Teachers and board remain optimistic

By Heather MacGregor
Managing Editor
Representatives from the Board of Education and teachers association remain optimistic that a contract will be reached between the two parties through the mediation process, to avoid a possible strike.
The teachers union and members of the school board are expected to meet with a mediator of the New Jersey Public Employees Relations Commission to discuss a new contract.
The mediator will control the process and the process at this point, the director of the Springfield Education Association, Ron Harvey, said. The appointed mediator will act as a facilitator to help in reaching an agreement.
The contract between the board and the SEA expired June 30 and after an agreement was not met at the last negotiations, which were held Aug. 17, the Board of Education filed increase papers with PERC on Aug. 20.
"Since teachers, and other employees represented by the SEA, are working without a contract, Harvey said the threat of a strike exists. Strikes by teachers and other public employees in New Jersey are illegal, and court orders are usually sought by districts when one occurs.
"Anytime there is not a settlement, a threat of job action prevails," he said. Although, he continued, "eventually there will be a settlement, as they say, 'eventually they all settle.'"
The delay in the contract agreement is mainly because of three matters that need further discussion. Superintendent of Schools Gary Friedland said.
The matters, according to Friedland, include salary, benefits and employment conditions. Each year teachers receive an increase in salary; that will be maintained this year as well as the same benefits as when they left, he said.
The only new proposal that the board made to the teachers was to encourage more flexible conference times to accommodate the changing schedules of today's parents, he said.
To go into the details of the negotiations might hinder an agreement, therefore Friedland said he did not want to comment further while issues were still on the bargaining table. He did say that a settlement is close at hand.
Eight other Union County districts are also beginning the new academic year without a contract.
Teachers are due to report to work on Sept. 7, while secretaries, who are also represented by the union, are scheduled to report on Sept. 1.

Cable continues to negotiate with major networks

By Chris Galt
Staff Writer
Representatives from Suburban Cablevision are negotiating with the five major local broadcast networks in an effort to work out an agreement that would allow the cable company to continue televising those signals.
Suburban and all other cable operators across the country, must have the approval from commercial broadcasters before retransmitting their signals to subscribers, according to a law adopted last year by Congress.
Over-the-air broadcasters have the option of invoking a "must carry" provision requiring a cable operator to carry its signal, or it may withhold its signal. A cable operator needs a broadcaster's consent or it will no longer be able to carry the signal.
Another facet of the new cable act is the "must carry" provision, which affords any television station broadcasting in the region serviced by a cable operator the right to be placed on that system if it is now already being carried. For Suburban, the so-called Area of Dominant Influence extends as far north as Kingston, N.Y., and as far east as Riverhead, L.I., according to DeJoy.
"Essentially, what it means is that any broadcast station that's licensed by the FCC within that Area of Dominant Influence that wishes to be placed on that cable system," said DeJoy, "provided they meet technical requirements and pay us any copyright fee that we would have to pay."
According to DeJoy, the must-carry provision may have a greater impact in the months ahead, but the effects of retransmission consent are of a more immediate concern. Stations had until June 17 to choose between the two provisions in the new law.
Seven other local channels did opt for the must-carry provision. Seven local broadcasters already on Suburban will continue to appear on Suburban. They are as follows: Channel 23 NIN, Channel 47 WNUJ, Channel 13 WHPY, Channel 21 WNYC, Channel 21 WJLW, and Channel 41 WXTV.
DeJoy said that if a channel has not selected the must-carry provision, it may attempt to negotiate some form of payment from a cable operator before allowing the company to carry its broadcasts over its system. Suburban has committed not to pay any fee to these stations because, said DeJoy, these signals are already broadcast over-the-air free to non-subscribers of cable.

"What this means to all of the people — subscribers in the county, and particularly in our service areas here," said DeJoy, "is that we have a choice. With the exception of WJLW, we can negotiate some form of payment to them, or if we refuse to pay them in some form, they will withhold their retransmission consent."
According to DeJoy, in past years See CABLE, Page 2

State mandates changes in program

By Heather MacGregor
Managing Editor
There are some changes for students to keep in mind as they strap on their backpacks and sharpen their pencils in preparation for the first day of school.
Along with various renovations made to the school buildings, the Springfield school district has hired 12 new and replacement teachers for the upcoming academic year. About half of them were to fulfill the needs created by state mandates, increased class size or new programs. Superintendent Gary Friedland said.
School districts have been mandated by the state to change some of the ways that special education classes are delivered. These changes are the result of a special education study that was conducted during the 1980s, state director of Special Education Jeffrey Osowski said.
The educational testing service conducted 13 pilot projects for special education programs and will be one of the tests made recommendations to the State Board of Education, he said.
In the summer of 1992 some of the regulations were adopted by the board and made mandatory for this year and others for next year, Osowski said.
"The basic idea behind the changes in special education programs is to provide these students with additional options in the regular classroom, he said.
Some of the changes include making the resource room into a resource center and developing a pupil assistance committee. Before, the changes the only option available to these students was to be a part of the resource room program, which took students out of the regular classroom and place them in a special classroom with special teachers.

Now, under the new mandate, special education students can either remain in the classroom with special tutoring in the regular class during the given lesson, they may leave the regular class for tutoring, or may be given special support in the classroom.
Another change that is not mandatory until the 1994 academic year is implementation of a special child referral study team. This assistance committee, according to Osowski, will not only rely on the intelligence quotient and other standardized tests but will evaluate each proposed student in his or her regular academic environment, he said.
"This new system will provide each student with a better individual evaluation and determine their specialized needs by brainstorming, he said.
Many of the school districts have adopted these programs before their mandatory date to better serve their students, he said.

Teacher recertification idea proposed

By Joseph D'Allegro
Staff Writer
New Jersey's long-standing annual recertification deadline for teachers has come under fire from education groups recently who are attempting to give local administrators more control over those who do not perform well.
"With a bill that could be proposed in legislative committee before the end of the year, the New Jersey School Boards Association is backing a plan of five-year recertification for state teachers. The proposal, which has yet to garner any official support from elected leaders, would not eliminate the tenure process but would give school boards and administrators more control over teachers."
Cynthia Smith, president of the NJSEA, said that the policy, proposed in March, will improve the quality of instruction. "Teachers need to be held accountable," she said. "They need to be positive role models to students." She said the current tenure system does not foster continued teacher learning.
Smith said the plan has received some initial interest in Trenton as well as from gubernatorial candidates Christine Todd Whitman, but few have stated public approval of the controversial package with the November election looming.

The NJSEA plan requires that teachers complete at least 180 hours of professional training in the five-year period with only 90 of those hours coming from college classes. Teachers with at least five years experience and with a master's degree in their field could go seven years between recertification.
New Jersey is one of only eight states that does not require course work or training to keep a teacher certificate active and one of only nine states that issues permanent certification.
The 142,000-member New Jersey Education Association, the largest teacher's union in the state, has stated its opposition to the plan. Janet Antunes, a spokeswoman for the NTEA, does not believe forcing teachers to take classes will work. "We've always supported professional development," she said. "We put on at least 20 training seminars a year and they are always well attended. People are motivated to improve themselves, but it works best when it's voluntary. People take what they need. It should not be mandated."

Because teachers need to be certified to keep tenure, they will lose that job security if the plan is adopted. The state's tenure law protects teachers See TEACHER, Page 2

Cable bargains with networks

(Continued from Page 1) Broadcasters had been lobbying intensely to ensure that cable operators had to carry their channels because they feared they would suffer "tremendous financial" damage if cable systems were to drop the broadcast stations' signals. To the "surprise" of broadcasters, said DeJoy, when must-carry was dropped in the mid-1980s, cable operators did not drop those channels.

DeJoy said that six major broadcast stations had "a lock" on advertising revenue prior to the advent of cable, which has expanded available choices of channels to more than 50. As a result of lost revenue, the National Association of Broadcasters began lobbying Congress to renege the must-carry provision.

The broadcast industry has argued that in essence the money made by cable operators goes into competing with the broadcaster. Money paid to channels such as ESPN and CNN for their service, broadcasters say, is then generated by the cable operator because of over-the-air free channels.

Jane Alexander Bulman, director of Marketing for Suburban Cable has "helped" broadcasters because it has brought the signal to people who previously could not receive those channels because of geographical barriers. Suburban services 235,349 residences throughout 42 municipalities, with its signal being broadcast into about 57 percent of the residences capable of receiving the service.

About 7,000 to 8,000 residences in Suburban's service area are not capable of receiving over-the-air stations without cable, said DeJoy. Suburban is "close" to a non-competition with WPTX, DeJoy said. "Three of the six major commercial stations will remain on our system, but we're not sure what will happen with the other three networks—CBS, NBC, and Fox," said DeJoy. "On Oct. 6, if we have not reached agreements with them, then on Oct. 7 we have to delete them from our system."

"We want to make sure that everyone understands that we are not dropping the broadcasters," DeJoy said. "We will continue to carry them for us to carry them," said DeJoy. "So in essence they will be yielding their programs from our cable systems."

Under the agreement with ABC, DeJoy said that Suburban has agreed to place ESPN II on its subsidiary system in Jersey City, and then make the service available to Suburban subscribers after the company adds more channels in about two years. ABC is affiliated with ESPN, and they have launched a joint venture in ESPN II.

In the case of WPTX, DeJoy noted that he had spoken with that station's general manager, who spoke about a new channel called the FOOD Network. This may be a channel that Suburban would be interested in, he said, and "we intend to do it."

DeJoy said the cable industry intends to appeal the act to the U.S. Supreme Court to test its constitutionality. If the court chooses to drop it, it would not be until the spring.

Although DeJoy said he and broadcasters have agreed not to discuss aspects of their negotiations, he indicated that if Suburban agreed to pay for those signals, cable service would increase by about $2 per subscriber. Those costs, however, cannot be passed down to the subscribers during the first year, officials said.

If the remaining broadcasters do not give their consent, then Suburban will provide one A/B switch free of charge to customers which will allow subscribers to switch from cable to over-the-air television. Subscribers who are unable to pick up over-the-air broadcasts will no longer be able to view those signals.

Any additional A/B switches will have to be purchased at cost, and an installation fee of $25 will be charged for those who require Suburban personnel for hook-up. Instructions will be provided.

Under the must-carry provision, Suburban may be required to add as many as six new channels to its system. This could mean that Suburban, which currently carries 61 channels, will have to drop some of its existing channels.

Last week, Suburban added four other new channels to its Basic Plus package, including: Sci-Fi, Channel 5; the Nashville Network, Channel 53; Comedy Central, Channel 54; and Court TV, Channel 96. Court TV will be aired between 6 a.m. and 8 p.m. on Channel 96 and the Playboy channel will air on that channel beginning at 8 p.m.

"Any day from now until eternity, as long as must-carry exists, they can come to us and say, 'Well, starting next week I want to be put on air,'" said Joanne Guida, Public Affairs specialist for Suburban. Officials from Suburban said that this could mean that the cable operator will drop one of its premium channels.

Under the act, one-third of the cable company's channels must be available to local ADI channels, which are to be carried free of charge. In order for ADI channels to be carried, they must first be able to transmit their signal to Suburban's transmitter in Verona, but Bulman said that "most can't do it" at this time.

Bulman said Suburban has only been contacted by one ADI channel at this point, WABC in Newton/Lake Hopatcong.

Teacher recertification proposed

The recertification plan would only apply to new teachers and would exempt those currently holding certificates from its requirements.

"This will bring on change on a gradual basis," Smith said. "We don't want to get into a court battle with teachers. We figured we would lose it anyway."

"Another plan to improve teacher training is being developed by Assemblyman Robert Martin, R-Essex. 'When you do professional training to tenure and recertification, you run into opposition,'" he said. "Many states do that, but the educational community here has not been receptive to the idea. To get their support, some compromise may be reached."

He supports including continued education with financial incentives and recognition programs. "The persons taking the courses need to think that the classes are valuable," he said. "Focusing them to attend classes with punitive incentives won't work."

Smith said that the measures also enforce are not punitive. "There's tremendous support among teachers, if not among union representatives, for recertification and training," he said. "There have been financial incentives in place for years. Teachers with higher levels of education earn more. But we still have many teachers with only a bachelor's degree. Financial incentives are not enough."

Mayor Philip Kurnos receives a contribution from former Springfield Mayor and Union County Register of Deeds Joanne Rajoppi on behalf of the proposed Veterans Memorial Park in the township.

Rajoppi said, "and a visible way to honor the many men and women of the town who sacrificed to protect us and our country. I commend Mayor Kurnos, VFW Commander John Ernst, former commander Tom Babin and each of the veterans groups who are participating for their initiative in this effort."

The mayor said the park will include a lighted flag staff, bronze plaque and shrubbery. It is expected that the park will be dedicated in November on Veterans Day.

"The park is a wonderful idea,"

"Broccoli is beautiful, but it's so terrific, cucumbers are cute and Swiss chard is really charming."

That's what the members of the Springfield Garden Club thought after conducting its annual "Show and Tell" at the August meeting.

Club members reported that the only disappointment was the too cold weather grown by Lou Stiglitz for dessert. When opened, it was not ripe enough to eat.

Budget survey shows dismay

Assemblyman Richard H. Bagger, R-Union, a member of the Assembly Appropriations Committee, announced this week the results of his survey of area residents concerning the state budget and taxes.

When asked about the governor's anticipated 8.5 percent revenue increase for the income tax and sales tax, 86 percent responded that the governor's estimates were overstated, while only 8 percent thought they were on target, the assemblyman said.

An overwhelming majority disagreed with the Florio administration's proposed additional spending. Ninety-one percent said the budget should be cut to create an adequate surplus. Only 6 percent agreed with the governor's position, Bagger noted.

When asked if the State Constitution should be amended to require that recurring spending be balanced with recurring revenues, to eliminate budget dependency on one-shot revenues, 84 percent answered yes, while 11 percent answered no.

Seventy-one percent responded that they favored a tax cut in this year's state budget, while 26 percent did not feel it was appropriate.

When asked to prioritize tax cut proposals pending in the Legislature, ranking first was restoring the deductibility of property taxes from the state income tax. Next on the list of priorities was a corporate investment tax credit for creation of new jobs. A corporate tax credit for research and development investments was third on the list of priorities and fourth was a state income tax credit for higher computer taxes paid to New York by New Jersey commuters.

Referring to the $1.1 billion in budget cuts made by the Legislature last year, respondents were asked if state government services were substantially affected by the cuts. A responding 83 percent answered no, while 8 percent believed that services were lacking.

When asked about this year's budget and the governor's proposed

Club examines Pollard punishment

"Does the Punishment Fit the Crime and the Pollard Case?" is the title of the rally being sponsored by Northern New Jersey B'nai B'rith and Men's Club of Temple Emanu-El, Westfield. The rally is scheduled to occur Sunday, Sept. 12, at 8:30 p.m. at Temple Emanu-El, 756 East Broad St. The council meeting will start at 7 p.m.

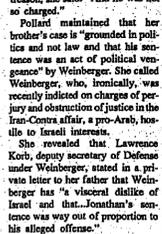

The guest speaker will be Carol Pollard, sister of convicted spy Jonathan Pollard, who is pleading for commutation of the life sentence given to her brother. Pollard, a Navy intelligence analyst, was charged with passing classified information to Israel. In 1987, he was sentenced to life imprisonment. The sentencing judge recommended that Pollard be ineligible for parole. For the past five years, Pollard has been in solitary confinement at a maximum security penitentiary in Marion, Ill.

In recent years, she noted, several Americans convicted of espionage for non-Communist countries and even for the Soviet Union, East Germany and Iraq, have received considerably lighter sentences than her brother. Unlike the efforts of those convicted of spying for enemy nations, she said, her brother's activities did not harm U.S. national security interests. If he had caused damage to the U.S., he would have been charged with Pollard pleaded guilty to passing classified documents to an allied nation, one of the lowest levels of the espionage statutes. The data he gave the Israelis dealt with U.S. assessments of the military capabilities of Iraq, Syria and Libya — nations that have been perpetually in a state of war with Israel. In defending his action, Pollard contended that Israel was entitled under treaty arrangements to receive this data but that his Defense Department superiors were deliberately withholding it.

Despite the fact that Pollard was not indicted for treason, his sister pointed out, former Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger asked the sentencing judge to issue the stiffest possible sentence "commensurate with the heinous quality of treason."

Network needs organs donated

Organ and tissue donation is a generous gift that can help to improve and save many lives. It is also a gift that is given at no cost.

All expenses associated with donation become the responsibility of the organ procurement agency, according to Springfield-based New Jersey Organ and Tissue Sharing Network. Yet, in a recent Gallup poll, 42 percent of those surveyed did not realize that organ donation costs the donor family absolutely nothing.

"There are many misconceptions about organ donation that make it difficult to make an informed decision," said Denise Payne, executive director of The Sharing Network. "A single donor can save as many as six lives, which is why organ donation is one of the greatest contributions a person can give. A myth about cost should not prevent someone from signing a donor card."

More than 31,000 people are on a national waiting list for an organ transplant, and more than 900 people in New Jersey. And more than 2,500 die each year while waiting simply because there aren't enough donors.

The Sharing Network is seeking residents to sign a Donor Card and discuss organ and tissue donation with their families. The Sharing Network is a federally designated, state-certified procurement organization responsible for recovering organs and tissues for New Jersey residents in need of transplantation, as well as those on waiting lists nationwide. For more information about organ donation, contact The Sharing Network at 1-800-SHARE-NJ.

Overlook Implements first hospital-based regional 911 system

Municipalities searching for ways to fund and implement the state-mandated 911 emergency call system are turning to Overlook Hospital, Summit, which has established the state's first hospital-based regional 911 system for help.

Overlook's service, offered to municipalities on an at-cost basis, is administered by CenCom, the hospital's paramedic dispatching center. Operating since 1981, CenCom is home to the Garden State Regional MICU network — a nine-hospital consortium serving five counties — and handles over 40,000 emergency response calls each year.

At least a dozen municipalities in Union and Essex counties are currently considering Overlook's 911 service or have signed letters of intent to use it.

"These towns are realizing that Overlook's CenCom service can significantly reduce response time as well as the costs associated with implementing the 911 emergency call system," said Gareth Williams, MICU dispatch coordinator at Overlook Hospital.

In towns participating in Overlook's CenCom system, all ambulance-related 911 calls received in the municipality are transferred immediately to the CenCom center at Overlook. A CenCom dispatcher, using equipment to identify the telephone number and address of the caller, automatically guides the nearest rescue squad to the scene. On critical calls, such as heart attacks, drowning, choking incidents, or motor vehicle accidents, CenCom will also dispatch a hospital-based Mobile Intensive Care Unit, MICU, staffed by paramedics who are trained to provide advanced life support.

Simultaneously, another CenCom dispatcher then gives the caller immediate advice on how to stabilize the patient until the rescue squad or paramedics arrive. Such advice may include step-by-step instructions on administering CPR, performing the Heimlich maneuver or controlling bleeding.

"A key feature of the system is that CenCom dispatchers are trained through a nationally recognized program to give immediate emergency response information, enabling callers to be the first to respond to the emergency," Williams noted. "The system essentially reduces the typical 3-4 minute response time to zero," he added.

In municipalities where the 911 emergency response system is already in place, 911 calls are usually received by the local police, who, in dispatch a patrol car and the local rescue squad to the scene. If the rescue squad or police-dispatcher determine the emergency to be critical, they summon an MICU from the nearest hospital.

A state law passed in 1989 requires all New Jersey municipalities to have a 911 emergency response system in place. Under New Jersey's 911 system, the only state-operated system in the country, all 911 calls are automatically routed out of the regular telephone network to a computerized state system that instantaneously relays calls, without charge, to a Public Safety Answering Point in the caller's area. The PSAP attendant either dispatches emergency assistance directly or automatically transfers the call to a Public Safety Dispatch Point, such as CenCom, which will dispatch the appropriate emergency assistance.

Legislation enacted in 1991 requires enhanced training and state certification for PSAP personnel handling emergency response calls. Overlook's CenCom 911 system offers emergency dispatching for any medical or emergency needs, including disaster response. It also has the ability to tie into a town's existing emergency radio frequencies. For more information about CenCom, contact Gareth Williams at 522-2863.

History of 911 traces emergency calls throughout the world

In March 1973, the federal government issued a policy statement advocating the nationwide adoption of a 911 emergency response system. In 1976, the New Jersey Legislature recommended that municipalities place their fire and emergency services on the universal 911 emergency number, and in 1977, a similar recommendation was made by a state task force. These recommendations resulted in a 1989 law that required municipalities to implement a 911 emergency response system. According to Bonnie Hugg, an emergency telecommunications systems analyst with the state's Office of Emergency Telecommunications Services, 12 New Jersey counties are completely up and running with a 911 system. "By the end of the year, we anticipate having all of the remaining counties included in the network," Hugg said. "New Jersey's 911 system is unique," she added, "because it is the only state in the country to operate its own telephone transfer network."

In New Jersey, all 911 calls are automatically routed out of the regular telephone network to a computerized state system that instantaneously relays calls, without charge, seven days a week, 24 hours a day, to the PSAP in the caller's area. The PSAP attendant receiving the call has a display of the caller's telephone number, address and the identified emergency response agencies. The PSAP attendant will either dispatch emergency services directly or will automatically transfer the call to a Public Safety Dispatch Point, which will, in turn, dispatch the appropriate emergency assistance.

Revised equity plan approved

The State Department of Education has approved the revised version of the Union County Regional School Board's racial balance plan.

The board was notified last week that the revised version of the plan had been approved by Dr. Clark L. Rorro, director of the Office of Equal Educational Opportunity. In July, Rorro requested that the board modify six areas of the original equity plan submitted by the board in May.

In compliance with Rorro's request, the board removed special education students from their racial equity plan and addressed several other issues specified in a July letter from Rorro. The revised plan focuses on recruiting a racially and ethnically diverse staff. The revised plan also addresses methods of maintaining racial balance in the future.

Upcoming season could be a dandy

By J.R. Parachini
Sports Editor

You can tell in September, even though the leaves have not yet found their way to the ground.

Football season is here. The college campaign began last weekend, high school practices officially opened around the state yesterday and the NFL's five-month marathon begins Sunday.

The upcoming high school campaign could be a dandy with Union and Roselle Park coming off 11-0 sectional championship campaigns and Hillside looking to be even better than its much improved 7-1-1 state of a year ago.

Linden will be trying to gain the playoffs for a second consecutive year and Johnson Regional and Dayton Regional have moved up to Group 2 status, each benefitting in enrollment from the closing of Brearley Regional.

Making their college marks

There are also a number of area athletes who are meeting the challenges on the college level. This week we take a brief look at Derrick Cannon and Brian Sheridan of Union, Nick Villani of Roselle Park and Jason Mullman of Springfield.

Derrick Cannon, a co-captain of the Union High School 1991 North Jersey, Section 2, Group 4 championship football team, will be attending Ellsworth Community College in Iowa.

The 6-foot, 180-pound Cannon, a 1992 UHS graduate, will play strong safety for the Panthers. He will major in business.

"Derrick has great speed and should make an impact this year," Ellsworth coach Thompson said.

Cannon was the Union County sprint champion his senior year and was recently elected at 10:00 in the 100-meter dash and at 4:30 in the 40-yard dash.

Forget about Brian Sheridan redshirting at Rutgers this year. The captain of last year's UHS sectional championship squad has impressed Scarlet Knights head coach Doug Graber with his play this far at inside linebacker.

"He made about six unassisted tackles and four of them would have been big, big plays had he not been there," said Graber, who was quoted in the Star-Ledger speaking of Sheridan's performance during an Aug. 23 scrimmage. Sheridan's outstanding effort came against the first offense match of the time. "He's got a great nose for the ball and he's another guy who can really run," Graber said. "He's going to play, no question about it."

Nick Villani, a 1992 Roselle Park graduate and 1991 All-State selection, will see time at offensive line for Rowan College. A 6-3, 265-pound sophomore, Villani's play on both sides of the ball helped Roselle Park finish 7-3 and gain a playoff berth two seasons ago.

Jason Mullman, a 1992 Dayton Regional graduate, is listed as a freshman defensive back on the Rowan roster. Mullman was one of the better linebackers in the area two years ago as his play helped spark Dayton to a very successful 6-3 campaign.

Rowan was 12-1 last year, its best season ever, and reached the Division 3 semifinals. This year K.C. Keeler takes over the head coaching spot vacated by John Bunting, who left to join the coaching staff of the Kansas City Chiefs.

Scrimmage season begins this weekend.

High school teams that open their season on the weekend of Saturday, Sept. 18 will be TRYING their first scrimmages this weekend. Union opens at Kerry on Saturday, Sept. 18. All four of the Farmers' scrimmages are away.

Union opens with a scrimmage at Cranford tomorrow morning. The Farmers will then go against Union Central and Bergen Catholic at Hunterdon Central Tuesday at 3 p.m. Union's game-scrimpage will be at St. Peter's Prep of Jersey City on Saturday morning, Sept. 11.

Union and Bergen Catholic, which scrimmage against each other annually, own the state's longest current winning streak at 22 games, both having gone 11-0 the last two seasons.

Not in preseason rankings

Union, which finished No. 5 last year and No. 4 in 1991, did not make the USA Today Super 25 High School Football Preseason Rankings. Middletown South was the only school from New Jersey in the Top 25, ranking 10th.

Three teams from New Jersey were ranked in the Top 10 in the East. Middletown South was second, Hackensack seventh and Bergen Catholic eighth.

Union has finished in the final Top 25 rankings five times in the first 11 years, 1982-1992. Only Valdosta, Ga. has appeared more, with six finishes. Union is tied for second with East St. Louis, Ill. Union's 1984, 1985, 1987, 1991 and 1992 teams appeared in the final Top 25 rankings, with the 1985 the highest ranked team at No. 3.

Kickoff Dance

A Kickoff Dance for the Union High School football team will take place Friday, Sept. 10 from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Union Elks Lodge 1583 on 281 Chestnut St. in Union. Donation per ticket is $15.

The event is being sponsored by the 26 Quarter Club UHS boosters and is to benefit the Farmers football program.

Beer, soda, chips and pretzels are included and a cash bar will be made available. Entertainment will be provided by a professional disk jockey, with music for all ages.

For additional tickets call Sue Collins at 908-687-9697.

Coaching change

One coaching change to take place in the Watchung Conference occurred at Rahway. Mike Puzos takes over the reins from Fred Steuber. Rahway opens on Saturday, Sept. 18 at Westfield.

Steuber remains as the Indians' head wrestling coach and this fall will be an assistant coach on the girls' soccer team.

Union bests Verona in first TOC contest

By J.R. Parachini
Sports Editor

Although the Union White Sox fell short in the Central Jersey Baseball League playoffs last month, the club did redeem itself of sorts by posting a win in its first Tournament of Champions contest last Sunday.

Union downed Essex County Baseball League champion Verona 8-6 at Montville.

Union, 23-11-1, will now face Montville in Montville Saturday at 2 p.m. in its next game. The White Sox will play again on Sunday, which will be the conclusion of the first round of the double-elimination tourney. Sunday's action is scheduled to take place at Linden's Memorial Field beginning at 1 p.m.

Ten of the best summer baseball teams from around the state are entered in this year's tourney. Teams had to have won their league championship or a division title to qualify.

The 10 teams are Union, New Providence, North Hunterdon and Branchburg of the Central Jersey Baseball League; Verona and Montclair of the Essex County Baseball League; Metro Park and Edison of the New Brunswick League and Mendham and

The A team is for grades 7-8, the B team for grades 6-7 and the C team for grades 4-5.

Soccer registration

The Springfield Recreation Department will sponsor a Youth Soccer Program for boys and girls in grades 5-8. Youngsters are grouped in grades 5-6 and 7-8.

Summer Baseball

Union increased its lead to 8-4 with two runs in the top of the eighth. Dan DeMarco, Union's centerfielder, and catcher Don Antonelli both drove home runs with singles.

Lon Schmidt, Union's shortstop, belted a three-run homer in the top of the sixth to give the White Sox a 6-3 advantage.

DeMarco and White Sox leftfielder Steve Filice each went 2-for-4. Kevin Bradley, Union's rightfielder, went 2-for-3 with an RBI and Antonelli was 2-for-4 with an RBI.

Steve Wacker took the loss in relief for the Twins.

The Stingers finished unbeaten for the second time in their history and won the Mountainside Softball League championship this year. Unbeaten Stingers capture Mountainside championship

The Stingers finished unbeaten for the second time in their history en route to the league championship.

This season's marked team manager and pitcher Arlyn Mozokl's 24th year in the league.

Mozokl helped the Stingers win 10 of the last 12 championships.

Mozokl retired from softball this season after 43 years of playing organized ball, beginning in Union as a 6th grader.

The Stingers have been a very successful team with many members having played since the age of 18.

The league has always been competitive, with many seasons ending with a playoff for the championship.

Mozokl's pitching duties have been relinquished to Kim Kumpf, who held off opponents this season on her way to an undefeated season.

The Stingers were sponsored for the fourth consecutive year by Paul Muir of Mountainside.

This year's roster included Arlyn Mozokl, Carol Turano, Robin Cunningham, Phyllis Mahon, Patty Moninger, Deane Kumpf, Kim Kumpf, Mine Stagaard, Jen Stagaard, Debbie DeMatia, Carol Ridgeway, Chris O'Brien, Chris Baliko, Kristen Froden, Peggy Hefferan, Nancy Masterson and Cathy Jones.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Talented designer brings puppets of Marionette Theater to church

By Bea Smith
Lifestyle Editor

Celia Collins of Montclair, a multi-talented performer, has a phenomenal attraction for a variety of audiences. By blending her knowledge and training in the theater, she has developed a new career as a puppeteer, and the versatile actress will appear in a program called Celia and her Marionettes present "Juliana and the North Wind" Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the First Congregational Church, 1340 Burnet Ave., Union.

Collins will offer her one-woman tour de force with 18th century sets and costumes in a fairy-tale exploration of courage, adventure and sad magic, which she said will appeal to all ages. "It is the most sophisticated puppet play I have created for my repertoire," she explained the other afternoon. "I also have 'Little Red Riding Hood,' and 'Surprise Circus.'"

Collins, who has had extensive vocal training and an acting degree from Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va., "started out as a struggling actress in New York. After all that struggling," she mused, "I gradually moved into the costume world. I became a professional costume designer and stayed in that profession for 25 years."

"My husband, Brandon, and I moved to Montclair in 1988, and Brandon, who had been to several First Nights, thought Montclair would be a perfect place to start a First Night. So, we founded the First Night in Montclair. Now there are six new First Nights in New Jersey. First Night is a celebration of the arts on New Year's Eve. About 13,000 people attend First Night here in Montclair."

Collins actively serves as the chairperson of the artist Committee for the Montclair Arts and Cultural Alliance. "Three years after my last job as a costume designer," Collins recalled, "I said to myself, 'What shall I do next? Now, what am I going to do?' I thought to myself that I could go back to what I had done as a child. I used to make marionettes and do shows as a child. It was the foundation of my theatrical career. I had extensive knowledge in theatrical arts, and with additional knowledge of costs, costumes, experience as a designer, carpenter, sculptor, actor, writer, musician and promoter of the arts, I blended all of these into a repertoire of three shows. I consider myself a puppeteer, and in this second career, I use my interdisciplinary skills and talents to enable me to create a marionette theater that enchants and inspires. I actually write the music and the script and create the costumes and I manipulate the puppets," Collins explained. "I now have 14 puppets. I am now in the process of taking a troupe artist in my 'Surprise Circus.' The puppets do various tricks, including standing on their heads. I have regular size puppets. I'm creating an international form of theater. It's really a theater meant to enchant! 'Truthfully,' she declared, "my main objective is to extend the art of puppetry by creating an active, meaningful experience for children in live performance as an audience, experience its magic and its creativity and by so doing dare to create themselves."

Collins has given approximately 70 performances at public libraries, retirement homes, festivals, libraries, schools, birthday parties and at First Night Montclair in 1992 and 1993. How did it happen, Collins was asked to perform in the Rev. Nancy Forberg's First Congregational Church? "Well, I was in a choir with the State Repertory Opera House in South Orange. At that time, we had given several concerts in Rev. Nancy's church. One day she called me after seeing a puppet program I did for the children called 'Little Red Riding Hood.' She just loved it, and invited me. 'Won't you come here?' she asked. "And so, here I am," Collins declared. "I've been with Juliana and the North Wind," which, of course, is a little more sophisticated than "Little Red Riding Hood." The show will run about 30 minutes. And for the next 30 minutes I will talk to the audience and answer any questions that are asked of me."

Collins said that "hundreds of hours have gone into this. I'm just at the beginning," she chuckled, "not the end. I have millions of ideas about what I'm going to do with these puppets. "As it is," she added, "I have five puppets on stage at one time. And the people can't believe that I'm the only one backstage manipulating them. I have a system, you know. Still," she mused, "it really keeps me going. But it's great fun!"

Celia Collins of Montclair shows off her clown puppet from her series, 'Surprise Circus.' She will bring her Marionette Theater, 'Juliana and the North Wind,' a sophisticated puppet show for all ages, to the First Congregational Church, Union, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

'Paper Moon' musical to bow on Paper Mill stage this week

"Paper Moon," a new musical based on the 1973 Academy Award winning film, will make its world premiere at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, on Wednesday through Oct. 24. Following its New Jersey debut, the musical is slated for a move to Broadway under the auspices of producers Roger Berlind, whose recent Broadway credits include "Guys and Dolls" and "City of Angels."

For week of Sept. 5-Sept. 11

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) Worked plans may not go as you had hoped. But don't be disappointed, because something good will come out of it. A great deal of diplomacy will be required in order to keep harmony in relationships. A heart-to-heart talk with a loved one will be revealing.

Taurus (April 21 to May 21) You may find it difficult to concentrate on the simplest thing this week. You're better off relaxing, and taking care of details later on. Meditation is a good way to achieve peace of mind. Don't let your priorities, especially to subordinates at work. An interesting letter will come in the mail.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) If you can arrange to spend the weekend away from home, you will benefit both emotionally and physically. A change of scenery is just what you need. Financial problems will not seem as monumental as they had seemed a few weeks ago. You will figure out a way to save more money.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22) Don't wait to long to discuss an important matter with a loved one. The sooner you clear the air, the sooner you can get on with other matters. You will have many reasons to celebrate. Something you've been waiting for — that you didn't think would ever happen — finally comes through.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 23) If you're not careful, you might spill some closely guarded secrets. This could cause resentment with loved ones. Watch what you say. Just because you're feeling discontented, it doesn't mean you can attack others with unkind words. A more diligent exercise routine is what you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Romance will be the highlight of the week. You may even fall in love. Be on the lookout for Capricorns of the opposite sex. If a higher up at work is making things hard for you, turn to another person of influence for encouragement and support. Time with friends will prove interesting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) This should be an exceptionally rewarding week if you are trying to find new solutions to ongoing problems. Financially, it will be worthwhile to invest in something to speed up productivity, so be prepared to lay out money on equipment for your business or home. Expect to have a very romantic weekend.

Evenings or weekend visits can be scheduled by contacting the hospital's community resource coordinator, Shirley Bligler, at 233-3720 ext. 379.

The artists' works are for sale, with a portion benefiting the Children's Specialized Hospital.

Children's Specialized Hospital, reportedly New Jersey's only comprehensive pediatric rehabilitation hospital, is located on New Providence Road.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) This will be a week of contrasts. At times it may be extremely difficult to concentrate on your work and, at other times you will be at your best. What you plan is likely to be quite different than what you expect. Your intense character is likely to be oversteering to loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Unexpected trouble is likely to occur. Play any lottery that comes your way. You will be unusually successful at sporting events of any kind. People and faraway places will be on your mind towards the end of the week. You will find yourself in the limelight at work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) This is a good week for working on projects. Money matters will run smoothly, provided you don't get involved in get-rich-quick schemes. You'll realize that hard work does pay off. Expect to be rewarded with a promotion or salary increase. You'll win into an old friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 18) New friendships could play an important part in this week's events. You will be socializing more than usual. Good news is on the way. Finance will be best of an issue now. An open mind is necessary to achieve harmony at home. Your way isn't always the best way.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 21) A burst of energy gets you moving fast ahead on projects you've been putting off for some time. You'll wonder why you waited so long to accomplish such simple tasks. This is not the time to splurge. Spending on yourself — or others — could lead you to financial disaster.

Your birthday this week: You're in for an interesting year. Love and romance will be a big part of it. What you thought was a casual friendship could end up being a meaningful romance. This love interest is likely to be a Scorpio or Taurus. You'll spend a lot of time socializing and making new contacts. Follow your business when it comes to business opportunities, and you will succeed. An emotionally labile situation that you have been involved in for some time will finally come to an end. With this weight off your shoulders, you'll feel like a new person. January and February are the best months to take a trip.
