Assistant Engineer Sam Martini said the committee did not have to adopt the plan, but they did endorse the plan 1 1/2 years ago.
Township Attorney Rebecca Domington said the cost estimates of the project are scheduled to be approved for the next fiscal year. The estimates have not been made yet because the SID does not have a budget so there are no estimates, she said.
Martini also applied for grants in hopes of funding programs including the installation of an elevator in the municipal building and barrier free curb cuts in front of all municipal properties to meet the American with Disabilities Act requirements.
HUD provides meals for families with low incomes, Martini said. The application is for $8,500 and the township would match that amount, he said.
The elevator in the municipal building would cost $34,000 to install. The grant was submitted for $78,000 and the township would be responsible for the rest, he said. The elevators are at the top of the list for grant money because the deadline is set for January 1995, Martini said.
The application for the barrier free curbs is for $66,320 and the township will pay for $5,000, he said. Making all of the township sidewalks barrier free will take approximately three years, Martini said.
Roy Hirschfeld, from the engineer's office, explained a grant filed for $140,000 would turn the Chisholm School into a community center and make the building more modern. That would include renovations to the gym floor and walls and repairs to the heating system, classrooms and side entrance of the school.

$3.8-M Exxon fines linked to Bayway

By Joseph D'Allegro
Staff Writer
Exxon Chemical Company agreed in U.S. District court in Newark, N.J., to pay $3.8 million in fines to the federal government for falsely reporting motor oil tests.
Ray Nesbitt, president of the Houston-based division of Exxon Corporation, pleaded guilty to 15 misdemeanor charges on behalf of his company. "We deeply regret that this incident occurred," he said in a press release. "Company management was neither aware of nor condoned these reporting violations and has disciplined several employees in connection with this matter."
Laboratory workers in the company's Linden facility fabricated data and falsified temperature readings in tests supplied to the Federal Department of Defense in the late 1980s, according to reports. The certified test results dealt with the ability of the corporation's oil products to combat engine wear and made it seem as if their products met government requirements.
James Tricase, a former Exxon engineer, pleaded guilty in the summer of 1992 to charges he helped conceal fraudulent test data from the Army.
Although the Department of Defense purchased and used $300,000 worth of the company's product, no military personnel were hurt or vehicles damaged from the lubricants additives, reports stated.
The company's laboratory stopped commercial testing in 1989 after company officials learned of the government investigation. The facility was closed in 1990. Exxon says that none of the products they currently market rely on test data from the laboratory.
"Exxon Chemical is committed to providing its customers with high-quality products that consistently meet or surpass applicable specifications and we are confident that the quality of our products was never compromised by this inaccuracy reporting," Nesbitt said. "All of our engine testing to certify U.S. passenger car motor oils in accordance with industry standards is now conducted at independent laboratories."
The payment includes a $3-million fine, the largest allowable, $500,000 in investigative costs, $300,000 in restitution, and a $1,900 special assessment.
The case was heard before U.S. District Judge Dickinson Debovoise. The investigation, which is ongoing, is being conducted by the Defense Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Assistant U.S. Attorney Alain Leibman is handling the prosecution.
Exxon will be sentenced Jan. 10, 1994.

Ex-county police officer commits suicide

A former Union County police officer, who had been forced to resign two years ago, committed suicide on the afternoon of Nov. 9 in his Roselle home, police said.
Darryl Gilbert Jr., 25, shot himself in the chest with a homemade gun. Assistant Prosecutor William Kolomo said that Gilbert's body was found later that afternoon by a friend.
Gilbert had joined the county police in 1988 and resigned three years later following an investigation.
He had been asked to resign or face indictment following an incident when he was off duty in Elizabeth in which his service revolver was taken from his control in a scuffle.
He had been trying to get his position back, authorities said.
Gilbert had also been arrested and charged with disorderly conduct outside a Roselle convenience store in September. He had been awaiting a court date for that charge.

not there" she said. "Our main functions are to set the budget and make policy decisions."
"People elect us because they like the way we think," not because we profess to be experts in everything, she said.
"The hardest thing really is compromise, because you have to work with everyone and I must will be able to do that," Forman said.
Appointments
Appointments made by the new majority will not be final until the reorganization meeting on Jan. 1, however appointments are being considered, Forman said.
Although there has been speculation that the Democratic chair, Bruce Bergen, will be appointed as the township attorney, the committeewoman said she could not confirm or deny that at this time.
"We haven't settled on appointments," she said, however, "no one would be surprised if he were or were not appointed."
Bergen said he did not want to comment on the appointments or the possibility of his own appointment.
Republican Committeeman Harry Pappas, whose term expires in a year, said he has endorsed "vile" campaigns.

Regional board still debates offering summer programs

By Joseph Niedzieliski
Staff Writer
The debate over the Union County Regional High School District's elimination of its summer school offerings continued at its Tuesday night meeting in Springfield.
Theresa Li Causi, who chaired the meeting and presented the report of the Cost Containment Committee, agreed with the previous findings and directives of Curriculum Director Ken Matfield, which were briefly outlined at the Nov. 3 meeting.
The overall philosophy of the regional board has shifted toward an in-house assessment of students' needs during the year rather than addressing these problems in the summer.
A final decision in the matter will be determined at the Jan. 4 meeting of the regional board. More time has been given to allow for Matfield to further research the needs of all educational departments within the regional district and to come up with a concrete replacement policy alternative for the summer school offering.
According to Matfield, each department will be given a scenario of working without a summer school option. The rate of failure in each department will be studied and department heads will be asked what they can do to improve achievement in their respective areas.
The findings of Li Causi were that the elimination of summer school would result in a savings of $90,000. Part of the savings, an estimated $30,000, would be placed back into the system for support programs during the year resulting in a net savings for the regional of $60,000.
Continued concern from the public who attended and some of the board members was allayed by the changes to the Jan. 4 vote. Most of those opposed to the move would favor it as long as the board had solidified its policy on what it would do during the year to ensure that students would not fail.
As Carmen Vene, one of the board members, remarked, "This committee is trying to react before the failure. They are being proactive rather than reactive."
Li Causi did say that she would like to see an early warning system as a component of board policy to ensure that parents are aware of failing students and so that teachers could take the necessary action of placing the student in a tutorial program or addressing the situation in a one to one setting.
Responding to how the board could be expected to vote on this issue without a policy in place, Burton Zitter, the regional president, reiterated that "the board is going to wait to see that the commitment will be there before the vote is taken."
At the meetings which helped to form the report, Li Causi listened to student as well as teacher input and found similarities between both groups which cited attitude and attendance inconsistencies rather than ability as a usual criteria in failure.
"Change is scary, but it doesn't mean it won't be the right way to go," said Li Causi in an interview after the meeting.

Open the doors

After having been a campaign issue for a number of years, Chisholm School is finally getting what everyone has been calling for — renovations. That's great news.

Although specific plans for the school have been left open by the Township Committee, an application for grant funding was filed that would result in the rehabilitation of the aging building.

Chisholm School has served the community in various capacities since the township purchased the building from the Board of Education nearly 10 years ago. Its functions, however, have been limited because of the building's disrepair. It is in desperate need of renovations, including a new heating system, windows and partial roof repairs.

The repairs will be expensive, but worth the cost because the possibilities for the building are virtually limitless. One of the options, which we would like to see happen to the facility, is to turn it into a community center.

The committee has suggested that a daytime tenant be considered to help pay for the building's long- and short-term maintenance.

To the other extreme, the township engineer also has suggested that crews only tear down the wood portion of the building and renovate the newer brick section of the school.

Like every project, this one needs community support. Although candidates have used the school as a campaign issue in several of the last elections, it had been, for one reason or another, disregarded when it came time to fulfill campaign promises.

Everyone in Springfield needs a central gathering point and Chisholm School would be ideal to fill those needs. It has the proper amount of space and with the efforts of the Township Committee and the support of residents, its halls once again could be bustling.

The first step has been made toward renovating the school, but the Township Committee needs to hear from residents before it further decides on the future of the school. If residents don't step forward now, time could slip by and renovations to the school could be delayed and never return to the hands of the people — where it belongs.

Letters to the editor

Plan is wishful thinking

On Tuesday, Nov. 23, there will be a final public hearing on an ordinance establishing a Special Improvement District and creating a District Management Corporation. This will be the third attempt to implement the "Revitalization and Redevelopment Plan for Springfield Downtown," dated Dec. 11, 1991, authored by the Township Planner and adopted by the Mayor's Downtown Redevelopment Committee.

Municipal funding, government grants and the imposition of a surtax on the properties in the district are proposed in the plan to defray costs. The emphasis is on municipal funding. The surtax will not generate enough income to sustain the plan or its objectives. An 11 percent surtax on the municipal portion of the tax burden levied on the non-residential commercial properties in the district will yield less than $20,000 per year. Nearly $3 million are estimated for improvements such as sidewalks, lighting and paving, which would have to be raised.

The construction of a road behind the properties on the north side of Morris Avenue, connecting Church Hill with Duffy's Corner, is essential to the plan. There is no cost estimate for acquiring the necessary land. The presumption that the property owners will grant easements to the township without cost in exchange for certain improvements and services is wishful thinking. Other cost estimates in the plan are not realistic or are erroneous. The plan is not realistic. If the purpose of the plan is revitalizing the area by improving its appearance, and thereby increasing or stabilizing the tax base, the objective can be realized by mechanisms already in place. The enforcement of the property maintenance code and housekeeping would attain the same result with little or no cost to the taxpayers at large.

The promotion of the commercial aspects of the area should be the responsibility of those who have an economic stake in this endeavor. In other places a confederation of these parties, such as a Chamber of Commerce, fulfills this purpose. The history of the downtown area shows that, for whatever reason, there has been and still is a reluctance of the business community to unite in a common cause.

Already over $80,000 has been allocated to implement this plan. The enabling state legislation for the creation of the district and the corporation encourages the idea of "self-finance" and "self-help" to enhance the local business climate. This attempt to establish a district which will be competitive with the shopping malls and other mercantile areas does not serve the best interests of the township. It benefits a select few and is unfair to businesses in other sections of the town. The public funds necessary for this plan could be put to better use. This plan, if it has any merit, is 40 years too late.

Is the district's per-student cost misleading?

YES

On Nov. 8 in Springfield and on Nov. 9 in Berkeley Heights, I attended two presentations of Union County Regional Representatives to the respective governing bodies on the disadvantages of dissolution of the regional district. When I left these two presentations, I had to scratch my head and pinch myself to make sure I wasn't dreaming. Here were educators from the regional district accusing others of juggling the facts, and I was hearing regional members giving perhaps the third interpretation of the same facts, in a time frame of about 18 months.

Dr. Merachnik, superintendent of the regional district, at both meetings questioned the enrollment projections of Deloitte and Touche. Dr. Merachnik questioned the figure of 505 students by the years 1997 and 1998 for Springfield. On Oct. 20, 1992, Dr. Merachnik gave a recommendation at David Breatley to close a school. In that recommendation were enrollment projections. Dr. Merachnik projected 700 students for Springfield. Did he think we forgot? Or did he forget? Or don't these figures now benefit the state he must take? His figures don't align with Berkeley Heights were in the same range with Deloitte and Touche. Dr. Merachnik, when are the figures the figures?

Mr. Burdge, the regional board administrator, seemed to have a problem with the fact that figures changed from a draft copy to a final copy. Mr. Burdge, I have attended for a couple of years the meetings leading up to the budget presentation for the regional district. If my memory serves me correctly, the meetings prior to the budget presentations have figures that are considered a draft. As time proceeds, with each meeting there are different figures until that budget presentation. The budget presentation is then supposed to be the final figures, and even then this is not always true and figures sometimes continue to change right up to the budget vote. So it would seem, Mr. Burdge, that changes from a draft to a final copy are not as unusual as you may want some to believe.

Mr. Zimone, president of the Union County Regional Board of Education, can't seem to make up his mind as to whether the regional district has provided a quality education for all three of his children who have gone through the system. In March of 1992, in a press release for the district, he strongly stated that his three children had all received a comprehensive quality education from the regional district. Yet in May of 1993, on the witness stand in court during the hearing for Keelworth vs. The Regional, he no longer felt that this was true.

It seems the facts change depending on the situation and the need in the regional district. Deloitte and Touche is one of the big six accounting firms

In the nation and would not compromise their reputation for anyone, as some seem to want to imply. What this study for dissolution will do is let us find the truth. Are we paying $16,000 per pupil for quality or can we get better quality for less money? I cannot understand how anyone can fault the local districts for wanting to find the answers or how anyone would not let the process proceed.

To the residents of Springfield, on Nov. 8, Dr. Merachnik made a promise that your school would never be closed. Because of the curriculum growth in the district and there is now a need for three buildings, I hope this promise is truly a promise. Just remember that on Oct. 15, 1991, that promise was made to Keelworth by Dr. Merachnik. Vote for the budget and that's how you can save your school. We got the budget passed and we also got our school closed. Also read his recommendation of Oct. 20, 1992, where he says that the configuration needs to be looked at again within five years. Promises, promises?

I would also like everyone to know that this is the second feasibility study for Berkeley Heights and Keelworth that proved that it would be financially and educationally feasible to run our own schools. So now the score is 2-0. We keep paying the facts and they keep wagging the war.

This is the United States of America, a land of democracy, the government of the Soviet Union has been done away with, the Berlin Wall has fallen, and if need be the regional district should be dissolved. The branches of government and the people of this district should not have any fear. We are allowing a process of democracy to take place. The regional district will be held accountable and the possibility of change which could be educationally superior and financially efficient will be explored. Ultimately, what is best for our children and the taxpayers will take place.

To all the residents of the regional district, make sure you stay aware, listen and learn all that you can. I'm sure you will learn that dissolution is the way to provide a superior education in a financially efficient manner. Let us all work together to improve the educational system of the regional district without political prejudice. Let the children win this war. Follow your dream, those that care win.

Janet Glynn is president of the Committee of Concerned Parents of Keelworth.

NO

By Donald Merachnik
A true high school cost per pupil. But, because the regional district is a separate school district without its own elementary schools, it does not enjoy that advantage when reporting cost figures. The regional district reports costs per pupil while the other high schools report an average cost for all K-12 pupils. Obviously, the true costs for those high schools are much higher than what is being reported due to the formula being used.

If the regional district were to be fairly and equitably compared with every other high school being reported, the per-pupil cost in the regional high schools should be averaged with the per-student expenditure in the six elementary school districts which attend students to it. If this were reported, the kindergarten through 12th grade per-pupil cost figure would be just over $11,000, a number which is quite comparable to that being reported in our neighboring high schools which are part of K-12 school districts. Only by using this computational method could the regional district's cost per pupil be fairly and honestly compared.

Furthermore, because the New Jersey School Report Card's per-pupil cost figure includes expenditures but fails to report appropriate offsetting revenue, tuition that the regional district receives for accepting out-of-district special education students is not included. In the formula, this should be permitted in order to offset the costs incurred for educating these special education students from other districts. Without it, the formula used presents a false picture. If the formula used for the school report card included offsetting tuitions and averaging costs with the K-8 sending district, our per-pupil cost would be less than $10,000 in the Union County Regional High School District. This further indicates that the regional high school cost per pupil is in line with other area high schools.

While the school report card provides a great deal of useful information to parents and other residents of the regional district, the formula used to report per-pupil cost continues to be blatantly unfair and highly misleading. Comparisons between the Regional High School District and K-12 or K-8 districts, in the area of per-pupil expenditures, should not be made unless an equitable formula for determining such data is used for all districts being reported.

Donald Merachnik is the superintendent of the Union County Regional High School District.

Highlight Springfield sports

To the Editor:
Correct me if I am wrong, but isn't the name of this paper the Springfield Leader? Why is it that week after week there are articles galore about Roselle Park and Union and very little about Springfield? I am especially referring to the sports section of the Springfield Leader. In your staff not aware that Jonathan Dayton has a football team, boys and girls soccer teams, cross country, gymnastics and tennis teams? All these teams have been playing and competing since the first week of September without very little coverage from your newspaper. Springfield also has Minutemen football and several recreation soccer teams for the younger children also going on with very little coverage. I am sure Roselle Park and Union are very nice towns, with very nice people; however, I want to hear about our schools and its children, not Roselle Park and Union.

These boys and girls work very hard and long all year. Whether they are running 2 miles, cheering our teams, running for a touchdown, scoring goals, scoring match point, or doing a backhand spring, they all deserve to be recognized and given a little credit. Last week's article about Dayton's football team should be like that every week — win or lose. If you blinked you'd miss the articles on the boys and girls soccer teams. I might add the boys soccer record is 11-4 and they have a shot at going to the finals, but you'd never know it by your coverage.

I just think it's pretty sad that you have to write about other towns when there is enough going on right here in Springfield to fill whole sports pages. Just think, you might even sell a few more newspapers.

So, how about it, Springfield Leader. Give our kids and their coaches some recognition and appreciation for their efforts.

The people had their chance

To the Editor:
For almost two years, everyone has been talking about the in-fighting on the Springfield Township Committee. First, it was Kurmos against Pappas and Gata. Then it was Kurmos against past Mayor Marc Marshall. Then it was Kurmos against Marla Forman. By September, Kurmos had alienated at least three-fifths of the governing body when he finally decided to abandon his bid for re-election.

That was welcome news. The Township Committee could finally get down to business. The next thing I know, I'm bombarded with leaflets, campaign flyers and letters from a guy named Herb Slope. He's out to return "civility and respect" to the Township Committee. Civility and respect, my foot. Instead of telling us what he has to offer, he spends three months personally attacking Committee member Harry Pappas, whose term of office runs through all of 1994.

Slope gets elected. Now I ask you, how can Slope and Pappas possibly work together on the Township Committee next year?

I suppose there are some people who will consider this to be an improvement. In-fighting between two-fifths of the Township Committee is better than in-fighting among three-fifths, isn't it? I hope those same people enjoy reading about it in the newspapers and enjoy living in a town that's the butt of political jokes. I won't and I don't.

People had a chance to make a difference and didn't. What a shame. Joseph W. Stacey Jr.

Indebted to citizens in 21st District

To the Editor:
We are indebted to the citizens of the 21st District for the conscientious attention and interest they devoted to our legislative campaign for re-election.

No matter how much the pollsters and pundits claim they have the outcomes figured out in advance of Election Day, all of the forecasting becomes moot when individual citizens take matters into their own hands in the privacy of the voting booth. If the 1993 election is proof of anything, it's that voters continue to remain open-minded and aware of what the candidates are saying right up to the day of the election.

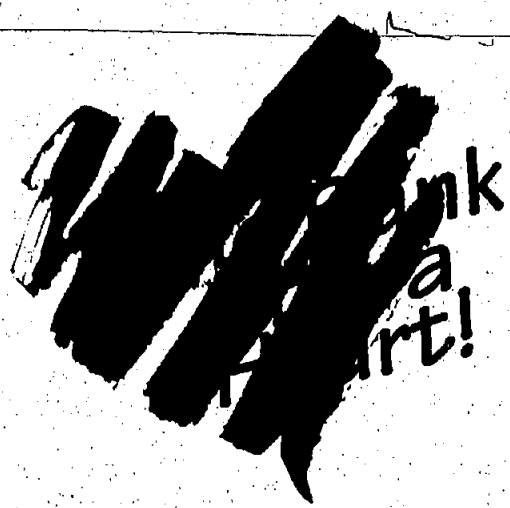

We thank those who supported us as well as all the voters who fulfilled their responsibility as citizens by casting their ballots on Election Day. We are committed to work for the benefit of all of the residents in our 13 towns during our term in office.

Local stores gave character to many neighborhoods

Times have certainly changed from the good old days of the 1920s and '30s. Many of the small "mom and pop" stores which used to line the streets of the business districts in many towns have disappeared forever, while others have moved into the popular malls of today. Gone is the once-familiar cigar store, which could be tucked into a small space between two larger stores. Its basic form offered for sale was tobacco, in its many forms. Cigars, cigarettes, smoking and chewing tobacco were available in a great variety of brands and flavors, as were pipes in assorted shapes and sizes. You could even buy the "makin'" for rolling your own cigarettes, if that was your preference.

In those days, almost all cigars came packed in a small wooden box which was covered with colorfully designed paper bearing the labels of the cigar and its maker. The cigars could be purchased by the box, or individually, and the latter method resulted in the storekeeper having a number of empty wooden boxes, which were the delight of young craftsmen as a source of thin wood which was very useful for making toys. In later years it was disappointing to find that the box-makers were now using thick cardboard to make their product, which was fine for cigars, but no good for toys.

Most cigar stores also sold newspapers, and many of them had a table or bench out in front of the store upon which the many daily and week-papers of the area were placed for sale. The price of the paper was usually 2 or 3 cents, and you could serve yourself. An empty cigar box containing a small amount of change was on the table in which to place your payment, and to make change, if necessary. On some newspapers a length of rope, weighted with a brick, was stretched across the papers to prevent the wind from blowing them away.

The Way It Was

This outdoor display of news and current events made it easy to keep up with the world in the days before television provided instant reports of earth-shattering news, for you could place at the headlines as you walked by, without actually buying a paper. At World Series time, the Elizabeth Daily Journal even stopped the pressmen in order to update the score of the game. This was done by having black squares set in the form, and as the wire services reported each new run, the pressmen were stopped long enough for a pressman to stamp a new score into one of the black squares. This resulted in a white number in a black square, and the rest of the paper's edition was up to date. This newspaper posted further details of events by hanging notices on its office windows.

We had no "open all night" stores in those days, like the big supermarkets of today. Most stores were closed by 6 o'clock, with perhaps only a delicatessen or a drugstore still open until 9. By the early 1930s some of the merchants formed associations in their towns and decided they would stay open until 9 one night each week for the convenience of their customers, and to stimulate sales. Elizabeth chose Thursday night, Newark picked Wednesday, and Roselle had a few stores which thought that Monday night was the night to remain open. Most of the banks in these towns also cooperated by being open at least until 8 p.m.

The life of the proprietor of a neighborhood food store was not a bed of roses. He had to be up early in the morning to meet the needs of early-morning customers who wanted fresh bread and rolls for breakfast and lunch. Sometimes the customers arrived before the baked goods were delivered, and that, of course, brought complaints about getting to work on time. If the store sold candy, a lot of the owner's time was spent waiting for his young customers to decide which variety of penny candy would be the best buy for his two or three cents, which he might have acquired by returning a deposit soda or milk bottle.

Many of the small stores also sold magazines, which were usually displayed from a rack fastened to a wall of the store. A very popular magazine was The Saturday Evening Post, which appeared each week, usually on Thursday, and sold for 5 cents. Its front cover was almost always a reproduction of a painting by a commercial artist, and Norman Rockwell was one of its most famous painters. His pictures frequently told a story, sometimes humorous, and sometimes serious, reflecting the events of the times. The Boy Scouts of America were one of his favorite subjects, and he painted more than 40 such covers.

The magazine rack also contained some of the popular "pulp magazines," so-called because they were printed on a cheap paper rather than the stock paper of the prestigious ones.

Their stories were turned out by writers paid for quantity instead of quality, but they were always interesting and easy reading. Several of those storied heroes grew up to become radio characters, such as "The Shadow," "Doc Savage," and "Dr. Fu Manchu."

Some magazines which are popular today were popular way back then, such as Popular Science and Popular Mechanics, which sold for a quarter and 15 cents, respectively, whose covers depicted marvels of engineering and foretold of the future, some of which has even come true.

Roselle resident William Frolich is a member of the Union County Historic Society and the president of the Roselle Centennial Committee.

Bias crimes lessen in county

A sergeant and three investigators make up his unit, which was created in the Summer of 1991 by Prosecutor Andrew Rusotolo.
Sergeant Jerry Rice, the head of the Mountside Detective Bureau, is in charge of handling hate crimes for the borough. "Bias crimes are defined as being motivated solely by a person's race, religion, ethnicity or sexual orientation," he said. "We haven't had any such incidents here in the five years I've been assigned to them."

The township of Springfield has not been so lucky. "We average 15 to 20 reports of bias crime a year," said Detective Judd Levenson. "After investigating each report, we usually find that about half involve actual bias. Of the nine reported incidents so far this year, we found two actual bias cases."

He explained a common source of unfounded reports. "If two motorists are involved in a fender-bender they may begin arguing," he said. "If they are of different ethnicities, they may begin to call each other racist names. This would not be considered a hate crime because the name-calling was not caused by bias."

Rothbart said that county prosecutors work with each police liaison on a regular basis, as requested. "Proactive programs are the most effective," he said.

Rice said that the penalties for bias attacks are more severe than those for regular incidents. Simple assault and harassment, for instance, are normally considered disorderly persons offenses and are handled in Municipal Court.

When motivated by bias, a separate charge is added making it an indictable fourth degree crime that would be heard in Superior Court.
Rusotolo just successfully tried a bias case to a verdict in February. It was the first in the state. "My office takes a very firm stance against such incidents," he said.

The case involved a Port Reading man who was found guilty by a jury of harassing black school children as they went to school. He received three years of probation and was ordered to write essays about prominent African-Americans as part of his sentence.

"Carving out community service programs for some of these offenders is difficult because they are reprehensible by their very nature," Rusotolo said. "People don't want them around."

Detective Levenson said that no one has ever been charged with committing a bias crime in Springfield. "They are all anonymous acts like painting swastikas on buildings or sending someone an unsigned letter with racial slurs in it," he said. "Perpetrators can be difficult to find, but we thoroughly investigate any report of hate crime."

Mass said that about 60 percent of those arrested for bias attacks are youths. "Why is the next generation of Americans turning out to be bigots?" he asked. "But it's too simple to dismiss this as a juvenile problem, because adults perpetrate these things as well."

Rothbart said that it's a social problem more than a law enforcement problem. "We don't shirk from our responsibility," Rothbart said. "But it's an issue for the schools, the home and the religion. We don't want to have to be the primary agency to address it."

Mass said that education is the long-term answer for prejudice. "Studies show that the more education people receive, the less bigoted they become," he said. "They come into contact with others in the classroom. Teachers need to be trained in how to deal with the problem."

Union County was the first district in the county to formulate an anti-bias curriculum between law enforcement and school officials, Rusotolo said. "The project was begun in Elizabeth in May," he said. "It's become a national model. 'Schools, superintendents and police chiefs are involved. The program allows law enforcement personnel to enter a school to calm racial tensions, even if there was no actual crime committed.'"

Mass said that, in the short term, there has to be severe punishment meted out to bigoted offenders. "The state has some of the toughest bias crime laws in the books," he said.

Rusotolo said that gangs are much less prominent in the area as compared to other parts of the state. "We have a gang initiative to combat small pockets of individuals whose common thread is collective hate," he said. "The demographics of our people won't allow for this. We have big hearts."

No such gangs are known to exist in either Springfield or Mountside. "We set up a memorial in town each holiday season," Levenson said. "It was knocked over in 1991 and in 1992. There was a condemnation of the act by many religious groups and civic groups offered rewards to find who was responsible. I don't see bias crime as being a problem here because the community wants to fight it."

Controversy continues over deer herd

By Heather MacGregor
Managing Editor
Controversy over how to control the overpopulation of the deer herd in the Watchung Reservation continues as parties express their viewpoints on recently aired Local Issues Live on Suburban Cable.

Dan Bernier, bureau chief of Union County Parks and Recreation, said he has been aware of the problem for six or seven years. The only viable solution he said he has found is a deer hunt in the reservation, as he indicated in his report filed with the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders on Sept. 2.

The Division of Parks and Recreation has received an increased number of phone calls in the past year and noticed a diminishing supply of food for the deer and other wildlife in the reservation, he said. The division has received 145 complaints within the last 13 months in response to the deer population, Bernier said. The deer have also been the cause of 255 automobile accidents in the area, he said.
Freeholder Frank Lehr said the board is trying to explore all options before making a decision, but they are concerned with the amount of devastation occurring in the park and surrounding areas because of the herd. The freeholders acknowledged the problem, but they haven't determined how to solve it yet, Lehr said.

If there were to be a hunt it would be supervised by the Fish, Game and Wildlife Commission because they are the experts, he said. And "there would be a number of safeguards in place if we go that route," Lehr said.

Ben Cimino, New Jersey Animal Rights Alliance, said he agrees there is an overpopulation of deer in New Jersey, but under no circumstances does he support a hunt.
"We are against a hunt. We are against killing of any kind. We are a non-violent organization. We are looking into alternatives to the hunt," Cimino said.

A hunt would not solve the problem but only perpetuate it, he said, because the deer will reproduce more heavily with an additional food supply.
He also challenged Bernier that some of the complaints that he has listed are solicited and are not accurate representation because a majority of them are from people against a hunt.

A blue ribbon panel should be formed that will represent all opinions to research the alternatives to a hunt, he said.
Bernier quickly responded against such a committee.
"That type of a project is sometimes used as a stall tactic to put off hunting until other arguments can be better developed," he said, adding that the reservation cannot afford any additional time.

Paul Kiehl, resident of Mountain-View, said he is against a hunt in the reservation. He said he fears the residential area would not be safe for such an endeavor and that it has not been thoroughly investigated.

The possibility and availability of birth control for the deer was also discussed. Bernier said Fish and Game will not permit the use of birth control in the state because it has not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

Cimino said New Jersey is the only state that has such requirements and cited examples of where the drug is being used including nearby Fire Island.

St. Barnabas, Union Hospital pact up to FTC

The parent companies of St. Barnabas Medical Center and Union Hospital have reached an agreement which will enable Mega Source Inc., Union's parent company to join the St. Barnabas Health Care System.

The agreement stipulates that 200-bed Union Hospital and its affiliates, which include four nursing homes with a total of 660 beds, will affiliate with 620-bed St. Barnabas Medical Center and its affiliates, while allowing both hospitals to remain separate entities.

"The affiliation will strengthen this entire healthcare system and each of the individual institutions," said Ronald J. Del Mauro, chairman and chief executive officer of St. Barnabas Medical Center in Livingston. "We are excited about this alliance, which will further the mission and goals of St. Barnabas and help us with Union Hospital continue to build one of the strongest and dynamic healthcare systems in the state of New Jersey.

"Union Hospital's position as a responsive and innovative community teaching hospital is reinforced and intensified by this partnership," said Victor J. Presolone, president and chief executive officer of Union Hospital and its affiliates. "This alliance creates a comprehensive healthcare network in Union and Essex counties, one that offers our patients a complete range of services, from birth to long-term care."

It is expected that St. Barnabas' strength and scope of services will complement the programs and services of Union Hospital and its successors, with more than 35 integrated care companies, will enhance Union Hospital as a viable health care provider, it stated in a press release from St. Barnabas Medical Center.

Union Hospital and its affiliates bring to the St. Barnabas Health Care System has more than 4,000 employees.

Among its nationally recognized programs are The Burn Center, the only certified burn facility in New Jersey, the Renal Dialysis and Transplant Service, the Pediatric Service, the Regional Craniofacial Center, the Radiation Oncology Program, the Pathology Service, and the Joslin Center for Diabetes, affiliated with the world renowned center in Boston. The Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology delivers approximately 6,000 babies annually and is one of the five largest regional gynecologic oncology centers in the northeast.

Union Hospital, founded in 1944, is a teaching affiliate of UMDNJ School of Osteopathic Medicine. More than 55,000 patients are treated each year by more than 300 physicians and 850 employees. The hospital has 31 residents in eight approved residency programs.

Leonard Jeffries, a professor at City College of New York, speaks during a three-day, student-sponsored national conference at Kean College of New Jersey. Jeffries, who spoke on Nov. 12, had become the target of controversy between members of the black and Jewish communities last year when Jews probed the professor, who has been accused of making anti-Semitic statements. Unlike last year, there were no protests during Jeffries' attendance last week.

Model railroad show planned for upcoming holiday season

The Model Railroad Club Inc. will host its annual holiday show for three weekends after Thanksgiving.

The public is invited to enjoy a sound and light tour of the club's 1,400 square foot layout. The presentation takes attendees on a journey from Pittsburgh to Hoboken. While traveling through familiar towns, fast passenger and lumbering freight trains wind their way through the hills and valleys of the railroad.

One of the featured trains consists of more than 100 coal cars. The layout is 98 percent complete and new scenic features have been added since last year.

The club, founded in 1949, is an activity of the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation. The club occupies a building in Leaslip Park. The building, which was constructed by club members 20 years ago and donated to the park system, is in the process of being expanded at no cost to the taxpayers.

The show dates are Nov. 26-28, Dec. 3-5, and 10-12. Hours are 7 to 10 p.m. Fridays, noon to 9 p.m. Saturdays, and noon to 6 p.m. Sundays. The club is located at the end of Jefferson Avenue off Route 22 East in Union.

Admission is $4 for adults and $1.50 for children 12 years and under. For more information, call 964-9724 or 964-8808. For group rates, call (201) 373-2162.

DISTINGUISHED

"Our strength as a faculty lies not in what we demand from our students but in what we demand of ourselves."

Teresa San Pedro, Ph.D., Upper School Faculty

Sixty-five percent of our faculty hold Master's degrees and 10 percent are Ph.D.'s. And we encourage all our teachers to develop and grow professionally.

Recently, two faculty members received awards from the National Endowment of the Arts to pursue advanced study in their fields and two teachers presented scholarly papers at a major international literature conference.

The result? Teachers make a long term commitment here. In fact, 40 percent have invested more than 10 years of service.

A distinguished and committed faculty is only one element of a World Class Education. The rest is spelled out in our informative 16 page brochure. For your free copy call: Fred McGaughan, Director of Admission, 201/992-7000.

Franks takes pro-NAFTA stance, citing benefits to district

By Chris Gatto
Staff Writer

Rep. Robert Franks, R-7, cited the potential of businesses in his district to benefit from diminished trade restrictions on exports as his reasoning for supporting the North American Free Trade Agreement.

While Franks was expected to vote in favor of the controversial NAFTA plan when it came to a vote in Congress yesterday, pros and cons were both predicting that their side would be victorious.

The vote's outcome could not be reported due to deadline constraints of this newspaper.

During a Nov. 11 press conference held at Red Devil Inc. on Morris Avenue in Union, Franks was joined by a host of small and large businesses operating in his district who support NAFTA.

In announcing his decision, Franks indicated that he had listened to the arguments on both sides of the NAFTA issue, but concluded that the United States must take action if it is to compete in today's economy.

"If we do nothing, our industrial base will continue to erode while more and more jobs disappear," said Franks. "Beyond NAFTA, Congress has the obligation to develop a comprehensive plan of action to establish our own ailing manufacturing sector and to stop the hemorrhaging loss of manufacturing jobs."

NAFTA would ease trade restrictions, such as tariffs, which are currently utilized on goods crossing over Mexican and U.S. borders. NAFTA opponents have argued that thousands of jobs will be lost because manufacturing companies now in the U.S. will flee to Mexico in search of cheap labor and multinational corporations will move operations south of the U.S. to take advantage of relaxed trade restrictions.

But, Franks sees a "huge market" for U.S. companies south of the border, and argues that America's ability to sell goods in Mexico will "never be fully realized" as long as high tariffs are placed on exports to Mexico.

NAFTA has the support of President Bill Clinton, but a bitter battle is being waged which features bipartisan support for and against the measure. Franks noted that he was "tilly" about how the vote would go.

"By forcing Mexico to lower its tariffs, NAFTA will actually reduce the price of U.S. products to Mexican consumers," said Franks. "Under NAFTA, half of all U.S.-made goods exported to Mexico, including such composite products as computers, machine tools and medical devices, would be tariff-free starting in January 1994."

The congressman noted that critics say "Mexicans are too poor to purchase American-made consumer goods. But three weeks ago, I stood in the toy department at a brand new Wal-Mart store in Mexico City," said Franks. "As the store manager told me that this particular store had broken all records for sales in its first week of operation, I watched as hundreds of middle class Mexicans walked away with Fisher-Price toys and Scott baby wipes for their children."

He said that Mexican workers' wages are "on the rise" and that added income will allow them to purchase American goods. Wages for Mexican workers in the manufacturing sector have grown by 27 percent in the past five years, Franks said.

Fifty-two companies from around the state which currently export goods to Mexico joined Franks at the mid-morning press conference. Of those present, Franks noted that the companies represented both small and large businesses.

"In order to learn for myself whether workers would be helped by NAFTA, I undertook a systematic effort to contact businesses, not just large companies, but particularly the small and medium-sized firms which employ 80 percent of our workers and have created nearly all the new jobs over the last 10 years," said Franks.

Those present at the press conference were a sample of Franks' research. Attendees included the Union-based companies of Alan Aluminum, Electroanalytic Inc., Hillside Spinning & Stamping Company, and Lora Machinery.

"They represent what NAFTA is all about," said Franks. "It's about tapping into new markets for American products so we can build a more secure and prosperous future for American workers."

"It's about our best here today. Red Devil, a family-owned business employing 250 workers whose paint tools and casting products have become a household name in the United States," Franks noted. "Now they want to do the same in Mexico."

Don MacPherson, chief executive officer of Red Devil, offered his remarks during the session. "We are extremely enthusiastic about building our trade in Mexico and we have many retailers and distributors coming on board in anticipation of NAFTA," he said.

This year alone, said Franks, U.S. exports to Mexico will total about $45 billion and a "vast majority" of these exports stay in Mexico.

Environmental groups during his presentation, calling the plan "the most environmentally friendly trade agreement ever negotiated." Mexico is becoming committed to a "cleaner" environment, said Franks, and U.S. businesses are waiting to tap into that market.

The congressman also cited the effect NAFTA may have on reducing the number of illegal aliens entering the U.S. The number has the potential to be reduced, he said, because new business opportunities should be created within Mexico's own borders with NAFTA.

NAFTA, even if it is enacted, would include a provision allowing each country the opportunity to withdraw from the pact by giving six months notice. This would require a congressional vote.

Franks ran off a list of endorsements that NAFTA has received from

Rep. Robert Franks, R-7, center, and Don MacPherson, chief executive officer at Red Devil Inc., shake hands as a show of their support for the North American Free Trade Agreement. They are joined by Jane Lape, one of the owners of Red Devil.

Allegations that Senator Raymond Lesniak's campaign accepted a large in-kind donation from the state Democratic election fund surfaced this week, days after the senator confirmed that he will not re-seek his post as party head. But an explanation was quickly given by a state Democratic spokesman as to the donation.

Highlanders capture championship

By coming through with its best effort of the 1993 marching season, the Highlander Band earned First Place honors in Group II at the Tournament of Bands Atlantic Coast Championships, held Sunday at Lackawanna Stadium in Scranton, Pa. Governor Livingston Band moved up to Group II at the start of this season, based on a larger number of musicians in the marching unit. The Highlanders knew that they would be faced with the challenge of defeating perennial powerhouse Lake Lehman at the Atlantic Coast Championships. The G.L. Band obviously proved that it could meet that challenge.

"We have a very, very young band this season, and as recently as five weeks ago, I was concerned whether or not we would even be competitive at the Atlantic Coast Championships," explained Highlander Band Director Daniel Kopych, whose charges also earned Best Visual.

The Governor Livingston Regional High School Highlander Band performed recently captured the Group II title at both the Atlantic Coast Championships and the Cadets Marching Band Cooperative Competition.

Effect honors at the ACC. "When you consider where these kids were early in the season, and then watch a tape of their performance on Sunday, it's amazing. Their growth has been absolutely phenomenal."

Just about 15 hours before taking the field in Scranton on Sunday afternoon, the Governor Livingston Band has posted another impressive triumph by earning First Place honors in Group II at the Cadets Marching Band Cooperative Championships at Giants Stadium, East Rutherford. With their performance last Saturday night, the Highlanders defeated the defending Group II champion Brick Memorial, 89.95 to 89.55. The Highlanders also won special awards for Best Color Guard, Best Music and Best Marching at the Giants Stadium event. Governor Livingston had won the Group I competition at the Cadets show in each of the past four seasons.

Roselle Park home for the playoffs

Top-seeded Panthers host Mountain Lakes Saturday

By J.R. Parachini
Sports Editor

ROSELLE PARK — Question Who was the last team Roselle Park lost to?

Answer: Mountain Lakes.

Question: Who is Roselle Park playing this Saturday in the state playoffs?

Answer: Mountain Lakes.

It's been two years since the Roselle Park High School football team lost a game. This weekend the Panthers get an opportunity to avenge their most recent loss.

Top-seeded and defending champion Roselle Park, 8-0 and winners of 19 straight, host fourth-seeded Mountain Lakes Saturday at 1 p.m. in the North Jersey, Section 2, Group I semifinals. The other semifinal pits third-seeded Cedar Grove (8-0) at second-seeded New Providence (7-1).

Roselle Park clinched the top seed after beating Governor Livingston 29-0 at home last Friday night, its sixth shutout of the season.

Roselle Park lost at Mountain Lakes 24-27 in the sectional semifinals two years ago.

Last year the Panthers, seeded fourth, won at Cedar Grove 30-29 in the semifinals and at Butler 27-6 in the final to win their second sectional championship. This year Roselle Park is home for the playoffs.

On a roll

Roselle Park has shown no signs of slowing down and is coming off a 27-0 win over Glen Ridge last month.

Olinewelder booted a 27-yard field goal with six seconds remaining to give Mountain Lakes a come-from-behind 26-24 win over Glen Ridge last month.

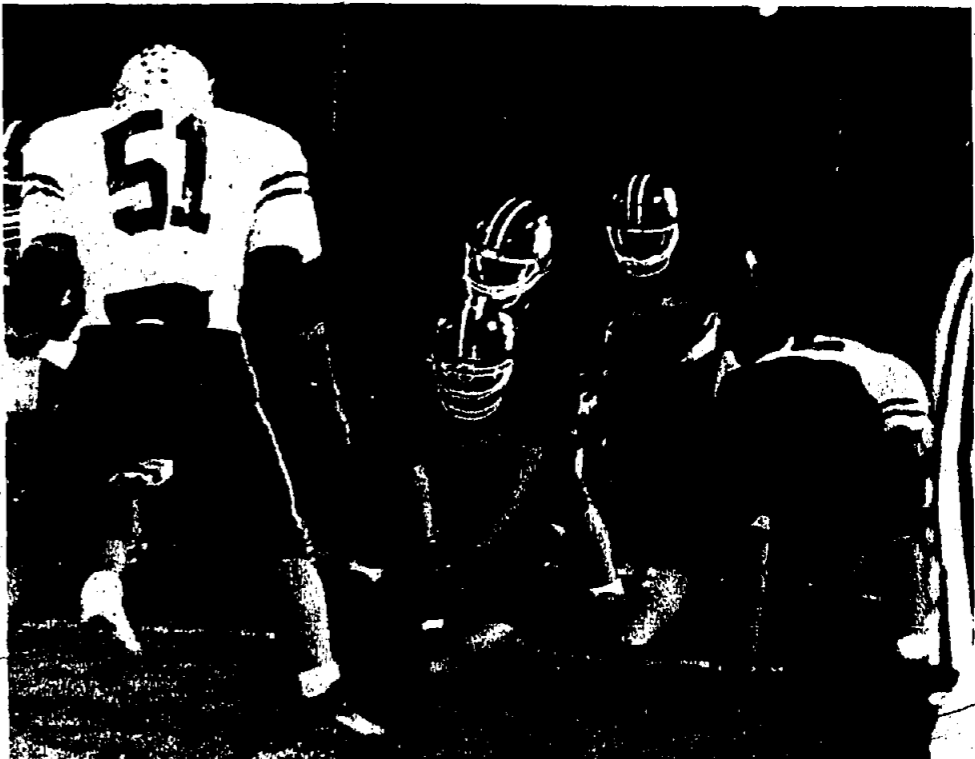

Greg Flor runs the offense as quarterback, with Barrett and running back Kevin O'Brien in the backfield. Receivers include Jeff Reed and Chris Vothberg.

Record in reach

Roselle Park has outscored the opposition 331-27. The school record for touchdowns is 58, set last year. Roselle Park has scored 85 points in the first quarter, 103 in the second, 91 in the third and 42 in the fourth.

The Panthers, who went 22 quarters without giving up a point during back last year, have given up seven in the first quarter, zero in the second, 13 in the third and seven in the fourth. This year's starting defense has given up only two touchdowns. Maxwellville's third-quarter score that came on a 43-yard quarterback sneak by Mark Pearson and New Providence's third-quarter score that came on a 37-yard run by Scott Driscoll. The special teams gave up one touchdown and the reserves one against Maxwellville.

Defensive standouts include Barra at nose guard, Fowler at end, Hennessey at middle linebacker, sophomore Bob Harris at outside linebacker and senior Jeff Frey at inside. Fowler had two solo sacks against Governor Livingston.

Roselle Park bidding for 3rd section championship

By J.R. Parachini
Sports Editor

Roselle Park is making its third straight appearance in the North Jersey, Section 2, Group I playoffs and seventh overall (not counting 1979). Roselle Park has won two sectional titles (1979 and 1992) and has appeared in four championship games (1980, 1985, 1986, 1992). Its playoff record is 4-5.

Below is a look at how Roselle Park has fared in post-season play:

1979: Roselle Park wins the sectional championship with an 8-0 record at the cutoff date. The Panthers were the only team to earn a playoff berth because no one else in the section had at least six wins, which was needed back then. Roselle Park beat Roselle on Thanksgiving to finish 9-0.

1980: Roselle Park was an assistant coach that year for Roselle Park under head coach Geoff Hill.

Mill reading set Monday

A staged reading of "The Red Badge of Courage," a new adaptation of the classic novel by Stephen Crane, will be presented on the main stage of the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, Monday and at the John Harms Center for the Arts, Englewood, Tuesday, both at 8 p.m.

Leland Ball, artistic director of the Sacramento Light Opera Association, wrote the stage adaptation and will direct this project, which is being co-produced by the Paper Mill and the John Harms Center for the Arts.

"The Red Badge of Courage" is a play about a young soldier who comes of age during America's Civil War. It features a large cast of singers and dancers, but it is not a musical in the traditional sense, it was reported. Instead of an original score, the play incorporates 14 authentic songs from the Civil War period, some of which are well known, such as "John Henry Comes Marching Home," and "Rally Round the Flag, Boys." The other songs are less known but heighten the emotional power of the novel.

As this is a staged reading, the actors will work with scripts in hand, and there are no sets. The audience is invited to offer suggestions and ask questions. The project after the performance, it was announced.

Admission is free and reservations are not required. For more information, one can call the business office at (201) 379-3636, ext. 0 or at the Paper Mill Playhouse at (201) 567-3600 at the John Harms Center.

Great American Smokeout

Stop Smoking and Improve Your Smile

If you're looking for one more reason to "kick the habit," well here it is! Quitting smoking will improve your health and make your smile much brighter and healthier. Many oral conditions are related to smoking and nicotine dependency. Such diseases include periodontitis (gum disease), gingivitis (trench mouth), even oral cancer.

Smoking can also interfere with the successful outcome of soft tissue management, dental implant, cosmetic dentistry and may prolong or hinder post surgical healing.

When you stop smoking, the condition of your gums can improve. The staining and bad breath associated with smoking will disappear and you'll have a fresher, cleaner smile.

Smoking can also affect your taste buds and change the taste of foods you enjoy. All these things are all good reasons to consider smoking cessation. Not only will you feel better but you'll look better too!

If you're willing to try to quit, help is out there. It's as close as your dentist and his staff. They should have programs to give the needed assistance such as prescribing nicotine patch program. They could review all possibilities with you and come up with an easy-to-follow program. They're there to help you.

If you have any questions you should feel free to call your dentist or you can always contact Dr. Cicchetti at (908) 245-9463. He is located at 18 E. Westfield Avenue in Roselle Park.

Good Luck and good wishes up your mind to start today!
