force would meet regularly and conduct public hearings and subsequently report its findings to the full Assembly within three months of passing the legislation.

According to recent figures compiled by the New Jersey Division of State Police's Uniform Crime Report, there were 71,686 motor vehicle thefts in New Jersey during 1991. The value of vehicles stolen exceeded $437 million and accounted for 65 percent of all property reported lost in the state.

New Jersey also has the worst rate of motor vehicle theft in the nation. Six of the state's cities rank in the top 10 cities across the country with the highest rate of auto theft.

Bill targets auto theft

Assemblyman Monroe Jay Lautsbader, R-21, has introduced legislation that calls for the appointment of a bipartisan Assembly task force to conduct recommendations aimed at reducing the state's severe auto theft problem.

The resolution, AR-1, calls for the appointment of six legislators to be appointed by the Assembly Speaker so that would conduct meetings, hold public hearings and gather information aimed at reducing New Jersey's high auto theft rate.

"The time has come for the state's lawmakers to examine the problem of auto theft in as comprehensive a manner as possible," Lautsbader said.

Lautsbader said he sponsored legislation to create this task force in the wake of recent reports about the disturbing incidence of carjacking activity, much of which has occurred in Essex County. More than 100 carjackings have taken place in Essex County in the past several months, according to recent publishing reports.

"Now, the danger is not just that in the wake of recent reports about the disturbing incidence of carjacking activity, much of which has occurred in Essex County. More than 100 carjackings have taken place in Essex County in the past several months, according to recent publishing reports."

Local United Way seeks 'professional' volunteers

United Way of Union County is seeking for the fall fund-raising campaign and is seeking dedicated professionals to volunteer their skills and time as part of the "Loaned Executive" program. This program consists of individuals who contract local corporations in order to establish employee fund-raising programs or encourage a donation by the corporation.

The ideal candidate for the program would have a flexible schedule and would be willing to make a two- or three-month commitment, all or part time, to the campaign. All volunteers will receive training about United Way, and in basic sales and training techniques. Individuals interested in this opportunity to utilize public speaking, management, fund-raising skills, and to develop new skills and gain networking opportunities in local corporations.

Responsibilities include analyzing financial projections, preparing budgets for assigned accounts, making formal presentations to employee groups, developing strategies to encourage growth in individual and corporate giving, and providing consistent and dependable follow-up to all assigned accounts.

The United Executive is the single most important ingredient to the successful United Way campaign, helping to raise 75 percent of total campaign dollars, or more than $4 million.

Individuals interested in this opportunity should contact Les Clewans, campaign director, at (908) 333-7171.

Bill targets religion

Assemblyman Monroe Jay Lautsbader, R-21, has introduced legislation that calls for the appointment of a bipartisan Assembly task force to conduct recommendations aimed at reducing the state's severe auto theft problem.

The resolution, AR-1, calls for the appointment of six legislators to be appointed by the Assembly Speaker so that would conduct meetings, hold public hearings and gather information aimed at reducing New Jersey's high auto theft rate.

"The time has come for the state's lawmakers to examine the problem of auto theft in as comprehensive a manner as possible," Lautsbader said.

Lautsbader said he sponsored legislation to create this task force in the wake of recent reports about the disturbing incidence of carjacking activity, much of which has occurred in Essex County. More than 100 carjackings have taken place in Essex County in the past several months, according to recent publishing reports.

"Now, the danger is not just that in the wake of recent reports about the disturbing incidence of carjacking activity, much of which has occurred in Essex County. More than 100 carjackings have taken place in Essex County in the past several months, according to recent publishing reports."

Roselle Park tennis team wins 5th straight crown

The Roselle Park High School girls' tennis team captured a fifth consecutive Mountaintop Valley Conference-Valley Division championship when it blanked Brearley 5-0 on Oct. 28 at Roselle Park. The Panthers have won the conference crown six of the past seven seasons dating back to 1986.

Roselle Park concluded the 1992 campaign with a 4-1 win at Union. The Panthers finished 17-2 overall and 11-1 in the Valley Division. Tara Bogota finished the season 17-4 at second and Laura Malton was 15-3 at third.
Pan Davis was 13-4 at first doubles and Sus Lopez 14-6. D.J. Farwell and Almoe Gibault were 17-3 at second doubles.

Boys' Soccer
Brearley Regional improved to 15-2 with a 7-0 win at Middlesex last Thursday, the team's second consecutive victory. The Bears avenged their only MVC-Valley Division loss by blanking Johnson Regional 1-0 Oct. 27 in Clark. Sophomore Chris Reimo scored off a scramble in front of the goal. Brearley goalkeeper Scott Jackson made two saves for the shutout.
Johnson handed Brearley its first loss of the season back on Oct. 2, a 1-0 Crusader victory in Kenilworth. Brearley, getting ready to defend its North Jersey, Section 2, Group 1 title, lost to Roselle Park 1-0 on Oct. 27. The Panthers received the top seed in this year's sectional playoffs and are scheduled to play fourth-seeded Butler in the semifinals. The other semifinal pits third-seeded Johnson at second-seeded New Providence. Dayton improved to 7-9-1 with a 1-0 win over Johnson last Friday in Clark. Middlesex finished their season with a 2-1 win at Middlesex last Saturday. Dayton fell to 0-6 and was shut out for the third time this year when it fell at home to Gov. Livingston 13-0 last Saturday.

Gregg Carucci rushed for 129 yards on 20 carries to help Governor Livingston improve to 4-2. Carucci scored on a 36-yard run in the second quarter and Aaron Tedesco scored on a one-yard run in the fourth quarter.
Dayton was limited to 77 yards total offense. The Bulldogs will face Roselle 0-0 in Roselle this Saturday in a 2 p.m. start.

Holocaust survivors expose their 'legacies'

By Ben Smith
Lifestyle Editor
Norman and Amalie Salatz of Springfield, who are spending three days in Washington this week, where they will be showing 500 photographs at the Holocaust Museum, truly believe that God spared them from the 6 million Jews put to death during the Holocaust so that they could keep alive their stories of horror inflicted on the Jews.
"I had taken 500 photographs of Jewish life in Poland before and during the Second World War," explained handsome, white-haired Norman Salatz the other afternoon at his home in Springfield, while his beautiful wife, Amalie, served apple juice. "Some of the photographs were used in my first book, 'Against All Odds — A Tale of Two Survivors,' and which was published by the Holocaust Library in New York, and many more photographs were used in my second book, 'A Jewish Boyhood in Poland — Remembering Kolbuszowa,' which Professor Richard Skolnik helped me to write and which was published by Syracuse University Press."
"I had made an album of pictures from my little town that I saved while in the ghetto during the time, which I was able to get out of the country," Salatz said that "the other book, 'Against All Odds,' is being used as a textbook at Brooklyn College. Also, Stetson Hall has this book, and there are other colleges and schools now using it."

The second book, "A Jewish Boyhood in Poland," is being used for Judaic studies in Brooklyn College, also as a textbook. It shows you the life, the value of life even if people were poor, and their belief in God and religion.
The book, which describes the hardships suffered by Nahali Salatz, his father and mother, his eight brothers and sisters, and the other Hasidic Jews in an anti-Semitic town, and the dreadful atrocities when the German army invaded their country, tells much of the culture and the lifestyles of both Jews and Poles in the 1920s and 30s.
Salatz escaped from the German camp in 1944 and joined the Polish army to become an officer — "I did not look that Jewish," he said. His mother, Amalie, who was disgusted as a Polish secretary for a construction company in German-occupied Poland, was sent to the United States in 1947.
"We came first to Williamsburg in Brooklyn, later to Bayside, and then my wife taught Hebrew in the Yeshiva. I had a lot of jobs in a very short time," Salatz recalled. "I quit some of them, but they drew me out of other jobs. Then I became a podiatrist, after which we moved to Newark, where I still was a podiatrist. First I sold children's shoes, shoes, curtains, then furniture and appliances in Jersey City."
"We lived two years in Newark, where our daughter, Esther, was born in 1937. Then I became a builder, and we moved to Springfield. I built houses for 25 years and retired about five years ago."

Amalie Salatz taught school until her daughter was born. "When she was in high school," she said, "she told me that I could go back to teaching. I taught Hebrew in Israel in Milburn, B'nai Israel in Millburn and Congregation Beth El in South Orange. I taught Hebrew studies, the Hebrew language and history. But I retired at age 60," she smiled. "If you're doing it for pleasure it's OK. I'm still busy, 10 years later."
Amalie smiled and said, "We wanted to write a book, but nobody was interested in Holocaust stories." "Yes," her husband agreed. "We had been troubled by the whole world when the Nazis began their horrors. Even the Jewish community in America didn't do much. It took me time. So, by writing our book, 'Against All Odds,' this was my legacy. My mother had sent a letter to me before she was murdered by them, telling me that I must tell the world what the Germans did to us."
"The first book took us 15 years to write," she said. "We had to put it aside from time to time because it was so painful for us. It was published three years ago." "And the book," said her husband, "was our way of telling the people of the world about what life was like in the Holocaust."
Salatz explained that after my wife and I wrote the first book, we had someone edit it, and finally the Holocaust Library published this book. "They consider it one of the best books about the Holocaust."
In the second book, Salatz pointed out that "two of my uncles married George Burns' sisters. And a third uncle married one of our first cousins. My father and the entire family were very religious," he said. "With the exception of one brother, who went to Israel and was killed, I run away. I wake up in a sweat, and the next night, same thing. I will have that

'Boyhood' tells all

By Ben Smith
"A Jewish Boyhood in Poland — Remembering Kolbuszowa," is a book that comes around once in a lifetime. The fact that it is being used as a textbook by Brooklyn College is no surprise. What is surprising is that it is written by a Holocaust survivor, Norman Salatz, who lives with his wife, Amalie — both Holocaust survivors — in Springfield, Conn. Salatz is a podiatrist, and he has written the book from the briefest moment of happiness to the most horrible experience of his childhood days in a small village in Poland — Kolbuszowa, which no longer exists, but through his book, he turns back the clock and has his reader relive with him the life that is familiar to those who have been told stellar stories of the old country by their immigrant parents or grandparents.
In an early chapter, "Time Is Not the Enemy," Salatz makes it clear that although it has been more than 50 years, he still in his heart remains an inhabitant of Kolbuszowa. "In 'Family Matters,' he remembers that he had the 'perfect' family. Considered by the townspeople, both Poles and Jews, to be 'exemplary,' they were the owners of a general wholesale store and his father was a 'pillar of the synagogue.' The following chapters, "The following chapters, "The following chapters,"

horoscope

For week of Nov. 6-Nov. 14
ARIES (March 21 to April 20) Your weekend will be filled with friends and fun. One companion may demand more of your time than you are able to give. This may cause some stress, but with diplomacy and tact, everything should turn out fine. Pay careful attention to details, especially when examining legal documents.
Taurus (April 21 to May 21) Stop worrying about everyone else and start to think a little bit more about yourself. Don't neglect your health. Relatives may come to visit, and family problems will need to be handled gently. You will prove, once again, to be the glue that holds your family together.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) Don't leave to other people the important tasks that you should do yourself, or you may not get what you want. You need a rest as you appear to have been overdoing things in recent months. Why not try meditation? It's really quite easy and a wonderful way to relax.
CANCER (June 22 to July 22) A recent disappointment will take an interesting twist and you'll realize that it was for the best. This will be a week when expectations are likely to take a nose-dive. Don't overwork your schedule or you'll become overwhelmed if you try to do too many things at once.
LEO (July 23 to Aug. 23) Play it safe in all business matters and social activities this week. It's a good time to beware of hidden pitfalls. Be especially careful of whom you are dealing with. The less you have to do with strangers, the better. There will be very happy news in your family regarding the birth of a child.
VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) News at work may put you in a bad mood, but try not to take this out on colleagues or you'll find it difficult to get things done. Get as much rest and relaxation as possible. The company of a loved one will make you feel better. You'll hear some interesting gossip about an acquaintance from your partner.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) You must look your best this weekend - someone, whom you want to impress, will be around. Close friends may have troubles and ask you for advice. You will be sympathetic as you have probably been through similar circumstances. But don't get too deeply involved.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) You often bottle up emotions until something happens to make them explode. You'll have to be extra careful about this tendency this week: if someone makes you angry, don't say anything you'll later regret. If you can't figure out why nobody understands you, consider the fact that you're not exactly making an effort to be understood.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Trouble with a relative may cause some unpleasant tension over the weekend, but you should be able to get matters dealt with by Tuesday if you are very diplomatic. Exciting opportunities beckon from afar and next year's travel plans may do much to take your mind off your materialism. It has been a good year, but don't take it for granted.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The last few years have been more down than up, but some things will change. Something important that happens this week will stabilize your life, bringing happiness, a financial increase and a nice opportunity outlook. A Sagittarius that you have been interested in starts to show interest in you, too.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 18) The company of casual acquaintances - or strangers - will add sparkle to your activities this weekend, and so will a change of scene. There will be too going on at home and a certain amount of tension may be felt there. If you're considering a change of career, now would be a good time to make that move.
PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) The recent changes you have gone through will finally stabilize and, for once, you will feel more settled. You can now start to enjoy the prospect of making even more changes in your personal life. Romance is at an all-time high, and you will realize that you are very comfortable in your new situation.
Your birthday this week. You've led the life you've led for the last few years? If so, prepare to be pleasantly surprised. Things will finally start to go your way, in virtually every aspect of life. Business deals or career advancement will take place, and an increase in income will be a welcome part of this package, too. You know that good things are worth waiting for, and all that you've been longing for will appear before your eyes. This includes love too!
