OFFICIALS PROBE AUTO ACCIDENT OF 15-YEAR-OLD-BOY

Await Recovery of Westfield
Youth With Broken Skull
And Internal Injuries

WAS FOUND ALONE IN BATTERED CAR

Police are investigating an automobile accident late Saturday night, after which a fifteen-year-old boy was found unconscious, lying in a seat of a roadster, against a tree off Mountain avenue, about 800 feet north of Dunbar lane, suffering from a broken shoulder, skull fracture, internal injuries and bruises about the body.

A passing motorist, George J. Eng, 462 Orange street, Newark, saw the headlights of the car pointing upward and notified the police. Patrolmen Harold D. Seales and Wilbur C. Selander were sent to the scene of the accident and on their arrival, found the lights out and the ignition key turned off. They found a Y. M. C. A. card on the person of the youth, and he was identified as John Middleton, 833 Maye street, Westfield.

His parents were notified and they told police that the boy did not have a car nor a driver's license, and could not drive. Later, the car was found to be owned by I. Spencer Gale, 340 West Dunsley street, Westfield. According to Gale, his son, Spencer K. Gale, had the car that night and was attending a party in Summit with young Middleton.

The cop told police that he and Middleton left the party and went to the Three Robins roadhouse on Mountain avenue, this township, where he loaned Middleton the car to go back to Summit and take two girls home from the party there. He also admitted that Middleton used the car on several occasions before.

Further questioning of the girls revealed that Middleton did not arrive in Summit. It was impossible for the police to determine in which direction the car was going, but evidence showed that the car turned over three times before it came to a halt against the tree. It was badly damaged. The youth had not been drinking.

He was taken to Overlook Hospital, in Summit, and regained consciousness Wednesday afternoon. When he has recovered to some extent, the police will question him.

Who's Who

GABRIEL LARSEN

WIDE EXPERIENCE IS MR. LARSEN'S

Benefiting by a wide experience in the ways of human nature gained by travel, study, and supervision of many employees as a business executive, Township Committeeman Gabriel Larsen has utilized his knowledge for the benefit of Springfield.

Mr. Larsen's one outstanding achievement, as most residents know, is the culmination of the sanitary sewer project as part of the Railway Valley Joint Meeting. Incidentally, Mr. Larsen is secretary of the Meeting.

Work on the sewer which commenced last June with a municipal celebration is progressing favorably and is expected to be completed next year. Connections with the main trunk cannot be made, however, until sometime in 1931.

The future of Springfield is tinged with a roseate hue, according to Mr. Larsen who bases his optimism on such material portents as the sanitary sewer, state highway, contemplated paving program and a storm sewer. The last-named improvement will be slow in coming, but its installation is inevitable.

Mr. Larsen has a record of personal achievements to be proud of. He has resided here for eight years and served on the Township Committee for four years.

As general superintendent of the manufacturing division of the J. E. Watreman Company, Newark, Mr. Larsen has 1,700 employees under him.

When the Springfield Lions Club was organized in 1925, Mr. Larsen was secretary of the organization. Although not active in the club at present, he is an honorary member. The committeeman was secretary of the

FRANK C. GEIGER

LEWIS T. MACARTNEY

JEAKENS LOSES AFTER TWELVE YEARS SERVICE

Geiger and Macartney, G.O.P.
Standard Bearer Elected
By Large Majorities

ALL REPUBLICANS ARE WINNERS HERE

David S. Jenkins, Democrat, member of the township committee for twelve years and chairman of that body for seven years, was defeated by a Republican in the general election held Tuesday, and as a result the Township Committee will be solid Republican.

Frank C. Geiger, former member of the Board of Education, and Lewis T. Macartney, president of the Springfield Republican Club, were elected as the new members of the committee for three-year terms, with the respective totals of 503 and 423. Both candidates carried the two districts. Geiger polled 373 votes in the first district, his own section, and got 230 in the second district. In the second district Macartney netted 206 votes and 217 in the first.

Jenkins got 115 votes in the first district and 166 in the second. Howard L. Potter, the other Democratic candidate, polled 372 votes, getting 175 in the first district and 197 in the second, running close to Macartney in this district.

Robert D. Treat, Republican, township clerk, seeking reelection, was unopposed and headed the ticket, getting 657 votes.

In the race for the shrievalty, Frank R. Emmons, Republican, overwhelmed his rival, James Ward, Democrat, 614 to 149.

George L. Orlan, Republican, candidate for coroner, and Herbert C. Josephson, also a Republican, were elected.

The Democratic candidate, J. Austin Meekins, got 114.

In the race for the State Senate, Arthur Pierson, Republican, defeated his rival, Hugh T. Treacy, Democrat, 625 to 139.

All the Republican nominees for the Assembly won by a large majority over their Democratic rivals.

It is considered possible that Gabriel Larsen, the oldest member of the township committee in point of service, will be selected to become the chairman.

W. C. T. U. BRANCH

MEETS, MAKES PLANS

The Springfield W. C. T. U. met Monday afternoon in the lecture room of the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Charles Huff, chairman of the committee on health and narcotics, conducted the health department. An open forum was held.

Instead of visiting Bonnie Burt Sanatorium in Scotch Plains this year, the local union will make a contribution to the Orphans Home in Westfield.

November 13 or 22 will be the date of the annual county luncheon to be held in the Elizabeth Carter Hotel.

Mrs. Edwin D. Pannell, president of the local Union presented the following " gleanings " from the recent State convention.

Five United States Embassies are dry—Norway, Denmark, Germany, England and France.

The W. C. T. U. is not an organ of hate, but one of love. We must hate the sin, but not the sinner.

The object of the W. C. T. U. is a world where every man's an engine, where no man should drink.

In 1913, the Anti-Saloon League took for its slogan, "On to Washington for National Constitutional Prohibition." A prohibition amendment had been introduced in Congress at intervals since 1876, but in 1914, it received a majority vote in the House. In 1916, twenty-three states had adopted a prohibition amendment and January 16, 1919, the 18th Amendment, "forbidding the sale, manufacture or transporting of any alcoholic beverage be prohibited," was ratified and it went into effect on that date.

War prohibition went into effect July 1, 1919, and continued on through till January 16, when it became a part of the fundamental law of the land.

The law has not failed, but certain politicians and leaders to our government have failed in oath of loyalty to their office. It is not the law, but the men who have failed and we must correct this at the elections.

No longer do we sing, "Father, leave father, come home, but, Mother, dear mother, come down to the polls."

Only those masculine members with a mentality of a four year old talk of interference with their personal liberty; women never had any liberty, but when father's personal liberty meant personal slavery for mothers and their children, the Eighteenth Amendment came as a savior.

The United States of America has raised this legal sign against the saloon: "No Parking Here."

An appeal to the chivalry of men to totally abstain for the sake of misery that will be lifted from mankind by a totally abstaining action is being made.

You cannot dream yourself into a character; you must hammer, and forge yourself into one.

Let us make our town an ideal town for our children to live in, for law observance is the beginning of law enforcement.

LIONS HEAR TALK

ON STOCK MARKET

Today's Address Will Be By Local Insurance Official

Before a dozen members and two visitors last Friday afternoon, Edward Parmele, of New York City, gave a short talk on the "Stock Market Crash" in New York at the meeting of the Lions Club in the Villegiant Inn. Appearing as the guest of Louis J. Wagon, Mr. Parmele was not scheduled to speak, since this meeting was meant solely for business transactions, but business was cast aside until Mr. Parmele had made his speech.

President Charles H. Huff conducted the meeting. The visitors were Westfield Lion T. J. Griffin and honorary member Peter H. Meisel.

A suggestion that a sign be built outside the Villegiant Inn, similar to the one in Union, was discussed and a committee appointed to see that a sign be erected.

President Huff will appoint a committee of two at the meeting today to attend the conference to be held in Newark in the near future to discuss the State-wide safety campaign.

Dr. Watson B. Morris and Mr. Meisel spoke on the traffic situation.

Gordon Christensen, a new member, was welcomed into the club, and John Warta, who has not been able to attend the meetings for the past few weeks, was given a warm reception.

A committee arranging for speakers has secured as the guest this afternoon Alfred G. Trindle, of Perry Place. Mr. Trindle, who is chief underwriter in the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company, of Newark, will speak on the "New Financial Responsibility Law."

METHODIST FAIR WELL ATTENDED

Many persons attended the annual fair and supper last Friday afternoon and evening, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society, in the lecture room of the Methodist Church.

One hundred and ten suppers were served in the tea room, which is a higher number than those served at the fair held last year. Mrs. Howard Day was general chairman. Mrs. George Phillips was in charge of the tea room and Mrs. Robert D. Treat was chairman of the ice cream cone booth, which was decorated with a huge ice cream cone.

Mrs. Nettie Scott was in charge of the children's corner, and Mrs. Harold D. Searles headed the committee which decorated the hall in black and white, making an attractive scene.

Other chairmen of committees were Mrs. A. Lonox Crane, fancy table; Mrs. Fred A. Brown, apron table; Mrs. Nicholas Sherry, candy; Mrs. Arthur F. Kenall, in charge of the tables, and Mrs. Manning Day, Jr., in charge of publicity. Mrs. Edna Smith and Mrs. Alexander Gross were hostesses.

PICTURE BENEFIT NETS LARGE SUM

More than $90 was taken in at the movie-benefit given in the Millburn Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, under the auspices of the Springfield Millburn branch of the International Sunshine Society. The picture shown was Pauline Frederick in "Evidence."

The society will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry E. Hooley, 246 Ridgewood Road, South Orange.

Plans will be made for the annual contribution of the society to the Arthur Home at Summit, which has been changed to Arthur, Sunshine and Kindergarten for Blind Babies.

Springfield is situated only 55 minutes on the Lackawanna R. R. from New York and has good bus connections to Newark, Elizabeth and Summit. The Lackawanna railroad stations at Millburn and Short Hills are only one mile from Springfield Center. The Rahway Valley R. R. has a freight station in Springfield giving services for factories and commercial and industrial purposes generally.

Two building and loan associations, one bank, and two schools as well as excellent fire and police protection are afforded.

MUNICIPAL CONSCIOUSNESS

A municipality has its greatest opportunity for advancement when it possesses a municipal consciousness. This word "consciousness" is a favorite theme of philosophers and psychologists. It can be diverted to stand for all sorts of intricate and abstract patterns. It has, nevertheless, a plain and common sense meaning, which is understandable to all.

The community with a civic consciousness is one whose citizens conceive themselves as part of the community, who do not lead detached, individualistic lives; who attend to their own affairs, safeguard their own needs, but likewise think of themselves in relation to their neighbors and fellow-citizens, and in identity with the entire community of which they form part.

Municipal consciousness is an essential ingredient of municipal progress. It involves ability to cooperate, to give and to take, to make surrenders for the common good, to be more concerned in how a thing can be accomplished than in how it can be picked to pieces.

Civic consciousness implies a readiness to put one's shoulder to the public wheel, to join in the general work and to get more enjoyment out of such participation than in standing on the sidelines to make remarks and to fling darts while the procession goes by.

This does not mean, of course, that every proposal and every undertaking must be accepted at once on its face without question, for where there is no questioning, there is no liberty. But true civic consciousness implies that criticism shall be for the purpose of detecting weak parts so that the structure may be strengthened, and is offered without bitterness or animus for the public good and not for the embarrassment of individuals.

Municipal consciousness is the greatest asset a municipality can have. Its absence is the chief weakness of a town and furnishes the chief barrier to development.

The difficult impediments which public work needs to overcome are not those imposed by nature, but those created by citizens lacking in this precious substance of civic consciousness.

Engineering intelligence, the indomitable energy and will of mankind has always been more than a match for the problems furnished by nature itself. But the troubles that arise through cooperation, through passions and jealousies, through unwillingness to get along, through prejudice and rigid adherence to set opinions, these are the evil breed of lack of municipal consciousness, and these are the main stumbling blocks in a town's advancement.

We have been properly taking pride in our increase of population and growing facilities. We can, here in Springfield, without expenditure, without appropriations and without bond issues, conceive and create a force that can always be relied on to be vitally effective for Springfield's good, and that if the maintenance of a lofty standard of municipal consciousness among our citizens.

Rambling Around Springfield

A news item, Newark Man Wishes to be Known as Smallest Soldier in the A. E. F., recently appeared in nearby newspapers. Immediately, several applicants rose in protest, demanding that they be recognized as the smallest soldier serving in the World War. The contest is hot and the decision will be close. However, a similar contest could be conducted here to decide who is the smallest member of the Springfield Police Department. It would narrow down to two parties, namely, Nelson Stiles and Wilbur C. Selander. The SUN, acting as judge, selects Selander by the closest of margins, but he makes up for his petite stature by use of his wits and brawny strength—as was shown several months ago, when he brought to justice a giant Negro, who was harassing motorists in Short Hills avenue. The other contestant, Stiles, has also shown his ability, for was it not he who captured an escaped lunatic on Mountain avenue, three weeks ago?

The members of the police force may be small in stature, but many persons in Springfield, enjoying a greater advantage in weight and size, would not risk engaging in combat with them.

It has surprised many local residents to see Morris accept, between the bank and the post office, paved so quickly. Credit is due officials working on the sewer construction for hastening the work there.

It may seem strange, or should we say a coincidence, that thus far, ever day the SUN was published, the sun was out in full glory. This is the seventh edition printed, and even though it may rain today and shut out the rays of the sun, nevertheless the SUN will still be out—figure that out.

We hear discussion about the weaker sex, but next week the girls' hockey team of the James Caldwell School will meet the fair warriors of the Millburn Junior High School at Millburn. The week after that the Millburn lassies will play here at the Elermer baseball diamond. Of course, times have changed since grandpa was a boy—nowadays, we hear of "golf widows," instead of "golf widows."

The name "Springfield Heights" has been mentioned several times in our columns, and to date, about a dozen correspondents have sent requests as to the location of Springfield Heights. Frank Carter of the southern section of Springfield has developed since May of last year, over 103 acres of land, extending from Hillside avenue to Seymore place, bordered by Mountain avenue and nearly as far as the boundary line at Mountside. Twenty-three homes, built by Mr. Carter, have been occupied and construction is being done on ten more.

Many local residents will hear the "call of the wild" Monday when hunting season officially opens. The game-seekers of this section will have ample time to bag a couple of turkeys and plenty of rabbits.

AS A WOMAN THINKS

A large proportion of the population of suburban residential communities is made up of former city dwellers. And how often is heard the remark, "I wouldn't live in the city again for any money." Each shopping trip emphasizes the blessing we enjoy. The bus traverses tenement districts, and we view miles of houses built to the sidewalk, narrow alleys between, congestion, lack of light, the sky shut off from lower floors, and small loss at that, it is so gray and smoke filled—no flowers, no grass, no hedges, no place for the children to play but the streets. How good it is to get back home, where trees arch overhead, green lawns beckon, each house has its modest planting of evergreens, the smoke in the air carries the odor of burning leaves, and in the near distance are clear brooks, and wooded hills for mortals with roaming feet.

Doubtless every American housewife who read Sophie Kerr's short story, "Onions, French Fried," in a recent issue of a nationally read weekly, and who prides herself on being a good manager—modestly admitting to herself that friend husband would simply get nowhere, financially, without his wife's efficient management of the family budget—was delighted with the tale. It deals with adventures in thrift of a recently married young couple. There is just thirty-five dollars a week to live on. Quoth Lucy to George, during a discussion of ways and means of stretching each dollar without tearing it, in answer to George's pessimistic comment on the price of porterhouse steak: "If you imagine for a minute that you're going to get any porterhouse steak, except maybe Christmas and birthdays! No, we're going to live economically, if you know the word! And her next words deserve three cheers and a tiger: "I get so sick of the dirty cracks all the writers take at American cooks; they pretend that a French family could live on what an American family throws away. Well, I'm out to prove them wrong. No mouse—not even a half-grown mouse—will be able to live on what I throw away."

Twenty-five years ago, Sarah Tyson Rorer, who was one of the pioneer cookery experts conducting a magazine column, told her readers that nothing need be wasted; that a delicious soup could be concocted from the steak bones, the juice on the platter, some vegetables in the way of vegetables, and some water. Other thrifty hints appeared in her column and were welcomed by her readers. The French peasant may be able to subsist on soup and other dishes made from a little of this and a little of that, but the American husband is a good provider; he demands variety on his table and gets it. His wife can be economical, and is, especially when she has some goal in mind, such as the purchase of a home or a hat. There is lots of fun in beating the high cost of living and a real thrill in getting the most for your money—whether it is a dollar or a nickel. But we are not a nation of penny-pinchers. Kathleen Norris, the novelist, loves to tell of the way she and her husband, Charles Norris, also a successful writer, saved money on $25 a week, living in New York City, in the early days of her marriage. We may be sure that she no longer wastes her time shopping around for bargains in food. A real sense of proportion, an intelligent weighing of the comparative value of one's time, one's work or one's money is needed by the American housewife, and the great majority of women in the home are acquiring this sense of judgment in budgeting time, work and money.

We can think of no more delightful reward for work well done than the trip to the Newark Flower Show, enjoyed by the pupils who were on the honor roll in our schools. A bus full of bright youngsters, with their teachers, journeyed to the city and feasted on beauty.

A man all wrapped up in himself makes a mighty small bundle. A rigger runs crooked by taking the lines of least resistance the same as a man.
